TEXT BOOK SECTION

G.LIB

CALL No. { ·

ACC. NO. 296960

AUTHOR J. L. Kapur.

TITLE Indian contract & Specific relief acts.

24 SEP 2000
10 DEC 2000
10 MAY 2002
28 JUL 2002

13 JUL 2005

30 MAR 2004

THE BOOK MUST BE CHECKED AT THE TIME OF ISSUE

IQBAL LIBRARY
UNIVERSITY OF KASHMIR

Acc. No. _____ Call No. _____

1. This book should be returned on or before the last date stamped.
2. Overdue charges will be levied under rules for each day if the book is kept beyond the date stamped above.
3. Books lost, defaced or injured in any way shall have to be replaced by the borrowers.

Help to keep this book fresh and clean

INDIAN CONTRACT
AND SPECIFIC RELIEF ACTS

AUSTRALIA
The Law Book Company Ltd.
Sydney

CANADA
The Carswell Company Ltd.
Agincourt, Ontario

MALAYSIA : SINGAPORE : BRUNEI : INDONESIA
The Malayan Law Journal (Pte.) Ltd.
Singapore

NEW ZEALAND
Sweet & Maxwell (N.Z.) Ltd.
Wellington

PAKISTAN
Pakistan Law House
Karachi

U.K.
Sweet & Maxwell Ltd.
London

U.S.A.
Fred B. Rothman & Co.
Littleton, Colo.

POLLOCK & MULLA

ON

INDIAN CONTRACT

AND

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACTS

WITH A COMMENTARY CRITICAL AND EXPLANATORY

TENTH EDITION

By

JEEVAN LAL KAPUR, M.A., LL.B. (Cantab.)

Of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law
Retired Judge of the Supreme Court of India
Ex-Chairman of the Law Commission of India

BOMBAY
N. M. TRIPATHI PRIVATE LTD.

N. M. TRIPATHI PRIVATE LTD.

First Edition,	1905
Second Edition,	1909
Third Edition,	1913
Fourth Edition,	1919
Fifth Edition,	1924
Sixth Edition,	1931
Seventh Edition,	1944
Eighth Edition,	1957
Ninth Edition,	1972
Tenth Edition,	1986
Reprinted	1991

KASHMIR UNIVERSITY
Iqbal Library
Acc. No. 296960
Dated 8.10.92

P1R4
ST01

De Tahsin

Allama Iqbal Library
296960

Reprinted at St. Francis I.T.I., Borivli (W), Bombay-400103, and published by A.S. Pandya for N.M. Tripathi Private Ltd., 164, Samaldas Gandhi Marg, Bombay-400 002.

PREFACE TO THE TENTH EDITION

It is normally the privilege of the revising editor to write the Preface to a work of this kind. Unfortunately Mr. Justice J. L. Kapur, who had revised the earlier edition also, passed away very shortly after the manuscript was completed, and this task now falls to the publishers.

It is customary to include in the Preface acknowledgements and thanks to the various persons who have been involved in the writing of the book. The publishers wish to pay their tribute to the late Justice J.L. Kapur, a judge of vast learning, a social reformer, a perfect gentleman and a true Indian.

The publishers acknowledge with thanks the assistance rendered to Justice Kapur by Mr. P.V.S. Murthy, M.A. (Madras), M.A. (Columbia), M.Phil. (Columbia). Mr. Murthy was greatly helpful to the learned editor in the preparation of the manuscript, particularly during the later stages when age and failing eyesight were a deterrent to him. Mr. Murthy is also responsible for the revised and improved subject index provided in this edition.

To Mr. Dileep Dalal, Advocate, High Court, Bombay the publishers are thankful for the Addenda, which attempts to incorporate the latest case-law decided since the manuscript went to the printers.

When this book was first written over eighty years ago, the decisions of the British courts took up considerable space, and this influence continued in successive editions. Even after independence, Judges in Indian courts took notice of the comments in earlier editions. It is now acknowledged that judgements of the Supreme Court of India constitute the law of the land. However decisions of law courts in Australia, Canada and the United States have also been inducted into this work where considered useful and necessary.

PUBLISHERS

Bombay, July 1986

PREFACE TO THE NINTH EDITION

One of the learned authors in the preface to the first edition said that the characteristic of the Indian Contract Act is that it is a code of English Law, which view was reflected in the commentary by the learned authors and in the editions that followed. The present edition also has endeavoured to maintain that characteristic. Further on the abolition of the appeals to the Privy Council, its common tie for the homogeneous development of the common law throughout the Commonwealth was broken and that link has now to be provided by the text-books as observed by Denning L.J. (now Lord Denning M.R.). It is for these reasons that the relevant decided cases from various jurisdictions where the common law is administered, whether English courts, Australian courts, Canadian courts or Pakistan courts, were studied and wherever found relevant and helpful, incorporated under relevant sections.

The courts of independent India have, properly, it is submitted, continued to refer to cases from the courts of other Commonwealth countries and the law reports bear ample testimony to the advisability of applying the common law wherever appropriate or necessary and of keeping it as a link between Indian Law of Contract and English Law, and the interpretation of the sections of the Act has been enriched by "principles and doctrines embodied" in the decisions of the various Commonwealth courts outside India. While doing so, the editor has not ignored the decision of the Supreme Court that the Act to the extent that it deals with a particular subject, is exhaustive upon the same and that it would be incorrect to say that where these sections are not applicable, recourse can be had to principles of English Law which may have a persuasive value and are helpful in showing how those courts have decided cases under similar circumstances. (Satyabrata Gose v. Mugneeram & Co., 1954 S.C.R. 310).

Amongst the subjects, which have assumed importance in modern times and are discussed in this edition, it may be permissible to mention a few, the law relating to aircraft and the right of airlines to claim exemption from liability under the common law, the law applicable to contracts, lex loci or lex situs, the doctrine of promissory estoppel, fundamental breach and fundamental or essential condition; contract inter praesentes and inter absentees, error as to the person and the subject-matter of the contract. The contracts made on the telephone or by telex have also been discussed. (Bhagwandas v. Girdharilal (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656, so also the law relating to payment in foreign currency and gold coin and gold clause).

Cases dealing with the principle of in pari delicto decided by the Privy Council and by the Supreme Court have also been studied and quoted. (Sajan Singh v. Sardara Ali, 1960 A.C. 167 and Palaniappa v. Arunachalam (1962) A.C. 294; both referred to in Suraibalani v. Phanindra (1965) 1 S.C.R. 861; similarly Sheikh Bros.

v. Ochsner (1957) A.C. 136, where the difference between Ss. 20 and 56 was pointed out by the Privy Council).

The portion dealing with Consideration has been expanded and enlarged particularly on account of the controversy as to the essentiality of consideration and the rights of third parties. (Beswick v. Beswick, 1968 A.C. 58; and Coulls case (1967) A.L.J.R. 471 which was referred to by the House of Lords in Beswick's case). Reference has also been made to the observations of Denning L.J. that sanctity is not now attached to contracts (British Movietones Ltd. v. London & District Cinemas Ltd. (1951) 1 K.B. 190, 201) which was not accepted by the House of Lords and was referred to by the Supreme Court in Boothlinga Agencies case (1969) 1 S.C.R. 65.

All the Indian cases decided since the last edition were studied and those that were considered helpful in the exposition of the principles governing the law of contract have been embodied. Care has been taken to exclude those cases the value of which was considered to be little. Most of the Supreme Court cases declaring the Law of the Contract and of Specific Relief have been included, notably cases on Frustration beginning with Satyabrata Ghose v. Mugneeram, 1954 S.C.R. 310 and on unjust enrichment. (Alopi Prasad v. Union of India (1960) 2 S.C.R. 793).

The controversy as to the applicability of Ss. 65, 70 to cases of contracts with the Union or the States if they are in contravention of S. 175(3) of the Government of India Act and now of Art. 299(1) of the Constitution has been set at rest by the pronouncement of the Supreme Court on the application of S. 70, i.e. by treating the obligation as arising under a quasi contract and consequently being claimable. (Mulamchand v. State of Madhya Pradesh (1968) A.S.C. 1218).

The Specific Relief Act of 1963 which has adopted many of the suggestions by the learned authors of this book has practically been rewritten and the repealed sections and decisions dealing with them have been omitted as unnecessary. The law has been classified as to mutuality in the matter of Specific Relief in S. 12 and again in S. 20(4). A case on Specific Relief which has reference to unfair advantage is Satyanarayana v. Yellogi Rao (1965) 2 S.C.R. 221 and the ones dealing with personal service are discussed under S. 14, a notable case being Dr. S. Dutt's case (1959) S.C.R. 1236.

In the end the editor wishes to express his gratitude to Mr. K. S. Shavaksha, who unfortunately died recently, for the valuable help given by him, particularly in rewriting the portion relating to Specific Relief Act.

J.L.K.

12 Ashoka Road
New Delhi
August 1972

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

The Indian Contract Act is in effect, and for the reasons explained in our commentary on the first section, a code of English law. Like all codes based on an existing authoritative doctrine, it assumes a certain knowledge of the principles and habits of thought which are embodied in that doctrine. But, unlike European codes, it has to be applied in practice by magistrates and pleaders to whom the materials and surroundings of its own system are unfamiliar. It seems proper, therefore, that editors of an Anglo-Indian Code should give a pretty full exposition of those fundamental notions in the Common Law which are concisely declared, with or without modification, by the text. How far they have in fact been modified, and whether by deliberate design or by accident in the execution, is a question of interpretation depending not on the text alone, but on its relations to the English authorities which the framers of the code had before them, and to the subsequent development of English law. My first object has been to make those relations as clear as possible. For this purpose I have given more elementary explanation than would be required in a treatise addressed only to English lawyers or to practitioners in the High Courts, while I have endeavoured to avoid entering on details of procedure and other purely English technical matters beyond what was necessary for understanding the substance of the authorities.

We also have by this time a considerable number of reported Indian decisions on the Act. As it did not seem to me possible for an English lawyer who had not practised in India to deal adequately with these, I consented to undertake this edition only on the terms of the Indian cases being collected and digested by a competent person within the jurisdiction. Accordingly this task was entrusted to Mr. D. F. Mulla, who has performed it, so far as I can judge, completely and faithfully. I do not profess to have verified all his references, but I have verified and considered enough of them to be satisfied that his work is trustworthy. With the form of it I have interfered as little as might be, though some rearrangement and recasting was needful in order to combine Mr. Mulla's portion with my own in continuous whole. The result is that Mr. Mulla, while he is answerable for the inclusion of all Indian reported cases which ought to be cited for the use of practitioners, is not necessarily answerable for the distribution of them as appropriate to this or that section, or for the opinions expressed. At the same time I have seldom found occasion to differ with Mr. Mulla. Much oftener I have been able to strengthen his conclusions by the analogy of recent English dotrine, and to state them with increased confidence.

The present commentary is critical as well as explanatory. The criticism unavoidably follows the Act section by section, and is therefore broken up into many comments on details. In order to give a general notion beforehand of the causes which have made it necessary, and the spirit, I trust no captious one, in which it was undertaken, I now repeat the words I used in an unsigned review of Dr. Whitley Stokes's "Anglo-Indian Codes" on the publication of the first volume in 1887: "Every written law which goes beyond mere regulation of details is a work of art: it can no more afford to dispense with unity of design and continuity of execution than a monumental building. It should proceed from one mind, or from very few minds working in intimate association, and it should be framed, if not by one hand, at least under uniform general direction and by hands trained in one school. Where these conditions cannot be satisfied in the first instance, the next best thing is to secure a certain measure of uniformity by careful authoritative revision in the final stage. In England even this is seldom attainable.... The Government of India is less hampered, though not quite so free as might be supposed, and it may be said to have made good progress in founding a school of legislative composition. The results obtained are, on the whole, worthy of the succession of distinguished men whose services in the Governor-General's Council are commemorated by Mr. Whitley Stokes; and we must add that no small share of the labour and the credit belongs to Mr. Stokes himself. Still there has been in some cases a want of continuity. Measures long held in suspense, perhaps by excessive scruples, have been finished and passed in something like haste. Not only the work of different hands, but work done from quite different points of view, has been pieced together with an incongruous effect.... Another source of unequal workmanship, and sometimes of positive error, is that the framers of the Indian Codes, and of the Contract Act in particular, were tempted to borrow a section here and a section there from the draft Civil Code of New York, an infliction which the sounder lawyers of that State have been happily successful so far in averting from its citizens. This code is in our opinion, and we believe in that of most competent lawyers who have examined it, about the worst piece of codification ever produced. It is constantly defective and inaccurate, both in apprehending the rules of law which it purports to define and in expressing the draftsman's more or less satisfactory understanding of them. The clauses on fraud and misrepresentation in contracts—which are rather worse, if anything, than the average badness of the whole—were most unfortunately adopted in the Indian Contract Act. Whenever this Act is revised everything taken from Mr. Dudley Field's code should be struck out and the sections carefully recast after independent examination of the best authorities." In fact, the Contract Act passed through not less than three distinct stages. First, there was the draft prepared in England by the Indian Law Commission, uniform in style and possessing great merit as an elementary statement of the combined effect of common law and equity doctrine as understood about forty years ago. By the courtesy of the India Office I have had the use of this draft, and it is often referred to in the commentary for comparision with the final text of the Act. Next, this was revised and in parts elaborated by the Legislative Department in India. The borrowing from the New York draft Code seems to belong to this phase. Lastly, Sir James Stephen made or supervised the final revision, and added the introductory definitions, which are in a wholly different style and not altogether in harmony with the body of the work. Evidently this process could not satisfy the conditions of a model code. It is much to the credit of the workmen that the result, after allowing for all drawbacks, was a generally sound and useful one.

In many of the arguments and some of the judgments in the reports of the Indian High Courts there appears, if I mistake not, a tendency to follow English authorities too literally (though in any case they are not positively binding on Indian Courts), considering only what the Courts actually decided in England, and not what they would have decided if their office had been to apply the principles of the Common Law to the facts of Indian society. The best way to counteract such a tendency is not to neglect the letter of English judgments, which is not practicable and would not be useful, but to enter more fully into their spirit and distinguish their permanent from their local and accidental elements. To this object I have endeavoured, within the bounds of my undertaking, to contribute.

F.P.

LINCOLN'S INN,
May, 1905

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	PAGE
Preface to the Tenth Edition	v
Abbreviations and Periodicals	lvii
Comparative Table—Specific Relief Act (New & Old)	lviii
Table of Cases	lxi
Addenda	cli
Table of Cases to the Addenda	clxxxiii

PRELIMINARY

Preamble	1
SECTIONS
1. Short title	1
Extent and Commencement	1
Enactments repealed	1
Law anterior to Contract Act	1
Introduction of English Law into India	1
Introduction of Hindu and Mahomedan Laws of Contract into India	2
Hindu and Mahomedan Laws of Contracts as administered by High Courts	2
Law administered in Mufassal Courts	3
Applicability of the Act	3
Scheme of Contract Act	4
Scope of the Act	4
English law if applicable	4
Law codified	5
Railway Receipts and Bills of Lading and Way Bills	5
How far Hindu and Mahomedan Laws of Contracts are still in force	6
Acts and Regulations not expressly repealed	6
Saving of usage or custom of trade, etc.	7
Not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act	7
Evidence as to usage of trade	7
Rule of damdupat	8
Law merchant	8
Sections referring to usage or custom of trade	8
Law applicable to aircraft	8
Air accidents—Res ipsa loquitar	9
Choice of law governing contract	9
Law applicable	10
The rule in International Trade	12
Proper law — Time of Application	13
Insurance — marine	13
Discharge of a contract, law applicable	14
Novation and lex situs	15
Distinction between liability in tort and in contract	15
Act not retrospective	15
Principles of construction of contracts	16
Additions to printed form	17
Paramount Clause by addition	18
Conditions not binding on merger	18
Construction of Terms	18
Hedge Contracts	18

SECTIONS PAGE

Football club 18
Construction of Contractual documents 19
Forward Contract—Construction—Transferability 19
Contempt of Court and Exercise of Right under a Contract ... 20

2. Interpretation clause 20

Summary of 21
Proposal and Promise 21
Offer and acceptance of Counter offer 22
New Agreement 23
Option and offer 23
Promise and Consideration 23
Consideration necessary 24
Definition of Consideration 24
Adequate consideration 25
Promise, before payment 26
"At the desire of the Promisor" 26
When Contract Constituted 27
Fundamental condition of contract 28
Contractual duty no consideration 28
"Or any other person" 28
Consideration from third parties ... ... [illegible]
English Law: Consideration, Third Parties 31
Privity—cestui que trust 32
Consideration Contd. 33
Later cases on the doctrine 33
U.S.A. 35
Consideration—Continued 35
Insurance by bailee 37
Privity of contract 37
Exceptions 38
Consideration and privity of contract 38
A settlement under Industrial Disputes Act wider 39
Mutuality—lack of 39
Third party—consideration 41
Third Party cases 42
Security 42
Marriage Contracts—Who can enforce 42
Contract with third party—Limitation of liability 43
Marriage Settlement 43
Damages for Discomfort to third party 44
Stevedore — liability of 44
Stevedore — whether entitled to benefit of bill of lading ... 45
Bankers' Commercial Credits—Sellers' position 45
Implied Warranty 46
Oral Warranty 47
Past consideration 47
"Or does or abstains from doing": Forbearance as Consideration ... 48
Carrying out Contractual duty 49
Forbearance 49
Compromise 51
Apparent forbearance when really an act 51
"Or promises to do or to abstain from doing something": Mutual Promises 51
Executory and Executed considerations 51
Distinction between contracts where consideration is executed or executory 52

SECTIONS PAGE

Intention to enter into a Contract 52
Contractual Intent 53
Irrevocable Power of Attorney 54
Promises of forbearance 54
"Such act or abstinence or promise is called a consideration for the purpose": Further requirements 54
Consideration lawful 55
Sub-ss. (e) to (j): Agreement and Contract 55
Bye laws of Co-operative Society 56
Contract and Licence 56
Concluded Contract 57
Contract with Government 57
No Contract 57
Contract 57
Lumpsum Contract 58
Contracts after filing of winding up petition 58
Unenforceability and voidness 58
Contract, making of 58
Government Contract—formal deed not necessary 58
When Contract subsists 58
Collateral contract where main contract defective 59
Contract by Incorporation 59

CHAPTER I

OF THE COMMUNICATION, ACCEPTANCE AND REVOCATION OF PROPOSALS 60

3. Communication, acceptance and revocation of proposals 60
Scope of S. 3 60
What is communication? 60
Communication of special conditions 60
Notice of Auction or for calling tenders 61
Doctrine of Fundamental breach—Fundamental term—evolution of 61
Essential or Fundamental Fact 61
Fundamental term 63
Rule of Construction 63
The Case of the House of Lords was this 67
Fundamental breach—burden of proving 68
Principle of deviation 69
Fundamental Breach 70
Exception clause—when operative 70
Contractual documents 70
Conditions printed in small print 71
Carrier's case 71
Being unable to read 72
Parking lots 73
Bailee and sub-bailee, and exemption clause 73
Corporation, if can defend employees negligence 74
Exemption clause and previous course of dealings 74
Hire-purchase 74
Election in case of fundamental breach 75
Strike Clause 75
Contract in English 76
Exemption clause—Authorities not reconcilable 76
Incorporation of prospectus in a policy of assurance 77

SECTIONS PAGE

4. Communication when complete 77
Agreement between parties at a distance 78
English rules 79
Acceptance by Silence and Conduct 79
Offer upto when Capable of acceptance 80
Exclusion of Postal Rule 81
Operation of the Rule 81
Revocation arriving before acceptance 81
Statutory consents 81
Contracts inter absentees 81
Post office Agent of Payee 82
Telephone 82
Telex—time of receipt of message 83
Payment by Telex 83
Telegrams 83
Withdrawal of bid by telegram 83

5. Revocation of proposals and acceptances 83
Revocation of Offers 84
Revocation—option for value 84
Sale by Auction, etc. 85
Tender acceptance of concluded contract 86
Revocation before acceptance of bid 87
Resignation—revocation of 88
Standing offers 88
Indian Oaths Act 89
Offer to abide by a statement of opposite party or another ... 89

6. Revocation how made 89
Notice of Revocation 89
Revocation not presumed 90
Lapse of time for acceptance 91
Lapse of time without repudiation 91
Acceptance of an offer where no time fixed 91
Conditional Offer 91
Condition precedent to acceptance 91
Death or insanity of proposer 92
Death of an offeror 92
Death of offeree 92
Refusal 92

7. Acceptance must be absolute 92
Certainty of acceptance 93
Acceptance of tender 96
Waiver of right by a party 96
Seeking Clarification 96
Insurance Contract, formation of 97
Revival of lapsed insurance 97
Material fact in Insurance 98
Temporary covering note in Insurance 98
Subsequent demands 98
Absolute acceptance 98
Offer, acceptance, counter offer—effect of 100
Counter offer 101
Introducing new terms 101
Formation of a contract 101
McGregor's case 101

SECTIONS PAGE

Contract—what is within s. 7(d) of People's Representation Act ... 101
Formation of Contracts 102
Essentials of a lease 102
Ex Gratia 102
Distinction between continuing and concluded contracts ... 103
Apparent without real acceptance 103
Manner of acceptance (sub-s. 2) 103

8. Acceptance by performing conditions, or receiving consideration ... 104
General Offers 104
Invitation for offer 106
Acting on offer—when sufficient acceptance 106
Agreement to pay Compound interest 110
Compound interest, charging of, when binding 110
Conditional offer and acceptance 110
Contract Vague 111
Course of dealing—implied when 111
Acceptance by receiving consideration 111
No offer for Sale 112

9. Promises, express or implied 112
Express and tacit promises 112
No Implied Contracts under Art. 299 113
Terms Implied—when business efficacy 114
Terms not implied 115
No term to be imported 116
Incorporation of Conditions of Contract 116
Variation of Terms—effect of 116

CHAPTER II

OF CONTRACTS, VOIDABLE CONTRACTS AND VOID AGREEMENTS 117

10. What agreements are contracts 117
As to contracts required to be in writing 117
Oral and documentary evidence 117
Variance between print and writing 117
As to the law relating to Registration 117
Contracts 117
Invalid Contract and Arbitration Clause 118
Licence—when a Contract 118

11. Who are competent to contract 118
"To Contract" 118
Infancy 118
Age of majority 118
"Law to which he is subject" 119
Minor's agreement 120
Conflict between two innocent parties—minors sale— 121
Partnership agreement 121
Fraudulent Representation 122
Debt of a minor in bankruptcy 124
Burden of proof 126
Estoppel 126
Mortgages and sales in favour of minors 126
Ratification 127

SECTIONS

		PAGE
	Contracts of marriage—Ratification of ...	128
	Divorce ...	128
	Payment of debt incurred during minority ...	128
	Specific performance ...	128
	Membership of Societies ...	130
	Necessaries ...	130
	Bond jointly passed by a minor and an adult ...	130
	"Of sound mind" ...	130
	Persons otherwise "disqualified from contracting" ...	131
	Contract by insolvent—formation ...	131
	Capacity of Governments ...	132
	Gift deed by a person of unsound mind: Consolidation of Laws ...	132
12.	What is a sound mind for the purposes of contracting ...	132
	Burden of proof ...	133
	Not capable of understanding ...	133
	Contract in lucid interval ...	133
	Undue advantage to one party ...	133
	Drunkenness and Specific Performance ...	134
13.	"Consent" defined ...	134
	Apparent and real consent ...	134
	Ambiguity ...	136
	Fundamental error ...	137
	As to the nature of the transaction ...	137
	Consent and estoppel ...	139
	Estoppel by Conduct ...	140
	Parda-nishin cases ...	140
	Contract inter praesentes ...	140
	Error as to the person of the other party ...	140
	Fundamental Fact ...	141
	Parties at a distance ...	141
	Mistake inter praesentes ...	142
	No third party in existence ...	144
	Mistake (contd.) ...	144
	American and New Zealand Laws ...	144
	As to the subject-matter of the agreement ...	145
	Coercion wholly excluding consent ...	145
14.	"Free consent" defined ...	145
	Unfree consent ...	145
15.	"Coercion" defined ...	147
	Extent of "Coercion" under the Act ...	147
	Duress ...	147
	Duress, Contract under ...	148
	Duress — Commercial or economic pressure ...	148
	Economic Duress ...	148
	Burden of proof is Contracts under duress ...	149
	Consideration: Duress—public policy ...	149
	Act forbidden by the Penal Code ...	149
	Compulsion of law ...	150
	Unlawful detaining of property ...	151
	Proof of Coercion ...	151
16.	"Undue influence" defined ...	151
	The doctrine of undue influence in England ...	152

SECTIONS PAGE

Influence — Undue Influence 154
Sub-s. 1: Undue influence generally 154
"Undue influence", "fraud" and "misrepresentation" to be specifically pleaded 155
Onus 155
Sub-s. 2: Different forms of influence 155
Fiduciary relationship 156
Equitable presumption—Husband and Wife 158
Bargaining Power 159
What is competent and independent advice? 160
Mental distress 160
Instances of Undue influence 161
No undue influence 162
Undue influence not established 162
No undue influence shown and relationship was the test 164
Carrying out the dictates of law is not coercion or undue influence 166
Third Party—whether can avoid contract 166
Threat to prosecute a third person 166
Proof of undue influence 167
Transactions with parda-nishin women 168
Who is parda-nishin 171
Parda-nishin Women—extension of the rule 171
Sub-s. 3: Rule of evidence 171
Third Parties 172
"Unconscionable bargains" 173
Unconscionability—Canadian view 174
Expectant Heirs 176
Taking unfair advantage by economic power 176
Lapse of time and limitation 177
Right of legal representatives 178

17. "Fraud" defined 178
Section 17 analysed 178
Fraud in general 178
Falsity 179
Sub-ss. 3, 4, 5 179
Acts and omissions specially declared to be fraudulent 180
Mere non-disclosure 180
Hindu Marriage Act—Fraud meaning of 181
Fraud—Insolvency—Third Party 181
Party pleading fraud—Onus 181
Art. 226 and fraud 181

18. "Misrepresentation" defined 181
Language of the section 182
Difference between fraund and misrepresentation 182
Principles of English law as to misrepresentation 182
Silence not misrepresentation 183
Misrepresentation—half truths 183
Uberrima fides—Contracts of Insurance 183
Misrepresentation—Insurance 184
Convictions 185
Uncustomed Goods 185
Misrepresentation—Warranty 185
Relying on one's own fraud, no action will lie 186
Sub-s. 1 186
Statement of opinion and intention 187

SECTIONS PAGE

Opinion and fact 187
Non-disclosure 188
Representee 188
Two remedies to a representee 188
Misrepresentation need not be direct 188
Acquiescence, tacit consent and connivance 189
Inducement may not be the sole inducement 189
Sub-s. 2 190
Misrepresentation, though innocent 190
Misrepresentation leading to committing an offence 191
Innocent misrepresentation and executed contracts 192
Negligent misrepresentation 193
Reckless statement 194
Specific Performance refused 194
Sub-s. 3 194
Non est factum 195
Document signed in blank 196
Doctrine reviewed 196
Carelessness 198
Mistake 198
Misrepresentation of title 198
Misrepresentation of fact or law 198
Misrepresentation as to a question of law 199
Misrepresentation and marriages 199
False representation—Marriage contract 199
Difference between claim for Damages and for Rescission ... 200
Award of damages in place of rescission 200
Estoppel 200
Right to rescind when lost 200

19. Voidability of agreements without free consent 201

Scope of the section 201
Restitutio in integrum 203
Misrepresentation 203
Rescission of a contract of partnership—misrepresentation ... 204
Suit by representatives 204
Exception: Means of discovering truth 205
Explanation: as to "causing consent" 206
Illustrations 207
Avoidance of a voidable contract 207
Plea of fraudulent representation in written statement 208
Gift right to revoke survives to Legal Representatives 209
Rescission of voidable contracts 209
Specific performance 209
Right of Third party cannot be set up 209
Admission by misrepresentation 209
Exception 209
Insurance Policy 209

19A. Power to set aside contract induced by undue influence 209

20. Agreement void where both parties are under a mistake as to matter of fact 210

Scope of the section 211
Mistake is of three kinds 211
Common mistake 211
Effect of mistake at law and its effect in equity 213

SECTIONS PAGE

Mistake as to substance and as to quality 214
False and fundamental assumption 218
Sale of land and mistake 218
Lease of flats 218
Mistake: moveable property 218
The mistake must be as to an existing fact 219
Mistake of fact and law 222
Specific Performance 223
Rectification 223
Compensation 223
Sections 20 and 56—Distinction 223

21. Effect of mistakes as to law 224
Difference between S. 12 & Sections 21 and 22 226

22. Contract caused by mistake of one party as to matter of fact ... 226

23. What considerations and objects are lawful and what not 227
S. 23 inspired by English Common Law 227
Unlawful Objects 227
Illegal contract by performance 229
Ignorance of Law 231
"Forbidden by law" 231
Money lenders 236
Reciting a smaller consideration in a sale deed 236
Transfer of land before the Ceiling Act 237
Contracts of partnership illegal 237
Partnership not void 238
Debt incurred for minor's marriage 240
Before illegality effected 240
Forbidden by law and void 241
Contract by unregistered partnership 241
"Defeat the provisions of any law" 241
1. Legislative enactments: Void agreements 241
Forbidden by Law 245
Forbidden by Law: Dowry 245
Tenancies 245
Breach of Control order 247
Deposits—ban of under Prize chits and money Circulation Scheme (Banning) Act 1978 248
Breach of Exchange Control Act 248
2. Rules of Hindu and Mahomedan law 248
3. Other rules of law in force in India 250
An order having the force of law 251
Legality of Waiver 252
"Fraudulent" 252
Tortious Act 253
Defrauding Revenue and breach of laws of another country ... 253
Fiscal Law 253
Foreign Law Proper Law 254
Illegality under proper law 254
Contravention of Gold Control Order 255
Severability of legal and illegal portions of bailment 255
"Injury to the person or property of another" 255
Compromise between some partners 256
"Immoral" 256

SECTIONS		PAGE
	Immoral—whether sexual immorality	256
	Public Policy	260
	Ex turpi causa not applicable	261
	"Opposed to public policy"	263
	Breach of Revenue Law	263
	Public Policy not immutable	263
	Public Policy—Sex discrimination	264
	Cases illustrative of Public Policy	265
	Public Interest	266
	Tenancy—Breach of law and contract	266
	Public Policy	266
	Doing a useless and unnecessary thing—Waiver	267
	In Pari Delicto	267
	S. 23 not concerned with motive	271
1.	Trading with enemy	271
2.	Stifling prosecution	272
	Criminal complaint and arbitration	277
3.	"Champerty and maintenance"	277
4.	Interference with course of justice	281
5.	Marriage brocage contracts	282
	Contract against Public Policy cannot be the basis of a criminal charge — Receiving money for marriage	283
5A.	Contract in restraint of marriage and marriage agreements against public policy	284
6.	Agreements tending to create interest against duty	285
6A.	Transfer of parental authority	285
7.	Sale of public offices	286
8.	Agreements tending to create monopolies	287
8A.	Airlines	287
9.	Agreement by client to remunerate his pleader's clerk	287
10.	Agreement not to bid	287
11.	Suicide	287
12.	Contract not to revoke a Will	288
	Waiver of illegality	288
	Public Policy—Court must take up on noticing illegality ...	288
	Pleadings	289
	Other statutory provisions of similar effect	289
	Void Agreements	289
24.	Agreements void, if considerations and objects unlawful in part ...	289
	Entire or divisible agreements	289
	Transfer of property	292
	Indian Trusts Act, 1882	292
25.	Agreement without consideration void, unless it is in writing and registered	292
	or is a promise to compensate for something done	292
	or is a promise to pay a debt barred by limitation law	292
	Promises without consideration	293
	Adequacy of consideration	293
	Forbearance and compromise as consideration	295
	Mutuality	297
	Promise to perform existing duty	297
	Good Consideration	299
	Consideration—performance of contractual duty—Increase in the amount of letter of credit—Currency revalued	299

SECTIONS PAGE

Transfer of immovable property 299
Negotiable Instruments 299
Registered writing 299
Compensation for voluntary services 301
Promise to pay a barred debt 302
Christian son's pronote for father's debts 303
Arrears of rent including rent for barred period 303
Equitable mortgage for a barred debt 304
Account stated 304
Distinction between Acknowledgment and Promise 305

Agent generally or specially authorised in that behalf 307
Debt 307
Explanation I 308
Explanation II 308

26. Agreement in restraint of marriage void 309

27. Agreement in restraint of trade void 310
Saving of agreement not to carry on business of which goodwill is sold 310
Agreements in restraint of trade 310
Test of restraint of trade validity 311
English law 312
Australian Law 312
Indian Law contd. 313
Reasonable and fair 314
Restraint—in the sale of business 314
Rules of a Trade Union 314
Professional bodies 315
Sex disqualifications 315
Restraint during term of service 315
Interim injunction 315
Apprentice 317
Covenants between Master and Servant and Commercial Contracts 317
Restraints in Sale of Business agreement and Employing an Employee 317
Text of reasonableness 318
Restraint of Trade 319
Reasonableness—Parties and Public Explained 319
Time of Application 320
Agreements between Master and Servant 320
Competition per se 321
After and during continuance of employment 321
Master's proprietary interest—Contract of employment 322
Public Policy 323
Restraint of trade and public policy 324
Confidence to be protected 324
Post-service restraint 325
Restraint of Trade 325
Masters Trade Secrets and Confidential Information—Injunction ... 325
Repudiation of Contract of service wrongfully—Trade Secrets ... 326
Factors upon which reasonableness of restraint depends ... 326
Test of fairness 327
Partnerships 327
Foreign Contracts and Foreign Merchants 327
Agreements not in restraint of trade 327
Area and period of restraint 328
Limits on scope of restraint 330

SECTIONS PAGE

Negative Covenants 330
Trade Combinations 332
"To that extent" 333
Injunctions 333
Doctrine of Severance 334
Lex loci contractus 334
Covenant binding on transferees 334
Judicial Notice of Illegality 334
Exception 1 334
Assignability 335

28. Agreements in restraint of legal proceedings void 335
Saving of contract to refer to arbitration dispute that may arise ... 335
Suits barred by such contracts 336
Saving of contract to refer questions that have already arisen ... 336

Agreement in restraint of legal proceedings 336
"Rights under or in respect of any contract" 338
Limitation of time to enforce rights under a contract 338
Ordinary tribunals 340
Ousting Courts jurisdiction 341
Limiting Jurisdiction to one or more competent Courts 341
Exception 1, Second Clause 343
Remedies for breach of agreement to refer 344
Conventional restrictions of evidence 344

29 Agreements void for uncertainty 344

Ambiguous contracts 344
Implying term to give efficacy 345
Contracts held to be vague and therefore void 346
Agreements not vague 348

30. Agreements by way of wager void 350
Exception in favour of certain prizes for horse-racing 350
Section 294A of the Indian Penal Code not affected 350

Wagering contracts 350
Gaming Debt 351
What is a wager 351
"By way of wager" 352
Teji mandi transactions 356
Agreements between Pakka Adatia and his constituents ... 356
Agreements collateral to wagering contracts 357
Contracts void and illegal 360
Partnership to Carry on Wagering Contracts 360
Silver Transactions 361
Transferability 361
Speculative transactions 362
Oral evidence of agreement being by way of wager 363
Wagering Policies 364
Wagering policy negatived 365
Promissory note for debt due on a wagering contract 365
No action on cheque governed by English Law 365
Loans: Money paid by a lender straight to Winner 365
New Promise to pay 366
Loan governed by foreign law 366
Foreign Country loan 366
Suit to recover deposit 366
Lotteries 366

SECTIONS PAGE

CHAPTER III

OF CONTINGENT CONTRACTS

31. "Contingent contract" defined 368
Of the section in general 368
Contingency dependent on act of party 369
Execution of a Formal Agreement 371
Discharge—Contingent contracts 371
Option to determine 372
Condition Subsequent 372

32. Enforcement of contracts contingent on an event happening ... 372

33. Enforcement of contracts contingent on an event not happening ... 374

34. When event on which contract is contingent to be deemed impossible, if it is the future conduct of a living person 374

35. When contracts become void which are contingent on happening of specified event within fixed time 374
When contracts may be enforced which are contingent on specified event not happening within fixed time 374

36. Agreements contingent on impossible events void 375

CHAPTER IV

OF THE PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS

Contracts which must be performed

37. Obligation of parties to contracts 376
Performance and discharge 376
A lessee cannot plead that he is a mere benamidar 377
C.I.F. Contract 377
Discharge by performance (i) Conditional on complete performance by one party 377
(ii) De minimis and unjust enrichment 377
(iii) Defective work and misconduct 377
(iv) Bills, payment by 378
Succession to benefit of contract 378
Obligation of parties to a contract 379
Assignment of contracts 380
Prohibition against assignment of Contract 380
Any other law 383

38. Effect of refusal to accept offer of performance 383
Tender 384
Offer must not be of part only 384
Discharge by final order of payment 384
Prevention by one party 385
Offer must be unconditional 386
Able and willing 386
Tender of instalments 387
Reasonable opportunity 388
Late arrival of train 388
Tender of money 388
Legal tender 389

SECTIONS PAGE

Payment in foreign currency 389
Date of rate of conversion of foreign currency into pound sterling 390
Payment in default—Exchange Rate 392
Gold Clause 392
Gold coin in the U.S.A. 393
Offer to one of several joint promisees 393
Validity of discharge by one of several joint promisees 393
Validity of discharge by one of several joint decree-holders ... 395
Indian Law and English Law—Difference 395

39. Effect of refusal of party to perform promise wholly 395
Refusal to perform contract 395
Anticipatory breach 396
Effect of Acceptance of the Breach 396
Promise in its Entirety 397
Second alternative—Contract subsisting 402
Renunciation in the Course of Performance 402
"Disabled himself from performing" 402
"Promisee may put an end to the contract" 403
Rescission and Repudiation (H.L.) 404
Anticipatory breach 405
No revival after rescission 406
Erroneous expression not repudiation 406
Electing to accept repudiation 406
Motive for rescission irrelevant 407
Arbitration clause 407
Agreement for Arbitration in a Deed of Trust 409
Contract to enter into a contract 409
Contract of service 409
Bills and notes, anticipatory breach as to 410
Distinction between repudiation and frustration 410
Measure of damages 411
Insolvency of promisor 411

By whom Contracts must be Performed

40. Person by whom promise is to be performed 411
Personal contracts 412

41. Effect of accepting performance from third person 413
Assignment and Subrogation—Distinction 413

42. Devolution of joint liabilities 414

43. Any one of joint promisors may be compelled to perform 414
Each promisor may compel contribution 414
Sharing of loss by default in contribution 414
Joint promisors 415
Sections 43 and 69 415
Effect of decree against some only of joint promisors 416
Suit against one of several partners 417
Co-heirs 419
Co-tenants 419
Contribution between joint promisors 419
When liability to contribute arises 419
Contribution as between judgment-debtors 420
Contribution between mortgagors 421
Debtors' Relief Act 421

SECTIONS PAGE

44. Effect of release of one joint promisor 421

45. Devolution of joint rights 421
Section 45, Scope of 422
Promise two or more persons jointly 422
Right to performance of promises during joint lives 422
Partnership Suit 423
Validity of discharge by one of several joint promisees 423
Suit by a surviving partner 423
Death of all the partners 424
Deceased partner's estate 424
Suit by co-mortgagees 424
Suit by representative of deceased partner 424
Right of performance of representative jointly with survivor ... 425
Survivorship in case of Government Securities 425

Time and Place for Performance

46. Time for performance of promise where no application is to be made and no time is specified 425
"Engagement" 425
Reasonable time 425

47. Time and place for performance of promise where time is specified and no application to be made 426
Common Law rule 427
Delivery on Sunday 427

48. Application for performance on certain day to be at proper time and place 427

49. Place for performance of promise where no application to be made and no place fixed for performance 427
Rule of Common Law 427
Common Law rule of debtor seeking creditor 428
Place of delivery 429
Negotiable instruments 429
Place of performance in pakki adat contracts 430

50. Performance in manner or at time prescribed or sanctioned by promisee 430
Manner and time of performance 430

Performance of Reciprocal Promises

51. Promisor not bound to perform unless reciprocal promisee ready and willing to perform 431
Simultaneous performance 431
Waiver of performance 433
Readiness and willingness 433
Averment of performance 434

52. Order of performance of reciprocal promises 434

53. Liability of party preventing event on which the contract is to take effect 435
Impossibility created by act of party 435

SECTIONS PAGE

54. Effect of default as to that promise which should be first performed, in contract consisting of reciprocal promises 437
Default of promisor in first performance 437

55. Effect of failure to perform at fixed time, in contract in which time is essential 438
Effect of such failure when time is not essential 438
Effect of acceptance of performance at time other than that agreed upon ... ..., ... 439
Time—when of essence of contract 439
Option of repurchase .., ... 441
Re-conveyance 442
Renewal of a lease, option for—Time of essence 442
Either party's rights 445
Auction Sale 446
Other principles affecting the time fixed for performance .., 446
Waiver 446
Unilateral extension of time 447
Time of essence of contract in contracts of labour and work ... 447
"The contract becomes voidable at the option of the promisee" ... 447

56. Agreement to do impossible act 448
Contract to do act afterwards becoming impossible or unlawful ... 448
Compensation for loss through non-performance of act known to be impossible or unlawful 448
Impossibility in general 448
Difference between 450
Doctrine of Frustration—English law 450
Sanctity of contracts 450
Licence—Sanctity of contract and freedom of speech 451
Frustration—controversy as to juridical basis 451
(1) Frustration—just and reasonable 452
(2) Disappearance of the basis of the contract or the foundation is gone 453
Frustration—Destruction of the basis 453
Foundation of the Contract Theory 453
True construction as test of which is sometimes designated "Change in the obligation" theory 454
(3) Frustration—Implied Term 454
Full provision made in contract 455
Essential conditions 457
S. 56 not applicable, when 457
Impossible 457
Positive Law 458
Courts have no power to absolve 459
Discharge when Time is of the essence 460
Other cases 460
Stoppage of work by strike 462
Strike 462
Frustration of the adventure 462
Frustration of Adventure—War conditions 463
Frustration by Total or Partial Prohibition 464
"Becomes impossible" 465
(a) Indefinitely impossible 465
(b) Destruction of subject-matter of contract 465
(c) Unavailability 466

SECTIONS PAGE

(d) Death or Incapacity 466
(e) Method of performance impossible 467
Frustration and Sale of Land 468
Frustration and Leases 468
Indian Law 469
Doctrine applies to executory contracts 470
Frustration of a concluded lease 470
Sub-lease 470
Agricultural Leases 470
Without the promisor's default— 471
Auction sale of property during— 472
Application limited 472
Self-induced 472
Automatic operation 473
Frustration and Rescission 474
Arbitration and frustration 474
More Onerous—Narrow limits of Doctrine 474
Commercial impossibility 475
Customary and usual at the time of performance 476
C.I.F. Contract and Contract of Affreightment 476
Cases of closure of Suez 476
Commercially or Fundamentally or Radically different 478
Delay in fulfilling a contract when frustration 478
Test of Frustration 479
"Becomes unlawful" 479

I. Illegality affecting part of contract— 480
Events foreseen or provided for 480
(a) Supervening Illegality 480
(b) Narrow construction—True construction of the clause ... 481
(c) Incomplete provision 481
Cases of frustration 481
Change in specifications 482
Foreseen events—by one party 482
Where both parties should have foreseen 483
Refund 483
Effect of Frustration—Rights before frustration 483
Consideration—meaning of 483
Rights not yet accrued 484
Dealings with Enemies 484
Illegality—Dealings with the enemy 487
Occupation of a country 487
Marriage & Frustration 488
Mistake and frustration 488
Service Contracts & Frustration 488
Hart's Case was this 488
Consideration in quasi-contractual sense 489
Liabilities of Coal mines previous to taking over of management of mines 489

57. Reciprocal promise to do things legal, and also other things illegal ... 489
Scope of the section 490

58. Alternative promise, one branch being illegal 490

Appropriation of Payments

59. Application of payment where debt to be discharged is indicated ... 490
Appropriation of Payments 490
Debt 491

SECTIONS PAGE

Export Duty 491
Several distinct debts 491

60. Application of payment where debt to be discharged is not indicated ... 492
Creditor's right to appropriate 492
Contract of Guarantee 494
Principal and interest 494
Compositions 494
Debt barred by the law of limitation 494

61. Application of payment where neither party appropriates 495
Scope of the Section 495
Mortgage of joint Hindu family property 495

Contracts which need not be performed

62. Effect of novation, rescission and alteration of contract 495
Novation 496
Capacity to make novation 498
Principle of S. 62 and Arbitration Clause 499
Arbitration Clause 499
Assignment and novation distinguished 499
Alteration of contract 500
Non unilateral enhancement 502
Unilateral variation 502
Power to vary 503
Rescission and variation of a contract 503
Settlement contracts 503
Transfer of actionable claims 503
Promissory note on account of pre-existing debt 503
Negotiable Instruments 504
Transfer of policy risk to the transferee of the vehicle 504
Excursus to S. 62: Unauthorised alteration of documents ... 505
Indian decisions 506
Determination of a licence by reasonable notice 509
Discharge by agreement—Discharge by long period of non-user ... 510
Provision for the discharge of a contract 510
Liability of insurer on transfer of ownership of a car 510
Agreement not to sue 510

63. Promisee may dispense with or remit performance of promise ... 511
Rule of the Common Law 511
Waiver 512
Under English Law waiver is defined thus 512
Waiver on the party asking for concession 512
Effect on party making the concession 512
Breach of condition of payment—waiver 512
Right of Pre-emption—waiver of 513
Waiver and estoppel 514
Election 514
Estoppel and Election 514
Estoppel—Taking part in proceedings after irregularity 514
Scope of the section 514
Accord and satisfaction 515
Damages, accord and satisfaction 515
Accord and satisfaction—Printed forms, constructions of ... 516
Remission of performance 516

SECTIONS PAGE

Promissory Estoppel 517
Smaller sum for a bigger sum 518
Promissory estoppel or quasi or equitable estoppel 518
American View 518
Distinction between Common Law and Promissory Estoppel ... 518
High Trees Case 519
Promissory Estoppel 521
Government bound 522
Change of Policy and Non-observance of Art. 299 No Defence ... 522
Instances of equitable estoppel 529
Payment by a stranger 529
Agreement to extend time 530
No Estoppel after signing document 531

64. Consequences of rescission of voidable contract 531
Scope of the section 531
Minor's contract 532
Election to rescind 532
Benefit received "thereunder" 533
Rescission of contract by innocent party—communication of ... 534
Rescission of Contract 534
Rescission—Executory and executed contract 535

65. Obligation of person who has received advantage under void agreement or contract that becomes void 535
Duties of restitution 535
Sale of property of Judgment-debtor with no interest 536
Scope of the section—Restitution 537
Mutual benefits 538
Restitutio in integrum—Rescission 538
Where an agreement is discovered to be void 539
Consideration unseverable 541
Contract with a minor 547
Contract by an illegal Association 547
"When a contract becomes void" 547
Illegal Contracts 549
Contracts with corporations 550
Lack of form for making appointments by a corporation ... 552
Quantum Meruit 554
Quantum Meruit and Damages 554
Conditions for applicability of Quantum Meruit 555
Quantum Meruit for work done where the contract is terminated by breach 557
Ratification 558
Estoppel 558
Contract cannot control statutory powers of Government ... 559
"Any person" 559
Limitation 559
"Received any advantage" 560
Burden of Proof 560
Agents 561

66. Mode of communicating or revoking rescission of voidable contract ... 561

67. Effect of neglect of promisee to afford promisor reasonable facilities for performance 561
Refusal or neglect of promisee 561

SECTIONS PAGE

Chapter V

OF CERTAIN RELATIONS RESEMBLING THOSE CREATED BY CONTRACT

Quasi contract 563
Quantum meruit 564

68. Claim for necessaries supplied to person incapable of contracting, or on his account 565
Minors 565
"Necessaries" 566

69. Reimbursement of person paying money due by another in payment of which he is interested 566
English law 566
Subrogation 568
"Person. . . .interested in the payment of money" 568
Insurer's right to sue 569
Suit for contribution 572
Reimbursement and Contribution 572
"Money which another is bound by law to pay" 573
"Bound by law" 573
Purchase of property subject to payment of encumbrances ... 575
Payment must be to another person 575
Remedies against wrong-doer 575
Other remedies 575
Res judicata 575

70. Obligation of person enjoying benefit of non-gratuitous act 575
Non-gratuitous act done for another 576
Raised for the first time in special leave 577
Unjust Enrichment 577
Erroneous accounts 578
Compensation 581
An inadmissible promissory note 583
Execution of Sale—no title 583
"Lawfully" 583
Remuneration at discretion of another 585
Persons incompetent to contract 585
"Does" 585
"For another person" 586
Contract 587
Benefit 587
Surety 587
Benefits obtained by retaining property 588
Compensation for work without request 588
Liability as between two innocent persons 588
Remedies against wrong-doer 588
Illegal contract 589
Contracts with Government 589
S. 175(3) and Art. 299(1) mandatory 589
Contract not in the name of Governor-General 592
Government and Corporations 592
Implied Contract — Quasi Contract 593
Salvage—Quasi Contract 593
Services performed in an Emergency 594
Restitution 594

SECTIONS PAGE

Ratification and Estoppel 594
Arbitration agreement not in accordance with S. 175(3) ... 595
Ratification of an invalid contract 595
Government not a minor 595
Burden of proof 596
Extras 597

71. Responsibility of finder of goods 597
Criminal Liability of finder 597
Civil Liability of finder 597
Agency 597

72. Liability of person to whom money is paid or thing delivered, by mistake or under coercion 598
Money had and received—Doctrine of 598
Payment under mistake of fact or mistake of law 599
Indian law and law in other countries 600
Right of the Crown to recover wages paid to civil servant ... 601
Building Contract 601
Quasi Contract—Fire Brigade of another District 601
Right and fair not a good test 601
Sale of land and business—Difference between 602
Subpoena 602
Reimbursement 602
Sections 72 and 21 and 22—Difference between 602
Refund of Tax 603
Tax paid under a mistake of law 603
Tax collected by dealer illegally 605
Property tax on rent basis 606
Other cases 606
Payments to bank under a mistake 608
Waiver of tort 608
Coercion 608
Duress, compulsion and refund of money 609
Coercion 609
Law of Restitution under void taxes and assessment is this ... 610
Under S. 72 610
Moneys paid under legal compulsion 610
Money paid under compulsion—'colori officii' 611
Money paid under mistake 611
Mistake—Adjustment by Government 612
Nature of mistake 612
Section 72 not applicable 612
Wrongful payment 613

CHAPTER VI

OF THE CONSEQUENCES OF BREACH OF CONTRACT

73. Compensation for loss or damage caused by breach of contract ... 614
Compensation for failure to discharge obligation resembling those created by contract 614
Scope 614
Note—Market rate 615
Open Market 615
Forbearance 616
Market rate: limits of rule 617

SECTIONS PAGE

Export sales and C.I.F. and F.O.R. 617
Railways—Open delivery 618
Breach of Contract 618
Note—Delay in Performance 618
Breach of contract to build—Date of assessment of damages, Inflation, Mitigation 619
Damages—Consignors claim 619
Condition for rejection of goods 619
Note—Where no time fixed for delivery 619
Unilateral Time fixing 620
Note—Late delivery 620
Non-Delivery 620
Fall in the value of money 621
Note—Delivery by instalments—Anticipatory breach 621
Repudiation by issue of the writ 622
Note—Notice of special circumstances 622
Note—Notice of contract of resale 623
Works Contract 624
Note—Notice of special circumstances 625
"Essential Condition and Warranty and Effect of breach thereof" 625
Warranty 626
Essential Condition 626
Warranty in leases 627
Warranty in a sub-lease 627
Actors 628
Speculative damages—Beauty Contest 628
Breach of warranty—Measure of Damages 628
Breach of Warranty—Contract and Tort 629
Inducing Contract by giving negligent forecast 630
Seller's liability for fines paid by the Buyers in cases of vicarious liability 630
Note—Warranty 631
Note—Delay in payment of money 632
Contract to pay money 632
Failure to lend money 633
Breach of contract to advance money after mortgage deed executed 633
Note 634
Note—Loss of profits on breach of contract 634
Loss of Profit 634
Sale of Goods—Loss of profit 635
Loss of profit: Sale of land 635
Note—No notice of special circumstances 635
General Damages 636
Remedy provided by this section not the only remedy for breach of contract 636
Rule in Hadley v. Baxendale 637
Modern rule 639
Remoteness of Damages 639
Principles for award of damages 640
Mitigation of damages: English rule 641
Duty 641
American View 641
Mitigation 642
Costs incurred by plaintiff 643
Perishable goods 644
Damages for mental distress 644
Dismissal from Service 645

SECTIONS PAGE

Non-pecuniary loss 646
Damages for injured feelings 646
Mental Anguish 647
Surreptitious market 647
Foreseeable and Remoteness of Damages 647
Foreseeable and remote damages 647
Remoteness of damages—Tort and Contract 649
Novus actus—Third party intervention 650
Defends Carelessness 652
Solicitors negligence 652
Third party action feared 653
Foreseeable damages: Special Circumstances 653
Seller's Refusal to deliver goods to the buyer 654
No Breach 655
Total failure of consideration in sale of motor-cars 655
Explanation to S. 73 "means which existed", etc. ... 655
Tax deduction—several ways of performing contracts—wrongful dismissal—Bonus 659
Principle for assessing damages for wrongful dismissal .. 659
Bonus 660
Continuing breach—Dismissal of a servant 660
Unfair dismissal—whether employee can change terms 661
Loss to an Employer 661
Bank dishonouring Cheques 661
Banker and Customer—damages 661
Contracts relating to immovable property 662
In lieu of specific performance 664
Interest by way of damages 665
Interest on damages—Inflation 666
Interest—Promissory note 667
Rate of interest 667
Interest: Foreign Currency 667
Solicitor and Client; Barrister and Client; Architect and Client; Medical Practitioner; Accountant and Client 667
Solicitor's negligence 668
Solicitors' negligence—liability in tort 669
Advice of Counsel, if a defence 669
Relationship of Accountants and Clients 669
Barrister and Client 670
Negligence of Counsel 670
Solicitor pleading in Court 671
Medical Practitioner 671
Consulting Engineer 671
Auditor 671
Failure to pursue a claim on behalf of a Union 671
Transferee with notice of agreement of sale 671
Breach of promise of marriage 672
Salvage by salvers and storage 672
The section applies only where a contract has been broken ... 672
Nature and measure of damages 673
Tort 673
Damages compensatory 673
Damages to a building 674
Damages—no loss proved 674
Measure of damages— a case of fraud 674
Contributory negligence 674
Damages—Substantial damages 675

SECTIONS PAGE

Nominal and small damages 675
Damages—quantum of 675
Damages payable in foreign currency 676
Waiver of Breach 676
Liability under Bombay Port Trust Act 676
Liquor Licence 676

74. Compensation for breach of contract where penalty stipulated for ... 676
Liquidated and unliquidated damages 678
Penalty and liquidated damages 678
Compromise decree 679
Penalty in a document if a bond 680
Liquidated Damages and Penalty—Distinction 681
Penalty 681
Penalty—Less determinable 682
Graduated sums 682
Limit 682
Test of Penalty 682
Liquidated damages 683
Cases illustrative of liquidated damages and penalty 683
Penalty or liquidated damages Onus on plaintiff 684
In hire purchase agreement 684
Andhra Pradesh Liquor Vend Rules 686
Penalty 687
Chit Funds 687
Kuri Wari 687
Restraint of Trade 688
Purchase by instalments 688
Relief from Improvident or Oppressive Contracts and against Forfeiture 689
Forfeiture of deposit by vendor 690
Forfeiture of deposit—large sum 690
"Any claim for a sum of money" 690
Stipulations for interest 691
I. Stipulations for enhanced rate of interest 691
Effect of the Indian Contract Act (Amendment) Act, 1899 ... 693
II. Stipulations for compound interest 695
III. Stipulations for payment of interest if principal not paid on due date 697
IV. Stipulations for payment of interest at a lower rate if interest paid regularly on due dates 700
V. Stipulations for payment of interest from date of bond, the rate of interest being exorbitant 700
Earnest money 701
Discharge by Frustration 703
Deposit on agreement for purchase 703
Security deposit—forfeiture of 704
Forfeiture of security money 704
Forfeiture of deposit and specific performance 705
Loan or advance freight 705
Deposits other than earnest money 706
To receive from the party who has broken the Contract 708
Deposit, forfeiture of Frustration—inability to pay 708
Forfeiture of salary 708
Shares—forfeiture 708
Breach of promise of marriage 709
Pledge 709

SECTIONS PAGE

Restitution of part-payment 709
"Reasonable compensation" 709
Whether or not actual damage or loss is proved to have been caused thereby 710
Not less than: 712
Promissory Note 712
Illustration (a) 712
Illustration (b) 712
Illustrations (f) and (g) 713
Exception 713

75. Party rightfully rescinding contract entitled to compensation ... 714

CHAPTER VII (Repealed) 714

CHAPTER VIII

OF INDEMNITY AND GUARANTEE

124. "Contract of indemnity" defined 715
Indemnity 715
Commencement and Extent of Indemnifier's Liability 716

125. Rights of indemnity-holder when sued 718
Sub-s. (1) 718
An act at another's request 718
Indemnity by forwarding agents 718
Sub-s. (2) 719
Sub-s. (3) 719
Rights of promisor 719
Indemnity—Interpretation 720

126. "Contract of guarantee", "surety", "principal debtor", and "creditor" 720
Difference between Guarantee and Indemnity 720
Simultaneous tripartite agreement 721
Conditional guarantee—Bengal Money Lenders Act 722
"Liability" 722
Performance Guarantee—Irrevocable letter of credit 722
A performance bond 722
Bank guarantee 722
Confirmed letter of Credit 723
Irrevocable letter of Credit 723
Bank guarantee and irrevocable letter of Credit 724
Bank guarantee 724
Pre-existing liability not a bond 724
Guarantee in favour of non-banking Company 725
Effect of Partition of India on guarantees 725

127. Consideration for guarantee 725
Consideration for a contract of guarantee 725
Distinction between insurance and indemnity 726
Insurance policy 727

128. Surety's liability 727
Proof of surety's liability 727
Liability for whole or part of debt 727

SECTIONS PAGE

Co-extensive 728
Surety and Principal Debtor: Res judicata 729
Mortgage—Surety for shortfall 729
Surety's liability where original contract is void or voidable ... 729
Administration and surety bonds 731
Limitation 731

129. "Continuing guarantee" 731
Continuing guarantee 732
Instalment Contract 732

130. Revocation of continuing guarantee 733
Future transactions 733
Notice 733
Sureties for guardians and administrators 734
Guarantee: Revocation by notice 734

131. Revocation of continuing guarantee by surety's death 734
"Contract to the contrary" 735

132. Liability of two persons primarily liable, not affected by arrangement between them that one shall be surety on other's default 735
Joint debtors and suretyship 735

133. Discharge of surety by variance in terms of contract 736
Variation of contract between creditor and principal 737
Surety's liability 737
Material alteration 738
Surety—discharge: Want of notice 739
Unsubstantial alterations and not disadvantageous to debtor ... 739

134. Discharge of surety by release or discharge of principal debtor ... 741
Creditor's discharge of principal debtor 741
Discharge by operation of law 742
Effect of Debt Relief Acts 742
"Act or omission of the creditor" 744
Creditor's omission to sue principal within limitation period ... 744

135. Discharge of surety when creditor compounds with, gives time to, or agrees not to sue principal debtor 745
Contract to give time to principal debtor 745
S. 135—Art. 299 746
Compromise decree 747
Surety compromise decree 747
Guarantee—Variation by giving time or indulgence—meaning of 748
Where surety not personally liable 749
Part payment by surety 749
Contrary agreement 749
Contract allowing giving of time 749

136. Surety not discharged when agreement made with third person to give time to principal debtor 750

137. Creditor's forbearance to sue does not discharge surety 750

138. Release of one co-surety does not discharge others 751
Release of one of several sureties 751

SECTIONS PAGE

139. Discharge of surety by creditor's act or omission impairing surety's eventual remedy 751
Act or omission of creditor tending to impair surety's remedy ... 751
Section, residuary 752
Act or omission impairing surety's eventual remedy 752
Negligence of Creditor 753
Delay of Creditor 754

140. Rights of surety on payment or performance 754
Surety for one debt only—assets in other accounts 755

141. Surety's right to benefit of creditor's securities 756
Difference between 756
Surety's right to benefit of securities 756
When the contract of Suretyship is entered into 757
"To the extent of the value of the security" 758
When surety becomes entitled to benefit of creditor's securities ... 758
Joint promisors 759

142. Guarantee obtained by misrepresentation invalid 759

143. Guarantee obtained by concealment invalid 759
Guarantee obtained by misrepresentation or concealment—Uberrima fides— 760
Guarantee—Uberrima fides 760
"Material circumstance" 761

144. Guarantee on contract that creditor shall not act on it until co-surety joins 762

145. Implied promise to indemnify surety 762
Surety's right to indemnity 762
"Whatever sum he has rightfully paid" 763
Guarantee without concurrence of principal debtor 763
Depositing money with Banks for performance of contracts with others: 763

146. Co-sureties liable to contribute equally 764
Contribution by co-sureties 764

147. Liability of co-sureties bound in different sums 765

CHAPTER IX

OF BAILMENT

148. "Bailment", "bailor", and "bailee" defined 766
Nature of the transaction 766
No bailment where whole property transferred 769
A bank a bailee for contingent debts 770
Gratuitous Bailee 770
Gratuitous Bailment—Onus 770
Property of Ward handed over by Court to Nazir 770
Hire purchase Agreements 770
Hire purchase of cars: Conversion—Auctioneer's liability ... 772

SECTIONS PAGE

149. Delivery to bailee how made 772
Contravention of Gold Control 773

150. Bailor's duty to disclose faults in goods bailed 773
Warranty implied in the case of hire 775

151. Care to be taken by bailee 776
Common carriers 776
Damages 778
Good lost during carriage in U.K. 778
Carriers by sea for hire 778
Ship-owner—duty of cargo 779
Damages and rejection—right to 780
Carriage by sea and by land—Analogy 780
Carriers by Railway 780
Goods at Railway risk 781
Railed goods destroyed under Court Orders 781
Delivery to wrong person 782
Consignee's right of suit 782
Responsibility of Railways and Airways 782
Carriage by air—damage to baggage 783
Exemption clauses 783
Innkeeper 784
Duties of bailees 784
Sub-bailee right of the owner, against 784
Owner bound, when, in case of sub-bailment 784
Burden of proof 785
Proof of Private Stealth 786
Right of bailee to insure 786
Gratuitous Bailment 786
Contract by bailee exempting himself from liability for negligence 787
Bailee's liability for negligence of servants 787
Liability of bailee in tort 788

152. Bailee when not liable for loss, etc., of thing bailed 788
Care to be taken by bailee 789
Special degree of care, when required 789
Railway—Special Goods of Value 789
Custodian appointed by Courts 790

153. Termination of bailment by bailee's act inconsistent with conditions ... 790

154. Liability of bailee making unauthorised use of goods bailed 790

155. Effect of mixture, with bailor's consent, of his goods with bailee's ... 791

156. Effect of mixture, without bailor's consent, when the goods can be separated 791

157. Effect of mixture, without bailor's consent, when the goods cannot be separated 792

158. Repayment by bailor of necessary expenses 792

159. Restoration of goods lent gratuitously 792

SECTIONS PAGE

160. Return of goods bailed on expiration of time or accomplishment of purpose 793
Bailment—Consignor's right to sue 793

161. Bailee's responsibility when goods are not duly returned 794
Bailor's right to elect trover or detenue 794
Negatives of films—failure to return 795
Warehouseman's liability 795
Motor Vehicle Workshop 795

162. Termination of gratuitous bailment by death 795

163. Bailor entitled to increase or profit from goods bailed 795

164. Bailor's responsibility to bailee 796

165. Bailment by several joint owners 796

166. Bailee not responsible on redelivery to bailor without title 796
Return of goods to or to the order of the bailor 796
Estoppel of bailee 796

167. Right of third person claiming goods bailed 797

168. Right of finder of goods; may sue for specific reward offered .. 797

169. When finder of thing commonly on sale may sell it 798

170. Bailee's particular lien 798
Principle of bailee's lien 798
Contract to the contrary 800

171. General lien of bankers, factors, wharfingers, attorneys and policy-brokers 800
General as distinct from particular lien: Bankers 800
Banker's lien over moneys 801
Lien over several accounts 802
Lien when not applicable 802
Lien, when debt barred 803
Factor 803
Wharfingers 804
Accountants Lien 804
Carrier Lien 804
Attorneys 804
The kind of lien dealt with in this Act 805

Bailments of Pledges 806

172. "Pledge," "pawnor," and "pawnee" defined 806
Hypothecation and pledge 809
Pledge & Hypothecation: Partition of India—effect of 809
Pledge and mortgage of shares 809
Mortgage of shares—can sell them 810
Transfer of non-existing property 810
Pledge over assets other than bailed assets 810

173. Pawnee's right of retainer 810
Factory type loan—Watchman wages 811

SECTIONS PAGE

174. Pawnee not to retain for debt or promise other than that for which goods pledged. Presumption in case of subsequent advances ... 811

175. Pawnee's right as to extraordinary expenses incurred 811
"Receive" 811

176. Pawnee's right where pawnor makes default 811
Pawnee's rights 812
Goods seized by State lawfully 812
"May sell the thing pledged" 813
Reasonable notice of sale 814
Notice not vague 814
Pawnbroker 814
Wrongful conversion & Wrongful detention 814
Limitation 815

177. Defaulting pawnor's right to redeem 815
Limitation 815

178. Pledge by mercantile agent 815
Original s. 178 816
Indian Factors Acts 816
Pledge by mercantile agent 816
Acting in the ordinary course of business as a mercantile agent 818
Antecedent debt 820
Good faith 820
Notice 821
Priorities between two pledgees and innocent party 821
With the consent of the owner 821
Pledge by co-owner in possession 822
Seller or buyer in possession after sale 822
Pledge by buyer obtaining possession 823
Competition between prior mortgagee and subsequent pledgee ... 823
Documents of title to goods 823
Revocation of authority of mercantile agent 825

178A. Pledge by person in possession under voidable contract 825
Pledge by person in possession under voidable contract 825
Good faith 826
Notice 826

179. Pledge where pawnor has only a limited interest 826
Sub-pledgee's rights 826
Limited interest of the pledgor 827

Suits by Bailees or Bailors against Wrong-doers 827

180. Suit by bailor or bailee against wrong-doer 827

181. Apportionment of relief or compensation obtained by such suits ... 828

CHAPTER X

AGENCY

Appointment and Authority of Agents 829

182. "Agent" and "principal" defined 829
Nature of agency in general 829
Agent's discretion 832

SECTIONS PAGE

Servant and agent—Difference between Servant and Contractor ... 832
Agent and Servant 832
Director as agent 833
Director liable for profits 833
Director & Managing Director 833
Managing Director benefiting himself 834
Accountant 834
Company Official 834
Fraud by Company Officers 834
Contract of Sale and Agency to Sell 834
Assessee not agent for Sales Tax 835
Agency in case of company not yet in existence 836
Other cases of agency 836
Licence under Export Control Order 836
Consignee and Stevedore 837
Mortgagor and mortgages 837
Maharashtra Co-operative Societies Act 837
State Corporation of India—not Agent 837
House agent and share broker 837
Estate Agent's agreement conditions on a printed form 838
Authority 838
Interest on deposit 838
Commission when payable 838
Estate Agent: authority to delegate—Sub-agent 838
Del credere agent 838
Partner as agent can give firm guarantee 839
Co-agents 839
Joint power of attorney to one agent 839
Post Office and Sender of Cheques and V.P.P.s 840

183. Who may employ agent 841

184. Who may be an agent 841

185. Consideration not necessary 842

186. Agent's authority may be expressed or implied 842
Express authority 842
Implied authority 842

187. Definitions of express and implied authority 842
Agency, how constituted 842
Implied authority 843
Exclusive agency 843
Distributing agent or exclusive agent 844
Husband and wife 844

188. Extent of agent's authority 845
Extent of authority 846
Third parties and Limitation of Agent's Authority 847
Agency of directors of a company by representation 847
Executor's acknowledgement 847
Merely written of Partnership letterhead 848
Director, Secretary of a Company 848
Construction of powers of attorney 848
Authority to do every lawful thing necessary for the purpose ... 849
Authority—construction of—In favour of Attorney 849
Registration and construction of power of attorney 850

SECTIONS PAGE

Power of Attorney by two coparceners—Death of one 850
Joint Power of Attorney 850
Principals rights—agent empowered to sue in Principal's name ... 850
No agency to do a wrongful act 850
Statement made by agent admissible against principal 851
Authority of counsel, attorney, and pleader 851
Commission Agents 852
Authority of factor 852
General and Special—Distinction between 852
Implied Authority 852
Insurance Agency 852
Authority of broker 852
Authority of auctioneer 853
When limited 854
Auctioneers liability for conversion 854
Authority of shipmaster 854
Corporation 856

189. Agent's authority in an emergency 856
Sub-Agents 857

190. When agent cannot delegate 857

191. "Sub-agent" defined 858
Custody of sub-agent 858

192. Representation of principal by sub-agent properly appointed ... 858
Agent's responsibility for sub-agent 858
Sub-agent's responsibility 858
Principal and sub-agent 858
Sub-agent to account 859
Agent's responsibility for sub-agent 859
Collecting Bank 859

193. Agent's responsibility for sub-agent appointed without authority ... 860

194. Relation between principal and person duly appointed by agent to act in business of agency 860
Substituted agents 861
Substituted agent—Letter of Credit 862
Termination of original agency 862

195. Agent's duty in naming such person 863

Ratification 863

196. Right of person as to acts done for him without his authority. Effect of ratification 863
Conditions of ratification: "On behalf of another" 863
"Acts done without knowledge or authority" 864
Retrospective effect 865
What acts cannot be ratified 865
Agents of Government 866
Sick Mills Nationalisation Act 866
Ratification 866

197. Ratification may be expressed or implied 866
Express ratification 867
Implied ratification 867

SECTIONS PAGE

198. Knowledge requisite for valid ratification 867

199. Effect of ratifying unauthorised act forming part of a transaction ... 868

200. Ratification of unauthorised act cannot injure third person 868

Revocation of Authority 869

201. Termination of agency 869
Completion of business of agency 869
Death of principal 869
Where the agency is for a fixed term 870
Dissolution of firm 870
Payment or act by attorney under power 870
Termination of agency 870

202. Termination of agency where agent has an interest in subject-matter 870
Authority coupled with interest 870
Indian authorities 871
Factors for sale of goods 872

203. When principal may revoke agent's authority 873
What amounts to exercise of authority 873
Agency not revoked 873

204. Revocation where authority has been partly exercised 873
Authority partly exercised 874

205. Compensation for revocation by principal or renunciation by agent ... 874
Compensation for revocation 874

206. Notice of revocation or renunciation 875

207. Revocation and renunciation may be expressed or implied 875

208. When termination of agent's authority takes effect as to agent, and as to third persons 875
Time from which revocation operates 876
Notice to third parties 876

209. Agent's duty on termination of agency by principal's death or insanity 876

210. Termination of sub-agent's authority 877

Agent's Duty to Principal 877

211. Agent's duty in conducting principal's business 877
Acting according to instructions — documents lost 878
Consequences of acting against duty 878
Departure from instructions 878
"If any loss be sustained" 879
Custom of trade 879
Usage of the Bombay market known as the pakki adat system ... 879
Pakka Adatia's right to sue as consignee 880
Usage of the Bombay market known as the kachhi adat system in cotton business 880
Pacca Adatia 881
Bombay Silver Market 881
Agency — Fiduciary relationship 881

SECTIONS PAGE

212. Skill and diligence required from agent 881
Direct consequences of his own neglect 882
Forwarding Agent 883
Exchange restrictions and Agency 883
Liability of Agent in tort 883
Gratuitous agent 883

213. Agent's accounts 884
Agent's duty to account 884
Suit for accounts by Agent: 885
Liability of representative of agent to account 886

214. Agent's duty to communicate with principal 886

215. Right of principal when agent deals, on his own account, in business of agency without principal's consent 886

216. Principal's right to benefit gained by agent dealing on his own account in business of agency 887
English and Indian Law — Agents liability to account 888
Principal's rights to profits 888
Secret Profit 889
Bribed agent 889
Society: Officer — Profit by 890
Interest on profits payable by Agent 890
Agent 890
Agent — Trustee 890
Fraud — Lapse of Time 891
Agent authorised to sell 891
Forfeiture of commission 891
Knowledge of principal 891
Profit not acquired in course of agency 892
Unauthorised profits of agents 892
Payments authorised by custom 892
Agreements against agent's duty void 892

217. Agent's right of retainer out of sums received on principal's account 893
Pakki adat 894
Business 894

218. Agent's duty to pay sums received for principal 894
Mode of payment 894
Payments in respect of illegal transaction 894

219. When agent's remuneration becomes due 895
"Special contract" 895
"Completion of such act" 895
Solicitors agreement for getting sale done — Act incomplete ... 896
Agent prevented from earning remuneration 896
Express contract for remuneration 897

220. Agent not entitled to remuneration for business misconducted ... 897
Commission secretly received by an auctioneer 898

221. Agent's lien on principal's property 898
Agent's lien 898
How far lien effective against third persons 899
Lien of sub-agents 899
How lien lost or extinguished 900

SECTIONS PAGE

Principal's Duty to Agent 901

222. Agent to be indemnified against consequences of lawful acts ... 901
Limits of agent's indemnity 901
Cost of defending action 903
"Lawful" 903
C.i.f. contract with commission agent 903
Security with principal 903

223. Agent to be indemnified against consequences of acts done in good faith 903
Unlawful acts 904

224. Non-liability of employer of agent to do a criminal act 904

225. Compensation to agent for injury caused by principal's neglect ... 905

Effect of Agency on Contracts with Third Persons 905

226. Enforcement and consequences of agent's contracts 905
Arbitration agreement by agent 906

227. Principal how far bound, when agent exceeds authority 906

228. Principal not bound when excess of agent's authority is not separable 907

229. Consequences of notice given to agent 907

230. Agent cannot personally enforce, nor be bound by, contracts on behalf of principal 910
Presumption of contract to contrary 910
Principle of the rule and exceptions 910
Contract to the contrary 910
Agency coupled with interest 912
Right of agent to sue for money paid by mistake, etc. 913
Presumed exceptions; Foreign principal 913
Exemption from liability of damages—extent of 913
Agent's liability — Bill of ladings exemption 914
Goods short when unloaded from ship 914
Principal undisclosed 914
Principal not liable 916
Deed executed in agent's name 916
Goods intercepted by Government 917
Sovereign States as principals 917
Parties — Foreign Sovereign Contract 917
Cases under Art. 299(1) of the Constitution 917
Void Contracts 918
Negotiable instruments 918
Defendant's right where agent sues in own name 918
Effect of settlement with principal 919

231. Rights of parties to a contract made by agent not disclosed 919
First paragraph 919
"Discloses himself" 919

232. Performance of contract with agent supposed to be principal ... 920
Rights of undisclosed principal 920
Undisclosed Foreign Principal 921
Equities between agent and third party 921

SECTIONS PAGE

233. Right of person dealing with agent personally liable 922
In cases where the agent is personally liable 922
Judgment against the Agent 923
Creditor's election 923

234. Consequence of inducing agent or principal to act on belief that principal or agent will be held exclusively liable 924

235. Liability of pretended agent 924
Implied warranty of authority 924
Representation must be effective 925
Measure of Damages 925
Limitation 925

236. Person falsely contracting as agent not entitled to performance ... 926

237. Liability of principal inducing belief that agent's unauthorised acts were authorised 926
Ostensible authority 927
Notice of excess authority 928
"On behalf of his principal" 929

238. Effect on agreement, of misrepresentation or fraud by agent ... 929
Course of employment 929
Fraudulent Bills 930
Bank Lockers 930
Admissions by Agent 932
Privilege from distress of goods in hands of agent 933
Bribery of agent 933
Right of principal to follow property into hands of third persons 934
Personal liability of agent to repay money received to principal's use 934
Money received by agent from a third person by fraud 935

CHAPTER XI

OF PARTNERSHIP 936
SCHEDULE 937

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

INTRODUCTORY 939

Position of Specific in English Procedure 939

THE SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1963
(47 of 1943)

PART I

PRELIMINARY

1. Short title, extent and commencement 941
Commencement of the Act 941
Extent 941
Illustrations 941
1963 Act not exhaustive and complete code 941

SECTIONS PAGE

2. Definitions 942
Obligation 942
Trust 942
Express, implied or constructive trust 942
Trustee 944
Sale 944

3. Savings 944
Cl. (b) 944

4. Specific relief to be granted only for enforcing individual civil rights and not for enforcing penal laws 945

PART II

SPECIFIC RELIEF

CHAPTER I

RECOVERING POSSESSION OF PROPERTY

5. Recovery of specific immovable property 945
Code of Civil Procedure 945

6. Suit by person dispossessed of immovable property 945
Specific Relief Act — Special Act 946
Sections 8 & 9 (Ss. 5 & 6 of 1963 Act) compared 946
Restitution of dispossessed holder 947
Possession, title and evidence 947
"Without Consent of" 948
Limitation 948
Object of the section 948
Scope of the section 949
Failure to prove title in a suit for possession based on title ... 949
Who may sue under this section 949
Landlord and Tenant 949
Joint Possession 950
Heirs 950
Who may be sued under this section 951
Against Government 951
"Dispossessed" 951
Immovable property 951
"Otherwise than in due course of law" 951
"Notwithstanding any other title that may be set up in such suit" 951
Order under Criminal Procedure Code, s. 145 952
Limits of decree under this section 952
Suit brought more than six months after dispossession 953
Suit after 6 months by trespasser 954
Non-occupancy raiyat 954
Appeal 954
Revision 954

7. Recovery of specific movable property 955
Explanation 1 955
Explanation 2 955
Illustrations 955
Recovery of specific movable property 955

SECTIONS PAGE

8. Liability of person in possession, not as owner, to deliver to persons entitled to immediate possession 955
Restitution of chattels 956
Explanation 957
Possession 957
Execution 957

CHAPTER II

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS

Introduction to Chapter II 958
Presumption as to contracts to convey land 958
Treatment of the subject in English books 958
Treatment in Indian Law 959
Specific Performance 959

9. Defences respecting suits for relief based on contract 960
Time of the Essence of the Contract 960

10. Cases in which specific performance of contract enforceable ... 962
Stranger to contract 963
Immovable property 964
Movable goods 965
As to sale of other kinds of property 966
Sales of stocks or shares 966
Property which is not an ordinary article of Commerce 966
Agreements to lend money 966
Contracts to execute building or other works 966
"Discretion of the Court" 967
Decree for specific performance 967
Suit to obtain the benefit of a lost deed 967
Option to purchase 967

11. Cases in which specific performance of contracts connected with trusts enforceable 967
Cl. (2) 968

12. Specific performance of part of contract 968
Performance with or without compensation 969
General principles as to compensation 969
When compensation not admissible. 970
Abatement of Compensation 970
Sub-sec. (2) 970
Delivery of possession if small proportion 971
Sub-sec. (3) 971
Explanation 971
Agreement of sale by manager 972
Sub-sec. (4) 972
Divisible and indivisible contracts 972
English examples 973
Part of a Contract 973
"Separate and independent footing" 974
Limitation 974
Where specific performance is claimed by some of several purchasers 974
Sections 12 & 19, when applicable 974

SECTIONS PAGE

13. Rights of purchaser or lessee against person with no title or imperfect title ... 975
Sale of "entire house" — construed ... 975
Sale of joint family property ... 976
Sub-sec. (1)(a) ... 976
Purchaser acquiring outstanding title ... 977
Sec. 1(b) and (c) ... 978
Sale after getting possessions ... 978
Sale of shares ... 978
Sale of property with a condition for sale ... 978
Clause (d): Return of deposit ... 978
Sub-sec. (2) ... 980

CONTRACTS WHICH CANNOT BE SPECIFICALLY ENFORCED

14. Contracts not specifically enforceable ... 980
Where compensation in money is an adequate relief ... 982
Sec. (1)(b) ... 983
Personal service ... 983
Statutory Rules — Dismissal from Service: Contravention ... 984
Temporary Servant ... 986
State Bank of India ... 986
Khadi Board ... 986
Co-operative Society ... 986
Mutuality ... 987
Volition of parties ... 987
Sale of Goodwill ... 987
Vague Contracts ... 987
Lease renewable ... 988
Uncertainty of a term of rent in a lease ... 989
Enforcement of a conditional contract ... 989
Sec. (1)(c) ... 989
Sec. (1)(d) ... 989
Contract Supervision ... 990
Sub-sec. (2): Arbitration ... 991
Decree holder — right of ... 991
Frustration — Decree affected by ... 991

PERSONS FOR OR AGAINST WHOM CONTRACTS MAY BE SPECIFICALLY ENFORCED

15. Who may obtain specific performance ... 992
Nature of the sec. 15 ... 992
Clause (a): Party to the contract ... 993
Parties indicated by description ... 993
Third parties ... 993
Goods of a third party insured ... 993
Clause (b): Representative in interest ... 994
Clause (c) ... 995
Clause (h): Contract with promoters of a company ... 995
Benamidar, the beneficial owner, undisclosed principal ... 995
Non-existing society ... 995

16. Personal bars to relief ... 996
Cl. (a) ... 996
Matters of defence ... 996
Cls. (b) and (c) ... 996
Ready and willing ... 997

SECTIONS PAGE

Amendment of plaint 998
Difference between Readiness and Willingness 1000
Price not settled 1001

17. Contract to sell or let property by one who has no title, not specifically enforceable 1001
Varieties of bad title 1002
"A doubtful title" 1002
Such title as the vendor has 1005
Sub-sec. (2) 1006

18. Non-enforcement except with variation 1006
Cl. (a) 1006
Clause (c): Variation of contract 1007
Where section does not apply 1008

19. Relief against parties and persons claiming under them by subsequent title 1008
Alienation by father or guardian 1009
Sale by minor's guardian 1009
Contents of the section 1009
Indian authorities: Clause (b): Purchase with notice of prior agreement for sale 1010
Lis pendens 1011
Onus 1011
Between two lessees 1013
Between two creditors 1013
Paid his money 1013

DISCRETION AND POWERS OF COURT

20. Discretion as to decreeing specific performance 1013
Sub-sec. (1): The discretion of the Court 1014
Contract must be specific 1016
False plea of a purchaser 1016
Licence — sanctity of contract and freedom of speech 1017
Lease Transfer of — Hardship 1017
Sale of Shares — Winding up 1017
Sound Judicial Principles 1017
Reconveyance 1018
Delay 1018
Delay 1020
Delay and Laches 1021
Premature 1021
Either party can sue 1021
Sub-sec. (2)(a) 1022
Unfair advantage 1022
Surprise and drunkenness 1022
Sec. 2(b): Hardship on the defendant 1023
Provision for payment by vendor of a specified sum on breach ... 1024
Explanation 1 1024
Inadequacy and gross inadequacy 1025
Explanation 2 1025
Sub-sec. (2)(c) 1025
Sub-sec. (3) 1025
Sub-sec. (4): Mutuality 1025
Mutuality 1026

SECTIONS PAGE

Mutuality—meaning of 1026
Lack of mutuality 1027
Option to purchase: Option of £1/- 1028
Vendor lien: Specific performance 1028
Reconveyance 1028
Reconveyance to minor vendors through their guardian 1029
Discretion of High Court 1030
Reasonable time presumed in a decree 1030
Specific performance — Effect of order for Specific Performance 1030
Courts control after decree 1030
Specific performance 1030
Contract violation of Constitution 1030

21. Power to award compensation in certain cases 1031
Frame of the section 1031
Sub-sec. (3) 1032
Damages — Difference between S. 21 Sp. R.A. and S. 73 ... 1032
Sale free of encumbrances — Damages 1032
Damages — vacant possession agreed by vendor not possible ... 1032
Damages for non-performances 1033
Sub-sec. (4): Explanation 1033
Damages not claimed 1033

22. Power to grant relief for possession, partitions, refund of earnest money, etc. 1034
Decree silent on possession 1034
Document of conveyance by Court void if decree reversed ... 1035
Effect of liquidated damages in contract mentioned 1035

23. Liquidation of damages not a bar to specific performance 1035
Injunctions 1036

24. Bar of suit for compensation for breach after dismissal of suit for specific performance 1036

ENFORCEMENT OF AWARDS AND DIRECTIONS TO EXECUTE SETTLEMENTS

25. Application of preceding sections to certain awards and testamentary directions to execute settlements 1037
Testamentary directions to execute settlements 1037
Limitation 1037

CHAPTER III

RECTIFICATION OF INSTRUMENTS ... 1038

26. When instrument may be rectified 1039
Rectification 1040
"Mutual" mistake 1040
Counterclaim for rectification 1041
Rights acquired by third persons in good faith 1042
No time-limit 1042
Mistake of law 1042
Sub-sec. (3) 1043

SECTIONS PAGE

CHAPTER IV

RESCISSION OF CONTRACTS

27. When rescission may be adjudged or refused 1044
Contract 1044
"Any person interested in a contract" 1044
Sub-sec. (1)(a): Voidable contract 1045
Sub-sec. (1)(b) 1045
Sub-sec. (2) 1045

28. Rescission in certain circumstances of contracts for the sale or lease of immovable property, the specific performance of which has been decreed 1045
Extension of Time for payment under decree 1047

29. Alternative prayer for rescission in suit for specific performance ... 1047

30. Court may require parties rescinding to do equity 1048
Benefit and compensation 1048
Onus 1048

CHAPTER V

CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS

31. When cancellation may be ordered 1049
When cancellation may be ordered 1049
Minor 1050
Cancellation on ground of fraud 1050
Any person against whom written instrument is void or voidable 1050
Parties equally guilty 1050
Sale of coparceners property 1051
Award or a judgment 1051
Reasonable apprehension of serious injury 1051
Cost of conveyance — where decree set aside 1052
Registration 1052
Limitation 1053
S. 32, Arbitration Act, 1940 1053

32. What instruments may be partially cancelled 1053
Partial cancellation 1053

33. Power to require benefit to be restored or compensation to be made when instrument is cancelled or is successfully resisted as being void or voidable 1053
Compensation 1054
Compensation on cancellation 1054
Limitation 1055
Minors 1055

CHAPTER VI

DECLARATORY DECREES

34. Discretion of court as to declaration of status or right 1056
Origin and purpose of the section 1057
Scope of the section 1058

SECTIONS PAGE

Whether a decree merely declaratory can be made independently of this section 1059
Decree under General Provisions of Law 1062
Difference between Ss. 34 & 37 & 38 of 1963 Act 1063
Discretion of the Court 1063
A suit does not lie merely to set aside an assertion 1064
"Person entitled to any legal character or to any right as to any property" 1065
Declaration as to right to possession 1069
"Interested to deny" 1070
Magistrate's order 1070
"Further relief" 1071
Belated objection 1071
Agreement not to partition joint House property 1078
Proviso refers to date of suit 1079
Where no right to further relief shown 1079
Suit against tenant under Madras Building (Land and Rent Control) Act 1080
Arbitral awards 1080
Reversionary heir 1080
After Hindu Succession Act of 1956 1081
Vested interest 1082
Contingent interest 1082
Declarations as to service contracts 1083
Amendment of plaint by adding further relief 1085

35. Effect of declaration 1085

PART III

PREVENTIVE RELIEF

Introduction to Part III 1086

CHAPTER VII

INJUNCTIONS GENERALLY

36. Preventive relief how granted 1088
"At the discretion of the Court" 1088
Right of Privacy 1088
Balance of convenience 1088

37. Temporary and perpetual injunctions 1089
Temporary injunctions 1089
Refusal of interim injunction 1089
Interlocutory Injunction 1089
Patent, infringement of 1089
Injunction — Interlocutory 1090
Injunction — Service Contract 1090
Supply of Petrol 1090
Solus tie 1090
Foreign Corporation 1090
Interference with marketing 1091
Injunction against husband and wife — a Lebanese 1091
Injunction against foreign Companies (Mareva) 1091
Third party affected 1091

SECTIONS PAGE

CHAPTER VIII

PERPETUAL INJUNCTIONS

38. Perpetual injunction when granted 1092
Discretion as to granting injunctions 1093
Perpetual injunctions 1094
Principles of grant of Injunction 1094
Injunction against persons not parties to action 1095
Breach of natural justice 1096
Injunction to prevent breach of a contract 1096
Acquiescence 1097
Parties right to performance of a contract 1097
Breach of contract by employing unlawful means 1097
Force majeure clause 1098
Injunction—Unlawful means 1098
Foreign Corporation 1098
Injunction against defendant not to remove assets out of jurisdiction 1098
Declaration instead of injunction 1099
Damages in lien of mandatory injunction 1099
Right to, or enjoyment of, property 1099
Injunction: sex shop — nuisance — what is 1100
Possession — protection of 1100
Against trespasser 1100
"Property" — Trade Marks 1100
"Know-How" 1101
Defamation 1101
Simulating of voice — Libel 1101
Religious Rights 1102
Muslims right to say "Ameen" 1102
Injunction simpliciter 1103
Clubs 1103
Invasion of air space 1103
Easement of light and air 1103
Light and water 1104
Continuing trespass 1104
Relator action to enforce public right 1104
Co-sharers and Partners; landlord and tenant, etc. 1104
Party wall 1105
Injunction against execution of decree 1105
Easement of watering land 1106
Partners 1106
Consent unreasonably withheld 1106
Apprehended breach by purchaser 1107 Nuisance 1107
Opening door 1108
Breach of Trust 1108
Waste 1108
Patent, Copyright and Trade mark 1108
Breach of copyright 1109
Trade Mark 1109
"Invades or threatens to invade" 1109
Plaintiff's dispute inter se 1109
Injunction against separated wife's or husband's interference ... 1110

SECTIONS		PAGE
	Parent and child	1110
	Custody of children	1110
	Jactitation of marriage	1110
	Prevention of Crimes	1112
	Multiplicity of judicial proceedings	1112
	Injunction: Private right versus Public right	1112
	Injunction against winding up petition	1112
	Peering & Besetting	1113
	Injunction freezing account & preserving evidence	1113
	Damages for future injury	1113
	Second injunction	1114
	Rule of Natural Justice	1114
	Contract incomplete	1114
	Injunction — case of personal injury by foreign company	1114
	Injunction against foreign national domiciled in England and even domiciled Englishman	1114
	Injunction — power to order tracing, discovery and inspection	1114
39.	Mandatory injunctions	1115
	At interlocutory stage	1115
	Mandatory injunction	1115
	When granted	1116
	Party Wall	1117
	Contracts	1117
	May be granted although act completed	1117
	"Breach of an obligation"	1118
	Employees and partners	1118
	Goods not specified	1118
	Injunction — breach of confidence	1118
	Delay and acquiescence	1118
	Tenants right against landlord	1119
	Trespasser	1119
	Mandatory injunction against co-sharers and tenants	1119
	Co-owners	1120
	Against neighbour — prevent easement	1120
	Injury to land	1120
40.	Damages in lieu of, or in addition to, injunction	1120
	Damages for future injury	1121
	Conditions for giving damages instead of an injunction	1121
41.	Injunction when refused	1122
	Scope of the section	1123
	Clause (a)	1123
	Clause (b)	1123
	Proceedings — Small Causes Court and arbitrator	1123
	Subordinate Court	1124
	Clause (e): Injunction to prevent breach of contract	1124
	Clause (f): Nuisance	1124
	Clause (g): Acquiescence	1124
	Clause (h): Equally efficacious relief	1124
	Clause (i): Plaintiff's conduct	1125
	Clause (j): Personal interest	1125

SECTIONS PAGE

42. Injunction to perform negative agreement 1125
Injunction to perform negative agreement 1126
Restraint of trade 1128
Severence 1128
Breach of confidence 1128
Confidence—Patent Licensees 1129
Trade secret—Injunction—confidential information 1129
Confidence between spouses 1129
Employee 1129
Partnership 1130
Negative agreement may be implied 1130
Proviso to the section 1130
Liquidation of damages not a bar to an injunction under this section 1130

43. Amendment of Act 10 of 1940 1130

44. Repeal 1130

INDEX 1131

SOME ABBREVIATIONS USED IN REFERENCES

A.A.	A.I.R. Allahabad	A.M.P.	A.I.R. Madhya Pradesh
A.A.P.	,, Andhra Pradesh	A.M.	,, Madras
A. Asm. or As.	,, Assam	A.My.	,, Mysore
A.B.	,, Bombay	A.P.	,, Patna
A.Cal.	,, Calcutta	A.Pep.	,, Pepsu
A.De.	,, Delhi	A.Pesh.	,, Peshawar
A.F.C.	,, Federal Court	A.P.C.	,, Privy Council
A.Guj.	,, Gujarat	A.Punj.	,, Punjab
A.J.&K.	,, Jammu & Kashmir	A.Raj.	,, Rajasthan
A.K.	,, Kerala	A.R.	,, Rangoon
A.Kutch	,, Kutch	A.S.	,, Sindh
A.L.	,, Lahore	A.S.C.	,, Supreme Court
A.N.	,, Nagpur	A.T.C.	,, Travancore-Cochin
A.O.	,, Oudh	P.L.D.	All Pakistan Legal Decisions
A.Or.	,, Orissa

PERIODICALS

A.L.J.	Australian Law Journal
,, R	Australian Law Journal Reports
Camb. L.J.	Cambridge Law Journal
Can. Bar Rev.	Canadian Bar Review
Har. L.J.	Harvard Law Journal
L.Q.R.	Law Quarterly Review
Mod.L.R.	Modern Law Review
A.L.J.R.	Australian Law Journal Reports
C.L.R.	Commonwealth Law Reports
N.S.W.S.R.	New South Wales State Reports
Q.S.R.	Queensland State Reports
S.A.S.R.	South Australian State Reports
T.S.R.	Tasmanian State Reports
V.L.R.	Victorian Law Reports
V.R.	Victorian Reports
W.A.L.R.	Western Australian Law Reports
W.A.R.	Western Australian Reports
G.L.R.	Gazette Law Reports (N.Z.)
N.Z.L.J.R.	New Zealand Law Journal Reports
N.Z.L.R.	New Zealand Law Reports
D.L.R.	Dominion Law Reports

COMPARATIVE TABLE—SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

(To be referred to Part II—"Specific Relief Act")

New Act (1963)	Old Act (1877)
S.1	S.1
2	3
3	4 See Sec. 27A
4	7
5	8
6	9
7	10
8	11
Explanation	New
9	New
10	(12)b & 12(c)
Explanation	(12)Explanation
11(1)	(12)a
11(2)	(21)e
12(1)	17
12(2)	14
12(3)	15
12(4)	16
Explanation	13
(13)(1)a,b,c,d	(18)(a)to(d)
	portion(13)b new
(13)2	New
14(1)a	21(a)
14(1)b	21(b)
14(1)c	21(d)
14(1)d	(21)g
14(2)	21 (2nd paragraph)
14(3)	New
(15) a-h proviso	(23) a-h
16(a)	24(a)
16(b)	24(b)
16(c)	New
17(1)a	25(a)
17(1)b	25(b)
omitted	25(c)
17(2)	New
18(a)	26(a),(b),(c)
18(b)	26(d)
18(c)	26(e)
19	27
proviso to (e)	New
20(1)	22 para 1
20(2)	22 para 2
20(2)a	Case I
20(2)b	Case II & (28)
(c) Exp. 1 & 2	New
20(3)	Case III
20(4)	New
21(1)	19 para 1
(2)	para 2

New Act (1963)	Old Act (1877)
21(3)	para 3
(4)&(5)	New
Explanation	Explanation
22	New
23	20
24	29
25	30 and partly new
26(1)a,b,c & (2)	31
(3)	34
(4)	New
21(1),(2),(3)	19 paras 1-3
(4)	New
(5)	New
Expln.	Expln.
22	New
23	20
24	29
25	30
26(1)&(2)	31
(3)	34
(4) and Proviso	New
27(1)a	35(a)
27(1)b	35(b)
27(2)	New
28(1)	35(c)
28(2)	35 para 2
(3)	New
(3)a	0.21 r.32(5) C.P.C.
(4) & (5)	New
29	37
30	38
31	39
32	40
33(1)	41
33(2)	New
34	42
35	43
36	52
37(1)	53
(2)	Para 2 of 53
38	54
	cl.(d) omitted
39	55
40	New
41	56
	cl.(d) omitted
42	57
43	See 14(2) and 25
44

COMPARATIVE TABLE—SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

Old (1877)	New (1963)
Preamble	Omitted
S.1	S.1
2 repealed already
3	2
4 (b) & (c)	3 (a) & (b)
(a)	omitted
5	,,
6	,,
7	4
8	5
9	6
10	7
11 Explanation is new	8
12(a)	11
12(b)	10(a)
12(c)	10(b)
12(d)	See Explanation of S.10
Explanation	—
13	12 Explanation
14	12(2)
15	12(3)
16	12(4)
17	See S. 12
18	13(1)
new	13(2)
19	21
20	23
21	14
(a)	(a) of Sub.-s.(1)
(b)	(b) ,,
(c)
(d)
(e)	(c)
(f)
(g)	(d)
(h)	—
22	20
23	15
24	16
25	17
25(c)	omitted
26	18

Old (1877)	New (1963)
27	19
27A	See S.3
28	See S.20(2) Expl
29	24
30	25
31	26(1)
	26(1)a
	26(2)
32
33
34	26(3)
35(a) & (b)	27(a) & (b)
35(c)	28(1)
35 para 2	28(2)
36
37	29
38	30
39	31
40	32
41	33
42	34
43	35
44
45	omitted
46	,,
47	,,
48	,,
49	,,
50	,,
51	,,
52	36
53	37(1)
	37(2)
54	38(1)
para 2	38(2)
para 3	38(3) a,b,c,d
(d)	omitted
Explanation	,,
55	39
56	41
57	42

TABLE OF CASES

A's of Oxford v. Davis
A. v. C., 611
A. Milton & Co. v. Ojha Automobile Co., 340
A. Schroder Music Publishing Co. Ltd. v. Macaulay, 266, 318, 321, 326
A.A. Khan v. Ameerkhan, 539
A.B. Moola & Sons v. Commission of the Port of Rangoon, 794
A.F. Ferguson & Co. v. Lalit Mohan, 484
A.G. v. Ashby Recreation Ground, 1104
A.G. for New South Wales v. Perpetual Trustee Co. Ltd., 601
A.G. v. Sheffield Gas Consumers Co., 1112
A. Khorasany v. C. Ahea, 121
A.H. Medonald & Co. (Dty.) Ltd. v. Wells, 625
A.J. Judah v. Ramapada Gupta, 240
A.K. Kaliappa Chettiar v. Currimbhoy Lalijee, 340
A.L. Wilkinson Ltd. v. Brown, 712, 836
A.M. Ganeshan v. Ayyasami, 1022
A.R. Dennis & Co. v. Campbell
A.R. Wright & Sons Ltd. v. Ramford Bogough Council, 550, 551
A.T. Vasudevan, in the matter of, 972
A.V. Pound & Co. Ltd. v. M.H. Hardy & Co. Inc., 17, 479, 481
A.V. George & Co. v. Peter Kuruvilla, 885
A.B.D. (Metals & Wasta) Ltd. v. Anglo Chemical Ore Co., 643
A.E.I. Mansoor v. Abdul Mahomed, 663
A.I.G. Insurance Co. v. Maheshwari, 184
A.R.G. Krishnamurthi & Co. v. Sitaramayya, 537, 540, 577
A.R.L.P. Firm v. U. Po Kyaing, 241
Aarow Ltd. v. Rex Chain Belt, 1098
Abaji Sitaram v. Trimbak, Municipality, 5, 55, 242, 516, 553
Abba Gani & Co. v. Trustees of the Port of Bombay, 706, 707
Abbakke Heggadthi v. Kinhiamma Shetty, 692, 696, 709
Abbas Khan v. Nur Khan, 282
Abbay Chand v. Ram Chand, 1077
Abdul v. Hussenbi, 249
Abdul Ahad v. Ashfaq Ali, 1065
Abdul Ahmed v. Animendra (Amarendra), 837, 848, 852, 896, 897
Abdul Ali v. Goldstein, 917
Abdul Ali v. Puran Mal, 695
Abdul Aziz v. Abdul Sammad, 974
Abdul Aziz v. Appayasami, 9
Abdul Aziz v. Basdeo Singh, 416
Abdul Aziz v. Masum Ali, 27
Abdul Aziz & Co. v. New India Assurance Co., 97
Abdul Aziz v. Rahimullah, 582
Abdul Aziz v. S.K. Amir, 948
Abdul Bari v. Asrab Ali, 954
Abdul Barik v. Abeda Khatoon, 1066
Abdul Gaffoor v. Masultano, 1065
Abdul Gani v. Nand Lal, 691, 692, 693, 694
Abdul Ghani Sab v. Nanjunda Setty, 680
Abdool Hakim v. Doorga Proshad, 280
Abdulhameed v. Mohammed Ishaq, 251
Abdul Hamid v. Abbasbhai, 960, 961
Abdul Hamid v. Abbasbhai Abdul Husain, 440, 960, 961
Abdul Haq v. Mohamed Yahya Khan, 129
Abdul Hashem v. Balahari Mondal, 465, 468, 469, 470
Abdul Hashim Sahib v. Kadir Batcha Sahib, 460, 1050
Abdul Hasoan v. Mt. Wajibul Nissa, 195
Abdul Hassan Khan v. Rangi Lal, 818
Abdulhussain Sheikh v. Bombay Metal Syndicate, 724
Abdool Hoosein v. Goolam Hoosein, 506
Abdul Hossain v. Ram Charan Law, 955, 1116, 1118
Abdul Jabbar v. Abdul Muthaliff, 268
Abdul Jalal v. Mohammad Abdul Salam, 665
Abdul Jalil v. Mahammadi Steamship Co., 530
Abdul Karim Basma v. Weekas, 920
Abdul Kayum v. Alibhai, 57
Abdulla Ahmed v. Animendra Narayan Sinha, 106
Abdullah Boy v. Tenenbaum, 432
Abdullahkhan v. Fairullah Khan, 954
Abdullakin v. Maung Ne Dun, 307
Abdul Latif v. Sri Sargam Sarva Sansar Sanga, 541
Abdul Majid v. Ramiza Bivi, 534, 1054
Abdul Mallick Saheb v. M.O. Yusuf Saheb, 163
Abdul Manan v. Mutwalli of Janebali, 169
Abdul Qayum v. Damodhar, 983
Abdul Quader v. Sales Tax Officer, Hyd., 605
Abdul Rahim v. Ma Mudima, 1018
Abdul Rahim v. Union of India, 87
Abdul Rahiman v. Sadasiv Tripathy, 58
Abdul Rahim Khan v. Fakir Mohammad, 1074, 1080
Abdul Rahman v. Ghulam Muhammad, 285
Abdul Rafiq v. Bhajan 305
Abdur Rauff v. Aymona Bibi, 161
Abdul Razac v. Khandi Row, 486
Abdul Razack v. Mahomed Hussen, 672
Abdul Razzak v. Mohammad Shafi, 186
Abdul Sattar v. Ismail, 1029
Abdul Satar v. Shah Manilal, 976, 987
Abdul Shaker Sahib v. Abdul Rahiman, 959

Abdul Shakoor v. Rent Control & Eviction Officer, 295
Abdula Saheb v. Guruvappa & Co., 246
Abdulla v. Ahmed, 1009
Abdullah v. Allah Diya, 233
Abdulla v. Mammood, 234
Abdulla Ahmed v. Aminendra Kissen Mitter, 846
Abdullah Khan v. Faizullah, 950
Abdulla Khan v. Girdhari Lal, 205
Abdullakhan v. Purshottam, 302
Abdullakin v. Maung Ne Dun, 307
Abdur Rahim v. Mohammad Barkat Ali, 1062
Abdur Rahman v. Nasir Ali, 966
Abel v. Sutton, 843
Abhimanya Biswas v. Abdul Shaikh, 1050
Abid Alikhan v. Secretary of State, 1071, 1079
Abid Husain v. Ganga Sahai, 565
Abhi Singh v. Daso Bhota, 530
Abraham v. Herbert Reiach Ltd., 660
Abraham v. Raphial, 419
Abraham v. Sarupchand, 881
Abraham v. The Lodge "Good Will", 517
Abram S.S. Co. v. Westville Shipping, 191
Abu Mahomed v. Chunder, 383
Acatos v. Burns, 855, 856
Acchhan Kaur v. Thakur Das, 169
Achal Ram v. Kazim Hussain Khan, 278, 280
Achamma v. Venkamma, 1104
Acha Ranganaikammall v. Acha Ramanuja, 569
Achhru Ram v. Hari Singh, 1036
Achratlal etc. v. Vijayam, 340
Achutha Naidu v. Oakley Bowden & Co., 887
Ackarmann v. Ehrensperger, 727
Acqure Estates Ltd. v. Minton & another, 513
Adaikappa Chettiar v. Thomas Cook & Sons, 219, 599
Adaitya Dass v. Prem Chand, 27
Adam Abdul Shakoor v. Ali Mohammad, 341
Adams v. Broke, 1002
Adams v. Adams, 488
Adam v. New Bigging, 191, 203
Adams v. London Motor Coach Builders, 559
Adamson v. Jarvis, 420
Adamastos Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. Ltd., 16, 19, 350
Addapally Nageshwar Rao and Brothers v. Commissioner of Income Tax, 122
Addis v. Gramophone Co. Ltd., 644, 645, 673
Addison v. Brown, 341, 390
Addison v. Gandasequi, 923
Adelaide Electric Supply Co. Ltd. v. Prudential Assurance Co. Ltd., 12
Adhar Chandra v. Dole Gobinda, 36, 37
Adikkalam Chetti v. Marimuthu, 395
Adikesvan Naidu v. Gurunatha Chetti, 664, 1032
Adinarayana v. Jagannadha, 1011
Adinarayana v. Venkatasubbayya, 1026
Adiraya v. Beeranna Rai, 304
Adler v. Dickson, 43
Administrator General of Bengal v. Juggeswar Roy, 309
Admr. Gen. of Burma v. Moola, 695
Administrator, Hindustan Cables Employees Co-operative v. Jatindra Kumar Das, 247
Administrator, Lahore v. Abdul Majid, 1117
Administrator, Lahore Municipality v. Munir-ud-Din, 1117
Advo. Gen. of Bengal v. Ranee Surnomoye Dossee, 2
Aerial Advertising v. Batchelors Peas, 630, 645
Affreteurs Reunis v. Walford, 36
Aftab Alikhan v. Akbar Ali Khan, 1063
Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi, 153, 154, 155, 162, 167
Afzalur Rahman v. Emperor, 843
Agacio v. Forbes 912
Aga Gulam Husain v. A.D. Sasoon, 422, 425
Agar v. Bermejo Estancia Co. Ltd., 522
Aggarwala Air Transport v. Mohammad Nasrutullah, 783, 784
Aggarwal Chamber of Commerce v. F. Ganpatrai Hiralal, 861
Agha Mahomed v. Wahiddino, 1099
Aghore Nath Bannerjee v. Calcutta Tramways Co., 337, 339, 343, 370
Agius & Co. v. Great Western Colliery Co., 624, 629, 652, 719, 962
Agnew v. Indian Carrying Co., 883
Agra Bank, v. Hamlin, 85, 87
Agra Bank's Claim, 801
Agra & Masterman's Bank, Exparte Asiatic Banking Corporation, 105
Agricultural Cattle Insurance Co. v. Fitzgerald, 508
Ah Cheng v. Ah Wain, 820
Ah Choon v. T.S. Firm, 608
Ah Shain Shoke v. Moothia Chetty, 56, 199, 137
Ahinsa Bibi v. Abdul Kader, 393, 395, 422, 994
Ahmad Ibrahim v. Meyyappa, 172
Ahmadkhan v. Shahanshah Jahan Begum, 450, 473, 482
Ahmad Koya v. Murugesa Mudaliar, 500
Ahmad Saleh Mohammad v. Khanmull, 168, 172
Ahmad Ullah v. Hatiz Ullah, 272, 277
Ahmad Yar Khan v. Haji Khan, 1064
Ahmed Allahrakheo v. Amen, 679
Ahmedunnessa Begum v. Life Insurance Corp., 97
Ahmed v. Adjein, 1021
Ahmed Hassan v. Hassan Mahomed, 274, 275
Ahmedabad Jubilee S. & W. Co. v. Chhotalal, 301, 302
Ahmedabad Municipality v. Sulemanji, 551, 558
Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy, 279
Aiken v. Short, 600
Air Carrying Corporation v. Shibendra, 19, 73, 783
Aitchison v. Page Motors, 788
Ajayi v. R.T. Briscoe (Nigeria) Ltd., 57, 81, 526
Ajaibsing v. Sham Singh, 1072
Ajit Singh v. Bijai Bahadur Singh, 1054
Ajodhia Parshad v. Ghasiram, 949
Ajodhya Prasad v. Govind Missir, 700
Ajodhya Prasad v. Narain Prasad, 589
Ajudhia Nath v. Amar Nath Gupta, 1068
Ajudhia Prasad v. Chandan Lal, 125
Ajudhia Prakash v. Administrator Municipal Committee, 1125
Ajudhia Prasad v. Bakar Sajjad, 568, 579
Ajuddia Prasad v. Lal Man, 353
Akhoy Kumar v. Municipal Commissioners of Tollygunge Municipality, 559
Akoojee Jadwet & Co. v. A.V. & Son, 97
Akreib v. Booth and Others Ltd., 70
Akshayalingam v. Avayambalammal, 959
Akshay Kumar Saha v. Bhajagobinda Saha, 1104
Aktar Jahan Begam v. Hazari Lal, 180
Alagappa Chetti v. Vellian Chetti, 422
Alakharam v. Kulwantri Bai, 445, 964

Alakhanam v. Kulwantibai, 963
Alamelu Achi v. Ponniah, 1102
Alamelu Ammal v. Radhakrishna Naidu, 442, 443, 961
Alamia v. Positive Government Security Life Assurance Co., 352, 366
Alampi v. Swartz, 136
Alanduraiappar Koil Chithakkadu v. T.S.A. Hamid, 460
Alati v. Kruger, 194, 204
Albert D. Gaon Co. v. Societe Interprofessionella, 476, 477, 478
Albert Judah v. Ramapada Gupta, 251
Alder v. Moore, 686
Alderslade v. Hendon Laundry Ltd., 62, 70
Alebemarle Supply Co. v. Hind, 679, 799, 800
Alexander v. Railway Executive, 63, 65, 76
Alexander v. Rayson, 229, 253, 261, 542, 545
Alfred Domingo v. D'Souza, 111
Ali Saheb v. Shabji, 6
Alice Mary Hill v. William Clark, 258, 260, 289, 290, 302
Alifannessa v. Ali Akbar, 1104
Ali Jan v. Mohammad, 1105
Ali Mistri v. Kayem Ali, 994
All India Life Insurance Co. Ltd. v. S.P. Maheshwari, 184
Alla Baksh v. Chunia, 257
Alla Baksh v. Hamid Khan, 306
Allahditta v. Jamna Das, 1019
Allah Rakha v. Punnum, 89
Allarbai v. Mishra, 680
Allahrakhio v. Amin, 679
Allakins v. Jupe, 904
Allcard v. Walker, 224
Allcard v. Skinner, 152, 154, 155, 156, 161, 177
Alleghany College v. National Chautagus County Bank, 518
Allen v. Smith, 799
Allen v. Jumbo Holding Ltd., 1114
Alley v. Deschamps, 35
Alliance Bank v. Broom, 48, 49, 50, 51
Alliance Bank of Simla v. Amritsar Bank, 869
Alliance Bank of Simla v. Ghamandi Lal Jaini Lal, 806, 814
Alliance Insurance Co. v. Union of India, 413
Alliance and Stuttgarta Ltd. v. Hemant Kumar Das, 185
Allinson v. Bristol Marine Insurance Co., 705
Allumuddy v. Braham, 844
Alluraiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 902
Allwood v. Rattenbury, 35
Allwood v. Small, 203
Alokeshi Dassi v. Hara Chand Dass, 980
Alopi Parshad v. Court of Wards, 279, 554, 555, 556, 557
Alopi Prasad v. Union of India, 474, 475, 480, 482, 565, 902
Alsey Steam Fishing Co. v. Hillman, The Kirkness, 43
Alsidas v. Punamchand, 283, 540
Amanat Bibi v. Luchman Pershad, 1040
Amalgamated Investment & Property Co. Ltd. v. John Walker & Sons Ltd., 222, 468
Amarnath v. Mohan Singh, 440
Amar Singh v. Gopal Singh, 410
Amar Singh v. Karam Singh, 708
Amar Singh v. Kulubya, 265, 269, 542, 545
Ambady (K.P.) v. Balan (K.M.), 790
Ambalavana Chettiar & Co. Ltd. v. Express News Papers Ltd., 813
Amber Size & Chemical Co. v. Menzel, 324, 326
Ambhunshi v. Sharada Amma, 705
Amerchand & Co. v. Ramdas, 492
American Cynamaid Co. v. Ethicon, 1089, 1099 1113, 1109
American Cynamid Co. v. Rex Chainbert Inc., 315
American Smelting & Refining Co. v. Philippine Airlines, 9
Amjadennessa Bibi v. Rahim Buksh, 160, 275, 609
Amin Abdul Kadar v. Jevraj Otmal, 740, 748
Amin Chand v. Guni, 49
Amin Chand Bhola Singh v. Jullundur Supply Co. 678
Amiraju v. Seshama, 149, 150
Amir Ahmmad v. Meer Nizam Ali, 128
Amir Alam v. Bibi Salma, 171
Amirchand Meghraj v. Devi Dayal Bhagaram, 1029
Amir Chand v. Ram, 283
Amirchand v. Sucheta Kripalini, 165
Amir Khan v. Amir Jan, 274
Amir Khan v. Saif Ali, 540
Amir Dulhin v. Admn. Gen. of Bengal, 1124
Amla Bala Devi v. Madhabendu Narain, 1074
Amiruddin v. Mahammad, 949
Ammalammal v. Gnanammal, 393
Ammani Ammal v. Ramaswami, 1052, 1054
Amoco Australia Pty. Ltd. v. Rocca Bro. Engineering Motor Pty. Ltd., 319
Amolakchand v. Kheepchand Narsingdas, 654
Amrendranath Mandel v. Noor Jahan Bibi, 978
Amreshchandra v. Kalyanmal Dharam Narain, 263
Amrit Banaspati v. Union of India, 109, 110
Amritlal Goverdhan Lalan v. State Bank of Travancore, 749, 757, 758
Amritlal v. Harkisandas, 97
Amritlal v. Ram Kumar, 157
Amrit Lal Shah v. Ram Kumar, 852
Amrit Waman v. Mahadeo, 572
Amritlal Mansukh v. Maneklal Setha, 306
Amritsar Improvement Trust v. Custodian Evacull Property, 1113
Amusuvi Perumal Devasthanam v. Sabhappeti Pillai, 460
Anand Prakash Om Prakash v. Oswal Trading Agency, 253, 263, 264, 288
Anand Construction Works v. State of Bihar, 439, 704, 705, 710
Anandilal v. Abdul Hussain, 671
Anand Prakash Day v. Lokendranath Maulik, 395
Anathbandhu Dab v. Daminion of India, 593, 604
Ananda Kishore v. Panchu Kapali, 572
Anandammal v. Alamelu Ammal, 994
Ananda Mohan v. Ananda Chandra, 507
Ananda Namdeo v. Pundalik, 504
Anandaramayya v. Subbayya, 244
Anand Behari v. Dinshaw & Co., 877
Anand Behari Lal v. Deputy Commissioner, 307
Anand Singh v. Collector of Bijnor, 742, 763
Anandi Lal v. Gunendra, 959, 1022, 1046
Anandram Mangturam v. Bholaram Tanumal, 448, 530, 616
Anandilal Poddar v. Gunendra, 993, 1047
Anandiram v. Goza, 55
Anant v. Gopal, 1105

Anant Bharthi v. Sarup Singh, 435
Anant Bahadur v. Ashthbhuja Bux, 952
Ananth Bandhu v. Dominion of India, 541, 557
Anant Das v. Ashburner & Co., 337
Ananta Kumar Sarkar v. Meghu Kurmi, 946, 949, 952
Anantanarayana v. Savitri, 296
Anantha Rao v. Surayya, 505, 548
Ananthayya v. Subbarao, 711
Anant Krishna Modak v. Saraswati Padmanabh Shetti, 48
Anant Rai v. Bhagwan Rai, 128
Anarullah v. Koylash, 1041
Anb.obus v. Wickens, 896
Anderson Ltd. v. Daniel, 229, 230, 232, 247
Anderson v. Fitzgerald, 185
Anderson v. Sanderson, 932
Anderson Wright Ltd. v. Moran & Co., 580
Anderson v. Jones Sutherland (Polenhead) Ltd., 883
Anderson v. Pacific Insurance Co., 187
Anderson v. Thornton, 538
Andhra Pradesh State Electricity Board v. Patel & Patel, 441
Andreetlie S.A. v. Marine Transport Co., 474
Andrew Miller & Co. Ltd. v. Raylor & Co., 446
Andrews, in re, 286
Anglo African Shipping Co. v. Mortimer Ltd., 642
Angus v. Clifford, 187
Anilibda Devi v. Madinbendu Narayan Roy, 1072
Anil Kumar Handa v. Smt. Suman Bala, 1078
Aniradha Padhan v. Chhai Padhan, 1072, 1079
Annamma v. Ouseph Tressiamma, 537, 581, 583, 599
Andrews v. Belfield, 369
Andrews v. Hopkinson, 629
Andrews v. Ramasay & Co., 898
Andrews v. Salt, 285, 286
Angel v. Jay, 192
Andhra Paper Mills v. Andhra, 572
Andhra Sugars Ltd. v. State of A.P., 102, 118, 150, 151
Andhra University v. Durga Lakshmi, 1059, 1067
Angan Lal v. Saran Behari Lal, 497
Angne Lal v. Sidh Gopal, 533
Angus v. Maclachlan, 901
Anglo Auto Finance Co. Ltd. v. James, 686
Anglo-Danubian Co. v. Rogerson, 1049
Anglo Russian Merchants Traders v. John Balt & Co., 476
Anglo-Saxon Patroleum Co. Ltd. v. Adamstons Shipping Co. Ltd., 68, 69
Anibabla v. Madha Bendu, 1073
Anil Kumar v. Bhagisath Lal, 1099
Anirudhan v. Thomco's Bank Ltd., 505, 506, 507, 725, 729, 737, 739, 740,
Anjaneyalu v. Sri Venugopala Rice Mills Ltd., 286
Anjuman Ara Begum v. Nawab Asif Kader, 1076
Ankalamma v. Bellam Chenchayya, 395
Annadana v. Konammal, 746, 747
Annada Mohan Roy v. Gour Mohan Mullick, 546, 559
Annaji Rou v. Ragubai, 6
Annalakshmi Ammal v. Shanmugam Pillai, 371
Annamalai Chettiar v. Daw Huin, 428
Annamalai Chetty v. Veerabadran Chetty, 694, 695
Annamalai Timber Trust v. Trippunithura Deviswami, 767, 794
Annapurna Dasi v. Sarat Chandra, 1075, 1079
Annapurnamma v. Akhava, 393
Annoda Mohan Rai v. Bhuban Mohini Debi, 140, 169
Annoda Persad v. Dwarknath, 884
Anopchand v. Misrilal, 1104
Anoopchand v. Amerchand, 951
Antonio v. Inez Faizon, 371
Antonio Buttigieg v. Cross, 559
Antoniadi v. Smith, 948
Anrudh Kumar v. Lachmi Chand, 614, 665
Anupchand Hemchand v. Champsi Ugenchand, 363
Apaji v. Apa, 1104, 1112
Appa Dada Patil v. Ramkrishna Vasudev Joshi, 242, 417
Appalaraji v. Yddukondalu, 504
Appanna v. Jami Venkattappadu, 138, 195
Appa Pillai v. Ranga Pillai, 300
Appa Rao v. Gopal Das, 846
Appa Rao v. Salem Motors, 768, 808, 819
Appa Rao v. Suryanarayana, 695
Appa Rao v. Suryaprakasa Rao, 304, 306
Appa Rao v. Ramalinga, 289
Appleson v. Littlewood, 337
Appavoo Chettiar v. South India Railway, 224, 602, 604
Appayya v. Chandra Ayya, 586, 587
Appleby v. Myers, 465, 484, 536, 560, 564
Appu v. Raman, 1123
Appuni Nair v. Isac Mackadan, 747
Arab Bank Ltd. v. Barclays Bank, 15, 272, 497
Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett, 231, 232, 240
Arcos Ltd. v. E.A. Ronaasen 377
Ardishir Jivanji v. Aimai Kuvarji, 1104
Ardeshir Mama v. Flora Sassoon, 442, 959, 980, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000, 1001, 1032, 1033
Areti Surgarayya v. Areti Subhayya, 40
Argy Trading Co. v. Lapid Developments, 524
Argyll v. Argyll, 1101, 1128
Arjan Bibi v. Asgar Ali, 694, 698, 699
Arjan Das v. Hakim Rai, 665
Arjuna Mudaliar v. Lakshmi, 442, 964, 1020
Arjundas Hariram v. Secy. of State, 657, 794
Arjun Lal v. Banbehari, 421
Arjun Prasad v. Central Bank of India, 809
Arjuman Islamia & Nigim Ali, 1080
Arjun Singh v. Sahu Maharaj Ltd. Nerani, 1035
Arlapa Navak v. Narsi Keshavji, 907
Arkansas Smelling Co. v. Bolden Co., 381
Armar Shipping Ltd. v. Caisse Algerienci, 13
Armitage v. Insole, 429
Armodara Accidental S/A v. Horace Mann Insurance Co., 14
Armstrong v. Jackson, 204
Armstrong v. Sheppard & Short Ltd., 1122
Armstrong v. Stokes, 913, 920, 921
Armstrong v. Strain, 206, 931
Arnhold Karberg & Co. v. Blythe Green Jourdain, 377
Arnold v. Arnold, 969, 971
Arulanandam Vethakannu Nadar v. Bhagavathi Pillai Thanakachi, 568, 570
Arumugham Chettiar v. Sadashivan Pillai, 729
Arthur v. Barton, 854, 855
Arthur Andrew Capriani v. Macdonald Burnett, 337
Arthur White (Contractors) Ltd. v. Tarmac Civil Engineering Ltd., 71

Arulu Mastry v. Wakutha Chinnaven, 694
Arumuga Gounden v. Chinnammal, 40
Arumugan v. Duraisinga, 127
Arun & Co. v. Union of India, 17, 57
Arunachala v. Srivilliputtur M. C., 557, 593
Arunachalam v. Madras Railway Co., 781
Arunachalam Chetti v. Subramaniam Chetti, 721
Arunachalam Chettiar v. Krishna Aiyer, 388
Aruna Mills Ltd. v. Dhanraymal Gobindram, 391, 393, 620, 636, 639
Arun Prakash v. Tulsi Charan, 440, 1023
Aryan M&T Corpn. v. B.N.E. & Co., 521
Arya Pradeshak Pritinidhi Sabha v. Ramchand, 1121
Aryan Mining & Trading Corpn. v. Elias & Co. Ltd., 443
Aryodaya S.&W. Co. v. Javalprasad, 97, 410, 448
Aryodaya Spg. & Wvg. Co. Ltd. v. Siva Virchand, 708
Asa Ram v. Karam Singh, 303
Asa Singh v. Sadda Singh, 244
Asansol Electric Supply Ltd. v. Chunilal Deo, 984, 1062
Ascherson v. Tredegar Dry Dock etc. Co., 762
Asfer & Co. v. Blundell, 465
Asha Devi v. Champa Devi, 677
Ashbry Railway Carriage & Iron Co. v. Riche, 588, 594, 595
Ashburn Benson Peace & Co. Ltd. v. A.V. Dawson Ltd., 230
Ashok Kumar v. Gaen Sabha, 171
Ashby v. Tolhurst, 69
Ashby v. White, 1095
Asher v. Whitlock, 946, 953
Ashgar Ali v. Delroos Banoo Begum, 169
Ashutosh Roy v. Arun Sankar, 886
Ashworth v. Wells, 628
Asiatic Steam Navigation Co. Ltd. v. Jethalal Dharanashi, 911
Asirvada Nadan v. Vedamuthu Nadan, 305
Asitulla v. Sadatulla, 1041
Askaran Choutmal v. E.I.R. Co., 857
Askey v. Golden Wine Co. Ltd., 625, 630, 631
Asmalbai v. Esmolji, 1052
Assistant Custodian v. Brij Kishore, 522, 523
Associated Distributors Ltd. v. Hall, 685, 689
Associated Hotels of India Ltd. v. Rai Bahadur Jodhmal Kothalia, 971, 1004
Associated News Papers Ltd. v. Banks, 626
Associated Cement Companies Ltd. v. State of Rajasthan, 263, 264, 523
Associated Baba Bagga Singh v. Gumansingh, 1077
Astley v. Reynolds, 610
Astor Properties Ltd. v. Burnbridge Wells Eqeulabla Friendly Society Ltd., 633
Asvath v. Chimabai, 375
Aswathanarayaniah v. Sanjeeviah, 681, 692
Atal Behari v. Baroda, 1035
Ataullah v. Azimullah, 1102
Athar Rowther v. State of Kerala, 604
Atiyah, 123
Atkinson v. Benby, 275, 545
Atkinson v. Cotesworth, 919
Atkinson v. Ritchie, 450
Atkyns v. Amber, 919
Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co. v. Huth, 655
Atma Ram v. Godhu Ram, 1071
Atma Ram v. Gulam Husein, 57
Atmaram v. Hunar, 566
Atmaram v. Umedram, 507
Atool Chandra Mukerjee v. Shoshee Bhusan, 805
Attar Singh v. Vishan Das, 1088, 1112, 1124
Att. General v. De Keysers Royal Hotel, 563
Att. General v. Cotton, 140
Attorney General v. Bastow, 1104
Attorney General v. Harris, 1104
Attorney General v. Jacobs Smith, 43
Attorney General v. Leeds Corporation, 1119
Attorney General v. P.Y.A. Quarries Ltd., 1107
Attorney General v. Smith, 247, 1104
Attorney General v. Staffordshire County Council, 1116
Attorney General v. Wilts United Dairies Ltd., 610
Attorney General of Australia v. Adelaide Steamship Co. Ltd., 311, 312, 317, 318, 334
Attwood v. Emery, 445
Attwood v. Lamont, 312, 314, 321, 326, 327, 333
Attwood v. Munnings, 848
Atumal Ramoomal v. Dipchand Kessumal, 242
Auchterlonic v. Charles Bill, 335
Auckland Corporation v. Alliance Assurance Co., 9
Audambar v. Sonubai, 284
Audhesh Singh v. Rajeshwar Singh, 539, 547
Audinarayana v. Lakshminarayana, 884
Aulad Ali v. Ali Athar, 344
Austin v. Guardians of Bethnal Green, 550
Austin v. Manchester etc., Ry Co., 282
Australian Hardwood Ltd. v. Commr. for Railways, 999, 1016
Australian Lloyd Steamship Co. v. Gresham Life Assurance Society, 340, 342
Australian Steam Navigation Co. v. Morse, 855, 856
Australian Woollen Mills Pty. Ltd. v. The Commonwealth, 107, 108
Australian Widows Fund Life Insurance Society Ltd. v. National Mutual Life Insurance of Australia Ltd., 183
Automatic Fire Sprinklers Ltd. v. Watson, 660
Austress of East Nam Ltd. v. Mercey, 1030
Autoleta Financiers Ltd. v. Swastika Finance Corporation, 1075
Avery v. Bowden, 405
Aya Ram v. Sadhu Lal, 296, 297, 362
Ayatunnisa Bibi v. Karamali, 249
Ayerst v. Jenkins, 229, 544, 545, 730
Ayillosa v. Prabhakaran, 461
Aylesford v. Morris, 157, 175
Aypunni Mani v. Kochouseph, 742, 743
Ayrev v. British Legal & United Provident Assurance Co. Ltd., 185
Ayyannath Chetty v. Subramania Iyer, 895
Ayyaparayu v. Secretary of State for India, 1069
Azima Bibi v. Shamalanand, 169
Aziz Ahmad v. Sher Ali, 744
Aziz-ur-Rahman v. Bahawalnagar Co-operative Commission Shop Ltd., 812, 817, 818
Aziz Khan v. Duni Chand, 177

B.A.S. Chopra v. New Zealand Insurance Co. 184, 185
B.B. & C.I. Ry. v. Muhammadbhai, 72
B & B Viennese Fashions v. Losane, 229, 230

B & B Viennese Fashions v. Lorane, 232
B.C. Mahindra v. Municipal Board Saharanpur, 551
B.D. Naithani v. State of U.P., 591
B.I.G. Insurance Co. v. Itabar Singh, 504
B. Muniswami Chetty & Co. v. D. Muniswami Chetty & Co., 654
B.N. Elias & Co. v. State of West Bengal, 554, 580
B.N. Kataruka & Sons v. Chaulhai Navak, 516
B.N. Mathur v. Union of India, 671, 705
B.N. Rly. v. Haji Latif, 794
B.P. Refinery (Westernport) Pty. Ltd. v. Shire of Hastings, 114
Baba Sahib Rahim Sahib v. Rajaram, 352, 355
Baba San v. Mohammad Akbar, 1050
Babaji v. Krishna, 543
Babcock v. Lawson, 200, 808
Babiah v. Mohammed Abdus Subhan, 233, 234
Babshetti v. Venkatramana, 219
Babu v. Ram Rattan 1096
Babui Panmato Kuer v. Ram Agya Singh, 189
Babu Bhagwati v. Maiyan Murat, 582
Babu Lal v. Dominion of India, 780
Babulal v. Jagannath, 1047
Babulal v. State of U.P., 606, 835
Babulal Agarwala v. Firm Vijaya Stores, 236, 483, 548
Babulal Chokhani v. Western India Theatres Ltd., 1095
Babulal Swarupchand Shah v. South Satara (Fixed Delivery) Merchants Association, 260, 264, 830, 851, 894
Babu Nisar Ahmad v. Raja Mohan Manucha, 156
Baburam Kanhaiyalal v. Union of India, 782
Babu Ram v. Ram Charan, 281
Babu Ram v. Ram Daval, 869
Babu Ram v. Said-un-Nissa 129
Babu Ram v. Dan Singh, 31
Baburam Bag v. Madhab Chandra, 1010, 1011, 1013
Babu Rao v. Babu Manakhad, 742
Babu Rao v. Babu Manaklal, 753
Babu Rao v. Sonaji, 977, 1023
Bachhraj Amolakchand v. Khupchand Narsingdas, 657
Bachhraj Amolak Chand v. Nand Lal Sita Ram, 426, 431, 466, 476
Bachraj Dugar v. Lal Chand, 790
Bachhus Marsh Concentrated Milk Co. Ltd. v. Joseph Nathan & Co. Ltd., 312
Badal & Co. v. East India Trading Co., 621
Baddulal v. Srikissan, 357
Badiatannessa Bibee v. Ambika Charan, 158, 670
Badische Co. etc., in re, 481, 482, 485, 488, 464
Badri Batan Lal v. Bindhya Pradesh Government, 728
Badri Das v. Mst. Dhanni, 948
Badridas Kothari v. Meghraj Kothari, 365
Badrilal v. Municipal Corporation of Indore, 96
Badri Narain v. Kamdeo Prasad, 472
Badrinarain Singh v. Kedar Singh, 1052
Badrinarayan Aggarwala v. Brij Narayan Roy, 850
Badri Narayan Singh v. Kalyan Prasad Shroff, 492
Badrinath Upadhya v. Kesho Kumar, 886
Badrud Din v. Tufail Ahmad, 1001, 1019, 1025
Badr-un-nissa v. Muhammad Jaw, 600
Badu Mia v. Badrannessa, 249, 310
Baffles v. Wichelhaus, 145
Bagot v. Stevens Scanlan & Co., 15
Bahadur Singh v. Bedkantha, 244
Bahadursingh v. Gulab Devi, 680
Bahore Mahton v. Juro Sahu, 155
Bai Appibai v. Khimji Cooverji, 199
Bai Diwali v. Umedbhai, 546
Baid Nath Das v. Shamanand Das, 694, 695
Baidyanath Bose v. Smt. Sudha Roy, 983
Bai Hiradevi v. Official Assignee of Bombay, 299
Baij Nath v. Bijadhar, 573
Baijnath v. Kshetrahari Sarkar, 94, 96, 100, 995 1023
Bai Kesserbai v. Narranji, 805
Baij Nath Singh v. Shah Ali Hosain, 694, 697
Baikuntha Nath Dey v. Uday Chand, 584
Baikunthi Devi v. Mahendra Nath, 991
Bailey v. Bullock, 644, 645, 646
Baily v. De. Crespigny, 449
Bai Mangu v. Bai Vijili, 945, 962, 987
Bain v. Fothergill, 644, 662, 663, 664, 1033
Baines v. Ewing, 907
Baines v. Tweddle, 253
Bainbridge v. Firm Store, 308
Bainbridge v. Smith, 984
Bai Somi v. Chokshi Ishwardas, 734
Bai Vijili v. Nansa Nagar, 258, 290
Bajrang Electric Steel Co. v. Commissioner of Port of Calcutta, 340
Bajranglal v. Anandilal, 113
Bajranga Lal v. Purshottam Das Puranlal, 998
Bakaram Januji v. Kashirao, 126
Bakatram v. Kharsetji, 1053
Baker v. Bolton, 646
Baker v. Hedgecock, 290
Baker v. Jones, 337
Baker v. Monk, 175
Bakhariya v. Munak Gangaram, 1119
Baksiram v. Jasroop Shrinath, 880
Bala Krishna Pramanie v. Bhawanipore Banking Corporation Ltd., 99, 111, 113
Balacoch v. Lawson, 198
Balaji v. Annaparnabai, 225
Balamal v. Mhakshamana Naiker, 1080
Balamba v. Krishnya, 37
Balak Ram v. Dadu, 123
Balakram v. Ganga Bishun, 1049
Balakrishna v. Balu, 415
Balakrishna Ayyar, In re, 951
Balaprasad Asaram v. Asmabi, 1038
Balaram v. Southern Maratha Ry. Co., 781, 789
Balaram etc. Firm v. Govinda Chetty, 444
Balasiram v. Gubbay, 621
Balasundara v. Muthuvenkatachala, 441
Balasundra Mudaliar v. Mahomed Oosman, 281
Balasundara Naicker v. Ranganath Iyer, 517
Balawant Vishnu v. Mishrilal Shivnarayana, 361
Bal Deo v. Mulchand, 504
Baldeo Das v. Mohamaya, 282
Baldeo Narain v. State of Bihar, 788
Baldeo Parshad v. Miller, 346
Baldeo Sahai v. Harbans, 279
Baldeo Sahai v. Jumna Kunwar, 282
Baldeosahai Surajmal & Co. v. Radhakishan, 356
Baldeo Singh v. Balaki Das, 174
Baldeo Singh v. Gopal Singh, 1078
Bales v. N.W. Rly, 643
Balfour v. Balfour, 52, 53, 56, 103, 108, 348
Balfour v. Sea Fire Assurance, 600
Balgobind v. Bhaggu Mal, 290

Baliram Dhote v. Bhupendra Nath Bannerji, 702
Balkisan Das v. Maganlal, 210
Balkishan Das v. Run Bahadur Singh, 694
Balkishan Nathani v. Laxmanrao, 245
Balkishen Das v. Dun Bahadur Singh, 693
Balakrishna v. Atma Ram, 743, 746
Balkrishna v. Balu, 415
Balkrishna v. Bank of Bengal, 761
Balkrishna v. Bhawanipur Banking Corp., 110
Balkrishna v. Jaya Shankar, 306
Balkrishna v. New India Insurance Co., 98, 183, 185
Balkrishna v. Municipality of Mahad, 422
Balkrishna Ayyar, In re., 951
Balkrishan Das v. Madan Lal, 173
Balkrishnan & Co. v. Ram Nath, 880
Balkuraya v. Sankamma, 711
Ballabh Das v. Gaur Das, 949
Ballabhdass v. M.C. Malkhapur, 604, 609
Ballapraguda v. Thammana, 244, 307, 340
Ballet v. Mingay, 123
Ballo v. Paras Ram, 155
Balls v. Parasram, 172
Balmukund v. Jagannath, 899
Balmukund v. Kamlavati, 972
Bal Mukand v. Madan Gopal, 1071
Balmukund v. Veerchand, 1035
Balmukund Lal v. Sohano Kueri, 1082
Balo v. Parbati, 295
Bal Saroop Daulat Ram v. Lakhbir Singh, 443
Balsukh Refractories & Ceramics Ltd. v. Hindustan Steel Ltd., 242
Balthazar & Son v. E.M. Abowath, 830
Balteel & Colmore v. Parker & Baleels Trustees, 49
Baluswami Aiyar v. Lakshmana Aiyar, 976
Balvanta v. Bira, 980
Balwant Singh v. Rajaram, 978
Balwant Singh v. S.H. Mian Mohamed, 340
Balwant Yalneshwar v. Srinivasa Appaji, 1105
Bama Sundari Dasi v. Adhar Chunder Sarkar, 568
Bamfield v. Goole Transport Co., 774
Bamford v. Shuttleworth, 934
Bamier & Bros. v. Ramudu, 401
Banamali Satpathi v. Talna Rambar Patra, 394
Banambar Das v. Udaynath Pattanaik, 491
Banarsi Das v. Sital Singh, 278
Banco de Portugal v. Waterlow & Sons Ltd., 640, 641, 652, 657, 661
Banda Ali v. Banspat Singh, 149, 297
Bani Madho Das v. Kaunsal Kishor Dhusar, 358
Bani Mancharam v. Regina Stanger, 257
Bani Ramchandra v. Jayawanti, 290
Banjarangal Poddar v. Sitaram Kedia, 609
Banka Behari Das v. Raj Kumar Dass, 542
Bankart v. Houghton, 1119
Bankbury v. Bank of Montreal, 884
Banku Behari Saha v. Krishto Gohindo, 139, 1053
Banke Behari v. Sundar Lal, 694, 697, 698
Bankey Behari v. Mahendra Prasad, 547, 580, 585, 596
Bankey Lal v. Bhagirath Mal, 357
Bankim Bihari Roy v. Halima Bibi, 74,
Bank Line Ltd. v. Arthur Capel & Co., 451, 454, 455, 463, 465, 474, 481, 483, 487
Bank Melli Iron v. Barclays Bank, 864
Bank of Africa v. Cohen, 10, 119
Bank of Baroda v. Krishna Ballal, 754, 757, 758
Bank of Bengal v. Dinonath Roy, 945
Bank of Bengal v. Fagan, 843, 848, 927
Bank of Bengal v. Macleod, 848
Bank of Bengal v. Ramanathan, 843
Bank of Bengal v. Vyabhoy, 242, 291
Bank of Bihar v. State of Bihar, 812, 813, 828
Bank of Bihar Ltd. v. Damodar Prasad, 729, 754, 730
Bank of Bihar v. Tata Scob Dealers, 883
Bank of Bombay v. Nandlal Thackerseydass, 796
Bank of Chittoor Ltd. v. Doraiswami Ayyar, 773
Bank of Chittoor v. Narasimbhulu Naidu, 813
Bank of India v. Addl. Industrial Tribunal, 56
Bank of India v. Chinoy, 1000
Bank of India v. Govinda, 50
Bank of India Ltd. v. Jamsetji Chinoy, 384, 433, 672, 966
Bank of India v. R.F. Cowasjee, 60, 801, 730
Bank of Khulna v. Jyoti Prakash Mitra, 171
Bank of Montreal v. Stuart, 164, 170, 172
Bank of Mysore v. B.D. Naidu, 386
Bank of New South Wales v. Goulburn Butter Factory, 801
Bank of New South Wales v. Milvain, 661
Bank of New South Wales v. O'Connor, 811
Bank of Saurashtra v. Chittaranjan Rangnath Raja, 750, 753, 754, 755
Bank of Victoria Ltd. v. Muellar, 158
Bankers Trust Co. v. Shapira, 611
Banks v. Ripley, 1038, 1040
Bannerman v. White, 186
Bannerjee v. Simonds, 843
Banque des Marchands, in Re, 857
Bansi v. Kanhaiya, 1102
Bansidhar v. Ajudhia Prasad, 543
Bansidhar v. Akhya Ram, 493
Bansidhar v. Babu Lal, 307
Bansidhar v. Bu Ali Khan, 698, 699
Bansidhar v. Chandra Kumar, 587
Bansidhar v. Govt. of Bengal, 500, 732
Bansilal v. Shankarlal, 1006
Bansilal Fomra v. Thadaya Co-operative A & I Society Ltd., 455, 456
Bansi Sah v. Krishna Chandra, 664, 983, 990
Bansraj Das v. Secretary of State, 609
Banta Ali v. Banspat Singh, 149
Banta Singh v. Diwan Singh, 1076
Banu Mal v. Ratan Deo, 275
Banwari Das v. Muhammad Mashiat, 694
Banwarilal v. Rajkishore, 570, 582, 586
Bapanna v. Jaggiah, 394
Bapu Apaji v. Kashinath Sadoba, 943
Bapuji v. Natranjan, 281
Bapulal v. Laxmi Bharat Trading Co., 547
Bapulal Swarupchand Shah v. S.S. (Fixed Delivery) Merchants, Assam, 830
Bapurao Lalji v. Anand Kashinath, 383
Bappu Rowther v. State of Kerala, 206, 536, 541
Barada Kanta v. State of Assam, 559
Bara Estate Ltd. v. Anup Chand, 160
Barber v. Manchester Regional Hospital Board, 983, 984, 985, 1083
Barber v. Wolfe, 1030, 1047
Barber Maran v. Ramana Goundan, 393, 394
Barclay v. Harris, 667
Barclay v. Pearson, 545
Barclays Bank International Ltd. v. Levin Bros. (Bradford) Ltd.
Bardwell v. Lydall, 494, 728
Barelay Bank Ltd. v. W.J. Simms Son & Cooke

(Southern) Ltd., 611, 612
Bareley — Johnson v. Yull, 1114
Barendra Prasad Roy v. I.T. Officer, 670
Baring v. Corrie, 803, 852
Baring v. Stanton, 892, 895, 934
Barker v. Windle, 195
Barkatunnissa Begum v. Debi Baksh, 169, 170
Barnes v. City of London Real Property Co., 990
Barnett v. South London Tramways Co., 932
Barney, Re, 860
Baroda Oil Cakes v. Parshottam, 83, 86
Baroda Spg. & Wvg. Co. Ltd. v. Satyanarayen Marine & Fire Insurance Co., 338
Barnett v. South London Tramways Co., 932
Barratt v. Gough-Thomas, 804, 900
Barrett v. J.R. Jovita, 883
Barrett Bros (Taxis) Ltd. v. Davies, 265, 267
Barrington v. Lee, 838
Barrow v. Arnoud, 615, 821
Barrow v. Chappell & Co., 984
Barrow v. Dyster, 912
Barrow Lane & Ballard v. Philip Philips & Co., 211
Barr v. Gibson, 214
Barry v. Longmore, 804
Bartlett v. Pentland, 853
Bartlett v. Purnell, 853
Bartlett v. Sidney Marcus Ltd., 189
Barton v. Armstrong, 147, 148, 149
Bartram v. Lloyd, 933
Barwick v. English Joint Stock Bank, 781
Basai v. Hassan Raza Khan, 1107
Basanta Kumar v. Kusum Kumar, 805
Basant Kumar v. Roshanlal, 885
Basanta Kumar Chowdhury v. Mohan Chowdhury, 301
Basant Lal v. Dominion of India, 348, 349
Basavayya v. Subbarazu, 694
Basdeo Rai v. Jhagru Rai, 344
Basdeo Ram v. Dilsukh, 517, 529
Bashir Ahmed v. Sadiq Ali, 336
Bashiruddin v. State of Orissa, 1094
Bashi Ram v. Ram Sahai, 354
Baskcomb v. Beckwith, 202
Basma v. Weekes, 911
Bissadendu Biswas v. M. Sakina Begum, 896
Bassayya v. Kotayya, 235, 253, 265
Batchelers Pram House Ltd. v. Mckenzie Bors. Electrical Co., 628
Batchiraju v. Sri Ranga, 1019
Bateson v. Gosling, 742
Batty v. Metropolitan Property Realisation Ltd., 629
Batuk Nath Mandal v. Bepin Behari Chaudhuri, 572
Baumwool Manufacture v. Furness, 855
Bawden v. London, etc. Assurance Co., 908
Baxendale v. Seale, 1024
Beach v. Reed Corrugated Cases Ltd., 659
Beacon Pharmaceuticals v. Dunichand Khosla & Sons, 240
Beard v. Porter, 656
Beasley v. Beasley, 1110
Beattie v. Lord Elury, 924, 925
Beauchamp v. Powley, 776
Beaumont v. Boultbee, 878
Beaumont v. Reeve, 302
Becharam Babu Ram v. Baldeosahai Surajmal, 340
Bechervaise v. Lewis, 758, 762
Bechu v. Bhabhuti Prasad, 834
Bechuanaland Exploration Co. v. London Trading Bank, 7
Bechu Singh v. Baldeo Prasad, 566
Beck Chand v. Prabhuji, 924
Becker v. Partridge, 181, 207
Backett v. Addyman, 735
Beckham v. Drake, 378, 379
Beddow v. Beddow, 1101
Bedley v. Consolidated Bank, 763
Bedson v. Bedson, 1110
Beesly v. Hallwood Estates Ltd., 222, 521, 524
Begg v. Boyd Gibbins Ltd., 989
Beharilal v. Asaram, 695
Beharilal v. Habiba Bibi, 169
Beharilal v. Nassimamessa Bibi, 515
Behari Lal v. Prabhu Lal, 903
Behari Lal v. Radhe Sham, 529
Behari Lal v. Ram Ghulam, 387
Behari Lall v. Jagdish Chunder, 234
Behn v. Burness, 786, 437
Bejoy Kumar Sen v. Kusum Kumari Debi, 575
Beldon v. Campbell, 854
Bell v. Auldjo, 853
Bell v. Balls, 853, 857
Bell v. Lever Bros Ltd., 62, 116, 137, 146, 180, 183, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 219, 223, 345, 452, 488, 600, 1007
Bell Hotels v. Motion, 884
Belgaum Pioneer Urban C. Bank Ltd. v. S. Swami, 827
Belsire Motor Supply Co. v. Cox, 823, 826
Bemasena Rao v. Narayana Rao, 571
Benarsi Debi v. New India Assurance Co., 97, 184, 185
Benarsi Parshad v. Mohiuddin Ahmad, 472
Benarsi Stores v. President of India, 789
Bengal Agency & Stores Syndicate v. Khanna, 346
Bengal Bank v. Satyendranath Das, 860
Bengal Coal Co. v. Homee, Wadia & Co., 88, 425
Bengal Coal Co. v. Union of India, 558, 581, 584, 865, 866, 918
Bengal Nagpur Ry. Co. v. Ruttunji, 632, 665, 666
Bengal N.W.R. Co. v. Bansidhar, 776
Bengal Stone Co. Ltd. v. Joseph Hyam, 151
Beni Madho v. Prag, 949, 952
Beni Radho Pragwal v. Hira Lal, 1066, 1102
Beni Pershad v. Narayan Glass Works, 340
Beni Sah v. Sen Sah, 446
Bennet v. Bennet, 267, 341
Bennet v. Vade, 164
Bennet Waldent Co. v. Wood, 451
Benode Behari Das Gupta v. Benoy Bhushan Chaudhary, 434
Benoit v. Prudhomme, 464
Bensley v. Bignold, 229
Benson v. Duncan, 855
Bentall, Horsley and Baldry v. Vicary, 558, 844, 875
Bentley v. Heralt Smith (Motors) Ltd., 191
Bentsen v. Taylor Sons & Co., 626
Bentworth Finance Ltd. v. Lubert, 76, 717
Bepat Singh v. Sham Lal, 572
Beresford v. Royal Insurance Co. Ltd., 287
Berg v. Sadler & Moore, 261, 267
Bero-wall International S.A. v. Practitioners in Marketing Ltd., 1090
Berrers v. Fleming, 964
Berrett v. Smith, 232

Berridge v. Berridge, 764
Berries v. Hutchinson, 643
Berry v. Berry, 502
Besant v. Narayaniah, 285
Besley v. Hallwood Estates Ltd., 527, 528
Best v. Glenville, 247
Beswick v. Beswick, 29, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 44, 405, 993, 990, 1099
Bettini v. Gye, 400, 432, 625, 626
Betts v. Gibbins, 904
Betlyer v. Maynard, 218
Beulah Park Estate, 755
Bevan v. Waters, 798
Bexwell v. Christie, 876
Beyfus v. Lodge, 1023
Bezonji Byramji & Co. v. Central Bank of India Ltd., 765, 930
Bhabhuti Prasad v. Parbati, 500
Bhabhani Prasad v. Sarat Sundari, 1082
Bhabani Prosanna v. Sarojini Debya, 632
Bhagavati v. Narayan, 403
Bhagat Ram v. Ramniwas, 340
Bhagat Singh v. Satnam Transport Co., 1064
Bhagabat Charan Mohanty v. Rao & Sons, 305, 496
Bhagawatsarn Singh v. Mithila Saran Singh, 1046
Bhageran Rai v. Bhagwan Singh, 972, 1020, 1027
Bhageshwari Prasad v. Deopati Kuer, 972
Bhagirathi Bai v. Digambar, 571
Bhag Singh v. Sewa Singh, 1108, 1116
Bhagwan Baksh Singh v. Secretary of State of India in Council, 1070
Bhagwan Das v. Bhajju Mal, 243
Bhagwandas v. Burjorji, 356, 357, 361, 362, 880
Bhagwandas v. Chhedalal, 593
Bhagwandas v. Deochand, 357, 358
Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal, 4, 5, 60, 81, 82, 83, 95, 98, 137
Bhagwandas v. Bitton, 159
Bhagwandas v. Kanji, 356, 430
Bhagwandas v. Secretary of State, 714, 732, 742
Bhagwandas v. Shiv Dayal, 100
Bhagwandas Krishnadas v. P.S. Sama Iyer, 596
Bhagwandas v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 818
Bhagwandas & Sons v. State Bank of Hyderabad, 417
Bhagwandas Narotamdas v. Kanji Deoji, 880
Bhagwan Dei v. Murari Lal, 285
Bhagwan Pancha v. Nayankunvarba, 159
Bhagwan Singh v. Munshi Ram, 306
Bhagwan Gopal v. Appaji, 446
Bhagwant Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu, 278
Bhagwant Genuji v. Ganga Bisan, 233
Bhagwati Charan v. Hirday Singh, 1080, 1082
Bhagwati Prasad v. Chatrapal, 244
Bhagwati Prosad v. Kamala Mills, 349
Bhagwanti v. Jintu, 1108
Bhagwatsaransing v. Miclhilasaram, 1046
Bhagyathammal v. Dhanabhagyathammal, 671
Bhailal v. Kalyanrai, 467
Bhai Panna Singh v. Bhai Arjun Singh, 704, 710
Bhairabendra Narayan v. State of Assam, 1064
Bhairud Din v. Union of India, 782, 789
Bhalchandra v. Mahdeo, 440, 703, 789
Bhandari Bros. v. Municipal Committe, 581, 593
Bhan Singh v. Kaka Singh, 283
Bharat Bank Ltd. v. Bodhraj, 812, 814
Bharat Electricals v. M/s American Export Isbrandsen Line Inco. Madras, 217
Bharat Fire & General Insurance Ltd. v. Parameshwari Das Gupta, 18
Bharat Nidhi v. Bhagwandas Mehra, 45, 746, 747
Bharat Nidhi Ltd. v. Takhtmal, 872
Bharat Sarvodaya Mill Co. Ltd. v. Shri Ram Mills, 847
Bharati Sah v. Ananantnarayan, 1110
Bharumal Udhomal v. Sakhawantmal Veshomal, 428
Bhashayya v. Chinnapareddi, 233
Bhaskarrao Jogeshwarrao Buty v. Smt. Saru Sadhavrao Thumble, 541, 549
Bhattacharjee & Co. v. Union of India, 589
Bhaudin v. Ibrahim, 782, 948
Bhavarilal v. S. Jaichand, 1095
Bhawani Sahai Salig Ram v. Chhaju Mal, 885
Bhawani Shankar v. Gordhandas, 863
Bhawani Singh v. Moulvi Misbah-ud-din, 884
Bhawat Singh v. Harikishen Das, 291
Bhayyaji v. Damodar, 383
Bheck Chand v. Prabhuji, 924
Bheku v. Dasharath, 976, 977
Bhicaji v. Pirojshaw, 1107
Bhicoobai v. Hariba, 587
Bhikabhai v. Bai Bhuri, 733
Bhikanbhai v. Hiralal, 233
Bhikraj v. State of Bihar, 555, 558, 584, 591, 592, 595, 596, 835
Bhikraj Jaipuria v. Union of India, 114, 436, 551 581, 589, 590, 594, 916, 917
Bhikrey v. Union of India, 57
Bhiku Appa v. Dattatraya, 548
Bhima v. Ningappa, 296
Bhimbhai v. Yaswant Rao, 173, 174, 307, 1022, 1025
Bhim Mandal v. Magaram, 126
Bhim Sain v. Union of India, 116
Bhirgunath v. Mst. Annapurna, 337
Bhiwa Mahadshet v. Shivaram Mahadshet, 296, 300
Bhogilal v. Ratilal, 944
Bhojabhai v. Hayen Samuel, 914
Bhojraj v. Sheshrao, 950
Bholanath v. Balbhadra Prasad, 1027
Bhola Nath v. Fateh Singh, 695
Bhola Nath v. Mul Chand, 358, 894
Bholanath Shankar Das v. Lachmi Narain, 312, 332, 1063
Bhola Ram v. Bhagat Ram, 118
Bhola Ram v. Peari Devi, 153, 168, 172
Bhola Ram Harbans Lal v. Bhagat Ram, 128
Bholi Baksh v. Gulia, 257
Bhoominathan v. K.S.N. Chari,
Bhoopathy v. Vijayalakshmi, 504, 510
Bhoop Singh v. Tarif Singh, 1066
Bhootnath v. Sahodeb, 1046
Bhora Hazari Lal v. Bhora Saurang Ltd., 569
Bhowanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh Nandini Dasi, 273, 275, 296
Bhowrilal Maheshri v. State of Assam, 902
Bhadur Chandra v. Betts, 444
Bhudet Mukherjee v. Kalachand Malik, 1094
Bhujendro Bhusan v. Trigunath, 1063
Bhundal v. Pandol, 951
Bhuneshwari Devi v. Sheogovindlal, 570
Bhupati Ch. Nandy v. Golam Ehibar Chowdry, 242

Bhupendra Nath v. Ranjit Singh, 1063
Bhup Narain v. Gokul Chand, 1010, 1011
Bhup Narayan v. Hira Lal, 1076
Bhupal v. Manchand, 1009
Bhushana Rao v. Subbayya, 695
Bhushayya v. Chinnapareddi, 238, 253
Bhushayya v. Suryanarayana, 728, 755, 757, 759
Bhutt Nath Chatterjee v. Ram Nath Naskar, 177
Bhuvanegiri Subha Rayudu v. Maradugula Venkataratnam, 244
Bhyangras v. Sheshras, 1047
Bibee Solomon v. Abdool Azeez, 220
Bibi Moliman v. Tafazil Karim, 1019
Bibi Saleha v. Zakariya Khan, 169
Bibi Zubaida v. Mohan Ram, 1071
Bickerton v. Burrel, 926
Bichook Nath v. Ram Lochun, 692
Biddel Bors. v. E. Clemens Horst Co., 377, 485
Biddle v. Bond, 797
Biddomoye Dabee v. Sittaram, 818
Bidshi Chand v. Kacchhu Mal, 357
Biederman v. Stone, 902
Big v. Boyd Gibbins Ltd., 98
Biggin & Co. Ltd. v. Permanite Ltd., 623, 624, 629, 634, 644, 652
Biggs v. Evans, 819
Biggs v. Gordon, 895
Biggs v. Lawrence, 932
Bigos v. Bousted, 258, 261, 542, 545, 546
Bihari Lal v. Habiba Bibi, 169
Bihari Lal v. Jagodish Chunder, 234
Bihari Lal v. Radhyi Shyam, 529
Bijay Krishna Paramanya v. Kali Charan Mondal, 507
Bijey Singh v. Bhawani Singh, 539
Bijoy Gopal Mukerjee v. Krishna, 1081
Bijoy Kundu v. Tepetikundu, 409
Bikhraj Jaipuria v. Union of India, 114
Bikram Kishore v. Benudhar Jena, 978
Biku v. Dasharath, 977
Biku Appa v. Datta Traya, 548
Bikutti v. Kalandan, 1074
Bilaspur Central Co-operative Bank v. State of M.P., 786, 787
Bilbie v. Lumley, 601
Bilborough v. Holmes, 497
Billings v. The Uncovenanted Service Bank, 307
Bimal Kumari v. Asoke Mitra, 974
Bimla Bai v. Shankar Lal, 199
Binay Krishna v. North Bengal Sugar Mills, 8
Bindae Dasya v. Chota, 307
Binda Kuar v. Bhonda Das, 570, 586
Binda Prasad v. Kishore Saran, 926
Binder v. Alachouzos, 236
Bindeshri Parshad v. Jairam Gir, 443, 964, 1018
Bhindeshari Prasad v. Lekhraj, 275, 290, 609
Bindeshri Prasad v. Sarju Singh, 244
Bindu v. Jahnabai, 1109
Bindu Pasini Chandharani v. Jammatri Chandharani, 1120
Bindubashini Dassi v. Harendra Lal Roy, 570
Bingham v. Bingham, 214, 218
Binjo Steel Furniture Co. v. Union of India, 436
Binns v. W.&T. Avery, 1042
Binstead v. Buck, 798
Bipin Bihari v. Masrab Ali, 243, 994
Biraj Krishna v. Purna Chandra, 572
Bir Bhaddar v. Sarju Prasad, 923
Birch v. Joy, 667
Birch v. Paramount Estates Ltd., 17
Bird v. Brown, 868, 869
Bird v. Hildage, 446
Birendra Nath Basu v. Basanta Kumar Basu, 274
Bireswar Sen v. Ashalath Ghose, 157, 192
Biri Singh v. Nawal Singh, 422
Birla Jute Manufacturing Co. v. Dulichand, 247
Birmingham & District Land Co. v. L.N.W. Ry, 515, 518, 519, 520, 526
Birupakshya Das v. Kunjabihari, 240
Bisadendu Biswas v. Mgt. Sakina Begum, 462
Bisan Prasad Misra v. Kamla Kant Jha, 1047
Bishal Chand v. Chattur Sen, 661, 742,
Bishambar Dayal v. Moolchand, 1106
Bishambhar v. Jag Prasad, 665
Bishambhar Das v. Katha Singh, 604
Bishan Chand v. Radha Kishan Das, 703, 980
Bishen Chand v. Girdhari Lal, 293
Bishen Chand v. Narain Singh, 697
Bishendas Agarwalla v. Nirmala Tea Co. Ltd., 462
Bishendeo Narain v. Sesgeni Rai, 151
Bisheshar Das v. Govind Ram, 235
Bisheshar Dayal v. Jwala Prasad, 357
Bishop & Baxter v. Anglo Eastern Trading Co. & Industrial Ltd., 19, 347, 349
Bishopsgate Motor Finance Corpn. v. Transport Brakes, 824
Bishop of Credition v. Bishop of Exeter, 740
Bishun Chund v. Girdharilal, 304
Bishunath Kunwar v. Sheo Bahadur Singh, 396
Bishunath Sahay v. Nanku Prasad Singh, 415
Bishun Perkash v. Siddique, 492
Bishwanath Balkrishna v. Smt. Ram Pirari Devi, 513
Bishwanath Mahto v. Smt. Janaki Devi, 1001
B.I.S.N. Co. v. Ali Bhai Mahamed, 495, 787
Bissat v. Wilinson, 187
Bissessar Das Daga v. Vas, 1035
Bissesuri v. Baroda Kanta Roy, 1066
Bissesswarlal v. Jaidayal, 467
Biswanath v. New Central Jute Mills Co. Ltd., 1072
Biswanath v. Someswar, 494
Biswanath Bandhopadya v. Purnamoni Dassee, 1100
Biswanath Saran v. Myjtaba Husain, 1063
Bitten Bibi v. Kuntulal, 50
B.K. Jobanputra v. B.S. Kalelkar, 39
Black v. Small Wood, 836
Blackburn v. Vigors, 184, 185, 909
Blackburn v. Scholes, 853, 869
Blackburn Bobbin Co. v. T.W. Allen & Sons, 467, 449, 455, 464
Blackett v. Bates, 973, 990
Blackmore v. Bristol Exeter Ry. Co., 769, 774
Black Sea Steamship U.L. Lastochkin Odessa v. Union of India, 14, 242
Black Well & Co. v. Jones & Co., 41
Blades v. Free, 876
Blair v. Riley, 770, 930
Blan v. Friern Hospital Management, 671
Blay v. Pollard, 1040
Blest v. Brown, 725, 729
Bligh v. Davies, 900
Bloom v. American Swiss Watch Co., 108
Blount v. War Office, 776, 786
Blumberg v. Life Interests etc. Corporation, 846
Blundell-Leigh v. Attenborough, 807

Blyth v. Whiffin, 885
Board of Revenue v. Annamalai & Co., 50, 52, 54, 872
Boardman v. Phipps, 890
Board of Trustees Calcutta Port v. Dhanrajmal Gobindram, 640, 673
Bodi Reddy v. Appu Gounden, 1119
Boggiano & Co. v. The Arab Steamers Co. Ltd., 483, 456, 778
Bohra Hazarilal v. Bohra Saurang Lal, 569
Boissevain v. Weil, 254, 390
Boistub Churan v. Wooma Churn, 236
Boja Sellappa Reddy v. Vridhachala Reddy, 574
Bolisetti Venkatanarayana v. Vekkalagaodalakshmi Punnayya, 615
Bolton v. Madden, 25, 294
Bolton Partners v. Lambert, 865
Bolton v. Salmon, 739
Bolye Chund Singh v. Moulard, 389
Bomanji Ardeshir v. Secretary of State, 17
Bombay Co. Ltd. v. Official Assignee, 742, 749
Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Wealth tax, 26, 371
Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. State of Bombay, 731, 303, 466, 494, 499, 744, 803
Bombay Gas Co. v. Gopal Bhiva, 945
Bombay Housing Board v. Karbhase Nath & Co., 383, 625
Bombay & Persia Steam Navigatia Co. v. Rubattino Co., 479
Bombay Salt & Chemical Industries v. Johnson, 87
Bombay Steam Navigation Co. v. Vasudeo Baburao, 787
Bombay United Merchant's Co. v. Doolubram, 915
Bonar v. Macdonald, 736
Bonell's Telegraph Co. Collies Claim, re, 558
Bonnard v. Perry man, 1101
Bonner v. Tottenham etc., Building Society, 567, 568
Bonnewell v. Jenkins, 96
Bousfield v. Hodges, 181, 207
Bonser v. Cox, 737, 762
Bonsor v. Musicians Union, 68, 118
Bonta Singh v. Diwan Singh, 1071
Bontex Knitting Works Ltd. v. St. John's Garage, 63, 72, 73
Bonwang Raja Chellaphrod v. Banga Behari Sen, 701
Bonython v. Commonwealth of Australia, 10, 12, 389, 391
Booken v. Palmer, 451
Booker v. Talmer, 1017
Bool Chand v. Kurukshetra University, 983
Boorman v. Brown, 15, 852
Boothalinga Agencies v. Poriaswami Nadar, 467, 475, 451, 457, 458, 460
Borries v. Hutchinson, 616
Borris v. Imperial Ottoman Bank, 922
Borrowman v. Free, 401
Boseck & Co. v. Mandlestan, 789
Bostock v. Jardine, 878
Bostock & Co. v. Nicholson & Sons, 635
Boston Deep Sea Fishing v. Ansell, 627
Boston Ice Co. v. Potter, 141, 575
Boston Fishing Co. v. Ansell, 933
Bottomley v. Bonnister, 627
Boulting v. Association of Cinematograph Television & Allied Technicians,
Boulton v. Jones, 141, 575
Boulton Bros. & Co. v. New Victoria Mills Co., 395, 1059
Bourhill v. Young, 648
Boursot v. Savage, 909
Bousefield v. Hodges, 181, 207
Bow v. Hart, 1100
Bower v. Chaleyer, 626
Bowen v. Owen, 386, 515
Bowes v. Shand, 444
Bowler v. Lovegrove, 319
Bowmakers Ltd. v. Barnet Instruments Ltd., 255, 257, 261, 267, 269, 542, 545, 773
Bowmakers Ltd. v. Wycombe Motors Ltd., 799, 800
Bowmaker (Commercial) Ltd. v. Day, 644
Bowring Hansbury's Trustees v. Bowring Hansbury, 847
Boyse v. Rossborough, 155
Brabant & Co. v. The King, 776, 789
Brace v. Calder, 643
Brackenbury v. Brackenbury, 544
Bradburn v. G.W.R. Co., 642, 654
Bradbury v. Morgan, 92, 735
Bradford v. Williams, 432
Bradley v. H. Newsons, 403
Bradley v. Horner, 565, 575, 579
Bradley v. Riches, 909
Bradley Egg Farm Ltd. v. Clifford, 836
Brandao v. Barnett, 800, 801
Brady v. Todd, 846
Brahma Swaroop v. Diwan Chand, 433
Brahmaputra Tea Co. Ltd. v. Scarth, 314, 315, 334, 680, 710
Brahmayya v. Gangaraju, 710
Brahmayya v. Hamiah, 235
Brahmayya v. Thangavelu, 800, 801, 802
Brahamdeo v. Haro Singh, 129
Brahmdeo Narayan v. Brajballabh Prasad, 275
Brahmdeo Narain Singh v. Notified Area Committee, 649, 675
Brahm Dutt v. L.I.C., 184, 364
Brajendra Kishore v. Hindustan Co-operative Insurance Society, 731
Bramwell v. Filler, 836
Bramwell v. Spiller, 913
Branca v. Cabarro, 95
Brandao v. Barnett, 800, 801, 802, 803
Brandon v. Scott, 796
Brandt v. Lawrence, 388
Branjrangal Poddar v. Sitaram Kedia, 609
Branson v. Appasami, 566
Brass v. Moitland, 774
Brasseur & Oakley, in re, 670
Brauer & Co. v. James Clark, 19, 115, 116
Braunstein v. Accidental Death Insurance Co., 370
Bray v. Chandler, 896
Braybrooks v. Whaley, 662, 1033
Brayer & Co. v. James Clark Ltd., 265
Brett v. East India & London Shipping Co. Ltd., 1121
Brewer St. Investments Ltd. v. Barclay's Woollen Co. Ltd., 602
Brickles v. Snell, 439
Bridge v. Campbell Discount Co. Ltd., 683, 685, 689, 705, 707, 708
Bridges v. Carson, 329
Bridges v. Garrett, 769, 847

Bridle Estates P. Ltd. v. Myer Realty Pvt. Ltd., 5, 7
Briess v. Woolley, 931
Brij Bhukhan v. Durga Dat, 1075
Brijbhushan v. Ramjanam, 504
Brij Bukhan v. Sami-ud-din, 694
Brijnandan Singh v. Jamuna Prasad, 475
Brij Nath v. Kshetrahari Sarkar, 94
Brijraj Marwari v. Anant Prosad, 10
Brikom Investment Ltd. v. Carr, 101, 519
Brinkman v. Abdul Gafur, 257
Brindaban v. Chandra Kurmokar, 200
Brindaban v. Dhurba, 207
Brinson v. Davies, 875
Bristow v. Taylor, 875
Britannia Building and Iron Co. v. State of Orissa, 867
British and Foreign Marine Insurance Co. v. India General Navigation & Railway Co., 778
British Bank for Foreign Trade v. Novinex, 94
British and Beningtons Ltd. v. North Western Cachar Tea Co. Ltd., 397, 401, 500, 502, 626
British Car Auctions v. Wrights, 106
British Columbia Saw-Mill Co. v. Nettleship, 622, 629, 636; 652, 932
British Crane Here Corporation Ltd. v. Ipswich Plant Here Ltd., 102
British Dominions Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Dina Nath, 339
British Electrical v. Patley Pressings, 94, 316, 347
British Guiana Credit Corpn. v. Clement Hugh Da Silva, 552, 645, 661
British India Steam Navigation v. Shanmughevilas Cashew Industries, 914
British Movietonews Ltd. v. London & District Cinemas Ltd., 68, 448, 478, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 459, 460, 462
British Nylon Spinners Ltd. v. Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., 327, 329
British Paints (India) Ltd. v. Union of India, 443, 445
British Reinforcement Concrete Engineering Co. Ltd. v. Schelff, 314
British Russian Gazette & Trade Outlook Ltd. v. Associated Newspapers Ltd., 497, 500, 511, 515
British Traffic and Electric Co. Ltd. v. Roper, 195
British Transport Commission v. Courley, 659, 673
British Union & National Insurance Co. v. Rawson, 717
British Waggon Co. v. Lea & Co., 412
British Westing House Electric Co. Ltd. v. Underground Electric Railways Co., 617, 640, 641, 642, 653
Brittain v. Rossiter, 377
Broad v. Thomas, 895
Broadbent v. Lead Ward, 796
Brodgen v. Metropolitan Railways Co., 22, 60, 96, 113
Brodie v. Corporation of Cardiff, 582
Brohmo Dutt v. Dharmo Dass Ghose, 531
Brojendro Kumar Roy v. Rash Behari Roy, 420
Brojendra Nath v. Sreemutty Luckhey Money, 156
Broklebank Ltd. v. The King, 610
Bromby v. Smith, 334
Bromley v. Ryan, 133, 134
Brook v. Hook, 166, 865
Broom v. Hall, 403
Brookman v. Mather, 360
Brooks v. Hassall, 846
Brooks, Jenkins & Co. v. Torquay Corpn., 558, 589
Brooks Wharf & Bull Wharf Ltd. v. Goodman Brothers, 567, 578
Brown v. Andrew, 839
Brown v. Arundell, 933
Brown v. Byrne, 8
Brown v. Gould, 98, 989
Brown v. Muller, 621
Brown v. Powell Duffryn Coal Co., 856
Brown v. Raphael, 187, 188, 193
Brown v. Sheen and Richmond Car Sales, 629
Brown v. Staton, 854
Brown v. Smit, 204
Brown & Co. v. Bedford Pentechnicon Co. Ltd., 819
Brown Jenkenson & Co. Ltd. v. Percy Dalton (London) Ltd., 188, 253, 261
Browne v. Bailey, 365
Brownett v. Newton, 847
Browning v. Morris, 231, 276, 545
Brownlie v. Campbell, 184, 192
Bruce v. Hunter, 111
Bruner v. Moore, 512, 529
Bryant v. Flight, 585
Bryans v. Nix, 803, 898
Bryanson Finance Ltd. v. Devrees, 1113
Bryant v. La Banque du Peuple, 848
Bryant v. Quebec Bank, 927
Bryant and Barningham's Contract, 1002
Buchanan v. Findlay, 899
Buckley v. U.U.G. & M.W., 668, 671
Buckland v. Buckland, 165
Buckoke v. Greater London Council, 1096
Buckpitt v. Oates, 56
Budberg v. Jerwood, 816
Buddulal v. Shrikisan, 880
Budgett v. Stratford Co. Operation & Industrial Society Ltd., 52
Budgett & Co. v. Binnington & Co., 480
Budha Singh v. Mukand Bihari, 729
Budhan v. Lala Harbans Lal, 118
Budharam Balakram v. Dhuri Co-operative Society, 237, 268
Budheswar Barua v. Jatindranath Barua, 241
Budhulal v. Deccan Banking Co., 537, 540
Buffatan Bibi v. Sheikh Abdul, 249
Bulchand v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 866
Buldana Municipality v. Vishnu Damodhar, 721
Buldeo Das v. Howe, 446
Bulkley v. Wilford, 190
Bull v. Pitney — Bowes Ltd., 322
Buller v. Harrison, 935
Bullion & Grain Exchange Ltd. v. State of Punjab, 951, 353
Bungo Steel Furniture v. Union of India, 636
Bunn v. Guy, 24
Bunting v. Tory, 629
Bura v. Mailia Shah, 665
Burchell v. Clark, 1038
Burchell v. Thompson, 18
Burchell v. Wilde, 1093
Burge v. Ashley & Smith, 366
Burges v. Eve, 733
Burgon v. Sharpe, 856
Burjorji v. Bhagwandas, 356
Burjorji Shapurji v. Madhavlal Jesungbhar, 442, 446, 711
Burland v. Earle, 892

Burley Ltd. v. Stepney Corporation, 774
Burla Ranga Reddi v. Kalapalli Sithaya, 336
Burn v. Brown, 804, 899
Burn & Co. Ltd. v. MacDonald, 4, 5, 316, 334, 1126, 1127, 1128, 1130
Burn & Co. v. Thakur Saheb Sree Likhdirjee, 399, 440, 445
Burnard v. Haggis, 123
Burnard v. Sully, 504
Burner v. Moore, 84
Burnes v. Trade, 748
Burnett v. Westminister Bank, 71
Buron v. Denman, 866
Burrows v. March Gas Co., 656, 650
Burrows v. Rhodes, 629
Burrows v. Rhodes & Jameson, 59, 191
Bur Singh v. Kehru, 244
Burt v. Claude Corisins & Co. Ltd., 838
Burton v. Parkerton, 646
Bush v. Whitehaven Port & Town Trustees, 474, 451
Bushwal Properties Ltd. v. Vortex Properties Ltd., 347, 350
Butchiraja v. Satya Narayana, 434, 1016
Butler Machine Tools Ltd. v. Excell O'Corporation, 22, 101
Butler v. Mulvihill, 134
Butt v. Long, 329
Buttery v. Pickard, 522
Butterworth v. Kingsway Motors, 628
Byrne v. Van Tienhoven, 80

C. Czarnikow Ltd. v. Centrela & Rolempex, 464
C.F. Angadi v. Y.S. Hiranayya, 680
C.H.T. Ltd. v. Ward, 365
C.I.T. v. Prakash Ram Gupta, 238
C.K.G. Sethia v. Partamball Rameshwar, 455
C.L. Kapoor v. C.I.T., 233
C. Ramaniah v. Mohamad Unissa Begum, 481
Caesar Lamare v. Thomas Dixon, 1026, 1014, 1015, 1016, 1022
Cahill v. Dawson, 863
Cakes v. Turquand, 611
Calabar Properties Ltd. v. Seagull Autos Ltd., 1106
Calcutta Chemical Co. v. D.K. Barman, 983, 984
Calcutta Corporation v. Hindustan Construction Co. Ltd., 226
Calcutta Credit Corpn. v. Prince Peter of Greece, 789
Calcutta Electric Supply Co. v. Ramratan Mehta, 986
Calcutta Ready and Forward Market Association v. State, 361
Calcutta Improvement Trust v. Sarbarana Devi, 999
Calcutta Port Commrs. v. Suraj Mull Jalan, 1112
Calcutta Stock Exchange Association v. S.N. Nandy & Co., 709
Calder v. Dobell, 911, 923
Caldwell v. Sumpler, 808
Calicut Fibre Industries v. Secretary Government of India, 737, 738, 746
Callaghan v. O'Sullivan, 275
Callianji v. Narsi, 1121, 1127, 1097, 1022
Callisher v. Bischaffsheim, 55, 296
Caltex (India) Ltd. v. Bhagwandevi, 442
Caltex (India) Ltd. v. Assistant Commissioner Sales Tax, 604
Calvert v. London Dock Co., 752
Calye's Case, 784
Cam & Sons Pty. Ltd. v. Ramsay, 611
Campanari v. Woodburn, 876
Campbell v. Hassel, 652
Campbell Discount Co. v. Bridge, 654, 683, 685, 686, 688
Campbell Discount Co. v. Gall, 102, 195
Campbell Mostyn Ltd. v. Barnett, 657
Canara Industrial & Banking Syndicate v. Ramachandra, 6, 8, 73, 777, 824
Candler v. Crane Christmas & Co., 144, 669
Candor v. Barok Knight, 466, 488
Caney v. Leith, 93, 94
Canhill v. Dawson, 899
Cann (Pty) Ltd. v. The Commonwealth, 348
Canning v. Farquhar, 97
Cap Palose, 69
Capital & Suburban Properties Ltd. v. Suycher, 1030
Car & Universal Finance Co. Ltd. v. Cold Well, 534
Carapanayoti & Co. Ltd. v. E.T. Green Ltd., 476, 477, 478, 487
Carberry v. Gardiner, 32, 916
Cargo ex "Argos", 794
Caribonum Co. Ltd. v. Le Conch, 328
Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co., 52, 106, 107, 189, 351
Carlisle & Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg, 139, 195, 196, 197, 198
Carlisles, Nephews & Co. v. Ricknauth Bucktearmull, 328
Carmichaels Case, 871
Carpenter v. Heriot, 152
Carpenters Estate v. Davies, 984, 990, 991
Carr v. Jackson, 915
Carrison v. Rodrigues, 850
Carrow Towing Co. v. The Ed. McWilliams, 82
Carter v. Hyde, 967
Carter v. Palmer, 890
Carter v. The Agra Savings Bank, 346
Carter v. Wake, 813
Carter v. White, 744, 803
Cart Wright v. Cook, 515
Carupati Venkanna v. Atchuta Ramanna, 850
Cary v. Webster, 934
Casamajor v. Strode, 973
Casey's Patents, Re, 47
Cassaboglou v. Gibb, 830, 832
Cassim Ahmed v. Eusuf Haji Ajam, 869
Castellain v. Preston, 37, 786
Cathels v. Commr. of Stamp Duties, 32
Catterall v. Hindle, 853
Cave v. Cave, 909
Cawley v. Poole, 1044, 1047
Caxton Publishing Co. Ltd. v. Southerland Publishing Co., 784
Cehava N.U. v. Bremerhandelgessehlschaft, 619, 780
Cellulose Acetate Silk Co. Ltd. v. Widnes Foundry, 680
Central Bank of India v. Attar Chand, 494
Central Bank of India v. Hartford Fire Insurance Co., 16, 372
Central Bank of India Ltd. v. Mohd. Islam Khan, 391, 504
Central Bank of India v. Rurchand Kuramal, 861, 862

Central Bank Yeotmal Ltd. v. Vyankatesh, 346
Central Government of India v. Chhotalal Chhaganlal, 343
Central London Property Trust Ltd. v. High Tree House Ltd., 25, 51, 518, 522, 519, 520, 524, 526, 528
Central Motors v. Cessnock, 788
Central National Bank Ltd. v. Industrial Bank Ltd., 822
Central Transport Co. v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 581, 593
Central Trust and Safe Deposit Co. v. Srider, 1073
Central Warehousing v. Central Bank of India, 795
Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. Motilal, 502
Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. Ullhas Nagar Municipality, 25, 56, 58, 96, 106, 526, 995
Chabildas Lallubhai v. Dayal Mowji, 908
Chacko Joseph v. Varghese Markose, 970
Chacko Mathai v. Aippu Yojakku, 231
Chacko Varkey v. Thommen Thomas, 304
Chadburn v. Moore, 837
Chadikani v. Zamindar of Tuni, 385
Chadma Lal v. Kishen Lal, 243
Chaganlal v. Dhondu, 1052
Chaganlal v. Gopilal, 494
Chaitram v. Bridhichand, 336
Chait Ram v. Mussammat Nathi, 250
Chajulal v. Gokul, 1050, 1053
Chalisgaon Lakshmanarayana Mills Ltd. v. Amrit Lal Kanji, 446, 617
Chalisgaon Sri Laxmi Mills Ltd. v. Amritlal Kalidas, 617
Challa Apparao & Co. v. Commercial Office, 604
Challa Balavva v. Kanuparthi, 906
Chamarbaughwala R.M.O. v. Union of India, 391
Chamatkari v. Triguna Nath, 418
Chamber v. Miller, 611
Chamberlain v. Williamson, 379
Chambers v. Goldthrop, 343
Champaklal v. Rayachand, 303
Champlal v. Roopa, 1047
Champa Ram v. Tulshi Ram, 828
Champernown v. Seott, 804
Champsey v. Gill & Co., 336, 355
Champsey Dossa v. Gordhandas Kessowji, 235
Chana Pacific S.A. v. Food Corporation of India, 519, 525, 526
Chand Bibi v. Santoshkumar Pal, 716
Chandburn v. Moore, 837
Changa Mal v. Sheo Prasad, 539
Chandaji Sakhraj & Co. v. Lal & Co., 238
Chandanmal v. Ramakrishnayya, 276
Chandanmull v. Clive Mills Co. Ltd., 220
Chanda Mal v. Gonda Singh, 799
Chandanee Vidyavati v. C.L. Katial, 663, 977, 978, 989, 1001
Chandi Prasad Singh v. State of U.P., 834
Chandhari Ram Basu Singh v. Dilip Kumar, 671
Chandler v. Webster, 483, 487, 560, 456, 462
Chandmull Jain v. General Assurance Society Ltd., 715
Chandni Vidyawati v. Dr. C.L. Katial, 1031
Chandra Bhan v. Misrimal, 419
Chandra & Co. v. State of Maharashtra, 946
Chandra & Co. v. State of Rajasthan, 951
Chandrabali Shah v. Pritam Singh, 1001
Chandra Deo v. Srinivasa Charlu, 569, 587
Chandra Kanta Das v. Parasullah Mullick, 335
Chandrakanta Pani v. Lalochan Pani, 1074
Chandraprasad v. Varajlal, 306
Chandrasekhara v. Nagabhusanam, 413
Chandrasekhara v. Vittala, 413
Chandukutty v. Raman Nair, 728
Chandradaya v. Bhagaban, 573
Chandu Sajan v. Nyahalchand, 1058, 1068
Chandulal Harjivandas v. C.I.T., 369
Chandulal Sukhlal v. Sidhruthrai Soojanrai, 364, 880
Changamal v. B.N. W. Rly, 789
Channabyre Gouda v. State of Mysore, 596
Chapelton v. Barry U.D.C., 71
Chaplen v. Bay, 676
Chaplin v. Hick, 628, 648, 675
Chapman v. Honig, 628
Chappell & Co. Ltd. v. Nestles Co. Ltd., 25
Chapsey v. Jethabhai, 1070
Charan Das v. Amir Khan, 1072, 1085, 1122
Charan Das v. Jamna Devi, 1071
Charan Das Haridas v. Commissioner of Income Tax, Bombay North Culch and Saurashtra Ahmedabad, 122
Charanjit Singh v. Harswarup, 702
Charanjitlal v. Hansraj, 550
Charington & Co. v. Wooder, 615
Charles Forte Investments v. Amanda, 1124
Charles Hunt Ltd. v. Palmer, 194
Charles Rickards v. Oppenheim, 443, 447, 514, 518, 523, 524, 527, 529
Charlesworth v. Mcdonald, 316, 334, 1030
Charnock v. Liverpool Corporation, 39
Charter v. Sullivan, 635
Charter v. Trevelyan, 887
Chartered Bank v. Dak Louche, 1091
Chartered Bank of India, Australia & China v. British India Steam Navigation Co. Ltd., 63, 76, 77
Chartered Bank of India v. Netherlands, S.N. Co., 779
Charterhouse Credit Co. Ltd. v. Tolly, 75, 655
Charu Chandra v. Sital Prasad, 875
Chase v. Wastmore, 799
Chathu Kutty Nair v. Kandan Appa, 872
Chatring v. Whitchurch, 176
Chatsworth v. Cussins Contractors Ltd., 496
Chattanatha v. Central Bank of Inida, 722
Chattranjan Banerjee v. Deputy Commissioner, 725
Chatterley v. Nicholls, 93
Chattru Mal v. Mst. Majidan, 1077
Chatturbhuj Vithaldas v. Moreshwar Parshram, 56, 58, 88, 443, 550, 589, 590, 591, 592, 595, 866, 916, 917, 918
Chaturbhujilal v. Girdharilal, 558, 571
Chatur Jagsi v. Tulsi, 306
Chaubey Sushil Chandra v. Raj Bahadur, 886
Chaudhary Mohd. Manzur-ul-Haq v. Bisesswar Bannerjee, 1076
Chedambara Chetty v. Renja Krishna, 174, 278
Chedi Lal v. Bhagwan Das, 581, 583, 584
Chedi Lal v. Insar Begam, 584
Chedworth v. Edwards, 884
Chekka v. Gajjila, 357, 903
Chelapathi v. Surayya, 879
Chelapathi Reddy v. Provincial Government, Madras, 568
Chellammal v. Abdul Gaffoor, 606
Chen Chennai Vedanthasangam v. Shanmughsundaram, 1119

Chengalroya Reddi v. Udai Kavour, 586
Chengravelu Chetty & Sons v. Akarapu Venkanna & Sons, 431, 434
Chennayya v. Janikamma, 235
Chenvirappa v. Puttappa, 542, 543
Cherukomen v. Ismala, 250
Chese Manhattan Bank v. Israel British Bank London, 611
Cheshire v. Bailey, 38, 770
Chesterfield v. Jennsen, 176
Chesterman v. Mann, 1029
Chesworth v. Farrar, 598
Chetandas Gulabchand v. State of Bihar, 1103
Chetoomal Bulchand v. Shankerdas Girdharilal, 57
Chettiar v. Chettiar, 543
Chettinad Mercantile Bank v. Piehammai, 1067
Chew v. Jones, 775, 793
Chhagan Lal v. Kesarlal, 1105
Chhatru Mal v. Mst. Majidan, 1077
Chhatumal v. Union of India, 794
Chhedilal v. Bhagwandas, 581
Chhedilal v. Chhoteylal, 1041, 1105, 1116, 1117, 1120
Chhedu Singh v. Kewal, 1118
Chhogalal v. Kanayalal, 501
Chhogmal v. Jaianrayan, 356
Chhotelal Ratanlal v. Rajmul Milapchand, 421
Chhoteylal Pannalal v. R.K. Railway, 927
Chunna Mal Ramnath v. Moolchand Ram Bhagat, 5
Chichester & Wife v. Cobb, 53
Chidambara Iyer v. Ananthakrishna, 282
Chidambara Iyer v. Renga Iyer, 24, 294
Chidambaram Chetti v. Pichappa Chetti, 885
Chidambaram Chettiar v. Tinnevelly Sugar Mills Co., 900
Chidambaranatha Thambiram v. Nallasiva, 1062
Chief Controlling Authority v. Sundaram Finance (P) Ltd., 771
Chiffton v. Coffey, 626
Children's Hospital v. Walt Disney, 1098
Chimanlal Purshottam Das v. Nyamatrai, 353, 354, 359, 361
Chimanram Motilal v. Divanchand Govindram, 77
Chimanram Motilal v. Shankarmal, 1109
Chiman Singh v. Subran Kaur, 243
China Foreign Trade Corporation v. Evalsgia Shipping Co. S.A., 512
China Cotton Exporters v. Biharilal Cotton Mills, 17, 18, 20, 117, 444
China Pacific S.A. v. Food Corporation of India, 672, 780
Chin Gwan & Co. v. Adamjee Hajee Dawood & Co., 220
Chinna v. Chunilal, 680
Chinna v. Pedda, 698
Chinna Desappa v. Gopala Krishna Co., 957
Chinna Pillai v. Govindaswami, 950
Chinnavanand v. Alemelu, 1012
Chinnamma v. Devanga Sangha, 154, 163, 173
Chinnaramanuja v. Padmanabha, 393, 916
Chinnasami v. Ambalavanna, 1066
Chinnaswami v. C. Doctor & Co., 897
Chinnaswamy v. Ratna Sabapathy, 569
Chinnaswami v. Cheru, 679
Chinnaswami v. Krishnaswami, 532, 533
Chinnaswami Nadar v. Home Insurance Co., 672
Chinnaya v. Ramayya, 29
Chinnock v. Marchioness of Ely, 95
Chinnock v. Sainsbury, 984
Chipperfield v. Carter, 94
Chiranji Lal v. Jisuk Ram, 445
Chiranji Lal v. Naraini, 718
Chiranji Lal v. Union of India, 590
Chitguppi & Co. v. Vinayak Kashinath, 7, 738
Chitibobu Adenna v. Garimalla Jaggarayadu, 85, 87
Chitsa v. Sangya, 610
Chittaranjan v. Parul Rani, 340
Chittagong Municipal Commission v. Assam-Bengal Ry. Co., 1056
Chitti Babu v. Venkata Subbu, 1065
Chittori Subbanna v. Kudappa Subbanna, 710
Chocka Linga v. Mahomed, 410
Chogalal v. Piyari, 257
Chomee v. Umma, 1071
Choklinga Chettiar v. Dandayuthpani Chettiar, 727
Chotalal v. Champsey Umusey & Sons, 369, 372
Chowksi Himutlal v. Chowksi Archratlal, 306
Chrestie Owner & David Ltd. v. Rapacorli, 838
Christacharlu v. Karibasayya, 508, 509
Chr. Salvesen & Co. v. Rederi Aktiebolaget Nordstjernaw, 924
Chuah Hooi Gush Neoh v. Khaw Sim Bee, 127
Chuhar Mal v. Mir, 698
Chummun Khan v. Mody, 823
Chunder Caunt Mookerjee v. Jodoonath Khan, 384
Chunder Kant Roy v. Krishna Sunder, 1010
Chuni v. Sullahar, 953
Chunia v. Kundan Lal, 568
Chunibhai Patel v. Nathabhai, 716
Chunilal v. Chandra, 133
Chunilal v. Manik Chand, 567
Chunilal v. Ram Kishen Sahu, 1066, 1079
Chunilal v. Surat City Municipality, 1094, 1096
Chunilal Dayabhai & Co. v. Ahmedabad Fine Spinning Etc. Co., 369, 372
Chuni Lal Mandal v. Hira Lal Mandal, 851
Chunilal Mehta & Sons v. C.S. & M. Co. Ltd., 682
Chunilal Rattanchand v. Laxman Govind Dube, 306
Chunna Mul-Ram Nath v. Moolchand Ram Bhagat, 516, 517
Chunnibhai Patel v. Natha Bhai, 716
Chunni Kuar v. Rup Singh, 173, 210, 279
Church v. Imperial Gas Co., 550, 585, 596
Churchill v. Goddard, 839
Churton v. Douglas, 327
Chuttanlal v. Kailashnarain, 1117
Cipriani v. Burnett, 343
C.I.T. v. Dwaraka Das & Co., 121
C.I.T. v. Prakash Ram Gupta, 238
C.I.T. v. Patney & Co., 841
C.I.T. v. Union Tobacco Co., 235, 237, 253
Citizen's Life Assurance Co. v. Brown, 929, 932
Civil Service Co-operative Society v. General Steam Navigation Co., 560
City Discount Co. v. Mclean, 490, 493
Clagg v. Wilson, 241
Clara v. Joseph, 896
Clare v. Lamp, 222
Clare v. Maynard, 629
Claridge v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., 788
Clark v. Barnes, 1038
Clark v. Kirly Smith, 15, 667, 668

Clark v. Wood, 93, 895
Clarke v. Bisley, 749
Clarke v. Cobley, 124
Clarke v. Cuckfield Union, 550, 551
Clarke v. Dickson, 203, 533, 538
Clarke v. Dunraven, 106
Clarke v. Grant, 1006
Clarke v. Moore, 1021
Clarke v. Tipping, 886
Clarke v. Watson, 370
Clarke & Walker Pty. Ltd. v. Thew, 753
Claude v. East African Airlena, 646
Clay v. Yates, 556
Clayton & Jack Waller Ltd. v. Oloven, 645
Clayton Green v. De Courville, 659, 660
Cleadon Trusts Ltd., 564
Cleaver v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 38
Clegg v. Hand, 1126
Clerk v. Laurie, 871, 872
Cleveland Petroleum Co. Ltd. v. Dartstone Ltd., 327, 330, 331
Clifford Davis Management Ltd. v. W.E.A. Records, 159, 165, 327
Cliffton v. Coffey, 626
Clipper Maritime Co. Ltd. v. Mineral Export Import, 1091
Close v. Close, 742
Close v. Phipps, 610
Clough v. Lond & N.W. Ry. Co., 91, 179, 532, 826
Clydebank Engineering Co. v. Castaneda, 679
Clyde Bank Engineering & Ship Building Co. v. Don Jose Ramos, 685, 681, 689
Clydebank Engineering & Shipping Co. v. Yzquierdo Y. Castaneda, 679, 682, 710
Clayton & Jack Waller Ltd. v. Oliver, 645
Coastal Estates Pvt. Ltd. v. Melevende, 200
Coates v. Sarich, 689
Cobequid Marine Insurance Co. v. Barteaux, 855
Cockburn v. Alexander, 659, 660
Cockran v. Irlam, 852, 853, 857
Cochrane v. Willis, 211
Coffee Board, Bangalore v. Haji Ibrahim, 16, 98
Coffey v. Dickson, 626
Coggs v. Bernard, 769, 776, 814
Cohe v. Lyon, 742
Cohen v. Kashre, 888
Cohen v. Kasim Nana, 622
Cohen v. Nessdale Ltd., 1016
Cohen v. Roche, 965
Cohen v. Rothfield, 1124
Cohen v. Sellar, 283
Cohen v. Sutherland, 101
Cohen & Co. v. Ockerby & Co. Ltd., 404, 405
Cointat v. Myham & Son, 630, 644
Colburn v. Patmori, 625, 630
Coldman v. Hill, 789
Cole v. N.W. Bank, 819
Cole v. Rose, 690
Coles v. Pack, 725, 732
Coles v. Trecothick, 294
Coles v. Treccothick, 859
Collard v. Marchall, 1101
Collector of Bombay v. Municipal Corporation of Bombay, 522
Collector of Cawnpore v. Kedari, 608
Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Vencata, 595, 866, 867
Collector of Meerut v. Lala Hardian, 126
Collen v. Wright, 924
Coller v. General Petroleum Ltd., Canada, 1034
Collins v. Evans, 904
Collins v. Codefroy, 259, 297, 298
Colonial Bank v. Caddy, 934
Colonial Bank v. Exchange Bank, 913
Coltman, Coltman v. Coltman, 242
Colvin v. Newberry, 855
Combe v. Combe, 23, 51, 102, 294, 296, 297; 518, 520, 521, 524, 527
Comet Radiovision Services v. Farewell Tendberg, 1115
Commercial Bank of Tasmania v. Jones, 497, 742
Commercial Enterprisers v. Madan Mohan Singh, 853
Commercial Plastics Ltd. v. Vincent, 325
Commrs. of Crown Land v. Page, 595
Commr. of Excess Profits Tax v. Ruby General Insurance Ltd., 369
Commissioner of Bangalore Corporation v. Kapoorchand Bros, 1114
Commissioner of Income Tax v. Abdul Rahim & Co., 1070
Commissioner of Income Tax v. Hukanchand Munnalal & Co., 122
Commissioner of Income-tax v. Bagyalakshmi, 1070
Commissioner of Income-tax v. Kameshwar Singh, 27, 430
Commissionerof Income-tax v. Maharayadhiraj of Darbhanga, 492, 493, 494
Commissioner of Income Tax v. Manmohandas, 834, 832, 833
Commissioner of Income-tax v. Ogale Glass Works Ltd., 430, 431, 841
Commissioner of Income-tax v. P.M. Rathod, 840, 841
Commissioner of I.R. v. Morris, 527
Commissioner of Port Trust of Calcutta v. General Trading Corpn., 793, 817, 823, 824
Commissioner for Railways v. Avrom Investments Ltd. 469, 1106
Commissioner of Rashira Municipality v. Anil Kumar Mustaffi, 945
Commissioner of Taxes (Queensland) v. Campin, 84, 967
Commissioner for Wealth Tax v. Vyayaba Dowagar Maharani of Bhavnagar, 26, 299, 371
Commins v. Scott, 1007
Commonwealth Portland Cement Co. v. Weber, 776
Commonwealth Trust Co. v. Akotey, 588, 821
Compagnie Armenent Maritine S.A. v. Compagine Tunisienne de Navigation S.A., 11
Compagnie Algerienne de Meuriere v. Kantana Soc. etc. 114, 115
Condogianis v. Guardian Insurance Co., 185
Connally v. Consumers Cordaga Co., 288
Connors Bros. Ltd. v. Bernard Connors, 310
Connors Bros. Ltd. v. Connors, 329
Conquest v. Ebbetts, 664
Consolidated Co. v. Curtis & Sons, 912
Consterdine v. Smaine, 200
Continental Drug Co. v. Chemoids & Industries ltd., 340
Controller v. Aminchand, 559
Conveys v. Morris, 802
Cooch Bihar Commercial Co. v. Union of India, 782

Cooden E. C. Ltd. v. Stanford, 679, 681, 682, 683
Cook v. Addison, 791
Cook v. Deeks, 834
Cook v. Lister, 530
Cook v. S. 631, 652, 667, 669, 672
Cooke v. Clayworth, 133, 134
Cooke v. Eshelby, 922
Cooke v. Oxley, 84, 370
Cook v. Swinfen, 646
Cooke v. Wilson, 912
Coope v. Twynam, 764
Cooper v. Cooper, 119
Cooper v. Joel, 725
Cooper v. London & Brighton Railway Co., 707
Cooper v. Phibbs, 146, 212, 213, 214, 218, 224
Cooper v. Willomat, 790
Co-operative Commission Shop Ltd. v. Udham Singh, 761
Co-operative Hindustan Bank Ltd. v. Surendra Nath De, 809, 813
Cooverji v. Bhimji, 343
Cooverji v. Mawji, 814
Cooverjee Bhoja v. Rajendra Nath, 616, 621
Coppin v. Craig, 919
Coppin v. Walker, 919
Coral India v. Joseph, 1070
Coringa Oil Co. v. Koegler, 336, 337, 343
Cornfoot v. Fowke, 931
Cornwall v. Hawkins, 318
Corocraft v. Pan American Airways, 9
Corporation of Birmingham v. Perry Barr Stadium Ltd., 1091
Corporation of Calcutta v. Hindustan Construction Ltd., 600
Corporation of Madras v. Kothandapani Naidu, 552, 553, 593
Cort v. Ambergate Railway Company, 387, 402
Cory v. Thomes Iron Works, 623, 637
Cory Bros. & Co. v. Owners of the "Mecca", 492, 493
Cos. v. Phillips Industries Ltd., 646
Cosling v. Gaskell, 862
Costline v. Dant and Russell Inc. 476
Costa Rica R. Co. v. Forwood, 888
Cottage Club Estates v. Woodside Estates Co. (Amersham) Ltd., 380
Cottrill v. Steyning & Little Hampton, 635, 664
Couchman v. Hill, 186
Coulls v. Bagots Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd., 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 38, 39, 993
Coulthart v. Clementson, 92, 735
Coults Co. v. Browns Lecky, 730
Council of the City of Sydney v. West, 69, 73
Countess of Warwick S.S. & Co. v. Le Nickel S.A., 466
Coupe Co. v. Maddick, 788
Court & Russel Inc., 476
Court of Wards Dada Siba v. Dharam Dev Chand, 471
Courtney & Fairbairn Ltd. v. Tolaini Brothers (Hotels) Ltd., 28
Coutts & Co. v. Brown-Leeky, 729
Couturier v. Hastie, 211, 214, 219, 220, 838
Cowan v. O'Connor, 83
Coward v. Motor Insurance Bureau, 102
Cowasji v. Official Assignee, 811
Cowell v. Simpson, 805, 901
Cowey v. Liberian Operation Ltd., 502
Cox v. Bruce, 856
Cox v. Phillips Industries Ltd., 645
Cox v. Prentice, 935
Cox v. The Governors of Bishop Cotton's School, 9
Coxhead v. Mullis, 128
C.P. Automobile Engineering Co. v Ramchandra, 544
Crabb v. Arun Oustruct Council, 520, 527
Craddock v. Hunt, 1038
Crage v. Fry, 630
Cragoe v. Jones, 741
Crane v. Hageman-Harris & Co., 1041
Craine v. Colonial Mutual Fire Insurance Co. Ltd. 446, 512, 518, 519
Cranleigh Precision Engineering Ltd. v. Bryant, 16, 324, 410, 1129
Craven Ellis v. Cannors Ltd. 61, 62, 537, 549, 553, 555, 556, 557, 564, 565, 576, 577, 593
Crawley v. Luchmee Ram, 340
Crears v. Hunter, 50, 105
Credition Gas Co. v. Credition Urban Distt. Council, 503, 509, 660
Creet v. Seth & Seth, 740
Cremer v. General Carriers S.A., 667
Cricklewood Property Investment Trust Ltd. v. Leightons Investment Trust Ltd., 465, 469, 470, 480
Cristopher Hill Ltd. v. Ashington Peggeries Ltd., 638
Croft v. Lumley, 826
Crofton v. Ormsby, 1020, 1021
Crofter Hand Woven etc. Co. v. Veitch, 832
Croome v. Lediard, 973
Cropper v. Cook, 852
Crowhurst v. Laverack, 49
Crowther v. Shannon Motor Co., 189
Crydon Gas Co. v. Dickinson, 738
Crythorne v. Swinburne, 755, 758, 765
Crowther v. Farrer, 575
Cull v. Herilage Mills Ltd., 639
Cullianji Sangjibhoy v. Raghowji Vijpal, 893
Cullinane v. British "Rema" Mfg. Co., 629, 631, 644
Cumber v. Wane, 511
Cummins Diesel Sales and Supply Ltd. v. D.G. Suppliers and Disposal, 96
Cummings v. London Bullion Co. Ltd., 390
Cundy v. Le Coeq, 630
Cundy v. Lindsay, 141, 179, 822
Cunliffe v. Blackburn Building Society, 899
Cunningham & Co. re, 856
Cur. Aminkhan v. Amerjan, 274
Curio Guarantee Corpn. Ltd. v. Mccallum, 378
Curl Brothers v. Wabster, 327
Currie v. Misa, 24
Currie v. Rennick, 189, 207
Currimbhai v. Ahmadali, 836
Currimbhoy Co. v. Creet, 95, 97, 135
Curtaile v. London City & Midland Bank, 90
Curtis v. Chemical Cleaning & Dyeing Co., 191, 192, 193
Curtis v. Williamson, 923
Curtis Moffat Ltd. v. Wheeler, 93
Curwen v. Milburn, 901
Cusac v. London Corpn., 469
Cuthbert v. Robarts Lubbock & Co., 800
Cutler v. Wandsworth Stadium Ltd., 1111
Cutler v. Powell, 377, 397, 464, 564, 895

Cutter v. Powell, 484
Cutts v. Brown, 1007
Czarnikow Ltd. v. Kbufos, 621, 639
Czarnikow Ltd. v. Centrala Handlu Zagramiozn-ego Rolinpex, 20

D.L.F. United (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Pt. Prem Rag, 538
D.S. Bist v. S.K. Chaturvedi, 541
D. Ramachandra Reddy v. D. Kantareddy, 1074, 1077
D'Almedia Arujo Luda v. Becker & Co. Ltd., 675
D'Arcy v. Tamar Rail & Co., 839
D. John Peards v. G. Pinto, 491
Dada v. Babaji, 3
Dada Siva's Case, 460
Dadabhoy v. Pestonji, 296
Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. v. Bird & Co. 496
Dady v. Madhuram, 355
Dag v. Singleton, 1033
Dagadbhai v. Sakharam, 944
Dagdu v. Bhana, 1041
Daglish v. Jarvie, 184
Dahl v. Nelson Donkin & Co., 410, 454
Dahyabhai Bapulal v. Patan Municipality, 1122
Daily Mirror Newspapers v. Gardner, 1088, 1098
Dakin v. Lee, 565
Dakshina Mohun Roy v. Saroda Mohun Roy, 569
Dalchand v. Seth Hazarimal, 871
Dalmia, Jain & Co. v. Kalyanpur Lime Works, 1032
Dalsukh Nathmal v. Motilal Balchand, 430
Dalsukh M. Pancholi v. The Guarantee Life & Employment Insurance Co. Ltd., 369
Dalsukhram v. Charles De Bretton, 277
Damodar v. Atmaram, 809, 823
Damodhar v. The State of Bombay, 962
Damodar Das v. Muhammad Husain, 745, 749
Damodar Das v. Sheo Ram Das, 891
Damodar Mudaliar v. Secretary of State for India, 579, 580, 581, 586, 593
Damodar Paints (P) Ltd. v. Indian Oil Corporation, 722
Damodar Shah v. Union of India, 95, 96
Damodar Valley Corporation v. Kar, 499
Damodar Valley Corporation v. State of Bihar, 771
Damodra Naidu v. Thiru Pursundari, 1120
Dan v. Sensmal, 395
Danby v. Coutts, 848
Dandkhan v. Chandulal, 1117
Daneyi Gurumurty v. Raghu Podhan, 1055, 1078
Daniel v. Adams, 554
Daniel v. Mariamma, 121
Daniels v. Davidson, 1007
Danish Mercantile Bank v. Beaumont, 865
Dan Kuer v. Sarla Devi, 29
Dant v. Bennet, 157
Danto Bhaskararao v. C.V.K. Rao, 102
Danube and Black Sea Rly. v. Xeroz, 397, 399
Danziger v. Thompson, 926
Dara Shahpurji v. Askaraj Begum, 278
Darbari Lal v. Mahbub Alikhan, 755
Darbishire v. Warran, 641
Darab Kaur v. State of Bihar, 595
Dargavarapu v. Rampratapu, 503
Darling Ladies Wear v. Hickey, 788
Darnley v. L.C. & D.R. Co., 501
Darnney v. Proprietors etc. of L.C.D. Ry., 512
Darshan Lal v. Harkesh Singh, 1104, 1105
Darshan Ram v. Khair Din, 746
Daruwala Bros (Pvt.) Ltd. v. C.I.T., 832
Darwen & Pearce, 738
Daryappah v. Fernands, 1090
Das v. Jai Kishen Das, 275
Dasarath Gayen v. Satyanarayan Ghose, 297, 349, 974, 1026, 1027, 1028
Das Bank Ltd. v. Kali Kumari Debi, 744
Das-Ishar Das v. Ram Nath, 434
Dasharathi Ghose v. Khondkar Abdul Hammad, 491
Das Ram Chowdhury v. Tirtha Nath Das, 1082
Dattaram v. Vinayak, 122, 532
Dattatraya v. Shakuntala Bai, 1064
Datubhai v. Abubaker, 711
Daula v. Gonda, 306
Daulat v. Gulabrao, 159
Daulat Ram v. Balak Ram, 886
Daulat Ram v. Dharam Chand, 333
Daulat Ram v. Punjab National Bank, 421
Daulat Ram v. Punjab State, 348
Daulat Ram v. Somnath, 303
Daulatram Dwarakadas v. B.B. & C.I. Ry., 817
Dave Ramashankar Jivatram v. Bai Kailashgauri, 965, 1028
Davidson v. Cooper, 505, 507
David v. Thomas, 690
David Tayler v. Barnett, 247
Davies v. Collins, 73
Davies v. D., 316
Davies v. Foreman, 1121, 1128
Davies v. Humphreys, 764
Davies v. Liverpool Corpn., 650
Davies v. London and Provincial Marine Insurance Co., 164, 760
Davies v. Otty, 543
Davies v. Sweet, 515, 530, 837, 848
Davis v. Cundasami Mudali, 512, 514, 530
Davis v. Foot, 883
Davis v. Howard, 902
Davis v. Manug Shew Co., 176, 1023
Davis Contractors Ltd. v. Fareham Urban Distt Council, 102, 222, 468, 472, 474, 475, 476, 478 451, 452, 454, 455, 461, 463, 703
Davlatsing v. Pandu, 490
Davlatsingh v. Pandu, 291
Davys v. Richardson, 934
Dawarika v. Bagawati, 815
Dawidson v. Donaldson, 923
Dawlat Ram v. Jiwan Mal, 815
Daw Nyun v. Maungh Nyi Pu, 130
Dawood v. Vullubhdas, 6
Dawood Rowther v. S.I. Ry. Co., 340
Dawood Tar Mahomed v. Queens Land Insuranc Co. Ltd., 338, 339, 471
Daw Po v. U. Po Hmyin, 40
Dawson v. Rounac Zamani Begum, 1116
Dawson Ltd. v. Bonnin, 184, 185
Dawson's Bank Ltd. v. Nippon Menkwa Kabushiki Kaisha, 515, 516, 1019, 1021
Day v. Mclea, 216, 414, 515, 516, 518, 529
Day v. Singleton, 662, 663
Dayabhai & Co. v. C.I.T., 239
Dayabhai Dipchand v. Dullabhram Dayaram, 387
Dayabhai Dipchand v. Maniklal Vrijbhukan, 387, 434
Dayabhai Tribhovandas v. Lakhmichand Panachand, 351, 358, 359, 366, 539, 540, 546

Daya Ram v. Murli Dhar, 357
Daya Shankar v. Mohammed Ibrahim, 1065
Dayle v. Olby (Iron mongus) Ltd., 203
D.B. South Canara v. Santhappa Naick, 475
D. Cawasji & Co. v. State, 601
D & C Builders Ltd. v. Rees, 526, 528, 529
D.C. Thomason & Co. Ltd. v. Deakin, 1098
Debendham v. Mellon, 844, 845
Debendranath v. Sakhilal, 440
Debendra Nath Dutt v. Adm. Gen. of Bengal, 228, 731, 760
Debenham v. Ox, 263
Debenham v. Sawbridge, 218
Deb Narayan Dutt v. Ramaadan Mandal, 30
De Bernardy v. Harding, 555
Debi Churn v. Issur Chunder, 953
Debidin v. Gaya Pershad, 813, 815
Debi Dayal Sahoo v. Thakuria Bhau Pertap, 281
Debi Das v. Nirupat, 423
Debi Prasad v. Bhagwati Prasad, 305
Debi Prasad v. Chhotey Lal, 161
Debi Prasad v. Ram Ghulam, 306
Debi Prasad v. Smt. Macka, 1052
Debi Prasad v. Rupram, 234
Debi Prasad & Sons v. Union of India, 18, 19, 99
Debi Prasad Kandelwal & Sons v. Union of India, 114, 595
Debi Sahai v. Ganeshi lal, 358
Debi Sahai v. Ganga Sahai, 176, 701
Deb Kumar v. Anath Bandhu, 276
Debnarayan Dutt v. Chunilal Ghose, 30, 32, 33, 40, 500, 596
Debnath v. Chunilal, 1020
De Bussche v. Alt, 857, 858, 860, 861, 862, 890
De Comas v. Prost, 871, 872
De Cicco v. Schweitzer, 53
Decrowall International S.A. v. Practitioners in Harkeling Ltd., 399
Dee D. Beanland v. Hurst, 507
Deep Chandra v. Sajjad Ali Khan, 97
Deenanath v. Chunilal, 976
Deepchand Mini v. Ticamchand Mini, 680
Deep Narayan Sinha v. Dinnath Singh, 441
Deering v. Earl of Winchelsea, 579
Deers Wall International S.A. v. Practitioners in Marketing Ltd., 326
Degamber v. Kallynath, 885
Dehyabhai Chimanbhai v. Babulal Himmatlal, 1013
De Gorter v. Attenborough, 819
D.E. Kasisah v. N.T. Engineer, 771
Dekhari Tea Co. v. Assam Bengal Railway Co., 778
De La Bere v. Pearson Ltd., 308, 631, 652
De La Chanmette v. Bank of England, 899
Delhi & London Bank v. Hunter, 761
Delhi Cloth Mills Co. Ltd. v. Kanhia, 444
Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. Ltd. v. Harnam Singh, 12
Delhi Cloth & General Mills Ltd. v. K.L. Kapur, 114
Delhi Gate Service v. Caltex (India) Ltd., 1111
Dellas v. Kourtessis, 835
Delhi Gramani v. Ramachandran, 1045
De Mattor v. Gibson, 990, 1130
Dennalh v. Malvi Moody, 678
Dennant v. Skinner, 141
Denne v. Light, 1024, 1025
Denman v. Brise, 469
Dennis & Co. Ltd. v. Munn, 232
Dennis Reed Ltd. v. Goody, 451
Denny v. Hancock, 1006
Denny Mott & Dickson v. James B. Fraser & Co. Ltd., 474, 480, 451, 454, 461
Den of Airlie S.S. Co. Ltd. v. Mitsui & Co. Ltd., 1099
Deno Nath v. Nibaran Chandra, 680, 692, 694
Dent v. Bennet, 152
Denton v. G.N.R. Co., 105
Deo v. Narayan, 914
Deojit v. Pitambar, 345
Deoki v. Jwala Prasad, 1063
Deokali Koer v. Kedar Nath, 1057, 1058, 1060, 1059, 1065, 1072, 1080
Deo Kuer v. Sheo Prasad Singh, 1074, 1077
Deoraj Tewari v. Indrasan Tewari, 305
Depak Datt Chaudhary v. Secretary of State, 728
Deputy Commissioner v. Har Narain, 275, 610
Dering v. Earl of Winchilsea, 579, 764
Derry v. Peek, 182, 186, 187
Desai Himatsingji v. Bhavabhai, 568, 584, 585
Dasarath v. Sattyanarayanan, 1027, 1028
Deshpande v. Arvind Mills Co. Ltd., 315, 319, 322, 1127, 1128
Desikhacharvulu v. Narasimhacharvulu, 17
Deslandes v. Gregory, 911
De Souza v. Daphtary, 1002
Des Raj v. Concord of India Insurance Co., 32, 42
Deutsche Bank v. Humphrey, 391
Devan Manmohan Lal v. Pearevlal, 500
Devaraja v. Ramakrishniah, 30
Devaraj Urs v. Ramakrishniah, 40
Devarayan v. Mutturaman, 283
Devendrakumar v. Gulabsingh, 789, 801, 802, 803, 806
Devendra Basappa Doddannaveer v. Smt. Sonubai Tuljansa Kasandlal, 443, 1032
Devendra Dasappa v. Smt. Sonibai Tuljansa, 386
Devendra Nath Dutt v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 731
Devendra Prasad v. Surendra Prasad, 690
Devji Shivji v. Karsandas Ranji, 309
Devi Dayal v. Narain Singh, 257
Devi Dial v. Sundar Das, 546
Devi Das v. Sant Singh Mohan, 745
Devidas v. Yeotmal Central Bank Ltd., 8
Devidatt v. Shriram, 105
Devilal v. Himmat Ram, 421
Devi Prasad v. Mehdi Hasan, 559
Devi Prasad v. Secretary of State, 589
Devi Prasad v. Union of India, 113
Devi Sahai v. Union of India, 581
Devi Singh v. Bhim Singh, 950
Devshi v. Bhikamchand, 423, 881
Dewan Chand v. Union of India, 966, 1096
Dewan Manmohanlal v. Pearylal, 442
Dewas v. Fitch, 322, 324, 326
Dey v. Mclea, 414
Deyong v. Shenburn, 115
D. Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas, 11, 12
D. John Picardo v. G. Pinto, 491
Dhadi Dalai v. Basudeb, 1011
Dhallu v. Jiwan Singh, 279
Dhanaji Pasu v. Karamshi Varjang, 1019, 1020
Dhanipal Das v. Maneshar Baksh Singh, 174, 177, 210
Dhani Ram v. Frontier Bank Ltd., 813, 814
Dhanlaxmi G. Shah v. Sushila S.P. Masurakar,

1106
Dhanmal Marwari v. Messrs. Janki Das Baijnath, 340
Dhanna Munda v. Mst. Kosila Banian, 540, 548
Dhanna Singh v. Nami, 1057
Dhanomal Parsram v. P. Kuppuraj, 734
Dhanpat Mal v. Naimat Rai, 413
Dhanpat Rae v. Allahabad Bank, 846, 856
Dhanraj Aggarwala v. Union of India, 772
Dhanrajgeri Narsinghji v. Tata Sons, 666
Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co., 10, 11, 12, 16, 18, 349, 350
Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Khimji & Co., 19, 248, 253
Dhanraj Mill v. Narsingh Prasad, 404
Dhan Singh v. Badri Parshad, 606
Dhanukdhari v. Nathima, 288
Dhanu Lal v. Kuldip Narayan, 656
Dhanwanti v. Ramai, 1075
Dhanvalaxmi Rice Mills etc. v. Commissioner of Supplies, 226
Dhapo v. Ram Chandra, 972
Dharamaraja Iyer v. State of Kerala, 605
Dharamchand v. Jhamsa, 291
Dharam Chand Soni v. Sushilkumar Chhakravarti, 678, 702
Dharam Das v. Manik Lal, 106
Dharam Vir v. Jagan Nath, 121
Dhari Mal v. Kanshi Ram, 746
Dharmeshwar Kalita v. Union of India, 557, 590
Dharangdhara Chemical Works v. State of Saurashtra, 832, 834
Dharanidhar v. Kanhji Sahay, 540
Dharnidhar v. Kanji Sahai, 283
Dharni Dhar v. Chandra Sekhar, 420
Dharshi Monji v. Chandulal, 383
Dharwar Bank v. Mahamed Hayat, 285
Dhian Singh v. Union of India, 794, 795, 815
Dhiraj Kuar v. Bikramjit Singh, 259, 301
Dhirajlal Vithalji v. S.V. Dickson, 246
Dhoddiah Chettiar v. Madukkrai Estates Tea Factory, 237
Dholidas v. Fulchand, 282
Dhondbhat v. Atmaram, 23
Dhondu v. Narayan, 6
Dhoorjeti v. Dhoorjeti, 977
Dhrub Chhotalal v. Gulabray Pragji, 356
Dhubei Charan v. Official Liquidator, 584, 585
Dhumee v. Sevenoaks, 410
Dhunjibhoy v. Lisboa, 1103
Dhunjisha v. Fforde, 428
Dhuramsey v. Ahmedbhai, 547, 548
Dhuronidhar v. Agra Bank, 1123
Dhuri Cooperative Society v. Budharam, 238
Diala Ram v. Sargha, 152, 175
Diamber Co's Case, 272
Diamond v. Campbell Jones, 635
Dibbins v. D., 441
Dibbins v. Dibbins, 864
Dicas v. Stockley, 900
Dick v. Dhunji Jaitha, 415, 416, 418
Dick Benlay Production Ltd. v. Harold Smith (Motors) Ltd., 186
Dickenson v. Abel, 24, 56
Dickinson v. Dodds, 92
Dickson v. Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, 315
Dies & Another v. British & International Mining & Finance Corporation Ltd., 687, 733
Dieson v. Sampson, 646
Di Fernando v. Simon Smits & Co. Ltd., 390, 621
Digambar Narain v. Harendra, 515
Digbijai Nath v. Tribeni Nath Tewari, 666
Dilbar Sarkar v. Joysri Kumari, 680, 709
Dil Mohammad v. Sain Das, 744
Dilwar Ali v. A.P. Muslim Waqf Board, 864
Dimmock v. Hallett, 187, 189
Dina Bandhu Saha v. Abdul Latif Molla, 930
Dina Nath Dutta v. Mahavir, 934, 443, 618
Dingle v. Hare, 852
Dinkarrao v. Narayen, 243, 379
Dinkerrai v. Sukh Dayal, 426
Din Muhammad v. Badrinath, 174
Dipchand v. Abhechand, 110, 515
Dipchand Kundanmal v. Manakchand Multanmal, 1065
Diplock Estate, re, 598, 601, 611
Dip Narain Rai v. Dipan Rai, 696
Dip Narain Singh v. Nageshwar Prasad, 241, 262, 292, 633
Discount Co. Ltd. v. Gall, 84
Discounts Records Ltd. v. Barclay Bank Ltd., 722, 723
District Board, Jhelum v. Harichand, 287
District Board of Ramnad v. Mahomed Ibrahim, 27
Dist. Board of Tanjor v. Vithilinga Chetti, 962
Dist. Council, Wardha v. Anna Daulat Rao, 539
District Shahjahanpur v. Kailash Nath Kapur, 1108
Diwan Singh v. Inderjeet, 1088
Dixon v. Clark, 384, 385
Dixon v. Stansfeld, 804
Dixon v. Steel, 757
Dixon v. Winch, 909
D.L.F. & Construction Co. v. Brij Mohan Shah, 346
Dobersek v. Patrizza, 284
Doc D. Nash v. Buch, 512
Dodd Properties (Kent) Ltd. v. Canterbury City Council, 674
Dodson v. Downey, 966, 982
Doe D. Roberts v. R., 543, 544
Doe D. Beanland v. Hirst, 507
Doherty v. Allman, 1090
Doleman & Sons v. Ossett Corporation, 343
Dominion Coal Co. v. Dominion Iron & Coal Co., 965, 990
Dominion of India v. Adam Haji, 794
Dominion of India v. Bhikraj Jaipuria, 440, 443, 444, 445, 479, 530
Dominion of India v. B.L. Batt, 618
Dominion of India v. Ganga Prasad Gopal Narain, 782
Dominion of India v. Gaya Prasad, 72
Dominion of India v. Netai Chandra, 618
Dominion of India v. Preety Kumar Ghose, 537, 581, 592
Dominion of India v. Ram Rakh Mal & Sons, 443
Dominion of India v. Rupchand, 338
Dominion of India v. Sohan Lal, 989, 1121
Donald v. Suckling, 190, 955
Donmar Products Ltd. v. Hart, 1088
Donnell v. Bennett, 1130
Donoghue v. Stevenson, 668
Doolabdas Pettambudass v. Ramboll Thackoorsedoss, 350
Dooply v. Chotalal, 242

Doorga Singh v.Sheo Pershad. 287
Doorman v. Jenkins. 776
Dorabji v. Muncherji. 770
Dorabji Tata v. Bance. 366
Doraisami v. Vaithilinga. 307
Dorasinga v. Arunachalam. 425
Doraswami v. Arunachala. 27
Doraiswami Iyengar v. United India Life Insurance Co. Ltd., 1111
Dori Lal v. Patti Ram. 572. 587
Dorothy v. Williams. 748
Doshi Mohanlal Durlabhji v. Sarvekanda Municipality. 1114
Doshi Talakhi v. Shah Ujamsi Velsi. 352. 353. 358. 363. 364. 365
Douglas Norman & Co. re. 805
Douglas v. Rhyl Urban District Council. 554
Dowing v. Betjemann. 965
Downman v. Williams. 911
Downsett v. Reid. 1023
D.P.P. v. Kent & Sussex Contractors. 932
Dr. Atul Khari v. Miss Sheelajames. 1119
Dr. Bal Sarup v. Lt. Col. Lakhbir Singh. 1017
Dr. Bool Chand v. Kurukshetra University. 1083. 1084
Dr. Dutt v. University of Delhi. 983. 986
Dredgen Leasboch v. Steamship Edison. 649
Drennan v. Star Paving Co., 518
Dresser v. Norwood. 908
Drew v. Nunn. 876
Dr. Gopal v. Trimbar. 27
Dr. H.S. Rikhy v. New Delhi Municipal Committee. 542. 558. 594.
Dr. Jiwanlal v. Brij Manoharlal. 96
Dr. Jiwanlal v. Brij Mohan Mehra. 978. 1020
Drimmie v. Davies. 33. 34
Drinkwater v. Goodwin. 803. 852. 919
Drive Yourself Hire Co. Ltd. v. Strutt. 32. 246
Dr. Lakshmanswami Mudaliar v. Life Insurance Corporation. 27. 295
D.R. Mehta v. The Plate Dealers Association. 472. 473
Dr. Mukand Lal v. Municipal Committee Simla. 983. 984
Dr. Narayana v. Ba Vaidyamurthi. 1084
Dr. S. Dutt v. University of Delhi. 983. 984. 1070. 1083
Drummond v. Muirhead. 900
Dubien Steel Products Inc. v. Bankers Trust Co. 723
Duboski v. Goldstein. 315
Duchess of Argyll v. Druke of Argyll. 326. 1128
Dugdale v. Levering. 215
Du Jardin v. Beadman. 822
Duke of Leeds v. Earl of Amherst. 1118
Dukhan Ram v. Ram Nand Singh. 1074
Dulabhai v. State of Madhya Pradesh. 1114
Dula Ram v. Akhey Raj. 242
Dular Chand v. Balram Das. 422
Dulari v. Vallabhdas. 282
Dhullabhdas v. Lakshmandas. 692. 697
Dulichand v. Ramkishen Singh. 609
Dumeril v. Ruddin. 398
Duncan v. Hill. 901
Duncan Fox & Co. v. North & South Wales Bank. 485. 722
Duncan Fox & Co. v. Schrempft. 755
Duncuft v. Albrecht. 966
Dungarmall v. Sambhu Charan. 47
Dungate v. Lee. 360
Dunichand Rateriya v. Bhuwalka Bros., 361
Dunk v. George Walter & Sons. 661
Dunkirt Colliery Co. v. Lever. 640. 641
Dunlop v. Higgins. 81
Dunlop v. Lambert. 619. 836
Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. New Garage & Motor Co., 653. 684. 685.686. 688. 681. 682
Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd., 24. 29. 30. 31. 32. 33. 34. 38. 43
Duncan v. Hill. 901
Dunmore v. Alender. 84
Dunn v. Bucknall Bros., 620
Dunn v. Macdonald. 925
Dunne v. English. 891
Duraikannoo v. Saravana Chettiar, 446. 961
Duraiswami v. United India life Assurance Co. Ltd., 944
Durell v. Pritchand. 1117
Durgabai v. Saraswatibai. 818
Durga Bakhsh Singh v. Mirza Muhammad Ali Beg. 133
Durga Charan v. Akbari Das. 129
Durga Charan Chandra v. Ambica Charan Chandra. 568
Durgadevi Bhagat v. J.B. Advani & Co., 115. 450
Durga Devi Bhagat v. S.D. Advani & Co., 473. 476. 479
Durga Parshad v. Jeetar Mal. 1116
Durga Prasad v. Baldeo. 26. 301
Durga Prasad v. Deep Chand. 1000. 1011. 1012
Durgaprasad v. Lilawati. 989. 1012
Durga Prasad v. Paldem Lama. 941
Durga Priya Chaudhury v. Durga Poda Roy. 735
Durham Fancy Goods Ltd. v. Jackson (Michael) Fancy Goods Ltd., 527
Du Santoy v. Symes. 962
Dustel v. Stevenson. 682
Dutton v. Marsh. 911
Dutton v. Poole. 29
Dwarka Prasad v. Mst. Jasoda. 1074
Dwarakadas Co. v. Dularam. 113
Dwarkanath v. The Rivers Steam Navigation Co. Ltd., 770. 786
Dwarakaprasad v. Miss K.F. Burns. 1005
Dwarkaprasad Poddar v. Kathleen Burns. 1032
Dwarika v. Bagawati. 709. 815
Dwarika Nath v. Priya Nath. 40
Dwarkadas Nayan v. Dwarkadas Sehgal. 839
Dwijendra v. Manmohan De. 974
Dwijendra Nath Mullick v. Gopiram Govindaram. 275. 974
Dyaviah v. Shivamma. 539. 546. 547. 1055
Dy. Commissioner Agricultural Income Tax v. Alwaye Agencies. 832
Dy. Commissioner Rae Bareli v. Har Narayan.275
Dyer v. Hargrave. 205
Dykes' Estate. re. 1009
Dyster v. Ramdall. 764

E.A. Evans v. Muhammad Ashraf. 263
Eads v. Williams. 1019
Eagleton v. E.I.R. Co., 797
Earl Beauchamp v. Winn. 212
Earl of Darnley v. Proprectous etc. of L.C.D. Ry. 512
East Asiatic Co. v. Rugnath. 346
Eastham v. Newcastle United Football Club Ltd., 317

Eastham Corp. v. Bernard Stanby & Sons, 652, 621
Eastham (Inspector of Taxes) v. Leigh & London & Provincial Properties Ltd., 28
East India Co. v. Oditchun Paul, 339, 340
East India Co. v. Tritton, 935
East India Commercial Co. v. Collector of Customs, 208
East India Ry. Co. v. Bunyad Ali, 784
East India Ry Co. v. Kalidas, 777
East India Ry Co. v. Kanak Behari, 781
East India Ry Co. v. Nilkanta Roy, 781
East India Ry Co. v. Shiv Prasad, 781
East India Trading Co. v. Badat & Co., 408
Eastern Corporation v. Bernard Stanley & Sons Ltd. 638, 644
Eastern Distributors v. Goldring, 140, 195
Eastern Mercantile Bank v. Philip, 275, 293
Eastern Mortgage & Co. v. Muhammad Fazlal Karim, 567
Eastern Tea Estate v. Silchar Municipality, 1109
Eastern Traders (I) Ltd. v. Punjab National Bank, 862, 878
Eastham v. New Castle United Football Club, 320, 322, 1128
Eastwood v. Kenyson, 294, 302
Easwara v. Krishna Prabhu, 1102
Ebrahim v. Austin, 353
Ebrahim Haji Yakub v. Chunilal, 876
Eccles v. Bryant, 93
Ede v. Kand Nath Shaw, 505
Edelstein v. Schuler & Co.,
Edgar v. Fowler, 873
Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 179, 187, 190, 206
Edler v. Auerback, 289
Edmunds v. Bushell, 846, 847, 927
Edmunds v. Merchant's Despatch Transportation Co., 144
Edmunds v. Willingford, 567
Edridge v. R.D. Sethna, 404, 434, 996, 1000
E.D. Sassoon & Co. v. Commissioner of Income-tax, 895
E.D. Seassoon & Co. v. Ram Dutt Ramkishew Das, 1080, 1113
Eduljee v. Cafe John Bros., 799
Edward Owen Engineering Co. v. Barcleys Bank International Ltd., 722, 724
Edwards v. Havill, 855
Edwards v. Holiding, 934
Edwards v. Skyways Ltd., 95, 102, 107, 348
Edwards v. Society of graphic and Allied Traders, 643, 644, 661
Edwards v. West Herts Group Hospital Management Committee, 115
Egan v. Egan, 1110
Egan v. Guardians of Kensington Union, 670
Egan & Staines Electricity Co. v. Egham Urban Distt. Council, 482
Egbert v. National Crown Bank, 740
Egel v. Drogemuller, 41
Ehrman v. Bartholomew, 316, 322, 333, 1127, 1128
Elaya Nayar v. Krishna Battar, 825
Elbinger Actien-Gesellschaft v. Armstrong, 615
Elbinger Actiengesellschaft v. Claye, 8, 615, 913
Elden v. Koppe, 647
Elder v. Auerback, 14
Elder, Dempster & Co. Ltd. v. Paterson Zochonis & Co. Ltd., 43
Elder Velvet & Silk Mills (P) Ltd. v. Anant Ram Whig 441
Eldin v. Latimer Clark Maarhead 989
Electronics Industries Ltd. v. Davis Jones Ltd. 510
Eley v. Positive Government Security Life Insurance Co., 302
Elhirajulu Naidu v. Chinnikreshnan Chettiar 304, 305
Elian v. Matsa 723
Elias v. Gobind, 896
Eliason v. Henshaw, 103
Eliot v. Klinger, 1095
Ellen v. Topp, 562
Elle smere v. Wallace 351
Elliott v. Crutchely, 449, 560
Elliott v. Pearson, 97
Elliot Steam Tug Co. v. Shipping Controller, 642
Ellis v. Emanuel, 28
Ellis v. Goulton, 934
Ellis v. Pond, 902
Ellis v. Thompson, 932
Ellis & Co. v. Dixon, 753
Elmdene Estate Ltd. v. White, 233
Elphick v. Barnes, 369
Elphinstone v. Monkland Iron & Steel Co. 681, 682
Elton Cop Dyeing Co. v. Broadbent & Son Ltd., 515
Emerald Construction Co. Ltd. v. Lowthian, 1098
Emery v. Emery, 253
Emil Adolf Zippel v. Kapur & Co., 434, 623
Emile Erlanger v. The New Sombrero Phosphate Co. 1022
Emmerson v. Heelis, 853
Emperor v. Jani Hira, 283
Emperor v. Parkash, 803
Emperor of Austria v. Day & Kossuth, 1112
Employees' State Insurance Corporation v. Haji Mohammed Ismail Sahib, 428
Employees State Insurance Corpn. v. Tata Engineering & Locomotive Co., 317
Empress v. Ramzan Ali 1102
Empress Engineering Co., 916
Empress of India Cotton Mills Co. v. Naffer Chunder Roy, 410, 705
Empressa Cubana de Flates v. Lagonest Shipping Co. Ltd. 513
Emu Gravel & Road Metal Co. v. Gibson, 651
Enaetoolah v. Kishen Soondar, 952
Enayatullah v. Jalan T. Co. 771
Endie v. Addison, 94
Endler v. Averback, 627
Engelback, re, 37
Engell v. Fitch, 633, 662, 663
England v. Curling 989
England v. Davidson, 298
England v. Marsden, 567
English v. Dedham Vale Properties Ltd. 881
English Electrical Associated Industries Ltd. v. Patley Pressings, 18
English Hop Growers v. Dering, 333, 682
English, Scottish & Australian Bank Ltd. v. Bank of South Australia, 862
Enrico Furst v. Fisher 529
Entores Ltd. v. Miles Far East Corporation, 79, 82, 83
E.P. Finance Co. Ltd. v. Dooley, 685
Epps v. Rothnie, 926
Equitable Fire & Accident Office v. Ching Wo

Hong, 97
Equitable Life Assurance Society of U.S. v. Reed 264
Equity, Trustees, Executors & Agency Co. Ltd., 160, 162
Erie County Natural Gas & Co. v. Carrol, 653
Erlanger (Emile) v. New Sombrero Phosphat Co. 204, 538, 1048
Errington v. E., 27
Errol Mackay v. Kameshwar Singh, 615, 620
Ertaza Hossein v. Bany Mistry, 953
Erteh Bieber & Co. v. Rio Tinto Co. Ltd., 272 481, 487
Escott v. Thomas, 329
Esdaile v. La Nauza, 849
Eshahuq Molla v. Abdul Bari Haldar, 386
Eshan Kishore v. Haris Chandra, 248
Eshawarayya v. Thakur Devisingh, 429
Eshoor Doss v. Venkata Subba Rao, 353, 363, 364
Esposito v. Bowden, 271, 272, 484
Essappa Chettiar in re, 1122
Esso Petroleum v. Commissioner of Customs & Excise, 59
Esso Petroleum v. Harpers Garage, 307, 319, 320, 324, 327, 230, 331
Esso Petroleum Co. Ltd. v. Mordon, 185, 194
Esso Petroleum Limited v. Mardon, 630
Esswara Reddi v. Venkatachallamma, 1053
Estrange v. F. Graucob Ltd., 76, 77
Eswari Amma v. M.I. Koru, 1020
Etbari v. Bellami, 533
Etwari v. Chandranath, 129
Eubbard v. Vosper, 1109
European and Australian Royal Mail Co. v. Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., 797
Euri country natural gas & Fuel Co. Ltd., Samuel S. Carroll, 616
Evan v. Llewellin, 175
Evan Mashall & Co. Ltd., bertola S.A. 1090
Evans v. Bremridge, 762
Evans v. Edmonds, 178
Evans, E.A. v. Mohd. Ashraf, 263
Evans v. Norris, 999
Evenden v. Guildford City Association Football Club Ltd. 527
Ewin Shank Wa v. U. Po Nyun, 1116
Excise Commissioner of U.P. Allahabad v. Ram Kumar, 522, 523
Executive Committee of Vaish College v. Lakshmi Narain, 986, 987
Exparte Barrel, 979
Exparte Beall, 899, 901
Exparte Bird, 935
Exparte Bishop, 902
Exparte Birmingham Banking Co., 857
Exparte Bright in re Smith, 839
Exparte Burden, 712
Exparte Chalmers, 411
Exparte Danks, 386
Exparte Davies, 797
Exparte Delhasse, 843
Exparte Dixon, 852
Exparte Edwards, 900, 935
Exparte Frampton, 849
Exparte Gomez, 899
Exparte Good, 421, 453
Exparte Harding, 762
Exparte Hubbard, 807
Exparte Kingston, 899
Exparte Lacey, 887
Exparte Mather, 904
Exparte Morrison, 893
Exparte Panmure; 925
Exparte Snowdon, 764
Exparte Stanford, 18
Exparte White, 839, 842, 880
Exparte Whittaker, 179
Exparte Young, 727
Eyre v. Johnson, 469, 480
Ezekial & Co. v. Annoda Charan Sen, 558
Ezekiel v. Carew & Co., 843
Ezekiel Abraham v. Ranijusrav, 467

F. Bhagwandas v. State of M.P., 659
Fabri v. Fabri, 1110
Fadu Jhala v. Gour Mohan Jhala, 951, 955
Fairant v. Barnes, 774
Fairclough Dodd & Jones v. Jantok Ltd. 1062
Fairlena Shipping Corporation v. Adamson, 883
Fairlie v. Fenton, 911
Fairlines Shipping Corporation v. Adamson, 79
Faithful Croft v. Benjamin Lumley, 110
Faiyazuniss v. Bajrang Bahadur Singh, 567
Faki Ibrahim v. Faki Gulam, 1010
Fakirbhai v. Maganlal, 1102, 1069
Fakir Chand v. Akunda, 1074
Fakirchand v. Anund Chunder, 1078
Fakirchand v. Bansilal, 233, 235
Fakirchand Lalchand v. Doolub Govindji, 880
Falck v. Williams, 137
Falcke v. Gray, 956, 963, 1025
Flacke v. Scotish Imperial Co., 563, 564
Fanindra Narain v. Kacheman Bibi, 48
Fanny, The, 856
Fantan v. Holloway, 134
Faqir Bux v. Thakur Prasad, 1074
Faqir Senapati v. Tahsildar Cuttak, 1094
Faramus v. Film Artistes Association, 68, 265, 314, 315
Fardunji v. Jamshedji, 1037
Fariduddin Ahmad v. Murtaza Ali Khan, 1061
Faridunnissa v. Etizad Husain, 964
Farid-un-Nissa v. Mukhtar Ahmad, 169
Farman Ali v. Mohammad Nawaz Khan, 1058
Farnmouth Finance Gacilities v. Attryde, 75
Farquharson Bros. v. King & Co., 588, 821, 934
Farr and Ali v. Nasir Bag, 1102
Farren v. Kemble, 681
Farrow v. Wilton, 376
F.A. Tamplin S.S. Co. Ltd. v. Anglo-Mexican Petroleum Co., 68, 466, 479, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 457
Fateh Chand v. Balkishen Das, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 689, 702, 703, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711
Fatehchand Balkishan Das, 535
Fateh Chand v. Juggilal, 615
Fateh Mohamed v. Gangaram, 305
Fateh Moh. Khan v. Gurbux Singh, 1065, 1082
Fateh Mohammad v. Surja, 306
Fateh Shah v. Babob Shah, 1075
Fateh Singh v. Sanwal Singh, 242
Fathima Bivi v. Sadhakatalla, 1055
Fathuma Bivi v. Hanumantha Rao, 347
Fatiklal Pal v. Kalepada Das, 941
Fatima Fauzia & Another v. Syed-ul-Mult, 57
Fatima Khatoon v. Mahomed, 608
Fatma v. Ali Mahomed, 249

Faujmal v. Nathulal, 1019
Faulder v. Rushton, 1100
Faveline Shipping Corporation v. Adamson, 788
Fawcett v. Star Car Sales Ltd. 140, 141, 142, 144, 238
Faweelt and Holmes' Contract, 825
Fazal v. Mangaldas, 201
Fazalbhai v. Dominion of India, 618
Fazal Hussain v. Jiwan Ali, 491
Fazalad Din v. Panchanan Das, 24, 50, 54, 294, 990, 1028
Fazal Elhai v. Muhammad Saeed, 895
Fazal Illahi, v. East India Rly. Co. 635, 906, 928
Fazal Rahim v. Hur Mohammed, 283
F. Badhulal v. F. Shrikisan, 353
Featherston v. Wilkinson, 619
Federal Bank Ltd. v. Gee Varghese, 935
Federal Bank of India v. Somnath, 731
Federal Commerce & Navigation Ltd. v. Morena Alpha Inc., 404, 406
Federal Commerce and Navigation Co. Ltd. v. Tradox Export S.A., 392
Federazine Italiane v. Federal Commerce Co. Ltd. 1041
Feist v. Societe Intercommunale Belge d' Electricity, 393
Fellows v. Fishen 1096
Fellowes & Son v. Fisher, 315
Felthouse v. Bindley, 60, 79, 104
Fender v. St. John Mildmay, 228, 259, 262, 263, 265, 271
Fenn v. Bittleston, 790
Fenn v. Harrison, 846
Feret v. Hill, 179
Ferguson v. Um Chand Boid, 849
Ferguson v. Wilson, 1034
Feroze Din v. Khair Din, 1065
Ferrand v. Bischoffshein, 921
Ferrers v. Robins, 878
Fertilizers Corporation of India v. Domestic Engineering, 1017
Feshar v. Bell, 106, 112
F. Babu Munir Ghulam Sadiq v. N.W.F. Province, 559
F. Basdeo v. F. Dilsukharai, 529
F. Bhagwandas v. State of M.P., 659
F. Buddulal v. F. Srikishan, 353
F. Goldsmith (Sicklesmere) Ltd. v. Baxter, 993, 1007
F. Hagamilal Ram Prashad v. Bhuralal Ram Narain, 247, 903
Fibosa Spolka Akeyjna v. Fairburn Lawson Combe Ltd., 25, 223, 456, 462, 463, 465, 483, 484, 486, 547, 548, 560, 578, 593, 598, 599, 601
Fielding and Platt Ltd. v. Najjan, 229
Filby v. Honnsell, 94
Film Exchange Ltd. v. Brij Nath Singh, 1062
Filzpatrick v. Michell, 187
Finance v. National Mortgage Bank of Greece, 114
Financing Ltd. v. Baldock, 655, 685
Financings Ltd. v. Stimson, 84, 110, 829
Finch v. Underwood, 371, 443
Findon v. McLaren, 933
Fink v. Buldeo Dass, 869
Finlay, re, 902
Finlay v. Chirney, 379
Finlay v. Kwik Hoo Tong, 629
Finlay, Muir & Co. v. Radhakissen, 637
Finnigen v. Allen, 671
Fir Bank v. Humphreys, 925
Firm Narasingi Vanechand v. Narasayya, 541
Firm Pannalal Jankidas v. Mohanlal, 878, 879, 882
Firm Purshottamdas v. Gulab Khan, 842
Firm Sagarmal v. Bishambar Sahai, 539
Firm S. Brindaban v. Brijlal, 647
Firm Thakurdas v. Mathura Prasad, 826
Firth v. Halloran, 468
Fisher v. Ardeshir, 815
Fisher v. Automobile Finance Co., 800
Fisher v. Bridges, 230
Fisher v. Drewitt, 896
Fisher v. Kamala Naicker, 278
Fisher v. Marsh, 912
Fisher v. Smith, 900
Fisher v. Star Co., 323
Fisher v. The Secretary of State for India, 1057, 1061, 1076
Fisher v. Valde Travers Asphalte Co., 652
Fisher & Co. v. Appollinaris Co., 274
Fitch v. Dewes; 318, 322, 326 328
Fitch v. Snedaker, 108
Fitzgerald v. Leonard, 625, 630
Fitzgerald v. Masters, 510
Fitzherbert v. Mather, 909
Fitz-Holmes v. Bank of Upper India Ltd., 700
F. Kanhayalal v. Dineshwar, 4, 83
F. Kari Poddar v. Harishankar Mills, 680
Flax Lands Developments Ltd. v. Joll, 133
Fleming v. Bank of Newzealand, 865
Fleming v. Koegler, 437
Fletcher v. Bealey, 1107, 1108
Fletcher v. Fletcher, 36
Flight v. Bolland, 1026
Flight v. Booth, 626, 970
Flint v. Bradon, 990
Floydd v. Cheney, 1118, 1129
Flower v. Saddler, 166, 276
F. Mehtab Majid v. State of Madras, 605
F. Murlidhar v. F. Kishori Lal, 829
F. Nanak Chand v. Lal Chand Ganeshi Lal, 812, 814
Foakes v. Beer, 112, 511, 518
Foaminol Laboratories Ltd. v. British Artid Plastics Ltd., 644
Foley v. Classque Coaches Ltd., 94, 330, 554
Folkes v. King, 820, 822
Fong v. Cilli, 92
Forbes v. Jackson, 756
Forbes v. Secretary of State, 609
Ford v. Lotesworth, 426
Ford Motor Co. v. Armstrong, 683
Ford v. Stier, 143
Foreman v. Great Western Rly. Co., 842
Forman & Co. Pty. Ltd. v. The Ship 'Littlesdale" 377, 565, 579
Forsey & Hallebone's Contract, 1005
Forslind v. Bechely-Crundall, 396, 398
Fort Gloster Industries Ltd., v. Sethia Mercantile Private Ltd., 56, 118, 137
Forth v. Simpson, 799, 900
Foster v. Bates, 864
Foster v. Chetty, 491
Foster v. Dawber, 510
Foster v. Driscoll, 232, 254
Foster v. Genowlan Shale Co., 42
Foster v. Hastings Corporation, 990, 1097

Foster v. Mackinnon, 138, 139, 195, 198, 207
Foster v. Robinson, 520, 522, 523
Foster Clark Ltd., Indenture Trusts Re, 410
Forster & Sons Ltd., v. Sugget, 324, 325, 327
Fothergill v. Monarch Air Lines Ltd., 782
Fothergill v. Rowland, 1130
Fountaine v. Carmarthen Ry Co., 842
Fowkes v. Manchester and London Assurance Associating, 135
Fowler v. Bratt, 897
Fowler v. Fowler, 1038, 1040
Fowler v. Lock, 775
Francis v. Municipal Committee of Khalalampur, 983, 984, 985, 1083
Frank Hanser v. Dykes Pty. Ltd. 652
Frank M. McKey v. Maurice Paradise, 903
Fraser v. Evans, 326, 1101, 1108, 1109, 1128
Fraser & Co. v. The Bombay ice Manufacturing Co., 324, 332
Fray v. Voules, 851
Frazer v. Marsh, 855
Frazer v. Jordon, 750
Fredensen v. Rothchild, 1038, 1042
Frederick E. Rose (London) Ltd. v. William H. Pim Jur & Co. Ltd., 215, 216
Freedhoff v. Pomaleff Industries Ltd., 639
Freeman v. Birch, 828
Freeman v. East India Co., 855
Freeth v. Burr, 398, 400, 432, 438
French v. Burr, 404
French v. Gething, 948
French Marine Case, 564
Frith v. Forbes, 804
Frith v. Frith, 871
Frixione v. Tagliaferro, 903
Frost v. Knight, 399, 404, 657, 835
Frost v. Oliver, 855
Fruit & Vegetable Merchants Union v. Delhi Improvement Trust, 830
Fry v. Lane, 159, 176
Fry v. Smellie, 907
F. Shah Chandanmal v. Hazari Lal, 429
Fuentes v. Montis, 819
Fulding & Platt Ltd. v. Nayyar, 254
Fuli Bibi v. Khokhai Mondal, 1055
Fullers Theatres Ltd. v. Musgrove, 626
Fullerton v. ProvincialBank of Ireland, 48, 49
Fullwood v. Akerman, 895
Funkielraut v. Monohan, 445
Furnivall v. Coombes, 916
Furtado v. Rogers, 271
Fust v. Societi Intercommunate Belge d'electriate, 393
Fut Chong v. Manung Po Cho, 787
Futtch Ali v. GanganathRoy, 572
Fuzlur Rahman v. Krishna Prasad, 951
Fyfe v. Arbuthnot, 1056

G., Mr. in the matter of, 281
G.H. Gills & Co. Ltd. v. Morris, 987
G.I.P. Rly. v. Jet Roy Patwari, 785
G & K Laderbach U.K. Ltd. v. Grawley & De Reya, 669
G.L. Kellikar v. State of Kerala, 675
G.M. Contractor v. Gujarat Electricity Board, 118
G. Pillai v. Palani Swami, 441
G.R. Radhakrishnan v. Rani Ammal, 1018
G. Som v. A.M. Bhamia, 361, 362
G.W. Davis v. Maung Shwe & Co., 242
G.W. Insurance Co. v. Cunliffe, 934
G.W. Plowman Ltd. v. Ash, 325
G.W. Rly v. Sutton, 609
Gadd v. Houghton, 911, 913, 915
Gadd v. Thomson, 334
Gaddarmal v. Chandrabhan, 111
Gaddar Mal v. Tata Industrial Bank, 111, 529
Gadigeppa v. Balangauda, 126
Gaffur v. Bhikaray, 1012
Gafur Mohammad v. Mohammade Shariff, 155
Gag Saran v. Narayan Das, 582
Gainda Lal v. Rameshwar Das, 336
Gaison Saham Begum v. Court of Wards, 569
Gajadhar v. Jagannath, 301
Gajadhar Prasad v. Rishabh Kumar, 36
Gajanan v. Moreshwar 4
Gaja Nand v. Srilal, 494
Gajanan Moreshwar v. Moreshwar Madan, 716, 720
Gajedhar Singh v. Hari Singh, 1057
Gajendrasingh v. Durgakumari, 246
G.A. Jolli v. Dominion of India, 635, 640
Gajram Singh v. Kalyan Mal, 492, 493, 495
Galbraith v. Mitchenall Estates Ltd., 198, 689, 690
Galley & Co. v. Appalaswami, 428
Galloway v. Galloway, 218
G. Alluraiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 831
Gambhirmull v. Indian Bank Ltd., 472, 473, 862, 879, 882
Ganapathy v. Muniswami, 307
Ganapathi Mudaliar v. Ponnuswami, 1120
Ganapathy Pillai v. Irudayaswamy Nadar, 556
Ganapatrai Sagarmal v. Union of India, 824
Gandha Korliah v. Janoo Hassan, 483, 560, 456
Gandla v. Sivanappa, 1066
Gandy v. Gandy, 31, 36, 41
Ganesh v. Dasso, 949
Ganesh v. Vishnu, 176
Ganeshchandra Bag v. Rashbehari Chakravarti, 1072
Ganesh Das v. Mt. Banto, 36
Ganeshdas v. Ram Nath, 433, 434
Ganesh Export & Import Co. v. Mahadeolal, 830, 832, 835
Ganesh Flour Mills Co. v. Puran Mal, 864
Ganesh Khopre Mills Co. v. Municipal Corporation of Karachi, 1065
Ganesh Panigrahi v. Jura Sahu, 1094
Ganeshprasad v. Rambalibai, 304
Ganeshmull Sabasmull v. Sohanlal Punamchand, 417
Ganesh Rai v. Bhushi Rai, 949
Ganesh Ramachandra v. G.I.P. Ry. Co., 409
Ganga Baksh v. Jagat Bahadur Singh, 174
Gangabai v. Srinivas Rao, 1020
Gangadas v. Jekisondas, 363
Gangadas v. Joggendra, 574
Ganga Dayal v. Bachchu Lal, 695
Gangadhar v. Damodar, 239
Gangadhar v. Kasinath, 1006
Ganga Din v. Gokul Prasad, 952
Ganga Ghulam v. Tapeshri Prasad, 1066, 1077
Gangamma v. Kuppammal, 257
Gangapathi Pillai v. Irudayaswami Nadar, 583
Gangappa Ramappa v. Kalappa Sankarappa, 1075
Ganga Prasad v. Bishunath Singh, 692
Ganga Prasad v. Ram Dayal, 305
Gangaraju & Sons v. State of Andhra Pradesh,

667
Ganga Ram v. Chandan Singh, 508, 509
Ganga Ram v. Devi Das, 281
Gangaram v. Shivlal, 1067, 1073
Gangaram v. Laxman, 943
Gangaram v. The Secretary of the State of India, 1069
Gangasaran v. F. Ramchandra, 368
Ganga Saran v. Ramcharan Ram Gopal, 16, 20, 116, 452, 454, 456, 457, 458, 459, 467, 472, 473
Gangraju & Sons v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 667
Ganga Singh v, Santosh Kumar, 450, 971, 974
Ganges Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Indra Chand, 336, 522
Ganges Valley Bore Mills v. Kali Nath Datta, 903
Gangetic Fisherman Co-operative Society Ltd. v. Sepatra Singh, 523
Ganpat v. Adarji, 6
Ganpat v. Annaji, 1105, 1106
Ganpat v. Lahana, 283
Ganpat v. Mahadeo, 500, 501
Ganpat v. Mangilal, 206
Ganpat Mal v. Kher Singh, 880
Ganpat Prasad v. Sarju, 924
Ganpat Rai v. Sain Das, 1116
Ganpatrai Sagarmal v. Union of India, 824
Ganpatrai Gupta v. Mody Bros. Ltd., 349
Gappo Singh v. Har Charan, 292
Garag Narainsing v. Babulal Khemka, 237
Garapati Narasimudu v. Basara Sankaram, 868
Gardano & Giantiari v. Greek Petroleum George Hamideas & Co., 619
Gardner v. Baillie, 849
Gardner v. Walsh, 505
Garnac Grain Co. v. H.M.F. Faure and Fairclogh Ltd., 407, 622, 656, 835, 843
Garekapathi Veerayya v. Subhayya, 1000
Garnett v. M. Kewan, 802
Garnham Harris & Elton v. Alfred Ellis, 72, 73, 784
Garrard v. Frankel, 203, 538
Garrard v. James, 730
Garth v. Howard, 932
Garvisa v. Swantouro Ltd., 645
Gartside v. Outram, 264, 326
Gascoigne v. Gascoigne, 231, 257, 544
Gasper & Co. v. Leony Chey & Co. 1101
Gas Pictures Ltd. v. Neelkandam Gopalkrishna, 678
Gauhar Khan v. Kashmira Jan, 1082,
Gaumont British Pictures Corpn. v. Alexander, 293, 294, 311, 315, 322, 681, 683, 708, 711, 1027
Gauri Datt v. Bandhu Panday, 291
Gauri Datt v. Nanik Ram, 619
Gauri Mal-Narain Das v. Secretary of State, 785
Gauri Dutt, Maharj v. Shaikh Sukur Mohammad, 1011
Gaurinath Mookerjee v. Madhumani Peshakar, 257
Gauri Shankar v. Mangal, 36
Gauri Shanker v. Mumtaz Ali Khan, 234, 235
Gauri Shankar v. Ramsevak, 1010
Gaya Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Nand Kishore, 848
Gaya Muzaffarpur Roadways & Co. v. Fort Gloster Industries Ltd., 413
Gear & Co. v. French Cigarettes Co., 616
Gebhardt v. Sannders, 602
Geere v. Mare, 230
Geipel v. Smith, 272, 487
Geismer v. Sun Alliance & London Insurance Ltd., 185, 263
Gellespie Brothers & Co. Ltd. v. Roy Bowles Transport Ltd., 718
Gellabhai & Co. v. Chunilal, 1117
Gendan Lal v. Shahzadi, 701
General v. Smith, 247
General Accident Fire & Life Assurance Corp. Ltd. v. Midland Bank Ltd., 185
General Assurance Society v. L.I.C., 100
General Bill Posting Co. v. Atkinson, 315, 400
General Securities Ltd. v. Don Ingram Ltd., 632
General Share Trust Co. v. Chapman, 804
George Baker (Transport) Ltd. v. Eynon, 804
George v. Clagett, 921
George v. Greater Adelaide Land Development Co. Ltd., 233, 270
George v. Mitchell & King Ltd., 610
George Pictures Ltd. v. Gopalkrishna, 846, 849
George Pictures Ltd. v. Neelkandaru Gopal Krishna, 684, 685
George v. South Indian Bank Ltd., 586
George Vaflings Redari A/S v. President of India the Bellam, 390, 392
George Cohan Ltd. v. Docks & Inland Waterways Executive, 1038
George Newnes Book Co. v. K.V.S. Iyer, 304
George Whitechurch Ltd. v. Cavanagh, 140
Gerala Kalita v. Dharmeshwar, 1042
Geraghty v. Minter, 329
Geresh Chunder v. Bhuggobutty, 169
G.G. in Council v. Badridas Gauri Datt, 618
Gerdharilal v. Bishunchand, 305
Ghanasambanda Pandara Sannadhi v. Velu Pandaram, 286
Ghanasham v. Morba, 1103
Ghanshiam Singh v. Daulat Singh, 665
Ghanshyam v. Girijashankar, 226
Ghanshyam v. Udayanath, 437
Gharabharam v. Sri Radha Kishan, 304, 501
Gharali Hiracharan v. Kellar Mansarant, 501
Ghasiram v. Shankarlal, 1011, 1012
Ghasi Ram Aggarwal v. The State, 831
Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadeodas, 16, 227, 231, 240, 241, 245, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 262, 263, 350, 351, 352, 353, 357, 358, 359, 360, 365
Ghatge & Patil (Transport) Ltd. v. Bird & Co., 342
G.H. Myers & Co. v. Brent Cross Service Co., 628
Ghosh Singh Partners Ltd. v. Union of India, 916, 917
G.H. Renton & Co. Ltd. v. Palmyra Trading Corporation of Panama, 63
Ghulam Husain v. Faiyaz Ali, 726
Ghulam Hussain v. Mohammad Hussain, 1066
Ghulam Mujtaba v. Allah Bachaya, 277
Ghulam Mohiy-ud-din v. Deoki Nand, 275
Ghulam Murtaza v. Fasib-un-Nissa Bibi, 305
Ghulam Rasul Khan v. Secretary of State, 1066
Ghulam Mohiuddin v. Official Assignee, 1074
Ghuma v. Rama Chandra Rao, 256
Ghuznavi v. National Bank of India, 752
Ghyasuddin Ahmed v. Mahomed Ismail, 1011, 1018
Gian Chand v. Bhagwan, 1074
Gian Chand v. Bansilal, 89
Gian Singh & Co. v. Banque de C Indo-China, 724
Gibbsons v. Proctor, 108
Gibbons v. Westminister Bank, 661
Gibbs v. Grey, 855

Gibbs & Sterret Manufacturing Co. v. Brucker, 268
Gibbson v. Wright, 133
Giblin v. Mc Mullen, 770, 776
Gibson v. Carruthers, 1027
Gibson v. Crick, 896
Gibson v. Jayco, 164
Gibson v. May, 899
Gibson v. Manchester City Council, 22
Gibson v. Winter, 919
Gidley v. Lord Palmerston, 917
Giepel v. Smith, 272
Giles v. Edwards, 435
Gilbert Stokes v. Dalgety, 43
Gilbet v. Hall, 496
Gilchester Properties v. Gomm, 970
Gilbert & Partners v. Knight, 555
Gilman v. Elton, 933
G.I.P. Railway Co. v. Chakravarti Sons & Co., 785
G.I.P. Rly. v. Jitan Ram, 785
G.I.P. Rly. v. Manikchand Premji, 794
G.I.P. Rly. v. Ramachandra Jagannath, 785
Girdhari Lal, v. Crawford, 844
Girdharilal v. Eagle, Star & British Dominions Insurance Co., 338, 339
Girdhar Lal v. Manikamma, 542
Girdhari Lal v. Palaniappa Mudali, 1067
Girdhari Singh v. Megh Lal Pandey, 469
Girdhari Singh v. Neeladhar Singh, 282, 283
Girja Prasad v. National Coal Co. Ltd., 466, 464
Giribala v. Ushangini Debi, 888, 1072, 1080
Giribala Dassi v. Kalidas, 346, 488,
Girijanund v. Sailajanund, 286, 296
Girinarayan Chattarjee v. Madhusudan Mukerjee, 596
Girish Chandra v. Kunja Behari, 632
Girraj Baksh v. Kazi Hamid Ali, 559
Gladstone v. King 909
Glasher v. Woolgar & Roberts, 451, 1017
Glassbook v. Richardson, 1019
Glasbrook Bros. Ltd. v. Glamorgan County Council, 298
Glegg v. Bromley, 48
Glenwood Lumber Co., v. Phillips, 947
Globe Theatres Ltd. v. Abdul Ghani, 606
Gloucestor County Council v. Richardson, 628, 775
Gloucester Municipal Election Petition, 88
Gluckstein v. Barnes, 891
Glyn v. Keele University, 1096
Glynn v. Margetson, 61, 62, 63, 69, 70, 76, 117, 516
Gnanabhai v. Srinivasa Pillai, 252
Gnanasundara v. Breton Export Co. of N.Y., 914
Gnapp v. Petroleum Board, 147
G.N.R. Co. v. Swaffield, 794
G.N.R. Co. v. Witham, 88
Gobardhan Das v. Jai Kishan Das, 149, 160
Gobind v. Chhajjan, 502
Gobind Chandra v. Nand Kumar, 1022
Gobind Chunder v. Srigobind, 420
Gobind Chunder Sein v. Ryan, 820
Gobind Das v. Sarjudas, 305, 306
Gobind Prasad v. Chandra Sekhar, 423
Gobind Ram v. Mst. Mewa, 950
Gobind Ram v. Piranditta, 127, 293, 301,
Gobind Ram v. Ram Kishore, 570, 584, 592
Goculdas Madhavji v. Narsu Yenkuji, 471
Godavari Pravara Canal Co-operative Purchase & Sale Union Ltd. v. Krishnarao and another, 423
Godavari Sugar Mills Ltd. v. K.T.S. Kamgar Sabha, 1128
Goddarmal v. Tata Industrial Bank Ltd., 93, 111, 113
Godhamal v. Sm. Ganga Hasso Lal, 502
Godhanram v. Jahar Mull, 885, 886
Godfrey v. Mst. Parbati, 260
Godin v. London Assurance Co., 901
Goding v. Frazen, 838
Goodinson v. Goodinson, 298
Godly v. Perry, 646
Gondulal v. Abdul Sattar, 1055
Godwin v. Francis, 925
Gogun Chandra Ghose v. Dhirandhan, 3, 505, 506, 508
Gokulchand v. Khwaja Ali, 698
Gokulchand v. Rahman, 403
Gokul Chandra v. Haji Mohammad, 1033
Gokuldas v. Gulabrao, 539
Gokuldas v. Lakshmidas, 280, 539
Gokuldas v. Rambux, 1070
Gokul Prasad v. Fathelal, 1018
Golab Chand v. M.J.V. Miller, 576, 579
Golam Abdin v. Hem Chandra, 126
Golam Hossain Shah v. Altaf Hossain, 1066
Golam Mohd. Mondal v. Abdul Jaleh Sepali, 1029
Goldfarb v. Barlett, 736
Goldsbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Carter, 214
Goldsbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Hall, 12, 391
Goldsbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Quinn, 23, 84
Goldsoll v. Goldman, 333
Golconda Industries v. Companies Registrar, 130
Gomathinayagam Pillai v. Palaniswami Nadar, 440, 441, 680, 960, 961, 998, 1000, 1001, 1019, 1020
Gonda Municipality v. Bachchu, 557 585, 596
Goodson v. Brooke, 853
Goodson v. Richardson, 1117
Goodwin v. Robarts, 928
Goodinsa v. Goodinson, 298
Gooroo Dose Dutt v. Ooma Churn Roy, 494
Gopalam v. Union of India, 783
Gopalan v. Chinnayya, 279
Gopalakrishna Pillai v. Venkatesam Pillai, 1072
Gopalaswami v. Vaithilinga, 539
Gopal Co. Ltd. v. Hazari Lal & Co., 294, 302
Gopal Chandra Poddar v. Lakshmi Kanta, 275
Gopal Daji v. Gopal Bin Sonu, 731
Gopal Das v. Hari Das, 915
Gopal Das v. Mul Raj, 1067
Gopal Das Agarwala v. Hari Kishen, 340
Gopal Krishna v. Tubaram, 129
Gopal N. Achut Sadashiv, 347
Gopalkrishna Mudaliar v. Theagarajaswami Devasthanam, 455
Gopalkrishnaji v. Mohd. Haji Latif, 596
Gopalkrishnan v. Krishnakutty, 795
Gopal Paper Mills v. Malhoutra, 311
Gopal Paper Mills Ltd. v. Surendra Malhotra, 317, 322, 327, 331, 332, 334, 1127
Gopal Ramchandra v. Gangaram Anand Shet, 6, 279
Gopalrao v. Kallappa, 235, 290
Gopal-Sahai Bichha Lal v. Dhani Ram Ram Gopal, 296
Gopal Saran v. Sita Devi, 295
Gopal Singh v. Bhawani Prasad, 319, 735
Gopal Singh Hira Singh v. Punjab National Bank, 809

Gopala Chaettiar v. Giriappa, 534
Gopaludu v. Venkataratnam, 692, 694
Gopendra Narayan v. Golokendra Kumar, 420
Gopeshwar v. Jadav Chandra, 701
Gopeshwar Banerjee v. Brojo Sundari Devi, 583
Gopikisan v. Jethmal, 430
Gopi Krishna v. Janak Prasad, 283, 540
Gopi Nath Saha v. Radhadurmal Dulichand, 1032
Gopilal Bhawaniram v. Pandurang, 535
Gopilal Nichani v. Trae Industries, 743
Gopinath v. Raghubansh Kumar, 572, 587
Gopi Ram v. Jeot Ram, 379
Gorak Ram v. Lakmibai, 1021
Gordon v. Gonda, 667
Gordon v. Hertford, 1006
Gordon v. Mahony, 93
Gordon v. Street, 144, 207
Gordon Hill Trust Ltd. v. Segall, 206, 931
Gordon Woodroffe & Co. v. Shaikh M.A. Majid & Co., 834, 835, 839, 844, 881
Gordhandas v. Champsey Dossa, 235
Gordhandas v. Natvarlal Chanalal & Co., 369
Gordhandas Purshottamdas v. Eastern Cotton Co. 18
Gordhanlal v. Durbar Sri Surajmalji, 583
Gore v. Van der Lann, 72, 74, 109, 110
Gore v. Gibson, 134
Gorulnick v. Gorulnick, 1110
Goshta Bihari v. Haridas Samanta, 1082
Goshto Bihari v. Omiyo Prasad, 996, 1002
Goshto Bihari v. Surs Estate Ltd., 16, 95, 110, 111, 919, 920, 962, 993
Gosling v. Caskell, 862
Goss v. Nugent, 502
Gosto Behari Roy v. Rameshchandra Das, 208
Gosvami Shri Purushotamji Maharaj v. Robb, 242
Gould v. Gould, 24, 53, 118, 348
Gouranga Chandra v. Satish Chandra, 948
Gour Chandra Das v. Prasanna Kumar Chandra, 506, 507
Gourchandra v. Prolalchandra, 746
Gour Chandra Mukherjee Andrew Yubs Cooperative Society Ltd., 661
Gouri Shankar v. Ramsewak, 1010
Gourlay v. Duke of Somerset, 349
Gourishankar Aggarwala v. H.P. Moitra, 463
Gourram Sceraurceles & Co. v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 604
Gous Mohoddin Gajabur Saheb Appasaheb, 246
Govardhandas v. Friendmans Diamond Trading Co., 843
Goverdhandas v. Bank of Bengal, 758
Goverdhandas v. New Dholera Steamships Ltd., 780
Goverdhanlal v. State Bank of Travancore, 750, 754
Goverdhan Raj Anand, v. State of Orissa, 710
Goverdhan Singh v. Ritu Roy, 542
Govind v. Pacheco, 263
Govind v. Sakharam, 416
Govind v. Savitri, 178
Govinda v. Perumdevi, 1079
Govinda v. Venkata Krishnayya, 415
Govinda Kuar v. Lala Kishun Prasad, 542
Govind Appaji v. Miraji Ranaa, 1036
Govindasami Naidu v. Kuppusami Pillai, 506, 507
Govinda Nair v. Achuthan Nair, 304, 305, 576
Govindarajulu Naidu v. S.S. Naidu, 579, 1054
Govindasami v. Ramaswami, 1053
Govindlal v. Manekchowk Spg. & Wvg. Mills, 966
Govindji v. Lakhmidas, 131
Govind Prasad v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 832
Govindraj v. Kandaswami Gounder, 237
Govindrao v. Narayan, 491
Govindram v. Edward Radbone, 560, 596, 1048
Govindram Gordhandas Seksaria v. State of Gondal, 570, 571, 573
Government of Gibraltar v. Kenny, 474, 555, 1080, 1099
Government of India v. Jamunadhar Rungta, 561, 831, 864
Government of India v. Prity Kumar Ghosh, 561
Government of Pepsu v. Pratap Singh, 1077
Government of Orissa v. Shiv Prasad, 206
Government of West Pakistan v. Wali Muhammad Habib, 836
Governor-General in Council v. Badri Das, 338, 618
Governor-General in Council v. Jessaj Tilokchand, 781
Governor-General in Council v. Jubilee Mills Ltd., 772
Governor-General in Council v. Kabirram, 785
Governor-General in Council v. Madura Municipality, 587
Governor-General in Council v. Mohamad, 1070
Governor-General v. Municipal Council, Madras, 573
Governor-General in Council v. Simla Banking and Industries Co. Ltd., 346
Governor-General v. Mohammad Bdar-i-Aram, 789
Governor of Orissa v. Shiv Prasad, 190, 191, 192
Govindbhai Girdharbhai v. Gulam Abbas, 468
Govind Dutta v. Jaynarain Dutta, 951
Govindlal v. C.K. Sharma, 439
Govindlal Bhikhulal v. Thakurdas Vallabhdas, 393, 395
Govind Laxman v. Harichand Mancharam, 369
Govind Prashad v. Hari Dutt, 439, 440, 442
Govind Ram v. Ramfulsingh, 233, 246
Govind Sahai v. The State of U.P., 20
Govinda Naik v. Gururao, 154, 181
Govinda Reddy v. Gola Gulamma, 429
Gowal Das Sidany v. Luchmi Chand Jhawar, 979
Graham v. Krishna Chunder Dey, 974
Graham v. Seal, 386
Graham Joint Stock Shipping Co. v. Merchants Marine Insurance Co. Ltd., 37
Graham Horrid & Elton v. Alfred W. Ellis, 72, 73
Graham v. Campbell, 632
Grainger v. Gough, 22, 105
Gramlal v. Tukaram, 566
Grand Trunk Rail Co. of Canada v. Robinson, 68, 783
Grant v. Australian Knitting Mills Ltd., 629, 644, 646
Grant v. Gold Exploration etc., Syndicate of British Columbia, 887, 934
Grant v. Norway, 856, 931
Grant v. Secretary of State for India, 917
Grant v. Dawkinds, 1032, 1033
Graumann v. Treittel, 391
Gravely v. Barnard, 293, 308
Gray v. Gutteridge, 934.
Gray v. Haig, 884
Gray v. Seckham, 755
Gray v. South House, 267, 545

Great American Insurance Co. v. Madanlal Sandal, 121
Great Lakes Steamship Co. v. Maple Leaf Milling Co., 650
Great Northern Railway v. L.E.P., 774
Great N.W. Central Railway v. Charlebois, 594
Great Western Insurance Co. v. Cunliffe, 892
Great Western Ry. Co. v. Willis, 932
Great Eastern Shipping Co. v. Union of India, 563, 577, 649, 615, 614, 596, 585, 591, 593, 594
Great Northern Railway v. Witham, 89
Greaves & Co. (Contractors) Ltd. v. Baynbam Meikle & Paner, 671
Grebert-Borgnis v. Nugent, 638
Gredhow Autoparts Ltd. v. Detaney, 320
Green v. All Motors, 799
Green v. Bartlett, 895
Green v. Lucas, 896
Green v. Mules, 895
Green v. Paterson, 43
Green v. Russel, 32
Green v. Serin, 440, 447, 960
Green v. Tughan, 934
Green v. Wyne, 742
Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, 46
Greenwood v. Francis, 749
Greenwood v. Hornsey, 1103, 1117
Greenwood v. Martins Bank, 865
Grein v. Imperial Airways Ltd., 651
Grenon v. Lachmi Narain Augurwala, 429, 919
Grey v. Mathias, 302
Grice v. Kenrick, 919
Griffin v. Weatherly, 599
Griffin v. Pillett, 646
Griffith v. Brymer, 220, 988
Griffiths v. Robisas, 160
Grindley v. Barker, 839
Grison Knitting Works v. Laxmi Commercial Bank Ltd., 814
Grist v. Bailey, 212, 213, 215, 216, 218, 1007
Grodecki, 267
Groom v. Cheesewright, 901
Groom v. Crocker, 631, 644, 645, 667, 668, 673
Gross v. Levis Hillmand, 189
Grundt v. Great Bouwer Pty. Gold Mines Ltd., 514
Guaranty Trust Co. of New York v. Hannay & Co., 1056
Gubhoy v. Avetoom, 914
Gudh Cocogar & Provision Stores v. C.I.T. 238
Guerreiro v. Peilo, 852
Gugun Chunder Ghose v. Dhuronidhur, 448
Guild & Co. v. Conrad, 720, 721
Guiness (Bob) Ltd. v. Solomensen, 49, 50
Gujjarmal v. Governor-General of India, 97
Gujarat Electricity Board v. S.A. Jain & Co. 582, 593
Gujoba v. Nilkanth, 129, 1026
Gulabchand v. Chunnilal, 1054
Gulabchand v. Fulbai, 283, 539, 540
Gulabchand v. Kudilal, 17, 231, 232, 258, 259, 263, 345
Gulabchand v. Laxminarain, 36
Gulabchand v. Suryajirao, 244
Gulabgir v. Nathmal, 504
Gulabbhai Damodar Tapae v. Peter K. Sunder, 504, 510
Gulabrai Dayaram v. India Equitable Insurance Co., 885
Gulab Ray v. Murlidhar Modi, 1031
Gulab Singh v. Tarabai, 962
Gulba Singh v. Punjab Zamindara Bank, 1096
Guljarilal Kanoria v. Basu & Stephenson Ltd., 248, 617
Guljan Bibi v. Nazir Uddivi Mia, 172
Gulzar Ahmad v. V.P. Government, 1063
Gummalpura Kutturuswami v. Veeravva, 1081
Gundayya v. Subbayya, 455
Gunn v. Roberts, 855
Gundry v. Sainsbury, 896
Gunput Narain Singh, re, 282
Guntur Tobacco Market Committee v. Narasaiah, 983
Gunyon v. South Eastern & Chatham Ry. Co., 72
Guranditta Mal v. Labbu Ram, 497
Gurdial Singh v. Sunda Hire Purchase Corporation, 1075
Gurdeal Singh v. Sunda Hera Purchase Corporation, 1075
Gurdit Singh v. Secretary of State, 475
Gurmukh Singh v. Dial Singh, 695
Gurmukh Singh v. Sohan Singh, 1011
Gurney v. Gurney, 999
Gurney v. Womersley, 935
Gursaran Lal v. Seral Kumar, 35, 36, 121
Gurubux Singh v. Begum Rafiya, 684, 689
Gurudarsan Singh v. Bishen Singh, 460, 469, 471, 548
Gurunadha Rao v. Rasaiah, 540, 610
Gurusami v. Subbaraya, 279
Gurusami Chetti v. Samurti Chinna, 416
Gurushiddayya Kalkayya Setimath v. Shah Hirachand Vanechand, 424
Guruvada Shivayya v. Shivappa Basappa, 1001
Guthrie v. Abool Mozuffer, 1054
Guthrie v. Armstrong, 839
Guy v. Churchill, 277
Guy Pell v. Foster, 626
G.W. Fisher Ltd. v. Eastwoods Ltd., 509
Gyan v. Smt. Resalo, 1035
Gyarsilal v. Sitacharan, 497, 498, 504
Gyan Prakash v. Triloki Prasad, 535
Gyansing v. Dist. Magistrate, 1103

H.K. Dasappa Satty v. Vedavathamma, 303, 304
H.N. Alu & Co. v. Sunder Lal Taneja, 885, 886
H.N. Narayanswamy v. Smt. Deveramma, 1012, 1013
H. Pearson (Livestock) Ltd. v. Utley Ingham Co., 649
H.Pen Sein v. Paungde Municipality, 740
H.R. Retchy v. New Delhi Municipality, 1114
H.V. Rajan v. C.N. Gopal, 1013
Ha Hla Po v. Ma Seem Nu, 663
Hadby Byrne & Co. Ltd. v. Heller and Partners Ltd., 193, 194
Habib Ali v Rafik-ud-Din, 702, 703
Habib Miyan v. Mohammad Mir, 223
Habibar Rahman v. Ali Azahar, 1015
Habibul Nabi v. Narapan Singh, 692
Hadley Byrne & Co. v. Hellar & Partners Ltd., 524
Hadley v. Baxendale, 622, 629, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 647, 648, 649
Hadley v. Droitwich Construction Co. Ltd., 718, 775
Hafiz Mohi-ud-din v. Fatima Bano, 1074
Hagami Lal Ram Parshad v. Bhuralal Ram Narain 357, 362

Hagedorn v. Oliverson, 864
Hairoon Bibi v. United India Life Insurance Co., 82, 430
Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd., 63
Hajarimal v. Krishnarao, 727, 744, 750
Hajee Ismaii & Sons v. Wilson & Co., 606
Haji Abdul Allarakhai v. Haji Abdul Bacha, 1118
Haji Abdul Rahman v. Haji Noor Mohamed, 385, 387
Haji Abdul Rahman v. The Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Co., 223, 226, 1040, 1041
Haji Abdulla v. G.R. Stamp, 14
Haji Ahmed v. Maruti Ramji, 747
Haji Ayub v. Devji Bhanji, 346
Haji Habib v. Bhikamchand Jankilal, 257, 894
Haji Ismail Sait v. The Company of the Messageries Maritimes of France, 779
Haji Mahammad v. Province of Bengal, 1065
Haji Mahomed v. Spinner, 99, 104, 111
Haji Mohammed Khaja v. Akber Ali, 666, 934
Haji Mohamed Mitha v. Musaji Esaji, 979, 1005
Haji Mohammad Ishaq v. Mohamed Iqbal & Mohamed Ali & Co., 581
Hajisa Imamsa v. Kalyanrao, 954
Haji Oosman v. Haroon Saleh Mahomed, 1005
Haji Rahimbux v. Central Bank of India Ltd., 818, 823, 826
Haji Shakoor Gany v. Hinde & Co., 338
Haji Sheikh Hassanoo v. Natesa Mudaliar & Co., 430
Hajisa Imamsa v. Kalyanrao, 954
Hakam Sing v. Gammon (India) Ltd., 340, 342
Hakim Mal v. Mrs. Earle, 1104
Hakma Manji v. Memon Ayab, 7, 697
Halbot v. Lens, 925
Haldane v. Johnson, 427
Halim Yasin v. Mustakim Alaf, 949
Hall v. Burnell, 1047
Hall v. Capell, 288
Hall v. Walland, 565
Hall v. Warren, 133
Hall v. Wells, 121, 124
Hallett's Estate, in re, 495, 793
Halliday v. Holgate, 790, 807, 812
Hamara Radio & General Industries v. State of Rajasthan, 476
Hambro v. Burnand, 906, 927
Hambrook v. Stokes, 648
Hamdard Dawakhana v. Hansraj, 1109
Hamfrey v. Dale, 8
Hamidoolla v. Faizunnissa, 249
Hamilton v. Spottiswoode, 599
Hamilton v. Watson, 760
Hamlyn v. G.N. Ry. 644
Hamlyn & Co. v. Tallisker Distillery, 9, 11, 15, 273
Hamlyn & Co. v. Wood & Co., 874
Hammersley v. De Biel, 42, 288
Hammonds v. Barclay, 803
Hammond & Co. v. Bussey, 653, 719, 762
Hammond v. Bursen, 644
Hammond & Co. v. Bussey, 624, 629
Hampden v. Walsh, 351, 352
Hancock v. B.W. Brazier, 114, 115, 628
Hands v. Simpson Fawcett & Co. Ltd., 183
Hanmantrav v. The Secretary of State of India, 1069
Hanna Ram v. Jhanda Singh, 306
Hanno Lal v. Badri Das, 1063
Hans Raj Gupta v. Dehra Dun Mussories Electric Tramway Co., 537, 546, 559
Hansraj Bhuleria v. Askaran Bhuteria, 240
Hans Ray Gupta v. Union of India, 577
Hanuman Chamber of Commerce v. Jessa Ram, 867
Hanuman Prasad v. Indrawati, 1082
Hanuman Prasad v. Nanjappa, 444
Hanuman Parshad v. Hiralal, 430
Hanumantha Rao v. Sitha Ramayya, 123, 547 1055
Hanumanthiah v. Thimmaiah, 361
Hanzah Malasand Sons v. British Impex Industries Ltd., 723
Haradhan v. Bhagavati, 1019, 1023
Harak Singh v. Kailash Singh, 1081
Hararasingh Guffar Singh v. Bakhshish Singh Mulla Singh, 731
Har Bhajan Lal v. Har Charan Lal, 104
Harbans Lal Kapoor v. Producer Exchange Corporation, 834
Harbhajan Singh v. Smt. Brij Ballabh, 181, 199, 200
Harbhajandas v. Bhagwandas, 736
Harburg India Rubber Comb Co. v. Martin, 720
Harbutts Plasticine v. Wayne Tank Co. Ltd., 62, 66, 67, 69, 627
Har Chandi Lal v. Sheoraj Singh, 413, 501
Har Prasad Choubey v. Union of India, 482
Har Pratap Singh v. Satyanarain Misra, 1029
Harcharan Das v. Jai Jai Ram, 356
Hardas v. Ramguljarilal, 421
Hardayal v. Kishan Gopal, 912
Hardeo Das v. Ram Prasad, 358
Hardip Singh v. Hira Films, 678
Hardman v. Booth, 142, 825
Hardy v. Motor Insurers Bureau, 264
Hare v. Nicoll, 297, 442, 443, 444
Har Sahay Mull v. Gokulchand, 495
Hare Krishna Sahu v. Bhagirathi Sahu, 153
Hare v. Murphy Bros. Ltd., 474
Harendra Chandra v. Nanda Lal, 974
Harendra Lal Roy v. Uma Charan Ghosh, 507
Harling v. Eddy, 186
Hargopal Aggarwal v. State Bank of India, 728, 756, 757
Hari v. Dhondi, 953, 954
Hari v. Naro, 287, 1045
Haribhai v. Nathubhai, 546
Haribhai v. Sharafali, 323
Haribhai Maneklal v. Sharafali Isabji, 312, 332
Haribux Singhania v. Smt. Ourrao Devi, 896
Harichand v. Govind, 135
Harichand v. Gyanirams, 567, 571, 572
Harichand Mancharan v. Govind Luxman, 95, 97
Haricharan Kaur v. Kamla Rai, 972, 1027
Haridar Prasad Singh v. Kesho Prasad Singh, 874
Haridas Mundra v. National & Grindlays Bank Ltd., 812, 1117
Haridas Ranchhordas v. Mercantile Bank, 110, 111, 113
Haridwar Singh v. Begum Sumbrui, 87, 88
Haridwar Singh v. Begum Sumrbin and others, 87
Hari Hara Iyer v. Mathew George, 534, 702
Hari Krishna Agarwala v. Gupta, 516, 1023, 1033
Harilal v. Nagar, 6
Harilal Dalsukhram v. Moolchand, 201, 205, 210, 663
Harilal Nathalal v. Bhailal Pranlal, 279
Hari Laxman v. Secretary of State, 462

Hari Lahu Patil v. Ramji Valad Pandu, 175, 695
Hari Mohan v. Dulu Miya, 123
Hari Mohan v. Mohini Mohan, 127
Hari Mohan v. Seo Narayan, 129
Haripada v. Anath Nath Dey, 809, 810
Haripada Roy v. Jagai Shao, 701
Harisaran Maitra v. Jotindra Mohan Lahiri, 420
Harish Chandra v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 809
Harish Chander v. Ganga Singh & Sons, 503
Harishand Madan Gopal v. State of Punjab, 513
Harishchandra v. Kailashchandra, 494, 493
Harishankar v. Bishwanath, 255
Hari Singh v. Kuram Chand Kanshi Ram, 422, 423
Harivalabhdas v. Bhai Jivanji, 157, 279
Harjas Rai-Arjan Das v. Tek Chand, 274
Harjivanlal v. Rahda Kison, 561
Harkaran Aggarwal v. Champalal Mahajan, 234
Harkishandas v. Bai Dhanoo, 994
Harkisandas v. Hariman, 491
Harman Pictures v. Osborne, 1088
Harmer v. Armstrong, 41, 42, 994
Harmer v. Cornelius, 882
Harnadrai v. Pragdas, 20, 116
Harnandrai Fulchand v. Pragdas Budhsen, 467
Harnam Singh v. Jamal Pirbhai, 526
Harnath Kuer v. Inder Bahadur Singh, 55, 537, 539, 546, 559, 585, 590, 592, 596
Harnath Rai v. Hirdyanarain, 389
Harold Wood Brick Co. Ltd. v. Farres, 439
Haroon Tar Mohammed v. Bengal Distilleries Co. Ltd., 404, 473
Harper & Co. v. Vigers Brothers, 864
Harper v. Godsell, 848
Har Prasad Tiwari v. Sheo Gobind Tiwari, 291
Harrington v. Victoria Dock Co., 934
Harison v. Forth, 821
Harris v. Fawcett, 735
Harris v. Huntback, 729, 745
Harrison & Jones Bunten & Lancaster Ltd., 213
Harris v. Nickerson, 105, 106
Harrison v. Bunten, 146
Harrison v. Cage, 52
Harrold v. Plenty, 825
Harold Wood Brick Co. Ltd. v. Farres, 439
Harry Meredith v. Abdullah Saheb, 903
Harry Parker Ltd. v. Mason, 260, 261, 271
Harse v. Pearl Life Assurance Co., 231, 233, 270, 543
Har Sahay Mull v. Gokulchand, 495
Hart v. Hart, 34
Hart v. Windsor, 627
Hart v. A.R. Marshall & Sons, 466, 484
Hartas v. Ribbons, 902
Hartley v. Hitchock, 799
Hartley v. Hymans, 443
Hartley v. Ponsonby, 298
Harvey v. Ashley, 43
Harvey v. Facey, 22, 105, 106
Harvey v. Johnston, 108
Harvey v. Pratt, 102
Hasanali v. Ratilal, 356
Hasonbhoy v. Clapham, 914
Hashmat Hussain v. Inayatullah, 1103
Hashmatmal v. Pribhas, 40
Hashem Howladar v. Sreenath, 120
Haslam, 891
Hasonbhoy v. Clapham, 914, 924
Hastelow v. Jackson, 270, 873
Hastmal v. Raffi Uddin, 787
Hatham v. East India Co., 435
Hatchen v. White 240
Hathesing v. Laing, 900
Hatton v. Car Maintenance Co. 799
Hatzfetdt-Wildenbury v. Alexander, 86, 95, 135
Havans v. Peekford Tool Co. Ltd., 326
Haviland v. Long, 642, 643
Hawtayne v. Bourne, 845, 856
Hay v. Goldsmidt, 849
Hay (or Bourhill) v. Young, 673
Hayes v. Bristol Plant Hire Ltd., 984, 1073
Hayman v. Darwins Ltd., 247
Haynes v. Doman, 312, 327, 328, 334
Hayasmal v. Boagar Ram, 504
Hazara Singh v. Naranjan Singh, 414
Hazard v. Treadwell, 928
Hazari v. Chunni Lal, 744, 753
Hazari v. Neki, 994
Hazarilal v. Chhajju Ram, 729
Hazarimal v. Khan Chand, 589
Hazarimal Kochanji v. Khemchand, 903
H.C. Brandt & Co. v. H.N. Narris & Co. Ltd., 915
H.C. Mukerji v. K.P. Goswami, 582
H. Dakin & Co. Ltd. v. Lee, 628
Head, re, 498
Head v. Diggon, 84
Head v. Taltersall, 661
Heald v. Kenworthy, 921
Healey v. Societe Annonyme Francaice Rubastic, 378
Health v. Chilton, 894
Heap v. Motorist's Agency, 816, 820
Heatley v. Newton, 912
Heaven & Kastorton Ltd. v. Establishment Francois Alboic, 643
Heavy Engineering Corporation Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., 99, 106
Hem Chandra v. Suradhani Debya, 169
Hem Chandra De Sarkar v. Amiyabala De Sarkar, 1011
Hem Chandra Roy Choudhury v. Suradhani Debya Chaudhurani, 171
Hedley Bryne & Co. Ltd. v. Hellers & Partners Ltd., 668, 669, 670, 883
Hedley Bryna & Co. Ltd. v. Hellais and Partners Ltd., 187
Heera Lall v. Dhunput Singh, 307
Heffield v. Meadows, 731
Heilbut, Symon & Co. v. Buckleton, 52, 59, 626
Heimann v. Commonwealth of Australia, 452
Helby v. Mathews, 771, 823
Helbert Wagg Co. In Re, 10, 272
Heltson Securities Ltd. v. Herts Country Council, 380
Hemanta Kumari Das v Safatulla Biswas, 442
Hemchand v. Govind, 548
Hemendra Coomer Mullick v. Rajendolall Moonshee, 415, 416
Hem Raj v. Khuda Baksh, 177
Hemraj Kapoor v. Seventeen Textile Traders, 966
Hemraj Keshavji v. Shah Haridas Jethabahi, 16, 361
Hemraj Keshavlal v. Haridas Jethabhai, 361
Henderson v. Barnwell, 853, 857
Henderson v. Stevenson, 65
Henderson & Co. v. Williams, 797
Henderson, In re, 124
Henkel v. Pape, 137
Henningsen v. Bloomfield Motors, 46

Henthorn v. Fraser, 79, 80
Hepburn v. Tomlinson (Hauliers) Ltd., 16, 37, 786
Hepworth Manufacturing Co. v. Ryott, 323
Heramba Chandra v. Jyotish Chandra, 959, 993
Herbert Clayton & Jack Walker Ltd. v. Oliver, 628, 675
Herbert Morris Ltd. v. Saxelby, 312, 313, 318, 321, 322, 325, 326, 327
Herbut Symons & Co. v. Buckleton, 191
Hercy v. Birch, 982
Herdman v. Walker (Tooting) Ltd., 71
Herman v. Jeuchner, 270, 540, 544
Hermann v. Charlesworth, 282
Herman & Mohatta v. Pran Vallabh Majumdar, 377
Herne Bay Steamboat Co. v. Hutton, 462, 463
Herson v. Bernett, 915
Heskell v. Continental Express, 616, 634, 644, 650, 656
Hesse v. Roy, 484
Het Narain v. Ram Deni, 6
Het Ram v. Devi Prasad, 726
Heyman v. Darwins Ltd., 67, 118, 184, 339, 396, 398, 405, 406, 408, 409, 499, 502, 554, 556, 557, 1030
Heyman v. Flewker, 816
Heywood v. Wellers, 646, 669
Heyworth v. Hutchinson, 625
Hiall Man v. Pullin, 836
Hichens v. Jackson, 902
Hichman v. Haynes, 51
Hickman v. Berens, 220
Hicks v. Gregory, 298
Higgins v. Senior, 911, 916
Higgin v. Minton, 1030
Higgins v. Hills, 263
High Commissioner for India v. I.M. Lall, 983, 985
High Trees Case, 101, 518, 519, 520, 522
Hill v. Archbold, 263
Hill v. C.A. Parson & Co. Ltd., 314, 326, 1090, 1096
Hill v. Gomme, 41
Hill v. Hill, 286
Hill v. Harris, 627
Hill v. Showel, 558
Hill v. Stephen Motor Co., 714
Hill v. William Hill, 50, 263, 296, 359, 360, 365, 366
Hills v. Croll, 1024
Hillingdon Estate Co. v. Stonefield Estates Ltd., 468
Hillas & Co. v. Arcos Ltd., 16, 19, 94, 115, 345, 348, 350
Hilton v. Eckersley, 335
Hilton v. Tucker, 807
Himangshu Bhusan v. Nirmal Kumar, 1075
Himatlal v. Vasudev, 1010, 1011, 1012
Himmatlal Motilal v. Vasudeo Ganesh, 908
Hinde v. Liddell, 615
Hindley's case, 91
Hindley & Co. Ltd. v. General Fibres Co., 229
Hind Mercantile Association Ltd. v. Miryala Venkateshwarlu & Co., 8
Hind Construction Contractors v. State of Maharashtra, 446
Hindustan Construction Co. v. State of Bihar, 97, 406, 440, 441, 443, 589, 591, 592, 595, 603
Hindustan Co-operative Insurance Society v. Shyam Sunder, 86, 107
Hindustan Ideal Insurance Co. v. Jayalakshmamma, 852
Hindustan Shipyard v. Appalaswami, 678, 702, 710
Hindustan Alluminium Corporation v. The U.P. State Electricity Board, 91
Hindustan General Insurance Society v. Punam Chand, 183, 184, 185, 206
Hindustan General Insurance Society v. Subramaniam, 184
Hindustan Steel Corporation v. Bharat Spun Pipe Co. Ltd., 380, 381
Hindustan Sugar Mills v. State of U.P., 725
Hine v. S.S. Insurance Syndicate, 847, 853
Hipgrave v. Case, 1033
Hippanna v. Southern Maratha Ry. Co., 781
Hippisley v. Knee Brothers, 894, 898
Hira v. Bhandari, 282
Hirabai v. Manufacturer's Life Insurance Co., 339
Hirachand v. Temple, 414, 511, 530
Hirada Karibasappah v. Gadigimudappa, 495
Hira Lal v. Khizar Hayat, 386, 389
Hiralal v. Manilal, 746
Hiralal Aggarwal v. Bhagirathi Gore, 991
Hiralal v. Badkulal, 305
Hiralal Sircan v. Queen Embrass, 725
Hira Lal v. Ram Rakha, 899
Hiralal Girdharilal v. Baijnath Hurdial, 428
Hira Lal Umrao Singh v. Sri Ram-Brij Mohan Lal, 356
Hirji Khetsey & Co. v. B.B. & C.I. Ry. Co., 785
Hirji Mulji v. Cheong Yue Steamship Co., 405, 407, 410, 452, 453, 454, 473, 564
Hitchcock v. Coker, 293, 328, 627
Hitkarni Sabha Jabbalpur v. Corporation of Jabalpur, 346
Hivar Ltd. v. Park Royal Scientific Instruments Ltd., 834
H.K. Dada (India) Ltd. v. M.P.S. Mills Co. Ltd., 340
H.K. Ray v. Governor-General of India in Council, 781, 794
Hoarse v. Parker, 826
H.O. Brandt & Co. v. H.N. Norris & Co. Ltd., 17
Hobbs v. L.S.W. Rly., 645, 646, 649
Hobson v. Bass, 728
Hobday v. Peters, 890
Hochster v. De La Tour, 396, 397, 398, 399, 403, 651, 835
Hodges v. Delhi & London Bank Ltd., 161, 171, 746
Hoenig v. Issacs, 377, 397
Hogg v. Scott, 1118
Hogg v. Smith, 849
Hoggins v. Gordon, 670
Hohler v. Aston, 33, 34
Holding v. Elliott, 911
Holland v. Wiltshire, 967, 1030
Holland v. Worley, 1163
Holland v. Russel, 935
Holliday v. Hockwood, 1014, 1015, 1026
Hollins v. J. Davy Ltd., 63, 68, 69, 71, 76
Hollins v. Forler, 772
Hollis v. Claridge, 899
Holman v. Johnson, 261, 269, 271, 542, 544
Holme v. Brunskill, 739, 740, 741
Holme v. Guppy, 436
Holmes v. Jones, 199, 205
Holpien v. Rambler Motors (Amc) Ltd., 787
Holt v. Ely, 913

Holt v. Heatherfield Trust Ltd., 50
Holt v. Markham, 218, 222, 599, 600, 601, 609, 612
Holwell Securities Ltd. v. Hughes, 81
Home Insurance Co. v. Ramnath & Co., 787
Home Counter Dairies v. Skelton, 318, 325
Honapa v. Narasapa, 542, 543
Honck v. Muller, 432
Honda Mal v. Muhammad Baksh, 692
Honeyman v. Marryat, 94
Hong Kong Fir Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Kawasaki K.K. Ltd., 62, 438, 478, 625, 780
Hood v. Lord Barrington, 993
Hood v. West End Motor Car Packing Co., 184
Hood & Moore's Stores v. Jones, 316
Hoodger v. G.W. Rly, 643
Hoole v. Royal Trust Co., 858, 859
Hooper v. Exeter Corporation, 604
Hooper v. Keay, 495
Holpien v. Rambler Motors (AMC) Ltd., 787
Hoosen Kasam Bada (India) Ltd. v. M.P.S. Mills Co., 342
Hopper re, 671
Hopkins v. Tanquaray, 186
Horlock v. Beal, 466, 545, 464
Hormasji v. Mankuvarbhai, 909
Hormasji v. Pestanji, 235
Hornby v. Lacy, 828
Horne v. Midland Ry, 652, 653
Horoburgh v. Chandroji, 430
Horsey v. Caldwell, 812
Horsfall v. Thomas, 206
Horsler v. Zorro, 1030
Horton v. Horton, 50
Horwood v. Millers Timber & Trading Co. Ltd., 255, 266, 330
Hosein Shah v. Nur Ahmed, 274
Hossainara v. Rahimannessa, 393
Hoschi v. Lepp Air Services Ltd., 397
Hotham v. East India Co., 435
Hoti Lal v. Musammat, 169
Hough v. Manzanos, 911, 914
Houghton v. Mathews, 803, 852
Houldsworthy v. City of Glasgow Bank, 797
Houndsditch Warx House Co. v. Weltex, 643
Household Fire, etc., Insurance Co. v. Grant, 80, 81
Household Machines v. Cosmos, 622, 624, 1062
Hoverden v. Millhoff, 934
How v. Kirchner, 900
Howard v. Baillie, 849
Howard v. Lovegrove, 719
Howard v. Pickford Tool Co., 405
Howard v. Sheward, 846
Howard E. Perry & Co. Ltd. v. British Railways Board, 653
Howard F. Hudson Pty. Ltd. v. Ranayna, 322
Howard Marine & Bredging Co. Ltd. v. A. Ggden & Sons, 194
Howatson v. Webb, 139, 195, 196
Howe v. Smith, 701, 702, 705, 979
Howe v. Teety, 648
Howell v. Coupland, 465, 449
Howell v. Falsmouth Boat Construction Co. Ltd., 58, 522, 523, 595
Howell v. Young, 668
Hower v. Smith, 1047
Howes v. Bishop, 158
Hoydd v. Chenoy, 1130
H.P. Banerji v. Commissioner of Income Tax, 308
Hriday Narain v. Haricharan, 569, 575
H. Rubenstein & Co. v. Gailloud, 1126
Hubbersty v. Ward, 856
Hubbard v. Pett, 1113
Hubbilal Sadashiv v. Mahomad Magloo Ahmed Khan, 246
Huddersfield Banking Co. v. Henry Listen & Sons, 212, 221
Hudson, re, 27
Hudson v. Buck, 93
Hudson v. Temple, 439
Hughes v. Creame, 925
Hughes v. Liverpool Victoria Legal Friendly Society, 267
Hughes v. Metropolitan Railway, 518, 519, 520, 528
Hughland v. R.R. Low (Luxury Coaches) Ltd., 778
Huguenin v. Baseley, 157, 165, 755
Hukamchand v. Ram Bahadur Singh, 95, 135
Hukmichand v. Jaipur Rice and Gil Mills Co., 334
Hukumchand Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Bank of Baroda, 727, 729, 867
Hukumchand Kasliwal v. Pioneer Mills Co., 964
Hukamchand Mills v. Tata Air Craft, 702
Hukumatlal v. Jethanand, 497
Hukam Singh v. M/s Garmmon (India) Ltd., 341
Hulas Kunwar v. Allahabad Bank Ltd., 23, 110, 111, 113, 814, 815
Hulme v. Coles, 745
Hulton v. Hulton, 203
Humayun Begum v. Md. Khan, 1075, 1076, 1077
Humayun Begum v. Shah Mohammad, 1072
Humble v. Hunter, 381, 926
Humphreys v. Polak, 285
Hungenford Investment Trust Ltd. v. Haridas Mundra, 941, 944, 1030, 1046, 1047
Hunt v. Luck, 1011, 1042
Hunt & Winterbotham (West of England) Ltd. v. B.R.S. (Parcels) ltd., 65, 68, 69, 71, 770
Hunter v. Daniel, 385
Hunsraj Morarji v. Nathoo Gangaram, 382
Huntoon Co. v. Kolynos (Incorporated, 431, 626
Hurdit Roy Motilal Mills v. State of Bihar, 605
Hurmat Ali Shah v. Tufail Mohammad, 1071
Hurmukhrai v. Narotamdas, 353, 355, 363
Hurnadrai v. Pragdas, 368, 458, 459, 462
Hurnandun Singh v. Jawad Ali, 1010
Hurrinath v. Krishna, 885
Hurwitz v. Taylor, 282
Hussaina Bai v. Zohra Bai, 169
Hussainabai v. Muhammad Muheeth, 578
Hussain Bakhsh v. Rahmat Hussain, 173, 279
Hussain Kasam Dadar v. Vijayanagaram Commercial Association, 247
Hussainbhoy Karimji v. Haridas, 213, 448, 464
Hussey v. Christie, 855
Hussey v. Horne-Peyne, 86, 93, 95, 97
Husseinali v. Dinbai, 259, 301, 302
Hutchegowda v. H.M. Basaviah, 257
Hutcheson v. Eaton 911
Hutchins v. Scott, 507
Hutchi Gounder v. Bheema Gounder, 407
Hutley v. Hutley, 277
Hutton v. Bullock, 913
Hutton v. Lippert, 829, 835
H.V. Rajan v. C.N. Gopal, 469, 470, 989, 993
Hyams v. Stuart King, 263, 296, 297, 359, 365
Hyde v. Wrench, 22, 92, 101

Hyderabad Asbestos Products Co. v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 166
Hyderabad State Bank v. Raghunath, 209, 584, 586
Hyderabad Stock Exchange Ltd. v. Rangnath Rathi & Co., 1094, 1095, 1125
Hydraulic Engineering Co. v. McHaffie, 445, 622, 653
Hyman v. Hye, 773, 774
Hyman v. Hyman, 266, 341
Hyundai Heavy Industries Co. Ltd. v. Papa lo Poulos, 732
Hyrsky v. Smith, 216

I.M. Lall v. Secretary of State, 1067
Ibrahim v. Mastan, 1046
Ibrahim v. Union of India, 5, 380, 823, 880
Ibrahimbhai v. Fletcher, 969, 980, 1006
Ibrahim Mallick v. Lalit Mohan Roy, 307
Ichha Dhanji v. Natha, 769
Idris Ali v. Abdul Samad, 998
Imambandi v. Mutsaddi, 1027
Imam-ud-din v. Liladhar, 422, 423
Imperial Bank v. London & St. Katherine Docks Co., 754
Imperial Banking & Trading Co. v. Atmaram Madhavji, 433
Imperial Banking & Trading Co. v. Pranjivandas Harjivandas, 433
Imperial Bank of Canada v. Bank of Hamilton, 608
Imperial Bank of Canada v. Begley, 864
Imperial Credit Co. v. Coleman, 888
Imperial Glass Co. v. Consolidated Supplies Ltd., 217
Imperial Ice Manufacturing Co. v. Munchershaw, 995
Imperial Loan Co. v. Stone, 130
Imperial Pressing Co. v. British Crown Assurance Corpn., 180
Imperial Tobacco Co. v. Parsday, 682
Inayutullah v. Rani, 725
Inchbald v. Western Neilgherry Coffee Etc. Co., 875, 896
Inche Noriah v. Shaik Allie Bin Omar, 159, 161, 164, 169, 172
Incledon v. Watson, 190
Income Tax Commissioner v. Maharajadhiraja of Darbhanga, 493
Indar v. Khushli, 243
Inder Devi v. Kirparam, 1070
Inderjit Singh v. Sundar Singh, 541
Inder Pershad Singh v. Campbell, 470, 471, 460, 1045, 1053
Inder Sain v. Piare Lal, 885
Inder Singh v. Munshi, 278
Inder Singh v. Narinder Singh, 122
Inder Singh v. Parmeshwardhan Singh, 133
Inder Singh v. State, 472, 473
Indeshri (or Bindeshari) Bikhsh Singh v. Chandrika Prasad, 120
India General Navigation and Railway Co. v. Eastern Assam Railway co., 661
India General Steam Navigation Co. v. Bhagwan Chandra Pal, 778, 785
India General Steam Navigation Co. Ltd. v. Gopal Chandra, 785
Indian Airlines Corpn. v. Jothaji Moni Ram, 783
Indian Airlines Corpn. v. Keshav Lal Gandhi, 73, 783
Indian Air Lines Corpn. v. Madhuri Choudhri, 5, 9, 73, 277, 778, 782, 783
Indian Air Lines Corp. v. Sukhdeo Rai, 984, 985
Indian Aluminium Co. v. State of Madras, 605
Indian Bank Ltd. v. A. Sheshgiri Rao, 821
Indian Cable Co. Ltd. v. Plastic Products Engineering Co., 724
Indian Cooperative Navigation Trading Co. v. Padamsay Premji, 90
Indian Dental Works v. Dhanakoti Naidu, 1101
Indian Oil Corporation v. Smt. Lila Gurucharan Singh, 994, 995
Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. v. Stewarts & Lloyds of India Ltd., 242
Indian Trade & General Insurance Co. v. Bhailal, 220
Indian Trade & General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Union of India, 794
Indian Steel & Wire Products Ltd. v. Superintendent of Commercial Taxes, 604
Indian Steel & Wire Products Ltd. v. The State of Madras, 151
Indira Bai v. Markand, 295
Indore Malwa United Mills v. C.I.T., 841
Indo Union Assurance Co. v. T. Srinivasan, 832
Indra Narain v. Ganga Ram, 1076, 1079
Indran Ramaswami v. Anthappa Chettiar, 127, 301
Indran Ramswami v. Anthappachettiar, 293
Indraraj Singh v. Chait Ram, 344
Indumatiben v. Union of India, 1063
Industries & General Mortgage Co. Ltd. Lewis, 934
Indu Tewari v. Ram Bahadur Choudhary, 1119
Indubala Devi v. Jitendra Nath Ghose, 55
Inglewood Pulp Co. v. New Brunswick Electric Power Commissioner, 667
Ingram v. Little, 140, 141, 142, 143, 238
Initial Services Ltd. v. Puttermill, 264, 326, 612
Inland Revenue Commrs. v. Hembrooks, 601, 615
Innatunnessa v. Janki Nath, 129
In re Alliance Bank of India, 504
In re Ambica Textiles, 585, 586
In re Arbitration between Mahmoud & Ispahani, 232
In re A Summers, 809
In re Atkinson & Horsell's Contract, 406
In re Auziani, 119
In re Badische Co. Ltd., 455
In re Bombay Saw Mill Co., 803, 899
In re Brookmans Trust, 258
In re Calcutta National Bank, 869
In re Cape Breton Co., 892
In re Casey's Patents, 47, 49
In re C.P. Motor Spirit Act, 5
In re Carter, 900
In re Claim by Aelbert Wagg & Co. Ltd., 10, 11
In re The Century Spinning and Manufacturing Co. Ltd., 1100
In re Comptoir Commercial Anversois v. Power Sow & Co., 115, 455
In re Cooks Settlement Trusts, 42
In re Douglas, 901
In re Empress Engineering Co., 864
In re European Bank, 934
In re Fenwick, 909
In re Flarell, 41
In re Fitzroy Steel Co., 909
In re Ganges Steam Car Co., 923

In re Gieve, 352
In re Haidicke & Lipski's Contract, 207
In re Hallett & Co., 903
In re Hare & O'Mores Contract, 873
In re Helbert Wagg & Co. Ltd., 272
In re Henderson, 110
In re Houghton Main Colliery Co., 659
In re Industrial Bank of Western India, 517
In re Kays Settlement, 43
In re L.C. Desouza, 842
In re Leeds Banking Co., 857
In re Leeds etc. Theatre of Varieties, 892
In re Llewellin, 899
In re Liverpool Household Stores, 839
In re Mahmoud & Ispahani, 59, 549, 550
In re Meades, 246
In re McArdle, 47
In re Mccorkindale, 7
In re Michelhan's Will Trusts, 284, 309
In re Miller, 32
In re Missouri S.S. Co., 779
In re Mountgarret, 27
In re Mussamat Chamia, 250
In re Nursey Spinning and Weaving Co., 194
In re Oyril Kirkpatrik, 806
In re Parker, 904
In re Payne, 909
In re Reckitt, Reckitt v. Reckitt, 18
In re Richardson, Exparte the Governors of St. Thomas, 717
In re Rivers Steam Company, 305
In re Russian Bank for Foreign Trade, 15
In re Schebsman, 41
In re Soames, 27
In re Stannard's Estate, 900
In re Stone & Saville's Contract, 406
In re Taylor, 901
In re Century Spinning and Manufacturing Co. Ltd., 1100
In re Trepca Mines Ltd., 277, 278
In re United Railways & Regla Warehouses Ltd., 9, 10, 15, 496, 497, 500
In re Vallibhai Adamjee, 417
In re Vic Mill Ltd., 658
In re Wallace, 849
In re Watson, Exparte Official Receiver, 74
In the matter of British General Insurance Co., 727
In the Matter of the G., 281
In the Voilu, 594
Instalment Supply (Pt.) Ltd. v. Union of India, 771
International Contractors Ltd. v. Prasanta Kumar Sur, 385, 389, 999, 1029
International Harvester Co. Ltd. v. Carrigans Hazeldere Pastoral Co., 830, 844
International Leasing Corpn. (Vic) Ltd. v. Aiken, 687
International Ry. Niagara Parks Commission, 667, 839
Inter Office Telephone Co. Ltd. v. Robert Freeman Co., 681, 682, 687
Inverskip S.S. Ltd. v. Bung, 479
Ionian Bank Ltd. v. Governer, 254
Ionides v. Pender, 184
Ipsarik Tailor, 310, 324
Iqbal Ahmed v. Mohammed Hanif, 277, 289
Iragala Kotayya v. Uddanti Subbayya, 949
Ireland v. Livingstone, 832, 845
Ireland v. Thomson, 855
Irnham v. Child, 1043
Iron & Hardware (India) Co. v. Shamlal & Bros., 674
Irrawady Flotilla Co. v. Bugwandas, 1, 4, 7, 777, 778, 782
Irvine v. Union Bank of Australia, 847, 864
Irvine v. Walson, 920
Isaack v. Clark, 797, 798
Isar Hasan Khan v. Deo Narain, 1015
Ishar Singh v. Pritam Singh, 1064, 1074
Ishaq Abdul Karim v. Madanlal, 110, 529
Isherwood v. Whitmore, 388
Ishur Chunder v. Jibun Kumari, 770
Ishvar v. Dewar, 1050
Ishwar Dayal v. Municipal Board, Rath, 118, 546, 550, 551
Ishwardas Hingwas v. Municipal Borough Rath, 87
Ishwar Dayal Hingwasia v. Municipal Board, 56
Ishwari Singh v. Narain Dat, 1074
Ismail Bhai Rahim v. Adam Osman, 384, 386
Ismail Alarakhia v. Dattatrava, 222
Ismail Ariff v. Mahommed Ghouse, 946, 952, 953
Ismail Hasan v. Mehdi Hasan, 665
Ismail Lebbe v. Bartbet & Co., 352, 361
Ismail Mussajee v. Hafiz Boo, 159, 171
Ismal v. Daudbhai, 369
Ismalji v. Raghunath, 234
Isri Dutt Koer v. Hansbutt Koerain, 1082
Issufalli Hassanally v. Ibrahim Dajibhai, 773
Istak Kamu v. Ranchhod Zipru, 260, 295, 302, 544, 545
Iswaran Pillai v. Sonnivevaru, 40
Italia v. Cowasjee, 235, 236
Ithad Motor Transport Ltd. v. Carnal Co-Operative Transport Society, 1111
Iveson v. Conington, 911
Iyyappa v. Ramalakshmamma, 1051

J. Dennis v. Munn, 232
J. Evans & Sons (Portsmouth) v. Andree Merzareo, 349, 883
J.F. Perrott & Co. v. Cohen, 524
J.H. Milner & Son v. Percy Belton Ltd., 348
J. Kithcen & Sons Pty. Ltd. v. Stewartscash & Carry Stores, 441
J. Thomas & Co. (Jute & Gunnies) Pvt. Ltd. v. Bengal Jute Baling Co. Ltd., 915
Jackson v. Cummins, 799
Jackson v. Horizon Holidays, 44, 404, 646
Jackson v. Stopford, 1043
Jackson v. Turnley, 1082
Jackson v. Union Marine Insurance Co., 466, 481, 487, 462
Jackson v. Watson & Sons, 629, 644, 646
Jacobs v. Credit Lyonnais, 779
Jacobs v. Latour, 900
Jacobs v. Morris, 849, 929
Jacques v. Lloyd D. George & Partner Ltd., 17, 838
Jadabendra v. Monorama Debya, 444
Jadabendra Nath Mishra v. Manorama Debya, 680
Jadhulal Motilal v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 86
Jadu Nath v. Chandra Bhushan, 1023
Jadu Nath Poddar v. Rup Lal Poddar, 542
Jadunath Singh v. Bishunath Singh, 950
Jafar Ali v. Ahmed Ali, 300
Jafferbhoy v. Charlesworth, 803, 872
Jaffer Mehar Ali v. Budge Budge Jute Mills Co., 228, 242, 381, 382, 383
Jagabhai v. Rustamji, 872

Jagadbandhu Chatterji v. Smt. Nalema Rani Ghose, 512, 513, 515
Jagadhari Bhandar & Jagdhari Gill Mills v. Commercial Union Assurance Co. Ltd., 339
Jagadindra Nath v. Chandra Nath, 295
Jagadish Chandra v. Kanai Lal, 117
Jagadish Prasad Pannalal v. Produce Exchange Corporation Ltd., 554
Jagadish Parsad Keshwani v. Fertilizer Corporation of India, 615
Jagannada Rao v. Venkata Kumara, 127
Jaganadham v. Raghunadha, 692
Jagannath v. Aaron & Co. 434
Jagannath v. Baij Nath, 243
Jagannath v. Fatehchand, 807
Jagannath v. Jhunia, 492
Jagannath v. Pitambar Mohapatra, 832
Jagannath v. Shivnarayan, 729, 742, 730
Jagannath v. Vishnu, 680
Jagan Nath v. Kachhalal, 1117
Jagannadha Rao v. Soma Lakshminarayana, 1009
Jagannadhayya v. Ramnatha, 710
Jagannatha v. Ram Rayer, 950
Jagannathdas v. Ramdas, 851
Jagannath Gir v. Tirguna Nand, 1074
Jagannath Prasad v. Chunilal, 569
Jagapati v. Ekambara, 851
Jagapatiraji v. Sadrusannama Arad, 592, 583
Jagardeo v. Phuljhari, 1053
Jagar Nath Singh v. Lalta Prasad, 123
Jagat Kishore v. Parmeshwar Singh, 666
Jagat Narain v. Mathura Das, 972
Jagat Narain v. Sri Kishan Das, 357
Jagat Singh v. Behari Lal, 1050
Jagat Tarini v. Naba Gopal, 393
Jagraj Singh v. Jaswantsingh, 1074
Jagat Industries Corporation v. Union of India, 424
Jagaveera Rama Ettappa v. Arumugam, 296
Jagdeosingh v. Bisambar, 974, 993, 994
Jagdish Mills Ltd. v. C.I.T., 841
Jagdish Mill Ltd. v. C.I.T., 841
Jagdish v. Rajendra, 1075
Jagdishpur Metal Industries v. Vijoy Oil Industries Ltd., 701, 702
Jagdish Prasad Pannalal v. Produce Exchange Corporation Ltd., 548, 602, 603, 607
Jagdish Prasad Keshwani v. Fartilizers Corp. of India, 96
Jagdish Prasad Poddar v. Peter Robinson, 1089
Jaggannath v. Secretary of State, 142
Jagjivandas v. King Hamilton & Co., 721, 749
Jag Narain v. Bhagwati Prasad, 954
Jagon Ram v. Mahadeo Prasad, 130
Jahar Roy v. Premji Bhimji Mansata, 422
Jahed Shaikh v. Kamlesh Chandra, 540, 546
Jaibai v. Joharmull Bothra, 748
Jai Gobind Singh v. Bagal Lal Singh, 94, 346
Jai Gopal v. Lalit Mohan, 1052
Jai Kishen Das v. Aiya Priti Nidhi Sabha, 663
Jai Kishan Dass v. Central Bank of India, 801
Jaikishan Das Mull v. Luchhminarain Kanoria & Co., 118
Jai Kumar v. Gauri Nath, 276
Jaina Beevi v. Govinda Swami, 990
Jain Brothers & Co. v. State of Rajasthan, 537
Jai Narain v. Mahabir Prasad, 132
Jainarain v. Surajmull, 97, 373, 415, 974, 1000, 1089
Jainarain v. Suraj Mull Sugar Mill, 406, 966
Jas Raj v. Municipal Board, Bikaner, 1125
Jairam v. Hari Singh, 962
Jairam Valji v. Indian Iron & Steel Co., 1127
Jaiswal Coal Co. v. Fatehgarh Cooperative Marketing Society Ltd., 888
J.K. Cotton Manufacturers Ltd. v. J.N. Tewari, 159
J&K Glass Manufacturing v. Emp., 589
J. Kitchen & Sons Pty. Ltd. v. Stewarts Cash & Carry Stores, 441
Jalim Singh v. Secretary of State, 781
Jamal v. Moolla Dawood & Sons Ltd., 436, 614, 615, 632, 642, 654, 657, 665
Jamadar Rai and others v. Emperor, 283
Jamahir Sao v. Satraghna Sonar, 982
Jamal Noor Mahomed Sait v. Abdul Kareem & Co., 1101
Jambu Rameswamy v. Sundararaja, 745
Jambu Rao v. Appayya, 245
James v. Kent, 555
James Blackwood v. Indian Chartered Bank of Australia, 1010
James Jones & Sons Ltd. v. Tankerville, 129, 966
James Scott & Sons Ltd. v. Del Sel, 454
James Buchanan & Co. Ltd. v. Babco Forwarding & Shipping (UK) Ltd., 778
James Findlay & Co. v. Kurk Hoo Tong, 657, 641, 636
James Shaffer Ltd. v. Findley Durham & Drochic. 406, 404
Jameson v. Midland Rly., 634
Jamila Khatoon v. Abdul Rashid, 249, 310
Jamiet Dawat v. Mohammad Sharif, 1076
Jammu & Kashmir Bank v. Attar-ul-Nisa, 608
Jamnabai v. Dattatraya, 1067
Jamnabai v. Murlidhar, 499, 511
Jamna Bai v. Vasanta Rao, 121, 130. 415, 1027, 1028,
Jamnadas v. Atmaram, 1117, 1118
Jamna Das v. Ram Autar, 36
Jamsetji v. Hirjibhai, 170, 498
Jamshed v. Burjori, 440, 442, 443, 979, 1018
Jamshed Kodaram Irani v. Burjorji Dhunjibhai, 960
Jamshedji v. Kashinath, 1024, 1025
Jamshedji v. Maganlal Bankeylal, 825
Jamuna v. Ramanup Singh, 1064, 1081
Jamunabai v. Narayanamurthy, 246
Jamuna Das v. Ram Kumar, 28
Jan and Son v. Cameron, 784
Janaki Bala v. Maheswar Das, 995
Janakumara v. Samantha Badra, 743
Janak Prasad v. Gopi Krishna, 283
Janaki Amma v. Parameswaran Nair, 1075
Janaki Ammal v. Narayanasami, 977, 1081
Janaki Ammal v. Ravendra Menon, 181
Janardan v. Venkatesh, 1041
Janardhan v. Gangaram, 870
Janardhan v. Joseph, 443
Janardhan Mishra v. State of U.P., 88
Jang Bahadur v. Rana Uma Nath, 40
Jang Bahadur v. Shankar Rai, 851
Jang Bahadur Singh v. Baijnath Tiwari, 20
Jangat Singh v. Ghulam Mahomed, 1019
Jangpal v. Western U.P. Electric Supply Co., 1125
Jania Beevi v. Bovindaswami, 1027
Janakibai v. Rama Manaji, 421, 573, 743
Janakibai Chunilal v. Melaram, 238

Jankibai v. Ratan Velu, 233, 236
Janaki Bala v. Maheshwar Das, 995
Janchaita Investment v. State of West Bengal, 248
Janki Das v. Ahmad Husain, 695
Janki Das-Gobind Ram v. Secretary of State, 785
Janki Prasad v. Kishen Dat, 1011
Janki Prasad Singh v. Baldeo Prasad, 568, 584
Janaki Ram v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 757
Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines, 262, 271, 272
Janu Sait v. Ramaswamy Naidu, 191
Janwatraj v. Jethmal, 721
Jacques v. Lloyd D. George & Partner, 193
Jaques v. Millar, 662
Jarao Kumari v. Basanta Kumar Roy, 576, 582
Jardine v. Jane, 455
Jarini Mohun v. Ganga Prasad, 951
Jarvis v. Swan Tourist Ltd., 646
Jasperson v. Dominion Tobacco Co., 1097
J. Spurling Ltd. v. Bradshaw, 62, 65, 69
Jaswantrai v. State of Bombay, 827
Jaswant Singh v. Issar Singh, 1036
Jaswant Rai v. Abnash Kaur, 181, 253, 682, 702
Jaswant Singh v. State of U.K., 226
Jatadhari Prasad v. Kishan Lal, 1026
Jateendramohan Mitra v. Prabodhkumar Datta, 1117
Jatindra Kumar Das v. Dhirajlal Vrajlal, 418
Jaunpur Municipality v. Banwari Lal, 843
Jaunpur Sugar Factory, In re, 374
Javerbhai v. Gordhan, 546
Jawaharlal v. Mathura Prasad, 340
Jawaharlal Burman v. Union of India, 97, 99, 408
Jawahar Singh v. Secretary of State, 401
Jawahar Theatre v. Kasturibai, 1119
Jawala Singh v. Mst. Raj Kaur, 763
Jean Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada, 760
Jean Kraut A.G. v. Albungy Fabrics Ltd., 391, 392
Jebara v. Ottoman Bank, 857
Jebsen v. E & W India Duck Co., 654
Jeewanbai v. Manordas, 6
Jeffreys v. Agra Bank, 801
Jeka Dula v. Bai Jivi, 1051, 1063
Jenkins v. Betham, 882
Jenkins v. Hutchinson, 910
Jenkins v. Read, 317
Jenkins & Co. v. Torquay Corporation,
Jennings v. Rundell, 123
Jennings Trustee v. King, 999, 1000
Jennings v. Johnson, 896
Jenyns v. Public Curator, 162
Jer & Co. v. C.I.T., 238
Jerome Francis v. Municipal Councill, 1084
Jervis v. Howle, 1042, 1043
Jessaram Fatch Chand v. O.N. Tankha, 903
Jessiram v. Tulsidas, 356
Jessore Loan Co. Ltd. v. Gopal Hari Ghose Choudhury, 566
Jessel v. Jessel, 502
Jethalal v. D.S.A. Laxmanwala, 131
Jethalal v. R.N. Kapur, 368, 373
Jethalal Modi v. Bachu, 1015
Jethibai v. Putlibai, 304, 306
Jethmal Madanlal v. Nevatra & Co., 353, 357, 666
Jethmal v. Hiralal, 497
Jethu Singh v. Kishan Singh, 1071, 1079
Jewan Lal Daga v. Nilmani, 982
Jewelowski v. Propp, 641
Jewson v. Arcose, 180
Jhala Umedsinhji Merubhabhai v. Indumati Markanday Trivedi, 578
Jhandoo Mal-Jagan Nath v. Phulchand Fateh Chand, 404
Jharia Coalfield Electric Supply Co. v. Kaluram Agarwala, 540
Jhinguri v. Durga, 243
J.H. Tod v. Lakhmidas, 353, 354, 355, 362
Jhuna v. Beni Ram, 1052
Jhun Jhunwala Bros v. Subbarameer, 342
Jhurailal v. Mohandas Bose, 680
Jiabai v. Joharmat Bothra, 747
Jiaram v. Sulakhan Mal, 492, 494, 495
Jiban Krishna Mullick v. Nirupama Gupta, 40
Jiban Ram v. Sagarmal, 492, 495
Jijibhai v. Nagji, 539, 546
Jinnah Ali v. Fateh Ali, 572, 584
Jitendra v. Smt. Maheshwari, 1000, 1019
Jitendra Chandra v. S.N. Banerjee, 516
Jitendra Nath Bose v. National Rolling & Steel Ropes ltd., 154
Jivanchand Gambhirmal v. Laxminarayan, 359
Jivatlal Pratapshi v. Lalbhai Fulchand Shah, 429
Jivraj v. Chainkaran, 615, 916
Jivraj Megji v. Poulton, 433
Jiwan v. Haji Oosman, 382
Jiwana v. Malak Chand, 283, 540
Jiwanandan Singh v. Sita Ram Prasad Singh, 1019
Jiwan Khan v. Habib, 1065
Jiwibai v. Ramkumar, 113, 851
J.M. Allan (Merchandising) Ltd. v. Cloke, 230, 231, 251
J.M. Lall v. Secretary of State, 1067
Jnan Chandra v. Manoranjan Mitra, 30, 36, 994
Jnanda Debi v. Nath Bank Ltd., 426
J.N. Sahini v. Madhya Bharat State, 429
Joachinson v. Meghjee Vallabhdas, 891
Joblin v. Watkins, 824
Jodha Mal v. Associated Hotels of India, 220, 1005
Jodhai Ramdayal v. Bharat Sukhdi, 807
Joel v. Law Union & Crown Insurance Co. 184
Joel v. Morrison, 787
Jogendra Chandra v. Birendra Lal, 951
Jogendra Mohan Sen v. Uma Nath Guha, 491
Jogendra Nath v. Chandra Kumar, 205
Jogesh Chunder Dutt v. Kali Churn Dutt, 613
Jog Lal v. Sahib Lal, 418
Jog Narain v. Badri Das, 587
Joga Mohen Dele v. Davdoong Burman, 255
Johar Mull Bhurotra v. Jatendra Nath Bose, 991
John Burrows Ltd. v. Subsurface Survegs Ltd. et el, 528
John v. Dodwell & Co., 599
John Carter Ltd. v. Hanson Haulage Ltd., 72, 76, 780
John Cowie v. William Remfry, 56, 137
John F. Goulding Property Ltd. v. The Victorian Railway Commr., 794
John Kuruvilla v. Parameshwaram Pillai, 747
John Lee & Sons Ltd. v. Railway Executive, 68, 451
John Minas Apear v. Louis Chird Malchus, 205
John McCann & Co. v. Pow, 838
Johannesburg Municipal Council v. Stewart, 408
Johnson v. Agnew, 1030
Johnson v. Buttress, 153, 157, 161, 164, 172
Johnson v. Crowe, 195
Johnson v. J., 401

Johnson v. Rex, 890
Johnson v. Royal Mail, 564
Johnson v. Shrewsbury and Birmingham Fy. Co., 1096
Johnson v. Stear, 814
Johnson v. Taylor Bros. Co., 377
Johnston v. Boyes, 105
Johnstone v. Braham & Campbell, 648
Johnstone v. Marks, 130
Johnstone v. Milling, 397, 402
Johnstone v. Mt. Jan Bibi, 848
Johrilal v. B.S. Co-operative Bank, 475
Johrimull Prahladrai v. Hiralal Seth, 429
Johurmull Bhutra v. Kedar Nath Bhutra, 851
Joint Family of Mukundas Raja Bhagwandas & Sons v. Bank of Hyderabad, 415
Jones v. Arthur, 389
Jones v. Barkley, 432
Jones v. Browden, 180
Jones v. Clifford, 218
Jones v. Daniel, 94
Jones v. Gardiner, 663
Jones v. Gordan, 820
Jones v. Lewis, 776
Jones v. Lowe, 115, 895, 897
Jones v. Lipman, 1016
Jones v. Littledale, 910
Jones v. Padvallan, 53, 347, 348
Jones v. Marshall, 812
Jones v. Merionetshire Permanent Benefit Building Society, 149, 166, 273, 275
Jones v. Page, 775
Jones v. Peppercorne, 899
Jones v. St. Johns College, 708
Jones v. Tankerville, 1130
Jones v. Thompson, 674
Jones v. Williams, 947
Jones v. Vernon's Pools Ltd. 337
Jones Ltd. v. Warring & Gillow Ltd., 588, 607, 821
Jonmenjoy v. Watson, 820, 848
Joravermal Sivlal v. Dadabhai Beramji, 358
Joravia Mell Champlal v. Jeygopaldas Ghanshandas, 88
Jorden v. Money, 519, 526
Jordon v. Ram Chandra Gupta, 896
Joscelin v. Shelton, 51
Joseph Abraham v. Tehsildar Meenachil, 725
Joseph v. Calcutta Corporation, 1063, 1065
Joseph v. National Magazine Co. Ltd., 645, 984, 987, 990
Joseph v. Solono, 290
Joseph v. Union of India, 218, 606
Joseph Constantine Steamship Line Ltd. v. Imperial Smelting Corpn. Ltd., 472, 473, 480, 481, 488, 452, 457, 463
Joseph Pyke & Co. v. Kedarnath, 377
Joseph Valamangalam v. State of Kerala, 520, 529, 574
Joseph Varghese v. Annamma, 82, 389, 440, 442
Joshi Kalidas v. Koli Dada, 913
Joti Bhushan v. B.N. Sarkar, 394
Joti Prashad v. Shotambar Nath, 1104
Jot Ram v. Jiwan Ram, 880
Jounpur Sugar Factory In Re, 374
Jowala Nath v. Rupa, 422
Jowand Singh v. Sawan Singh, 226
Jowand Singh v. Tirath Ram, 740
Joy Chand v. Dole Gobinda Das, 571, 573, 574
Joy Chunder v. Bipro Churn, 1105
Joy Lall & Co. v. Monmotha Nath, 912
Joyma Bewa v. Easin Sarkar, 721
Joyner v. Weeks, 654, 664
J.P. Misser v. B. Das, 236, 548
J.T. Stratfood & Sons Ltd. v. Lindley, 315, 528, 1088, 1097
Judah v. Emperor, 798
Jugal Kishore v. Chari & Co., 530
Jugal Kishore v. Charoo Chandra, 177
Jugalkishore Devideen v. Murugan Ghee Supply Co., 781
Jugal Kishore v. Goolbai, 111
Jugdeo Narain Singh v. Rajah Singh, 608
Jugmohandas v. Nusserwanji, 618
Juggernanth Sew Bux v. Ram Dayal, 362, 387
Juggessur v. Panchcowree, 283
Juggilal v. General Fibre Dealers, 12
Juggilal Kamalpat Oil Mills v. Union of India, 781
Juggilal Padampat v. Pratapmal Rameshwar, 266
Juggomohan Ghose v. Kaisreechund, 113
Juggomohan Ghose v. Manickchand, 8, 113
Jugoslavenska Oceanska Plovida v. Castle Investment Co. Inc. 392
Jugal Kishore v. Raw Cotton Co. Ltd., 810
Jugraj Singh v. Jaswant Singh, 1075
Jukni v. Queen-Empress, 250
Jungu v. Ahmad Ullah, 1102
Jureidini v. National British & Irish Millers Insurance Co. Ltd., 408
Jusaf Ismail Co. v. Governor-General in Council, 618, 777, 794
Jute Distributors v. Sushil Kumar Gupta, 821
Jwala v. Ganga Prasad, 952
Jwala v. Ram Dutta, 1102
Jwala Prasad v. Kopaya Munda, 421
Jwaladutt R. Pillani v. Bansilal Motilal, 4
Jwala Prasad v. Hoti Lal, 665
Jwala Prasad v. Jwala Bank Ltd., 472
Jyoti Bros v. Shree Durga Mining Co., 96, 409
Jyoti Kumar v. Hari Das, 244
Jyotirmayee Debi v. Durgadas Bannerjee, 1074
Jyoti Prakash v. Mukti Prakash, 807, 808, 813

K. Audilaxmanrao v. Raghusami Reddy, 722
K.C. Nanda v. Certificate Office, 1126
K.C.N. Gowda v. Molakram Tekchand & Sons, 701
K.E.M. Mohamed Ibrahim Marcon v. Perumal Padayachi, 19
K.F. Ganeshnath v. Ramdas, 433
K.G. Khosla v. Dy. Comm. C.T., 915
K.G. Jacob v. Ittyavira George, 492
K.K. Subramaniam v. M.P. Sreenivasan, 1103
K.K. Verma v. Union of India
K.L. Johar & Co. v. Dy. Commercial Tax Officer, 74
K. Mohanti v. Bhimpen Mohapatiani, 998
K.M.P.R. Firm v. The Official Assignee of Madras, 607
K. Panduranga v. State of Mysore, 864
K.P. Ambady v. K.M. Balan, 718
K.P. Chawdhary v. State of M.P.. 78, 96, 113, 114
K.R.M.A. Firm v. Manug P. Their, 1067
K. Simarthmull v. Nanjalingiah Gowder, 442
K.S. Raghavan v. Sowara Puttar Gramam, 687
K.S. Venkataraman & Co. v. State of Madras,

1125
K.T. Chandy v. Munsa Ram Zade, 20
K.V. Satyanarayana v. State Bank of India, 110
K.V. Suryanarayana v. State Bank of India, 113
K. Venkata Satyanarayan v. State Bank of India, 811
K. Venkatsubbayya v. K. Venkateswarlu, 434
Ka Ron Lanong v. State of Assam, 95, 676, 884
Kadi Meeran Beevi v. Muhammad Koya, 534
Kadiresan Chettiar v. Ramanathan Chetti, 866
Kadirsa Rawther v. Shanmugha Mudaliar, 428
Kahan Chand Dula Ram v. Daya Ram Amrit Lal, 302
Kahanlal v. Ardeshwar Lal, 1080
Kahler v. Midland Bank Ltd., 15, 254
Kaikhushroo v. C.P. Syndicate, 435
Kailash Chandra v. Brojendra, 419
Kailash Chandra Dutt v. Jogesh Chandra Majumdar, 1058
Kai Nam v. Ma Ka Chan, 525
Kaisar Vardha v. Marvat Rao, 1065
Kakkothya v. Derinjithaya, 419
Kaku Bhai & Co. v. Nathmal Kissanlal, 246
Kalabhai v. The Secretary of State for India, 1071
Kalachand Kyal v. Shib Chander, 692, 694
Kalappa Devara v. Krishna Mitter, 346
Kalavagunta Venkata v. Kalavagunta Lakshmi, 282
Kaliaperumal v. Visalakshi, 773
Kalianna Gounder v. Palani Gounder, 507
Kali Baksh v. Ram Gopal, 160, 169
Kalicharan v. Abdul Rahman, 725
Kalidas v. Nathu Bhagvan, 422, 423
Kalidas v. Parjaram, 1066, 1102
Kalidas Ghose v. Mugneeram Bangur, 440
Kali Kishen v. Golam Ali, 1065
Kali Kumari v. Mono Mohini, 228, 230, 257, 271, 545
Kalipada v. Kalicharan, 542, 1072
Kalipada v. Purnabala, 1055
Kalipada Dao v. Durgadas Roy, 302
Kali Prasad v. Mukutadhari Prasad, 1065
Kaliprasad Tewari v. Raja Sahib Prahlad Sen, 299
Kali Prasanna v. Ambica Charan, 746
Kalulal v. Shri Mannalal, 950
Kalumal Devandas v. Kessumal, 516
Kalu Ram v. Babu Lal, 1049
Kaluram v. Chimriram, 888, 892
Kalyandas Gokuldas v. Hiralal Karsandas, 1116
Kalyanasundaram v. Chockalingam, 238
Kalyani Achi v. Ramanathan Chettiar, 864, 865
Kalyani v. Tirkaram, 829
Kalyanpur Lime Works Ltd. v. State of Bihar, 971, 974, 976, 1031
Kalyan Sahai v. Lachminarain, 665
Kamakshi Achari v. Appavu Pillai, 367
Kamakshya Narain Singh v. Union of India, 1125
Kamal Kant Palival v. Prakash Devi Paliwal, 178, 179
Kamala Kant Ghose v. Malu Mohomed, 241
Kamala Mills v. Sales Tax Officer, Bombay, 604
Kamala Sugar Mills v. Ganja Bishan Bhajan Singh, 261, 263, 265
Kamala Ranjan v. Baijnath, 1023
Kamala Ranjan v. Baynath, 1023
Kamalammal v. Peeru Meera Leevvai Rowther, 665
Kamalawanti v. Life Insurance Corporation, 183
Kamaleswari Prasad v. Gangadhar, 495
Kamal Singh Dugar v. Corporated Engineers Ltd., 927, 928
Kamdev Nath v. Devendra Kumar, 998
Kameshwar Prasad Singh v. Shahamat Mian, 504, 988
Kameswaramma v. Sitaramanuja, 1013
Kameswar Rao v. Hemalathamma Rao, 209, 505, 1031
Kamini v. Kaliprosunna Ghose, 173
Kamini Kumar v. Birendra Nath, 277
Kaminikumar Basu v. Birendra Nath Basu, 272, 275, 277
Kamisetti Subbiah v. Katha Venkataswamy, 79
Kamla Devi v. Gur Dayal, 285
Kamla Kant Jha v. Muktinath Jha, 1072
Kamola Ram v. Kaura Khan, 131, 532
Kamorbai v. Badrinarayan, 1051
Kampai Lal v. Babu Ram, 532
Kamta Prasad v. Sheo Gopal Lal, 122, 532
Kamu v. Gonda Ram, 440
Kanabai Missir v. Sukunanan, 744
Kanai Lal v. Jatindra Nath, 954
Kanailal Mookerjee v. Kali Mohan, 747
Kanailal Dhorey v. Ralicharan Chatterjee, 1074
Kanai Prosad v. Jotindra Kumar, 750
Kanakaiya Chetty v. Union of India, 782
Kanakasabapathi Chetti v. Govindarajula Naidu, 297, 349
Kanak Sunder Bibi v. Ram Lakhan, 55
Kanakchand v. T.T. Supply Co., 342
Kanchanlal v. Hariprasad, 170, 662
Kandappa (or Ramalinga) Mudaliar v. Muthuswami Ayyar, 635, 667
Kandarpa Nag v. Banwarilal Nag, 444, 680
Kandasami v. Chinnabah, 127
Kandasami v. Ramaswami, 469
Kandasami Chettiar v. Shanmugha Thevar, 369, 1024, 1035
Kandasami Pillai v. Ramasami Monnadi, 403, 469
Kandaswami v. Narayanaswami, 258
Kundaswami v. Vagheesram Pillai, 1111
Kandaswamu Gounder v. Sivasubramania Iyer, 504
Kandhiya Lal v. Chandar, 422
Kanhailal v. Jai Lal, 1065
Kanhaiyalal v. Pt. Shirali, 808, 825
Kanhaiyalal v. Har Singh, 133
Kanhaiya Prasad v. Hamidan, 501
Kanhaya Lal v. Devi Das, 1036
Kanhayalal v. Girdharilal, 126
Kanhayalal v. Inderchandji, 582, 587, 845
Kanhaya Lal v. Narain Das, 698
Kanhaya Lal v. National Bank of India Ltd., 575, 588, 609, 610
Kanhri Lal v. Lakshmichand, 703
Kaniz Sugra Bibi v. Fidai Begam, 1074
Kanji v. Bhagwandas, 430
Kannan v. Krishnan, 1010, 1073
Kannan Nambiar v. Subramania, 177
Kannalal Damrulal v. Bhagwandas, 501
Kanniappa Nadar v. Karuppiah Nadar, 232, 239, 251, 549
Kanpur Iron & Brass Works, Flour Mills v. Banarsidas, 702, 707
Kanshi Ram v. Baij Nath, 440
Kanshi Ram v. Dula Rai, 885
Kanshiram v. Ishwar Das, 1011
Kanthu Punja v. Villamma, 425
Kantilal Babulal & Bros. v. H.C. Patel, 605

Kantilal Babulal & Bros. v. State of Gujarat, 605
Kantilal Manilal v. Ranchhoddas, 903
Kanto Mohan Mullick v. Gour Mohan Mullick, 419
Kanwar Bhan Sukha Nand v. Ganpat Rai Ram Jiwan, 362, 434
Kanwar Chiranjit Singh v. Har Swarup, 702
Kanwar Rauzor v. Hebbert, 914
Kanwarani Madanelati v. Raghunath Sing, 162, 171
Kapila Textiles v. Madhava & Co., 181
Kapur Chand Godha v. Mir Nawab Himayatalikhan, 5, 109, 413, 414, 517, 518
Kapurji Magniram v. Panaji Devichand, 920
Kappuswami Chettiar v. Aramugam Chettiar, 295
Karachi Oil Products v. Narendra Singhji, 1018, 1020
Karamali v. Norain Singh, 506
Karamat Ali v. Mohammad Yunus, 1085
Karamchand v. Parekh, 540
Karamchand Thaper v. Sales Tax Officer, 603, 605, 683
Karamchand Thaper & Bros. v. H.H. Jethanandani, 331, 332
Karampalli v. Thekku Vittil, 517
Karamshi v. State of Bombay, 589, 590, 591
Karanja Municipality v. New East India Press Co. Ltd., 609
Karan Narain v. Volkart Bros., 407
Karaun Hajra v. Gokul Chand, 973
Karberg & Co. v. Blyth, Green Jourdain & Co., 485, 486
Karflex Ltd. v. Poole, 771
Kariandan Kumber v. R.I.S.N. Co., 787, 858
Karim Bakhsh v. Bithul Das, 728
Karim Baksh v. Rahman, 1065
Karim Bux v. Devi, 656
Karim Chowkidar v. Sundar Bewa, 919
Karim Khan v. Jaikaran-Godadmal, 128
Karl Ettlinger v. Chagandas, 475
Karm Chand v. Basant Kuar, 127, 301
Karmani Industrial Bank Ltd. v. Province of Bengal, 1102
Karnadhar v. Hariprasad, 1112
Karnal Distillery Co. v. Ladli Prasad Jaiswal, 153, 154, 163, 1111
Karnadhan Uttari Prasad, 1123
Karnani Industrial Bank Ltd. v. Province of Bengal, 681
Karnidan Sarda v. Sailaja Kanta Mitra, 275
Karnataka Bank Ltd. v. Gajanand Kulkarni, 754
Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Willis, 62, 63, 74, 75
Karsan v. Katlu, 235
Karsandas Thacker v. Saran Engineering Co. Ltd., 649
Karsondas Kalidas v. Chhotalal Motichand, 1015, 1033
Kartari v. Kewal Kreshan, 163
Karthivayami v. Govindram, 1100
Kartik Chandra Bora v. Bhushanchandra Guru, 449
Karunakumar v. Lankaran, 357
Karunamayee Debi v. Maya Mayi Debi, 167, 171
Karuppan Chettiar v. Somasunderam Chettiar, 429
Karuppiah Pillai v. Narayana Mudaliar, 1105
Karuppiah v. Ponnuchami, 287
Karuppannan v. Pambayan, 255
Karuppaswami v. Chottabhai, 503
Karuthan Chettiar v. Chidambaram Chettiar, 895
Kasal Narain v. Laxmi Narasimman, 823
Kashiba v. Shripat, 120, 729, 745, 730
Kashinath and another v. Bapurao & others, 271
Kashinath Chatterjee v. Chundy Charan Bannerjee, 297
Kashinath Das v. Nisakar Rout, 852
Kashi Nath v. Agra Municipality, 1116
Kashi Nath v. Durga Prasad, 158
Kashi Nath v. Nil Ratan Saha, 575, 586
Kashi Nath v. Ram Jiwan, 1108
Kashi Nath Roy v. Surbanand Saha, 506
Kashi Prasad v. Kedar Nath Sahu, 243
Kashi Nath v. Nil Ratan Saha, 586
Kashma Dubain v. Ram Dawan Tewari, 1056
Kashmir Kaur v. Manohar Singh, 1110
Kasiram v. Harnandroy, 427
Kasler & Cohen v. Slavouski, 624
Kastoori Devi v. Chiranji Lal, 51
Kasturamma v. Venkatasurayya, 36
Kasurchand Jiwaji v. Maneckchand Devchand, 303, 305
Katasubayya v. Venkataswarlu, 1017
Kathame Natchiar v. Dora Singh, 352, 1057, 1059, 1061, 1063, 1072, 1079, 1082
Kathu Jairam Gujar v. Vishwanath Ganesh Javadekar, 290
Kattiya Pillai v. Ramaswami Pillai, 1049
Kaufman v. Gerson, 166, 167, 190, 191, 273
Kavukutty Amma v. Kaliani Amma, 845
Kazan Singh v. Ralla Ram, 1116
Kazim Ali v. Sadiq Ali, 579
Kearley v. Thompson, 540, 544
Kearns v. Leaf, 1111
Keay v. Fenwick, 868
Kedan Prasad v. Ganga Prasad, 1051
Kedari Bin Ranu v. Atmarambhat, 173, 309
Kedar v. Kedar, 1055
Kedar Lal v. Hari Lal, 421
Kedarmal v. Surajmal, 430
Kedarmal Bhuramal v. Surajmal Govindram, 427 880, 894
Kedar Das Mohta v. Nandlal Potdar, 39
Kedar Nath v. Chajju Ram, 492
Kedar Nath v. Gorie Mahomed, 26
Kedar Nath v. Manak Chand, 417
Kedar Nath v. Prahlad Rai, 261, 837
Kedar Nath Lal v. Sheo Narain Ram, 397, 497, 516, 517
Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai, 261, 264, 268, 271, 589
Kedia v. Purushottam, 82
Keenan v. Handley, 33, 34
Keen v. Mear, 1033
Keene v. Thomas, 799
Keighley Maxted & Co. v. Durant, 864
Keir v. Leeman, 273
Keka v. Sirajuddin, 415
Keko v. Esquire Pleasure Tours Ltd., 647
Kelappan Nambiar v. Kunhi Raman, 720, 729, 730
Kellock v. Enthoven, 715
Kelly v. Solari, 598, 607
Kelner v. Baxter, 836, 864, 916
Kelson v. Imperial Tobacco Co. Ltd., 1103
Kemble v. Farren, 679, 680, 682
Kemp v. Falk, 823
Kempong Prospecting Ltd. v. Schmidt., 30, 718
Ken v. Mear, 662

Kendell v. Hamilton, 414, 415, 418
Kennard v. Cory Bros., 1116
Kennedy v. De Trafford, 835, 844
Kennedy v. Gonveia, 911
Kennedy v. Panama Royal Mail Co., 136, 191, 212, 213, 215, 219
Kennedy v. Vercoe, 371
Kensington v. Inglis, 913
Kent v. East Suffolk Catchment Board, 883
Kenward v. Kenward, 488
Kepong Prospecting Ltd. v. Schmit, 31, 33, 36
Kerala Valley Tea Co. v. Lachminarayan, 934
Kerala Electrical & Allied Engineering Co. Ltd. v. Canara Bank, 339
Kesarichand v. Governor-General in Council, 457
Kesarichand v. Merwanjee, 353, 363
Kesarichand v. Shillong Banking Corporation, 540, 661
Kesarimal v. Suryanarayang, 812, 814
Kesavulu v. Arithulai, 173, 176, 701
Keshabchandra Dutta v. Bally Yung Estates, 1035
Keshav v. Bai Gandi, 250, 284
Keshav Kishore v. State of Bihar, 581, 596, 593, 589, 592
Keshava Lal v. Lalbhai Trikamlal Mills, 347, 530, 622
Keshavlal v. Pratap Singh, 747
Keshavlal Brothers & Co. v. Diwanchand & Co., 652, 653
Keshavlal Lakshman Das v. Narsingdas Kalidas Patel, 1073
Keshav Mills Co. v. Income Tax Commissioner, 389, 430
Keshi Nath v. Bapurao, 228
Keshoram Industries & Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Union of India, 612
Keshub Chandra Dutta v. Ballyange Estates Ltd., 1052
Keshub Lall v. Radha Raman, 170
Keshub Mohindra v. Commissioner of Gift Tax, 24, 25, 293, 294
Kesrimal v. Bansilal, 807
Kessoram Poddar v. Secretary of State, 590, 592
Kessoram Industries v. Commissioner of Wealth Tax, 26, 371, 678
Kessowji v. Hurjivan, 167, 275
Ket Prasad v. Chandra Mal, 1050
Keunard v. Cory Bros., 990
Khader Khan Sahib v. Doraiswami Chettiar, 581
Khadervelu v. Secretary Madras State Khadi and Village Industries Board, 986
Khagaram Das v. Ramsankar Das, 699, 700
Khairat Hussain v. Haidri Begam, 582
Khali Panigrahi v. Kamla Devi 972, 1029
Khanchand v. Jacobabad Municipality, 1065
Khandesh Lakshmi Vilas Mills Co. v. Vinayak, 340
Khan Gul v. Lakna Singh, 121, 123, 124, 125, 126, 1050, 1054
Kharag-Narain v. Hamida Khatoon, 1055
Kharag Singh v. Bhola Nath, 692
Kharbuja Koer v. Jangbahadur, 169
Khardah Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co., 16, 19, 118, 361, 380, 381, 408, 474, 500
Khari v. Kamala Devi, 1029
Khatijabai Hasham v. Zenab, 959, 993, 1007, 1021, 1022
Khatrapal v. Madhukar Pictures, 720
Khatun Bibi v. Abdullah, 740
Khetishchandra Sahu v. Rajkishore Sahu, 583
Khetra Mohan v. Nishi Kumar, 655
Khimji Kiwerji Shah v. Lalji Karamsey, 121, 401, 672
Khimji Mulji v. Popatlal Bhanji, 1104, 1105, 1117
Khimji Punja & Co. v. Devshi Bhanji, 362
Khimji Punja & Co. v. Tokessey, 353
Khirod Bihari Dutt v. Man Gobinda, 31, 33
Khitendra Nath Bhoomirathan v. K.S.N. Chari, 358
Khivrajdhandra v. Esso Standard Eastern Inc., 989
Khoury v. Khayat, 390
Khozan Singh v. The Secretary of State, 604
Khubchand v. Beram, 259
Khumar v. Jin Rai, 541
Khunni Lal v. Bankey Lal, 982
Khurram Singh v. Bhawani Bakhsh, 692
Khurshed Alam v. Asa Khan, 895
Khushal v. Labhan Rao, 539
Khushalbai Mahijibhai Patei v. Mohammed H. Rahim Bux, 38
Khushalcnand v. Ibrahim, 6
Khushalrao v. Bapurao, 420
Khushal Singh v. Khawani, 568, 571
Khushilal v. Nandlal, 1072
Khushi Ram v. Munshilal, 346, 988
Khushi Ram v. Nand Lal, 1063
Khushud Husain v. Janki Prasad, 952
Khwaja Muhammad Khan v. Husaini Begam, 29, 30, 36, 40, 258
Kiam-ud-din v. Rajoor, 501
Kidar Nath v. Ajudhia, 566
Kidar Nath Beharilal v. Shimbhu Nath-Nanda Mal, 434, 616
Kidder Minister v. Hardwick, 869
Kilchener v. Grubeen, 1128
Kilmer v. British Columbia Orchard Lands Ltd., 690
Kimber v. Willett, 646
Khimjilal Manohardas v. Durgaprasad • Debiprosad, 449
Kinahan & Co. v. Parry, 846
King v. Benchers of Lincoln's Inn, 315
King Emperor v. Naga Po Chet, 818
King v. Gillet, 511
King v. Hoare, 416
King v. Phillips, 673
King v. Poggioti, 999
King ex parte Unity Joint v. Stock Mutual Banking Association, 124
King Gee Clothing Co. Pty. Ltd. v. The Commonwealth, 348
King's Norton Metal Co. v. Edridge Merrett & Co. Ltd., 142, 143
Kingsman v. Kingsman, 796
Kingwood Estate v. Anderson, 1025
Kingston v. Preston, 432
Kinlain v. Ulster Bank Ltd., 661
Kinloch v. Craig, 804
Kirby v. Cowderoy, 947
Kiran Arora v. Ram Prakash Arora, 254
Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Dewani, 224, 1055
Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Ranchhod Das Dewani, 222, 223, 231, 233, 240, 246, 267, 270, 543, 545, 600, 601, 1112
Kirpala Singh v. Smt. Kartare, 998
Kirk v. Bell, 839
Kirkman v. Shawcross, 264

Kirkness v. John Hudson & Co. Ltd.. 151
Kirkstall Brewery v. Furness Railway Co., 932
Kirpa Ram v. Sami-ud-din, 173
Kirtee Chunder v. Struthers, 421
Kirti Chunder Chatterjee v. Atkinson, 176, 695
Kirtyanand v. Ramanand, 296, 1130
Kishan v. Sitaram, 699
Kisandas v. Dhondu, 302
Kisanlal v. Kisan Singh, 693
Kisanlal v. Namdeo, 1002, 1033
Kisanlal v. Vithal, 479
Kishangarh Municipality v. M.K. Mills Ltd., 557
Kishanlal v. Bhanwarlal, 358, 589, 902
Kishan Lal v. Megh Singh, 575
Kishan Lal v. Union of India, 649, 866
Kishansingh v. Mohindersingh, 1011
Kishen Prasad v. Kunj Behari Lal, 440
Kishen Sahai v. Bakhtawar Singh, 613
Kishore Chand Shiv Charan Lal v. Badaun Electric Supply Co. Ltd., 941
Kishori Lal v. Beg Raj, 1060
Kisondas v. Dhondu, 260, 302
Kistoormal v. Sattar Mohammad, 1041
Kishun Das v. Ganesh Ram, 900
Kistnasami Pillai v. Municipal Commissioner, Madras, 337
Kitchen v. Royal Air Force, 668
Kleinert v. Abosso Gold Mining Co., 114, 436
Kleinwort v. Cossa Marittima Genoa, 855
Knight v. Marjoribanks, 156
Knightsbridge Estate Trust Ltd. v. Byrne, 330, 331
Kochuvareed v. Mariappa, 211, 373, 970
Kodusao v. Surajmal, 902
Koegler v. The Coringa Oil Co. Ltd., 343
Kollman v. Watt, 635
Kollipara Sriramulu v. Aswatha Narayana, 95
Kolavpu Ayyar v. Ranga Vadhyar, 379
Kollappa Setty v. Lakshminayaran Rao, 1100
Kolluraswami v. Veerayya, 1081, 1082
Ko Maung v. Ma Hla On. 123
Kombi v. Aundi, 1078
Kondaswami v. Gavheesam, 1077
Kondayya v. Narasimhulu, 873
Kondeti Rama Row v. Nukamma, 542
Kong Yee Lone & Co. v. Lowji Nanjee, 352, 353, 354, 363, 365
Koomud Chunder Das v. Chunder Kant Mookerjee, 344
Ko Pa Tu v. Azimulla, 289
Kores Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Kolk Manufacturing Co., 312, 317, 320, 321
Kotayya v. Mahalakshmma, 543
Koteswar Vithal Kamath v. K. Rangappa Baliga, 549
Kothanda v. Thesu Reddiar, 284
Kothandapani v. Dhanammal, 259
Kothandaraman v. C.I.T., 832, 833
Kothari v. Kala Sing, 1105
Kotrabassappaya v. Chenvirappaya, 1051
Kotumal v. Dhar Mahomed, 155
Koufos v. C. Czarnekow Ltd., 620, 638, 639
Koylash Chunder v. Tariney Churn, 100
Koze v. Makkan Singh, 171
Krehl v. Qurrel, 1117
Krell v. Henry, 220, 373, 449, 450, 453, 456, 461, 462, 463, 464, 480, 484, 488
Kripaldas Jivrajmal v. Manager Eneumberad Estates, 369
Krishanlal Biharilal v. Hari Raman Rao, 1109
Krishna Yachendra v. Apparao, 720
Krishna v. Akilanda, 951
Krishna v. Ganapathi, 832
Krishna v. Krishnasami, 918
Krishna Aiyar v. Shamanna, 1121
Krishna Bhatta v. Narayana Achari, 28, 711
Krishnabhupati v. Ramamurti, 1074
Krishna Chandra v. Hemaja Sarkar, 296
Krishna Chandra v. Rishabha Kumar, 129
Krishna Chandra Dey v. W. Graham, 974
Krishna Chandra Sharma v. Ram Gulam, 441
Krishna Charan v. Sanat Kumar Das. 421, 701
Krishna Chetti v. Gilbert Pinto, 681
Krishna Kali Mullick v. Babulal Shah, 1101, 1107
Krishna Kishore v. Sankarsaran, 1110
Krishna Iyer v. Official Liquidator, 302
Krishnaji v. Mahmud Hussain, 950
Krishnaji v. Rajmal, 504
Krishnaji v. Ram Chandra, 1005
Krishna Jute Mills Co. v. Innes, 621
Krishna Kumar v. Brojo Nath Roy, 698
Krishna Kishore Kar v. United Commercial Bank, 803
Krishna Lal Sadhu v. Pramila Bal Dasi, 30, 37, 40, 43
Krishnamachari v. Ganganarau, 993
Krishna Menon v. Narayana Ayyar, 234
Krishnamoorthy Kounder v. Paramsiva Kounder, 1100
Krishnamurthy & Co. v. Sitaramayya, 548
Krishnamurthi v. Bhramaramba, 164
Krishnan v. Keral Gilt Edged Security Life Assurance Co. Ltd., 430
Krishnan v. Sankara Varma, 546
Krisnappa Chetti v. Adimula Mudali, 242
Krishna Ram v. Rakmini Sewak Singh, 420
Krishna Rao Anjaneyulu, 1096
Krishna Rao v. Babaji, 17
Krishna Rao v. Kodandarama, 238, 260, 561
Krishna Rao v. Kodanda Rao, 550
Krishna Yachendra v. Apparao, 720
Krishnarao v. State of Andhra, 114
Krishnarav v. Manaji, 393
Krishnarav v. Vasudev, 948, 953
Krishnaswamy v. Mohanlal, 389
Krishnaswami v. Travancore National Bank, 749
Krishnasami Pattar v. Gopala Krishna Reddiar, 755
Krishnaveni Ammal v. Soundararajan. 1065, 1067
Krishna Kamini Chowdhrani v. Gopi Mohan, 568
Kristodhone Ghose v. Brojo Gobindo Roy, 290
Krishto Kishore Chowdhrain v. Radha Roman, 744
Kruger v. Wilcox, 900
Kshtish Chandra v. Emp., 199, 200
Kshetra Mohan Das v. D.C. Babu, 903
Kshetranath Sikdar v. Harasukdas Balkissendas, 500
Kshirode Bihari v. Man Gobinda, 36
Kshitish Chandra Mondal v. Shiba Rani Debi, 470
Ku Amina Saddat v. Municipal Board Bahraich, 1101
Kuber Nath v. Mahli Ram, 333
Kuber Saran v. Raghubar, 1049
Kuch War Lime & Stone Co. v. Dehri Rohtas L.R. Co., 836
Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co. v. Secretary of State,

220, 224, 836
Kulsekharapatnam Co-operative Society v. Radhelal, 876, 906, 908
Kulashekharaperumal v. Pathukutty, 293, 298, 865
Kuldip Dube v. Mahaul Dube, 1037
Kuju Collieries Ltd. v. Jarkhana Mines Ltd., 537, 539, 541, 549
Kumarappan (D.V.) v. Suppiah (L), 390, 883
Kumandas v. Kameshwar Singh, 419
Kumaraswamy v. Alasius, 440, 1010, 1011
Kumaraswami v. Karuppaswami, 401
Kumar Nath Buttacharjee v. Nobo Kumar, 716
Kumar Ranjan Banerjee v. Manabendu, 1072
Kumari Regma v. St. Aloysius Higher Secondary School, 986
Kumber v. The B.I.S.N. Co., 778, 779
Kumeda Charan v. Asutosh Chattopadhya, 886
Kummakutty v. Neelakandan Nambudiri, 610
Kunchithapatham v. Palamalai, 583
Kundan v. Kartara, 89
Kundan Bibi v. Sree Narayan, 127
Kundan Lal v. Bhikhari Das, 584
Kundan Lal v. Hukum Singh, 1066, 1067
Kundan Lal v. Jaganath, 492
Kundan Lal v. Nathu, 282
Kundan Lal v. Secretary of State for India, 88, 99
Kundal Mal v. Thikana Siryari, 1102
Kunhamed v. Kutti, 1066
Kunhan v. Bank of Madras, 801
Kunham Elya Nayar v. Krishna Pillai, 810
Kunhayan Haji v. Mayan, 471
Kunhiamma v. Kunhunni, 1074
Kunhipi v. Kalliani, 125
Kunhiraman v. Govindram, 568
Kunja Lal v. Narsamba, 6
Kunjamohan v. Karunakanta, 492
Kunj Bihari Lal v. Bhargava Commercial Bank Ltd., 814
Kunjbeharilal v. Illahi Baksh, 698
Kunj Bihari Prandji v. Keshavlal, 1071, 1072
Kunjilal v. Ram Pershad, 1012
Kunju v. Narayanan, 713
Kunstler v. Kunstler, 1071
Kunwar Bahadur v. Suraj Baksh, 504
Kunwar Ram Lal v. Nil Kanth, 278
Kunwar Chiranjit Singh v. Har Swarup, 703
Kunju Naina v. Eapen Chacko, 420
Kunju Collieries v. Jarkhand Mine, 267, 270
Kuppa Gurukkal v. Dora Sami, 279, 281, 286
Kuppan Chettiar v. Ramaswami Chettiar, 715
Kuppusami Naidu v. Smith & Co., 343
Kuppuswami v. Arumugam, 199
Kuppuswami Chettiar v. Aramugam Chettiar, 295
Kurpal Hemraj v. Shamrao, 1047
Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi, 943
Kurian v. C.C.M.S. Society, 747 748
Kuruppiah v. Ponnuchami, 287
Kush Kanta Barkakati v. Chandra Kanta Kakati, 781, 790, 794
Kusum Kumari v. Debi Prasad, 8
Kutchwar Lime & Stone Co. v. Dehri Rohtas Light Railway & Co. 831
Kuttamba Rao Sastry v. Dakshima Murthy, 443
Kuttarswami v. Veerayya, 1056
Kuttikrishnan Nair v. Appa Nair, 922
Kutub-ud-Din v. Bashir-ud-Din, 700
Kutumba Rama Sastry v. Dakshina Murthy, 407
Kuverji v. G.I.P. Ry. Co. 777
Kuvarji v. Moti Haridas, 531
Kuverji v. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway Co., 7, 777
Kwei Tek Chao v. British Traders & Shippers Ltd., 377, 623, 629

L. v. d. 341
L. Amma v. K.N.G. Nair, 1025
L. Estranga v. F. Grancole Ltd., 76, 77, 193, 196
L.C. & D.R. Co. v. S.E.R. Co., 685
L'lotrange v. F. Coraucob Ltd., 193, 195
LEP Airways v. Rollswin, 738, 744
L.I.C. of India v. Parvath Vardhini, 98
L.J. Leaden & Co. Ltd. v. Sardens Stenner & Co., 1122
L.P. Narayan v. Government of Madras, 56
L.G.O. Co. v. Hollowway, 760
L.P.K. Murthy & Bros. v. Government of Madras, 57
La Blancha v. L & N.W.R. Co., 653
La Banque v. La Banque, 288, 867
Labh Singh v. Jamnun, 547, 548
Labouchere v. Dawson, 327, 329
Lacey v. Hil, 902
Lachha Mal v. H.N., 1125
Lachia & Co. Ltd. v. Coffee Board, 641
Lachhman v. Bapu Kandu, 728, 730
Lachhman v. Shambhu Narain, 945, 946, 949, 952
Lachhmandas v. Bhoja Ram, 678
Lachhmandas v. Hakim Sita Ram, 118, 287
Lachhmi Narain v. Bharat Bank, 511
Lachhuram v. Madhoram, 1026
Lachman Das v. Chater, 713
Lachmeshwar Sahai v. Moti Rani, 171
Lachmi Dai Mohutain v. Kissen Lal, 90
Lachmi Narain v. B.B. & C.L. Railway, 772
Lachmi Narain v. Fatah Bahadur, 10, 131
Lachminarain v. Hoare, Miller & Co., 502
Lachmi Narain v. Vernon, 658
Lachmi Prasad v. Lachmi Narain, 539
Lachoomal v. Radheshyam, 242
Lachhoomal v. Radheysham, 245, 246, 252
Ladha Singh v. Munshiram Agarwalla, 1040
Ladhu v. S.P. & D. Railway, 781
Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. 152, 154, 155, 157, 160, 165, 168, 172
Lady Langdale v. Briggs, 1057, 1082
Lady Stanley of Alderley v. Earl of Shrewslury, 1117
Ladywell Mining Co. v. Brookes, 892
Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, 882
Lahoran Sheik Nabbi v. Madar Baksh, 249
Lahore Electric Supply Co. Ltd. v. Secretary of State, 1111
Laidlaw v. Organ, 180, 182
Laird v. Pim, 967
Lake v. Simmons, 141, 143
Lakeman v. Mountstephen, 720, 721, 910
Lakhaji Dollaji & Co. v. Boorugu, 910, 787, 789
Lakhani Sahakari v. Moreshwar, 837
Lakhamsey Ladha & Co. v. Lakmichand, 826
Lakhi Chand v. G.I.P. Ry. Co., 785
Lakhiram Agarwalla v. Braijal Agarwala, 541
Lakshmammal v. Narasimharaghavan, 506
Lakshmanan v. Arunachalam, 582, 587
Lakshmanan v. Kamarajendara, 479, 560
Lakshmana Ayyan v. Rangasami Ayyan, 420
Lakshmandas v. Dasrat, 1011
Lakshmandas v. Lane, 919, 920

Lakshman Prasad v. Achuthan Nair, 537, 540, 607
Lakshmanswamy Mudaliar v. L.I.C., 27, 295
Lakshmi v. Tara, 1116
Lakshmiamma v. Tulangala Narayana Bhatia, 163
Lakhmichand v. Chotooram, 871, 873
Lakshmichand v. Niadarmal, 246
Lakshmi Das v. Babu Megh, 789
Lakshmi Das v. Roop Lall, 158, 160, 169, 177
Lakshmi Ginning & Oil Mills v. Amrit Banaspati, 98, 99, 830, 837
Lakshmiji Sugar Mills Co. Ltd. v. Banwari Lal, 855
Lakshmi Narain v. Bala Parshad, 356
Lakshmi Narain v. The Secretary of State for India, 789
Lakshminarayana v. Subhadri Ammal, 259, 301
Lakshmi Narayan Bannerje v. Tara Prasonna Banerjee, 1120
Lakshminarayana Reddiar v. Singaravelu, 1022, 1023, 1024
Lakshminarayan Ram Gopal v. Government of Hyderabad, 832, 833, 834
Lakshminarayan Ram Niwas v. Compagnia Genovese, 341
Lakshminarayan Ramniwas v. Lloyds Trestino Societa, 13, 14, 341, 342
Lakshminarayan Ramniwas v. N V. Vereenigde, 340
Lakshmishankar v. Motiram, 916
Lakshmishankar v. Vishnuram, 416, 417
Lal v. Hira Jan Berin, 691
Lala Babu Ram v. Ganga Devi, 303, 539, 547
Lala Balla Mal v. Ahad Shad, 175
Lala Banshidhar v. Bank of Bengal, 500
Lala Banshidhar v. The Government of Bengal, 732
Lala Kundan Lall v. Mst. Musharrafi, 170
Lala Ram Sarup v. Court of Wards, 280
Lala Muddan Gopal Lal v. Smt. Khikhinda Koer, 95, 526
Lal v. Hira Jan Berin, 691
Lal Batcha Saheb, v. Arcot Narainaswami Mudaliar, 385
Lalbhai Dalpatbhai & Co. v. Chittaranjan, 1127
Lalbhai v. Pandya, 316, 318, 321, 322
Lal Achal Ram v. Raja Karim Husain Khan, 281
Lal Chand v. Union of India, 620, 640
Lalchand Balkissan v. John L. Kersten, 427
Lalchand Dharamchand v. Alliance Jute Mills Co. Ltd., 497, 673, 853
Lalchand Ramchand v. Pyare, 805, 706
Lal Dhar v. Piarey Lal, 126
Laliteshwar Prasad v. Bateshwar Prasad, 58
Lalit Kunaar v. Bhagoban Ch. Sarma, 1076
Lalit Mohan v. Haridas, 824
Lalitmohan Dutt v. Basudeo Dutt and another, 301
Lalit Mohan Mitra v. Samendrakumar Ghosh, 1101, 1107 Lalji v. Ramji, 1027
Lalji v. Visvanath, 1117
Lalji Haridas v. Mulji Manilal, 1065, 1070
Lalji Jetha v. Kalidas, 944
Lallan Parshad v. Rahmat Ali, 806, 807, 808, 811, 812, 813
Lalli v. Ram Prasad, 173
Lalljee Mahomed v. Dadabhai, 870, 897
Lalman Shukla v. Gauri Datt, 108
Lal Saha v. Man Mohan Gossami, 507
Lal Singh v. Tejmal, 1020
Lalu v. Fazal Din, 1081
Lamari v. Dixon, 997
Lamb v. Evans, 324, 1129
Lamb v. London Borough Camden, 651
Lamb (W.T.) & Sons (W.T. Lamb & Sons) v. Goring Brick Co. Ltd., 829, 835, 844
Lambat v. Co-operative Insurance Society Ltd., 185
Lambhain Ganjaram v. Rajaram Laxman, 240
Lampleigh v. Brathwait, 42, 47, 564, 580, 718
Lamprall v. Billericay Union, 447
Lamson Pneumatic Tube Co. v. Philips, 328, 329
Lancaster v. J.F. Turner & Co., 647
Lancashire Loans Ltd. v. Black, 158, 159, 173
Land Mortgage Bank of India v. Ahmedbhoy Habibbhoy, 1107 Landless v. Wilson, 601
Lang v. Smyth, 934
Langhorn v. Allnut, 833
Langton v. Hughes, 270
Largen & Wind Ltd. v. Bell, 1028
Lara v. Hill, 895
Larking v. Great Western (Nepeare) Gravels Ltd., 660
Larinos v. Bonery Y. Gunety, 632
Larner v. London County Council, 600, 604, 606
Larrings & Co. v. Societe Franco-Americaine des Phosphates, 463, 475, 480
Last-Harris v. Thomson Bros., 644
Latafatunnissa v. Shaharbanu Begum, 310
Latchia Setty & Co. Ltd. v. Coffee Board Bangalore, 83
Latcharao v. Bhimayya, 120, 123, 124, 125
Latif Jahan Begum v. Mahomed Nabi Khan, 155, 296
Laton v. Livon, 442
Laughter v. Pointer, 930
Lavarack v. Woods of Colchester Ltd., 637, 642, 659, 660
Lavery v. Pursell, 1032
Law v. Redditch Local Board, 708
Law v. Harragin, 218
Laws v. Florinplace Ltd., 1100
Lawford v. Bellericay Rural Distt. Council, 550, 551, 553, 556
Lawler v. Union of Post Office Workers, 1103
Lawless v. Calcutta Landing & Shipping Co., 884
Lawrence v. Cassel, 114
Lawrence & Lax Court Holdings Ltd., 194, 213, 218
Lawther v. Lowther, 164
Laxmanlal v. Mulshankar, 242, 291
Laxman Rao v. Bhagwansingh, 943
Laxman Waman v. Balmukund Jamarain, 501
Laxmi Bai v. Lal Chand, 1050
Laxumi Bai v. Ganesh Raghunath, 506
Laxmi Chand v. Niadar Mal, 50, 51
Laxmi Debi v. Surendra Kumar Pande, 1081, 1082
Laxmi Ginning & Oil Mills v. Amrit Banaspati Co. Ltd., 830
Laxminarayan Ramnivas v. Lloyds Trestino, 340
Laxminarayan Ramnivas v. N.V. Vereenigde, 340
Lazarenko v. Borowoky, 284
Lazenby Garazes Ltd. v. Wright, 674
Leaf v. International Galleries, 91, 191, 192, 193, 200, 213, 215, 216
Lease v. Martin, 801

Leather Cloth Co. v. Lorsont, 313, 317, 329
Lebeaupin v. Crispin, 18
Le Blanche v. L. & N.W.R. Co., 653
Le Brassdur & Oakley in re, 670
Ledingham v. Bermejo Estancia Co. Ltd., 522
Ledu v. Hiralal, 287, 540
Lee v. Butter 823
Lee v. Jones, 760
Lee v. Muggeridge, 294
Lee v. Rayson, 970
Lee v. Shourmans Guild of Great Britain, 68, 118
Lee v. Walker, 882
Leeds Industrial Co-operative Society Ltd. v. Slack, 1107, 1113
Leeson v. Leeson, 492
Leete v. Leete, 899
Leigh v. National Union of Railwaymen, 1125
Leigh v. Paterson, 621
Leighton v. Wales, 327
Leightons Investment Trust Ltd. v. Chicklewood Property Investment Trust Ltd., 469
Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. v. Texas Gulf Sulpher Co., 639
Leiston Gas Co. v. Leiston-cum-Size-well Urban Dist. Council, 464, 481, 482
Lekhi Chand v. Pear Chand, 695
Lekh Singh v. Dwarka Nath, 678
Leksingh v. Dwarkasingh, 678
Lennard v Robinson, 911
Leng & Co. v. Andrews: 323
Leon Saubolle v. K.V. Seyne & Bros.: 818
Lepla v. Rogers, 651
Les Affreteurs Reunis Societe Anonyme v. Leopald Walford Ltd., 47, 121
Lerison v. Patent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd., 61, 65, 66, 69, 70
Leslie (R) Ltd. v. Reliable Advertising & Addressing Agency Ltd., 624, 630
Leslie Ltd. v. Sheill, 123, 124, 125, 126
Lester Leather & Skin Co. Ltd. v. Home and Overseas Brokers Ltd., 616
Lesters Leather & Skin Co. Ltd. v. Home & Overseas Brokers Ltd. 641, 656
Levene v. Broagham, 126
Lever v. Kottler, 982
Lever Bros v. Bell, 192, 193
Leverpool Corporation, 650
Levey & Co. v. Goldberg, 51, 512, 616
Levison v. Faren, 629
Levy v. Bernard, 900
Lewis v. Averay, 142, 143, 144
Lewis v. Brass, 96
Lewis v. Nicholson, 910
Lewis v. Read, 867
Lewis v. Samuel, 902
Lews v. Bond, 982
Libra Mining Works v. Baldota Bros., 340
Licences Insurance Co. v. Dawson, 53
Lickborrow v. Mason, 121, 588, 821
Lickiss v. Milestone Motor Policies at Lloyds, 627
Liecester & Co. v. S.P. Mullick, 359
Liesbosch (Owners) Ltd. v. Edison (Quriers) Ltd., 879
Life Insurance Corp. v. Gurdial Singh, 885
Life Insurance Corpn. v. Subramaniam, 493
Life Insurance Corpn. v. Tirupathayya, 97
Life Corporation of India v. Mukherjee, 984
Life Insurance Corporation v. Baidya Nathsingh, 184, 185, 209
Life Insurance Corporation v. Canara Bank Ltd., 183, 184, 534, 538
Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Chandra Vatlamma, 183, 184
Life Insurance Corporation v. Gadadhar De, 493, 494
Life Insurance Corporation v. Madhava Rao, 236, 541
Life Insurance Corp. v. Manjula Mohanlal, 209
Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Rajamata Sahib Chowhanji, 549
Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Samarendra Nath Roy, 493, 494
Liladhar v. Sunderlal, 230
Liladhar Chaturbhuj v. Mathuradas Goculdas, 896, 897
Liladhar Dariyana v. Chimman Ram, 289
Liladhar Nemchand v. Rawji Jugjiwan, 497
Liles v. Terry, 156
Lilley v. Double-day, 877
Lillu Ram v. Mst. Ram Piyari, 260
Lily White v. Manuswami, 265
Limba v. Rama, 1071
Limbaji v. Rahi, 1055
Limbaji Rovji v. Rahi, 532, 1055
Lindenan v. Desborough, 184
Lindner v. Murdocks Garage, 320
Linderstam v. Barnatt, 160
Lindsay Parkinson & Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Works, 462, 457, 454, 557
Lindsay Petroleum Co. v. Hurd, 978, 1018, 1019, 1020, 1022
Linga Gowder v. State of Madras, 78, 85, 370
Lingaraj Misra v. Bhubanshvar, 1105
Lingam Narayan Das v. Punia Das, 504
Lingen v. Simpson, 965
Lingoravji Kulkarni v. Secretary of State, 81
Link Moeller & Co. v. Jameson & Co., 853, 928
Lippet v. I.T. Udoc, 647
Lithamasu Sambasiva Rao v. Thadwarthi Balakotiah, 583
Little v. Poole, 251
Littlewood Organisation Ltd. v. Harris, 325
Liquidator, Union Bank of India v. Gobind Singh, 418
Lishman v. Christie, 932
Lisi v. Alitalia-Linee Aeree Italiane, 9
Lister & Co. v. Stubbs, 889
Liverpool Adelphi Loan Association v. Fairhurst, 123
Liverpool Borough Bank v. Turner, 589, 592
Liverpool Mortgage Insurance Co's case, 716
Livingstone v. Feroz Din, 418
Livingstone v. Ross, 839
Livingstone v. Rawyards Coal Co., 340
Llanelly Railway Dock Co. v. London & North-Western Railway Co., 90, 441, 509
Lloyd v. Grace, Smith & Co., 930
Lloyd v. Guibert, 9, 779, 854
Lloyd's v. Harper, 41, 44, 405
Lloyd's Bank Ltd. v. Administrator General, 802
Lloyds Bank Ltd. v. Marsland, 288
Lloyd v. Stanbury, 644
Lloyds Bank Ltd. v. Bundy, 157, 159, 165, 176, 327
Lloyds Triestine Societa v. Lakshminarayan Ramniwas, 14
Lock v. Bell, 444

Lock v. Furze, 654, 662
Lockwood v. Cooper, 361
Locke v. Prescott, 801
Lockett v. Norman-wright, 94
Lockwood v. Abdy, 859
Loder v. Kekule, 629
Lohiah Chetty v. M.P.H.J.S. Nidhi, 347
Lohia Trading Co. v. Central Bank of India, 612
Loklal Srinivas Sarda v. Natha Co-operative Spinning Mills Ltd., 395
Loke Nath v. Keshab Ram, 1079
Lombank Ltd. v. Cook, 684
London Assurance v. Mansel, 184
London Borough of Hounshow v. Turkenham Garden Ltd., 1088
London Chartered Bank v. White, 801
London Chatham & Dover Ry. Co. v. South Eastern Ry. 651, 666
London City Agency Ltd. v. Lee, 1089
London & County Bank v. Ratcliff, 801, 899
London County Properties ltd. v. Berkley Property etc. Co., 834, 931
London County Territorial & Auxiliary Forces Association v. Nichols, 525
London Export Corporation Ltd. v. Jubilee Coffee Roasting Co., 8
London General Omnibus Co. v. Holloway, 761
London Jewellers v. Attenborough, 819
London Joint Stock Bank v. Macmillan, 652, 821, 899
London & Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, 928
London & Lancashire Insurance v. Binoy Krishna, 276
London & N. Estates Co. v. Schlesinger, 469
London Tramways Co. v. Bailey, 343
London Trust v. Hurrel, 679
Long v. Bowren, 1035
Long v. Lloyd, 191, 192
Longford (owners) v. Canadian Forwarding & Exports Co., 512
Long v. Millar, 909
Loon Karan v. John & Co., 829, 842
Loon Karan Sethiya v. Ivan E. John, 54, 872
Loonkaran Sethiya v. State Bank of India Ltd., 872
Lord Advocate v. Blantyre, 947
Lord Cairns, Doherty v. Allman, 1086
Lord Elpphinstone v. Monkland Iron & Coal Co., 679, 681
Lord James Stuart v. The London & North Western Ry. Co., 1019
Lord Manners v. Johnson, 1117
Lord Strathcoma S.S. Co. v. Dominion Coal Co., 1130
Lovesy v. Smith, 1039
Lovelock v. Franklyn, 400
Low & Co. v. Jyoti Prasad, 979, 1005
Low v. Bouverie, 200
Lowe & Fox, 505
Lowry v. Bourdien, 270
Lows v. Telford, 947
Lowther v. Harris, 816
Lowther v. Heaver, 377
Lucas v. Dorrein, 800
Luchmidas v. Mulji, 544
Luckmidas Khimji v. Mulji Cauji, 543
Lucknow Automobiles v. Replacements Parts Co., 444
Lucknow Municipal Board v. Abdul Razzaq, 795
Lucknow Municipal Board v. Debidas, 553
Lucy Moss v. Mah Nycin May, 277
Ludditt v. Guiger Coote Airways Ltd., 783
Ludlow, Mayor of v. Charlton, 585, 596
Lukmidas Khimji v. Purshotam Haridas, 415, 416 417, 418
Lukose v. Uthuppan, 555
Lumley v. Gye, 1097
Lumley v. Wagner, 316, 333, 1087, 1125, 1130
Luna Park (L.S.W.) Ltd. v. Tramways Advertising Pty. Ltd., 626, 675
Lupton v. White, 791
Lurson v. Patent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd., 343
Lutscher v. Comptoir D' Escompte, 803
Luxor (Eastbourne) Ltd. v. Cooper, 17, 115, 436 510, 557, 875
Luxumibai v. Ganesh Raghunath, 844
Lyddon v. Thomas, 318
Lyell v. Kennedy, 864, 868
Lyill v. Ganga Dai, 774
Lyle Meller v. A. Leurs & Co. (Eastminister) Ltd., 518, 519, 523, 525, 526
Lynch v. Thorne, 115
Lyne-Pirkis v. Jones, 327, 329
Lyons v. Blenkin, 285
Lyons v. Elliott, 933
Lysney v. Selby, 199, 205

M. Andrew v. Bassett., 1100, 1101
M.A. Abdul Malik Sahib v. Mohammad Yousuf Sahib, 156
M.C. Batra v. Lakshmi Insurance Co. Ltd., 948, 949
M.G. Muthiah v. C.I.T., 605
M.G. Venkatappa & Sons v. Rambagram Pillai & Co., 242
M. Hungerford Investment Trust Ltd. v. Haridas Mundhra, 426
M.K. Rappui v. John, 1077, 1079
M.L. Devendra Singh v. Syed Khoya, 1036
M. Lachia Shetty v. Coffee Board Bangalore, 641, 642, 643, 657
M.N. Gangarappa v. A.N. Selly & Co., 615
M.P. Sugar Mills v. State of U.P., 264
M.R. Desai Bros. v. Coorg & Mysore Coffee Co. Ltd., 372
M. Rajgopal v. R.S. Imanali, 848
M. Sham Singh v. State of Mysore, 672
M. Venkayya v. M. Sheshayya, 1000
M. & S. Drapers v. Reynolds, 311, 317, 321
Ma Hnin Yi v. Chew Whee Shein, 625
Ma Htay v. U. Tha Hlina, 1062
Ma Kyin Hone v. Ong Boon Hock, 291
Ma Mya May v. Ma Low, 570
Ma Nan Chaw v. Puran, 1022, 1024, 1025
Ma Ngwe Bwin v. Maung Po Maung, 952
Ma Sein v. P.L.S.K. Firm, 1073
Ma So Bon v. Ma Da Twe, 1000
Ma Unit v. Hashem, 119
Ma Wyun v. Chilhambaram Chettiar, 1056
Macaulay v. Shackell, 112
Mac Bryde v. Weekes, 444, 1019
Mac Carthy v. Young, 774
Machaima v. Usman Beari, 131
Macforlane v. Kent, 327, 329
Machapatra Bhandar v. Income Tax

Commissioner, 238
Macher v. Foundling Hospital, 188, 189
Machirayu Parthasarthy Tobacco Exports Promotion Council, 1083
Mackay v. Commercial Bank of New Branswick, 929
Mackay v. Dick, 435, 436, 510
Mackay v. Kameshwar Singh, 616, 621
Mackender v. Feldia A.G., 58, 184, 185, 195, 207, 208, 253, 254, 255
Mackenzie v. Chamroo, 85
Mackenzie v. Coulson, 223, 1041
Mackenzie v. Pooley, 855
Mackenzie v. Rameshwar Singh, 287
Mackenzee v. Royal Bank of Canada, 156, 159, 190, 191, 534
Mackenzie v. Shib Chunder Seal, 431
Mackenzie Sitaramiah, 328
Mackersey v. Ramsays, 859
Mackertich v. Nobo Coomar Roy, 621
Mackillican v. Compagnie des Messageries Maritime de France, 65, 72, 76, 779
Mackinnon v. Lang, 914, 915
Mackintosh v. Crow, 680, 691, 692
Mackintosh v Hunt, 210, 692
Mackintosh v. Wingrove, 176
Mack Trucks (Britain) Ltd., 410
Mac Laboratories (P) Ltd., v. V.P. Nathan, 1088, 1121, 1126
Macpherson v. Appanna, 22, 105, 106
Macrae v. Swindells, 656
Madana Gopalaswamy v. Manikayam, 412
Madangopal v. Sanwaldas, 865
Madangopal v. Shrinarayan, 570
Madanlal v. Amar Chand, 1104
Madanlal v. Chawla Bank Ltd., 429
Madanlal v. State of Madhya Bharat, 1094
Madan Lal v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 1067, 1094
Madanlal Motilal v. Radhakisan Laxminarain, 747
Madan Mohan v. Jwala Parshad, 440, 445
Madaswami Nadar v. Virudhunagar Municipality, 592
Madden v. Kempster, 898
Madeleine Vionnet et cie v. Wills, 390
Madhab Koeri v. Baikuntha Karmaker, 121, 126, 127
Madhav v. Kasargod Municipality, 678, 706
Madhav Ganga Prasad v. Gouri Shankar, 924
Madhavji v. Ramnath, 1038
Madholal v. Office Assignee Bombay, 401, 814
Madho Pragwal v. Hira Lal, 1102
Madho Prasad v. Gouri Dutt, 497, 504
Madho Prasad v. Kanhaiyalal, 869
Madhoram v. Sett, 486
Madho Sah v. Sitaram Sah, 729
Madho Singh v. Abdul Quaiyam Khan, 1116
Madho Singh v. Kashi Ram, 176
Madhowji Thawor v. Yar Hussain Hyder Dasti, 904
Madhub Chunder v. Rajcoomar Doss, 3, 4, 313
Madhu Raman v. Chenna Vallayan, 579
Madhusudan v. Rakhal Chandra, 877, 884
Madhusudan v. Smt. Chandrika, 181
Madhusudan v. Sachchidanand, 1125
Madhwa Sidhanta v. Venkataramanjulu, 6
Madhya Pradesh Co-operative Bank v. P.D. Dalal, 810
Madhya Pradesh Industries Ltd. v. Rai Bahadur Shreeman Durga Prasad Ltd., 627
Madina Rice Mills v. Sampangirmiah, 444
Madiraj v. Venkateswarao, 721
Madras Railway Co. v. Govinda Rao, 1036
Madras Rly. Co. v. Rust., 334, 1127, 1130
Madras & Southern Maharashtra Rly. v. Rupchand Jitaji, 244
Madras Automobiles v. Modern Bank, 821
Madras Corporation v. Kothandapani Naidu, 557
Madras Motor Insurance Co. v. Mohd. Mustapha, 504
Madura Municipality v. Alagirisami Naidu, 552, 557, 558, 592
Madura Municipality v. Kamakshisundaram, 606
Mafatlal Naraindas Barot v. J.D. Rathod Divisional Commissioner, 985
Mafizud Din v. Habibud Din, 235
Maganbhai v. Chetan Lal, 919
Magaporthurow v. Subbarow, 1080
Magee v. Pennine Insurance Co. Ltd., 213, 220
Maghanbhai v. Manchhabhai, 363
Maganbhai Hemchand v. Manchabhai Kallianchand, 434
Magan Lal v. Ambica Mills Ltd., 322, 1126, 1127
Maganlal Harjibhai v. Amichand Gulabji, 305
Maghan Dube v. Pran Singh, 126
Magnicram Bangur & Co. v. Gurcharan Singh, 465
Mahabir Jute Mills v. F.Kedarnath Ram Bharose, 1067, 1077
Mahabir Prasad v. Peerbus, 680
Mahabir Prasad v. Satya Narain, 501, 916
Mahabir Prasad Rungta v. Durga Datta, 444, 445, 666
Mahabir Shamsher v. Lloyds Bank, 720
Mahadeo v. Narain, 440
Mahadeo v. Umaraj, 1106
Mahadeo Deoji v. Nana Banaji, 1050, 1055
Mahadeo Prasad v. Mathura Chaudhari, 530
Mahadeoprasad v. Siemens (India) Ltd., 678, 679, 704, 710, 711
Mahadeo Prasad v. Srjug Prasad, 89
Mahadev Prasad Shaw v. Calcutta Dyeing & Cleaning Co., 457
Mahadeo Singh Harihar Singh, v. Balmukund Jayanarain, 394
Mahadeva v. Gopala, 1042
Mahalakshmamma v. Venkatachamayya, 1023
Mahalinga v. Union Bank, 720
Mahalinga Nadar v. Ganapathi Subbien, 813, 815
Mahalingswami Devasthanam v. A.T. Sambanda Mudaliar, 455
Mahaluxmi Bank Ltd. v. Chota Nagpur Industrial & Commercial Association, 428
Mahamed Ishaq v. Sheik Akramul Huq, 422
Mahammad Raja v. Naderajjamma, 692, 699
Mahamaya Prasad v. Rama Khelewan, 665
Mahamud-un-Nis v. Barkutallah, 152
Mahanth Ram v. Ganga Das, 1047
Mahant Singh v. U. Ba-Yi, 57, 548, 729, 731, 744, 748
Mahapatra Bhandar v. Income-tax Commissioner, 238
Mahatur Prasad v. Taj Bejum, 170
Maharaja of Benaras v. Har Narain Singh, 727
Maharaja Singh v. Narayan Singh, 624
Maharaja Bahadur Singh v. Basunta Kumar, 745
Maharajadhiraja Sir Kameshura Singh v. Yasinkhan, 287

Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Balchand, 379
Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Paresh Nath Singh, 1097
Maharaj Narain v. Shashi, 1063
Maharaja Shree Lmaid Mills Ltd. v. Union of India, 264
Maharam Ali v. Ayesa Khatun, 249, 310
Maharana Shri Jasvatsingji Fatesingji v. The Secretary of State for India, 719
Mahavir Chaudhary v. Jadu Nandan Tiwari, 1120
Mahboob Khan v. Abdul Rochman, 160
Mahboob Khan v. Abdul Rahim, 154, 169, 210
Mahbub Jan v. Nur-ud-Din, 306
Mahendra Nath v. Smt. Baikunthe Devi, 991
Mahendra Nath v. Kali Proshad, 876, 1018
Mahendra Nath Mukerjee v. Jogendra Nath Roy, 1041
Mahendra Singh v. Achal Trust Agra, 159, 166, 273
Mahesan v. Malaysia Government Officers Co-operative House Building Society, 889, 934
Maheshwar Das v. Sakhi Dai, 240, 291
Maheswani & Co. (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Corporation of Calcutta, 966
Maheshwari Metals & Metal Refinery v. Madras State Small Industries Corporation Ltd., 86, 535
Mahila Bai Kikila Bai v. Ram Singh, 506
Mahinder Das v. Mohan Lal, 857
Mahmad v. Ramappa, 201
Mahmud-un-Nissa v. Barkatulla, 152
Mahomad Ali Mansofea v. Howeson Bros., 734
Mahomedally v. Schiller, 832, 915
Mahomedalli Ibrahimji v. Lakshmibai Anand Palande, 747
Mahomed Auzam Ismail v. Jaganath Jamnadas, 1103
Mahomed Buksh v. Hosseini Bibi, 167, 168
Mahomed Isack v. Sreeramulu, 287
Mahomed Jan v. Ganga Bishun Singh, 491
Mahomed Kala Mea v. Harperink, 205
Mahomed Sultan Sahib v. Horace Robinson, 844
Mahomed Syedol Ariffin, Bin Mahomed Ariff v. Yesh Ooi Gark, 123, 124
Mahomed Valli Patel v. East Asiatic Co:, 362
Mahomed Yusuf v. Secretary of State, 94
Mahomad Zahoor Alikhan v. Mt. Thakurase Rutta Kuer, 1085
Maijuddin Khan v. Janakiballabh Datta, 1065
Maina Devi v. State of U.P., 181
Mainet New Brunswick Electrical Power Co. Ltd. v. Hart, 665
Mair v. Himalaya Tea Co. 1096
Maiyan v. Mohan, 171
Majibar v. Syed Muktashed, 275
Major General Shanta Samsher Bahadur Rana v. Kamani Bros. (P) Ltd., 1069
Maken v. Narayan, 571
Maken v. Watkinson, 561
Makenzie v. British Linen Co., 865
Makhanlal Basak v. Bashudharanjan, 920
Makhan Lal v. Ghulam Hussain, 814
Makhan Lal v. Hanuman Bux, 403
Makkala Narasimlu v. Gurunala Raghunandan 627, 705
Maksud Ali v. Eskander Ali, 504, 999
Malaiyya v. Perumal, 1074
Malappa Chettiar v. The B.H.S.N. Co., 779
Malas v. British Imex Industries Ltd., 45-46, 722, 723
Male v. Roberts, 119
Malhotra v. Chaudhary, 662, 664, 1022, 1033
Malhu v. Sankaran, 532
Malhu Singh v. Sanwalla, 1120
Malik & Haq v. Muhammad Shamsul Islam, 983, 1059
Malik Abdul Ahad Shah v. State of J & K, 581, 1030
Malka v. Sardar, 272, 277
Malkhan Singh v. Raghubir Singh, 1021
Mallappa Sanna v. Sidramappa, 744
Malli Chettiar v. Veeranna Tevan, 195
Mallikasarjuna v. Pardhasaradhirad, 500
Mallindal v. Duncan, 644
Mallins v. Freeman, 134, 1023
Malraju Lakshmi Venkayyamma v. Venkata Narasimha Appa Rao, 108
Malukchand v. Sham Moghan, 843
Management of Shri Shivshakthi Bus Service v. P. Gopal, 877
Managing Committee of Shri Ganesh Ote v. State of Bihar, 88
Manak Chand v. Puran, 1022, 1024, 1025
Manchestor & Oldham Bank v. Cook, 633
Man Kaur v. Jasodha Kuar, 259
Manasseh Film Co. v. Gemini, 484, 560
Manbhari v. Sri Ram, 156
Manby v. Scott, 845
Mancharam v. Pranshankar, 286
Manchester Diocesan Council v. Commercial & General Investment Ltd., 91
Manchester Ship Canal v. Manchester Racecourse Co., 1130
Manchester Trust v. Furness, 855, 910, 928
Manchubhai v. Tod, 879
Mandharlal v. Rajeshwari Devi, 998
Maneklall Kalidas Shah v. Yorkshire Insurance Co., 185
Maneklal Mansukhbhai v. Jwaladutt Pilani, 884
Maneshar Baksh Singh v. Shadi Lal, 174, 210
Maneshaw v. Motishaw, 284
Mangalathammal v. Narayanaswami Aiyar, 575
Mangaldas v. Jewanram, 951
Mangalal v. Gheesukhan, 239
Mangal Ram Namasudra v. Premanand Namasudra, 441
Mangal Sen v. Cannon, 506
Mangal Sen v. Muhammad Hussain, 37
Mangal Sen v. Shankar, 507, 508
Mangal Singh v. Bajang Bali, 679, 692
Mangal Singh v. Dial Chand, 663
Mangalmurti v. State of Bombay, 346, 349
Mangat Rai v. Babu Singh, 695
Manghanmal Matanomal v. Pahlajrai, 422
Mangilal v. Appellate Tribunal of State Transport, 209, 204
Mangtulal v. Daya Shankar, 1067
Mani v. State of Madras, 866
Mania v. Dy. Director of Consolidation, 296, 297
Maniam Hiria v. Naga-Maistry, 235, 239
Maniam Patter v. The Madras Railway Company, 683, 707, 712
Mani Bhushan v. Pioneer Bank Ltd. v. in Liquidation, 737, 753
Manichathiammal v. Nallasami Pillai, 1018
Manick v. Muniammal, 256
Manicka Gounder v. Sammikannu Gounder, 6046
Manickam Chettiar v. Union of India, 96, 782, 785
Manickan Chettiar v. State of Madras, 56, 57

Manikka Mooppanar v. Peria Muniyandi, 227, 285, 888
Manik Chandre v. Abhoy Charan, 1000
Manikalhamull v. Mallusami Pillai, 1016
Manikant Tiwari v. Baburam Dixit, 246
Maniklal v. P.K. Chowdhary, 998, 1032
Maniklal Seal v. K.P. Chaudhary, 1020
Manikya Rao v. Adenna, 422
Manikya|Bewa v. Pushpa Charan Majhi, 307
Manilal v. Nanubhai, 1117
Manilal v. Venkatachalapathy, 79
Manilal Dharamsi v. Allibhai Chagla, 356
Manilal Raghunath v. Radhakisson Ramjiwan, 356
Manindrá Chandra v. Aswini Kumar, 411
Manindra Chandra Nandy v. Jamahir Kumari 572, 575
Maniram v. Seth Rupchand, 305, 307
Mani Singh Harnam Singh v. Sher Singh, 1064
Manisty v. Jameson, 492
Manji v. Hoorbai, 1011
Manju Mahadev v. Shivappa, 722
Manjural Haque v. Bisseswar, 1061
Manks v. Whiteley, 722
Man Kaur v. Jasodha Kuar, 301
Manmatha Kumar v. Exchange Loan Co., 122, 125, 1055
Manmohandas v. N.C. Macleod, 180, 243
Manmohan Haldar v. Dibbendru Prasad, 1077
Man Mohan Das v. Janaki Prasad, 57
Manna Lal v. Bank of Bengal, 297
Manna Singh v. Wasti Ram Saraf, 1071
Manuel Labo v. Nicholas Britto, 285
Mann v. Forrester, 900
Manners v. Pearson, 676
Mannu Singh v. Umadat Pande, 156
Manohar Das v. Ram Autar, 244
Manohar Lal v. Onkar Das, 89
Manoharlal Beluram v. Harikishen, 748
Manoharlal Radakrishna v. The Union of India, 536, 581, 589
Manohar Koyal v. Thakur Das Naskar, 499, 512
Manohar Oil Mills v. Bhawanidin, 428, 429
Manoj Kumar Saha v. Nabadwip Chandra Poddar, 304
Manojlal Seal v. P.K. Chaudhary, 978
Manoo Behari v. Durga Churn Saha, 693
Manro v. Butt, 576
Mansell v. Clements, 895, 896
Man Singh v. Khazan Singh, 479, 549
Mansuk Das v. Rangayya Chetti, 403
Manubens v. Leon, 628
Manubhai v. Keshavji, 356
Manwood v. Burston, 52
Manzur Hasan v. Muhammad Zaman, 1058
Maple Flock Co. v. Universal Furniture, 400, 406
Ma Pwa v. Maung Hmat Gye, 121
Marakkai v. Chinnana, 256
Maratap Ali v. Union of India, 789
Marayee Ammal v. Nalluswamy, 284
Marbe v. George Edwards (Daily Theatre), 628, 645, 675
Marco Productions Ltd. v. Pagola, 319, 1127, 1128
Mardorf Peach Co. Ltd. v. Attica Sea Carriers Corpn, 512
Mare Delante Compagnia v. Bargban Handel, 195
Mareva v. International Bulk Carriers, 1099, 1091
Mari Doddamma Markundi v. Santaya Ramkrishna, 953
Mariam v. Narayanan, 565, 579, 580, 586
Mariam Begum v. Mungi, 257
Mariam Bibi v. C.E. Malim, 157
Mariam Bibi v. Sakina, 169
Maria Munnissa Begum v. Noore Mohammad, 428
Mariappa v. Anthonisami, 648
Mariyakutty v. Choladeon Syrian Bank, 872
Maritime National Fish Ltd. v. Ocean Trawlers Ltd., 472, 474, 475, 449, 463
Maritime Italeena v. Burger Faramse, 341
Markandrai v. Virendrarai, 416, 498
Markapur Municipality v. Dodda Ramireddy, 482
Markender v. Fieldeia A.C., 113
Marker v. M., 1119
Marks v. Imperial Life Assurance Co. of Canada, 139
Marks v. Lilley, 959, 993, 1021
Marles v. Philip Trant, 232, 623
Marlow v. Pitfield, 128
Marquis of Hertford v. Boore, 1019
Marriot v. Hampton, 610
Marriott v. East Grinstead Gas & Water Co., 1117
Marris v. Whatson, 149
Marsh v. Jelf, 854
Marsh v. Joseph, 867
Marshall, 133
Marshall v. Berridge, 346, 625, 962
Marshall v. Canada Parmanant Trust Co., 175
Marshall v. Glanwill, 489
Marshall v. Harland and Wolft Ltd., 466, 488
Marshall & Co. v. Nagin Chand, 485
Martell v. Consett Iron Co., 263
Martin v. Andrews, 602
Martin v. Reid, 808
Martin-Baker Aircraft Co. Ltd. v. Canadian Flight Equipment Ltd., 509, 660
Martin & Co. v. Faiyaz Hussain, 1068
Martyn v. Hind, 29
Marudamuthu v. Ranga Sami, 235
Marzetti v. Williams, 161, 311
Mashal Singh v. Ahmad Husain, 953
Masimuthu Gounder v. Ramswamy Gounder, 702
Ma Sein v. P.L.S.K. Firm, 1073
Masjidi v. Mussammat Ayisha, 149, 160
Masjid Shahid Ganj v. S.G.P. Committee, 1076
Maskell v. Horner, 609
Mason v. Burningham, 629, 638
Mason v. Provident Clothing & Supply Co. Ltd., 312, 314, 317, 318, 322, 323, 339
Mason v. State of New South Wales, 609, 610, 611
Massalia, The, Societe Tunisiene Armement v. Sidermar, 473, 475, 476, 477
Massey v. Crown Life Insurance Co. Ltd., 661
Master v. Garret & Taylor Ltd., 398
Master v. Miller, 505
Masum Hussain v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 674
Mathason v. Smiley, 594
Mathews v. Baxter, 134
Mathai Thommen v. Thomas Mathew, 943
Mathradas v. Aboobacker, 533
Mathra Das v. Nizam Din, 394
Mathra Das Jagan Nath v. Jiwan Mal-Gian Chand, 887
Mathra Das-Mustaddi Lal v. Kishen Chand-Ramjidas, 879
Mathura v. Dr. Radha Ballabh, 1124
Mathuradas v. Ebrahim Fazalbhoy, 424
Mathura Das v. Gopi Kishan, 1103
Mathura Das v. Narbadashankar, 355

Mathura Datt v. Teg Singh, 994
Mathura Mohan Saha v. Ram Kumar Saha, 501, 552, 577, 581, 592, 593
Matha Jaggilodu v. Matta Byramma, 228
Matthews v. Munster, 851
Matthey v. Curling, 469
Maula Baksh v. Labhu Shah, 699
Maula Bux v. Union of India, 689, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 710, 711
Maula Bux v. Union of India, 535
Mauji Ram v. Tara Singh, 865
Maung Mu v. Maungkan Gye, 421
Maung Ba Maung v. Maung Ba Yin, 1050, 1067
Maung Chit v. Rohan & Co., 504
Maung Law Phyu v. Ma Baw, 709
Maung Pa Gye v. Hakim Ally, 1040
Maung Po Hmein v. Maung Aung Mya, 366
Maung Po Htaik v. Bramadin, 358
Maung Po Kyaw v. Saw Taqo, 411
Maung Pu v. Maung Po Thant, 516, 530
Maung Pu Lwin v. Maung Sen Han, 1013
Maung Sein Htui v. Chee Pan Ngan, 287
Maung Tin v. Ma Myi Myint, 543, 544
Maung Wala v. Maung Shwe Con, 441
Maung Ye v. M.A.S. Firm, 232
Maunsell v. Hedges, 109
Mawji Ramji v. Premjit, 419
May, Re, 670
May v. Harvey, 796
May and Butcher v. The King, 98
May v. May, 488
Maya Ram v. Naubat, 94, 98, 698
Maya Ram v. Prag Dal, 967
Maya Ram v. Santaram, 950, 952
Mayhew v. Crickett, 756
Mayen v. Alston, 892
Maynard v. Moseley, 685
Mayor of Durham v. Fowler, 752
Mayor of Kingston-upon-Hull v. Harding, 752
Mayor of Lyons v. East India Co., 1
Mayor of Salford v. Lever, 889, 934
Mayson v. Clonet, 688, 706
Mc Canna v. Cely Life Assurance Co., 97
Mc Clintock v. The Commonwealth, 611
Mc Collin v. Gilpin, 911
Mc Connel v. Wright, 673
Mc Corkindale, Re, 805
Mc Devitt v. Stokes, 53
Mc Cutchion v. David Macbrayne, 73, 102
Mc Dermott v. Black, 510
Mc Donald v. Dennys Lacelles Ltd., 602, 627, 689, 706, 749, 967
Mc Ellistrim v. Ballymacelligolt Co-operative Agricultural & Dairy Society Ltd., 321
Mc Farlene v. Kent, 329
Mc Gowan v. Dyer, 929
Mc Groy v. Alderdale Estate Co., 1003
Mc Kenzie v. Mc Donald, 164
Mc Kenna v. Richiy, 1030
Mc Kenzie v. Rees, 378, 410
Mc Lachlaw v. Nourse, 627
Mclean v. Fleming, 856, 932
Mcinerny v. Lloyds Bank Ltd., 883
Mc Master v. Byrne, 157, 159
Mc Mahon v. Field, 638, 646
Mc Rae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission, 62, 219, 488, 628
McRae v. Common Wealth Disposals Commission, 214
Mc Rae v. H.G. Swindells, 641
Mc Nally v. Jackson, 829
Md. Jafar Hussain Khan v. Md. Taqui Khan, 1066
Mears v. L & S, 827
Measures Brothers Ltd. v. Measures, 334, 999, 1016
Mediator Company v. West Bengal, 836
Meek v. Wendt, 925
Meenakshi Achi v. Subramanian Chettiar, 846
Meenakshisundara v. Rathnasami, 982
Meenakshi Sundara v. Veerappa, 580
Meenakshi Sundarammal v. Subramania Ayyar, 274
Mehr Chand v. Jugal Kishore Gulab Chand, 615
Mehr Singh v. Chela Ram, 422
Mehta v. Cassumbhai, 896
Mehta & L.V. Vyavram & Co., 342
Mehtaboing S. Jot Singh v. National Fire & General Insurance Co. Ltd., 510
Meghaji Mohanji v. Anant Pandurang, 1079
Meghji v. Jadhowji, 353
Meghraj v. Bayabai, 493, 494
Meghraj v. Ganga Baksh, 176
Meghraj v. Hargayan, 176
Meghraj Kothari v. Delimitation Commission & Others, 251
Meghu Mian v. Kishun Ram, 1108
Mehrally v. Sakerkhanoobai, 249, 490
Mehar Chand v. Milkhi Ram, 221
Meherulla v. Sariatulla, 113
Mehmet Dogan Beg v. G.G. Abdeni, 647
Mehra, P.D. & Sons v. Ramchand Om Prakash, 448, 449
Meikole v. Pariasami, 235, 240, 265
Melhoo Lal v. L.I.C. of India, 98
Melroy v. Lord, 103
Melachrino v. Nickoll & Knight, 657, 835
Melanson v. Dominion of Canada General Insurance Co., 410
Mendelssohn v. Normand Ltd., 69, 854
Menul v. Forest Lawsn Memorial Services Ltd., 647
Mepluchen v. David Mac Brvne Ltd., 787
Mercantile Bank of India Ltd. v. Central Bank India Ltd., 588, 821, 824, 828
Mercantile Bank of India Ltd. v. Rochaldas Godumal & Co., 800, 801
Mercantile Credit & Co. Ltd. v. Hamblin, 195
Merchant & Co. v. Pura Goluckdih Co., 917
Meredith v. Footner, 932
Merryweather v. Nixon, 420
Merrit v. Merrit, 53, 348
Mersey Docks & Harbour Board v. Coggins, 71
Mertens v. Home Freeholds Co., 473
Metals & Minerals Cos. of India v. Surajbaram Sethi, 724
Mersey Steel & Iron Co. Ltd. v. Naylor, Benzor & Co., 74, 398, 432, 626
Mesha Ahronel v. The National Bank of India, 506
Messenger, Re, 900
Messrs Kukreja Ltd. v. Said Alam, 494
Metal Corporation of India v. Subbaiyer, 1093, 1112
Metro Goldwyn-Mayer Pty. Ltd. v. Green Horn, 687
Metrop. Electric Supply Co. v. Ginder, 1125
Metropolitan Asylum District Managers v. Hill, 1100
Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 889

Metropolitan Electric Supply Co. v. Ginder, 1086, 1130
Metropolitan Police Distt. Receiver v. Croydon Corpn., 578, 601
Metropolitan Water Board v. Dick Kerr & Co. Ltd., 452, 461, 464, 481
Meux's Brewery Ltd. v. City of London Electric Light Co., 1125
Meyer v. Dresser, 8
Meyyappa v. Palaniappa, 419
Meyyappa Chettiar v. Murugappa & Sons, 415, 420
Meyyappa Chetty v. Nachammal Achi, 676
Meyerstein v. Eastern Agency Co., 859
Mews v. Carr, 854
Mc Lean v. Fleming, 856
Miajan Patari v. Abdul Juhhar, 699
Michael v. Hart & Co., 397
Michel Habil Raji Ayub v. Sheikh Suleman, 682
Michael v. Briggs, 914
Michael v. Krishnaveni, 1119
Michael Golodetz v. Seragud Din & Co., 11
Midgley v. Hand, 897
Midland Bank Trust Co. Ltd. v. Hett Slebbrs & Kemp, 668, 669
Midland Counties Motor Finance v. Slade, 749
Midland Silicones Ltd. v. Scruttons Ltd., 33, 43
Mihin Lal v. M.B. Dairy Farm, 305
Milcangos v. George Frank (Textile) Ltd., 676
Mildred v. Maspons, 900
Miles v. New Zealand Alford Estate Co., 49, 50, 295
Miles v. Thomas, 1093
Milkhasing v. Gopala Krishnan, 674
Milkhi Ram v. Jiwan Singh, 1055
Mill v. Hill, 204
Millar v. Cannon Hill Estates Ltd., 114
Millar Son & Co. v. Radford, 896
Miller v. Nasmyth's Patent Press Co., 799, 804
Miller v. National Mutual Life Insurance of Asia Ltd., 37
Miller v. Karlinski, 253
Miller, Gibb & Co. v. Smith & Tyrer Ltd., 8, 913
Miller v. Jackson, 1112
Millet v. Van Heek & Co., 411, 654
Mills v. Dunham, 323
Millward v. Littlewood, 259, 284
Milness v. Grey, 349, 988
Miliangoo v. George Frank (Textiles) Ltd., 10, 12, 391, 392
Mina Kumari v. Bijoy Singh, 1012
Mineral Development Ltd. v. State of Bihar, 907
Mineral Water Bottle Exchange & Trade Protection Society v. Booth, 320
Minton v. Minton, 341, 502
Minister of State for the Army v. Dalziel, 468
Ministry of Housing & Local Government v. Sharp, 668
Miran Baksh v. Emperor, 810
Mir Hazar Khan v. Sawan Ali, 709
Mirjan Ali v. Mt. Maimuna Bibi, 249
Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakhruddin Mohammad, 119, 126, 128, 129, 987, 1025, 1026, 1027, 1028
Mirze Sajjad Husain v. Nawab Wazir Ali Khan, 169
Misa v. Currie, 801, 899
Mistry Amar Singh v. Serwano Wofunira Kalubya, 269
Mitchel v. Revnolds, 312
Mitchell v. Crasseweller, 787
Mitchell v. Hart & Co., 622
Mitchell v. Homfray, 152, 209
Mitchell v. Lapage, 141
Mitchell v. London Borough & Earing, 770, 787
Mitchell-Henry v. Norwich Union Life Insurance, 103, 883
Mitcheson v. Oliver, 855
Mitha Shah v. Devi Dass, 139
Mithobhai v. Omprakash, 1116, 1117
Mithoo Lal Nayak v. Life Insurance Corporation, 183, 184, 185, 186, 206, 534, 538
Mitter Sain v. Data Ram, 37
Mobin Chunder v. Romesh Chunder, 6
Modi & Co. v. Union of India, 6, 16, 361
Moenich v. Fenastra, 325
Moffat v. Parsons, 928
Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor Gow & Co., 255
Mohamed Ali Manoojee v. Howesen Bros., 734
Mohamad Buksh Khan v. Husseni Bibi, 170
Mohamad Mohamud v. Hafiz Abdul, 1104
Mohamad Murad v. U.P. Government, 771
Mohamad Sardar v. Babu Gyanu, 1055
Mohammad v. Abdul, 730
Mohammad Abdul Jabbar v. Lalmia, 1033
Mohammad Abdul Kader v. Finlay Fleming & Co., 1065
Mohammad Akbar Khan v. Province of West Bengal, 598, 599, 601
Mohammad Aslam v. Feroz Shah, 1010
Mohammed Bin Salem v. Umaji, 236
Mohammad Bux v. Zahurul Haque, 665
Mohmmad Ebrahim v. Commissioner of Port Trust, 556
Mohammad Ekram v. Union of India, 782, 744
Mohammad Dalil Khan v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 702
Mohammad Ibrahim v. Port Commissioner of Chittagong, 550, 553, 552, 553
Mohammad Ikram v. Union of India, 793, 907
Mohammad Imam Ali Khan v. Hussain Khan, 209
Mohammad Isaf-er-Sheikh Ahmed v. Ali, 636
Mohammad Isaq Ali v. Hiral Serogi, 10, 12
Mohammad Habib Khan v. Badi-ul-Zaman, 1070
Mohammad Hanifa v. Narayani Pillai, 602
Mohammad v. Parameswara, 242
Mohd Banif Mia v. Baladhar Lahkar, 954
Mohammad Hussain v. Chartered Bank, 661, 801, 802
Mohammad Hussain v. Fida Hussain, 139
Mohammad Hamidullah v. Bird & Co., 447
Mohammad Jaffar v. Md. Taqui Khan, 1066
Mohammad Jamal Saheb v. Munwar Begum, 506
Mohammad Khan v. Ram Narayan, 640
Mohammad Kasim Haji Ahmad v. Hanuman Industries, 340
Mohammad Latif v. Smt. Amritkala, 807
Mohammad Musa v. Babi Bakhsh, 1076
Mohammad Murad v. U.P. Government, 771
Mohammad Muzaffar Husain v. Madad Ali, 243
Mohammed Rowther v. Tinnevelly Municipal Council, 557
Mohammad Sadiq v. Allah Bakhsh, 1071
Mohammad Saab v. Indian Bank, 661
Mohammad Salaman Ullal v. Government of Andhra Pradesh, 675
Mohammad Sultanud Din v. Mohammad Dastgir, 744

Mohammad Taqu-ud-Din v. Ghulam Mohammad, 864
Mohammad Wasi v. Bachchan Sahib, 1093
Mohammad Wazir v. Jahangiri Mal, 1018, 1019
Mohammad Yamin v. Abdul Majid, 994
Mohamed Zafar v. Hamida Khatoon, 440
Mohemadali Ibrahim v. Doaxmibia, 746, 743
Mohan Chand v. Manindra Nath, 241
Mohafazul v. Babulal, 287
Mohankrishnan v. Chimanlal Desai & Co., 443, 914
Mohanlal Jogara Rice & Atta Mills v. F. Ramlal, 504
Mohan Lal v. Loan Company of Assam, 430
Mohan Lal v. Sawai Mansinghji, 836
Mohan Lal v. Sri Gungaji Cotton Mils Co., 186, 187
Mohan Lal v. Udai Narayan, 227
Mohan Lal v. Wadhava Singh, 1011
Mohanlal Jagannath v. Kashi Ram, 272, 273, 275, 276, 289
Mohanlal v. Dayaldas, 642, 712
Mohanlal v. Surajmani, 743, 747, 748
Mohanlal Chunilal Kothari v. Tribhuvan Nanibhai, 1013
Mohd. Wasarat Hussain v. C.I.T., 238
Mohanlal Madangopal v. Vinayak, 133
Mohan Manucha v. Manzur Ahmed, 537
Mohar Singh v. Sher Singh, 584
Mohendralal Sen v. Union of India, 635, 649
Mohendranath v. Kali Prasad, 847, 994
Mohemadali Ibrahim v. Doaxmibia, 746, 743
Mohes Chandra v. Rajani Kanta, 48
Mohes Chandra v. Boydaya Nath, 420
Mohesh Chandra Basu v. Radha Kishore Bhattacharjee, 829
Mohima Chunder v. Jugal Kishore, 1053
Mohiree Bibee v. Dharmodas Ghose, 1055
Mohinder Nath Gupta v. Motiram Ratanchand, 1035
Mohinder Singh v. Achal Trust Agra, 154, 159
Mohinder Singh & Co. v. Executive Engineer, 443
Mohiuddin v. Kashmiro Bibi, 679, 680
Mohiuddin v. Province of East Pakistan, 1010
Mohi-ud-din Kunhi v. Gopalakrishna, 1104
Mohmad Syed Baba v. Universal Traders Timbers, 233
Mohmmad Sultan Rowther v. Nur Mohammad, 705
Mohomed Meera v. Savvasi Vijaya, 287
Mohomed Isack v. Sreeramalu, 287
Mohomed Silar Sahib v. Nahikhan, 395
Mohori Bibi v. Dhurmodas Ghose, 4, 117, 125, 126, 130, 196, 198, 532, 539, 547, 565, 585, 595
Mohunlal Tribhowandas v. Chunilal Harinarayan, 618
Moiud Din Rowther v. Chaturbhuja, 443
Mokund Lall v. Chotay Lal, 1018
Molabhai Gulabdas & Co. v. Mahalaxmi Cotton Mills Co. Ltd., 242
Molling v. Dean, 644
Mollett v. Robinson, 887
Moleny v. Kernan, 889
Molyneux v. Richard, 967
Monaghan C.C. v. Vanghan, 1041
Mona Oil Equipment Co. v. Rhodesia Railways Ltd., 436
Monarch Steamship Co. v. A/B Karlshamns, 422, 473, 637, 640, 647, 649, 651, 878, 882
Monghibai v. Cooverjee, 994
Moniram v. Harichand, 89
Monindra Lal Chatterjee v. Hari Pada, 875
Monk v. Whittenbury, 819
Monmohini Guha v. Banga Chandra Das, 250
Monmouthshire County Council v. Smith, 601
Monte Video & Gas Dry Dock Co. Ltd. v. Clan Line Steamers Ltd., 634
Montague v. Forwood, 859, 900, 922
Montague v. Flockton, 1087
Montaignac v. Shitta, 927
Montgomery Municipal Committee v. Sant Singh, 1094, 1096, 1124
Montifiore v. Menday Motor Components, 265, 288
Montier Prasad v. Smt. Maheshwari, 1012, 1013
Moody v. Cox & Halt, 164, 257
Moody v. Pall Mall Deposit, 172, 268, 819, 825
Mookerji v. Kate Mohan, 748
Mool Chand v. Alwar Chetty, 417, 421
Moolchand v. Chhoga, 1104, 1105, 1118
Moolchand v. Mulchand, 423
Moolchand Beharilal v. S.D. Chand & Co., 710, 711
Moolchand Kesarimall v. Associated Agencies, 117, 400
Moolchand v. Ramphool, 995
Moolchand v. Ved Prakash, 1021
Moon v. Witney Union, 857
Moolji Jaitha v. Seth Kirodimal, 20
Moolji Jaitha & Co. v. Setho Kishorilal, 100
Moolji Sicka & Co. v. Bengal Nagpur Ry. Co., 785, 789
Mooneappah v. Kéncatarayadoo, 495
Moonshee Bazloor Ruhoom v. Shumskunnissa Begum, 168
Moore v. Flanagan, 922
Moore v. Vestry of Fulham, 609
Moore v. DER Ltd., 641
Moorgate Merchantile Co. Ltd. v. Witchings, 140
Moorwell Holdings Ltd. v. Bann, 447
Moosa Bhog v. Kristiah, 928
Moosajee v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 876
Moothora Kant Shaw v. The India General Steam Navigation Co., 7, 777, 778
Morarji Premji v. Mulji Ranchhod Ved & Co., 929, 935
Morel Bros. v. Earl of Westmoreland, 845
Morel v. Westmoreland, 922
Morley v. Longman, 164
Morgan v. Asheroff, 564, 580, 598, 599, 600, 601, 609
Morgan v. Birnie, 370
Morgan v. Fry, 166
Morgan v. Government of Haidarabad, 202, 205
Morgan v. Manser, 458, 466
Morgan v. Milman, 988
Morgan v. Ravey, 784
Moriarty v. Regents Garage Co., 454
Morice v. Simla Bank Corporation, 742
Moro v. Anant, 1102
Morrel v. Cowan, 733
Morris v. Baron & Co., 500, 502, 503, 511
Morris v. Cleasby, 838
Morris v. Colman, 327
Morris v. C.W. Marlin Sons, 770
Morris v. Delobbeiflipo, 1121

Morris v. Martin & Sons Ltd., 73, 770, 784
Morris v. Redlands Bricks Ltd., 990, 1121
Morris Motors Ltd. v. Lilley, 1098
Morris Motors Ltd. v. Phelan, 1098
Morrison v. Thompson, 888
Morrison v. Bell, 467, 488
Morrit, 812
Mortimer v. Beckett, 984, 1087
Mortlock v. Buller, 968, 976, 1025
Morton v. Burn, 51
Morton v. Lamb, 432
Morvi Mercantile Bank v. Union of India, 5, 6, 807, 817, 823
Moschi v. Lep Air Service Ltd., 732
Moselle Solomon v. Martin & Co., 580
Moses v. Macfarlane, 597
Moss, re, 805
Moss v. Moss, 200
Mothi Rungaya Chetty v. Secretary of State, 840, 841
Mothora Kant Shaw v. Indian General Steam Navigation Co., 8
Mothoora Nath v. Kristokumar, 573, 574
Narain Deb, 173, 210
Motibhai Gulabdas & Co. v. Mahalakshmi Cotton Mills Ltd., 341
Moti Chand v. Bajrang Sahai, 570
Moti Chand v. Ikram-Ullah Khan, 244
Motichand v. Sagan, 403
Motilal v. Gellabhai, 416, 417, 422, 423
Motilal v. Govindram, 353, 355, 363, 364
Motilal v. Nanhe Lal, 977, 1001, 1002
Motilal Nath v. Bengal Chemical & Pharmaceutical Works, 678, 679, 698
Motilal v. Surajmal, 428
Motilal Bechandass v. Ghellabhai Hariram, 415
Motilal Hirabhai v. Bai Mani, 795
Motilal Mansukhram v. Maneklal Dayabhan, 532, 539
Motilal Padampat Sugar Mills Co. Ltd. v. The State of U.P., 518, 520-526, 528, 529, 558, 918
Motilal Tejsi v. Ramchandra Gajanan, 343
Motilal Srinivas Sarda v. Natha Co-operative Spinning Mills, 401
Moti Ram v. Khyali Ram, 991
Motishaw & Co. v. The Mercantile Bank of India, 486
Motivalee v. Vinayaka, 1005
Motoji v. Shekh Husen, 697, 699
Mottai v. Thanappa, 275
Motumal v. Ibrahim, 275
Mouat v. Betts Motors Ltd., 647
Moula v. Garret, 567
Moult v. Halliday, 8, 660
Moulis v. Owen, 365
Mount Albert Borough Council v. Australian T. & G. Assurance Co. Ltd., 391
Mountford v. Scott, 1028
Mountgarret, Re, 27
Mountstephen v. Lakeman, 720
Movva Butchamma v. Venkateshwar Rao, 1120
Mowbray v. Merryweather, 629, 631, 644
Moyan v. Pathukutty, 338
Mr. G., in the matter of, 338
Mrs. Abdul Hakimkhan v. Abdul Mannarkhan, 976
Mrs. Anwara Chawdhury v. M. Majid, 972, 1019
Mrs. C. Simon v. M.G. Arogiasami, 305
Mrs. Chandnee Madden v. Dr. K.C. Katyal, 441
Mrs. Chandri Vidyavati v. Dr. C.L. Katigal, 967
Mrs. Maniluxmi v. Hindustan Co-operative Insurance Co., 909
Mrs. Florabel Skinner v. Jai Bajrang Mala Mandir, 89
Mst. Barabai v. Mst. Chandrabhaga, 711
Mst. Basro Kuar v. Lala Dhun Singh, 537
Mst. Gomti v. Meghraj, 506
Mt. Haliman v. Mohd. Manir, 276
Mst. Haliman v. Mohammad Manir, 237, 276
Mst. Hazrabi v. Mst. Fatmabi, 133
Mst. Humela v. Ori Sahoo, 982
Mst. Janaka v. Kali Charan, 305
Mst. Malam v. Mohan Singh, 865
Mst. Mahan v. Mohan Singh, 953
Mst. Hanbhari v. Sri Ram, 177, 178, 205
Mst. Mida v. Kishan Bahadur, 925
Mst. Mula Bai v. Balakdas, 572
Mst. Ramdee Kounwaru v. Baboo Shiv Dayal Singh, 297
Mst. Rajwanta v. Mahabir Rai, 951
Mst. Roshun v. Muhammad, 542
Mst. Sonphula Kuer v. Gansuri, 282, 540
Mst. Sudama Devi v. Ram Kishan Lal, 36
Mst. Suga Kuer v. Brijraj Ramniwas, 930
Mt. Albert Borough Council v. Australasian Temperence Life Assurance Society Ltd., 10, 12, 15
Mt. Bhagwanti v. Mohan Singh, 1116
Mt. Bhoori v. Thakur Gulab Singh, 303
Mt. Dan Kuer v. Mt. Sarla Devi, 47
Mt. Dhanwantia v. Deonandan, 276
Mt. Izhar Fatima Bibi v. Mt. Ansar Fatima Bibi, 209
Mt. Jaggo Bai v. Hari Har Prasad Singh, 1053
Mt. Janki v. Baldeo, 1077
Mt. Janki Kuer v. Chhattu Prasad, 1081
Mt. Jas Kaur v. Mt. Bhag Devi, 1104
Mt. Latifanbai v. Mst. Sakinabai, 1079
Mt. Ramanandi Kuer v. Mr. Kalawati Kuer, 4, 5
Mt. Reshmi v. Ghungarai, 174, 176
Mt. Sewti v. Rattan, 160
Mt. Sunder Kuer v. Shah Uday Ram, 171
Mt. Sunder v. Mt. Parbati, 846
Mt. Tatli v. Alfred Robert Jones, 199
M. Thathiah v. Union of India, 103
Mucklaster v. Brown, 230
Mueoling v. International Railway Co., 325
Mugneeram & Co. v. Gurbachan Singh, 458, 459, 460
Muhammad Abdulla v. Bank Instalment Co., 307
Muhammad Akbar Khan v. Province of West Pakistan, 56
Muhammad Alam v. Akbar Husain, 1067
Muhammad Ali Akbar v. Fatima Begum, 249
Muhammad Askari v. Radheram Singh, 415, 416 417, 418
Muhammad Esuff Rowther v. M. Hateem & Co., 428
Muhammad Habib Ullah v. Bird & Co., 439, 445
Muhammad Habibullah v. Muhammad Shafi, 703
Muhammad Habib-ul-Rahman v. Sheonandan Singh, 567
Muhammad Hashim v. Misri, 547
Muhammad Ibrahim v. Umatullah Jan, 169
Muhammad Ismail Khan v. Saad-ud-dinkhan, 418
Muhammad Israil v. Patna City Municipality, 1063
Muhammad Issa El Sheikh Ahmed v. Ali, 633
Muhammad Jalil Khan v. Ram Nath Katua, 1068

Muhammad Jan v. Fazal-ul-din, 346
Muhammad Khalibur Rahman v. Muzammillul-lah, 291
Muhammad Muni-ud-Din v. Jamal Fatima, 249
Muhammad Qulikhan v. Mst. Mubarak, 574
Muhammad Sadik Khan v. Masihan Bibi, 1011
Muhammad Said v. Bishambhar Nath, 123
Muhammad Salim v. Ramkumar Singh, 1058
Muhammad Shah v. Sarsuti, 497
Muhammad Sultan Rowther & Co. v. Manickam, 493
Muhammad Ubed-Ullah v. Muhamad Insha Allah Khan, 735
Muhammad Yusuf v. Ram Govinda Ojha, 746, 747
Muhammad Yusuf v. Smt. Sharifan Bibi, 961
Muhammad Zia ul Haque v. Calcutta Vyapar Pratishtan, 999, 1017
Mujid-un-Nissa v. Abdur Rahim, 870
Mukhram v. Puran, 1075
Mukat Nath v. Shyam Sunder Lal, 584
Mukul Datta v. Indian Airlines Corporation, 8, 9, 64, 71, 73, 783
Mukand Lal, Dr. v. M.C. Simla, 983, 984
Mukund Lal v. Sunita, 243
Muktilal v. Trustees of Provident Fund, 181
Mula v. Baburam, 1113
Mulam Chand v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 550, 558, 563, 579, 581, 589, 590, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 865, 918
Mulchand Hemraj v. Khemchand Thaurmal, 544
Mul Chand-Shib Dhan v. Sheomal Sheo Parshad, 898
Mulibai v. Shewaram Menghraj, 422
Mulji Tejsingh v. Ransi Devraj, 336, 337
Mulji Thakarshi v. Kalyan Bechar, 977
Mulk Raj v. George Knight, 423
Mulla Badrud Din v. Tafail Ahmad, 443
Mullings v. Trinder, 1004
Mullack Chand v. Surendra Nath, 711
Mulla Quimud Din v. Brij Mohandas, 1015
Mullens v. Miller, 846
Mulluk Chand v. Surendra Nath, 447
Mul Singh v. Kishan Gopal, 695
Muneyya v. Venkayya, 191
Mundinger v. Mundinger, 174
Munia v. Perumal, 126
Municipal Board Agra v. Babu Ramlal, 557
Municipal Board, Manglour v. Mahadevji Maharaj, 1101, 1109
Municipal Council Karur v. Pashupatti Mulhu Raga, 370
Municipal Council Rajamundri v. Subba Rao, 609
Municipal Committee, Akola v. Shrimati Shanta Rani, 1094, 1124
Municipal Committee Amritsar v. Asa Nand, 983
Municipal Committee, Gujarranwala v. Fazal Din, 581, 593
Municipal Committee Harda v. Hards Electric Supply Co. Ltd., 110
Municipal Committee, Lahore v. Miran Baksh, 581, 593
Municipal Corporation of Bombay v. Cuverji Hirji, 895
Municipal Corporation Bombay v. Govind Lax-man, 1125
Municipal Corporation, Bombay v. Secretary of State, 521, 522, 553, 592
Municipal Corporation of Rangoon v. Saw Willie, 1071
Municipal Council, Kumbakonam v. Abbahs Sahib, 237
Municipal Council, Tiruvarur v. Kannuswami Pil-lai, 554
Municipal Council, Tuticorin v. Rally Bros., 609
Municipality of Sholapur v. Abdul Wahab, 553
Muni Lal v. Gulab Singh, 493
Munisami Mudali v. Perumal Mudali, 492
Munnabai v. Shardabai, 1072, 1080
Munnalal Pansari v. Ganga Prasad, 777
Munna Singh v. Ausun Singh, 949
Muni Samabba v. Gurunaniappa, 976
Munni Babu v. Kunwar Kanta Singh, 980, 1036
Munni Bibi v. Triloki Nath, 571
Munni Koer v. Madan Gopal, 126
Munno Bibi v. Income-Tax Commissioner, 491, 494
Munro v. Butt, 565, 576, 579
Munro v. Willmott, 857
Munshee Bazloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonissa Begum, 168
Munshi Amir Ali v. Maharani Inderjit Koer, 337
Munshi Lal v. Vishnu Das, 560
Munishamappa v. Venkatarayappa, 58
Munneammal v. Raya, 266
Munnu Chamar v. Hari Narain, 1078
Munnuswami Nayudu v. Sagalaguna Nayudu, 981
Munyaraj v. Venkatapati, 1085
Muppudathi Pillai v. Krishnaswami, 571, 1035, 1041, 1052, 1054, 1074
Muralidhar v. Paresh, 100
Murari Lal v. Balkishan, 1105
Murarilal Chatterjee v. International Film Co. Ltd., 407
Murgesa v. Jotharam, 955
Murguesan Pillai v. Ghana Sambandh Panadara Sannadhi, 596
Murlidhar Agarwal v. U.P., 246, 252
Murlidhar v. Bhikhi, 584
Murlidhar v. Jainti Prasad, 951
Murlidhar v. Kishore Chand, 894
Murlidhar v. Naunihal Singh, 573
Murlidhar Charanjilal. v. Harish Chandra Dwarkadas, 618, 690, 641, 642
Murlidhar Chatterjee v. Thavasi Nadar, 239
Murlidhar Chatterjee v. International Film Co. Ltd., 201, 400, 531, 533, 534
Murphy Bro. v. Hare, 473
Murphy v. M. & G.W. Ry., 836
Murray v. East India Co., 849
Murray v. Mann, 895
Murray & Co. v. Union of India, 57
Murrel v. Good Year, 977
Murracha v. Ashton, 391
Murugappa Chetti v. Official Assignee of Madras, 868
Murugappa Mudaliar v. Munuswami Mudali, 742
Murugappa Naicker v. Padmanabha Mudaliar, 949
Murugesa v. Province of Madras, 843
Mury Exportation v. D. Khaitan & Sons, 11
Musaji Lukmanji v. Durga Das, 340
Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard, 190, 191, 195
Muslim Waqf Board v. Municipal Board Bhopal, 1111
Mussamat Basso Kuar v. Lala Dhum Singh, 559
Musammat Kundan Bibi v. Sree Narayan, 301
Mussaminat Ram Kaur v. Raghbir Singh, 934
Mussammat Roshun v. Muhammad, 258, 259, 290
Mussen v. Van Dierman's Land Co., 439, 689, 709

Mustapha Sahib v. Santa Pillai, 946, 953, 954
Muthiah Chettiar v. Govind Doss Krishnadoss, 337
Muthiah Chettiar v. Karuppan Chettiar, 151
Muthaya v. Lekhu, 530
Muthayee Achi v. Subbiah, 307
Muthayamanigaran v. Lakhu Reddiar, 446, 448, 616
Muthayya Chetti v. Narayanan Chetti, 579
Muthkumaraswamia v. Subbaraya, 1006
Muthukaruppa v. Kathappudayan, 726
Mutukrishna v. Sankara Lingam, 699, 700
Muthupalaniappa v. Alagamai Achi, 850
Muthurakku v. Rakkappa, 567
Muturanan v. Chinna Vallayan, 721, 763
Muthuraman Chetty v. Krishna Pillai, 542
Muthura Persad v. Luggun Kooer, 692
Muthusami v. Narasimha, 395
Muthuswami v. Savarimuthu, 606
Muthusami v. Veeraswami, 358, 665
Muthuswami Ayyar v. Velammal, 586
Muthuswami Kavindan v. Ponnayya Kavindas, 567
Mutuswamy v. Konar, 763
Mutsaddi Lal Sewa Ram v. Bhagirath, 358
Muttakke v. Thimmappa, 1074
Muttan v. Peat, 802
Mutual Finance Ltd. v. John Welton & Sons Ltd., 165, 166, 167
Mutual Life and Citizens Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Evatt, 194, 883
Muthuveerappa v. Ramaswami, 275, 609
Myers & Co. v. Brent Cross Co., 628
Mylappa Chettiar v. Aga Mirza Mohamed Shirazee, 21
Mylappa Chettiar v. The B.I.S.N. Co., 779
Myler v. Fitzpatrick, 860
Mya Nyun v. Chidambaram Chettiar, 1056
Mylton v. Gilbert,

N.U.P. Pandian v. M.M. Roy, 264, 265, 267, 269, 270
N. Janakiraman v. Mattareddi, 1083
N.M. Firm. v. Theperumal Chetty, 499
N.Y. Jagannathayya v. Ramnatha, 703
N.V. Kurik Hoo Hendel v. James Finlay & Co., 11
Nabendra Nath Basak v. Shasabindoo, 422
Nabinchandra v. Krishna, 618, 663
Nabin Chandra Sarma v. Rajani Chandra, 379
Nabo Kumar v. Syed Abdul, 699
Nadar Bank Ltd. v. Canara Bank Ltd., 808, 809, 821
Nadershaw v. Shirinbai, 385
Nadimulla v. Channappa, 497
Nagalinga Chettiar v. Guruswami, 536
Nagammal v. Agoramurthi, 1083
Nagananda v. Bappu, 818
Naganna Naidu v. Rangarao, 588
Nagappa Pillai v. Arunachalam Chetty, 546
Nagaratnamma v. Ramayya, 255, 256, 295
Nagarao v. G.G. in Council, 604, 606, 607
Nagayya v. Bapamma, 385, 407
Nagardas v. Ahmed Khan, 663
Nagarttal v. Bajranglal, 307
Nagendra Bala v. Guru Doyal, 894
Nagendra Nath Roy v. Jugal Kishore Roy, 567, 569
Nagendra Nath Singha v. Nagendra Bala Chowdhurani, 882
Nageswara Rao v. Mandava, 129
Nageshwarrao v. Seetharama, 251
Nagi v. Damodhar, 1009
Nagindas v. Dalpatram, 246
Nagle v. Feildon, 263, 264, 265, 315, 324
Nagnatha Ayyar v. Authorised Officer, 237
Nagpur Electric Co. Ltd. v. Anand Vishnu, 500
Nagpur Nagrik Sahakari Bank v. Union of India, 682, 720, 729
Nagubai Ammal v. Sham Rao, 621
Nahanchand Dularam v. Dayaram Amritlal, 305
Naihati Jute Mills v. Khayaliram, 254, 265, 287, 408, 450, 451, 472, 476, 473, 480
Nainamal v. Subbarao, 606
Nair Service Society v. K.C. Alexander, 261, 276, 946, 947, 953
Nair Service Society v. R.M. Palat, 988
Nait Ram v. Shib Dat, 680, 709
Naiz Ahmad Khan v. Parshottam Chandra, 305
Najaf Ali Khan v. Muhammad Fazal Ali Khan, 693, 701
Nalain Padmabahan v. Sait Badrinath, 235
Nalhanicel Uraon v. Mahadeo Uraon, 422
Nalhmal Bhanonbux & Co. v. Kashiram, 236, 881
Nalhubhai v. Chhabildas, 428
Nalini v. Somasundaram, 103, 109
Nalini Mitra v. Bepin Behari, 961
Nalini Nath Mitra v. Abhoy Charan, 999
Nallappa v. Vridhachala, 718
Namasivaya Gurukkal v. Kadir Ammal, 381
Namasivayam v. Nelayappa, 1010
Namayya v. Union of India, 95, 96, 97, 409
Nambahar Singh v. Oadir Bux, 1059
Nambat Rai v. Dhaunkal Singh, 1010
Nanachchand v. T.T. Supply Co., 342
Nanak v. Rania, 623
Nanak Chand v. Durant, 276
Nanakahan & Sadhurain v. Tinnevelli Tuticorin Electric Supply Co. Ltd., 578
Nanakchand Shadarain v. Tinneveta Tuticorin Electrical Supply Co. Ltd., 242
Nanakchand v. Lalchand Ganeshilal, 814
Nanak Baksh v. Rania, 623
Nanak Ram v. Mehin Lal, 726
Nanalal v. Shiv Singh, 679
Nanalal Verma & Co. v. Gordhandas, 680
Nanda v. Nanda, 1110
Nandalal v. Provudayal, 1101, 1107, 1118
Nanda Lal Roy v. Gurupada Haldar, 916, 926
Nandanlal v. Provudayal, 1099
Nandan Missir v. Lala Harakh Narain, 491
Nandan Pictures Ltd. v. Art Pictures Ltd., 1103
Nandan Sahu v. Fateh Bahadur, 573, 575
Nanda Singh v. Sunder Singh, 253
Nand v. Bhagat Singh, 287
Nandi Ram v. Jogendra, 1042
Nandkishor v. Bhagubhai, 1103
Nand Kishore v. International Mercantile Corpn., 290
Nand Lal v. Kharaiti Lal, 1065
Nand Kishore v. Kunj Behari Lal, 281
Nand Kishore v. Paroo Mian, 570
Nandkishore Prasad v. State of Bihar, 413
Nand Ram v. Gokal Chand, 882
Nandlal v. Jethuman, 543
Nandlal Singh v. Ram Kirit Singh, 419, 572
Nandlal v. Surajmal, 728
Nandlal Agrani v. Jogendra Chandra Datta, 507
Nando Kishore Lall v. Musst. Ramsookhe Kooer, 501

Nani Lal v. Tirthalal, 420
Nanik Lal v. Shankar Lal, 434, 1000, 1018
Nanjappa v. Nanjappa, 692, 694
Nanjibhai v. Ramkishan, 688
Nanjunda Swami Chetti v. Kanagaraju, 26
Nanku Ram v. Indian Midland Ry. Co., 785
Nannier v. Rayalu Iyer, 401
Nannho Bibi v. Ram Swarup, 87
Nantsyglo Iron Co. v. Grave, 889
Naoroji v. Kazi Sidick Mirza, 242, 308, 512
Naoroji v. Rogers, 1
Naran Chandra Dalapati v. Sidh Nath Singh, 1065
Narandas Morardas v. S.P.A.M. Papammal, 829, 885, 886
Narandas S. Rathi v. Ghanshyam Das, 356
Narain v. Aukhoy, 1008
Narain v. E.I. Railway Co., 781
Naraindas v. Atmaram, 1119
Narain Das v. Chait Ram, 692
Narain Das v. Het Singh, 949
Narain Das v. Musammat Dhania, 120
Narain Das v. Nenu, 744
Naraindas v. Ramanuja Dayal, 995
Narain Das v. Rikhab Chand, 389
Naraindas Karamdas v. S.A. Kamtam, 837
Narain Mitter v. Kishen Soondory Dassee, 1063
Narain Pershad v. Narain Singh, 982
Narain Singh v. Chiranjit Lal, 126, 128
Narain Singh v. Dilip Singh, 1033
Narain Singh v. Mata Prasad Singh, 726
Narain Singh v. State of U.P., 1075
Naraini v. P. Mohan, 289
Narasappa v. Sheikh Hazrat, 234, 1017, 1018
Narasaya v. Subbayya, 1072
Narasayyamma v. Andhra Bank Ltd., 809, 810, 814, 1069
Narasimhalu Naidu v. Nina Pillai, 276
Narasimha Mudali v. Narayana Swami Chetti, 401
Narasimharaju v. Gurumurthy Raju, 272, 273, 275, 277
Narasimha Swami (Rangaraju) v. Muthukrishna, 786
Narasimgi Vannerchand v. Guruswami Narasayya, 536
Narasimma v. Anantha Bhatta, 286
Narasimham v. Mahbubunnass Begum, 606
Narasu v. P.S.V. Iyer, 473, 481, 449
Narayan v. Amganda, 610
Narayan v. Amrit Haribhan, 1036
Narayan v. Ganesh 758
Narayan v. Gopalrao, 248
Narayan v. Laving Bharthi, 250
Narayan v. Markandya, 747
Narayan v. Raoji, 225
Narayan v. Shajani, 297
Narayan Coomari Debi v. Shajani Kanta Chatterji, 250, 892
Narayandas v. Sangli Bank, 431
Narayandas Sunderlal v. Narayandas Harbhagat, 805, 806
Narayan Deo v. Hanumantha Rao, 882
Narayan Dass v. Buchraj, 162
Narayan Gangadhar v. Rango Krishna, 1046, 1047
Narayan Misra v. Surendranath Das, 1124
Narayan Nagorao v. Amrit Haribhan, 999
Narayan Prusti v. State of Orissa, 1124
Narayan Rao v. Ramchandra Rao, 17
Narayan Row v. Dharmachar, 953
Narayan Singh v. Chattar Singh, 728
Narayan Undir Patil v. Motilal Ramdas, 344
Narayana v. Shankunni, 1071, 1074
Narayana Ayyangar v. Vellachami Ambalam, 367
Narayana Bhatta v. Narasimha Bhatta, 167
Narayana Chetti v. Lakshmana Chetti, 417
Narayana Dass Balakrishna v. Buchraj Chordia Sowcar, 167, 173
Narayanan v. Alleppey Chamber of Commerce, 353
Narayanan v. Kunhathayi Amma, 734
Narayanan v. T. Mathayi, 953, 954
Narayanan Nambudiri v. Patticharavoor, 282, 284
Narayana Rao v. Francis, 746
Narayana Rao v. Ramachandra Rao, 114, 258, 263, 288, 897
Narayanaswami v. Lokambalammad, 23
Narayana Sami Naidu v. Narayana Rao, 694
Narayani Devi v. Tagore Commercial Corporation Ltd., 30
Narayanasami v. Osura Reddi, 608
Narayanaswami v. Dhanakoti Ammal, 443, 960, 999, 1000, 1025
Narayanaswami v. Soundararajan & Co., 433, 617, 618
Narayanaswami Chetti v. Soundararajan & Co., 377
Narbadashankar v. Mathuradas, 355
Nardan Prasad v. Ajudhia Prasad, 566
Narendra Bahadur Singh v. Baij Nath Singh, 998
Narendra Chandra v. Pashupati Nath, 421, 573
Narendra Lal Khan v. Tarubala Dassi, 803
Naresh Chandra v. Ram Chandra, 3, 533, 979, 980
Nareshchandra Sanyal v. Calcutta Stock Exchange Assn. Ltd., 678, 709
Nareshnharao v. Supdt. of Excise, 684
Nariman Pictures N.U. v. Oshorn, 1109
Narmagiri Temples v. Muthukrishna Iyangar, 786
Narotam v. Nanka, 131
Narottamdas v. Chitta Bhagwansang, 307
Narsing Mahton v. Nirpat Singh, 746, 747
Nash v. Dix, 964
Nash v. Inman, 130
Natabar v. Kubir, 951
Natarajan Asari v. Pachamuthu, 1040
Natesa Ayyar v. Mangalathammal, 531
Natesa Iyer v. Appavu, 1076, 533, 702, 703, 705, 980,
Nath Bank Ltd. v. Sisir Kumar, 422
Natha Ram v. Sohan Devi, 155
Nathabhai v. Ranchodlal, 744
Nathibai v. Wailaja, 585
Nathmal v. Sanitatia Panchaya & Committee, 580
Nath Prasad v. Baij Nath, 569, 585
Nathu v. Balwantrao, 579
Nathu v. Dilbande Hussain, 954
Nathubhai v. Chhotubhai, 885
Nathubhai v. Javher, 131, 844
Nathubhai v. Mulchand, 6
Nathu Khan v. Sewak Koeri, 539
Nathulal v. Gomti Kuar, 505
Nathu Mal v. Ram Sarup, 339
Nathumal Bhaironbux & Co. v. Kashi Ram, 837
Nathuni v. Makesh, 972
Nathuni Sahu v. Baijnath Prasad, 701
Nathuram v. Dogar Mal, 504
Nathu Ram v. Mula, 1067
Nathusa Pasusa v. Munir Khan, 228
National Association of Local Government Officers v. Bolton Corporation, 606

National Bank of India Ltd. v. Sohan Lal, 770, 930
National Bank of Lahore v. Sohan Lal, 930
National Bolivian Navigation Co. v. Wilson, 927
National Broach & Machine Co. v. Churchill Gear Machines Ltd., 325, 1129
National Carriers Ltd. v. Panalpura (Northern) Ltd., 470
National Cash Register Co. v. Stanley, 686
National Coal Co. v. Kshitish Bose & Co., 746
National Cooperative Mills Ltd. v. Albert & Co., 620
National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Torumalai Ammal, 510
National Motor Mail Co. 564
National Pari-Mutual Association Ltd. v. The King, 600, 603
National Petroleum Co. v. Meghraj, 340
National Petroleum Co. v. Popatlal, 36
National Provincial Bank v. Marshall, 333
National Sugar Mills v. Ashutosh Mukerjee, 1101
National Tar Products v. Himachal State Electricity Board, 242
National Textile Corporation v. M.P. Electricity Board, 866
National Tobacco Co. v. Indian Airlines Corpn., 783
Naunho Bibi v. Ram Sarup, 912
Navakotti v. Logalings, 126
Navi Gopal Swami v. Abdul Hamid Chaudhary, 836
Navinchandra v. Moolchand, 889
Navinitlal v. Kishanchand & Co., 16, 20, 116, 368
Nawab Begum v. Creet, 1019
Nawabshaw, District Local Board v. Bulchand, 632
Nawab Sikander Begam v. Zulfikar Kalikhan, 171
Naylor, Benzon & Co. v. Krainische Industrie Gesellschaft, 272
Nazaralli v. Babamiya, 234
Nazir Ahamed v. Jivan Das, 127
Nea Agrex S.A. v. Baltic Shipping Co. Ltd., 18
Neale v. Gordon Lennox, 851
Neale v. Mackenzie, 997
Neckram Dobay v. Bank of Bengal, 808, 813
Neelamoni Sahu v. Khetrabasi, 1075
Nehal Singh v. Fateh Chand, 40
Neilson v. James, 882
Nellie Wapshare v. Pierce Leslie & Co., 576, 579
Nellore Co-operative Urban Bank Ltd. v. Mallikarjunayya, 742, 743
Nelson v. Aldridge, 554
Nelson v. Larholt, 578, 592, 593
Nelson Guarantee Corpon. v. Farrel, 124
Nemi Chand v. Radha Kishen, 494
Neni Kavur v. Ranganathan, 574
Nensukhdas v. Birdichand, 859
Nephew Ltd. v. Oston, 19
Neti Rama v. Venkatacharulu, 1079
Neville v. London Express News Papers Ltd., 277
Neuchatal Asphalati Co. Ltd. v. Barnett, 217, 414, 515, 516, 529
Neugebaner v. Hermann, 105
Newall v. Tomlinson, 935
New Beerbhoom Coal Co. v. Bolaram Mahata, 349, 988, 989
Newbigging v. Adam, 203, 714
Newbon v. City Mutual Life Assurance Society Ltd., 626
Newborne v. Sensolid (Great Britain) Ltd., 142, 836
New Burnswich & Canada Rly. and Land Co. v. Conybeare, 187
New Churulia Coal Co. Ltd. v. Union of India, 537, 589
New Comb v. De Roos, 82
New Combe v. New Combe, 431
New India Assurance Co. Ltd., v. Sulochana Chandhurani, 184
New India Insurance Co. v. Nanjunda Setty & Sons, 340
New India Sugar Mills v. Commissioner of Sales Tax, 102, 118, 157
Newharts Development Ltd. v. Co-operative Bank Ltd., 850
Newman v. Bourne & Hollingsworth, 597
New Marine Coal Co. Ltd. v. Union of India, 577, 580, 584, 590, 592, 596
New Merchantile Coal Co. v. Union of India, 588
New Prajapat Tiles Co. v. Labh Shankar, 660
New Standard Bank v. Probadh Chandra, 499
New York Randy Knitwear v. American Cyanamide Co., 46
New Zealand & Australian Land Co. v. Watson, 859
New Zealand Co. v. Societe des Ateliers at Chantiers de France, 369, 371, 1098
New Zealand Netherland Society 'Orange' Inc. v. Kays, 890
New Zealand Shipping Ltd. v. A.M. Satterthwaite & Co. Ltd., 43, 45, 53
Neyveli Lignite Corpn. v. Narayana Iyer, 950
Niamatunnissa v. Hafizul Rahman, 1066
Niaz Ahmad Khan v. Parshotam Chandra, 152, 205, 209, 307
Nichols and Van Joele's Contract, 1002
Nicholson, 900
Nicholson v. Chapman, 798
Nicholson & Venu v. Smith-Marriott, 213, 215, 219
Nickels v. Hancock, 1037
Nicolene Ltd. v. Simonds, 347, 530
Nicoll v. Beere, 318
Nicoll & Knight v. Ashton Edridge & Co., 467, 453
Nihal Chand v. Amarnath, 92
Nihal Chand v. Dilwar, 7, 132
Nihal Singh v. Collector of Bulandshahr, 420
Nilas & Co. v. Arcos, 349
Nilgiiri Construction Society v. State of Orissa, 87
Nilmony Singh v. Kally Churn, 1057, 1064
Nil Ratan Mukhopadhyaya v. Cooch Behar Loan Office, 415, 417,
Nimayya v. Union of India, 221
Nim Chand v. Jagbundhu, 813
Nirmal Chandra v. Kshetra Mohan, 1064
Ningawwa v. Byrappa, 207, 208
Nippon Yusen Kaisha v. Karagesrgis, 1089, 1099
Nirmar Industrial Corporation (P) Ltd. v. M.P. Electricity Board, 978
Niranjan v. Mohammad Yunus, 443
Niranjan v. Tirilochan Kuar, 205
Niranjan Shankar Golikari v. Century Spinning & Mfg. Co., 307, 317, 318, 322, 325, 331, 332, 334, 427, 1126
Niranjan Singh v. Jagjit Singh, 428, 429
Nirbharam v. Sukhdeo, 49
Nirdosh v. Jakaria, 419, 582
Nirmala Bala Dessi v. Sudarsan Jana, 96, 995
Nirmala Sundari Datta v. Kumbde, 969
Nisa Chand v. Kanchiram, 953, 954
Nisha Ghose v. Siddak Ali, 1052, 1054

Nisar Ahmad Khan v. Mohan Manucha, 244, 539
Nisar Ahmad Khan v. Rahmat Begum, 292
Nissim Issac v. Haji Sultanali, 485
Nitidals Taendstikfabrik v. Bruster, 898
Nityanand v. Radhacharan, 419
Nityananda Bakshy v. Banamali Bakshy, 579
Nityananda Mudaliar v. Arunachalam Chettiar 576, 579
Nixon v. Albion Marine Insurance Co., 288
Nixon v. Furphy, 609
N. Janakiraman v. Mattareddi, 1083
N.M. Firm, v. Theperumal Chetty, 499
Nobin Krishna Bose v. Mon Mohun Bose, 585, 586
Nobin Chunder v. Romesh Chunder, 6
Nochulliyil Euzhuvan Theethi v. Eralpad Rajah, 28
Nocton v. Ashburton, 193
Noine v. Midland Railway Co., 629
Nokayya v. Jagga Rao, 17
Noolchand v. Smt. Renukadevi, 424
Noorbhai v. Allabux, 117
Noorbux Mohmood Bux v. Kalyandas Jugaldas, 479
Noor Jahan Begum v. Eugene Tiscenko, 1065, 1070
Noor Mohamed Lallans v. Dhaniram, 739
Noor Mohammed v. Kan Mal, 499
Nordenfelt v. Maxim-Nordenfelt Co., 310, 312, 314, 318, 328, 334, 335
Nordisk Insulin Laboratorium v. George Products, 888
Nordon v. Raynar Sturgens, 466
Norrington v. Wright, 432, 444,
Norris v. Baron & Company, 497
North British Insurnace Co. v. Lloyd, 761
North Central Wagon Finance Co. Ltd. v. Graham, 772
Northcote v. Doughty, 128
North Eastern Railway, v. Hastings, 1043
North Ocean Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Construction Co. Ltd., 28, 148
North Ocean Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Willicom Charleck Ltd., 299
Northland Airlines Ltd. v. Dennis|Feranti Meters Ltd., 101
Northern India General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Lt. Kanwarjeet Singh Sobli, 365
North-Western Bank Ltd. v. John Poynter & Son, 808, 900
North Western Provinces Club v. Sadullah, 914
North Western Railway Administration v. North Western Railway Union, 1096
North Western Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co., 289, 288, 312, 317, 316, 334
Norton v. Herron, 911
Norwich Pharmaceutical Co. v. Custom & Excise Commissioners, 612
Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society Ltd. v. William H. Price Ltd., 61, 62, 213, 217, 597, 600
Nottingham Hide Co. v. Bottril, 732
Nottingham Patent Brick & Tile Co. v. Butler, 183
Nottingham Permanent Building Society v. Thurstan, 125, 532
Nowlay v. Ablett, 660
Nritto Lal v. Rajendra Narain, Deb, 948, 949
Nubbard v. Vosper, 1090
Nukala Venkatarandram, v. Immidisetty Dhanaraju, 239
Nundo Kishore Lal v. Musst Ramsookhee Kooer, 501
Nundo Lal v. Nistarini, 851
Nur Ali Dubash v. Abdul Ali, 314, 323
Nur Din v. Alla Ditta, 744
Nur Hossein v. Tamijuddin, 305
Nursing Dass Kothari v. Chutto Lall Misser, 220
Nusserwanjee v. Gordon, 1096
Nyali Ltd. v. Attorney General, 71
Nyberg v. Handelaar, 790, 826

O' Carroll v. Hastings, 591
O' Flaherty v. Mckinlay, 146
O. Houlan v. G.W. Ry. Co., 616
O' Oridcoll v. Manchester Insurance Co., 674
O' Rorke v. Boling broke, 170
O.P. Verma v. Gehrilal, 294
Oakeley v. Pasheller, 735
Oakes & Co. v. Jackson, 312, 314, 327, 334
Oates v. Hudson, 935
Obala K. Subbai v. Venkatachalapathi Ayyar, 396
Ocean Accident & Guarantee Crop v. Patkar, 97
Ocean Tanker Corporation v. V/o Savfracht—The Eugenie, 475, 477
Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Soondardas Dhurumsey, 195
Oceanska Plovidha v. Castle Investments, 392
Ockenden v. Henly, 980
Odessa Tramways Co. v. Mendel, 933
Official Assignee v. Dayabhoy, 610
Official Assignee v. Ramalingappa, 720
Offical Assignee v. R.M.P.V.M. Firm, 888
Official Assignee v. Sarju Prasad, 813
Official Assignee v. Swaroop Cold Storage, 770
Official Assignee of Madras v. Frank Johnson Sons & Co., 874
Official Assignee of Madras v. Rameswami Chetti, 801
Official Assignee of Madras v. The Mercantile Bank Ltd., 5, 817, 818, 821, 823
Official Liquidator v. Swaroop Cold Stores, 810, 901
Official Liquidator Travancore & Quilon Bank v. Official Assignee, 747, 746
Official Receiver v. Baneshwar Prasad Singh, 426, 666
Official Receiver v. Hira, 950
Offord v. Davies, 84
Offshore International S.A. v. Banco Central, 13
Ofley v. Mertborough Court Ltd., 343
Ogden v. Ogden, 10
Ogden v. Hall, 911, 913
Ogle v. Earl Vane, 51, 512, 616
Ohid v. Dorshee, 1045
Okara Grain Buyers Syndicate Ltd. v. United Commercial Bank, 42, 459, 471
Olati Pullah Chetti v. Varada Rajulu, 296
Oldershaw v. King, 49
Oliver v. Davis, 48
Oliver v. Oliver, 955
Olley v. Fisher, 1043
Omda Khanum v. Brojendra, 16
Om Prakash Mellen v. Soji Abdul Rahim, 306
Onama Glass Works v. Ram Harak, 948
Onkar Mal v. Ashiq Ali, 274
Onkarmal v. Banwarilal, 546, 608, 610
Oom v. Bruce, 913
Oppenheimer v. Attanborough, 819
Oppenheimer v. Frazer, 819, 822
Orient Government Society Life Assurance Co. v.

Narasimha Chari, 77
Orient Paper Mills v. State of Orissa, 605, 606
Orient Ship Supply Co. v. Kalamarsand Co., 777, 779
Oriental Bank Corporation v. Fleming, 138, 139, 190
Oriental Financial Corporation v. Orrend, Gurney & Co., 749
Oriental Fire & General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Vimal Roy, 510
Oriental Government Security Life Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Narasimha Chari, 185, 538
Orissa v. Mohammad Khan, 475
Orissa Cement Ltd. v. Indian Fire Bricks Insulator Co. Ltd., 431, 447
Orissa Khadi and Village Industrial v. Orissa Saw Mills, 518
Orissa Textiles Mills v. Ganesh Das, 615, 617, 910
Oscanyan v. Arms Co., 288
Oscar Chess Ltd. v. Williams, 17, 215, 216
Osman Jamal & Sons Ltd. v. Gopal Purshattom, 715
Osumanyawa v. Sir Ojori Atta, 1095
Oswald v. Mayor of Berwick, 736
Otter v. Church, 648
Ottoman Bank v. Chakarian, 389
Ouseph Lukhra v. Ananthanarayana, 492
Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank ltd., 273, 275, 276, 277
Ouseph Skaria v. Cherian Joseph, 1067
Ouseph Varghese v. Joseph Aley, 997, 999
Overbrooke Estates Ltd. v. Grencomba Properties Ltd., 854
Overend v. Gibb, 882
Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Oriental Financial Corporation, 736
Overseas Tankship (U.K.) Ltd. v. Moris Dock & Engineering Co. Ltd., 638, 673
Overton v. Hewitt, 836
Owen v. Cronk, 862, 935
Owen v. Tata, 578
Owners of Steamship Utra v. Owners of Steamship volume, 392.
Oxford v. Provand, 437, 997, 1015

P. v. P., 521, 528
P.C. Kapoor v. Commissioner of Income-tax, 238
P.C. Lal v. State of Bihar, 494
P.C. Pal v. K.A.L.R. Firm, 693
P.C. Ray & Co. v. Income-Tax Officer, 706
P.D. Mehra & Sons v. Firm Ram Chand Om Parkash, 448, 449 471
P.H. Patil v. K.S. Patel, 1122
P.K. Achutan v. State Bank of Travancore, 688
P. Muhammad Ali v. A.P.R. Marudappa, 686
P.N. Dorairaj v. N.A. Rajan, 549
P.R. & Co. v. Bhagwandas, 637
P.S. Machada v. Venkatarama, 606
P. Sangili v. Ramkrishnan, 1077
P. Sankunni Menon v. Empire of India Life Assurance Co. Ltd., 98
P.M.G. Panna v. Ram Kripal, 36, 40
P & O Steam Navigation Co. v. Johnson & Co. 378, 898
Pabia v. Badia, 1108
Paboodan v. Miller, 843
Pachhablall Keshablal Mehta v. Vyayam & Co. 242
Padam Prashad v. Punjab National Bank, 878
Padayachi v. Nalesha, 671
Padayachi v. Sivasooriam, 239
Padget v. Priest, 935
Padma Vithoba v. Mohammad Multani, 127
Padwick v. Stanley, 885
Page v. L.N.W.Ry. Co., 847
Page v. Newman, 665
Page One Records Ltd. v. Britton, 333, 1096, 1128
Paget v. Marshall, 203, 538
Pahranchi Lal v. Mansingh, 369
Pahunchilal v. Mansingh, 245, 978, 1017
Paice v. Walker, 911
Pakhar Singh v. Kisan Singh, 441, 998
Palace Theatre v. Clensy, 333
Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunachalam Chettiar, 267, 268, 541, 542, 543
Palaniappa Chettiar v. Chockalingam Chettiar, 894
Palaniappa Mudaliar v. Kandaswamy Mudaliar, 150, 151
Palaniswami Nadar v. Gomathinarayana Pillai, 961
Palani Vannan v. Krishnaswami Konar, 871
Palanivelu v. Neelavathi, 157, 583
Palanivelu v. K. Veradammal, 1119
Palepu Narayanamurthy v. Mallapudi Subrahmanyam, 234
Pallamsetti v. Srirmulu, 540
Pallonjee Eduljee v. Lonavala City Municipality, 556, 557, 581, 583, 593, 595
Palmer v. Hutchinson, 917
Palmer v. Lark, 1047
Palmer v. Locke, 1004
Palmer v. Scott, 1029
Palmer v. Temple, 627, 688, 732
Palmer v. Wick etc. Steam Shipping Co., 420
Pampa v. Arjan Singh, 710
Pana Singh v. Arjan Singh, 679, 703
Panchanan Pal v. Nirodh Biswas, 976
Panchayat Board, Ahumalla v. Venkata Redd 1069
Panchkore v. Hari Das, 570, 583, 584
Pandiranath v. Ramchandra, 1071
Pandit Salig Ram v. Raday Shiam, 504
Pandurang v. Dadabhoy, 386, 387
Pankhabati v. Nani Lal, 567, 569
Pannaji Devichand v. Basappa, 727
Pannaji v. Senaji, 616
Pannalal v. Dy. Commissioner, 596
Pannalal v. Labhchand, 501
Pannalal v. Mahachandi, 585
Pannalal v. Ramnarain, 994
Pannalal v. Thansing, 273, 279, 1022
Pannalal Babulal v. S.T. Commissioners, 830, 831
Panna Lal Jankidas v. Mohan Lal, 637, 648
~~Pannichand v. Nanoo Sarkar, 257~~
Panontsos v. Raymond Hadley Corporation of New York, 404, 405, 529
Panorma Developments Ltd. v. Fidelis Furnishing Co., 846
Pao on v. Dau yeu, 266
Pao on v. Lau Yiu, 49, 147, 148, 149
Pape v. Westacott, 846
Paper Sales Ltd. v. Chokhani Bros., 530
Pappu Reddiar v. Pichu Ayyar, 609, 611
Papraich Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Papraich Sugar Mills Mazdoor Union, 110
Paquin v. Beauclerk, 845
Paradine v. Jane, 450

Parakh Govardhanbai Haribhai v. Ransordas Dulabhdas, 358
Paramasivam v. Ramesami, 727
Paramma v. Ramachandra, 507
Parangodam v. Perumtoduka, 980, 1036
Paras Nath v. Kishan Lal, 491
Parasram v. Naraini Devi, 240
Paras Ram v. Sherjit, 1104
Parashram v. Sadasheo, 548
Parasullah v. Chandra Kant, 333
Parayachi v. Sivasoorian, 253
Parbhu v. Puttu, 167
Parbhu Ram v. Jalo Kuer, 394
Pardhan Bhukhan Lal v. Narsing Dyal, 693, 694
Parduman Chand v. Kashmira Singh, 263
Park v. Hammond, 882
Parken v. Dick, 185
Parker v. Clark, 109
Parker v. Ibbetson, 660, 895
Parker v. Izzat, 349
Parker v. Lewis, 718
Parker v. Mckenna, 888
Parker v. South Eastern Railway Co., 65, 68, 70, 71, 76
Parker v. Winlow, 911
Parkins v. Hawkshaw, 932
Parkinson v. College of Ambulance Ltd., 267, 287, 545, 549
Parkinson (Sir Lindsay) & Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Works, 555, 455
Parmanand v. District Boad, 1083
Parma Nand v. Ghulam Hussain Shah, 664
Parmanand v. Sm. Chhimmawati, 952, 953, 1073
Parmeshridas v. F. Ram Chand, 471
Parmeshwar Mandal v. Mahendra Nath Tewari, 1012
Parmeshwari Dass Chenna v. Bhola Nath, 1105
Parrant v. Barnes, 774
Parrs Banking Co. v. Yales, 493
Parshotam Das v. Batala Municipal Committee, 448, 456, 457, 458, 460, 461, 462, 463, 484, 560
Parsons v. B.N.S. Laboratories Ltd., 659
Parsons v. Brand, 18
Parsons v. Soverign Bank of Canada, 804
Parsons v. Thomson, 287
Parsons Bros. Ltd. v. Shea, 484
Parthasarathi v. Venkata, 974
Parthisingh Jamiat Rai v. Muthuram, 356
Parthi Singh v. Ramchand, 748
Parta Industries Ltd. v. Canadian Pacific Ltd., 639
Partrigi v. Critenden, 112
Parul Bala Roy v. Srinibas Choumal, 1101, 1107, 1111
Parul Bala v. Saroj Kumar, 964
Parul Bala Roy v. Srinibash, 942, 1094
Parvataneni v. Andhra Bank ltd., 752, 753
Parvati Bai v. Vinayak Balwant, 746, 747, 748
Parvatibai v. Vishvanath Ganesh, 1049
Pashupati Mukerji v. Shitalkumar Sarkar, 287
Patalbala Debi v. Santimoy Mazumdar, 161
Patel Bros. v. Vadilal Kashidas, 340
Patel Engineering Co. Ltd. v. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., 557
Pater v. Gordon, 914
Paterson v. Gandasequi, 923
Pathak Kali Charan v. Ram Deni Ram, 566
Patiram v. Kanakanarrah & Co., 916
Patiram Tukaram v. Baliram, 236
Patna v. Ram Kripal, 36, 40
Patrick v. Russo-British Grain Export Co., 623
Patta Mahapatrani v. State of Orissa, 1074
Patten v. Hemilton, 890
Pattinson v. Luckley, 505
Pattison v. Gilford, 1109
Pattukumari v. Nirmal Kumar, 170
Paul v. Robson, 1101, 1107
Paul Alias Varkey v. Narayanan, 1114
Paul Beier v. Chotalal Javerdas, 117, 832, 879
Paul Couyreur v. M.G. Shapiro, 994
Paul Felthouse v. Bindley, 111
Paul Reier v. Chotalal Javerdas, 832
Pava v. Govind, 697, 698, 699
Pavanaga v. Govind, 6
Payana Reena Saminathan v. Pana Lana Palaniappa, 496, 497
Payida Ramakirshnayya v. Barrey Nagarazu, 574
Paylon v. S.G. Brookes & Sons (Pty.) Ltd., 748
Payne v. Cave, 85
Payne v. Leconfield, 854
Paynter v. Williams, 565
Payzu v. Saunders, 640, 643
Pazhaniappa v. South Indian Planting Co. Ltd., 847
Peacock v. Baijnath, 803, 859
Peacock v. Penson, 1024
Pearce v. Brain, 124
Pearce v. Brooks, 229
Pearey Lal v. Harilal, 461, 472
Pearks Ltd. v. Cullen, 318
Pearl v. Deacon, 757, 759
Pearl Cycle Industries Ltd. v. A.N. Kaul, 475
Pearl Insurance Co. v. Atma Ram, 16, 339
Pearl Mill Co. v. Ivy Tannery Co., 434, 445, 510
Pearson v. Goschen, 856
Pearson v. Rose & Young Ltd., 819, 820, 822
Pearson v. Scott, 847, 894
Pearson's Case, 889
Pechappa Chettiar v. Chokalengam Pillai, 122
Pecke v. Redman, 52
Peckam v. Moore, 836
Peddiford v. Warson, 191
Peek v. Derry, 673
Peek v. Gurney, 180, 188, 199
Peer Mahomed v. Mohamed Ibrahim, 1018
Penn v. Simonds, 17
Pennels Case, 518, 519
Pennington v. Reliance Motor Works, 799
Penton v. Southern Railway, 65
Penumasta Subbaraju v. Indukari Narayanaraju, 249
People v. Aguella, 678
People's Bank of Northern India v. Ghulam Jan, 171
Pepin v. Chunder Seekur Mookerjee, 719
Peraya v. Kondayya, 132
Perceval v. Wright, 188
Perciva Ltd. v. London County Council Asylums, 57
Periamanna Marakkayar v. Banian & Co., 721, 763
Periasami v. Krishna Ayyan, 395
Peria Sami v. Representatives of Salagar, 219
Periasami Thalavar v. Subramanian Asari, 692
Permanent Trustee Co. v. Bridgewater, 172
Perosha v. Manekji, 353, 354, 358, 359, 362, 363, 365
Perry v. Barnett, 902
Perry v. Clissold, 946, 947, 953, 1100

Perry v. Davis, 512
Perry v. Equitable Life Assurance of the U.S.A., 14
Perry v. Liverpool Malt & Co., 343
Perry v. National Prov. Bank of England, 497, 742
Perry v. Suffield Ltd., 97, 515
Perry v. Truefitt, 1123
Pertap Chunder v. Mohendranath Purkhait, 198
Pertherpermal Chetty v. Munandi Servai, 258, 270
Perthi Mal v. Gopi Nath, 809
Perumal Chettiar v. Kamakshi Ammal, 583
Perumal v. Sendanatha, 27
Perumalasami Naicker v. Srinivasaga, 1050, 1052
Perumayammal v. Chinnammal, 303
Perundevitayar v. Nammalvar, 770
Pesticides, India v. State Chemicals and Pharmaceuticals Corporation of India, 722
Pestonji v. Bai Meherabai, 303, 725
Pestonji v. Gool Mahomed, 843
Pestonji v. Matchett, 872
Pestonji v. Ravji, Javerchand, 899
Petch v. Lyen, 932
Peters American Delicacy Co. Ltd. v. Patricia Chocolates, 328, 329
Peter v. General Accident & Life Assurance Co., 498, 510
Peter Cassidy Seed Co. Ltd. v. Osuustukkanppa, 114, 265, 476
Peter Pan Corpn. v. Corsets, 324, 1129
Peter Turbull & Co. (Pty) Ltd. v. Mundus Trading Co. (Pty) Ltd., 404, 405
Peters American Delicacy Co. Ltd. v. Patricias Chocolates & Candies Pty. Ltd.
Petherperumal Chetty v. Muniandi Service, 240, 268, 540, 542, 543, 544
Pethuppa Chettiar v. Muniandi Seervai, 268
Petrofina Ltd. v. Martin, 330, 331
Petrofina S.A. of Brussels v. Compagnia Italiana, 69, 311
Petroleum v. Harpes Ganga, 254
Petroleum Ltd. v. Mardon, 883
Petty v. Cooke, 745
Peyral v. Wilkmson, 390
Peyton v. Mindham, 327
Pfizer Corporation v. Ministry of Health, 151
Phalli v. Matabadal, 243
Phani Bhusan Mukherji v. Rajendra Nandan Goswami, 417
Phalram v. Ayub Khan, 566
Phalumal Motiram v. Valjimal, 615
Pharmaceutical Society v. Boots Cash Chemisto Ltd., 106, 112
Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain v. Dicksons, 320
Pheku Ram v. Ganga Prasad, 36, 755
Philip v. Chinnaswami, 1105, 1106
Philips v. Brooks Ltd., 141, 142, 143
Philips v. Ellinson Bros. (Pty) Ltd., 377, 378
Philips v. North, 143
Phillips v. Alhambra Palace Co., 412
Phillips v. Foxall, 733, 752
Phillips v. Lamdin, 439
Phillips v. Phillips, 1110
Phillips v. Ward, 621
Phillpotts v. Evans, 403
Phipps v. Boardman, 881, 890
Phirayalal Kapur v. Jia Pami, 951
Phoenix Mills Ltd. v. M.H. Dinshaw & Co., 516
Phonographic Equipment Ltd. v. Muslu, 681, 682, 684, 685, 689
Phukan Ali v. Mt. Sahjdi, 441
Phul Chand v. Chand Mal, 982
Phulchand-Fateh Chand v. Jugal Kishore-Gulab Singh, 400
Phuljhari Devi v. Methailal, 345, 845
Piari Lal v. Mina Mal, 714
Picardo, D. John v. Pinto G., 491
Pichai Moideen v. Chaturbhuja, 1023
Pichate v. British Railway Engineering Ltd., 666
Pickakutty Mudali v. Narayanapa, 260
Pickering v. Busk, 972
Pickering v. Ilfracombe Ry Co., 289
Pinckney v. Pinckney, 1110
Pickernell v. Jauberry, 856
Pidcock v. Bishop, 760
Pidding v. How, 1123
Pigment Lakes etc. v. Sitaram, 945
Pigot v. Cubley, 740, 812
Pike v. Ongley, 912
Pilcher v. Rawlins, 514
Pilha Kali Malha v. Surendra Nath, 1079
Pilkington v. Wood, 642, 644, 656, 667, 668
Pillai v. Pillai, 250
Pilloo Dhunji Shaw Sidhwa v. Municipal Corporation of the City of Poona, 577, 592, 594
Pinnock Bros. v. Lewis & Peat Ltd., 70, 629
Pipraich Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Pipraich Sugar Mills Mazdoor Union, 28, 91
Pirtha Das v. Hira Singh, 542
Pirthi Mal v. Mussammat Bhagan, 257
Pirthidin v. Ramlal, 17
Pitamber v. Cassibai, 663
Pitamber v. Jayjiwan, 284
Pitha Kali Matha v. Surendra Nath, 1079
Pitt v. Smith, 134
Piyara Singh v. Bhagwandas, 429
Planche v. Colburn, 555
Plasticmonde Societe Per Azioni v. Davidson (Manchester) Ltd., 267, 627
Pledge v. Buss, ,
Pogose v. The Bank of Bengal, 752
Polak v. Everett, 738, 741, 757
Pole v. Leask, 830, 846
Polemis, 648, 650
Polemis v. Furness Withy & Co. Ltd., 673, 878, 882
Polhill v. Walter, 883
Polland v. Bank of England, 611
Pollock & Co. v. Macrae, 75
Polsky v. S.A. Services Ltd., 74
Poma Dongra v. William Gillespie, 176, 210
Ponamanian Steamship Corporation v. Wright, 74
Ponnamma v. Ramnathan, 795
Ponnammal v. Kanthammal, 1050
Ponnammal v. Pichai Thevan, 532
Ponnammal v. Srinivasarangan, 296
Ponnusami v. Nadimuthu, 176, 701
Ponnusami v. Pappammal, 954
Ponnuswami v. Rama Boyan, 422
Ponnoo Bibee v. Fyez Buksh, 300
Pontypridd Union v. Drew, 563, 564
Pooltis v. Schulz, 214
Poonnô Bibee v. Fyez Buksh, 292, 490
Pooran Singh v. Krishna Bai, 22
Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 152, 153, 160, 163, 168, 172, 176
Popular Bank of India v. Charanji Lal, 700
Port Jackson Stevedoring Pty. Ltd. v. Salmond & Spraggon (Australia) Pty. Ltd. (The New York Star), 45

Porter (William) & Co. Ltd., 522
Porter v. Freudenberg, 272
Porter v. Jones, 646
Porter v. Latec Finance (Q.L.D.) Pty Ltd., 62, 141, 144, 219
Port Trust Madras v. Bombay Company, 572
Port Sweetenham Authority v. T.W. & Co. (M) Soln, Bhol, 770
Postlethwaite v. Freeland, 426
Potelaikhoff v. Teakle, 50
Potter v. Saunders, 1008
Potters v. Loppert, 838
Pothiram v. Islam Fatima, 328
Potts v. Bell, 271
Poussard v. Spiers, 448, 449, 625
Pow v. Davis, 925
Powell v. Braun, 302, 585
Powell & Bryant Ltd. v. Banguedu Pueple, 840
Powell v. Brodhurst, 393, 394
Powell v. Jones, 858, 889, 890
Powell v. Lee, 101
Powell v. Powell, 158, 172
Powels v. Page, 909
Power v. Butcher, 905
Prabhat Bank v. Babu Ram, 814
Prabhu v. Puttu, 167
Prabhakaran v. Bhavani, 998
Prabhod v. Doodhnath, 1120
Prabhudas v. Union of India, 559
Probhudas Pranjivandas v. Ramlal Bhagirath, 434
Prabhu Mal-Ghula Mul v. Babu Ram Basheshar Das, 540
Prabhu Ram v. Jhalo Kuer, 394, 446
Prabirendra Mohan Tagore v. Anil Chattopadhya, 491
Prabirendra Nath v. Narendra Nath, 1111
Prafulla Ranjan Sarkar v. Hindustan Building Society Ltd., 659, 660
Prag v. Sital, 243
Pragdas Mathuradas v. Jeewanlal, 448
Prager v. Blastspiel, 856
Pragilal v. Ratan Lal, 229
Pragji v. Pranjiwan, 315
Pragnan (R) Fratelli v. Corebisa Industrial Agrof, 643
Prahlad Parshad v. T. Faldani Kumari, 872
Prahlad Prasad v. Bhagwan Dass, 306
Praj Dutt v. Smt. Saraswati Devi, 962, 998
Prakash v. Bodhraj, 666
Prakash Chandra v. Angadlal, 1016
Prakash Chand Khurana v. Harbans Singh, 28
Prakash Stores v. Karnataka Maharashtra Transport Co., 341
Prakash v. Rudra, 1126
Pramada Nath Ray v. Ramnikanta Roy, 422
Pramada Prasad v. Sagarmal, 531
Pramla Basidas v. Jogeshar Mandal, 126
Pramatha Nath v. Dwarkanath, 504
Pranbala v. Tulsibala, 545
Prasanjit Mehta v. United Commercial Bank Ltd., 722
Prasanta Kumar v. International Contractors, 1000
Pratabmull Rameshwar v. K.C. Sethia, 254, 265, 476, 1051, 1080
Pratap v. Puniyabai, 208
Pratpchand Nagaji v. Kotrisa Venkata Shetty & Sons, 356, 357, 360, 362
Pratapchand Nopaji v. Kotrike Venkata Setty & Sons, etc., 245
Pratab Singh v. Bhabhuti, 1061
Pratap Singh v. Gurbux Singh, 20
Pratap Singh v. Keshavlal, 727, 740
Pratapsingh Mohalabhai v. Keshavlal Harilal Setalvad, 725, 729, 737
Prativa Nath Roy v. Benode Behari Ghose, 1123
Pratt v. Brett, 1093
Pratt v. Vizard, 899
Pratt (Bombay) Ltd. v. E.D. Sasoon & Co., 864
Pravadayal Agarwala v. Ramkumar Agarwala, 648, 649, 675, 710, 982
Prayag v. Shyam Lal, 698, 699
Pree v. Strange, 1030
Prehn v. Royal Bank of Liverpool, 632, 636
Preist v. Last, 629
Preonath v. Ashutosh, 1011
Premabhai v. Brown, 907
Prem Devi v. Priya Devi, 746
Premji v. Madhowji, 920
Prem Narain Singh v. Parasram Singh, 174
Prem Prakash v. Mohan Lal, 244
Premraj v. Narayan, 953
Prem Raj v. D.L.F. Housing and Construction Ltd., 997, 998, 999, 1044, 1047
Prem Sukh v. Habib Ullah, 546, 995, 1009
Prem Sook v. Dhurum Chand, 328
Premier Automobiles Ltd. v. Kamalakar Shantaram, 945
Premier Tyres Ltd. v. State Trading Corporation, 722
President of the Taluk Board, Kundapur v. Burda Lakshminarayana Kampthi, 713
Presser v. Coldwell Estates, 883
Preston v. Humphreys, 710
Prestwich v. Poley, 851
Price v. Dyer, 1006
Price v. Gatlin, 46
Price v. Price, 172
Prickett v. Badger, 558, 875, 896
Priestly v. Contract, re, 667
Prince v. Oriental Bank Corporation, 601
Prince Abdul Rahem v. Abdul Taha, 1114
Prince Albert v. Strange, 326, 1128
Prince Line v. Trustees of Port, Bombay, 848
Pringle v. Jaffar Khan, 260, 357, 358
Printers & Publishers Ltd. v. Holloway, 325, 1129
Prior v. Mcmanus Childs Ltd., 628
Prithi Mal v. Gopi Nath, 809
Prithi Singh v. Ram Charan, 947
Priya Gupta v. General Manager N.E. Rly., 250
Probodh Kumar v. Gillanders & Co., 727
Proffulla Kumar v. Firoza Sundari, 886
Profulla Kumar v. Gopee Bullabh, 716
Profulla Kumar Bose v. Nabo Kishore Rai, 818
Prokash Chandra v. Adlam, 250
Proops v. Chaplin, 630
Prosunno Kumar v. Jamaluddin, 572
Protab Chunder v. Gour Chunder, 745, 746
Protop Chandra v. Kali Charan, 79
Protapmull Rameshwar v. State of West Bengal, 31
Protima Aurat v. Dukhia Sarakar, 258
Proudfoot v. Montefiori, 909
Provat Kumar Mitter v. C.I.T., 295
Provincial Insurance Co. v. Leduc, 913
Provincial Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Morgan & Foxon, 185
Province of Orissa v. Durjodhar Das, 1059, 1060,

1072
Province of West Pakistan v. Saaz & Co., 615, 616, 619, 657
Psaltis v. Shultz 217, 265, 284
Public Works Commissioner v. Hill, 681, 682, 683, 786, 710
Puddukolah Textiles Ltd. v. B.R. Adityan, 833
Pudi Lazarus v. Rev. Johnson Edward, 996, 998
Pudishari Krishnen v. Karampally, 167, 275
Pugose v. Bank of Bengal, 736
Pulbrook v. Richmond Consolidated Mining Co., 984, 1073
Pullen Chetty v. Ramalinga Chetty, 252
Punchanun Ghose v. Daly, 746
Pundit Daryaraj v. Jainarayan Maliram, 977
Pundlik Daryaji v. Jainarain, 1002
Puninthavalu v. Bhashyam, 809
Punjab v. Petum Singh, 419
Punjabhai v. Bhagwandas, 539, 581, 584, 573
Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. A.I. Punjab National Bank Employees Federation, 984
Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Arunamal, 800, 801, 802
Punjab National Bank v. Benarsidas & Co., 862
Punjab National Bank v. Diwan Chand, 878
Punjab National Bank v. Ishwarbhai Lalbhai Patel, 860
Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Satyapal Virmani, 800, 801, 802
Punjab Rao v. Sheshrao, 249
Punjab United Bank v. Mohd. Hussain, 848
Punnakotiah v. Kolikamba, 231, 240
Punnamma v. Venkata Subba Roa, 1097, 1118
Puran Chand v. Nityanand, 1095, 1105
Puranlal Sah v. State of U.P., 554, 555, 556, 582
Purdns v. T. Ammal, 1076
Purmanundass v. Cormack, 923
Purmeshar v. Brijo Lall, 953
Purnanand v. Kamla Sinha, 649
Pursha Ram v. Modern Construction Co., 61
Purushothamdoss, Re, 243
Purshottam Das Ganpati Rai v. Gulab Khan, 728
Purshotamdas Tribhovandas v. Purshotam Das Mangaldas, 282, 401, 467
Purshottam Vasudeo v. Ramkrishna, 886
Purushottam v. Amruth Ghee, 666, 852, 858, 859, 861, 862, 884, 898
Purshottam Das v. Bai Dahi, 1102
Purushottam Das v. Union of India, 825, 827
Purves v. Landell, 670
Pusha Ram v. Modern Construction, 266
Pushong v. Mania Halwani, 1156
Pushpabala Roy v. Government of India, 347
Pusi v. Mahadeo Prasad, 130, 845
Puttappa Manjaya v. Virabhadrappa, 427
Puthempurayal v. Mangalasseri, 574
Puthupally Valiapally v. Chacko Thumman, 471
Putti Narayana Murthi v. Marimuthu, 763
Putraya v. Krishna Gota, 1114
Putto Lal v. Sumersunghji, 248
Puthulal v. Raj Narayan, 287
Pyarelal Adeshwarlal v. Commissioner of Income Tax, 833, 834
Pyare Mohan v. Smt. Narayani, 256
Pyari Mohan v. Durga Shankar, 385
Pyari Mohan Bose v. Kedar Nath Roy, 422
Pybus v. Gibb, 736
Pyrene Cooperative Ltd. v. Scindia Navigation Co. Ltd., 42
Pyrke v. Waddingham, 1004
Pyrmount Ltd. v. Schott, 391

Q'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, 159
Qabook Singh v. Board of Revenue, 1079
Qaman Ali v. State, 1085
Qamar Shaffi Tyabji v. Commissioner E.P.T., 832, 833
Qamar Shriffi Tyabji v. E.P.T., 861
Quadir Bakhsh v. Hakam, 541, 543-545
Quasir Jahan Begam v. Court of Wards, 569
Qudaille v. Lawson, 199
Queen v. Demers, 57
Queen of Spain v. Parr, 897, 934
Queens Bridge Motors & Engineering Co. v. Edwards, 674
Quinn v. Burch Bros. (Builders) Ltd., 651, 674, 675
Quinn v. Leathem, 1097
Quirk v. Thomas, 379
Quseph Thomas v. Mathai Sarakutty, 245

R. v. Ashwell, 768
R. v. Bishop, 630
R. v. Clarke, 108
R. v. Demers, 88
R. v. Doutre, 670
R. v. Fulham Hammir Smith & Kensington Rent Tribunal Exp. Zerah, 531
R. v. International Trustees, 391, 393
R. v. I.C.R. Haulage, 932
R. v. International Trustee, 12,15
R. v. Lincoln's Inn Benchers, 311, 324
R. v. Mallory, 933
R. v. Mc Donald, 767
R. v. Middleton, 768
R. v. Westwood, 933
R.B. Basu v. P.K. Mukherjee, 250
R.D. Sethna v. National Bank of India, 825
R. Ezhuthassan v. Devassi, 775
R. Leslie Ltd. v. Sheill, 123
R. Manikram v. M.Satyanarayan, 584
R. Shiva Ram v. T.A. John & others, 274
R.C. Candeok v. Chunilal Sabharwal, 434
R.C. Thakkar v. Bombay Housing Board, 58, 834
R.C. Thakkar v. Gujarat Housing Board, 178, 179, 182, 209
R.D. Hard bottle (Mercantile) Ltd. v. National Westminister Bank, 722, 724
R.E. Jones v. Warring & Gillow, 588, 607
R.G. Jana Thakal v. Bharat Parekh & Co., 1109
R.H. Wilson & Sons v. British Car Auctioneers Ltd., 854
R.S. Ghadge v. L.S. Ghadage, 1028
R.S. Mithuswami Gounder v. A. Annamalai, 1119
R.S. Shah v. S.S. Merchants Association, 837
R.S. Tewari v. District Board, 983
Rabiabibi v. Gangadhar, 234
Rabina Bibi v. Satyavathi, 702
Racecourse Belting Control Board v. Secretary of State for Air, 14
Radha Krishan Das v. Ayodhya Das, 729
Radha Krishna v. State of Bikaner, 847
Radha Shankar Roy v. Shaktipada Roy, 1072
Radha v. Kinlock, 744
Radha Bai v. Kamod Singh, 244
Radha Gobinda v. Nilkantha Narayan, 1076
Radha Gobinda Rai v. Dibakar Mahto, 159

Radha Govinda v. K. Dharmchand Colliery Co., 294, 720
Radha Hari v. Narendra Nath Chatterjee, 241
Radha Kamal v. Puri Municipality, 972, 1013
Radha Kanta v. United Bank of India, 752
Radha Kanta Dass v. Baerlein Bros., 78
Radhakishan v. Bhore Lal, 123
Radha Kishan v. Chapa Bhima, 275
Radha Kishen v. General Construction Co., 407
Radhakishan v. Sridhar, 1015
Radhakisson Gopikisson v. Balmukund, 18
Radha Kishan Kaul v. Shankar Das, 662
Radha Krishna Das v. Municipal Board of Benares, 552, 553, 557
Radhakrishna Iyer v. Secretary of State, 586
Radhakrishna Sivadutta Rai v. Tayebelli, 56, 118, 137, 914, 915
Radha Kunwar v. Ram Narain, 721, 750
Radha Madhab v. Rajendra Prasad, 1123
Radha Madhub Somonta v. Shasti Ram Sen, 570
Radha Raman v. Chota Nagpur Banking Association Ltd., 801, 802
Radha Ram v. Hanuman Prasad, 1081
Radha Rani v. Ram Das, 295
Radha Shiam v. Bihari Lal, 124
Radhasoami Satsang Sabha v. Hanskumar Kisanchand, 242, 695
Radha Sundar v. Saktipada, 1051
Radheshyam v. Smt. Kerenbala, 1028, 1029
Radheysham v. Guruprasad, 1107
Radhey Shivam v. Mewa Lal, 234
Raed v. Jones, 775
Raffles v. Wichelhaus, 135, 136, 216
Raghavachari v. Pakkiri Mahomed, 864
Raghava Chariar v. Srinivasa, 126, 127, 128, 129
Raghavalu v. Adinarayana, 542
Raghavan v. Alamelu Ammal, 574, 586
Raghavayya v. Vasudevayya, 340
Raghavendra Gururan v. Mahipal Krishna, 763
Raghavendra Vakil & Co. v. B.R. Elevia, 303
Raghbir Das v. Sundar Lal, 979
Raghoonathdas v. Morarji, 469, 916
Raghoonath Dass v. Halle, 410
Raghoji v. Abdulkarim, 306
Raghubar Das Mahant v. Raja Natabar Singh, 248
Raghubar Dayal v. Hargovind, 950
Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad, 84, 85, 86, 87
Raghunandan v. Swadeshi Cloth Dealers Ltd., 1072
Raghunandan Prasad v. Ghulam Ala-ud-din Beg, 679
Raghunandan Saran v. Kanta Devi, 1108
Raghunath v. Nathu Hirji, 234
Raghunath v. Nilkanth, 278, 279
Raghunath v. Varjivandas, 156
Raghunath v. Vijaya, 199
Raghunath v. Vyaya, 181
Raghunath Artea v. Arjuno Altea, 154
Raghunath Abaji v. Lahnu, 582
Rahunath Baraie v. Jainarain, 1076
Raghunath Das v. Baleshwar Prasad, 415, 419
Raghunathprasad v. Mangulal, 347
Raghunath Prasad v. Sewaram Tikundas, 859
Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, 152, 154, 155, 167, 174
Raghunath Rai v. Shri Ram Janki, 161
Raghupati Chatterjee v. Nrishingha, 543
Raghu Ram Pandey v. Deokali Pande, 610
Ragnath Sahal v. Mam Raj, 357
Rahamatulla v. Ganesh Das, 503
Rahim Bibi v. Sherfuddin, 566
Rahimbux v. Mohammad Shafi, 469
Rahimatoolah v. HEH Nizam Hyderabad, 917
Rahiman v. Sadasiv Tripathy, 97
Rahmat Ali Muhammad Faizi v. Dewa Singh-Mansingh, 504
Rai Bahadur Bansilal v. Kabulchand, 928, 930
Rai & Sons (P) Ltd. v. Trikamji Kanji, 342
Rai Sahib Chandanmul v. State of Orissa, 949
Raikishori v. Debendranath, 1053
Raitton v. Mathews, 760
Railway & Electric Appliance Co., re, 115
Rainbow v. Juggins, 754, 757
Ramdev Moolchand v. Lakshmi Insurance Co., 185
Raingold v. Bromley, 95
Rainey v. Burma Fire & Marine Insurance Co., 338
Raipur Transport Co. v. Ghanyshamdas, 64, 65, 72
Raja Chetty v. Jaganathadas, 245, 246, 266
Raja Dhruv Dev Chand v. Raja Har Mohindar Singh, 448, 469, 470, 548, 450, 456, 457, 458, 460, 461, 463
Raja Dhanrajgirji v. Raja P. Parthasarathy Raynimuaru, 746, 748, 747
Raja Kumar Lal v. Jaikarandas, 569
Raja Ram v. Deepabai, 181
Rajah Chattar Singh v. Roshan Singh, 1085
Rajah Papamma Row v. Sitaramayya, 156
Rajah Vatsuraya Venkta v. Venkatapathi Raju, 17
Rajai Singh v. Suraj Bali, 982
Rajai Tirumal v. Pandla Muthial, 403
Rajagopala v. Palani, 415
Rajagopala v. Sheik Davood, 982
Rajagopalacharyulu v. The Secretary of State for India, 867
Rajagopala Iyer v. Ramachandra Iyer, 755
Rajagopal Oil Mills v. Louis Drayfus & Co., 647
Rajamani Ammal v. Bhoorasami, 163
Rajammal v. Gopalaswami, 341, 442, 961, 1024, 1035
Raja Mohan v. Manzoor Ahmad, 535, 539, 547
Raja Mohkam Singh v. Raja Rup Singh, 173, 210, 279
Rajanagram Village Co-operative Society v. Veerasami, 85, 87
Rajan Harji v. Ardeshir Hormusji, 252
Rajanikanta v. Haji Lal, 568
Rajani Kanta Das v. Gour Kishore, 403
Raja of Ramnad v. Arunachalam Chettiar, 1041, 1074
Raja of Pithapuram v. Secretary of State for India, 587
Raja of Venkatagiri v. Chinta Reddy, 337
Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Province of Madras, 1076
Raja of Venkatagiri v. Sir Krishnayya, 302
Raja of Venkatagiri v. Sobhanadri, 720
Raja of Venkatagiri v. State of Andhra Pradesh., 56
Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Vadutha Subbarayudu, 582
Raja of Vizianagram v. Maharaja of Jaypore, 1018
Rajah Vurmah Valia v. Ravi Vurmah Kunhi, 286
Raja Rai Bhagwat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu, 280, 863
Rajaram v. Bisram, 841
Raja Ram v. Manik, 1038, 1041, 1042
Raja Ram v. Meher Khan, 501
Raja Ram v. Sha Kapoorchandji, 365

Raja Ram v. State of U.P., 1109
Raja Ram Jaiswal v. Ganesh Prasad, 115, 852, 895, 896, 897
Raja Sahib Perhlad Sein v. Baboo Budhee Singh, 810
Raja Singh v. Chaichoo Singh, 138
Rajasthan Golden Transport Co. Ltd. v. Indian Fire & General Insurance Ltd., 568, 569
Raja Udairay Singh v. Secretary of State, 1060
Raj Bahadur Lal v. Sitta Prasad, 910
Raj Bahadur Singh v. Ram Sumiram Misra, 977
Rajbans Sahay v. Askaran Baid, 1072
Rajbenbach v. Mamon, 247
Rajdhar v. Mohan, 506
Rajendra Bahadur v. Roshan Singh, 283, 560
Rajendra Kumar Bhandari v. Ponasmmal, 978
Rajendra Kumar Saha v. Saraswati Press, 1032
Rajendrakumar Verma v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 87
Rajendranath v. Ramdhen, 469
Rajendra Nath v. Saraswati Press, 1033
Rajendranath Sarma v. Ramadhan, 457
Rajgopalacharyulu v. The Secretary of State for India, 867
Rajgopal Oil Mills v. Louis Drayfus & Co., 647
Rajkishor v. Banabehari, 346
Raj Kishore v. Madan Gopal, 1074, 1076
Raj Kishore v. Vishwanath, 1011
Raj Kishore Kuer v. Muhammad Quaiyam, 1015
Rajkishor Mohanty v. Banabihari, 94
Rajkristo Moitro v. Koylash Chunder 277
Raj K. Mehra v. Mrs. Anjali Bhandrari, 962
Raj Kumar Patna v. Union of India, 388
Rajkumari v. State of U.P., 594
Raj Lukhy Dabee v. Bhootnath, 300
Raj Narain v. Ful Kumari Devi, 734
Raj Narain Das v. Shama Nando Das, 1071, 1074
Raj Rani v. Prem Adib, 121, 122
Raj Rani Bhasin v. Kartar Bux, 1000
Raj Shatranjai v. Raj Bahadur Singh, 1083
Raj Singh v. Gajraj Singh, 1107
Rajubala Dassi v. Nidhuram Pandit, 1027
Rajulu Aiyer v. Kappu Aiyar & sons, 401
Rajyalakshmy v. Kerala, 513
Rakhal Chandra v. Baikuntha Nath, 387
Rakhmabai v. Govind, 40
Rakhma Ghadge v. Laxman Ghadge, 1028, 1029
Raleigh Investment Co. v. Governor General in Council, 605, 1125
Ralli Bros. v. Ambika Prasad, 410
Ralli Brothers v. Bhagwan Dass, 657
Ralli Brothers v. Companies Naviera Sota, 254, 481
Rallu v. Phalla, 296
Rama Ayodhya v. Raghunath, 1081
Ramachandra v. Chinubhai, 863, 871
Ramachandra v. Gangabison, 356, 359, 366
Ramachandra v. Ramayya, 991
Ramachandra v. Shapurji, 720, 721
Ramabilas v. Durga Bijai Prasad, 337
Rama Chandra v. The Secretary of State for India, 1059
Ramachandran v. Registrar of Co-operative Societies Ltd., 927
Ramachandra Ramvallabh v. Vassanji Sons & Co., 616
Ramachandra Rao v. Chinnaswamy Kandar, 1105, 1106
Ramachandra Saru v. Kasem Khan, 846
Ramacharya v. Shrinivasacharya, 47
Ram Adhar v. Ram Shanker, 1079
Ram Awalamb v. Jata Shankar, 1116, 1117
Ramiah v. Somasi, 499
Ramakrishna v. Narayana, 1059, 1067, 1065, 1077
Ramakrishna v. Palaniappa, 1022, 1024
Ramakrishna v. Rangoobai, 554, 580
Ramakrishna Dalmia v. Delhi Administration, 851
Ramakrishna Reddiar v. Kasivasi, 129
Ramakrishnaya v. Sreeramulu, 1033
Ramakrishnayya v. Venkata Somayajulu, 696
Ramalinga v. Jagadammal, 1023
Ramalinga Adaviar v. Meenakshisundaram, 677
Ramalingaiah v. Subbarami, 287
Ramalinga Iyer v. Jayalakshmi, 428
Ramalingam Chettiar v. Subramania Chettiar, 176, 692
Ramalingam Reddi v. Bavambal Ammal, 129, 297
Ramalingathudayar v. Unnamalai Achi, 716
Ramamurthi v. Kuppuswami, 720
Ramamurthi v. Ramanujam, 837
Ramamurthi v. Subbarao, 697
Ramamoorthy v. Sathyanarayana, 113
Rama Motebhai v. Dalwadi Tapoo, 424
Raman v. Vairavan, 923
Ramana v. Buthamma, 697
Raman Adiyoty v. Kannan Nambiar, 611, 613
Ramanadham v. Zamindar of Ramnad, 1106
Ramanand v. Gokal Chand, 448, 471, 809
Ramananda v. T.S.A. Hamid, 456, 457, 458, 463, 470, 471
Ramanand Koer v. Raghunath Koer, 1082
Ramanamma v. Viranna, 171, 279
Ramanathan v. Kumarappa, 843
Ramanath Pillai v. State of Kerala, 522
Ramanayudu v. Seetharamayya, 235
Raman Chetti v. Municipal Council Kumbakonam, 553
Raman Chettiyar v. Gopalachari, 429
Raman Hosiery Factory v. J.K. Synthetics Ltd., 1095
Ramanendra v. Basavayya, 950
Ramanujulu v. Gajaraja, 224
Ramanandi Kuer v. Kalawati Kuer, 5
Ramanjulu v. Aravamudu, 417
Ramanuja v. Devanayaka, 1077
Ramanuja v. Narayan, 279
Ramanuja Jeeyar v. Board of Commissioners for Hindu Religious Education, 1065
Ramanund v. Chowdhry Soonder Narain, 740
Ramappa v. Yellappa, 1009
Rama Patter v. Lingappa Gounder, 158
Rama Patter v. Manikkam, 173
Rama Pattar v. Vishwanatha Pattar, 304
Rama Prasad v. Shivanandan, 572
Ramaraghava Reddy v. Shishu Reddy, 1061, 1062
Rama Raju v. Official Receiver, 132, 411, 1027
Rama Rao v. Jayamma, 260
Rama Rao v. Papayya, 235
Rama Rao v. Raja of Pettapur, 1083
Rama Rao v. Suryanarayana, 239
Ramaswami v. Chandra Kotayya, 393
Ramaswami v. Paraman, 949
Ramasami v. Rajagopala, 346, 585
Ramasami Gupta v. Kamalammal, 818
Ramasami Pillai v. Murugiah, 504
Rama Shah v. Lal Chand, 491, 493
Rama Sharma Reddy v. Sheshu Reddy, 1062
Ramaswami v. Muthukrishna, 717

Ramaswamy v. Munniyandi, 393, 395
Ramaswami v. Rudrappa, 517
Ramaswamy v. Venkatachalam, 1016
Ramaswami v. Viswanatha, 572, 586
Ramaswami v. Kuppuswami, 306
Ramaswami Chetti v. Manikka Mudali, 395
Ramaswamy Chettyar v. Nachiappa Chettiyar, 290
Ramaswami Naicker v. Narayana Swami Naicker, 607
Ramawel v. Pandayan Automobiles (P) Ltd., 495
Ram Awalamb v. Jata Shankar, 1116, 1117
Ramayya v. Gulfarosh Mohind Deen, 476
Ramayya v. Krishnaiah, 999, 1001
Ramayya Naidu v. Chilakayya, 415
Ramayya Prasad Gupta v. Murli Prasad, 537, 538, 539, 549
Ramayyar v. Shanmugam, 506
Rambaran v. Ram Mohib, 994
Rambhabai v. Kanji Ravji, 250
Ram Bahadur Singh v. Damodar Prasad Singh, 305
Ram Bahadur Thakur v. Devi Dayal, 340
Ram Bharan Prasad v. Ram Mohit Hazra, 1010
Rambharosa v. Smt. Binda Devi, 1068
Rambhat v. Thimmayya, 283
Ram Bilas Ojha v. Bishwa Muni, 1016
Rambux Chittangeo v. Modhusudan Paul, 579
Ramchand v. Audaito Sen, 283
Ram Chand v. Dunichand, 89
Ramchand B. Loyalka v. Shapurji & Bhownagree, 722
Ramchandra v. Chinubhai, 863, 871
Ramchandra v. Gangabison, 356, 359, 366
Ramchandra v. Mst. Bhanwaribai, 274
Ramchandra v. Ramayya, 991
Ramchandra v. Shapurji, 743
Ramchandra v. Tukaram, 748
Ramchandra Atmaram v. Damodar Ramchandra, 570
Ramchand & Sons v. Municipal Committee, Lahore, 581, 593
Ramchand Jagdishchand v. Union of India, 559
Ram Chander v. Asghari Begum, 1011
Ram Chander v. Sital Prasad, 157
Ramchandra v. Ayeesha Begum, 1027
Ramchandra v. Bhimrav, 6
Ramchandra v. Ganesh Chandra, 224
Ram Chandra v. Narasimha, 1097
Ramchandra v. Ramchandra, 933, 990
Ram Chandra v. Sunderlall Singh, 1071
Ramchandra Chintaman v. Kalu Raju, 297
Ramchandra Laxman v. Bank of Kolhapur, 276
Ramchandra Madhava Dos & Co. v. Moidunkutti, 885
Ramchandra Marwari v. Rani Keshobati, 529
Ramchandra Ram Nagram Oil Mills v. Haorah Oil Mills, 906
Ramchandra Taxwan v. Ramraskhmal Amanchand, 989, 994
Ramchandra Saree v. Kapem Khan, 846
Ramchand Sen v. Audaito Sen, 283, 540
Ramchandran v. Co-operative Societies Act, 927
Ramcharan v. Rakhal Das, 983, 1096
Ram Chander v. Ganga Saran, 1053
Ram Chaunder v. Manick Chunder, 884
Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee, 1, 278, 279, 281
Ramdas v. Amerchand & Co., 5, 6, 816
Ram Das v. Bhagwat Das, 884
Ram Das v. Official Liquidator, Cotton Ginning Co., 80
Ramdas v. Ram Babu, 579, 592
Ramdas Khatau & Co. v. Atlas Mills Ltd., 4, 1088, 1109, 1112, 1124
Ramdas Vithaldas v. Amerchand & Co., 817, 823
Ramdayal v. Devdiji, 504
Ram Dayal v. Saraswati, 948
Ramdayal Ghasiram v. Government of Andhra Pradesh, 820, 836
Ramdeni Singh v. Gumani Raut, 1011
Ram Dev Jai Dev v. Seth Kaku, 356, 880
Ramdeo Moolchand v. Lakshmi Insurance Co. Ltd., 97, 185
Ramdhan Das v. Kishori Chand, 615, 618
Ram Dhani v. Janki Raj Singh, 292
Ramdoll Thackoorseydass v. Soojunmull Dhondumull, 350
Ramakbar Singh v. Harihar Singh, 232
Ramendra Roy v. Serajuddin Ahamed, 693
Rameswar v. Nurul Haq, 139
Rameshardas Benarsidas v. Tansookhrai Bashesharilal, 887
Rameshchandra v. Chunilal, 998, 1000, 1012
Ramesh Krishna Rao v. State Banking India, 988
Rameshwar Marwari v. Upendranath Das Sankar, 275
Rameshar Mistry v. Babulal, 296
Rameshwar Bux Singh v. Ganga Bux, 422, 424
Rameshwardas Poddar v. Paper Sales Ltd., 430, 666, 672
Rameshwar Koer v. Mahomed Mehdi Hussein Khan, 494
Rameshwar Marwari v. Surendranath Das, 150, 151
Rameshwar Prasad v. Anandi Devi, 972, 1019
Rameshwar Prasad v. Lachmi Prasad, 296
Rameswar Prosad Singh v. Rai Sham Kishen, 692, 694, 695
Ramghulam v. Janki Rai, 338
Ramgopal v. Dhanji Jadhavji Bhatia, 658
Ram Gopal v. Firm Radha Kishan, 830
Ram Gopal v. Gurbux Singh, 977
Ram Gopal v. Uggersain, 356, 880
Ramgopal Naicker v. Muthukrishna Ayyar, 836
Ramgopal Parsram v. Uggersain, 880
Ram Gulam v. U.P. Government, 766
Ramier v. Shanmugam Pillai, 506
Ramir Reddi v. Pattabhirami, 1023
Ramjanam Bharthi v. Mt. Dharandhar Kuer, 1016
Ram Jash Agarvalla v. Chandmandal, 240
Ramjee Rao v. Musalipatam Municipality, 604
Ramji v. Dharma, 306
Ramji v. Little, 410
Ramji v. Rao Kishore Singh, 980
Ramji Das v. Janki Das, 926
Ramji Dayawala & Sons Pvt. Ltd. v. Invest Import, 79, 531
Ramji Karamsi v. The Unique Motor & General Insurance Co. Ltd., 339
Ramjilal v. State of Haryana State of Haryana State, 283
Ramji Patel v. Rao Kishore Singh, 966
Ram Kalap v. Bansidhar, 156
Ram Kalpa v. Kasi Nath, 440
Ramkin v. Emigh, 577
Ram Kinkar v. Akhil Chandra, 423
Ramkirpal v. Gaye Det, 296

Ramkirpal v. Municipal Committee Bilaspur, 235, 255
Ramkishen v. Muktilal Sarma, 967
Ram Kishen v. Rani Bhagwan Kuar, 600
Ramkishun Ram v. Bansi Singh, 174
Ram Kissen Das v. Satya Charan, 1070
Ram Kissendas Dhanuka v. Satya Charan Law, 983
Ram Kissen Joydoyal v. Poorum Mall, 1095, 1124
Ram Kirpal v. Municipal Committee, Bilaspur, 235
Ramkrishna v. Mukund Sing, 991
Ramkrishna v. Rambai, 422
Ramkrishna Agency (P) Ltd. v. Life Insurance Corporation, 886
Ram Krishna Das v. Mutsaddi Lal, 353, 356
Ram Kumar v. Baslarsingh, 729
Ram Kumar v. Lakshmi Narayan, 631, 903
Ram Kumar v. P.C. Roy & Co., 452, 464, 466
Ramkumar v. Shankar Dutt, 656
Ramkumar v. Sholapur Spinning & Weaving Co., 983
Ramlagan v. Akleshwar, 505
Ram Lakhan v. Mt. Tulsha, 954
Ramlakhan Mohta v. Mahadeo Mohta, 842
Ram Lal v. Asian Assurance Co., 885
Ram Lal v. Khiroda Mohini, 572
Ram Lal v. Punjab State, 340
Ram Lal v. Thakurji Mandir, 1066
Ramlal Dubey v. Secretary of State, 442
Ram Lal Jain v. Central Bank of India Ltd., 988
Ramlal Kapur & Sons v. Asian Commercial Assurance, 885
Ram Lal Misra v. Rajendra Nath, 287
Ramlalsao v. Malak, 91
Ramlal Singh v. Harihar Prasad, 665
Ramlall Thackoorseydass v. Soojunmull Dbondmull, 350
Ramlinga Adaviar v. Meenakshisunderam, 677
Ram Mangal v. Achhaibar Prasad, 325
Ram Manorath Singh v. Dilraji, 1065
Ram Metal Works v. The National Small Industries Corporation Ltd., 57
Rammoorthy v. Satyanarayana, 113
Ram Nagina Singh v. Governor-General in Council, 557, 563, 592, 593
Ram Nand v. Gokal Chand, 457, 463, 471
Ram Narain v. Lt.-Gol. Hari Singh, 726
Ram Narain v. Ram Chunder, 422, 423,
Ram Narayan v. Mangeram Radhesham, 1062
Ram Nath v. Mannut Lal, 499
Ramnath v. Pitambar, 827
Ramnath v. Shimoga Co-operative Bank Ltd., 1018
Ram Nath Pillay v. State of Kerala, 523
Ramnath Singh v. Desraj Singh, 1078
Ramnath Unnissa v. Shimoga Co-operative Bank Ltd., 445
Ramnathpuram Marketing Committee v. East India Corporation, 604
Ramnicklal v. Vivekananda Mills Co. Ltd., 340
Ram Patter v. Manikkam, 173
Ram Piari v. Municipal Committee Pathankot, 983
Rampal v. Gourishankar, 789
Rampal Singh v. Balbhaddar Singh, 908
Rampal Singh v. Murray & Co., 784, 786
Ram Patti Devi v. Board of Revenue, 222
Ram Pershad Singh v. Neerbhoy Singh, 419
Ram Pertab v. Marshall, 927, 928
Ramprasad v. C.I.T., 833, 837
Ram Prasad v. Ranji Lal, 356
Ram Prasad v. Salik Ram, 570
Ram Prasad v. Sasana Sugar Works Ltd., 615
Ram Pratap Kamalia Mills v. State of Bihar, 577, 584, 591, 592, 596
Rampur Distillery Co. v. Union of India, 705
Ram Partap Mahadeo Prasad v. Sasansa Sugar Mills Ltd., 462
Ram Ranjan v. Chief Administrator Rehabilitation, 748, 749
Ram Rattan v. Gaura, 568
Ram Rup v. Sarú Dayal, 1080
Ram Sagar Singh v. Yogendra, 729
Ramsaran v. Gangadevi, 1074
Ram Sarandas v. Sri Kishan Das, 529
Ram Saroop v. Bansi Mandar, 255
Ram Saroop v. Hiralal Singh, 1081
Ram Saroop v. Partap Narain, 884
Ram Sarup v. Bella, 256
Ram Sarup v. Kishen Lal, 243
Ram Sarup v. Court of Wards, 275
Ramsay v. Margrett, 948
Ramsden v. Dyson, 1119
Ramsebuk v. Ramlall Kondoo, 422, 423
Ramsgate Victoria Hotel Co. v. Montfiore, 91
Ram Shankar v. Mahatma Gandhi Nagar Secondary School, 1121
Ramskill v. Edwards, 579
Ram Singh v. Jethanand, 546
Ram Singh v. Shop Tek Chand, 500
Ram Singh Kundansingh v. Sajan Damji, 664
Ram Sukh v. Brohmoyi Dasi, 769
Ram Sumran Prasad v. Gobind Das, 160, 283
Ram Sundar Saha v. Kali Narain Sen, 132
Ram Sundar Saha v. Raj Kumar Sen Choudhury, 169
Ram Sunder Bhagat v. Rambharosi Bhagat, 1068
Ramswamy Kon's Case, 508
Ram Swarup v. Mahabir, 1012
Ram Swarup Maru v. State of Bihar, 589
Ram Tawakal v. Mst. Dulari, 1081
Ram Tuhul Singh v. Biseswar Lal, 570, 586, 1078
Ramulu v. Anantharamulu, 967
Ramulu v. Venkatasubba Rao, 1010
Ranchhod v. Manmohandas, 663
Ranchhoddas Chhaganlal v. Devaji Supder Dorck, 440
Ranchoddas v. Nathmal Hirachand & Co., 467
Ranchhoddas Nathubhai v. Jeychand Khushalchand, 306
Rance Lalun v. Nobin Mohan, 282
Randell v. Trimesn, 883
Randy Knitwear v. American Cyanamid Co., 46
Ranee Annapurni v. Swaminatha 174, 210
Ranee Bhobosoondaree v. Issur Chandra Dutt, 810
Ranendra Nath v. Dhuliyan Municipality, 587
Raneshwar Prasad v. Lachmi Prasad, 296
Rangnath v. Govind, 167, 177
Rangachari v. Secretary of State, 985
Rangammal v. Venkatachari, 542
Ranganatha v. Indo Union Assurance Co., 874
Ranganath v. Pachusan, 716
Ranganayakamma v. Alwar Setti, 150, 160
Ranganayakamma v. S.R. Subudhi, 533
Ranga Ram Thakar Das v. Raghbir Singh, 108

Rangarazu v. Maddura, 127
Rangasa v. Hukum Chand, 353
Rangasami Gounder v. Peeramuthu Gounder, 1025
Rangaswami Reddi v. Doraiswami, 506
Rangaswami v. Trisa Maistry, 467
Rangiah v. Parthasarathy, 383
Rang Illahi v. Mahbub Illahi, 534, 1055
Ranglal Sahu v. Kali Shankar Sahai, 575
Rangnath Sakharam v. Govind Narasinv, 177
Rangraya v. Devichand, 848
Ranguppa Thamappa & Co. v. Prakash Road Lines Pvt. Ltd., 341
Ranibai v. Khimji, 982
Ranibala Debnath v. R.K. Debnath, 181
Raniganj Coal Association v. Tata Iron & Steel Co., 1060
Rani Jagannath v. Bhawani Singh, 1083
Rani Janki Kunwar v. Raja Ali Singh, 1053
Rani Leela Kumari v. J. Zamberlal, 815
Rani Prithi Pal Kunwar v. Rani Guman Kunwar, 1063, 1064
Ranjani Kant v. Rama Nath, 581
Ranjeet Singh v. Ramlal, 263, 287, 539, 540
Ranjit Chandra v. Union of India, 990, 1097
Ranjit Singh v. Naubat, 744
Rankanayakamma v. Alwar Setti, 150
Rankin v. Emigh, 593
Ran Ugrah Singh v. Benares Hindu University, 1115
Ranvijaya Shahi v. Bala Prasad Motani, 377
Rao Rani v. Gulab Rani, 309
Rasaji v. Sayana, 692
Rasappa Pillai v. Doraisami Reddiar, 573
Rash Bihari Naskar v. Haripada Naskar, 178, 205
Rash Behary Saha v. Nittye Gopal Nundy, 398, 400
Rasik Lal v. Ram Narain, 403, 633
Rasu Martime S.A. v. Paruvahaan Partam Bangan, 1099
Ratan Chand v. Khet Singh, 306
Ratanchand Hirachand v. Askar Nawaz Jung, 262, 263, 265, 278, 279, 288
Ratanlal v. Amarsingh, 950
Ratanlal v. Brijmohan, 404
Ratan Lal v. Mangi Das, 288, 903
Ratanlal v. F. Mangilal, 247, 289
Ratanlal v. Ramanujdas, 379
Ratanlal Hiralal v. Chandradutt, 580
Ratayya v. Venkataramayya, 649
Rathman Naidu v. Kani Ammal, 163
Rathnasabapathi Pillai v. Ramaswami Aiyar, 1074
Ratnakalli Guranna v. Vachalipu Appalanaidio, 366, 1102
Ratneswar v. Mongoli, 1040
Ratras Jherica Coal Co. Ltd. v. Mercantile Bank Ltd., 489
Rattayya v. Venkatayya, 407, 649
Rattayya v. Venkataramayya, 346
Raunekbal Singh v. Harihar Singh, 282
Ravji v. Gangadharbhat, 1044
Rawson v. Johnson, 434
Ray v. Sempars, 187
Rayadurai v. Muthuswami, 446
Raymon & Co., v. Khardah Co. Ltd., 247
Raymond v. Minton, 562
Rayner v. Grote, 926
Rayner v. Mitchell, 787
Rayner & Co. Ltd., v. Hambros Bank Ltd., 862
Rayneri v. Miles, 652
Raynolds v. Boston Deep Sea Co., 64
Re A Debtor, 742
Re Agra Maslerman's Bank, Exparte Asiatic Banking Corporation, 105
Re Anglo Russian Merchant Traders & Butt & Co., 114
Re Badischi Co., 272
Re Bowes, 801, 802
Re. Cheshrman's Trust, 390
Re Daniel, 662
Re Danton's Estate, 765
Re Davis & Cavey, 194
Re Devala Provident Gold Mining Co., 933
Re Dyke's Estate, 1009
Read v. Anderson, 874
Re. King Exparte Unity Joint Stock Mutual Banking Association, 124
Re L.G. Charke, 198
Re. London & Globe Finance Corporation, 802
Re Mohmood & Ispahani, 251
Re Manikyam v. M. Satyanarayan, 251
Re Marshall, 133
Relu Mal v. Ahmad, 492
Re N (Infants), 1089
Re Nusery Spinning and Weaving Co., 206
Relly-a-Bell Burglar & Fire Alarm Co., v. Eisle, 318, 322, 333
Re. Purushottamdass, 243
Re Railway and Electric Appliances Co., 115
Re Tidd, 770
Re Walker, 133
Re Whelan, 92
Re Wootton v. Isacson, 260
Read v. Rann, 895
Reading v. Attorney-General, 579, 830
Reading v. The King, 888
Read's Trustee v. Smith, 384
Reardon | Smith Lines Ltd., v. Black Sea & Baltic General Insurance Ltd., 426, 476
Reardon Smith Line Ltd., v. Ministry of Agriculture & Food, 75, 478
Reckitt v. Barnett Perbroke & Slater Ltd., 849
Red Dean College v. Michaels, 643
Rederi Aktienbolagat. Transatlantic v. Fred Drughorn, 925
Rederiaktie Bolaget Amphitrite v. R., 264, 348, 522, 559
Redford v. D.C. Forbesvilla, 619
Redgrave v. Hurd, 199, 205, 714
Redfern v. Bryning, 1038
Redpath v. Wigg, 911
Reed v. Dean, 774
Reed v. Norris, 763
Reemah Ezekiel v. Province of Bengal, 793
Rees v. Berrington, 745, 756, 757
Rees v. De Bernardy, 277
Rees v. Sinclair, 671
Ree Thomas, 268
Reese Revar Silver Mining Co. Ltd. v. Smith, 187
Reeve v. Davis, 855
Reeves v. Capper, 808
Reg v. Doutre, 132
Reg v. Karsan Goja, 250
Regal (Hartings) Ltd. v. Gulhvoee, 890
Regent Oil Co. Ltd. v. Aldon Motors Ltd., 330
Reggazzoni v. K.C. Sethia Ltd., 231, 232, 254
Regier v. Campbell-Stuart, 888, 889, 891
Reid v. Blagrave, 442
Reilly v. R., 467, 489

Reilly v. The King, 449
Rengaswami Pillai v. Srirangam Municipal Council, 609
Renton & Co. Ltd. v. Palmyra Trading Corporation of Panama, 76
Reordan Smith Lina v. Hansen-Tangen, 503
Republic of Gautemala v. Nunez, 119
Republic Stores (Trade) v. Jagjit Industries, 1097
Repurlee Store (Trader) v. Jagjit Industries Ltd., 988, 990
Reshee Law v. Manik Molla, 536
Reuter v. Sala, 444
Revashankar v. Velji Jagjivan, 323
Revenue Authority v. Sudarsanam Picture, 810
Rewal Singh v. H.D. Goil, 763
Rex v. Benchers of Lincolns Ins., 265, 311, 324
Rex v. Birmingham (West) Rent Tribunal, 233
Rex v. Kylsant, 180
Rex v. Surgeon's Co. (Master),
Reynell v. Sprye, 267
Reyner v. Pearson, 933
Reynolds v. Atherton, 92
Reynolds v. Jex, 856
Rhodes v. Bate, 156, 159
Rhodes v. Forwood, 874
Rhodes v. Rhodes, 563, 564
Rhomas Cheshire & Co. v. Vaughan Bros. & Co., 351
Richardson v. Anderson, 853
Richardson v. Goss, 804
Richardson v. Smith, 971
Richardson v. Williamson, 925
Richardson Spence & Co. v. Rowntree, 65
Rickards (Charles) v. Oppenheim, 439
Rickards v. Philips, 853
Ridge v. Baldwin, 984, 1084
Ridge Nominee v. I.R.C., 151
Ridgway v. Wharton, 100
Ridley v. Plymouth Grinding Co., 839
Rigby, John (Haulage) Ltd. v. Reliance Insurance Co. Ltd., 143
Right & Fisher v. Cuthell, 868
Rikhobram v. Nalini, 1050
Riley v. Coglan, 17, 18
Ripley v. Mc Clure, 403
Risal Singh v. Manohar Singh, 176
Rita Joan Dairies Ltd. v. Thomson, 836
River Commissioners v. Adamson, 17
Riverlata Properties v. Paul, 211
River Steam Navigation Co. v. Choutmull, 781, 785
Riverstone Meat Co. Ltd. v. Lancashire Shipping Co. Ltd., 778
Road Transport Corporation Ltd. v. Kirloskar Brothers Ltd., 343, 778
Robb v. Green, 129, 324
Roberts v. Bernard, 896
Roberts v. Berry, 440, 443, 444
Roberts v. Bumb, 959
Roberts v. Bury Improvement Commissioner, 435, 436
Roberts v. Crawe, 715
Roberts v. Ogilby, 894
Roberts v. Security Co., 94
Roberts v. Smith, 369, 585
Robert C. Herd & Co. Inc. v. Krawill Machinery Corporation, 43
Robertson v. Amazon Tug & Lighterage Co., 775
Robert Stewait & Sons Ltd. v. Carapanayoti & Co. Ltd., 685
Robertson & Clarke, 855
Robertson v. French, 117
Robertson v. MacDonogh, 670
Robertson v. Ministry of Pensions, 58, 518, 522, 523, 524, 526, 527, 559, 595
Robertson v. Wait, 41, 912
Robinson v. Davison, 466, 488, 449
Robinson v. Harkin, 764
Robinson v. Harman, 654, 662
Robinson v. Mollett, 852, 853
Robinson v. Ommancy, 288
Robinson v. Read, 923
Robinson v. Rutter, 898
Robophone Facilities Ltd. v. Blank, 109, 636, 681, 683, 687, 689
Robshaw Brothers Ltd. v. Mayer, 944
Robson v. Drummond, 412
Robson v. Kemp, 901
Rocher v. Busher, 855
Roehm v. Horst, 403, 410
Rodmell v. Eden, 868
Rodocanachi v. Milburu, 623, 617
Rohilkhand and Kumaun Bank Ltd. v. Row, 120
Rohilkhand & Kumaun Ry. v. Ismail Khan, 781
Rohtas Industries Ltd. v. State of Bihar, 835
Rogers v. Hadley, 919
Rogers v. Ingham, 222, 231, 600, 603
Rogers v. Kennay, 812
Rogers, Sons & Co. v. Lambert, 797
Rohininandan Cooswami v. Ocean A & C Corp. Ltd., 184
Rolfe v. Flower, 797
Rolland v. Hart, 909
Rolleswin Investment Ltd. v. Chromolit, 427
Rollin v. Steward, 632, 661, 675
Rolls-Royce Ltd. v. Jeffrey, 1101
Ramesh Chandra v. Chunilal, 978
Ronbar Enterprises v. Green, 317, 333
Rondel v. Worsley, 669, 670, 671
Ronnaip Enterprises v. Green, 327
Ronneberg v. Fakland Islands Co., 776, 877
Rooke v. Dawson, 105
Rooke v. Lord Kensington, 1057
Rookes v. Bernard, 165, 528, 529, 1097
Roop Chand v. Punamchand, 1105
Roper v. Johnson, 621, 644, 657
Rose v. Pim, 146, 1041
Rose & Frank Co. v. Crompton & Bros. Ltd., 54, 95, 337, 338
Rose Fernandes v. Joseph Gonsalves, 121
Rosenthal v. Alderton & Sons Ltd., 794
Roshan Lal v. The Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. Ltd., 703, 980
Roshun Bibee v. Hurray Kristo Nath, 500
Ross v. Allies Chalmers Australian (Pty.) Ltd., 46
Ross v. Counters, 668
Rossadale v. Denny, 95
Rossiter v. Miller, 993
Rossiter v. Walsh, 892
Rother Iron Works Ltd. v. Conterbury Precision Engineering Ltd., 804
Roufos v. C. Czornikow, 636
Rourke v. Robinson, 386
Rouse v. Bradford Banking Co., 735, 748
Rousillon v. Rousillon, 327, 334
Routh v. Jones, 329
Routh v. Macmillan, 849

Routh v. Webster, 1093
Routledge v. Grant, 84
Rowat Hardeo Singh v State of Rajasthan, 592
Rowland v. Divall, 654
Roxburgh v. Cox, 802
Roy v. Kloepfer Wholesale Hardware Co. Ltd., 404, 459
Royal Bank of Canada v. Joseph Salvatori, 17
Royal Bristol Permanent Building Society v. Bomash, 662
Rozanes v. Bowen, 184
Ruben v. Great Fingall Consolidated, 140, 931
Ruby Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pearey Lal Kumar, 19
Ruby General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Bharat Bank, 338, 339
Rudradas Chravarti v. Kamakshya Narain Singh, 369
Rudragowda v. Gangowda, 540
Rudrappa v. Narsingrao, 948, 950, 951, 952
Rugghan Prasad v. Dhanno, 1066
Rughoonath v. Manickchand, 350
Rukmanand v. Airways (India) Ltd., 9, 73, 257, 783
Rulia Devi v. Raghunath Prasad, 493
Rumeda Charan v. Asutosh Chattopadyaya, 886
Rumping v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1129
Rumsey v. N.E. Ry. Co., 564
Runganathan Chetty v. Ramaswami Chetty, 865
Rungta Sons (P) Ltd. v. Jugometal Trg. Republike, 580
Rupan Rai v. Subh Karan Rai, 1072
Rup Chand v. Fazal Ilahi, 130
Rusholme & Button & Robberts Hadfield v. S.G. Read & Co. (London), 911, 917
Russkoe v. John Stirk & Sons Ltd., 452, 453
Rustomji v. Vinayak, 205
Rutherford v. Acton-Adams, 970, 974, 1007
Rutter v. Palmer, 64
Ruttonsi Rowji v. Bombay United Spinning and Weaving Co., 8
Ruttonsey v. Jamnadas, 387
Ryan v. Mutul Toutine Westminster Chambers Assn., 990
Ryan v. Westminster Chambers Association, 973
Ryder v. Taylor, 31, 32, 41
Ryder v. Wombwell, 130
Ryan v. Pikinson, 838

S. Anonmina v. S. Gorakharam, 247
S. Sibtain Fazli v. Star Film Distributors, 239
S. Subramaniam v. Hindustan General Insurance Society, 183
S. Ziaullah v. Khotija Bibi, 1110
S.B. Jute Mills v. Fulchand, 12
S.C. Holler v. Rambler Motors Ltd., 74
S.C. Nom Laccha Mal v. H.N., 1122
S. Gormdey & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. Cubit, 188
S.J. Silas v. C.J.B. Kohlhoff, 996
S.K. Buty v. Shriram Hari, 972, 1020
S.K. Sen v. State of Bihar, 595
S.K. Umar v. Shivdhar Singh, 548
S. Magnus v. C.I.T., 55
S. Manuel Raj & Co. v. Manilal & Co., 340
S.M. Bholat v. Yokohama Specie Bank, 60
S.N. Bannerjee v. Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co. Ltd., 907
S.N. Barick v. State of West Bengal, 831
S. Pearson & Son Ltd. v. Lord Mayor & Corporation of Dubler, 834
S. Perumal Reddiar v. Bank of Baroda, 738
S. Rajam v. Union of India, 583
S. Raman Goud v. Andhra Pradesh, 87
S.S. Ardennis (Cargo Owner) Ltd. v. S.S. Ardennis (Owners), 644
S.S. Celia v. S.S. Volturuo, 390, 391, 621
S.S. Dhundshi & Co. v. B. Ramcoleya Manujnath Shanbhog, 847
S.S. Induna Co. Ltd. v. British Phosphatic Commission, 75
S. W. Strange Ltd. v. Mann, 321
Sabaldas v. Sobkokhan, 516
Sabal Kumal v. Madhusudan, 999
Sabapathy v. Vanmahalinga, 386, 387
Sabava Yellappa v. Yamanappa Sabu, 228, 260, 302
Sabihan Bibi v. Madho Lal, 225
Sachidananda v. G.P. & Co., 440
Sachindra Kumar v. Nabendra, 1077
Sachindra Nath Basu v. Gopal Chandra, 461
Sachs v. Henderson, 15
Sachs v. Miklos, 857
Sadagopa v. Rama Kishore, 1102
Sadagopa Ramanjiah v. Mackenzie, 328
Sada Kavaur v. Tadepally, 221
Sadasheo v. Hiradal Ram Gopal, 566
Sadashiv v. Dhakubai, 1054
Sadashiv Chettiar v. Subramaniam, 1097
Sadik Ali Khan v. Jai Kishore, 126
Sadiq Hussain v. Anup Singh, 440, 1024, 1035
Sadler v. Whittaker, 844
Sadho Kandu v. Jhinka Kuer, 274
Sadhusingh v. Jhamnadas, 283, 540
Sadut Ali Khan v. Abdool Gunney, 1057, 1072
Safdarali v. Nur Mahomed, 153
Saffel v. Bank of England, 740
Saffery v. Mayer, 360
Safiur Rahman v. Maharamunnessa Bibi, 974, 993
Safiya Bi v. Abdul Shakoor, 39, 994, 1028, 1034
Sagarmal v. Bishambar Sahai, 356
Sagarmal Poddar v. Amir, 666
Sahas Karan v. Nath Mal, 475
Sahawal v. Reade, 186
Saheb Ram v. Ram Newaz, 89
Sahib Ram v. Nagar Mal, 252
Sahol Hameed Rowther v. Mohideen, 1052
Said v. Butt, 144, 964
Sai Dahi v. Amulakhbhai, 946, 950
Saidun Nissa v. Calcutta Vyapar Praleshlhan, 702
Saif Ali v. Sydney Milchall & Co., 671
Saifuddin Sekh v. Soneka Bibi, 249
Sai Kapaleswar Temple v. Tirunavakarasu, 305
Sailendra Nath Bose v. Charu Chandra Bannerji, 1059, 1074
Sailesh Kumar v. Rama Devi, 950
Sain Das v. Ram Chand, 415
Sainik Motors Jodhpur v. State of Rajasthan, 605
Saiyid Alikhan v. Debi Prasad, 815
Sajaji v. Maruti, 692
Sajan Singh v. Sardara Ali, 6, 269, 543, 824, 1112
Sakalaguna Nayadu v. Chinna Munuswami, 443, 994
Sakarbhai v. Ramriklal, 880
Sakarchand v. Ismail Hoosain, 499
Sakharam v. Jairam, 663
Sakharam v. The Secretary of State for India, 1071
Sakhti Sugars Ltd. v. Union of India, 837
Salem Refractories & Ceramics Ltd. v. Berd & Co.

Pvt. ltd., 342
Salamat Begam v. Sheikh Ikram, 1070
Sales Tax Commissioner U.P. v. Sada Sukh Vyopar Mandal, 835
Sales Tax officer v. Budh Prakash, 603
Sales Tax Officer, Benaras v. Kanhaiyalal Mukundlal Saraf, 600, 602, 603, 604, 605, 609
Salford Corp. v. Dever, 889, 934
Salhappa Rai v. Santhiraya, 136
Saligram v. Ayodhya Parshad, 862
Saligram Missir v. Lachhman Das, 744
Salik Ram v. Jai Gopal Singh, 389
Salil Kumar Mukharjee v. Hindustan Steel Ltd., 1084
Salim Beg v. Krishna Ballabh, 1033
Sally Wertheim v. Chicontini Pulp Co., 673
Salmond & Spraggon (Australia) Pty. Ltd. v. Joint Cargo Services Pty. Ltd. (The New York Star), 44
Saltman Engineering Co. v. Campbell Engineering Co., 324, 325, 1129
Salvesen & Co. v. Rederi Akli Nordstjeran, 648
Samapuri Chettiar v. Sudarsana Cheriar, 441, 442
Sambasiva v. Seethalakshmi, 569
Sambhunath Chakravarty v. Smt. Sushama Sinha, 442
Samendranath Sinha v. Krishna Kumar Nag, 1011
Saminatha v. Muthusami, 287
Sami Pillai v. Ramulu Naidu, 569, 574
Sampath v. Rajah of Venkatagiri, 585, 587
Sampatraj v. Pokar, 615
Samsher Singh v. Rajendra Prasad, 1078
Samuel v. Ananthanatha, 30
Samuel v. Howarth, 741
Samuel Fitz & Co. v. Standard Cotton Co., 475, 658
Sanat Kumar v. Hem Chandra, 1062, 1073
Sanaulla v. Kalimullah, 275
Sandeman & Sons v. Tyzak Steamship Co. Ltd., 791
Sanders v. Earnest A. Nial Ltd., 326
Sanderson v. Aston, 739
Sanderson v. Collins, 788
Sandersons & Morgans v. Mohanlal, 157
Sandhura Singh v. Kehr Singh, 307
Sandil v. Franklin, 346
Sandya Rani Sarkar v. Sudharani Devi, 1030
Sanga Thevar v. Thanukodi Ammal, 1011
Sanganna v. Amruth Rao, 1022
Sankalchand Kuberdas v. Jotiram Ranchhod, 440
Sankara v. Virupakshapa, 728, 744
Sankaran v. District Board, Malabar, 475
Sankaran v. State of Kerala, 589, 593
Sankaralinga v. Ramaswami, 972
Sankaralinga v. Ratnaswami, 1018, 1020, 1023, 1025
Sankaranarayana v. Kondaswami, 1052
Sankaranarayana v. Kottyam Bank, 45, 750, 813, 814
Sankaranarayana Vadhyar v. Sankaranarayana Ayyar, 693, 694, 698, 699
Sankarappa v. Kamayya, 252
Sankatha v. Brij Mohan, 1073
Sanktha Prasad v. Abdul Aziz Khan, 998
Sankole v. Badridas, 415
Sankuni Menon v. Empire India Assurance Co., 688
Sannadhi Gundayya v. Subbayya, 464
Sannamma v. Earappa, 1076
Sanni Bibi v. Saddik Hossain, 207,
Sant Bux Singh v. Ali Raza Khan, 174
Santhappa Rai v. Santhiraja, 136, 155
Sant Kumar v. Hem Chandra, 1068
Sant Prasad v. Charitar Singh, 1081
Sant Ram v. Nand Lal, 695
Sant Singh v. Sohanlal, 998
Santimmappa v. Balbhim Co-operative Society, 536
Santi Ranjan Das Gupta v. Dasuram Mirzamal, 1040-41
Santi Sahu v. Sheogulam Sahu, 813
Santor v. A.M. Karaghensian, 46
Santosh Chandra v. Smt. Gyanan Darsea, 1075, 1079
Santosh Kumar v. Nanda Kishore, 177
Sanwal Das v. Kure Mal, 155
Sanwalay Prasad v. Sheo Sarup, 437
Sanwarmal Goenka v. Soumyendrachandra Goopta, 106, 987
Sanyasyya v. Ramaraju, 494
Saptharishi v. Secretary of State for India, 582, 587
Sarabhai Hathysing v. Shah Ratilal Nathulal, 306
Saradamba v. Pattabhiramayya, 584
Saradambal Amma v. Natasa Mudliar, 230, 256
Sarada Prasad v. Bhut Nath, 475, 464
Saradindu Mukherjee v. Stn. Kunja Kamini, 28
Sarajubala Roy Chaudhurani v. Kamini Kumar Chaudhury, 573
Saral Chand Mitter v. Mohun Bibi, 120
Sarangapani v. Venkata, 1085
Sarasbati Debi v. Satya Narayan Gupta, 575
Sarasijaksha v. Kapur Kamini, 1065
Saraswatibai v. Haibatrao Ramji, 36, 539
Sarrayya v. Annapurnamma, 1082
Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha, 126, 514
Sarat Chandra v. Kanai Lal, 138
Sarat Chandra Chakravarti v. Tarak Chandra Chatterjee, 1059
Sarat Chandra Roy v. Rajoni Mohan Roy, 224, 731
Sardar Bir Singh v. Noor Mohmed, 850, 849
Sardari Mal v. Hirde Nath, 1122
Sardar Mohammad v. Babu Daswandhi, 894
Sardarsinghji v. Ganapatsinghji, 1076
Sarebtal Jha v. Viheshwar Jha, 1106
Sarfaraz Ali Khan v. Ahmad Kamil Mustafa Khan, 159
Sarju Prasad v. Beni Madho, 697
Sarjug Devi v. Dulhin Kishori Kuer, 570, 1119
Sarma v. Assam Goseva Samity, 1079
Saroj Bandhu Bhaduri v. Jnanada Sundari, 339
Sarshar Ali v. Roberts Cotton Association Ltd., 928
Sarwan Singh v. State of Orissa, 605
Sarwayan v. Fakharuddin, 1029
Sasanka Sekhar v. Dinanath, 692
Sashannah Chetti v. Ramasami Chetti, 259, 297
Sasi Kanta Acharjee Chowdhury v. Sonaulla Munshi, 306
Sassoon v. Tokersey, 351, 353, 354, 359, 362, 363, 364
Sass, Re, 755
Satchidananda Dutt v. Nritya Nath Mitter, 895
Satemma v. Subbi Reddy, 154, 167
Satgur Prasad v. Har Narain, 153, 168, 208, 547
Sathyanathan v. Subramanyan, 102
Satibai v. Vishnibai, 428
Sati Prasad v. Monmotha Nath, 386

Satish Chandra v. Kashi Sahu, 255
Satish Chunder v. Hem Chunder, 176
Sat Narain v. Hanuman Parshad, 1065, 1069
Sat Prakash v. Bodhraj, 426
Satruhan Prasad v. Udai Pratap, 1065
Sattemma v. Subbi Reddy, 157
Saturjit Pertap Bahadoor v. Dulhin Gulab Koer, 867
Satyabrata Ghose v. Mugneeram Banguar, 465, 466, 468, 470, 471, 473, 474, 475, 476, 479, 480, 481, 449, 450, 451, 452, 454, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 463
Satyabrata Ghose v. Mugneeram Bangur & Co., 4, 5
Sattya Bhusan v. Krishna, 567
Satyam v. Perraju, 611
Satyaketu Datta v. Ramesh Chandra, 306
Satyala v. Bhogavathi, 235
Satya Mandalini v. Sahadur Mondal, 1010, 1012
Satyanaran Kamal Kumar v. Birendra Pal Singh, 722
Satyanathan v. Subramanyan, 102
Satyanarayan v. Vithal Jamadar, 710, 848
Satyanarayana v. Lakshmi Narasinham, 17
Satyanarayana v. State of Madras, 830, 831
Satyanarayana v. Yellogi Rao, 999, 1014, 1016, 1017, 1019, 1020, 1021, 1022
Satyanarayanamurthy v. Venkata, 982
Satyendra Kumar Das v. Chairman Municipal Commissioners, 591
Satyendranath v. Union of India, 912
Saudagar Singh v. Nazeer, 1030
Saunders v. Anglia Building Society, 195, 196, 197
Saundanappa v. Shivbasawa, 6
Saugadar Singh v. Pardip Singh, 1082
Saundatti Yellamma Municipality v. Sripadbhatt, 291
Saunders v. Stuart, 623
Savage v. Uwechia, 962, 988, 1015
Savani Transport (P) Ltd. v. Chinaswami Mudaliar, 342
Sawyer & Vincent v. Window Brace Ltd., 601
Saxby v. Fulton, 366
Sayad Muhammad v. Fatteh Muhammad, 133
Sayaji v. Ramji, 952
Sayers v. International Drilling, 11, 12
Sayu Mohammad Abdulla v. Neelakantan, 187, 193
Scammell and Nephew Ltd. v. Ouston, 94, 98, 115, 345, 347, 348
Scanlans News Neons Ltd. v. Tooheys Ltd., 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 463, 464, 472, 476, 481, 482
Scarf v. Jardain, 496, 497
Scarfe v. Morgan, 799
Scarisbrick v. Parkinson, 564
Scaton v. Heath, 183, 760
Scharing Ltd. v. Stockholms Enskilda Bank, 272
Schewing Chemicals Ltd. v. Falkman Ltd., 1118
Schmaltz v. Avery, 915, 926
Schnapper, Westminster Bank Ltd. v. Schnapper, 391
Schneider & Co. v. Burgett & Newsam, 485
Schonlank v. Muthunagana Chetti, 84
Schorch Meter Gam H. v. Hammin, 676
Schousch Meier Gmoh v. Hannin, 391, 392
Schroeder (A) Music Publishing Co. v. Macaulay, 159, 176, 294
Schuize & Co. v. G.E. Ry., 634
Scorer v. Seymour-Johns, 320
Scot v. Brown Doering Mc Nab & Co., 288
Scotson v. Pegg, 299
Scott v. Avery, 339, 343
Scott v. Brown, Deering Mc Nab v. Co., 542, 545
Scott v. Coulson, 214, 218
Scott v. Irving, 853
Scott v. Littledale, 135
Scott v. Pattison, 564
Scott v. Rayment, 982, 989
Scott v. Recketts, 295
Scott v. Sebright, 145
Scott v. Uxbridge and Rickmansworth R. Co., 386
Scottish Navigation Co. Ltd. v. W. A. Souter & Co., 454
Scottish Union & National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Roushan Jaha, 288
Scriven v. Hindley, 136
Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd., 29, 31, 32, 43, 44, 151
Scudder v. Prothero & Prothero, 670
Seager v. Copydex, 325, 1112, 1129
Seager v. Hukma Kessa, 818
Seaton v. Burnand, 761
Seaward v. Paterson, 1095
Secretary of State v. Madho Ram, 22
Secretary of State v. Abdul Rahim, 672
Secretary of State v. Arathoon, 370
Secretary of State v. Bhagwandas, 589, 780
Secretary of State of Bhaskar Krishnail, 84
Secretary of State of Dhobu Ram, 1066
Secretary of State v. G.T.Sarin, 581, 593
Secretary of State for India v. Dilsizian Freres, 713
Secretary of State v. Fernandes, 575
Secretary of State v. Forbes, 962
Secretary of State v. Har Kishan Das, 494
Secretary of State v. I.M. Lall, 1084
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Jethabhai, 1070
Secretary of State v. Kesho Prasad, 785
Secretary of State v. Kamachee Boye, 864, 866
Secretary of State v. Madho Ram, 88
Secretary of State v. Nabi Bakhsh, 220
Secretary of State v. Nilamekam, 761
Secretary of State v. Ramdhan Das, 789
Secretary of State v. Rangaswami & Co., 568
Secretary of State v. Saran Brothers, 343
Secretary of State v. Sarin & Co., 575, 867
Secretary of State v. Talya Saheb, 610
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Sheo Singh, 769
Secretary of State for India v. Sheth Jeshingbhai, 220
Secretary of State v. Subba Rao, 1059
Secretary of State v. Volkart Bros., 349
Secretary of State v. Yadavgir, 589
Secretary of State v. Yellapeddi Janakiranyya Pantulu, 211
Securities Ltd. v. Hughes, 79
Seear v. Cohen, 166
Seeni Chettiar v. Santhanathan, 1125
Seetharama Sastry v. Naganath, 247, 540
Seetharamanna v. Patta Reddi, 978
Seetharamaswami v. Bhagwati Oil Co., 361
Seethu Parvathy Ammal v. B.L. Shrinivasan Chettiar, 1009
Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co. Ltd., 191, 192, 193, 534
Sefton v. Tophams Ltd., 1107

Sehalkumar Sarabhai v. K.T. Organisation, 342
Selangor United Rubber Estates v. Cradock No. 3, 545, 881
Seleigh-Denfield v. O' Callaghan, 1108
Sellappa v. Marappa, 994, 999, 1001
Sellers v. London Countries Newspapers, 895
Sely v. White Motor Co., 46
Sen v. Bank of Bengal, 732
Senanayake v. Cheng, 191, 204, 534
Senior v. Pawson, 117
Sepulchre Bros v. Khushaldas, 79
Serafat Ali v. Issan Ali, 584
Serafat Ali v. Sheikh Israr Ali, 570
Seraj-ud-din v. State of Orissa, 50, 295
Serdenbach Inc. v. Williams, 646
Servicemen's Enterprises Ltd. v. Saney Singh, 1035
Services Europe Atlantic Seed v. Stockholmes Redereaktic holes, 392
Se Se Oil v. Gorkharam Gokalchand, 8, 11, 12
Sesanka Sekhar v. Dinanath, 692
Sesen Kumar Chandra v. Smt. Manorama, 1114
Seshappier v. Subramania, 818
Seth Bhikraj v. Union of India, 558, 589, 590, 866
Seth Gokul Das v. Murli, 225, 226, 250
Seth Harjimal v. F. Gulabchand Udeychand, 20
Seth Kanhaylal v. National Bank of India, 608
Seth Loon Karan Sethiya v. Ivan E. John, 912
Seth Mohanlal v. The Grain Chambers Ltd., 466, 458, 460
Seth Thawardas Perumal v. Union of India, 666
Sethubai v. Hanumantha Rao, 850
Sethu Paryathy Ammal v. Bajji K. Srinivasan Chettiar & others, 379, 380.
Sethurayar v. Shanmugam, 1123
Sethia (1944) Ltd. v. Partabmull Rameshwar, 17, 114, 115, 455
Seton v. Slade, 869
Settlement Corporation v. Hochshild, 1124
Seva Sagar v. Satyanarayan, 495
Sevasami Chetli v. Sevigan Chetti, 379
Sewdutt Roy Maskara v. Nahapiet, 926
Seymour v. Bridge, 902
Seymour v. Pickett, 492
Seymour v. Pychlan, 905
Sforza v. Ootoman Bank of Nicosia, 389
Sh Umar Shivdan Singh, 261
Sh. Jan Mahamed v. Munshi Ganga Bishan, 529
Sh. Umar v. Shivdan Singh, 267
Shadi v. Anup Singh, 1104
Shadi Ram v. Prabhu, 306
Shadi Ram v. Mahtab Chand, 822
Shadwell v. Shadwell, 53, 298
Shaffer v. Finlay, 398
Shahabuddin Sahib v. Venkatachalam, 229
Shahbazkhan v. Bhangi Khan, 585
Shah Manmal v. Radhakrishnan, 495
Shah Mulji Deoji v. Union of India, 817
Shah Rahman v. Ismail Khan, 274
Shaik Ali v. Mahomed, 744
Shaikh Barsati v. Surjee, 1042
Shaik Gafoor v. Hemanta, 276
Shaik Ismail v. Amirbibi, 171
Shaikh Kalu v. Ram Saran Bhagat, 328, 333
Shaik Sahad v. Krishna Mohan, 419
Shakoor Gany v. Hindr & Co. 239
Shakuntala Devi v. Harischandra, 1121
Shalimar Paints v. Om Prakash, 580
Shama Charan v. Chumilal, 244
Shamaldhone Dube v. Lakshmani Debi, 157
Shama Purshad Roy v. Harro Purshad Roy, 613
Shambati Koeri v. Jago Bibi, 169
Shambhoo Shukul v. Dhaneshar Singh, 535
Shambhulal v. Secretary of State, 441
Shambhumal Gangaram v. Bank of Mysore, 754
Shambhumal Gangaram v. State Bank of India, 745
Sham Charan Mal v. Chowdhry Deby Singh, 566
Shamia v. Joori, 599
Shamjibhai v. Jagoo Hemchand, 97, 445, 964, 1018
Shamji Bhanji & Co. v. North Western Railway Co., 36, 785
Shamklin Pier Ltd. v. Detel Products Ltd., 59
Sham Koer v. Dah Koer, 169
Shamlal v. State of U.P., 612, 613, 667
Shamlal v. Yassaram, 972
Sham Lal Mitra v. Amerendra Nath Bose, 540, 542
Shamnugger Jute Factory v. Ram Narain, 1093, 1104, 1116
Shamrock S.S. & Co. v. Storey & Co., 19
Shamshed Ali Shah v. Hasan Shah, 1053
Shamsher Bahadur v. State of U.P., 246
Shamshir Ali v. Ratanji, 236
Shamsuddin v. Abdul Aziz, 1105
Shamsuddin Ravuthar v. Shaw Wallace & Co., 922
Shamsudin Tajbhai v. Dahyabhai Maganlal, 664
Sham Sunder v. Chandu Lal, 716
Sham Sunder v. Durga, 991
Sham Sunder Lal v. Achlan Kunwar, 997
Shand v. Grant, 935
Shankar v. Umabai, 36
Shankaran v. Deputy Registrar Co-operative Societies, 986
Shankarappa v. Basamma, 1110
Shankar Bandhu v. Shankar Babaji, 17
Shankar Das v. Governor-General in Council, 867
Shanker Gakhaum v. Ratanji Premji, 446
Shankarlal v. Ambarlal, 501
Shankar Lal v. Bhura Lal, 769
Shankarlal v. Jethmal, 229, 1003
Shankar Lal v. Moti Lal, 415, 420, 572
Shankarlal v. New Muffasil Co. Ltd., 86
Shankar Lal v. Sarup Lal, 1050
Shankarlal Narayandas Mundade v. The Mofussil Co. Ltd., 85, 95, 97, 1011
Shankar Narayan v. Puttu Bhatta, 1074
Shankar Nimbaji v. Laxman Supdu, 716
Shankerrao v. Vadilal, 610
Shanker Vishnu v. Maneklal Haridas, 9
Shankhen Rier Ltd. v. Metal Products Ltd., 106
Shan Maun Mull v. Madras Building Co., 1011
Shanmugham Pillai v. Annalakshmi Ammal, 371, 441, 442, 494, 690, 1029, 1046
Shanmugasundara v. Sivalinga, 517
Shanmughasundaram v. Chidambaram, 302
Shanta Agarwal v. Baldota Bros., 269, 271
Shanta Shamsher v. Kamani Bros. Ltd., 1065, 1069, 1070
Shantilal v. Madan Lal, 356
Shantilal v. Tara Chand, 776, 789
Shantimmappa v. Balbhani Co-operative Society, 536, 537
Shanti Parkash v. Harnam Das, 308
Shanti Prasad v. Akhtar, 461, 991
Shanti Prasad v. Director of Enforcement, 770
Shantirajan Das Gupta v. Dasuram Mirzamal, 1040, 1041
Shanti Saroop v. Radhasoomi Satsang Sabha, 1074

Shanti Sarup v. Lal Chand, 274
Shantivijay & Co. v. Princess Fatima Fouzia, 482
Sharan Behari Lal v. Kanhaya Lal, 285
Sharf Din v. Gokal Chand, 818
Sharif v. Azad, 10, 254, 327, 329
Sharland v. Mildon, 935
Sharma v. Sunder Talkies Distributors, 340
Sharp v. Harrison, 1117
Sharp v. Milligan, 1021
Sharp Bros. & Knight v. Chant, 601
Sharpe v. Foy, 909
Sharvan Goba v. Kashiram Devji, 8, 204
Shashi Mohan Pal v. Nobo Kusto, 206
Shaw v. Baij Nath, 832
Shaw v. Ball, 602
Shaw v. Holland, 615
Shaw v. Picton, 894
Shaw v. S., 259
Shaw v. Shaw, 255, 267, 545
Shaw v. Woodcock, 839
Shaw & Co. v. Symmons & Sons, 770
Shayler v. Woolf, 380
Shee v. Clarkson, 895
Sheffield v. Eden, 804
Sheffield Corporation v. Barclay, 715, 719, 902
Sheffield Gas Co. v. Harrison, 982
Sheffield Nickel Co. v. Union, 538
Sheikh Bros. Ltd. v. Ochsner, 4, 118, 212, 213, 223, 488
Sheikh Akbar v. Sheik Khan, 503
Sheikh Dawood v. S.I. Ry Co. Ltd., 65
Sheikh Farid v. Hargulal, 896
Sheikh Gaffar v. Kasturibai, 1029
Sheikh Galim v. Sadarjan Bibi, 982
Sheikh Gurudwar Prabandhak Committee v. Jagmohan Singh, 1069
Sheikh Hakim v. Adwaita Chandra Das Dalal, 394
Sheikh Kallan v. Municipal Board Aligarh, 546
Sheikh Mehtab v. Dharmrao, 428, 665
Sheikh Mohammad Habibullah v. Bird & Co., 636
Sheik Ibrahim v. Rama Aiyar, 393, 394
Sheik Ismail v. Amirbibi, 171
Sheik Mahamad v. The British Indian Steam Navigation Co., 787
Sheik Mohammad Jan v. Munshi Ganga Bishan, 110
Shelat Bros. v. Nandlal Harilal, 555
Shelfer v. City of London Electric Light Co., 1121
Shell M.K. Ltd. v. Lowstock Garage Ltd., 317, 320
Sheoambar v. Deodat, 344
Sheo Amban Singh v. Allahabad Bank Ltd., 991
Sheobachan v. Madho Saran, 307
Sheobarut Ram v. The Bengal N.W. Ry. Co., 785
Sheomurt Lal v. Smt. Savitri, 1029
Sheo Nandan Prasad v. Sheo Parson Pathak, 1109
Sheo Narain v. Bhallar, 353, 859, 880
Sheo Narain v. East Indian Railways, 785
Sheo Narain v. Math Prasad, 285
Sheo Nath Prasad v. Sarjoo Nonia, 585
Sheoparson Singh v. Ramnandan Singh, 1061, 1063, 1068, 1084
Sheopatsingh v. Harishandra, 189
Sheo Prasad v. Ram Khelawan, 1080
Sheo Prasad v. Dominion of India, 793
Sheo Prasad v. Sanaullah, 677
Sheo Prasad Singha v. Ramananda Prasad, 1060, 1065, 1069
Sheopujan Tanto v. Bhanu Tanto, 998, 1001
Sheo Singh Rai v. Smt. Dakho, 1062
Shepard v. Cartwright, 841
Shephard v. Brown, 885
Shepheard v. Walker, 1021
Shepherd v. Croft, 1007
Sheridan v. New Quay Co., 797,
Shet Manibhai v. Bai Rupaliba, 924, 925
Shew Kissen Mohata v. Mangalchand Maloo, 361 363
Shia Sharan Prasad v. Sridhar Prasad Singh, 1074
Shiam Behari Lal v. Madan Singh, 1019
Shiam Lal v. Abdul Salal, 716
Shiam Lal v. Chakki Lal, 285
Shiam Lal v. Mohammad Ali, 1063
Shiam Lal v. Ram Piari, 123
Shib Chandra Roy v. Chandra Narain Mukerjee, 885
Shib Charan Lal v. Lachmi, 275
Shib Chunder v. Chunder Narain, 884
Shibba Pd. Singh v. Suresh Chandra, 600, 602, 603 605, 607, 609
Shibcharan v. Manik Chandra, 1060
Shibho Mal v. Lachman Das, 357, 903
Shib Kumar v. Rasul Bux, 1000, 1017
Shib Lal v. The Collector of Bareilly, 1023
Shib Prasad v. Grish Chandra, 226
Shiddappa v. Rudrappa, 1041
Shiddeshvar v. Ramchandrarav, 863
Shields v. Wilkinson, 786
Shiells v. Blackburne, 776
Shilla Chander Sekh Ram v. Ram Chandra Sahu 976, 1005
Shipley U.D.C. v. Bradford Corporation, 1041
Shipton, Anderson & Co., 466, 464
Shipway v. Broadwood, 933
Shirley v. Burdett, 764
Shish v. Banomali, 997
Shishu Reddi v. Ramaraghava Reddi, 1023
Shivadhar v. Corporation of Calcutta, 1121
Shivji v. Rateram, 246
Shivajiram v. Gulabchand, 306
Shiva Jute Baling Ltd. v. Hindey & Co. Ltd., 468, 684
Shivanadian Chettiar v. Batchu Surayya, 483
Shiv Dayal v. Bishan Das, 238
Shiv Dayal v. Union of India, 30, 32, 37, 38, 714
Shivgangawa v. Basengowda, 157
Shivnarayanan Kabra v. The State of Madras, 245
Shivji Ram v. Kisan, 743
Shivram v. Bal, 1006
Shivlal v. Birdichand, 416, 922, 923
Shivlal Mulchand v. Manekji Mancharji, 874
Shiv Ram v. Bhag Devi, 1071
Shivram v. Dhau, 809
Shivram Govind v. Vishwanath Govind, 851, 894
Shivrama Pillai v. Marichami Pillai, 1106
Shiv Ram Punnun Ram v. Faiz, 306
Shiv Prasad v. Dominion of India, 793
Shiv Saran v. Kesho Prasad, 258
Sho Ambar Singh v. Allahabad Bank Ltd., 991
Shorilal v. Sardari Lal, 502
Short v. Spackman, 912
Short v. Stone, 399
Shravan Goba Mahajan v. Kashiram Devji, 1044
Shree Ambarnath Mills v. Custodian General, 987, 989, 1125
Shree Hanuman Cotton Mills v. Tata Aircraft Ltd., 678, 702, 703, 705, 706
Shree Madana Gopalaswamy v. Saride Manikyam, 479

Shree Meenakshi Mills v. Ratilal Tribhovandas, 727
Shree Ram v. Ratanlal, 297, 1027, 1028
Shree Sankarachari Swamiar v. Varada Pillai, 989
Shree Shree Gopal Shreedhar v. Shasheebhushan, 857, 926
Shridhan Gopinath v. Gordhandas Gokuldas, 617
Shri Ganesh v. Keshavarav, 6
Shrikrishna Keshar v. Balaji Ganesh, 974
Shrinanandlal v. Laxman Singh, 548
Shrinivasdas v. Meherbai, 393, 1005
Shrinivas Pillai v. Life Insurance Corporation, 184
Shrinivasadas Lakshmenarayan v. Ramchandran Ramrattandas, 262
Shripad v. Sanikatta Salt Sale Society, 275
Shripatrav v. Govind, 307
Shriram v. Madan Gopal, 434
Shriram v. Rambilas, 441, 442
Shri Ram v. Dhaniram Gupta, 991
Shri Ramji Mandir Harsinghji v. Narasinha Nagar Co-operative Housing Society, 995
Shriram Raja v. The Province of Madras, 582
Shrish Chandra Roy v. Mungri Bewa, 809, 823
Shri Vallabh Budrinath v. Laxman Vinayak, 570
Shubhajit Tewari v. Union of India, 986
Shugan Chand v. The Government of North Western Province, 607
Shuppu Ammal v. Subramaniyam, 40
Shushilendra v. Kailash, 1116, 1121
Shutzadi Begum v. Girdharilal, 807, 810
Shyam Lal v. Jagannath, 394
Shyam Lal v. Kalim Shaikh, 711
Shyam Lal v. Reghunath Marwari, 493
Shyamkumari v. Ejaz Ahmad Ansari, 469
Shyamnagar Tin Factory v. Snowwhite Food Products, 516, 527, 529
Shyampeary v. The Eastern Mortgage & Agency Co., 700
Shyam Sundar v. Indromoni Das, 679
Shyam Sundar Lal v. Lakshmi Narain, 246
Shyam Sundar v. Parlakimedi Municipality, 22, 110, 304
Sia Durani v. Bhagwati, 886
Sib Charan v. Manik Chandra, 104
Sibkisor v. Manik Chandra, 540, 580
Sibkisor Ghere v. Manik Chandra, 580
Sibtain Fazil v. Star Film Distributors, 223, 225, 249, 1073
Sidalingappa v. Hirasa, 543, 544, 545
Sidha v. Abraham, 301
Sidh Gopal v. Biharilal, 296
Siddheshwar v. Ramchandra, 863
Siddique & Co. v. Uttomal & Assudmal Co., 1040
Sifat Ali v. Ali Mian, 1067
Siegel v. Spear, 883
Sievewright v. Archibald, 56, 137
Silvester, 735
Silla Chandra v. Lalita, 976
Siluvalmuthu Mudaliar v. Muhammad Sahul, 422
Silver v. Ocean Steamship Co. Ltd., 253
Sim v. H.J. Heinz & Co. Ltd., 326, 1102
Simanchal Mohanti v. Budhuram Padhi, 908
Simla Banking & Industrial Bank in liq v. M/s. Pritams, 809
Simmonds v. Kee, 628
Simmons v. Heath Laundrif Co., 833
Simons v. Patchett, 925
Simonds v. Simonds, 611
Simper v. Combs, 468
Simpkins v. Pyas, 101
Simpson v. Crippin, 432
Simpson v. Lamb, 897
Simpson v. L. & N.W.R. Co., 635
Simrathmull v. Nanjalingiah, 690
Simrathmull v. Nanjalingiah, 1046
Sims v. Bond, 906, 921
Sims v. Landray, 853
Simson v. Gora Chand Doss, 388
Simson v. Virayya, 399, 438
Sinaya Pillai v. Munisami Ayyan, 531
Sinclair v. Brougham, 598, 599, 601, 609, 611
Sinclair v. Neighbour, 324, 1129
Sindha v. Abraham, 47, 293, 301
Sindhal Parmar v. Mir Bharalal, 1074
Sindha Shri Ganpat Singhi v. Abraham, 26
Singara v. Ibrahim Baig, 129
Singer Manufacturing Co. v. London & South-Western Ry. Co., 63, 73
Singer Manufacturing Company v. Raja Prasad, 706, 707
Simghal Transport v. Jesasaram, 64, 340, 341
Singheshwar Jha v. Ajab Lal Mandar, 1079
Singh Sanatan Dharam High School Trust v. Singh Rajput High School, 1072
Sinnakaruppa Gounder v. Karuppaswami, 297, 994
Siqueira v. Noronha, 293, 304, 307
Sir A.D. Stewart v. S.S. Kennedy, 866
Sir Chunilal Mehta v. Century Spinning & Manufacturing Co., 712
Sir Mahomed Yusuf v. Secretary of State, 94
Sirdar Kuar v. Chandawati, 501
Sisir Kumar Chandra v. Smt. Manorama Chandra, 1062
Sissir Kumar v. Sushil Kumar, 1111
Sis Ram v. Asghar Ali, 241
Sistla Sitaramaswamy Sastri v. Bonthu Basavayya, 746
Sitlani v. Viroosingh, 97, 346, 1013
Sital Prosad, 870
Sital Prasad v. Prabhu Lal, 160, 173
Sital Prasad Singh v. Agablal Mander, 972
Sitaram v. Chamanlal, 362
Sitaram v. Corporation of Calcutta, 550, 551, 552, 558, 1097
Sitaram v. Daji, 506
Sitaram v. Harihur, 248
Sitaram v. Maharaja Govindsurzbjee Deo, 1078
Sitaram v. Mussamut Aheeree Heerahnee, 249
Sita Ram v. Radhabai, 267, 268, 270
Sita Ram v. Ram Lal, 1065
Sitaram v. Shridhar, 393, 395
Sitaram Dockaram v. Baldev Jairam, 265
Sitarama Rao v. Venkatarama, 129, 297, 1027, 1029
Sitaram Marwari v. Thompson, 106
Sitarpur Coal Co. Ltd. v. Colley, 285, 882
Sitayya v. Kotayya, 1010
Siti Fakir v. Chand Bewa, 567, 569
Sivanandan Chettiar v. Batchu Surayya, 456
Siva Jute Bailing Ltd. v. Hindley & Co. Ltd., 684
Siva Panda v. Jujusti Panda, 420
Sivarama Konar v. Thiruvadinatha pillai, 40, 294, 505, 506
Sivaramakrishnaiah v. Narhari Rao, 537, 541, 549, 550, 584
Siva Ramayya v. Ellamma, 279, 280
Siv Ram Punnun Ram v. Faiz, 306
Siva Reddy v. Nizam-ud-Din, 1106

Siveyer v. Allison, 259, 284
S.J. Silas v. C.J.B. Kohlhoff, 996
Skapholme v. Hart, 730
S.K. Buty v. Shriram Hari, 972, 1020
Skeate v. Baale, 148
Skillett v. Fletcher, 738
Skinner v. Jager, 800
Skinner v. Skinner, 991
Skipp v. Kelly 284
S.K. Sen v. State of Bihar, 595
Skying v. Greenwood, 222, 612
Sky Petroleum Ltd. v. V.I.P. Petroleum Ltd., 1090
Slater v. Hoyle & Smith Ltd., 629
Slater v. Mayor of Burnley, 609
Slaman v. Walter, 711
Slenning Re, 495
Sloan v. Union Oil Company of Canada, 520
Slone and Saville's Contract re, 440
S. Magnus v. C.I.T., 55
S. Manuel Raj & Co. v. Manilal & Co., 340
Smart v. Sandars Powell, 852, 871, 872
S.M. Bholat v. Yokohama Specie Bank, 60
Smeaton Hanscomb & Co. Ltd. v. Sassoon I. Setty Son & Co., 62, 63, 64, 70, 76
Smeed v. Foord, 658
Smethurst v. Mitchell, 923
Smith v. Bedouin, 856, 932
Smith v. Belty, 492
Smith v. Chadwick, 207
Smith v. Colbourare, 1003
Smith v. Cuff, 545
Smith v. Dinonath, 368, 585, 586
Smith, Limited v. Great Western Railway Co., 785
Smith v. Green, 631
Smith v. Hall Glass Co., 558
Smith v. Hamilton, 440, 445, 447, 961
Smith v. Hartshorn, 554, 555, 556
Smith v. Hughes, 135, 136, 186, 212, 216
Smith v. Jones, 1042
Smith v. Kay, 154, 157, 164
Smith v. Land & House Property Corporation, 188, 189
Smith v. Lascelles, 878
Smith v. Leveux, 885
Smith v. Lyon, 918
Smith v. Oxenden, 946
Smith v. Patrick, 498
Smith v. Smith, 1115, 1116, 1117, 1118
Smith v. Sorby, 933
Smith v. South Wales Switchgear Ltd., 59, 116, 720
Smith v. Wheatcroft, 141, 144
Smith v. White, 229
Smith v. William Charlick Ltd., 148
Smith v. Wood, 738, 749
Smith Hogg & Co. v. Sea & Baltic Insurance, 778
Smith & Snipes Hall Farm v. River Douglas Catchment Board, 31
Smt. Hoshiari Devi v. Tajvir Singh, 1051
Smt. Indubala Devi v. Jitendranath Ghose, 995
Smt. Jnanadadevi v. Nath Bank Ltd., 1043
Smt. Katip Bibi v. Fakir Chandra, 994
Smt. Labanya Ray v. P.M. Mukherjee, 960, 962, 971, 975
Smt. Kary Joseph v. Tayab Mohammad, 1013
Smt. Maya Basak v. Smt. Kalidasi Dassi, 1083
Smt. Nawab Shaharukh Jahan Begum v. Salleyed Ennayat Hussain, 1077
Smt. Pani Bai v. Smt. Sire Kanwar, 879
Smt. Phulghani v. Methailal, 987
Smt. Phuljhari Devi v. Mithailal, 1016
Smt. Raj Kumari Soni v. State of Himachal Pradesh, 866, 918
Smt. Ram Peary v. Gawri, 1011
Smt. Selvi Choudhury v. Smt. Maydha Rajnath, 993
Smt. Shaharyar v. Sanwal Das, 975
Smt. Singh v. Sohanlal, 998
Smyth (Ross T) & Co. (Liverpool) Ltd. v. W.N. Lindsay (Leith) Ltd., 481
S.N. Bannerjee v. Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co. Ltd., 907
S.N. Barick v. State of West Bengal, 831, 842
Snee v. Prescott, 912
Snell v. Unity Finance Co. Ltd., 288
Snelling v. John Snelling Ltd., 31, 33
Snook v. Davidson, 900
Snook v. Watts, 133
Snow White Food Products (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Sohanlal Bagla, 37, 786, 994
Soames, Re, 27
Soar v. Ashwell, 942
Sobbat Devi v. Devi Phal, 349, 350
Sobha v. Ram Phul, 948, 949
Sobhandari Appa Rao v. Parthasarathy Appa Rao, 422
Sobhagmal Gianmal v. Mukundchand, 356, 357
Sobharam v. Totaram, 1024, 1035
Societa Anonmina Luchesse Oili v. Gorkharam, 10, 11, 12
Societe des Hotels le Touquet-Paris Plage v. Cummings, 391
Societe Franco Tunisienne v. Sidermar-The Massalia, 475, 476, 479
Societe Generale de Paris v. Tramways Union Co., 909
Sodha v. Mansha Ram, 128
Sohan Lal v. Puran Singh, 729
Sohanlal Pachisia v. Bilasray, 384, 1015
Sohan Singh v. State Bank of India, 370, 426
Sohan Mal v. Imam Din, 692
Sohrabji Dhunjibhoy Medora v. Oriental Government Security Life Assurance Co., 875
Solle v. Butcher 191, 192, 193, 144, 146, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 218, 538, 1007
Solomon v. Barker, 878
Solomon Jacob v. The National Bank of India, 607
Solomons v. Bank of England, 801, 899
Solomans v. Pender, 891
Solly v. Rathbone, 899
Someshastri v. Swamirao, 569
Somesundaram v. Chidambaram, 1033
Somasundaram Pillai v. Provincial Government of Madras, 85, 87, 370
Somchand v. State of Saurashtra, 1076
Someshwar Dutt v. Tribhuvan Dutt, 154, 177
Somia Shatia v. State of U.P., 25
Somnath Berman v. Dr. S.P. Raju, 953, 954
Somraj v. Jethmal, 540, 548
Somu Pillai v. The Municipal Council Mayavaram, 287
Sona Mia v. Prokash Chandra, 946, 947
Sonarlinga v. Panchai Naikan, 725
Sonepat Co-operative Society v. Kapurilal, 746, 752
Sonia Parshini v. Moula Baksh, 161, 171
Soni Lalji Setha v. Kalidas, 1073
Soniram Jeetmull v. R.D. Tata & Co., 428, 429
Sooltan Chand v. Schiller, 396, 433, 434

Soopromonian Setty v. Heilgers, 914, 915
Soorath Nath Banerjee v. Babasantar Goswami, 211
Soorayya v. Kateez Begum, 419
Soore Venkatappaya v. Valavarthi, 304
Sorrell v. Finch, 838
Soorthingje v. Mahomed, 485
Sophy Kelly v. State of Maharashtra 116
Sorabshah Pestonji v. Secretary of State, 402
Soshi Bhusan v. Ganesh Chunder, 1105
Soshi Mohun Pal v. Nobo Kristo, 206
Soti Bhagwan Dat Sastri v. Raja Ram, 281
Soundararajan & Co. v. Annamalai Nadar, 17
South African Territories Co. Ltd. v. Wallington, 633, 982
South Australian Insurance Co. v. Randell, 769
South Barrackpore Municipality v. Amulya Nath Chatterjee, 553
South British Assurance Co. v. Stenson, 97
South British & Marine Insurance Co. v. Brojo Nath, 339
Southcomb v. Bishop of Exter, 1019
South East Asia Co. Ltd. v. Herman & Mohatta Ltd., 338, 341
South Indian Industries Ltd. v. Mindi Rama Jogi, 859, 862
South India Railway v. Madura Municipality, 587
South Wales' Miners Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co., 265
South Western Mineral Water Co. Ltd. v. Ashmore, 238
Southwell v. Bowditch, 911, 916
Sowdra Bai v. Saraswati, 607
Sowler v. Porter, 144
Spalding v. Gamage, 1100
Spalding v. Ruding, 804, 899
Spears v. Hartley, 901
Special Officer Amaravathi Cooperative Society v. Thirumala Swami, 4, 56, 614, 672, 678, 682, 705
Spector v. Agedon, 236
Spedding v. Nevell, 925
Spellman v. Spellman, 103
Spence v. Crawford, 204, 1048
Spence v. Union Marine Insurance Co., 791
Spencer v. Harding, 105
Spencer v. Hemmerde, 307
Spendborough U.D.C. Agreement, 503, 535
Spettabile Consorzio Menezian v. Northumberland Ship Building Co., 398
Spiers v. Hunt, 259, 284
Spittle v. Lavender, 910
Sporsen v. First National Bank of Poulsho, 770, 930
Springhead Spinning Co. v. Riley, 1112
Spurling (J) Ltd. v. Bradshaw, 62, 65, 69, 71, 72, 73, 74
Spurrier v. La Cloche, 11
Sree Ambernath Mills v. Custodian Evacue Property, 1097, 1127
Sree Ambernath Mills v. D.B. Godbole, 962
Sree Amuruvi Perumal Devasthanam v. Sabhapathi Pillai, 471, 475
Sreedhara v. Thanumalayan, 444, 1128
Sreegopal v. Ram Charan, 93, 94
Sreenivasa Rao v. Rama Mohanarao, 262
Sreenivasa v. Sesha, 283, 287
Sreenivasa Rao v. Rama Mohana Rao, 228
Sreepada v. Sreepada, 1081
Sreerama Changal v. Ramiah, 991
Sree Ram v. Ratanlal, 1026
Seetharamamma v. Patta Reddi, 979
Sri Amurvi Perumal Devasthanam v. Sabhapathy Pillai, 455, 473
Sri Bajrang Jute Mills Ltd. v. Lalchand Dugar, 247
Sri Chand v. Naider Singh, 176
Sri Chunilal V. Mehta v. Century Spinning & Mfg. Co., 712
Sridhar Vasantrao v. Gopala Rao, 884, 898
Sri Durga Saw Mills v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 87
Sri Gopal Jalan v. Calcutta Stock Exchange Association, 709
Sri Jagannada Raju v. Sri Raja Prasada Rao, 977
Srikakolapu v. Gudivada, 540, 546
Sri Kishen v. The Secretary of State for India in Council, 731
Sri Kishan Lal v. Kashmiro, 169
Sri Krishna Chandra v. Mahabir Prasad, 1059
Sri Krishna Khanna v. Additional District Magistrate Kanpur, 252
Srilal Singhania v. Anant Lal, 428, 429
Srinath v. Kali Bhawani, 954
Srinath Bhattacharji v. Jotindra Mohan, 129
Srinivas v. Premier Insurance Co., 538
Srinivas v. Raghunath, 305
Srinivas & Co. v. Inder Biselers, 587
Srinivasa v. Muthayya, 496, 497
Srinivasa v. Premier Life & General Insurance Co., 185, 909
Srinivasa v. Rathnasabapathy, 713
Srinivasa v. Srinivasa, 1076
Srinivasa Ayyar v. Sesha Ayyar, 283, 540
Srinivasadas Lakshminarayan v. Ramchandra Ramrattandas, 262
Srinivasa Raghava Aiyangar v. Ranganatha Aiyangar, 48
Srinivasa Setty v. Premier Life & General Insurance Co. Ltd., 852
Srinivasalu v. Kondapa, 494
Srinivasan v. Subramaniam, 729
Srinivas Ram Kumar v. Mahabir Prasad, 997
Srinivas Raghavan v. Jayaram & another, 303
Shrinivasarao v. Baba Ram, 566
Sripatrao v. Shankarrao, 762
S. Rajam v. Union of India, 585
Sriram v. Governor-General in Council, 304, 305
Sriramraja v. The Province of Madras, 587
Sriram Cotton Pressing Factory v. Narayanaswami, 443, 961, 1020
Srirangachariar v. Ramasami Ayyangar, 290
Sriramulu v. Dy. Registrar Co-operative Societies, 550
Sri Sarada Mills Ltd. v. Union of India, 413
Srish Chandra Nandi v. Supravat Chandra, 277
Sri Tej Chadha v. Smt. Sidheshwari, 246
Sri Thakurji Maharaj v. Kamta Prasad, 1079
Sri Tirumala Venkateswara Timber v. Commercial Tax Officer, 829, 834
Sri Vishalam Chit Fund Ltd. v. P.N. Shrinivas Mud Lean, 687, 688
Sama v. Presidency Talkies, 795
S.S. Celia v. S.S. Volturuo, 390, 391, 621
S.S. Induna Co. Ltd. v. British Phosphatic Commissioner, 75
Stackhouse v. Barnston, 288
Staffordshere Area Health Authority v. Staffordshire Water Co., 503
Staffordshire Motor Guarantee Limited v. British

Wagon Co. Ltd., 819
Stainbank v. Shepard, 855
Standard Marine Insurance Co., 117
Standard Mills Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Wealth Tax, 26, 371
Standard Oil Co. v. Clan Line, 779
Staniforth v. Lyall, 640, 657
Stanley v. Dowdeswell, 94
Stanley v. Jones, 277
Stansbie v. Troman, 650
Starkey v. Bank of England, 924
Starside Properties v. Mustafa, 688
Startup v. Macdonald, 384, 387, 427
State v. J.C. Gammon Ltd., 843
State v. Padmanabham Pillai, 536
State Aided Bank of Travancore Ltd. v. Dhirt Ram, 105
State Bank of Hyderabad v. Susheela, 812
State Bank of India v. Economic Trading Co. S.A., 724
State Corporation of India v. Sales Tax Officer, 837
State Medical Faculty v. Kshiti Bhushan, 1067
State of Andhra Pradesh v. Jayalakshmi Rice Mills, 577, 830, 831, 839
State of Andhra Pradesh v. Pioneer Construction Co., 502, 625
State of Andhra Pradesh v. Somasankara, 605
State of Andhra Pradesh v. Subhayya Chetty, 605
State of Bihar v. Bank of Bihar Ltd., 826, 827, 828
State of Bihar v. Bengal C&P Works, 86, 107
State of Bihar v. Charanjit Lal, 39, 110
State of Bihar v. Dakhulal Das, 548, 830
State of Bihar v. Jhawar Mal, 613
State of Bihar v. Karam Chand Thapar & Bors. Ltd., 114, 589
State of Bihar v. M. Homi, 725
State of Bihar v. P.K. Jain, 395, 436
State of Bihar v. Rama Bhushan, 337
State of Bihar v. Ram Ballabh Das, 497, 504
State of Bihar v. Thawardas Pherumal, 591, 592
State of Bombay v. Adamjee & Co., 1053
State of Bombay v. Chamarbaughwala, 351
State of Bombay v. K.P. Krishna, 945
State of Bombay v. Pannalal, 588, 589
State of Bombay v. Ratilal Vadilal, 836
State of Bombay v. R.M.D. Chamarbaughwala, 257
State of Gujarat v. Memon Mohammad, 766, 767, 771
State of Gujarat v. Vora Fiddali, 37
State of Kerala v. Aluminium Industries Ltd., 604
State of Kerala v. Cochin Chemical Refineries Ltd., 401, 633, 904
State of Kerala v. Gwalior Rayon Silk Manufacture (Wvg.) Co. Ltd., 522, 523
State of Maharashtra v. Dr. M.N. Kaul, 339, 724, 737, 746
State of Maharashtra v. Digambar Balwant Kulkarni, 402
State of Madhya Pradesh v. Bhailal, 604, 605
State of Madhya Pradesh v. Gordhandas Kailasnath, 100
State of Madhya Pradesh v. Hamin Singh, 87
State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kaluram, 753, 754, 757, 758
State of Madhya Pradesh v. Sirajud-Din, 18
State of M.P. v. Shankar Singh, 581, 596
State of Madras v. Gannon Dunkerley & Co. Ltd., 4, 556
State of Madras v. Jayalakshmi Rice Mills, 830
State of Madras v. Madras Electric Tramways Ltd., 555
State of Madras v. Periaswami Gounder, 541, 592
State of Madras v. R. Ranganathan Chettiar, 87
State of Madras v. Ramalingam, 113
State of Madras v. Ranganathan Chettiar, 58
State of Madras v. Saifud Din, 866, 867
State of Mysore v. Mysore Spinning & Weaving Co. Ltd., 830, 831, 834
State of Mysore v. Tarachand Venkateschand Saha, 581, 588, 589
State of Orissa v. Dr. (Miss) Binapani, 1084
State of Orissa v. Calcutta Co. Ltd., 682
State of Orissa v. Hari Chandan Babu, 18
State of Orissa v. Jilludmudi Venkatraj, 710
State of Orissa v. Kalinga Construction Co., 582
State of Orissa v. Mohammad Khan, 226, 475, 547, 602
State of Orissa v. Raghaballabh Misra, 541
State of Pepsu v. Mohinder Singh, 949
State of Punjab v. A.K. Raha Ltd. 428
State of Punjab v. Hindustan Development Board, 4, 5, 95, 563, 577
State of Rajasthan v. Associated Stone Industries Kota Ltd., 468
State of Rajasthan v. Chandra Mohan Chopra, 676, 710
State of Rajasthan v. Madan Swarup, 472
State of Rajasthan v. Manohar Lal, 884
State of Rajasthan v. Motiram, 482, 557
State of Rajasthan v. Raghunath Singh, 585
State of Rajasthan v. The Associated Stone Industries Kote Limited, 541
State of Rajasthan v. Vidya Vati, 8
State of Tripura v. Province of East Bengal, 605, 1125
State of U.P., v. Debi Prasad, 674
State of U.P. v. Chandragupta & Co., 577, 593, 597
State of U.P. v. Mumtaz Hussain, 58, 589
State of U.P. v. Murarilal & Bros. Ltd., 594, 917, 918
State of U.P. v. P.V. Kanhaiya Lal, 132
State of Vindhya Pradesh v. Raghunath Mannulal, 609
State of West Bengal v. B.K. Mondal, 4, 114, 132, 457, 541, 547, 551, 558, 562, 565, 575, 577, 578, 579, 583, 584, 585, 587, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 866, 908
State of West Bengal v. Brenalasian, 1103
State of West Bengal v. Harendra Nath, 20
State Trading Corporation of India v. Shaik Mohammad Rowthen & Co., 837
Stearine Co. v. Heintzmann, 879
Stedman v. Collect, 1043
Stedman v. Smith, 1116
Stedman v. Swan's Tours, 645
Steedman v. Drinkle, 439, 445, 705
Steeds v. Steeds, 394
Steel v. Dixon, 764
Steel Bros. & Co. v. Dayal Khatas & Co., 403
Steele v. Courtey, 836
Steele v. Williams, 604
Stein v. Hambro Bank, 723
Steinberg v. Scala, 532
Stenhouse Australia Ltd. v. Philips, 323
Stepney Corporation v. Osafsky, 492
Stephens v. Badcock, 858

Sterne v. Beek, 713
Steven v. Broomley & Son, 565
Stevens v. Biller, 803
Stevenson v. Adair, 730
Stevenson v. Blakelock, 805
Stevenson v. McLean, 84, 92
Stevenson v. Mortimer, 913
Stewart v. Casey, 49
Stewart v. Kennedy, 136, 213
Stewart v. Ram Chand, 279
Stewart v. Reavell's Garage, 628
Stewart v. Stewart, 321
St. Helens Smelting Co. v. William Tapping, 1107
St. John Shipping Corporation v. Joseph Bank Ltd., 229, 232, 538
St. Pierre v. South American Stores, 341
Stikman v. Dawson, 125
Stickney v. Keeble, 445, 961
Stocken v. Brockelbank, 1096
Stockloser v. Johnson, 445, 685, 688, 689, 690, 703, 705, 709
Stocks v. Wilson, 124, 125
Stone v. Cartwright, 861
Stone v. Godfrey, 1042
Stonehouse v. Gent, 855
Storer v. G.W.R. Co., 963, 1025
Strand Electric & Engineering Co. Ltd. v. Bristford Entertainments, 795
Strangford v. Green, 865
Stratford & Son Ltd. v. Lindley, 166, 529
Streeter v. Horlock, 766
Strickland v. Turner, 211, 214
Stroms Brucks Aktie v. John & Peter Hutchinson, 634
Strongman v. Sincock, 59, 232, 236, 631
Strutt v. Whitnell, 643, 644
Stubbs v. Holywell & Co., 378, 466, 484
Studholme v. South Western Gas Board, 489
Subankhan v. Lal Khan, 729
Subarna Rekka v. Ramakrishna Dev, 1061
Subava Yellappa v. Yamanappa Salu, 256
Subbaiya Pandaram v. Mohammad Mustapha, 944
Subbamma v. Mohamed Abdul, 157
Subba Naidu v. Haji Badsha Sahib, 315, 334, 1127, 1128, 1130
Subba Pillai v. Ramasami Ayyar, 894
Subbaraidu v. Mahadeva Rao, 517
Subbaraidu v. Satyanarayana, 1067
Subba Ran v. Devu Shette, 402
Subba Rao v. Varadiah, 872
Subban Nadar v. Nallaperumal Pillai, 1075
Subbaraya v. Devandra, 358
Subbaraya v. Pichaipillai, 501
Subbaraya v. Rajagopala, 717
Subbarayudu v. Tatayya, 434, 1017
Subbarayalu v. Annamalai, 709, 944
Subbayya v. Garikapathi Veerayya, 1000
Subbayya v. Nagayya, 1085
Subbayya v. Pedayya, 679
Subbayya v. Soma Lingam, 1105
Subbayya v. Veerayya, 443, 1000
Subbegowda v. Keshava Murthy, 569, 571
Subbiah Moopanar v. Venkatarama Ayyangar, 568
Subbiah Pillai v. Mutthiah Pillai, 713
Subbiah Pillai v. Shanmugam Pillai, 677
Subbu Chetti v. Arunachalam Chettiar, 30, 31
Subedar Dubey v. Madho Dubey, 440
Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prasad, 152, 154, 155, 157, 163, 164, 168, 172
Subin Ghose v. Indian Iron & Steel Co., 702
Subimalachandra v. Radhanath, 97
Subodh Gopa' v. Province of Bihar, 912, 953
Subramani v. Kannappa, 974
Subramania v. Ammapet Co-operative Weavers Society, 101
Subramania v. Gopala, 731, 744
Subramania v. Krishna, 508
Subramania v. Mahalingasami, 574
Subramania v. Narayanan, 872, 912
Subramania v. Narayanaswami, 743
Subramania v. Ramaswami, 1063
Subramania Ayyar v. Ramasubba Ayyar, 801
Subramanian Chetti v. Official Assignee, 180, 206, 730
Subramania Chettiar v. Narayanaswami Gounder, 729
Subramania Aiyar v. Subramania Aiyar, 6
Subramania Iyer v. Rungappa, 567, 568
Subramaniam v. Arunachallam, 991
Subramaniam v. Batcha Rowther, 743, 730
Subramaniam v. Doraisingh, 119
Subramanyam v. Subbarao, 129, 1026, 1027, 1029
Subramaniam v. Thayappa, 582, 580, 583, 592, 596
Subramaniam v. Viswanadaraju, 1019
Subramanian v. Muthia, 425, 509
Subramanian v. Parameswaran, 1076
Subramanya Sastri v. Lakshminarasamma, 133
Subramanyan v. Subba Rao, 1009
Subraya Pillai v. Subraya Pillai, 273
Subroya Chetty v. Ragammal, 734
Suchand v. Balaram, 579
Suchand Ghosal v. Balarama Mardana, 584
Sudamadevi v. Ram Kishan lal, 36
Sudha v. Sankappa Rai, 264, 284
Sudhakar Sahu v. Achutananda Patel, 40, 294
Sudhangshu Kumar Roy v. Banamali Roy, 272, 420, 572
Sudhanshu Mohan Koley v. Mathura Mohan Adak, 25, 526
Sudhindra Kumar v. Ganesh Chandra, 276
Sudhu Singh v. Lehna Singh, 420
Sudisht Lal v. Sheobarat Koer, 169
Suffell v. Bank of England, 505, 740
Suganchand v. Balchand, 279, 546
Suganchand v. Fulchand, 356, 357, 358
Suganchand v. Sundarbai, 1081
Sugandhabai v. Sundarabai, 1082
Sugar v. L.M.S. Ry. 65, 72, 76
Suisse Atlantique Societe d'Armement Maritime S.A. v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale, 61, 62, 63, 64, 66, 67, 68, 70, 71
Suja v. Padam Chand, 546
Suja v. Pahlwan, 763
Sujan Singh v. Sardara Ali, 545, 1054
Sukha v. Ninni, 258
Sukhdarshan Singh v. Chanan Singh, 1065, 1083
Sukhdeo Das v. Mangalchand, 276
Sukhdeo Singh v. Mathra Singh, 1066
Sukhderdoss v. Govindoss, 353, 361
Sukhdev Narayan v. Municipal Committee, 88
Sukhdev Singh v. Bhagat Ram, 984, 985, 986, 987, 1084
Sukh Lal v. Devi Lal, 1052, 1060
Sukhram v. Baldeodas, 353, 354, 356
Sukul Bros. v. H.K. Kavarana, 827, 836
Sukumari Gupta v. Dhirendra Nath, 830
Sulbugmal Gianchand v. Mukandchand Balia, 859

Suleman Vadu v. Tricumji Velji, 17
Sulk v. Myriek, 149
Sullivan v. Constable, 565
Sullvan v. Henderson, 1017
Sulochana v. Pandiyan Bank Ltd., 130
Sultan v. De Held, 1093
Sultan v. Nanu, 257
Sultan v. Ramprasad Kanhiyalal, 810
Sultan Ahmed v. Maksad, 401
Sultan Nawaz Jung v. Rustomji, Namabhoy, 1103
Sumar Singh v. Shib Lal, 571
Sumermal Jamatraj v. Thukappa, 1012
Sumitra Devi v. Satya Narayan, 819, 891
Sumitra Devi v. Smt. Sulekha Kaundu, 273
Summan Singh v. National City Bank of New York, 858, 859
Summers v. Salford Corporation, 646
Sumpter v. Hedges, 377, 378, 560, 565, 576, 579
Sumsuddin v. Abdul, 169, 977
Sun Building Society v. Western Suburban & Narrow Road Building Society, 1000
Sundar v. Parbati, 953
Sundaram Asari v. Abdul Hameed Sahib, 58
Sundaram Chettiar v. Chocklingam, 659
Sundarambal v. Yagavanagurukkal, 176
Sundaram Finance Ltd. v. State of Kerala, 74
Sundaramma v. Surya Narayana, 566, 574
Sundarammayor v. Jagadeesan, 999
Sundaram Pillai v. Kandeswami Pillai, 566
Sundararaja v. Lakshmiammal, 41
Sundaraja Ayyangar v. Pattanathusami Tever, 566
Sundara Rao v. C.I.T., 207, 208
Sundar Bai v. Suraj Bali Rai, 209
Sundaresa Iyer v. S.S.V. Nidhi Ltd., 1075
Sundar Lal & Son v. Bharat Handicrafts Private Ltd., 247
Sundar Lal v. Ram Kishev, 517
Sundar Singh v. Krishna Mills Co., 399
Sundar Singh Malla Singh S.D.H. School Trust v. Managing Committee, 1072, 1075, 1080
Sunderbai v. Havji Arjan, 948, 949, 951
Sunder Koer v. Rai Sham Krishen, 176, 692, 697, 704
Sunderlal v. Laxmanprasad, 439
Sunder Lal v. Ram Sarup, 777
Sunderlalji v. Sheikh Lal, 905
Sunder Singh v. Haro, 296
Sunder Singh v. Kishen Chand, 242
Sunderamurthi v. Chotti Bibi, 292
Sundreswaran v. Sri Krishna Refineries, 447
Sunfire Office v. Hart, 715
Sungut Lal v. Baijnath Roy, 494, 692
Sunilchand v. Aryodaya Spinning & Weaving Mills, 319, 322, 1127
Sunitabala Debi v. Dhara Sundari Debi, 170
Sunitibala Debi v. Manindra Chandra Roy, 136
Sunnam Sattiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh, 55, 457, 458
Superintendence Company of India v. Krishna Narain, 4, 5
Superintendent of Stamps, Bombay v. Breul & Co., 325, 335, 829, 842
Supreme Central Film Co. Ltd. v. H.H. Tej Suryavanshi, 1062
Suput Singh v. Imrit Tewari, 420
Suraiya Begum v. Hamid Ali, 306
Suraja v. Suti Prasad, 126
Suraj Bhan v. Gajraj Singh, 472
Suraj Bahu v. Hashmi Begum, 579
Suraj Mal-Chandan Mal v. Fateh Chand, 882
Surajmal v. Fulchand, 814
Surajmal Shivbhagwan v. Kalinga Iron Works, 242
Surajmull Nagoremull v. Triton Insurance Co., 288
Suraj Narain v. Sukhu Ahir, 48, 120, 127, 301
Suraj Prasad v. Ram Lal, 36
Suramma v. Sitaramswamy, 475
Surasaibalini v. Phanindra Mohan, 267, 268, 269, 288, 289
Surdet Singh v. Gujjar Singh, 728
Surendra Lal v. Secretary of State, 785
Surendra Narayan v. Bhairabendra, 1075, 1079
Surendra Narain v. Hari Mohan, 1106
Surendra Nath v. Indian Airlines Corporation, 1083, 1084
Surendra Nath v. Kali Kumar, 773
Surendra Nath v. Kedar Nath, 103, 867
Surendranath v. Lalit Chandra, 702
Surendranath Mitra v. Tarubala Dasi, 851
Surendra Nath Sarkar v. Atul Chandra Roy, 885
Surendranath Sen v. Municipal Commissioner of Mymensingh, 1079
Surendranath Singh v. Krishna Kumar Nag, 472
Surendranath Talukdar v. Lohit Chandra Taluqdar, 532, 702
Suresh Chand v. Hari Ram, 223, 252
Sureshchandra v. Hari Ram & others, 260
Suresh Narain v. Akhauri, 348, 471, 721, 725, 729, 744
Suriya Kumar v. Girish Chandra, 1051
Surja Narain v. Pratab Narain, 665
Surjan Singh v. Nanak Chand, 40
Surjan Singh v. Sardara Ali, 268
Surjit Singh v. Union of India, 590
Surpat Singh v. Sheoprasad, 448, 469
Suryakaantamma v. Dorayya, 602
Surya Narain Singh v. Jogendra Narain Roy, 692, 695
Suryanarayana v. Bisivireddi, 36
Suryanarayana v. Narendra Thatraz, 307
Suryanarayana v. Purnachandra Row, 607
Suryanarayana v. Subbayya, 287
Suryanarayanamurti v. Tammanna, 1071, 1076
Suryanarayanamurthi v. S., 440
Suryanarayan Murthy v. Ayappa Sastri, 588
Surya Nath v. Shiv Karan, 1080
Suryaprakasam v. Gangaraju, 1015, 1019, 1026
Sushila Devi v. Hari Singh, 458, 469, 472
Sushilkumar Somani v. Baidyanath Mondal, 587
Sutcliffe v. Thancharch, 671
Sutherland v. Heathcote, 128, 1029, 1043
Sutlej Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Dr. Ranjit Singh, 856
Sutton v. Grey, 838
Sutton v. Tatham, 843, 852
Suttor v. Gundowa Porprietary Ltd., 372, 441
Suvalal Jain v. Clive Mills Co. Ltd., 247
Svanosio v. McNamara, 214, 215, 216, 218, 219
Swan v. Bank of Scotland, 730
Swan Hunter & Wigham Ltd. v. France Ferwick Tyne and Wear Ltd., 74
Swayamprabhai v. Muthukrishna, 1060
Sweet v. Pym, 900
Sweet and Maxwell Ltd. v. Universal News Services Ltd., 404, 406, 988
Sweeting v. Pearce, 847, 853
Swift v. Jewsbury, 932
Swift v. Kelly, 199
Swift v. Swift, 33, 990

Swift v. Winterbotham, 188
Swinfen v. Lord Chelmsford, 670
Swift & Co. v. Board of Trade, 667
Swire v. Francis, 929
Swire v. Leach, 776, 814
Swire v. Redman, 735
S.W. Strange Ltd. v. Mann, 321
Sydney Corporation v. West, 61
Syed Abbas Ali v. Misri Lall, 394
Syed Abdul Khader v. Rami Reddy, 839, 840, 850
Syed Ali Kaiser v. Ayasha Begum, 709
Syed Isran Masood v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 502
Syed Saulat Hussain v. Syed Zimuddin, 1071
Sykes v. Beadon, 894
Syed Jalal v. Targopal Ram Reddy, 967
Syed Mahomed v. Shah Vazirul Huq, 277
Symes v. Hughes, 543
Syndic in Bankruptcy of Salim Nasarullah v. Khayat, 392
Synge v. Synge, 288, 397, 402, 404
Size Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycles Co. Ltd., 63, 69, 70, 76
Sztejn v. J. Henry S. Chroder Banking Corporation, 723

T.A. Sankunni v. B.J. Philips, 17
T.A. Sundell & Sons Pty. Ltd. v. Emm Yannoulatos (Overseas) Ltd., 609
T.C. Chowdhury & Bros. v. Girindra Mohan Nevgi, 862
T.C. Industrial Plant Pty. Ltd. v. Robert Queensland, 629, 631
T.M. Doraiswami v. Kaniappa Reddi, 994
T. Mammoo v. K. Ramunni, 295
T.N.O. Bank v. Official Assignee, 747
T.N.S. Firm v. Mohammad Hussain, 120, 745
T.R.S. Sarma v. Nagendra Baha Devi, 1046
T. Syed Mahomed v. Ahmed Fathummal, 162
Tacoordeen v. Nawab Syed Ali, 1072
Taddy & Co. v. Sterious & Co., 36, 39, 835
Tadi Surreddi v. Chelamcherla Brahmayya, 617
Tahal v. Bisheshar, 344
Taj Singh v. State of U.P., 966
Talakchand v. Dhoraji Municipality, 1117
Talbot v. Ford, 1024
Talbot v. Talbot, 349, 988
Talbot v. Von Boris, 147, 158
Talcher Coal Fields v. Central Coal Fields, 632
Tallerman & Co. Pty. Ltd. v. Nathan's Merchandise Ltd., 502, 503
Tamizuddin v. Ashrub, 949, 954
Tambuk Trading Co. v. Nabadwipchandra, 1109
Tamplin v. James, 607
Tapp v. Lee, 183
Tamplin Steamship Co. Ltd. v. Anglo-Mexican Petroleum Co., 464
Tamvaco v. Simpson, 901
Tan Bug Taim v. Collector of Bombay, 4, 5
Tangya Fala v. Trimbak Daga, 580, 586
Tanner v. Christian, 911
Taplin v. Florence, 871
Tappenden v. Artus, 63, 73, 784, 799, 800
Tapling v. Weston, 933
Tapply v. Sheather, 962, 988
Tarabai v. Padamchand, 460, 470
Tarabai v. Tukaram, 974
Tarabai Jivanlal v. Padamchand, 465, 468, 469
Tarrabochia v. Hickie, 479
Tarachand v. Girdharilal, 176
Tarachand v. Hulkaramal, 423
Tarachand v. Suklal, 280
Tarak Chandra v. Anukal Chandra, 1083
Tarakeshwar Upadyaya v. Mahesh Kahar, 132
Tarakumari v. Chandra Manleshwar, 171
Tarapore & Co. v. V.O. Tractors Export, 723, 724
Taraporwala v. Kazim Ali, 967
Tasker v. Shepherd, 412
Tata Chemical Ltd. v. Kailash Adhvaryu, 983, 984
Tata Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. Ramanlal Kandoi, 406, 446, 615, 616, 622
Tata Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. The State of Madras, 605
Tata L&E Co. v. Kartar Singh, 522, 529
Tate v. Chewdson, 762
Tate v. Hyslop, 909
Tate v. Williamson, 153, 157, 165
Tatem (W.J.) Ltd. v. Gambao, 452, 453, 461, 465, 466, 480, 483, 487
Tatia v. Babaji, 403, 633
Tatley v. Shand, 905
Tattga Mohyaji Dhomse v. Rabha Dadaji Dhomse, 240
Tayaramma v. Ramanjaneya Merchanlala Co., 712
Taylor v. Allen, 98
Taylor v. Bowers, 240, 270, 540, 542, 544, 873
Taylor v. Brewer, 585
Taylor v. Caldwell, 465, 449, 450, 484
Taylor v. Chester, 257, 258, 490, 544, 545
Taylor v. Glasgow Corpn., 71
Taylor v. Kymer, 900
Taylor v. Laird, 565
Taylor v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 934
Taylor v. N.V.S., 983
Taylor v. Thames Charters, 774, 775
Taylor v. United Africa Co., 878
Taylor, Stileman and Underwood, Re, 805
Tazier v. Hawkins, 514
Teamco (Pvt.) Ltd. v. T.M.S. Mani, 345
Teheran-Europe Co. Ltd. v. S.T. Belton (Tractors) Ltd., 8, 921
Tejendra Narain v. Bakai Singh, 711
Tejpal v. Ganga, 531
Tej Singh v. State of U.P., 1118
Taju Kaya & Co. v. Gangaji Nensey & Co., 445
Tek Chand v. Harjas Rai-Arjan Das, 274
Tek Chand v. Morris, 692
Tekait Harnarayan Singh v. Darshan Deo, 1074
Tekait Mon Mohini Jemadai v. Basanta Kumar Singh, 249
Telu Mal v. Subba Singh, 357
Tenant v. City of Glasgow Bank, 611
Tenant v. Elliot, 894
Tenax Steamship Co. Ltd. v. Owners of M.V. Brimnes, 83
Teramalh v. Laxmi, 379
Terrapin Ltd. v. Builders Supply (Hages) Ltd., 1129
Terrapin Ltd. v. Builders Supply (Hayes) Ltd., 324
Tetley v. Shand, 904
Texaco Ltd. v. Mulberry Filling Station, 320, 333, 1090
Taxas Co. v. Bombay Banking Co., 909
Texmaco Ltd. v. State Bank of India, 724
Textiles & Yarns (P) Ltd. v. Indian National Steamship Co. Ltd., 413, 414
Textile Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Solomen Bros., 483

Thacker v. Hardy, 263, 352
Thackwray and Young's Contract, 1004
Thai Europe Tapioca Service Ltd. v. Government of Pakes Tan, 917
Thaker Ganpat v. Sukhram, 547
Thakurian Hasmath Kuar v. Thakur Indar Bahadur Sing, 541
Thakurain Raj Rani v. Thakur Dwarka Nath, 407
Thakur Dei v. Bishwanath Singh, 1027
Thakur Jagannath Bakshi v. The United Province, 1064
Thakurji Maharaj v. Ram Del, 172
Thakur Lal v. Nathu Lal, 536
Thakur Singh v. Indar Singh, 89
Thakursingh v. Jagatsingh, 982
Thames Launches v. Trinity House, 1112
Thanamma v. Ramaswami, 949
Thangal Kunju Musaliar v. Venkatachalam Motti, 851
Thunga Bai v. Vishalakshmi Heggadthi, 1100
Thanki v. Bajirao, 284
Thansing v. Bhuralal, 1028
Thasi Muthukannu v. Shanmugavalu, 258, 544, 545
Thathirth v. Union of India, 372
Thayaramu v. Sitaramswami, 256
The Albion, 72, 74
The Al Bazaro, 619
The Angelia Trade & Transport Inc. Lins Kareem Kaisha Ltd., 477
The Ardennes, 620, 634, 644
The Arpad, 615, 616, 634
The Athens, 13, 14
The August, 854
The Australia, 855
The Ballyalton, 64
The Bonita, 855
The Canadian Transport, 392
The Cap Blanco, 13
The Cella, 901
The Despena Re-Owners of Eleplheratria v. Owners of M.V. Despena, 392
The Equitable Fire and Accident Office v. The Ching Wo Hong, 94
The Eugenia, 472, 483, 487, 452, 453, 463
The Eurymedon, 53
The Fanny, 856
The Fehmarn, 13, 14, 341
The Five Steel Barges, 594
The Gaetano and Maria, 854
The Great Eastern; 855, 928
The Halcyon the Great, 676
The Hamburg, 855
The Heron II, 649
The "Hope", 893
The Inchmaree, 854
The Industrie, 779
The Julia, 655
The Karnak, 854
The Madras, 565
The Massalia, 479, 487, 453
The Mecca, 667
The Medina, 675, 854
The Mehālis Angelos, 397, 780
The Moorcock, 114, 345, 454
The Moorcraft, 988
The New York Star, 44, 45
The Ninigehow, 712
The Odessa, 486, 810
The Onward, 855
The Parana, 620, 639
The Penelope, 462
The Rainbow, 900
The Rajasthan Golden Transport Co. Ltd., v. United India Fire & General Insurance Co. Ltd., 342
The Renpor, 854
The Salvador, 213
The Siboen and the Sibothe, 148
The Staffordshire, 855
The Sultan, 855
The Tubentia; 947
The Tentonia, 487, 450
The Thetis, 855
The Torni, 11
The Tradesman, 408
The Vanguarx Investments Ltd. Madras v. The Mutual General Insurance Society Ltd., 183
The "Winkfield, 774, 776, 788, 814, 827
Thevar v. Somban, 1060
Thinnappa Chettiar v. Krishna Rao, 868
Third Chandris Shipping Corporation v. Unimarine S.A. 1091, 1098
Thirumalasubba Chettiar v. Rajammal, 571
Thirupathi Pillai v. Ganthimathi Ammal, 1074
Thiruthiyil Unniri Kutti v. Narayanan Chettiar, 982
Thithi Pakurudasir v. Bheemudu, 234
Thol v. Henderson, 623
Thomakutty v. Thomas, 644, 645
Thomas, Re, 268
Thomas v. Dey, 360
Thomas v. Kelly, 18
Thomas v. Morammar Baselious Origen, 467
Thomas v. Notts Incorporated Football Club, 734
Thomas v. Thomas, 24, 25, 299
Thomas v. Williams, 1101
Thomas Abraham v. The National Tyre & Rubber Co. of India Ltd., 578, 599
Thomas Beck v. Thomas Siddle, 418
Thomas Brown & Sons Ltd. v. Fazal Deen, 255, 257, 268, 269, 773
Thomas Gabriel & Sons v. Churchill & Sim, 838, 917
Thomson v. Davenport, 913, 920, 921
Thomson v. Palmer, 121
Thomson v. Schwal V. Costaki, 1108
Thompson v. Adams, 873
Thompson v. Hundson, 711
Thompson v. L.M. & S.Ry., 65, 68, 71, 72, 76
Thompson v. Robinson, 635
Thomas Marshall v. Guilne, 325, 326
Thomas Marshall (Exports) Ltd. v. Gurner, 834
Thompson v. Robinson, 658
Thompson Scwat v. Costake, 1100
Thorn v. City Rice Mills, 427
Thorn v. Commrs. of Works, 965
Thorn v. London Corporation, 454
Thorne v. British Broadcasting Corpn., 1112
Thorne v. Deas, 883
Thornton v. Kempster, 137
Thoroughgood's case, 138
Thorpe v. Fasey, 396, 402
Thorpe v. Holdsworth, 621
Thorton v. Shee Lane Parking Ltd., 343
Thota Venkatachallasami v. Krishnaswamy, 100
Thrasia v. Varkey Mathai, 167
Thakurain Jaipal Kunwar v. Bhaiya Inder Bahadur

Singh, 1063, 1081
Thurstan v. Nottingham Permanent Benefit Society, 122, 125, 1055
Thwaites v. Coulthwaite, 360
Tichel v. Short, 878, 882
Tiedemann and Ledermann Freres, Re, 865
Tihadi v. Gokhei Panda, 282
Tikkilal v. Kowalchand, 125
Tikki Lal v. Komalchand, 566, 729
Tilak Chandra v. Fatiq Chandra, 946, 952
Tilakram Chaudhuri v. Kodumal Jethanand, 340
Tildesley v. Clarkson, 997
Tillakchand v. Jitamal, 302
Tilley v. Thomas, 445
Tilokchand v. Dhundiraj, 1121
Tilok Chand v. Mahandu, 130
Timbls Iromaos Ltd. v. A.M. Sequeira, 675
Tinn v. Hoffman, 83
Tinsukia Municipal Board v. Harikissen, 296
Tirathraj Pandey v. Amar Credit Corporation, 76, 188, 195, 684, 771
Tirath Ram v. Harbhajan Singh, 167
Tirathaswami v. Tirathaswami, 1062
Tirumala Vyankateshwara Timber v. Commercial Tax Officer, 835
Tirupathi v. Lakshmana, 258, 542, 1072
Tirupathi Pillai v. Ganthimathi Ammal, 1041
Tituram v. Cohen, 1088, 1094,
Tabacco Friends Union v. U.P., 39
Tobin v. Broadbent, 849
Tolhurst v. Associated Postland Cement Manufactures, 380
Tod v. Lakhmidas, 382, 413
Todd v. Nicol, 109
Tok Investors Ltd. v. Smoker, 351
Tolaram v. Birla Jute Mfg. Co., 408
Tolhurst v. Associated Cement Manufacturers, 380, 413
Tolnay v. Criterion Film Productions Ltd., 628, 645
Tomkrison v. First Pennsylvania Banking & Trust Co., 676
Tool Metal Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Tungsten Electric Co. Ltd., 24, 25, 102, 265, 287, 317, 329, 518, 519, 520, 521, 524, 525, 526, 683
Toomey v. Rama Sahi, 351
Toonya Ram v. East India Ry. Co., 781
Torabaz Khan v. Nanak Chand, 36
Torquay Hotel Co. Ltd. v. Cousins, 1089, 1098, 1097
Totakot v. Kurusingal, 728
Tota Ram v. Zalim Singh, 889
Town Area Committee v. Rajendra Kumar, 546, 547
Townseed v. James, 319
Townsend v. Inglis, 928
Townsend (Builders) Ltd. v. Cinema News & Property Management Ltd., 247
Townshand v. Stangrooms, 1043
Tozer Kemsley & Millbourn Ltd. v. Colliers Inter-State Transport Service, 73
Tramp Shipping Corporation v. Greenwich Marine Co., 462
Transtrust v. Danubian Trading Co. Ltd., 623, 624, 632, 636, 651
Travancore Bank v. Abraham, 830
Tramways Advertising Pty. Ltd. v. Luna Park, 625, 628, 675
Transatlantic v. Fred Drughorn, 926
Travancore & Quilon Bank Ltd. Re, 753
Treacher & Co. v. Mahomedally, 93, 94
Tredwen v. Holman, 343
Trego v. Hunt, 312, 327
Trehenne v. Dale, 514
Trendtex Trading Corporation v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 19
Treseder Griffin v. Co-operative Insurance Ltd., 389, 390
Trevor Andre v. Bashford, 334
Tribe v. Taylor, 896
Tribeni Prasad v. Basudas Prasad, 240, 965
Tribhuvandas v. Balmukund, 1000
Tribuvan Datt v. Someshwar Datt, 174
Trickett v. Tomlinson, 927
Trifus & Co. v. Post Office, 840
Trikam Damodar v. Lala Amirchand, 363
Trikamdas v. Bombay Corporation, 275, 545, 609
Trilokchand v. Munshi, 603
Trilokchand Hindumal v. Sitamul Sundaram, 303
Triloknath Maitey v. Provabati Santra, 441
Trilokdas v. Firm Ram Narain Damodar, 487
Trimbak v. Bhagchand, 692
Trimbak v. Bhagwandas, 530
Trimbak Panchabhar v. Akola Education Society, 659
Trimbak v. Sakharam, 389
Trimbak Bhikaji v. Shankar Shamrav, 209
Trimble v. Hill, 352
Tripura v. Province of East Bengal, 605
Trojan & Co. v. Nagappa Chettiar, 640, 666, 673, 674, 890
Trollope v. Martyn, 558, 844
Trollope (George) & Sons v. Caplon, 558
Trollope & Colls Ltd. v. Atomic Power Construction Ltd., 98, 100, 114, 115
Tropical Traders v. Goonan, 446
Trueman v. Loder, 875
Trustees of Bombay Port Trust v. Premier Automobiles Ltd., 676, 767
Trustees of the Harbour Madras v. Best & Co., 786
Trustees of the Property of Ellis & Co. v. Dixon, 812
Tsakiroglou & Co. Ltd. v. Noblee Thorl G.m.b.H., 426, 463, 466, 467, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 453, 487
Tucker v. Farm and General Investment Trust, 771
Tucker v. Singer, 649
Tufton v. Sperni, 156
Tugman v. Hopkins, 607
Tukaram v. Madhorao, 127, 128, 864
Tukaram G. Gurkar v. R.N. Shukla, 20
Tulsabai Nathudas v. Narayan Ajabrao Raut, 50, 303
Tulsamma v. Nandula Buchiramaiah, 1099
Tulsa Kunwar v. Jageshar Prasad, 567, 568, 571
Tulsi Das v. Shiv Dat, 1061
Tulsi Ram v. Soma Singh, 303
Tulsiram v. Zaboo, 304, 305, 306
Tungabai v. Yeshwant, 158, 159, 164, 170
Turnball & Co. v. Duval, 173
Turner v. Goldsmith, 465, 659, 896
Turner v. Ford, 799
Turner v. Green, 183
Turner Morrison & Co. Ltd. v. Hungerford Investment Trust Ltd., 25, 500, 523, 527
Turner v. Letts, 899
Turner v. Marriott, 980
Turner v. Merrylees, 776

Tutika Basavaraju v. Parry & Co., 913
Turner v. Sampson, 819
Turner v. Thomas, 921
Tweddle v. Atkinson, 29; 30, 32, 405
Tweedale v. Tweedale, 35
Twentsche Overseas Trading Co. Ltd. v. Uganda Sugar Factory Ltd., 464, 472, 474, 487, 488
Twyford v. Manchester Corporation, 600, 609
Tyagaraja Mudaliar v. Vedathanni, 138
Tyres v. Rosedale & Ferryhill Iron Co., 512

U. Arzeina v. Makyin Shwe, 1066
U. Aung Ye v. Ma E Mai, 133
U. Ba Pe v. May Lay, 744
U. Kyaw Lu v. U. Shwe So, 952
U.K. Nethiri Menon v. Mullapulli Gopalan Nair, 379
U. Pan v. Maung Po To, 476
U. Pe Gyi v. Naung Theim Shin, 277
U. Shwe Thaung v. U. Kyam Dun, 223
U. Shrinivasa Malliah v. Krishna Kumar, 1102
U.P. v. J.R. Bhatia, 159, 294
U.P. v. Kanhaiyalal, 218
U.P. Co-operative Federation v. Sunder Bros., 1017
U.P. Electricity Board v. Goel Electric Stores, 87, 93, 96
U.P. Government v. Nanhoo Mal, 137, 211, 220, 346, 595
U.P. State Electricity Board v. Smt. Laxmidevi Sehgal, 242
U.P. State Warehousing Corporation v. Tyagi, 984, 985, 1084
U.P. Thein v. O.A.O.K.R.M. Firm, 1060
U.G.S. Finance Ltd. v. National Mortgage Bank of Greece, 63, 66, 114
Uday Chandra Paul v. Parmar, 1061
Udaynath Sahu v. Ratnakar, 1106
Udyoga Mandir v. Centassa Knit Wear, 1124
Uderam v. Shivbhajan, 738
Udmiram v. Balramdas, 1070
Udho Das v. Prem Prakash, 246, 251
Udho Shah v. Hira Shah, 501
Ugar Sen v. Lakshmichand, 423
Uji v. Hathi Lalu, 250
Ulfat Rai v. Gauri Shanker, 126
Ulfatrai v. Nagarmal, 622
Ulster-surft Ltd. v. Taunton Meat Haulaga Ltd., 778
Ultzen v. Nicols, 772
Umacharan Shaw & Bros. v. C.I.T., 237, 238
Umapati v. Subodh Chandra, 1123
Uma Parshad v. Secretary of State, 789
Umarkhan v. Salekhan, 680, 691, 692, 693, 694, 697
Umar Noor Mohammad v. Dayal Saran Darbari, 662, 994
Uma Satyanarayana v. Sitaramayya, 361
Uma Shankar Shaw v. C.I.T., 235
Umed Kika v. Nagindas, 401
Umed Singh Hamir Singh v. Marsien Mills, 112
Umesh Chandra v. Golap Lal, 176
Umesh Chandra Banerjee v. Khulana Loan Company, 574
Umrao Singh v. Banarsi Das-Dipchand, 565
Umrao Singh v. Ramji Das, 953
Underwood v. Nicholls, 847
Underwood & Sons Ltd. v. Baker, 312, 318, 328
Unger v. Preston Corporation, 466
Union Bank of Australia v. Murray, Aynesley, 801, 802
Union Bank of Australia v. Mclintock, 863
Union Bank of Australia v. Whilelaw, 154, 163
Union Construction Co. v. Chief Engineer, 337, 990
Union Fidelity Trustee Company of Australia v. Gibson, 161
Union of India v. A.L. Ralliaram, 57, 114, 558, 595, 866
Union of India v. Amar Singh, 597, 860, 861
Union of India v. Anglo Afghan Agencies, 522, 559, 590, 595
Union of India v. B. Pralhad, 618, 620, 644
Union of India v. Babulal Uttam Chand, 98
Union of India v. Baijnath, 617
Union of India v. Bakshi Amrik Singh, 1125
Union of India v. Benode Kumar, 208
Union of India v. Bhagwan Industries Ltd., 491, 529
Union of India v. Bhimsen Valaitiram, 100, 725
Union of India v. Bikanir Textiles, 304, 782
Union of India v. B.M. Sen, 866
Union of India v. Bungo Steel Furniture Ltd., 407
Union of India v. Chaman Lal & Co., 52, 872
Union of India v. Chaman Lal Loomba, 52
Union of India v. Charan Singh, 473
Union of India v. Chandra Gupta & Co., 705
Union of India v. Chinoy Chhablani & Co., 914
Union of India v. Dungo Steel Furniture Ltd., 534
Union of India v. Dhansar Coal Co. Ltd., 591
Union of India v. East Bengal River Steamer Service, 415, 419
Union of India v. F. Damodardas, 618
Union of India v. Gangabushan Danshilal, 414
Union of India v. Gangaram Bhagwandas, 513
Union of India v. F. Lakshminarain, 782
Union of India v. Gangadhar Mimraj, 110, 443, 589, 917
Union of India v. Gaya Prasad, 793
Union of India v. Gopal Chandra, 88
Union of India v. Ibrahim Gulaba, 618
Union of India v. Indo Afghan Agencies Ltd., 58, 526
Union of India v. Jethabai, 529
Union of India v. Jolly Steel Industries Pvt. Ltd., 620
Union of India v. Jyotirmoyee, 866
Union of India v. K.H. Rao, 704
Union of India v. Kamal Kumar Goswami, 831
Union of India v. Karamchand Thapar, 590
Union of India v. Kashi Prasad, 431
Union of India v. Kewal Kumar Goswami, 588
Union of India v. Kishorilal Gupta, 408, 409, 474, 496, 497, 499, 500, 502, 511, 515, 853
Union of India v. Lallan Prasad, 431. 840
Union of India v. Lakshmi Rattan Cotton Mills Ltd., 781
Union of India v. Madan Lal, 96
Union of India v. Madho Ram & Sons, 782, 785
Union of India v. Moddala Thathiah, 372
Union of India v. Modi Sugar Mills Ltd., 588
Union of India v. Mohammad Khan, 598
Union of India v. Mohd. Nazim, 339, 840
Union of India v. Monjilal Shah, 616
Union of India v. Moti Lal Kamaria, 781, 832, 834, 843, 847
Union of India v. Narayan Lal, 217, 516, 517
Union of India v. Narayan Sethi Jagdeswara, 739

Union of India v. Narain Singh, 85, 86
Union of India v. Natabar Lal, 635, 782
Union of India v. Navigation Maritime Bulgare, 342
Union of India v. New Marine Coal Co., 593, 595
Union of India v. Pearl Hosiery Mills, 734, 1064
Union of India v. F. Lakshminarain, 782, 789
Union of India v. Ram Gopal Hukamchand, 841
Union of India v. Raman Iron Foundry, 674, 705, 690
Union of India v. Raman Iron Industries, 678
Union of India v. Rameshwarlal Bhagchand, 104, 109
Union of India v. Rameshwarlal Bhagwan, 527
Union of India v. Ramjas Ram, 666
Union of India v. Ramjilal, 840, 841
Union of India v. Ram Nagina Singh, 554, 580
Union of India v. Ranganayakulu, 782
Union of India v. Ranpal Distillery & Chemicals, 710
Union of India v. S. Kesar Singh, 402
Union of India v. Saheb, 592
Union of India v. Satyabhushan, 635
Union of India v. Shab Singh, 582
Union of India v. Sheobux, 620
Union of India v. Shri Nivas Mal, 645
Union of India v. Sitaram Jaiswal, 581
Union of India v. Sri Rajendra Mills Ltd., 781, 782
Union of India v. Subbaiah & Co., 782
Union of India v. Teharali, 817
Union of India v. T.L. Dakshinamurthy, 23
Union of India v. Thataiah, 56
Union of India v. The Steel Stock Holders Syndicate, 19
Union of India v. Tribhuvandas Lalji, 615, 620, 647, 673
Union of India v. United India Fire and General Insurance Co. Ltd., 781
Union of India v. United Timber Works, 635
Union of India v. Uttamsingh Duggar & Co., 98, 371
Union of India v. Vasudeo Aggarwal, 99, 681, 710, 711
Union of India v. Venkatiah, 618
Union of India v. West Punjab Factories Ltd., 618, 793
Union Transport Finance Ltd. v. British Car Auctioneers, 772
Unique Motor & General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Rayma Isa, 340
United Africa Co. Ltd. v. Saka Owoade, 76, 77
United Australia Ltd. v. Barclays Bank Ltd., 563, 578, 599, 601, 608
United Baltic Corporation Ltd. v. Dundee, Perth & London Shipping Co. Ltd., 253
United Bank of India v. Ali Hussain & Co., 600
United Brokers v. Alagappa Corporation, 615
United Commercial Bank v. Bank of India, 13, 722
United Commercial Bank Ltd. v. Okara Grain Buyers Syndicate Ltd., 12, 725, 764
United Dominions Trust (Commercial) Ltd. v. Eagle Aircraft Service Ltd., 442, 443
United Dominions Trust Ltd. v. Ennis, 687
United Dominions Trust v. Parkway Motors, 826
United Dominion Trust v. Western, 195, 198
United Fresh Meat Co. Ltd. v. Charter House Cold Storage Ltd., 61
United Karnataka Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Goverdhana Rao, 1084
United Motor Finance Co. v. Addeson & Co., 179
United Overseas Bank v. Jivani, 612
United Provinces Government v. Church Missionary Trust Association Ltd., 296
United Railways of the Havana & Regla Warehouse Ltd., In re, 10, 13, 15, 389, 390, 391, 392, 497
United States v. Motor Trucks, 1058
Universal Cargo Carriers Corpn. v. Citati, 396, 398, 402, 405, 406, 472, 473, 478, 479, 453, 632
Universal Corp. v. Five Ways Properties Ltd., 467, 690, 703, 708
Universal Steam Navigation Co. v. James Mckelvie & Co., 911
Universal Stock Exchange v. Strachan, 352, 353
Universe Yorkships Inc. of Moravia v. International Transport Works Federation, 14
Unnao Commercial Bank Ltd. v. Kailash Nath, 280
Unni v. Kunchi Amma, 1053
Upendra Chandra Mitter v. Tara Prosanna Mukerjee, 582, 586
Upendra Lal v. Mehraj Bibi, 699
Upendra Nath v. Jitendra Nath, 1069
Upfill v. Wright, 257
Upjohn v. Hitchens, 476
Upper Hunter County District Council v. Australian Chilling & Freezing Co. Ltd., 348
Upton-on-Severn R.D.C. v. Powell, 141, 601
Usuffali Hassanally v. Ibrahim Dajibhoy, 793
Urguhart Lindscey & Co. Ltd. v. Eastern Ban Ltd., 723
Uthup v. Kurien, 492
Utica City National Bank v. Gunn, 503
Utkal Automobiles (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Braja Prasad Roy, 655
Uttam v. Tabu, 1104
Uttamchand Saligram v. Jewa Manaooji, 503, 938
Uttamsing Kala Singh v. Union of India, 789
Uttar Pradesh Government v. Church Missionary Trust Association Ltd., 843, 848, 907
Uxbridge Permanent etc. Society v. Pickard, 930
Uzir Ali v. Nasimannessa Bibi, 607

V. Shrinivas Pillai v. Agent of Life Insurance Corporation of India Madras, 98
V. Narasinh Rao v. Supdt. of Excise, 686
V.B. Raju v. K. Anatharam, 245
V.K. Srinivas v. Premier Life and General Insurance Co. Ltd., 909
V.P. Desa v. Union of India, 373
V.R. Nalhan v. Mac Laboratories, 1122
V.R. Subramanyam v. B. Thayappa, 556
V.C.K. Bus Service Ltd. v. Regional Transport Authority, 372, 479
V.S.T. Kadir Meerai Beevai v. Mukammad Koya, 1078
Vagha Jaising v. Manilal Bhogilal, 422
Vaithinath Iyer v. Govindaswami, 688
Vaidyanatha Ayyar v. Chinnasami Naik, 423
Vaidyanatha Rao v. Kandappa Chetti, 517
Vaikuntarama v. Authimoolam, 122, 126, 547
Vaikuntam v. Kallapiram, 569
Vairavan Chettiar v. Avicha Chettier, 925
Vairavan Chettiar v. Kannappa Mudaliar, 437
Vaithelinga v. Saminada, 323
Vaktuba v. Agarsingji, 1060, 1066, 1079
Valapad Co-operative Stores v. Srinivasa Iyer

Bros., 848
Valentini v. Canali, 120, 124
Valia Kalyani v. Krishnan, 982
Vallabhadas v. Nagardas, 663
Valpy v. Manley, 609
Vaman v. Municipality of Sholapur, 1125
Vanconver Malt & Sake Brewing Co. Ltd. v. Vanconver Brewery Ltd., 311, 321, 328, 329, 330, 334
Vandepitte v. Preferred Accidents Insurance Co., 31, 32, 41, 717, 994
Vanghan v. Vanghan, 348
Vanjeeswara v. Distt. Board South Arcot, 555
Van Omeron v. Dewick, 855
Van Praagh v. Everidge, 136
Vanzant v. Coates, 175
Vappakandu Marakayar v. Annamalai Chetti, 365
Varadarajulu Iyer v. Arumugha, 1001
Varahaswami v. Ramachandra, 383
Varamati v. Chindru, 542
Vardarajulu Naidu v. Thavasi Nadar, 238, 729, 730, 1054
Vardon v. The Commonwealth, 348
Variety Body Builders v. Union of India, 704
Varkey Mathai v. Oomen Oomen, 536
Varughese Varughese v. Mathew Joseph, 688
Vasireddi Balachandra v. Unnaya Subbaya Garu, 156
Vassandmal Davaldas v. Hiromal, 262
Vassireddi Seetharamaiah v. Sriram Motor Finance Corporation, 750
Vastiram Manmal & Co. v. Ramaswamy Iyer, 340
Vasudev Reddy v. Venkata Reddy, 967
Vatapatra Sayi v. Venkata, 997, 1004
Vathyanathan v. Gangarazu, 284
Vathyam Balarama v. Varilala, 295
Vayangara v. Pariyangot, 420
Vedachala Mudaliar v. Rangaraju Naidu, 573
Vedanayaga v. Vedammal, 1075
Veeraiah v. Lakshmikantamma, 582
Veeramalai Vannian v. Thodikara Vanniar, 908
Veera Raghaviah v. Chinna Veeriah, 1009
Veeraiah v. Sarraju, 547
Veeramma v. Appayya, 31, 34, 41
Veeran Ambalam v. Vellaiammal, 962
Veeranna v. Sayamma, 1085
Veerappa v. Venugopala, 1073, 1080
Veerasalingam v. Subbarayudu, 727
Veeraswami Mudali v. Venkatachala Mudali, 950
Veerayya v. Swayya, 386, 980
Veerayya v. Sobhanadri, 275
Veettil Muhammad v. Abdarahiman, 1020, 1023
Veilayam Chettiar v. Kulandavelappa Chetti, 585
Velchand v. Flagg, 693, 699, 700, 713
Vellaya Konar v. Ramaswami, 1050
Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam, 235, 236, 237, 265
Velur Devasthanam, v. Sundaram Nainar, 455
Vengideswara v. Chathu Achen, 680, 692, 698
Vellore Taluk Board v. Gopalasami, 980
Vena Reddi Ramachandra Reddy v. Kundruru Shasher Reddy, 1062
Venareddy Ramraghawreddy v. Konduru Sheshireddy, 1074
Vendom Jupiter Chits (P) Ltd., v. K.P. Mathew, 731
Venkatadin Appa Row v. Venkata Narsinha, 850
Venkata Krishna Reddy v. Alamelu, 1022
Venkata Krishna Reddy v. Amarababu, 1009
Venkatanarayana Galu v. Venkata (Zamindar of Tuni), 1000
Venkatramanna v. Mangamma, 719
Venkataramanaswamy Permanand Bhandar Ltd. v. Fatima, 692, 693
Venkatarao v. Secretary of State, 985, 987
Venkata Sheshaiah v. Venkayya, 1019
Venkamma Naidu v. S.V. Chisty, 1050, 1052, 1054, 1055
Venkanarayana Sastry v. Chinna Yella Reddy, 375
Venkayamma v. Veerayya, 1082
Venkata v. Timmayya, 566
Venkatachalam v. Narayanan, 269
Venkatachalam v. P.L.A.R.M. Firm, 1042
Venkatachalam v. Seethuram, 1026, 1027
Venkatachalam Pillai v. Sethuram Rao, 129
Venkatacharyulu v. Rangacharyulu, 199
Venkatadi Appa Rao v. Parthasarathi Appa Row, 494
Venkatadri v. Venkata Kutumbarao, 608
Venkatappa v. Chenappa, 57
Venkataperumal v. Thiruppavanam, 707
Venkataraju v. Raghavayya, 602
Venkatrama Ayyar v. Gopalakrishna Pillai, 389
Venkatarama Aiyar v. Krishnammal, 167
Venkataraman & Co. Ltd. v. State of Madras, 605
Venkataramayya v. Pullayya, 542
Venkataramma v. Setti Sanyasayya, 367
Venkataramanayya v. J.M. Lobo, 286
Venkataramana Ayyangar v. Kasturiranga Ayyangar, 1062
Venkatarangayya Appa Rao v. Varaprasada Rao, 719
Venkatarayanan v. Venkata Subadrayamma, 1000
Venkataratnam v. Sivaramudu, 205, 206, 209
Venkataratnam v. V., 236
Venkataravanappa v. Dasappa, 1031
Venkatareddi v. Venkatachalam, 266, 286
Venkatasami v. Panchakshara, 516
Venkatasamy v. Rangasamy, 300
Venkata Sastrulu v. Home Venkanna, 649
Venkatasetty v. Rangasetty, 394
Venkataswami v. K. Nagi Reddy, 278, 279, 1022
Venkataswami v. Narasayya, 556, 584
Venkataswami v. Venkayya, 663
Venkata Subbayya v. Attar Sheik, 235, 236
Venkatasubbaiah v. Subbamma, 181
Venkatasubbamma v. Subbayya, 899
Venkatasubba Rao v. The Asiatic S.N. Co., 957
Venkatesa v. Ramasami, 1123
Venkatesh v. Abdul Kadir, 1068
Venkatesh v. Baba, 506
Venkatesha v. M/s. Kamlapat, 428
Verall v. Great Yarmoth Borough Council, 451, 1017
Verghese v. Iype Kurikose, 1055
Vermani v. Vermani, 200
Vic Mill, Re, 616
Vicars v. Wilcocks, 653
Victoria Laundary (Windsor) Ltd. v. Newmen Industries Ltd., 623, 629, 634, 635, 636, 638, 639, 640, 651, 668
Vidyadoya University v. Silva, 983, 984, 985, 1083, 1084
Vigers v. Cook, 565
Vigers v. Pike, 203
Vijay Kumar v. Jullunder Body Builders, 803
Vijayakumar v. Newzealand Insurance Co. Ltd., 121
Vijaya Ramraj v. Vijaya Ananda, 379

Vijasami v. Sasivarma, 1063
Vilaiyat Hussain v. Misran, 543
Village Panchayat of Tengareddigudens Venkapataswamy v. Narasayya, 546
Vinayakrav Ransordas, 893
Vinaithcethat Achi v. Chidambaram Chettiar, 429
Vineet Kumar v. Smt. Bhagwan Dai, 991
Vine v. National Dock Labour Board, 326, 984, 1084
Vinod Chandra v. Vivekanand Mills, 1126
Virasvami v. Appasvami, 844
Virayya v. Subba Roa, 237
Virjee Dayaram & Co. v. Ramkrishna Rice & Oil Mills, 16
Virjuvandas v. Mahomed Ali Khan, 950, 951
Visalakshi v. Janopakara, 818
Vishweshwar Narasabhatta v. Durgappa, 994
Visheshwar Singh v. Province of Bihar, 1065, 1066
Vishwanath v. Amarlal, 620
Vishwanath v. Deokabai, 57
Vishwanath v. Jam Mohammed, 537
Vishweshwar v. Sadashiv, 26
Vishweswar Narsabhatt v. Durgappa, 383
Vishnaji Bhanjee v. Ganga Shanker, 672
Vishnucharya v. Ramchandra, 871, 874
Vishnu Jagannath v. Vasudeo Raghunath, 1116
Vishnu Sakharam v. Kashinath, 225
Vishram Arjun v. Shankariah, 446, 496, 499, 500, 501, 505
Vishwa Nath v. Shiam Krishna, 565
Vishwara Rao v. Surya Rao, 208
Vissanji Sons & Co. v. Shapurji, 373
Viswanathan v. Saminathan, 282
Viswanath v. Dekabai, 548
Viswanathan v. Namakchand, 545, 549, 1054, 1055
Viswanathan Pillai v. Shanmugam, 1112
Vita Food Products Inc. v. Unus Shipping Co. Ltd., 10, 11
Vithoba v. Madhav, 994
Vithoba v. Maroti, 799
Volkart Bros. v. Rutna Velu Chetti, 399
Von Hatzfeldt Wildenberg v. Alexander, 95
Vuddanam v. Venkatakameshwara, 534, 671
Vulcan Insurance Co. Ltd., v. Maharaj Singh, 339
Vulley Mahomed v. Dattubhoy, 1050
Vyankatesh Oil Mill v. Velmahomed, 422
Vyankatra & Laxmanji v. Shamrao Ganpatrao, 680
Vythilinga v. Ravana, 678, 699
Vythilinga v. Sundarappa, 692
Vyravan Chettiar v. Official Assignee, Madras, 759

W.B. Anderson & Sons Ltd. v. Rohdas (Leverpools) Ltd., 194
W. Banvard v. Ballia, 243, 282
W.H. Milsted v. Hams, 964, 1127
W.H. Milsted & Son Ltd. v. Ham P & Ross & Glendinning Ltd., 277, 317
W.J. Alab & Co. Ltd. v. El Nasr Export and Import Co. 12, 515, 523, 528
W.J. Talem v. Gamboa, 454, 453
W.T. Lamb & Sons v. Goring Breek Co. Ltd., 844, 835
Wade v. Coope, 759
Wade v. Simeon, 55, 296
Wadsworth v. Lydall, 651
Wagh v. Morsis, 231
Waghela Rajsanji v. Sheik Masludin, 3, 129
Wahid Ali v. Ashruff Hossain, 286
Wahidunnessa v. Surgadas, 140
Wajid Ali Shah v. Dianat-ullah Beg, 1067, 1069
Wajid Khan v. Ewaz Ali, 156
Wake v. Harrop, 912
Wakefield v. Newbon, 935
Walamji Lalji v. Anil Charan Bangal, 541
Wakeham v. Mackenzie, 1025
Waldy v. Gray, 909
Walf Ahmad Khan v. Ayodhya Kundu, 948, 950, 953
Walidad Khan v. Janak Singh, 127
Wali Muhammad v. Ganpat, 732
Wali Uddin v. Ram Rakhan, 36
Walker, 133
Walker v. Armstrong, 1039
Walker v. Rostron, 599
Walkins v. Maula, 963
Wall v. City of London R.P. Co., 662
Wallace v. Kelsall, 393, 394
Wallace v. McGirr, 216
Wallace v. Woodgate, 900
Wallersteiner v. Moir, 833
Wallis Chlorine Syndicate v. American Alkali Ltd., 633
Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 688, 700, 713
Wallington v. Townsend, 1040
Wallis v. Day, 255
Wallis v. Smith, 632, 633, 679, 683, 692, 700, 707 710
Wallis, Son & Wells v. Pratt & Haynes, 75
Walsh v. Greffith-Jones, 838
Walshe v. Provan, 899
Walson v. Allock, 751
Walter v. Ashton, 1093
Walter v. James, 865
Walters v. Morgan, 1022
Walter Smith v. Ahmed Abdeenbhoy, 910
Walton Harvey Ltd. v. Walker & Hansfrays Ltd., 482
Walton's Settlement, 1039
Wamanrao v. Raustomji, 1079
Waman Srinivas Kini v. Ratilal Bhagwandas, 245, 257, 261, 266, 267, 268, 270, 288, 289, 512, 515
Waman Vishwanath v. Yashwant, 679
Ward v. Byham, 297
Ward v. Hobbs, 188
Ward v. National Bank of New Zealand, 732, 740, 741
Warde v. Stewart, 895
Warlow v. Harrison, 105, 873, 912
Warner Bros. Pictures Ltd. v. Nelson, 311, 315, 320, 322, 333, 1096, 1127, 1128
Warrin v. Commonwealth, 526, 610
Warringham v. Miller, 1017
Warwick v. Slade, 744, 873
Waryam Singh v. Gopi Chand, 836, 972
Wasudeo v. Namdeo, 433, 492
Waters v. Monarch Fire & LIfe Assurance Co., 15, 34, 37, 667, 786, 852, 994
Watkin v. Rymill, 60
Watkins v. Dhunnoo Baboo, 116, 486, 130, 565, 566
Walkins v. Rymill, 58, 69, 61, 65, 77
Watkins & Sons Inc. v. Carrig, 525
Watling v. Lewis, 784
Watson v. Allcock, 637, 753

Watson v. Burton, 864, 1007
Watson v. Campbell, 114, 128
Watson v. Davies, 736, 865
Watson v. Duke of Wellington, 872
Watson v. Lyon, 768, 900
Watson v. Marston, 870, 1004
Watson v. Swann, 735, 864
Watson v. Yates, 267, 307
Watson & Co. v. Dhonendra Chunder Mukherjee, 337, 384
Watts v. Mitsui, 578, 681
Watts v. Shuttleworth, 636, 751
Watts v. Spence, 198, 662
Watts v. Westhoven, 191
Watteau v. Fenwick, 719, 720, 846, 847
Waugh v. Morris, 196, 197, 198, 199, 217
Wauthier v. Wilson, 617, 252, 254, 258, 729, 730
Way v. Latilla, 503, 554, 585
Waverley Jute Mills Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co. Ltd., 356, 357, 168, 408
Wazarimal v. Ballia, 243, 282
Weatherly v. Banham, 496, 578
Weavers Mill Ltd. v. Balkis Ammal, 810, 944
Webb v. Direct London & Portsmouth Rly. Co., 823, 958
Webb v. Hewitt, 628, 742
Webb v. Hughes, 447
Webb v. Stentin, 678
Webbe v. Lester, 3, 4
Webster v. Basanquet, 577, 578, 679, 681, 682
Webster v. Cecil, 878, 1024, 1025
Webster v. Higgins, 59
Webster v. Seekamp, 726, 855
Weddle Beck & Co. v. Hackett, 351
Wedgwood v. Adams, 870, 877, 1014, 1023
Weeding v. Weeding, 879, 881, 1026, 1028, 1029
Weeks v. Goode, 768, 900
Weeks v. Propert, 792, 924
Weer (Andrews) & Co. v. Dobell & Co., 642
Weinberger v. Inglis, 282, 324
Weiner v. Harris, 694, 816
Welby v. Drake, 455, 524
Weld-Blundell v. Stephens, 544, 650,
Welkinson v. Matin, 379
Well v. Pratt & Haynes, 75
Wellfield v. Adamson, 724, 854
Wells (Mecothan) Ltd. v. Buckland Sand & Sili-Ca Ltd., 59
Wells v. Mayer Aldermen & Burgesses of Kingston-upon-Hull, 473, 550
Wells v. Wells, 571, 670
Wenkhiem v. Arndt., 72, 81
Wentworth v. Cock, 329, 376
Wentworth v. Lloyd, 757, 887
Werrin v. The Commonwealth, 517, 600
Wertheim v. Chicontini Pulp Co., 531, 533, 547 617, 619, 634
West v. Steward, 446, 507
West Bengal v. Brindaban, 945, 1103
West Bengal Financial Corporation v. Gaurco Series Pvt. Ltd., 398
West Country Cleaners (Falmouth) Ltd. v. Saly, 389, 443
West London Commercial Bank v. Ketson, 199
West Mereia Constabulary v. Wagner, 1113
West Steamship Co. v. S.K. Ramalingam Chettiar, 914
Western Bank of Scotland v. Addie,, 462, 538
Western India Automobile Association v. Industrial Tribunal, 847, 984
Western India- Prospecting Syndicate Ltd. v. Bombay Steam Navigation Co. Ltd., 295, 662, 338, 779
West of England Bank v. Batchelor, 769, 901
West London Commercial Bank v. Kitson, 168, 883
Weston v. Collins, 389 443
Westropp v. Solomon, 770, 902
Westwood v. Bell, 768, 900
Whaley Bridge Printing Co. v. Green, 759, 891
Whateley v. Palanji, 665, 777, 784
Wheatley v. Westminister Brymbo Coal Co., 849, 990
Wheeler & Wilson v. Shakespeare, 717, 844,
Whillingham v. Burgogne, 545
Whineup v. Hughes, 426, 484
White v. Australia v. New Zealand Theatres Ltd., 542, 628
White v. Benckendorff, 773, 905
White v. John Warwick & Co. Ltd., 27, 31, 40
White v. Proctor, 725, 853
White v. Ross, 541, 832, 405, 627, 967
White v. Carter (Councils) Ltd., v. Mc Gregor, 14, 16, 347, 354, 396, 399, 406, 546, 582, 583, 633, 681, 689
White v. Garden, 198, 200
Whitechunch v. Cavanagh, 931
Whitehouse v. Jordon, 671
Whitehall Court Ltd. v. Ettlinger, 412, 468, 469
Whitehead v. Tuckett, 795,, 927
Whitehill v. Bradford, 287, 327, 329
Whiteley v. Dalancy, 889, 1039
Whitely Bishop of London v. Whitely, 379
White Rose Flour Milling Co. v. Australian Wheat Board, 526, 609
Whiteside v. W., 892, 893, 1041, 1043, 1042
White, Tomkins & Courage v. Wilson, 279, 318
Whitewell v. Perrin, 791, 923
Whiteworth St. Estates v. James Millar, 12
Whitefield v. Le Despense, 840
Whitwood Chemical Co. v. Hardman, 1128
[illegible] Chemical Co. v. Hardman, 217, 316, 353, 933, 963, 965, 1087, 1125
Whymper v. Buckle, 85, 96
Whyatt v. Kreglinger, 321, 322
Wickman Machine Tools Ltd. v. Sehu Schuler A.G., 873
Widyawanti v. Jai Dayal, 276
Wiekan Machine Tools Co. v. L. Schulzar, 780
Wigsell v. School of Indigent Blind, 539, 624, 654
Wilby v. Elgee, 43, 44, 257, 48
Wild v. Harris, 245, 284
Wilde v. Gibson, 166, 777, 895, 1045, 909, 192
Wilding v. Sanderson, 188, 220
Wilkinson v. London & Canty Banking Co., 802
Wilkers v. Spooner, 698, 821
Wilkie v. London Passenger Transport Board, 96, 109, 110
Wilkinson v. Clements, 329, 837, 838, 973
Wilkinson v. Coverdale, 753, 883
Wilkinson v. Martin, 763, 895
Wilkinson v. Osbourne, 224, 225, 262, 263
Wilkinson v. Verity, 675, 794
William Cory v. City of London Corpn., 384, 436, 616
William Jacks & Co. v. Harrowing, 298, 341
William Lacey Ltd. v. Davis, 477, 485, 518, 554, 556, 565, 601

William Robinson & Co. Ltd. v. Hever, 322
William Whiteley Ltd. v. The King, 526, 610
Williams v. Barton, 705, 825, 827
Williams v. Bayley, 145, 232, 166, 272
Williams v. Barbour, 578
Williams v. Carwardine, 95, 108
Williams v. Ed. T. Agius, 615, 617, 654
Williams v. Evans, 719, 725, 847, 854
Williams v. Greatrex, 874, 1020
Williams v. Holmes, 800, 933
Williams v. Inns, 800, 933
Williams v. Lennitt, 784
Williams v. Millington, 766, 780, 798, 912
Williams v. North China Insurance Co., 735, 864
Williams v. Scott, 860, 1003
Williams v. Stevens, 758, 888
Williams v. Williams, 259, 298
Williams Bros. v. Ed. T. Agins, 530, 531, 558, 636
Williamson v. Barton, 778, 910
Willis v. Baddeley, 786, 919
Willis, v. Palmer, 721, 849
Wilson v. Brett, 659, 776
Wilson v. Carnley, 221, 224, 245, 259, 263, 284
Wilson v. Colonial Air Transport Inc., 9
Wilson v. Darling Island Stevedoring & Lighterage Co. Ltd., 27, 31, 39, 40, 43, 48, 64
Wilson v. Lanc. & Yorks R.C., 546, 634
Wilson v. Love, 577, 679
Wilson v. Millar, 727, 855
Wilson v. Northampton & Banbury Junction Rly. Co., 30, 31, 34, 35
Wilson v. Rickett Cockerell & Co. Ltd., 543, 629, 644
Wilson v. Thomas, 860 1003
Wilson v. Tumman, 734, 863
Wilson v. Turner, 800, 932
Wilson v. United Counties Bank Ltd., 565, 632, 651, 661, 675
Wilson, Sons & Co. v. Balcarres Brook Steamship Co., 367, 418
Wilson & Co. v. Baker Lees & Co., 836
Windhill Local Board v. Vint, 233, 234, 273, 274
Wingsell v. School for Indigent Blind, 557, 654
Winn v. Bull, 84, 86, 95, 97
Winter Gardens Theatres Ltd. v. Millenium Production Ltd., 448, 449, 460, 464, 509, 535, 660
Wise v..Ameerunnissa, 812, 817, 946, 943
With v. O'Flanagan, 165, 190
Withers v. General Theatres, 645
Withers v. General Theatre Corporation, 551, 574, 628, 675
Withers v. Reynolds, 402
Withers v. Raynolds, 348, 385, 388
Withwood Chemical Co. v. Hardman, 846, 983
Withenbaker v. Galstaun, 8
Wittingham v. Burgoyne, 468, 545
Wittenbuker v. Golstaun, 8
Wolf & Sons v. Dadyba Khimji & Co., 232, 471, 519, 520, 272, 548, 602, 604
Wolmershausen v. Gullick, 648, 764
Wong v. Beaumont Property Trust Ltd., 100, 114
Wolf v. Freeman, 365
Wolstenholm v. Sheffied Union Banking Co. Ltd., 681, 683, 967, 984, 990
Wolverhampton Corpn. Emmons, 831, 847, 850, 967, 984, 990
Wood v. Connolly Bros. Ltd., 953, 1112
Wood v. Priestner, 619, 731
Wood v. Rowcliffe, 821, 956
Woodcott v. Sun Alliance & London Insurance Ltd., 185
Woodar Investment Development Ltd., v. Wimpey Construction V.K. Ltd., 54
Woodhouse A.C. Israel Cocoa S.A. v. Nigerian Produce Marketing Ltd., 526
Woods v. Mackenzea Hill Ltd., 440
Woodworth v. Conroy, 804
Woodhams v. Anglo Australian etc. Assurance Co., 681, 801
Woolfe v. Horne, 780, 912
Woolley v. Allen Fairhead & Sons, 564, 660
Woolmer v. Delmer Price Ltd., 66, 69, 73
Woolmershansen v. Gullick, 368, 420
Wootton Isaacson, Re, 222, 260
Worrall v. Jacob, 893, 1043
Worttman Park Estate Co. v. Parkside Houses Ltd., 1099
Wright v. Carter, 140, 156
Wright v. Macadam, 954, 1116
Wright v. Simpson, 618, 730
Wright v. Tyne Improvement Commissoners, 610, 658, 708, 726
Wroth v. Tyler, 635, 639, 1032, 1033
Wrong v. Beumont Property Trust Ltd., 114
Whight v. Vanderplank, 155, 177
Wulff & Billing v. Jay, 640, 641, 757
Wylde v. Radford, 681, 801
Wyld v. Silver, 939, 1095
Wythes v. Labouchere, 622, 736

Xenos v. Wickham, 724, 725, 851, 852
Xnos. v. Danube and Black Sea Rly., 397

Yadarao v. Chandudas, 486, 566
Yaman v. Changi, 413
Yamunabhai v. Haridhar Pandey, 1082
Yandkishore v. Munnibai, 181
Yangs Pastoral Co. (Pty.) Ltd., v. First Chicago Australian Ltd., 725
Yamunabai v. Harihar Pandit, 928, 1082
Yangtsze Insurance Association Ltd. v. Lukmanjee, 34, 37
Yarkley v. Jones, 158
Yarlagadda Veera Raghavayya v. Gorantla Ramayya, 443, 503
Yar Mohammad v. Lakshmidas, 811, 815, 819, 946, 954
Yaro v. Sana-Ulla, 945, 1104
Yashwant Singh v. Jagdish Singh, 815, 818, 953
Yates Building Co. Ltd. v. R.J. Pulleying & Sons., 80
Yella Reddi v. Subbi Reddi, 867, 1010
Yellappa v. Desayapa, 692, 815
Yellayi Sannayya v. Sannayya Julu, 812, 815
Yenidji Tobacco Co. Ltd., 961, 1106, 1124
Yenna Tatayya v. Kakarla Gangayya, 576, 677
Yeoman Credit Ltd. v. Apps, 67, 68, 74, 75, 558, 655
Yeskill v. Continental Express, 883
Yetton v. Eastwoods Froy Ltd., 659
Yeung v. Hong Kong & Shang Hai Banking Corporation, 626
Yogambai v. Naina Pillai, 501, 505, 582, 585, 593
Yonge v. Regnell, 641, 758
Yogendra Kumar Jalan v. Union of India, 237
Yonge v. Toynbee, 740, 741, 869, 876

Yonie v. Tulsiram, 599, 707, 869, 876
Yorkshire Railway Wagon Co. v. Maclure, 617, 730
Young v. Bristol Aeroplane Co., 391
Young v. Cole, 770, 902
Young v. Hon Kong & Shanghai Banking Corpn., 719
Young v. Ladies Imperial Club Ltd., 945, 1103
Young & Co. v. The Mayor & Corporation of Lamington Spa, 473, 503, 507, 738, 551, 552, 585, 589, 595, 596
Youngs v. Y., 813, 948
Younie v. Tulsiram, 579
York v. Porteer, 611
Yusuf Alim v. Muhammad Din, 947, 1105

Zafer Ahsan v. Zubaida Khatun, 113, 145
Zaibun Nisa v. Nazim Hassan, 817, 952
Zainaba Begum v. Khurshid Begum, 239, 279
Zakarali v. Isar Hussain, 814, 949
Zakir Sadagar v. Dolegobind, 387, 826, 874, 440, 961, 1020
Zamindar of Khallikode v. Beera Pillai, 909, 1059
Zandaram v. Prahlad Rao, 945, 1103
Zeb-ul-Nisa v. Din Mohammad, 910, 910, 924, 1061, 1077
Zeebunnissa Begum v. Mrs. Danagher 113, 115, 116, 127, 128, 129
Zeima v. Gregory, 371
Zivonstenska Banka National Corporation v. Frankman, 254
Zinc Corporation v. Hirsch, 232, 272
Zulaing v. Yamethin District Counil, 593
Zouchu v. Parson, 116, 129

ADDENDA

(Up to date to May 1986)

P. 7, after text corresponding to fn. 50:

The custom or usage of a trade cannot modify the express term which is clear and not ambiguous (M/s Magnum Films v. M/s Golcha Properties Pvt. Ltd., AIR 1984 Delhi 162 at 164).

P. 8, add in fn. 52:

See, also, M/s Magnum Films v. M/s Golcha Properties Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1984 Delhi 162 at 164.

P. 25, after text corresponding to fn. 99:

See, however, Subhash Chandra v. Nagar Palika, Kanpur, AIR 1984 All 228, where it was held that undertaking by the Nagar Palika to pay a token sum of Rs. 100/- per mensem as maintenance to the person who gave the property to it did not amount to 'consideration' and did not defeat the gift.

P. 25, add in fn. 99:

See, also, Subhash Chandra v. Nagar Mahapalika, Kanpur AIR 1984 All. 228.

P. 28, after text corresponding to fn. 25:

Where, by a deed, A conveyed his property to B and, on the same day B, by another deed, agreed to reconvey the property to A and C or any one of them alone, and the said second deed was not signed by A or C, the Allahabad High Court held that there was an agreement enforceable at law and decreed specific performance thereof (Prag Datt v. Saraswati Devi, AIR 1982 All 37).

P. 32, add in fn. 68:

See also, Fatehchand Murlidhar & etc., v. M.S.E.B., AIR 1985 Bom 71 at 74.

P. 38, add in fn. 22:

See, also, Fatechand Murlidhar and etc. v. Maharashtra State Electricity Board, AIR 1985 Bom 71 at 74.

P. 57, add in fn. 77:

See also H.G. Krishna Reddy & Co. v. M.M. Thimmiah & anr, AIR 1983 Mad 169.

P. 59, add at bottom:

Negotiation of terms. Unless the terms of the contract are arrived at after due negotiation, they cannot be held binding merely because a ticket is later issued, containing the said terms. There must also be proof that the terms were meant to be contractual. The said terms must have been brought to the notice of the contracting party at or before the time when the contract was entered into. If the printed terms on the ticket do not, as stated above, become part of the contract, they cannot be enforced unilaterally, for otherwise, it will amount to an alteration of the terms of the original contract (The Special Secretary to Government of Rajasthan (Finance), Jaipur, Rajasthan & others v. Veaakantara Venkataramana Seshaiyer & others, AIR 1984 A.P. 5).

P. 71, after text corresponding to fn. 99:

Where the material containing terms of contract was in small print on the reverse side of a lottery ticket and there was no evidence to show that the printed matter on the reverse side of the ticket was part of any negotiation or that the attention of the purchaser was drawn to such matter at or before the time when he paid the purchase price of the lottery ticket or that he had perused the printed matter at or before the time of contract, the court held in The Special Secretary to the Govt. of Rajasthan v. Vedakantara Venkataramana Seshaiyer, AIR 1984 A.P. 5, that such printed terms were not binding on the purchaser of the lottery ticket. It was further observed by the court that unless the terms of contract are arrived at after due negotiation, they cannot be held binding merely because a ticket is later issued containing the said terms. There must also be proof that the terms were meant to be contractual. The said terms must have been brought to the notice of the contracting party at or before the time when the contract was entered into. If the printed terms on the ticket do not, as aforementioned, become part of the contract, they cannot be enforced unilaterally, for otherwise, it will amount to an alteration of the terms of the original contract.

P. 79, add in fn. 59:

See also, American Pipe Co. v. State of U.P., AIR 1983 Cal 186 at 192.

P. 83, add in fn. 99:

See also, American Pipe Co. v. State of U.P., AIR 1983 Cal 186 at 192.

P. 83, after the paragraph "Withdrawal of bid by telegram", add the following paragraph:

Concluded contract and promissory estoppel. Where contractual relationships between the parties have been established under a completed contract, there is no scope for the application of the principle of promissory estoppel (C.V. Enterprises v. M/s Braithwaite and Co. Ltd. and Ors. AIR 1984 Cal 306 at 310).

P. 95, add in fn. 92:

See also, H G Krishna Reddy & Co. v. M M Thimmaiah & another, AIR 1983 Madras 169.

P. 97, after text corresponding to fn. 15:

In L.I.C. of India v. R. Vasireddy, AIR 1984 SC 1014 the Supreme Court, however, held that the mere receipt and retention of premium until after the death of the applicant or the mere preparation of the policy document is not acceptance. Acceptance must be signified by some act or acts agreed on by the parties or from which the law raises a presumption of acceptance. It further observed that though in certain human relationships silence to a proposal might convey acceptance, in the case of insurance proposal, silence does not denote consent and no binding contract arises until the person to whom an offer is made says or does something to signify his acceptance. Mere delay in giving an answer cannot be construed as an acceptance, as, prima facie, acceptance must be communicated to the offeror. The general rule is that contract of insurance will be conclued only when the party to whom an offer has been made accepts it unconditionally and communicates his acceptance to the person making the offer. Whether the final acceptance is that of the assured or the insurer, however, depends simply on the way in which negotiations for an insurance have progressed (vide AIR 1984 SC at 1018).

P. 111, after text corresponding to fn. 11:

In the case of insurance, the mere receipt and retention of premium until after the death of the applicant or the mere preparation of the policy document is not acceptance. Acceptance must be signified by some act or acts agreed on by the parties or from which the law raises a presumption of acceptance (L.I.C. of India v. R. Vasireddy AIR 1984 SC 1014 at 1018).

P. 118, after text corresponding to fn. 8:

On a comparison of the language used in sections 10, 13 & 14 two conclusions are inescapable. In order to constitute a contact, both the parties must consent to the agreement. Even if both the parties have consented to the agreement, consent of one of them may not be said to be free if the same had been obtained by coercion, undue influence etc. The distinction between the total lack of consent and a tainted consent is real. It is only in those cases in which a tainted consent has been obtained or procured from one of the parties that a contract at his instance shall be held to be voidable and may be set aside (Deo Nandan v. Chhote, AIR 1983 All 9 at 11).

P. 118, after the text corresponding to fn. 8:

A lawful agreement of lease is a contract. When such contract was not made in accordance with Article 299 of the Constitution of India, it was not a valid or binding document (See Sri Narayan Gosain & Ors. v. Collector, Cuttack & Ors. AIR 1986 Orissa 46).

P. 122, after text corresponding to fn. 41, add new para:

Transfer by de facto guardian. A transfer of a minor's property by a de facto guardian is in the nature of an ultra vires act and it is open to the minor when he attains majority to repudiate it if it was not for his benefit or for his necessity. He can repudiate it by merely refusing to accept the transfer and continue to enjoy and possess the property so transferred in his own rights or by claiming recovery of possession thereof if he had been dispossessed. It is not necessary to have a judicial rescission of such a transfer because the transfer in substance being by an unauthorised person is not rendered valid except upon ratification (Hari Satya Banerjee & Others v. Mahadev Banerjee & Others, AIR 1983 Cal 76 at 81).

P. 127, add in fn. 93:

See also, Hari Satya Banerjee & others v. Mahadev Banerjee & others, AIR 1983 Cal. 76.

P. 129, after text corresponding to fn. 18:

A quondam minor challenging the transfer of an immoveable property through his natural guardian in contravention of section 8(1) and 8(2) of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 and seeking possession of the property, can bring the suit only within the prescribed period of three years after attaining majority under Article 60 of the Indian Limitation Act 1963 (Surta Singh v. Pritam Singh, AIR 1983 P & H, 114 at 132).

P. 131, after text corresponding to fn. 38, add:

Contract on behalf of a private deity. A deity is not a perpetual minor and a contract for sale of immoveable property belonging to a private deity is specifically enforceable when it is for legal necessity (Durga Thakurani Bije Nijigarh & others v. Chintamani Swain & others, AIR 1982 Orissa 158 at p. 162).

P. 133, add in fn. 49:

See, also Mrs. Clara Auroro de Braganca & ors v. Mrs. Sylvia Angela Alvares, AIR 1985 Bom 372.

P. 138, add in fn. 89:

See also, Deo Nandan (deceased, by L.R.S.) v. Chhote, AIR 1983 All. 9.

P. 145, after the words "was not free", add:

See Deo Nandan v. Chhote, AIR 1983 All 9 at 11.

P. 146, after the last sentence:

'Caused'. Even if there be undue influence or coercion, but if it does not appear that it was instrumental in making the promisor to do the act in question, the existence of coercion, etc. would be of no avail. The word "cause" is not a term of art, but it is a term of science. Nothing can be said to be the cause of a particular effect, unless it is the proximate and immediate cause of that effect. When a particular effect is said to be caused by a particular factor, it must be clearly and cogently established that the effect is the direct outcome of that particular cause. If the alleged cause is remote and not proximate, is distant and not immediate, such a cause cannot be said to be the cause in legal parlance (Vijaysingh Mohansingh Solanki v. Transport Manager, Ahmedabad Municipal Transport Service, Ahmedabad and anr., AIR 1982 Gujarat 307).

P. 147, before Section 15:

Consent is said to be free when it is not caused by coercion, undue influence, fraud misrepresentation or mistake. Consent can be regarded as informed when it is an act of reason accompanied with deliberation of a mind which knows the right and wrong, good and evil and it postulates an active will on the part of the person giving consent to permit the doing of the act complained of with full knowledge of the nature of the act that is being done and the rights and obligations of the parties involved in the commission of the act, where consent was given on the strength of a representation which, when made, was not intended to be really acted upon it was held to have been obtained upon a misrepresentation (Nokhia & Ors v. State of H.P. AIR 1985 H.P. 88 at 90).

P. 157, after the sentence following the text for fn. 36:

Where, however, an illiterate old woman gifted her valuable immoveable property to her advocate, the court held that the relationship was fiduciary and that it could be presumed that the advocate was in a position to dominate the will of the woman and as the transaction appeared to be unconscionable, the court, in the circumstances of the case, further held that the gift deed was the result of undue influence excercised by the donee — advocate (Smt. Takri Devi v. Smt. Rama Dogra & Ors, AIR 1984 H.P. 11 at pp. 15 & 18).

P. 161, after text corresponding to fn. 67:

Where, however, a person, long after the death of his only son and being illtreated by his son's widow and her brothers, left his own house and while residing with his nephews, executed for consideration a sale deed in favour of his nephews, and stated in the mutation proceeding that he had executed the sale-deed of his own free will and volition and later sought to set aside the sale-deed, it was held that, in absence of proof of lack of rational judgement or of mental incapacity, the sale-deed could not be set aside (Ram Chandra Singh v. Basdeo Singh and anr. AIR 1982 All. 437).

P. 162, add in fn. 76:

See also, Alok Kumar Aich v. Asoke Kumar Aich & Ors. AIR 1982 Call. 599; Hajra Bai & others v. Jadhavbai AIR 1986 M.P. 106.

P. 169, after fn. 35:

Followed in Miti Bewa v. Daitari Nayak & Ors. AIR 1982 Orissa 174.

P. 171, add in fn. 44:

See also, Mahabir Saha v. Haripada Saha & Ors, AIR 1982 Cal. 353.

P. 171, after text corresponding to fn. 48:

The principles mentioned above should also apply to males who by reasons of their apparent physical or mental incapacity or infirmity or being placed in circumstances where they are greatly amenable to the overpowering influence of another person are induced to enter into conveyance and transactions relating to their property (Daya Shankar v. Bachi, AIR 1982 All. 376 at 381-2).

P. 172, after text corresponding to fn. 58:

The burden of proof. The law presumes, prima facie, in favour of the deeds being duly executed. So ordinarily, the person who challenges the validity of a transaction on the ground of fraud, undue influence, etc. and charges his opponent with bad faith has to discharge the burden of proof which rests on him. But the major exception to this rule is that the initial burden would not shift to the party who challenges the transaction and will instead be cast on the person who relies on such deed if a relationship of "active confidence" or fiduciary relationship subsists between the contracting parties, such as guardian and ward, agent and principal, doctor and patient, spiritual adviser and disciple, trustee and cestui que trust etc. The underlying principle of engrafting such exception to the general rule is that on account of existence of such relationship, one of the parties is in a position to exert undue influence or 'dominate' over the other and extort benefit from him. In such cases justice demands that the burden of proving good faith of the transaction must be thrown upon the dominant party i.e. the party who is in a position of "active confidence". The probability of dominating over the will of another party arises either directly from the very nature of the relationship existing between the parties or sometimes from a peculiar handicap or disability from which the other party suffers. Thus section 111 of the Indian Evidence Act has to be read along with the provisions of section 16 of the Indian Contract Act (Daya Shankar v. Bachi, AIR 1982 Allahabad 376 at 379).

P. 172, after the text corresponding to fn. 58:

Difference between Sub-Section (1) & Sub-Section (3). Sub-section (1) and sub-section (3) cover two different fields, though at times, one may overlap the other. To attract sub-section (1) two things should be established, namely, (a) one of the parties was in a position to dominate the will of the other and (b) he used that position and obtained an unfair advantage over the other, while to attract sub-section (3), (a) the person was in a position to dominate the will of the other and (b) the transaction appeared on the face of it or evidence adduced to be unconscionable. There is another vital difference between sub-section (1) and sub-section (3). In subs-section (3), if the two ingredients are established, the burden of proof that contract was not induced by undue influence shall lie upon the person in a position to dominate the will of the other. This presumption is absent in sub-section (1). The word "shall" found in 16(3) indicates that the presumption is mandatory..... The concomitant position is that, if the burden is not discharged, the presumption shall prevail (Andalammal v. Rajeshwari Vedachalam (deceased by L.R.) and others AIR 1985 Mad 321 at 331).

P. 173, after the text corresponding to fn. 61:

Where the sum of Rs. 12000/- was found to be unconscionably inadequate as sale price of land with a four-storeyed building, the Court in the facts of the case, found that the transaction was one of loan and dismissed the suit based on title (Vinayakappa Suryabhanappa Dahenkar v. Dulichand Hariram Murarka AIR 1986 Bom 193).

P. 174, after text corresponding to fn. 73:

However, unless a case under this section of undue influence is made out, it is not possible to strike down the transaction merely because it appears to be unconscionable (Deota Prasad v. Tribhuwan & Ors. AIR 1983 All. 139 at 144).

P. 174, after text corresponding to fn. 74:

Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the court either that the bargain on the face of it was unconscionable or the executant was the victim of physical or mental handicap or that he was subdued by the complexity of circumstances in which another person had an upper hand, the burden must be cast squarely on the person enjoying the dominating position to show that he secured the deed in good faith (Daya Shankar v. Bachi, AIR 1982 All 376 at 382).

P. 181, after text corresponding to fn. 20:

A person, intending to sell his property, executed a lease for a period of ten years two days before the sale. The lessee was aware of the intended sale. The transaction of lease was fraudulent and the transferee-purchaser was not bound by the lease. (Hukum Chand v. Hazra Begum & Ors, AIR 1982 All 215 at 217).

P. 181, after text corresponding to fn. 20:

Where the lessor, knowing that two days after executing a lease in favour of her husband, she would cease to be the lessor and the lessee also knew the same, she executed the lease for a period subsequent to her ceasing to be the lessor, the transferee is not bound by such lease which was outcome of a fraud (Hukum Chand v. Hazra Begum, AIR 1982 All. 215 at 217).

P. 181, after text corresponding to fn. 22:

However, where the fact of annulment of her earlier marriage on ground of unsoundness of mind was concealed from the bridegroom, his consent was held to have been induced by fraud, and was not free. The marriage was accordingly annulled by the court. (Kiran Bala Asthana and anr. v. Bhaire Prasad Srivastava, Air 1982 All. 242 at 246).

P. 181, after the text corresponding to fn. 26:

The mere fact that the plaintiff was an old and illiterate lady, by itself would not lead to an inference that the transaction was vitiated by undue influence or fraud or misrepresentation as the burden was on the plaintiff to prove all necessary facts. Even if the relations were friendly or close, it could not from that fact be readily inferred that the defendants were in a dominating position or that they were trying to take undue advantage of her position and wanted to practice fraud upon her. There was no satisfactory evidence that at the relevant time of the said transaction she was indisposed to such an extent and that she was physically and mentally so upset that she was incapable of understanding what she was doing (Hajra Bai and others v. Jadavbai AIR 1986 M.P. 106).

P. 185, after text corresponding to fn. 58:

In a contract of insurance, the non-disclosure which may entitle insurer to repudiate liability must relate to material fact. The test to determine materiality is whether the fact has any bearing on risk undertaken by the insurer. In other words, without proof of bearing on insurability, policy cannot be invalidated. Non-disclosure of fact of lapsed policies was held not to have bearing on the risk and did not amount to fraudulent misrepresentation as no undue advantage was sought by concealment of the fact. The insurer was thus bound to pay under the policy (Bhagwani Bai v. L.I.C. of India, AIR 1984 M.P. 126 at 130).

P. 200, after text corresponding to fn. 99:

Where the fact of annulment of earlier marriage on the ground of unsoundness of mind was concealed from the bridegroom, the marriage was annulled under section 12(1) (c) of the Hindu Marriage Act 1955 (Kiran Bala Asthana & Ors. v. Bhaire Prasad Srivastava, AIR 1982 All 242 at 246).

Where a husband sought annulment of marriage, alleging that illegitimacy of his wife was not brought to his notice and that had it been brought to his notice he would not have married her, it was found that, in law, she was not illegitimate and held that the husband was not entitled to the relief. (Smt. Mandakini Pundalik Salkar v. Chandrasen Raiker AIR 1986 Bom. 172).

P. 200, Add in fn. 5:

See also Hajrabai & others v. Jadavbai AIR 1986 M. P. 106.

P. 208, add in fn. 69:

See, also, Amar Krishna Mukherjee v. Smt. Asha Rani Ghosh & others (AIR 1985 Cal 398).

P. 209, after the text corresponding to fn. 83:

Where the sum of Rs. 12000 was found to be unconscionably inadequate as sale price of land with four-storeyed building, the Court, in the facts of the case, found that the transaction was one of loan and dismissed the suit based on title (Vinayakappa Suryabhanappa Dahenkar v. Dulichand Hariram Murarka AIR 1986 Bom. 193).

P. 209, after text corresponding to fn. 85:

Non- disclosure of lapsed policies was held not to be a fraudulent misrepresentation (Bhagwani Bai v. L.I.C. of India, AIR 1984 M. P. 126 at 130).

P. 223, after the text corresponding to fn. 4:

Courts are not without power to grant relief where, as a result of common mistake, substantial injustice has been done, particularly when interests of third parties are adversely affected. In any such case the court may on such terms as it thinks just, intervene to set aside the contract and render justice. Another case where the Court may intervene to set right a common mistake is where it may rectify a written contract or deed which has not accurately recorded the agreement between the parties. In all other cases equity follows the law and the parties must accept the position which they brought about by their agreement, albeit by a common mistake.

Different considerations apply in the case of a unilateral mistake or even a mutual mistake where the evidence is so conflicting that a definite agreement cannot be imputed to the parties. Except in such circumstances or where fraud or unfair practice is alleged or in transactions between the parties having a fiduciary relationship and cases of the kind, the Court does not interfere with the terms of contract agreed between the parties at arm's length (A. P. Kochudevassy v. State of Kerala AIR 1982 Kerala 90 at p. 93).

P. 232, add in the fn. 59:

See, also, Firm Durga Prasad Magniram v. Dr. Ganesh Prasad AIR 1982 M. P. 219 at 224.

P. 232, after text corresponding to fn. 61:

The court looks at the real intention of the parties to an agreement and not merely at the description of it by the parties. And if the intention of the parties is to defeat the provisions of law, the court will not enforce it. Where by merely styling a document as a mortgage, the landlord was really collecting one year's rent in advance which was prohibited by law, the agreement was held to be illegal and not enforced (M/s Tip Top v. Indramani Devi, AIR 1982 Patna 190 at 197).

P. 235, add in fn. 85:

See also, Chennuru Ramarao v. Gowri Sankar Talkies, Tekkali & others AIR 1986 A. P. 84.

P. 242, after the text corresponding to fn. 57:

Where a transfer of land was made without permission of Collector required under section 5 of M. P. Ceiling on Agricultural Holdings Act, 1960 it was held that the transfer was void. It was held that there was a public policy behind section 5 and that therefore the provision was mandatory and that the transfer would defeat the provisions of the Act and the public policy underlying it. (State v. Board of Revenue, Gwalior AIR 1983 M. P. 111 at 120).

P. 245, add in fn. 91:

See, also, Kuppannagari Sreeramamurthy and others v. Pydi Andarao & others AIR 1985 A. P. 336.

P. 246, Add in fn. 2:

See, also, Ramswarup Prasad v. Budhdeo Sao & ors. AIR 1983 Patna 266.

P. 246, after the text corresponding to fn. 7:

However, in a later case, the Allahabad High Court held that the interdict against the letting and occupation of an accommodation after coming into force of U. P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act 1972 was express and absolute: "Letting or occupation otherwise than under an order of allotment after the commencement of the Act is totally forbidden by law and, further, these acts are of such a nature that, if countenanced, they would without doubt be opposed to public policy, frustrate the declared and basic object of the Act". The Court held that the contract of tenancy in that case was clearly void and ineffectual in law under section 23 of the Contract Act. (Naveen Chandra Sharma v. 6th Additional District and Sessions Judge, Meerut. AIR 1983 Allahabad 116 at 119 and 120).

P. 248, after the paragraph headed "Breach of Exchange Control Act":

Carriers Act-defeating provisions of. Where a Way Bill issued by a carrier provided that no suit would lie against the carrier in respect of any consignment without a claim made in writing in that behalf and preferred within thirty days from the date of booking or from the date of arrival at the destination, the Supreme Court held that the object of such provision was to defeat the provisions of section 10 of the Carriers Act and that therefore such provision was void under section 23 of the Contract Act (M/s. M. G. Brothers Lorry Service v. M/s. Prasad Textiles AIR 1984 SC 15 at 18).

P. 248, add before the paragraph headed Rules of Hindu and Mahomedan Law:

Violation of Motor Vehicles Act. Enforcement of agreement by which a permit as well as vehicle covered by it is transferred without requisite permission under section 59 is violative of section 59 of Motor Vehicles Act. Section 23 of Contract Act forbids enforcement of a contract which will defeat the provisions of any law (Khawaz Bux v. Mirza Mohammad Ismail AIR 1984 All 83 at 86).

P. 248, add in the fn. 28:

See, also, Abdul Jabbar v. Abdul Muthaliff AIR 1982 Mad 12.

P. 256, before the para headed 'Compromise between some partners':

A contract which involves injury to property of other persons in void and cannot be enforced. A claim for damages based on breach of such unlawful contract is not sustainable (K. Abdulkhadar v. The Plantation Corporation of Kerala AIR 1983 Kerala 1).

P. 256, after the text corresponding to fn. 7:

However, a contract for which the consideration is past cohabitation which is not adulterous is not void (Subhashchandra v. Narbadabai AIR 1982 M.P. 236 at 238).

P. 265, after the text corresponding to fn. 97:

However, it was held that there being a public policy behind section 5 of M.P. Ceiling on Agricultural Holdings Act, the requirement of permission of the Collector must be construed as mandatory and transfers made in contravention of that requirement must be held to be void for all purposes (State v. Board of Revenue, Gwalior AIR 1983 M.P. 111 at 120).

P. 265, after the text corresponding to fn. 97:

Government granted certain land to defendant under H.P. Nantor Rules which had the force of law. The grant was for cultivation of land and to provide 'subsistence' to the grantee who was obliged to render the land fit for cultivation within a certain period and use it for cultivation. On his failure to do so, the land could be taken back by the Government and handed over to landless person. The defendant agreed to handover substantial portion thereof to the plaintiff and handed over possession to the plaintiffs. The Plaintiffs by a suit sought to restrain the defendant from disturbing their possession. The defendant contended that the said agreement was void as being forbidden by law. It was held that the agreement was void as being against the public policy of helping the poor and landless persons by giving them land for their subsistence (Chet Ram and Others v. Sawanu Ram & Ors AIR 1985 H.P. 97).

P. 266, after the text corresponding to fn. 4:

Sub-section (1A) of Section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure declares that agreement by which a person agrees to waive the benefit of any exemption from attachment is void. It was held by the Andhra Pradesh High Court that the protection afforded by proviso (c) to Section 60 is based upon high public policy of State and cannot be waived (Duggirala Balarama Krishnayya v. Arokapudi Jagannadha Rao AIR 1983 A.P. 136 at 139).

P. 266, after the text corresponding to fn. 4:

Where A & B agreed not to outbid each other with the understanding that A would convey half of the property in favour of B in case A's bid was accepted and sale deed was duly executed in his favour, it could not be said to be against any public policy (Sujan Singh Sadhana v. Mehkam Chand Jain (deceased by L.R.'s) and others AIR 1983 P & H 180 at p. 185; see, also K.S.R. Chakrapani Chettiar v. S. Guruswami Reddiar AIR 1984 Mad 194 at 198).

P. 267, after the text corresponding to fn. 17:

Where a tenant had paid mutually agreed illegally enhanced rent, there was no right to automatic adjustment against subsequent defaults in the payment of monthly rent (Gulab Chand Prasad v. Budhwanti and another, AIR 1985 Patna 327 at 336-7).

P. 267, add in fn. 22:

Followed in, Abdul Jabbar v. Abdul Muthaliff AIR 1982 Madras 12.

P. 271, after text corresponding to fn. 54:

Raffle. A raffle itself is not illegal nor is it opposed to public policy. A collateral contract of agency for the purpose of sale of raffle tickets is therefore perfectly valid and enforceable in law (T.T. Augustine v. Changanacherry Municipality AIR 1982 Kerala 307 at 309).

P. 300, add in fn. 42:

See also, Ram Dass & others v. Krishna Dev and another AIR 1986 H.P. 9.

P. 304, after the text corresponding to fn. 77:

It is not necessary that the promissory note should mention that it is in lieu of a time barred debt or that the person promising should be conscious of the fact that the debt has become time barred (Bishambhar Dayal v. Vishwanath AIR 1985 All. 12 at 16).

P. 309, after text corresponding to fn. 28:

See also, Ram Chandra Singh v. Basdeo Singh, AIR 1982 All. 437 at 438.

P. 339, add in fn. 16:

See also, Rajasthan Handicrafts Emporium v. Pan American World Airways and Others AIR 1984 Delhi 396.

P. 341, add in fn. 35:

See also, Patel Roadways Pvt. Ltd. v. Bata India Ltd. AIR 1982 Cal. 575 at 577.

P. 341, add in fn. 35:

See also, All Bengal Transport Agency and Others v. Hare Krishna Banik AIR 1985 Gauhati 7.

P. 342, add in fn. 35:

M/s Frick India Ltd. v. M/s Sharma Cold Storage & Ice Factory (P) Ltd. AIR 1986 Pat. 94.

P. 342, after the text corresponding to fn. 37:

An ouster clause which applies to suit also precludes application under arbitration agreement (Sm. Kumud. Agarwalla v. Fertilizer Corporation of India Ltd. AIR 1985 Cal. 89 at 91).

P. 342, add in fn. 40:

See, however, Ganpatrai Agarwall v. The Fertilizer Corporation of India AIR 1984 Cal. 35 (where ouster clause was held to be binding and not oppressive— balance of convenience could not be considered).

P. 342, add in fn. 41:

See, also M/s Patnaik Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Kalinga Iron Works & another AIR 1984 Orissa 182.

P. 343, add in fn. 42:

See, also, M/s Patel Roadways Pvt. Ltd. v. The Republic Forge Co. Ltd. (AIR 1985 A.P. 387).

P. 345, add in fn. 61:

See, also Uttam Singh Dugal and Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. Hindustan Steel Ltd. AIR 1982 M.P. 206.

P. 345 after the text corresponding to f.n. 61:

A contract can become void under the section only when its terms cannot be made certain. Mere vagueness or uncertainty which can be removed by proper interpretation cannot make a contract void. In dealing with commercial and business contracts which have been acted upon by the parties, the Court should be very slow in finding defects and to reject them as meaningless. This should be done only in extreme cases. (Uttam Singh Dugal & Co. Pvt. Ltd..v. Hindustan Steel Ltd. AIR 1982 M.P. 206 at 215).

P. 349, after the text corresponding to fn. 5:

Where in an agreement for sale of land, the name of the land was mentioned but its Survey Number and area were not given, it was held that the agreement was not void (Mithu Khan v. Pipariyawali, AIR 1986 M.P. 39).

P. 350, before Section 30:

In M/s Jamna Auto Industries v. UOI & Others AIR 1984 Delhi 235 at 240, it was held, on interpretation of clause of delivery schedule, that there was no vagueness.

P. 383, after the text corresponding to fn. 57:

Specific performance of or contract (to sell land) is not wholly personal On death of a promissor, the obligation vests in the legal representatives (see Smt. Manni Devi v. Ramayan Singh AIR 1985 Patna 35 at 37).

P. 430, after the text corresponding to fn. 57:

In L.N. Gupta & Others v. Smt. Tara Mani, the Delhi High Court, however, held that the rule that the debtor must find the creditor is applicable to promissory notes payable on demand in which the place of payment is not specified or where alternative places are mentioned. (AIR 1984 Delhi 49 at 53).

P. 432, after the text corresponding to fn. 72:

Where the defendant agreed to keep in cold storage the plaintiff's apple boxes and it was agreed that upon payment of hire charges, the plaintiff could lift the goods, and the plaintiff failed to make payment, it was held that the plaintiff had committed breach of contract and that the defendant was justified in refusing to deliver the boxes to the plaintiff (Himachal Fruit-Growers Co-operative Marketing and Processing Society Ltd. v. Upper India Food Preservers and Processors (P) Ltd. AIR 1984 H.P. 18).

P. 434, add in fn. 91:

For an instance of readiness and willingness to perform the obligations under a contract, see Raminder Singh and anr. v. Sham Lal and another AIR 1984 P & H 145.

P. 438, before Section 55, add the following:

Where no reciprocal promises. Where there is an agreement to provide finances to an industrial concern, the contract does not consist of reciprocal promises and section 54 is not applicable (Industrial Finance Corporation of India and anr. v. M/s Sehgal Papers Ltd & Others, AIR 1986 P & H 21).

P. 438, add in fn. 24:

See also, M/s Vankateswara Minerals, Firm and another v. Jugalkishore Chiranjitlal, Firm AIR 1986 Karnataka 14.

P. 440, after the text corresponding to fn. 31:

Where, in a contract for supply of albumin, the Court found that time was of the essence of the contract and also found that the seller failed to supply the entire quantity in instalments even within reasonable time of purchaser's notice, it was held that the purchaser was justified in rescinding the contract and that he was entitled to damages. (See Andard Mount (London) Ltd. v. Curewel (India) Ltd. AIR 1985 Delhi 45. The authorities are elaborately discussed in the case).

P. 440, after the text corresponding to fn. 36:

Where one clause of a contract provided for damages for delayed completion and another clause provided for extension of time in certain circumstances, it was held that time was not of the essence of the contract of work. (K Abdulkhadar v. Plantation Corporation of Kerala AIR 1983 Kerala 1 at 8).

P. 440, add in fn. 37:

See, also Ved Prakash Gupta v. Shishu Pal Singh AIR 1984 Allahabad 288.

P. 444, add in the fn. 74:

See, also, American Pipe Company v. State of Uttar Pradesh AIR 1983 Cal. 186 at 191.

P. 446, add in fn. 99:

See, also N. V. Chowdary v. Hindustan Steel Works Constr. Ltd. AIR 1984 A. P. 110.

P. 447, after the text corresponding to fn. 5:

Where, despite the expiry of dates specified for delivery of goods, the purchaser continued to insist upon the supply being made by the seller, it was held that time was not of essence to the contract. (Bazpur Cooperative Sugar Factory Limited v. Surendra Mohan Agarwal AIR 1984 Allahabad 174 at 176).

P. 447, after the text corresponding to fn. 6:

In absence of agreement between the parties, there can be no extension of time for performance of contract (M/s Venkateshwara Minerals, Firm & Anr. v. Jugalkishore Chiranjitlal, Firm AIR 1986 Karnataka 14).

P. 448, before Section 56:

M was entrusted by H with carrying out drainage work. The work under the contract had to be completed within one year. Due to financial difficulties, H requested M to spread over the work for two years more. M was agreeable on condition that extra payment would have to be made for increased rates. H did not intimate to M that no such extra payment would be made. M completed the work during the spread over period and demanded extra payment. The Supreme Court held that M was entitled to extra payment. (Hyderabad Municipal Corporation v. M. Krishnaswami Mudaliar and anr. AIR 1985 SC 607 at 608).

P. 448, add before Section 56:

Limitation: for suit for specific performance. The principle that time stipulated in a contract for sale of immovable property is not the essence of the contract has nothing to do with the period of limitation within which a suit for specific performance of contract has to be filed. One touches on the right to enforce the contract and the other touches on the period within which that right has to be enforced. By ignoring the period stipulated in the contract or by holding that the time stipulated in a contract for sale of immovable property is not the essence of the contract in a given case, the period of limitation stipulated in the Act, can neither be ignored nor extended by courts (K. Kallaiah v. Ningegowda AIR 1982 Karnataka 93 at 98).

P. 466, after the text corresponding to fn. 92:

A party agreed to supply milk containers to the Union of India. Under the contract, the containers had to be coated with "hot dip tin coating". It was known to the parties at the time of entering into the contract that tin ingots were required for "hot dip tin coating" of the cans. Tin ingots were a canalised item and could not be procured from the open market without a release order. In the circumstances the condition of supply of tin ingots can be implied from the nature of the contract. The supplier repeatedly asked the Director General of Supplies and Disposals to obtain the necessary quota of tin ingots but the Director General of Supplies and Disposals failed to obtain the release of the necessary quota of tin ingots. It was held that the contract became impossible of performance because of the non-availability of the tin ingots and this was beyond the control of the promisor (Punj Sons Pvt. Ltd. v. U.O.I. AIR 1986 Delhi 158).

P. 474, add in fn. 83:

See, also Kunjukrishnan v. State of Kerala AIR 1983 Kerala 73.

P. 481, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

Where, however, the loan on transfer was temporary and even during that period the transfer could be made with permission of competent authority and where the defendant despite repeated requests from the plaintiff to obtain the permission, never took any steps to obtain the necessary permission, it was held that the contract was not discharged by frustration (Ved Prakash Gupta v. Shishu Pal Singh AIR 1984 All 288 at 292 and 293). See, also, Ram Swarup Gaur and anr. v. Ratiram AIR 1984 Allahabad 369.

P. 487, add in fn. 48:

See, also, State Bank of India v. M/s Quality Bread Factory AIR 1983 P & H 244 at 251.

P. 493, after the text corresponding to fn. 62:

Where a tenant, who had to pay arrears of rent and other amounts, paid two sums to the landlord and gave evidence that they were paid as rent and when there was no evidence by landlord that they were appropriated towards other amounts, the tenant was held not to have been in arrears of rent so as to incur ejection (Gantok Auto Works Pvt. Ltd. & Ors. v. Tobgyal Wangchuk Tenzing Namgyal and Ors. AIR 1985 Sikkim 23).

P. 493, add in fn. 63:

See, also, M/s Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Financial Corporation & Ors. AIR 1985 Orissa 153.

P. 499, add in fn. 19 & 21:

Followed in Vipinbhai R Parekh v. General Manager, Western Railways AIR 1984 Gujarat 41 (where 'no claim' certificate was issued by contractor who, thereafter, sought to invoke arbitration clause in the contract).

P. 502, add in fn. 48:

See also Magnum Films v. M/s Golcha Properties Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1984 Delhi 162.

P. 504, after the text corresponding to fn. 66:

Where a subsequent pronote was for an amount representing the total of two sums under two earlier pronotes and was found to be insufficiently stamped and where endorsements on two earlier pronotes amounted to acknowledgement of liability for the amount, a suit was maintainable on the earlier two pronotes (See PL CT SP Subramaniam Chettiar v. Muthiah Chettiar & Ors. AIR 1984 Mad. 215).

P. 515, after the text corresponding to fn. 64:

The award of damages for breach of a contract is not the same thing as a party to the contract accepting satisfaction of the contract otherwise than in accordance with the original terms thereof (I.T. Commissioner, Bombay v. M/s Shantilal Pvt. Ltd., AIR 1983 SC 952 at 953).

P. 517, after the text corresponding to fn. 84:

Where, however, the refund of earnest money was accepted under protest, there was no bilateral intention to repass the property and the rights under the contract could be exercised on repayment of such money. (See Mohd. Usman v. U.O.I. and Ors. AIR 1984 Raj. 156 at 166).

P. 530, add in fn. 99:

See also, M/s Venkateswara Minerals, Firm and anr. v. Jugalkishore Chiranjitlal, Firm AIR 1986 Karnataka 14.

P. 537, after the text corresponding to fn. 45:

However, where money was advanced on the basis of pronote and not independently, and when it was found that such pronote had become void under section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act by reason of material alteration made without consent of the defendant, the plaintiff could not invoke section 65 of the Contractor Act or original contract (Suresh Chandra v. Satish Chandra AIR 1983 All 81 at 83).

P. 537, before the paragraph beginning with the words "There was a partnership...":

Where a suit is based on a promissory note and there is no alternative allegation and the promissory note is held to be void under Section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act 1881, Section 65 of the Contract Act cannot be invoked. (Jayantilal Goel v. Smt. Zubeda Khannum AIR 1986 A.P. 120).

P. 537, add in fn. 46:

See, also, M/s Malik Abdul Ahad Shah Jahl Ahmed Akhtar v. State of Jammu & Kashmir AIR 1982 J & K 16 at 19.

P. 538, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

It is not as if Sec. 65 works in one direction only. If one party to the contract is asked to disgorge the advantage received by him under a void contract so too the other party to the void contract may ask him to restore the advantage received by him. The restoration of advantage and payment of compensation has necessarily to be mutual (State of Rajasthan v. Associated Stone Industries (Kotah) Ltd. AIR 1985 S.C. 466 at p. 469).

P. 539, add in fn. 59:

See also, Haji Fatma Bee v. Prahlad Singh AIR 1982 M.P. 1.

P. 541, after the text corresponding to fn. 79:

Where, however, a sub-tenancy was held to be void as it was prohibited by law, a suit was decreed against a sub-tenant for arrears of rent which were not time-barred (See Firm Durga Prasad Magniram v. Dr. Ganesh Prasad AIR 1982 M.P. 219).

P. 541, add in the fn. 79:

See, also, Jagannath Tewar v. Dr. Gopal Prasad AIR 1983 Patna 50 at 53.

P. 549, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 65:

When contract is frustrated. It is well-settled that if a contract stands frustrated, the party who has received benefit under the contract is liable to return it to the other (Industrial Finance Corporation of India and another v. M/s Sehgal Papers Ltd. & Others AIR 1986 P & H 21).

P. 577, after the text corresponding to fn. 33:

The three essential conditions for invoking section 70 are:

(1) The goods are to be delivered lawfully or something has to be done for another person lawfully;

(2) The thing done or the goods delivered must be done or delivered without intention to do so gratuitously;

(3) The person to whom goods are delivered enjoys the benefit thereof.

When all the above three ingredients are pleaded and established in a case, Section 70 can be invoked. Where, in the facts of a case, the second condition was not fulfilled, the Kerala High Court held that section 70 could not be invoked (C.I. Abraham v. K.A. Cheriyan AIR 1986 Kerala 60).

P. 580, after the text corresponding to fn. 58:

Voluntary acceptance of the benefit of the work done or the thing delivered is the foundation of the claim under Section 70. If once the benefit of the work done or thing delivered is accepted, it can be presumed that the said work was done or thing was delivered without intention to do so gratuitously. Similarly, it can as well be presumed that the person who has accepted the work done or thing delivered has enjoyed the benefit also. Sec. 70 deals with cases where there is no valid contract. However, it is possible to infer from the circumstances of a given case that a lawful relationship is born between the two and such a relationship is recognised under the provisions of Section 70. (Haji Abdulla Haji Adam Sait Dharuvasthaparam v. T. V. Hameed AIR 1985 Kerala 93 at 96).

P. 585, after the text corresponding to fn. 15:

A co-owner can compel the other co-owners to contribute to the expenses of improvements if his case comes under section 70 and is made out (Jethruse D'Souza & Ors. v. Catherine D'Souza AIR 1983 Karnatak 14 at 16).

P. 587, after the text corresponding to fn. 69:

No implied term can be read into a contract by recourse to the provisions of Section 70. (A.P. Kochudevassy v. State of Kerala AIR 1982 Kerala 90 at 95).

P. 587, add in fn. 48:

See, also, Paidi Laxmayya v. Indian Bank Ltd. AIR 1982 Karnataka 338.

P. 588, add in fn. 52:

Affirmed by the Supreme Court in Modi Sugar Mills Ltd. v. U.O.I. AIR 1984 SC 1248.

P. 588, after the text corresponding to fn. 54:

Section 70 applies to a case where there is no subsisting or valid contract and the liability of the defendant arises on the basis of equitable doctrine of unjust enrichment. If the act is one which is relatable in any manner to any subsisting or valid contract, no claim founded on section 70 can be sustained. In the execution of any contract if any act is done in any particular manner or following any particular method which is more arduous or expensive according to the plaintiff a claim solely on that ground cannot be entertained under Section 70 because it cannot be said that the defendant derived any 'benefit' from the manner or method according to which the act was performed. In such cases, the Court has to look into the terms and objects of the contract to find out whether the defendant had derived any 'benefit' which was more than what the parties had contracted for and further that the "benefit" accrued as a result of some work done by the plaintiff which was not related to the terms and objects of the contract (Oil & Natural Gas Commission & Ors. v. M/s Shyam Sunder Agarwalla & Co. AIR 1984 Gauhati 11 at 14).

P. 590, after the text corresponding to fn. 80:

A person whose contract is void for non-compliance with Art. 299(1) of the Constitution is entitled to compensation under this section. It is, however, his duty to account to the other party for what he has received in the transaction before his right to restitution arises. If he fails to do so his claim for compensation or refund for deposit will be dismissed. An accounting by the plaintiff is a condition of restitution from the defendant (Nanalal Madhavji Varma v. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1982 Cal 167 at 172 and 173. See also, M/s Malik Abdul Ahad Shah Jalil Ahmad Akhtar v. State of Jammu & Kashmir AIR 1982 J & K 16).

P. 593, after the text corresponding to fn. 9:

Pursuant to works order issued by the Government, certain work was carried out by a contractor. No contract under Article 299 of the Constitution was executed. Section 70 was applied and the Government was held liable to compensate the contractor. It was held that as the Government's purpose was achieved, it could not be contended that the Government had failed to derive any benefit out of it (Mir Abdul Jalil v. State of West Bengal AIR 1984 Cal 200 at 202).

P. 593, add in fn. 9:

See, also, Assar Alikhan & another v. Baijnath Prasad AIR 1983 All 197 at 199.

P. 594, add in the fn. 16:

See, also, State of Qrissa v. Ananda Prasad Mandal AIR 1985 Orissa 142.

P. 597, after the text corresponding to fn. 38:

Limitation: Suit for compensation claimed under Section 70 is governed by the residuary Article 113 of Limitation Act 1963. The right to sue accrues when there is refusal to pay price or compensation. See Jadavendra Narayan Choudhury v. State of West Bengal & Ors. AIR 1985 Calcutta 215.

P. 602, after the text corresponding to fn. 90:

Where an auction purchaser of a property sold in execution proceedings found that the judgement-debtor had no saleable interest in the property and filed a suit against the decree holder for recovery of purchase price, it was held that he had no cause of acition against a decree holder under this section or in equity (Vishwanath Maharudra Matkari v. Jan Mohammed and anr. AIR 1982 Bom. 30).

P. 614, after the text corresponding to fn. 4:

A claim for compensation is not a claim for such sum which is instantly due and payable (Mirza Javed Murtaza v. U.P. Financial Corporation AIR 1983 All 234 at 240).

P. 615, after the text corresponding to fn. 9:

In order to succeed in an action for damages the buyer has to prove the market price. The market price is the buying price at which the buyer can obtain equivalent goods. It is the current price at the contractual time of delivery when the buyer can obtain identical goods in an available market. The buyer has not to prove that he actually bought the goods after the seller had failed to deliver. Buying is not essential. All that has to be proved is the buying price at which he can obtain substitute goods (U.O.I. v. M/s Commercial Metal Corporation and anr. AIR 1982 Delhi 267 at 269-70).

P. 615, after the text corresponding to fn. 9:

Sec. 54 of Sale of Goods Act and Section 73 of Contract Act: Section 73 contains the general principles with regard to fixing up of damages. Whereas Section 54 speaks of specific case of moveable property sold. Section 54 is more specific whereas Section 73 is general in nature. Therefore, Section 54 prevails over Section 73 though both the sections are based on the same general principles (Mysore Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Manohar Metal Industries Air 1982 Karnataka 283 at 287).

P. 615, after the text corresponding to fn. 9:

Where there is neither averment in the pleading nor evidence to the effect that on the date of breach, the market price was higher than the contract price, the plaintiff cannot succeed in claim for damages for breach of contract to supply goods (Bazpur Cooperative Sugar Factory Ltd. v. Surendra Mohan Agarwal, AIR 1984 All 174).

P. 615. add in fn. 14:

See, also, S.K.A.R.S.M. Ramanathan Chettiar v. National Textile Corporation Ltd. AIR 1985 Kerala 262.

P. 616, after the text corresponding to fn. 17:

What the buyer is deprived of in the usual course of things by non-delivery is the value of the goods at the time and place of the delivery, less price payable by him under the contract. This loss of value is the only natural result of the breach, the only kind of damage that ensues in the usual course of things. The quantum of damages on account of the breach of such contract would be the difference between the contract price and the market price of the goods in question at the time when the contract is broken. The provisions of Sec 73 do not envisage that the buyer must resort to actual purchase and suffer loss before claiming damages. If there is no evidence of market price at the place of breach, the market price at the nearest place may be taken into consideration (M/s Saraya Distillery v. U.O.I. & anr, AIR 1984 Delhi 360).

P. 616, after the text corresponding to fn. 17:

Difficulty in assessment of damages. The mere fact that it is somewhat difficult to assess the damages with certainty or precision does not relieve the defendant of paying adequate damages to the plaintiff so as to fairly compensate him for the loss suffered. See Andard Mount (London) Ltd., England v. Curewel (India) Ltd., AIR 1985 Delhi 45 at 66.

P. 619, after para (c):

The Supreme Court recently upheld the decision of High Court where it had awarded increased rates to a contractor when, due to financial difficulties of the government, the work had to be spread over a further period of two years. (Hyderabad Municipal Corporation v. M. Krishnaswami Mudaliar & anr, AIR 1985 SC 607).

P. 625, after the text corresponding to fn. 66:

In a works contract, where a party entrusting works commits breach of the contract, contractor's claim for damages under the head of loss of expected profit is certainly admisible (M/s A.T. Brij Paul Singh & Bros. v. State of Gujarat AIR, 1984 SC 1703 at 1706 and 1707).

P. 635, after the text corresponding to fn. 62:

Loss of Profit: Works Contract — In a works contract, where a party entrusting the works commits breach of the contract, contractor's claim for damages under the head of loss of profits is certainly admissible (M/s A.T. Brij Paul Singh & Bros v. State of Gujarat AIR 1984 SC 1703).

P. 635, before paragraph (r):

Kerala High Court, however, recently opined that Section 73 allows as damages the loss of reasonable profits arising from a breach of contract. It further held that courts are bound to try to get at that sum of money which would put the wronged party in the same position as that in which it would have been, if he had not sustained the wrong which entitles him to claim damages (State of Kerala v. K. Bhaskaran, AIR 1985 Kerala 49 at 53 and 55).

P. 653, after the text corresponding to fn. 28:

The defendant is liable only for reasonably foreseeable losses — those that a normally prudent person, standing in his place possessing his information when contracting would have had reason to foresee as probably consequences of future breach. (State of Kerala v. K. Bhaskaran AIR 1985 Kerala 49 at p. 53).

P. 666, add in fn. 38:

See, also, Andard Mount (London).Ltd. v. Curewel (India) Ltd. AIR 1985 Delhi 45 at 67.

P. 675, after the text corresponding to fn. 29:

Where a compromise decree provided that in the case of default in payment of instalments the tenant would pay double the rent, the court held that the clause was penal and would not be legally enforced. The Court held that, as Rent Control Act was not applicable, and as no evidence was led by the landlord of amounts he would have received with ordinary diligence on account of rent, he was entitled to a decree on the basis of agreed rate of rent (Harbilas v. Roshan Lal AIR 1983 P & H 256 at 258-9).

P. 676, after the text corresponding to fn. 38:

Suit for damages. If a debtor has failed to pay interest on or instalment of loan advanced to him by a creditor, he cannot, in a suit by the creditor for payment of dues, seek adjustment of claim for damages for failure by the creditor to make advances as agreed. The debtor may file a suit for damages and, on obtaining decree, claim adjustment (Industrial Finance Corporation of India and another v. M/s Sehgal Papers Ltd. and Others AIR 1986 P & H 21).

P. 676, add before section 74:

The award of damages for breach of a contract is not the same thing as a party to the contract accepting satisfaction of the contract otherwise than in accordance with the original terms thereof (C.I.T. v. M/s Shantilal & Co. Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 SC 952 at p. 953).

P. 678, add in fn. 47:

See, however, Himachal Pradesh State Forest Corporation v. Harichand (AIR 1984 H.P. 51).

P. 678, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

To attract the provisions of section 74 it is not necessary that the entire contract should come to an end; the breach of each term thereof can be visualised in advance and taken care of by providing an adequate clause for liquidated damages so that the parties to the contract can proceed to work out the contract in future and settle the question of damages that have accrued on the basis of the rate that has been put as a preestimate at the commencement of the contract. (Indian Drugs & Pharmaceuticals Ltd. v. Industrial Oxygen Co. Ltd. AIR 1985 Bombay 186 at 188).

P. 678, add in fn. 49:

See also, State of Gujarat v. M/s M.K. Patel & Co. AIR 1985 Guj. 179.

P. 680, add in fn. 60:

See, also, N. Kullayyappa and anr. v. N. Dastagiri Saheb, AIR 1982 A.P. 154.

P. 680, add in fn. 62:

See, also Mehru v. Mohan Lal & Ors. AIR 1985 P & H 143.

P. 684, after the text corresponding to fn. 2:

Even if it is found that the charging of compound interest is penal per se, even then the mortgagee has to be compensated for deprivation of compound interest; and such compensation can extend up to the amount which would be payable if compound interest is charged (Mallavarapu Suryanarayana Murthy & Ors. v. Buddaraju Suryanarayana Raju & Ors. AIR 1982 A.P. 313 at 315).

P. 690, after text corresponding to fn. 57:

A larger bench of the Supreme Court, however, has now taken a different view and held that the phrase did not contemplate the amount due and that it was beyond the purview of clause (b) of Sec. 41 of the Arbitration Act 1940, to grant an injunction to restrain the claimant from withholding payment to the other party. (M/s. M K Ansari v. U.O.I., AIR 1984 SC 29 at 36).

P. 690, add in fn. 57:

See, also, Mirza Javed Murtaza v. U.P. Financial Corporation AIR 1983 All 234 at 239, 240.

P. 702, add in the fn. 45:

See, also, Rahat Jan v. Hafiz Mohammad Usman and Ors. (AIR 1983 Allahabad 343 at 347).

P. 710, after the text corresponding to fn. 12:

Where, in a contract for sale of land, the vendor did not prove any special damages on account of vendee's breach of agreement, the deposit could not be forfeited, despite provision for forfeiture in the agreement (Sabina D'Costa v. Joseph Anthony Noronha AIR 1984 Karnataka 122).

P. 710, add after the text corresponding to fn. 12:

One cannot compensate a person who has not suffered any loss or damage. There may be cases where the actual loss or damage is incapable of proof; facts may be so complicated that it may be difficult for the party to prove actual extent of the loss or damage. Section 74 exempts him from such responsibility and enables him to claim compensation inspite of his failure to prove the actual extent of the loss or damage provided of course he establishes the basic requirement for award of 'compensation', viz. the fact that he has suffered some loss or damage. The proof of this basic requirement is not dispensed with by section 74. That the party complaining of breach of contract and claiming compensation is entitled to succeed only on proof of "legal injury" having been suffered by him in the sense of some loss or damage having been sustained on account of such breach, is clear from section 73 and 75. Section 74 is only supplementary to section 73 and it does not make any departure from the principle behind section 73 in regard to this matter. Every case of compensation for breach of contract has to be dealt with on the basis of section 73. The words in section 74 "Whether or not actual damage or loss is proved to have been caused thereby" have been employed to underscore the departure deliberately made by Indian Legislature from the complicated principles of English Common Law and also to emphasise that reasonable compensation can be granted even in a case where extent of actual loss or damage is incapable of proof or not proved. That is why Sec. 74 deliberately states that what is to be awarded is reasonable compensation. In a case when the party complaining of breach of the contract has not suffered legal injury in the sense of sustaining loss or damage, there is nothing to compensate him for; there is nothing to recompense, satisfy or make amends. Therefore, he will not be entitled to compensation (State of Kerala & Ors. v. M/s United Shippers & Dredgers Ltd. AIR 1982 Kerala 281).

P. 714, after the text corresponding to fn. 44:

The claim for compensation under section 75 is maintainable when the right of repudiation of the contract has been exercised under either of the sections, 39, 53, 54 or 55 of the Act (Mirza Javed Murtaza v. U. P. Financial Corporation AIR 1983 All 234 at 241).

P. 717, after the text corresponding to fn. 23:

The benefit secured by an insurance policy forms part of the estate of the deceased policy holder (Shaikh Dawood & Ors. v. Mahmooda Begum & Ors. AIR 1985 A. P. 321 at 324).

P. 720, in fn. 45, add the following:

For example, see Smt. Manda Suryakanthamma v. District Registrar of Assurance, Srikakulam AIR 1986 A. P. 3.

P. 721, after the text corresponding to fn. 50:

A contract of guarantee involves three parties, the creditor, the surety and the principal debtor. A contract of guarantee must therefore involve a contract to which all those three parties are privy. Their express participation or implied assent to have such a contract must be proved by the person who wants to rely on it. (H. Mohamed Khan (deceased by L. R. S.) and Ors. v. Andhra Bank Ltd., AIR 1983 Karnataka 73 at 76).

P. 722, add in fn. 60:

See, also, United Commercial Bank v. Hanuman Synthetics Ltd. AIR 1985 Cal. 96. and Alliance Mills (Lessees) Pvt. Ltd. and anr. v. Union of India & Ors. AIR 1985 Cal. 112.

P. 722, add in fn. 61:

See, also, Vinay Engineering v. Neyveli Lignite Corporation Ltd. AIR 1985 Mad. 213.
See, also, Pesticides India v. State Chemicals and Pharmaceuticals Corporation of India Ltd. & Ors. AIR 1982 Delhi 78.

P. 722, add in fn. 61:

See also, M/s Banwari Lal Radhe Mohan v. Punjab State Cooperative Supply & Marketing Federation Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 357.

P. 722, after the text corresponding to fn. 62:

It is sufficient that there is substantial compliance with the terms of the guarantee in the notice and if the bank has understood the purport of the notice, the bank is bound to honour its commitment under the guarantee (D. T. H. Construction (P) Ltd. v. Steel Authority of India Ltd. AIR 1986 Cal. 31).

P. 722, after the text corresponding to fn. 62:

Bank guarantee, for all purposes, should be taken to be a credit note issued by the bank in favour of the person in whose favour the bank guarantee has been issued and it should be encashable just like a credit note ordinarily, unless the intention of the parties is otherwise (M/s Basant Rhymers, Alwar v. State Chemical Pharmaceuticals Corporation of India Ltd. & anr. AIR 1986 Rajasthan 1).

P. 722, after the text corresponding to fn. 62:

Where, however, the bank guarantee was demanded by the Union of India not as a part of commercial transaction but in exercise of its statutory or executive power as a Government, and where the Government acted arbitrarily or mala fide in invoking the bank guarantee, the Court could examine the action of the Government and prevent enforcement of a bank guarantee (M/s Bottle Glass Pvt. Ltd. v. U. O. I. AIR 1985 Delhi 400).

P. 722, add in fn. 62:

See, also, National Project Construction Corporation Ltd. v. M/s G. Ranjan, AIR 1985 Cal. 23; Alliance Mills (Lessees) Pvt. Ltd. and anr. v. Union of India & Ors. AIR 1985 Cal. 112; ACC Babcock Ltd. v. Straw Products Ltd, AIR 1985 Delhi. 237 and Vinay Engineering v. Neyveli Lignite Corporation Ltd. AIR 1985 Madras 213.

P. 724, after the text corresponding to fn. 71:

The Calcutta High Court has differed from the view of the Delhi High Court to the effect that a bank guarantee should be invoked in an exact and punctillious manner setting out the entire case of the beneficary under the guarantee in the same way as setting out a cause of action in a plaint. The Calcutta High Court has held that a bank guarantee is a commercial document and is neither a statutory notice nor a pleading in a legal proceeding. A bank guarantee may be invoked in a commercial manner. The invocation would be sufficient and proper if the bank concerned understands that the guarantee is being invoked by the beneficiary in terms of the guarantee (Road Machines (India) Pvt. Ltd v. The Projects & Equipment Corporation of India Ltd & Ors., AIR 1983 Calcutta 91 at pp. 94-95).

P. 724, after the text corresponding to fn. 71:

There are two types of performance guarantees. The first are the ones which are absolute and they are encashable on the very demand of the beneficary and the demand according to the terms of the guarantee is conclusive. In such types of guarantees the beneficary is the sole judge or arbiter as to whether there is any breach of underlying or primary contract on the part of the other party and as to how much amount is due to the former. The other type is where guarantee is not encashable without proof of breach of underlying contract. However, in both types of guarantees, bank issuing performance guarantee is not concerned with the underlying contract. The duties of a bank in such guarantee are created by the document itself which in other words is "independent" and autonomous and is not concerned with the underlying contract unless the guarantee itself says that it will be enforceable on the proof of breach of the primary underlying contract. There is, however, only one exception which is stated in the leading case decided by the Supreme Court (United Commercial Bank v. Bank of India AIR 1981 SC 1426).

The exception is the clear case of fraud of which the banks have notice. The fraud contemplated, however, has direct connection with the contract of guarantee in respect of its coming into existence, continuance etc.

The contract for guarantee is independent of the underlying contract and is autonomous. The necessary corollary of such independence and autonomy is that one is not to go beyond that contract and has not to look to any other contract including the underlying or primary one. Performance of underlying contract comes into picture only if guarantee itself makes its encashment subject to proof of performance of former contract. If scrutiny is commenced in respect of the performance of the underlying contract, obviously 'autonomy' and 'independence' of the contract of an absolute guarantee will be lost and the enforcement of the same will acquire 'dependence' upon the result of the inquiry relating to the former (underlying) contract (Banwari Lal Radha Mohan v. The Punjab State Co-operative Supply and Marketing Federation Ltd. AIR 1983 Delhi 86 at 88).

P. 724, after the text corresponding to fn. 71:

While discussing whether injunction should be issued to restrain a bank from making payment under a bank guarantee, the Delhi High Court observed: "A Bank guarantee is a contract between the issuing bank and the person in whose favour the guarantee has been furnished. Though the bank guarantee may have been issued by the banker at the instance of its client, as far as the bank guarantee is concerned, it is a bilateral contract between the banker and the party in whose favour the guarantee has been furnished. The party at whose instance the guarantee has been furnished is, in a way, a stranger to the said contract of bank guarantee. The person in whose favour the bank guarantee has been issued has a right to ask the bank to fulfil its obligations in terms of the bank guarantee. If the terms of the bank guarantee entitle a party to ask the payment of money from the bank then that right cannot be interfered with merely for the reason that there exists a dispute between that party and the client at whose instance the bank guarantee had been issued" (M/s. Harprashad & Co. Ltd. v. M/s. Sudarshan Steel Rolling Mills & Ors. AIR 1983 Delhi 128 at 133).

P. 726, after the text corresponding to fn. 87:

Forbearance from legal action against the principal debtor is consideration for guarantee (State Bank of India v. M/s Premco Saw Mills AIR 1984 Gujarat 93).

P. 728, add in fn. 1:

See, also, M.S.E.B. Bombay v. Official Liquidator High Court, Ernakulam & another AIR 1982 SC 1497.

P. 728, add in fn. 2:

See, also, Punjab National Bank v. Mehra Brothers (P) Ltd., (in Liqn.) AIR 1983 Cal 335.

P. 728, add in fn. 2:

See, also Orissa Agro Industries Corporation Ltd. and Ors. v. Sarabeswar Guru and Ors. AIR 1985 Orissa 270 where surety was held to be liable despite dismissal of the suit against the principal debtor for default under Order 9 Rule 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908.

P. 729, after text corresponding to fn. 3:

Where, however, a bank unequivocally and unconditionally agreed to pay to Electricity Board within 48 hours on demand in writing from the Electricity Board any amount upto Rs. 50,000/- on behalf of a company and where the company was ordered to be wound up, the bank was held bound to pay the amount due under letter of guarantee when demanded by the Board. The Board was not under any obligation to prove any default on the part of the company in liquidation (Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court Ernakulam & Anr. AIR 1982 SC 1497).

P. 732, after the text corresponding to fn. 39:

Continuing guarantee would only mean a guarantee which extends to a series of transactions. Therefore, continuing guarantee speaks of continuous transactions, not the period of such transactions. In the facts of the case before it, the Calcutta High Court held that the guarantee was confined to a series of transactions which were restricted or limited to one year (The Eastern Bank Ltd. v. Parts Services of India Ltd. AIR 1986 Cal. 61).

P. 738, add in fn. 71:

See, however, Citibank N.A., v. Jaggilal Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 487, where the court held that the rights conferred on the surety under sections 133, 135 or 141 could be waived by specific agreement in the deed of guarantee. As a matter of fact, such an agreement would amount to consent within the meaning of those sections.

P. 740, after the text corresponding to fn. 84:

A surety is not discharged merely because the demand made under a surety-bond is set aside. Reduction in the amount of arrears mentioned in a surety-bond is not a variation and does not discharge a surety (N. Sulochana v. State of A.P. AIR 1984 A.P. 173).

P. 743, after text corresponding to fn. 7:

A surety is no doubt discharged under section 134 of the Act by any contract between the creditor and the principal debtor by which the principal debtor is released or by any act or omission of the creditor the legal consequence of which is the discharge of the principal debtor but a discharge which the principal debtor may secure by operation of law in bankruptcy (or in liquidation proceedings in the case of a Company) does not absolve the surety of his liability (Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court Ernakulam & Anr. AIR 1982 SC 1497 at 1500).

P. 743, add in fn. 7:

See, also Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court, Ernakulam and anr. AIR 1982 SC 1497.

P. 747, after the text corresponding to fn. 44:

Filing a suit by the creditor against the principal debtor and obtaining a decree for the full amount would not by any stretch of imagination amount to 'composition' resulting in discharge of liability of the surety. It would not make the slightest difference if the decree is a consent decree especially when the creditor by way of consent decree got 100% relief (Citibank N.A. New Delhi v. Juggilal Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 487 at p. 500).

P. 748, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

A bank obtained a decree against the principal debtor and the surety. The bank, however, in execution proceedings, granted instalments to the principal debtor. The legal representative of the original surety not being a party thereto, claimed that his liability as surety was discharged. It was held that the surety's liability was discharged. It was observed that right of surety under Sections 140 and 141 continues even if the decree is passed and the relationship between him and the principal debtor continues as principal debtor and the surety (Maharashtra Apex Corporation Ltd. v. Poovappa Salian and Anr. AIR 1985 Karnataka 116).

P. 751, before section 137:

In Punjab National Bank v. Mehra Bros (P) Ltd. (in Liqn) AIR 1983 Calcutta 335, where the debtor had admitted its liability and the creditor did not wish to pursue its remedy against the principal debtor, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the creditor was entitled to proceed against the guarantors.

P. 751, before Section 138:

Surety is not discharged even if the suit against the principal debtor is dismissed under Order 9 Rule 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 (Orissa Agro Industries Corporations Ltd. v. Sarbeswar Guru and Ors. AIR 1985 Orissa 270 at 273).

P. 757, after the text corresponding to fn. 9:

Where it was found that the securities were lost on account of negligence or inaction of the bank, the surety stood discharged from his liability (State Bank of India v. M/s. Quality Bread Factory, Batala & Ors. AIR 1983 P & H 244 at 250).

P. 759, before the paragraph headed 'Joint Promisors':

Where the plaintiff-creditor, a mortgagee, had enforced his right by getting a part of the machinery and plant sold, it could not be said that the plaintiff-creditor had lost or parted with its right in respect of the security. The plaintiff creditor by the act had not impaired in any way the remedy of the defendant-surety against the principal debtor (Citibank N.A. New Delhi v. Juggilal Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 487 at p. 501).

P. 767, add in fn. 72:

See, also, Cochin Port Trust v. Associated Cotton Traders Ltd., AIR 1983 Kerala 154.

P. 770, after text corresponding to fn. 97:

Insurer held to be a bailee. A insured his car against accident, loss or damage with N. The car suffered damage in an accident. The car was taken to repairing workshop. N was duly informed. Estimate prepared by the repairer was accepted by N and repairer was asked by N to proceed with repairs. While the car was in custody of the repairer, it was destroyed by fire. A sued N for recovery of loss. A alleged that N was a bailee and had failed to take care of the car and was therefore liable. The Supreme Court, constru-

P. 728, add in fn. 2:

See, also Orissa Agro Industries Corporation Ltd. and Ors. v. Sarabeswar Guru and Ors. AIR 1985 Orissa 270 where surety was held to be liable despite dismissal of the suit against the principal debtor for default under Order 9 Rule 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908.

P. 729, after text corresponding to fn. 3:

Where, however, a bank unequivocally and unconditionally agreed to pay to Electricity Board within 48 hours on demand in writing from the Electricity Board any amount upto Rs. 50,000/- on behalf of a company and where the company was ordered to be wound up, the bank was held bound to pay the amount due under letter of guarantee when demanded by the Board. The Board was not under any obligation to prove any default on the part of the company in liquidation (Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court Ernakulam & Anr. AIR 1982 SC 1497).

P. 732, after the text corresponding to fn. 39:

Continuing guarantee would only mean a guarantee which extends to a series of transactions. Therefore, continuing guarantee speaks of continuous transactions, not the period of such transactions. In the facts of the case before it, the Calcutta High Court held that the guarantee was confined to a series of transactions which were restricted or limited to one year (The Eastern Bank Ltd. v. Parts Services of India Ltd. AIR 1986 Cal. 61).

P. 738, add in fn. 71:

See, however, Citibank N.A., v. Jaggilal-Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 487, where the court held that the rights conferred on the surety under sections 133, 135 or 141 could be waived by specific agreement in the deed of guarantee. As a matter of fact, such an agreement would amount to consent within the meaning of those sections.

P. 740, after the text corresponding to fn. 84:

A surety is not discharged merely because the demand made under a surety-bond is set aside. Reduction in the amount of arrears mentioned in a surety-bond is not a variation and does not discharge a surety (N. Sulochana v. State of A.P. AIR 1984 A.P. 173).

P. 743, after text corresponding to fn. 7:

A surety is no doubt discharged under section 134 of the Act by any contract between the creditor and the principal debtor by which the principal debtor is released or by any act or omission of the creditor the legal consequence of which is the discharge of the principal debtor but a discharge which the principal debtor may secure by operation of law in bankruptcy (or in liquidation proceedings in the case of a Company) does not absolve the surety of his liability (Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court Ernakulam & Anr. AIR 1982 SC 1497 at 1500).

P. 743, add in fn. 7:

See, also Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court, Ernakulam and anr. AIR 1982 SC 1497.

P. 747, after the text corresponding to fn. 44:

Filing a suit by the creditor against the principal debtor and obtaining a decree for the full amount would not by any stretch of imagination amount to 'composition' resulting in discharge of liability of the surety. It would not make the slightest difference if the decree is a consent decree especially when the creditor by way of consent decree got 100% relief (Citibank N.A. New Delhi v. Juggilal Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 487 at p. 500).

P. 748, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

A bank obtained a decree against the principal debtor and the surety. The bank, however, in execution proceedings, granted instalments to the principal debtor. The legal representative of the original surety not being a party thereto, claimed that his liability as surety was discharged. It was held that the surety's liability was discharged. It was observed that right of surety under Sections 140 and 141 continues even if the decree is passed and the relationship between him and the principal debtor continues as principal debtor and the surety (Maharashtra Apex Corporation Ltd. v. Poovappa Salian and Anr. AIR 1985 Karnataka 116).

P. 751, before section 137:

In Punjab National Bank v. Mehra Bros (P) Ltd. (in Liqn) AIR 1983 Calcutta 335, where the debtor had admitted its liability and the creditor did not wish to pursue its remedy against the principal debtor, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the creditor was entitled to proceed against the guarantors.

P. 751, before Section 138:

Surety is not discharged even if the suit against the principal debtor is dismissed under Order 9 Rule 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 (Orissa Agro Industries Corporations Ltd. v. Sarbeswar Guru and Ors. AIR 1985 Orissa 270 at 273).

P. 757, after the text corresponding to fn. 9:

Where it was found that the securities were lost on account of negligence or inaction of the bank, the surety stood discharged from his liability (State Bank of India v. M/s. Quality Bread Factory, Batala & Ors. AIR 1983 P & H 244 at 250).

P. 759, before the paragraph headed 'Joint Promisors':

Where the plaintiff-creditor, a mortgagee, had enforced his right by getting a part of the machinery and plant sold, it could not be said that the plaintiff-creditor had lost or parted with its right in respect of the security. The plaintiff creditor by the act had not impaired in any way the remedy of the defendant-surety against the principal debtor (Citibank N.A. New Delhi v. Juggilal Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd. AIR 1982 Delhi 487 at p. 501).

P. 767, add in fn. 72:

See, also, Cochin Port Trust v. Associated Cotton Traders Ltd., AIR 1983 Kerala 154.

P. 770, after text corresponding to fn. 97:

Insurer held to be a bailee. A insured his car against accident, loss or damage with N. The car suffered damage in an accident. The car was taken to repairing workshop. N was duly informed. Estimate prepared by the repairer was accepted by N and repairer was asked by N to proceed with repairs. While the car was in custody of the repairer, it was destroyed by fire. A sued N for recovery of loss. A alleged that N was a bailee and had failed to take care of the car and was therefore liable. The Supreme Court, constru-

ing the terms of the policy and in absence of evidence of care by N, held that N was a bailee and the repairer was a subs-bailee and decreed the claim in the suit (N.R. Srinivasa v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd., AIR 1983 SC 899 at 905).

P. 778, add in fn. 72:

See also, Shah Jugaldas Amritlal v. Shah Harilal Talakchand AIR 1986 Guj. 88.

P. 781, after the text corresponding to fn. 90:

The onus is on the Railways to show that no loss, destruction, deterioration or damage had taken place not only during the period of transit, but also during the subsequent period of transit, but seven days after the termination of transit. On failure of Railways to establish that, they could not claim protection under Section 77(2) of the Railways Act and were held liable. They were held to be bailees in respect of the goods in question (Raman & Co. v. U.O.I. and anr. AIR 1985 Mad. 37).

P. 784, after the text corresponding to fn. 22:

Insurer held to be a liablee. (vide commentary under the head under Section 148 in addendum) See N.R. Srinivasa v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. AIR 1983 SC 899 at 905.

P. 785, add in fn. 31:

On the question of burden of proof see, also, Cochin Port Trust v. Associated Cotton Traders Ltd., AIR 1983 Kerala 154.

P. 787, add in fn. 48:

See, also, State Bank of India v. M/s Quality Bread Factory AIR 1983 P & H 244 at 251.

P. 789, after the text corresponding to fn. 71:

The onus is on the railways to show that no loss, destruction, deterioration or damage had taken place not only during the period of transit, but also during the seven days after the termination of transit. On failure of Railways to establish that, they could not claim protection under Section 77(2) of the Railways Act and were held liable. They were held to be bailees in respect of the goods in question (Raman & Co. v. U.O.I. & anr. AIR 1985 Mad. 37).

P. 794, after the text corresponding to fn. 94:

The onus is on the Railways to show that no loss, destruction, deterioration or damage had taken place not only during the transit but also within seven days subsequent to the termination of transit. On failure of Railways to establish that they were not entitled to protection under section 77(2) of the Railways Act and were held liable. They were held to be bailees in respect of the goods in question (Raman & Co. v. U.O.I. & anr. AIR 1985 Madras 37).

P. 801, after the text corresponding to fn. 45:

Where, however, there is a counter-guarantee in favour of bank that has issued a bank-guarantee the bank cannot exercise any general lien under section 171 in respect of the amount claimable for payment made under the bank guarantee. (See Krishna Kishore Kar v. United Commercial Bank and anr. AIR 1982 Cal. 62).

P. 803, after the text corresponding to fn. 73:

Where the goods which were pledged against cash credit facility were destroyed by fire and the bank recovered an amount from the insurer, it was held that the bank should give credit for the said amount only in the cash credit account. (Gurbax Rai & Ors. v. Punjab National Bank AIR 1984 SC 1012).

P. 804, after the text corresponding to fn. 89:

As the Major Port Trusts Act is a special statute providing for statutory rights and liabilities, the provisions of Section 171 of the Contract Act which confers a general lien on the wharfinger cannot be resorted to by the Board. It was further held that there was no agreement or contract of bailment between the Board and consignee of goods under the Major Port Trusts Act, and that Section 171 of the Contract Act was not available to the Board (Board of Trustees, Bombay Port and Ors. v. Mrs. Sriyansh Knitters AIR 1983 Bom. 88 at pp 99 & 102).

P. 808, add in the fn. 22:

See, also, Ideal Bank Ltd. v. Pride of India Pictures Ltd., AIR 1983 delhi 546.

P. 808, add in fn. 23:

See, also, State Bank of India v. Quality Bread Factory, Batala, AIR 1983 P & H 244.

P. 809, after the text corresponding to fn. 37:

Unlike a mortgage, a pledge on hypothecation does not have the effect of transferring any "interest" in the property in favour of the pledgee or the hypothecatee. The pledge and hypothecation, however create a special property in the good in favour of the pledgee or the hypothecatee. In the case of pledge, the special property is to keep possession of the pledged goods and to dispose them of for the realisation of the debt for which it is held as security. In the case of hypothecation, possession remains with the hypothecator but the hypothecatee has the right to take possession of the hypothecated property and to sell it for the realisation of the debt secured by the hypothecation. Where a bank chose to seek a simple money decree without seeking to enforce the security of hypothecated goods, it was held that the bank would be deemed to have waived its right as hypothecatee (Syndicate Bank v. Official Liquidator, M/s Prashant Engineering Co. (P) Ltd. AIR 1985 Delhi 256).

P. 810, after the text corresponding to fn. 40: & P. 812, after the text corresponding to fn. 53:

Nature of Pawnee's right. If the pawnor makes default in payment of the debt, or performance, at the stipulated time, of the promise, in respect of which the goods were pledged, the pawnee may bring a suit against the pawnor upon the debt or promise, and retain the goods pledged as a collateral security, or he may sell the thing pledged, on giving the pawnor a reasonable notice of sale. In the case of a pledge, however, the legal title to the goods pledged would not vest in the pawnee. The pawnee has only a special property. A pawnee has no right of foreclosure since he never had the absolute ownership at law and his equitable title cannot exceed what is specifically granted by law. In this sense a pledge differs from a mortgage. A pawnee of shares in a company cannot be treated as the holder of the shares pledged in his favour and the pawnor continues to be the member of the company in respect of the said shares and can exercise his rights under Section 169 of the Companies Act 1956 (Balkrishan Gupta and Ors. v. Swadeshi Polytext Ltd. AIR 1985 SC 520 at 536; Relied on in T.S. Kotagi v. Tahsildar Gadag & Others, AIR 1985 Karnataka 265).

P. 812, after the text corresponding to fn. 51:

Section 176 creates two rights in the pawnee (pledgee)

1) To bring a suit against the pawnor upon the 'debt' or promise.

2) Sell the thing pledged on giving the pledger reasonable notice of sale.

If he chooses to file the suit on the 'debt' or promise, he can retain the pledged articles as collateral security. The right to sue, on the debt, assumes that he is in a position to redeliver the goods on payment of debt. The section does not contemplate any notice prior to the institution of the suit. The pledgee can also bring a suit to sell the goods pledged. However, a suit to recover the debt by sale of pledged articles must be preceded by notice. Similarly, if pledgee wants to sell articles, without the intervention of the Court, he can do so, only after issuing a notice of sale to the pledger. Sale without notice is void, and a vendee without notice of the pledge, takes only the limited rights or interest of the pledgee, in other words, he steps into the shoes of the pledgee (T.S. Kotagi v. Tahsildar, Gadag & Others, AIR 1985 Karnataka 265 at 267).

P. 812, after the text corresponding to fn. 53:

A bank chose to seek a simple money decree without seeking to enforce the security of goods hypothecated to it. It was held that the bank would be deemed to have waived its right as hypothecatee (Syndicate Bank v. Official Liquidator, M/s Prashant Engineering Co. (P) Ltd. AIR 1985 Delhi 256).

P. 812. add in fn. 53:

See also, Kuri Lal Rungta v. Smt. Banarasi Devi & Ors. AIR 1986 All. 94.

P. 812, add in fn. 56:

See, also, State Bank of India v. Quality Bread Factory, Batala, AIR 1983 P & H 244.

P. 812, add in fn. 56:

Distinguished on facts in *M/s Prestolite of IndiaLtd.*v. Union Bank of India & Others AIR 1986 P&H 64 where pledge was not denied and the suit was held to be maintainable.

P. 828, add in fn. 91:

See, also, Sm. Umarani Sen & Ors v. Sudhir Kumar Datta & Ors. AIR 1984 Cal. 230.

P. 832, add in fn. 21:

See, also, Varsha Engineering Pvt. Ltd. v. M/s Vijay Traders & Ors. AIR 1983 Gujarat 166 (No Agency).

P. 848, add in fn. 92:

See, also, Syndicate Bank v. I. K. Amitha and Ors. AIR 1985 Karnataka 213.

P. 859, after the text corresponding to fn. 23:

Where there is no averment of fraud or wilful wrong, the agent and not the sub-agent is responsible to the principal (See Shah Jugaldas Amritlal v. Shah Harilal Talakchand, AIR 1986 Guj. 88).

P. 872, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

Where the plaintiff was only to get commission after the accrual of the collection, he cannot (prima facie) be said to have any interest in the prints of the picture (Subhash Chandra Jain v. Feroze Khan & Ors. AIR 1982 Delhi 114).

P. 872, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

However, where the interest created in favour of the agent for payment of either his dues or his remuneration is in the product arising out of the exercise of the power, the agency is not irrevocable (M. John Kotaiah v. A. Divakar & Ors. AIR 1985 A. P. 30 at 35).

P. 884, after the next corresponding to fn. 34:

An agent has duty, irrespective of any contract to that effect, to produce vouchers by which items of disbursement are supported as part of the obligation to render proper accounts to the principal on demand (M/s S. Paul & Co. v. State of Tripura & Ors AIR 1984 Cal. 378 at 383).

P. 887, after the text corresponding to fn. 50:

However, when it is shown that the principal was acquainted with the material facts and there was no material on record to show that the principal was kept in the dark about the agent having created a lease in favour of his son, the transaction could not be avoided (Smt. Munni v. Atma Ram AIR 1983 H. P. 32 at 34 & 35).

P. 896, add in fn. 27:

See, also, Saraswati Devi v. Moti Lal. AIR 1982 Raj. 108.

P. 908, add before para commencing with "Intimation to the agent....":

The Calcutta High Court, however, has held that the notice received by the agent must be in course of the business transacted by him for the principal. If receiving such a notice is not within the agent's authority, and his lack of authority in this regard is known to the person giving notice, then such person cannot rely upon service of notice on such an agent as service on the principal (State of Orissa v. Goenka Investment & Mining Industries Pvt. Ltd. & Ors. AIR 1983 Cal. 438.

P. 909, after the text corresponding to fn. 45:

This section, however, provides that no sooner a notice is served upon an agent it shall have same legal consequences as if it had been given to the principal. It does neither expressly nor by necessary implication defer the legal consequence until the expiry of a reasonable time needed for the agent to communicate to the principal (State of Orissa v. Goenka Investment & Mining Industries Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 Cal. 438).

P. 913, after the text corresponding to fn. 93:

When agent not liable. The second para of the section deals with liabilities of an agent where an agent has entered into the contract and not where the principal has entered into the contract directly with the third party. The second para does not deal with any case of enforcement of the contract by the third party where the contract has been entered into by him with the principal (Union of India and anr. v. Chinoy Chablani & Co. AIR 1982 Cal. 365).

P. 914, after the text corresponding to fn. 6:

Where the plaintiff, in a suit against a foreign ship owner and its agent in India, did not show that by an express contract, the agent made itself liable for the contract of carriage, the court allowed the deletion of the agent's name from the title of the plaint. (Steel Authority of India Ltd. v. Transworld Marine Ltd. & another AIR 1982 Cal. 161).

P. 935, add at bottom:

In the course of business. Where dealers (agents) in pumps, committed, in combination with a bank's employees, fraud upon the bank by falsely claiming to have supplied pumps to agriculturists under a scheme evolved by the bank, and wrongfully obtained funds from the banks without actually effecting supplies or sales under the scheme, it was held that they were not acting in the course of their business as manufacturer's agents and that the manufacturers-principals could not be penalised or held responsible for the same. (M/s Shriram Refrigeration Industries Ltd. and anr. v. State Bank of India and anr. AIR 1983 Patna 203).

SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT

P. 949, after the text corresponding to fn. 50, add the following:

Powers of Court. A civil Court seized of jurisdiction of a civil dispute under Section 6 has ample powers under Order 39, Rules 1 and 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, read with Section 37 of the Specific Relief Act to pass appropriate orders to ensure that the property in dispute is not alienated, altered, demolished, changed, removed and destroyed during the pendency of the suit (Hari Shankar and Ors. v. Satya Prakash & anr. AIR 1982 Raj. 183).

P. 950, after the text corresponding to fn. 58:

A tenant in possession of the leasehold property after the termination of lease cannot be dispossessed by force except under due authority of law and the position is not different in the case of a tenancy under the Government; even if forcible possession had been taken by the Government as a quondam lessor, the quondam tenant is entitled to get back possession of the property under this section (M.R.S. Ramakrishnan v. The Assistant Director of Ex-Servicemen Welfare (District Soldiers, Sailors & Airmen Board) Tiruchirapalli, & Others AIR 1982 Mad 431).

P. 951, after the text corresponding to fn. 74:

The word 'dispossessed' equally includes within its sweep any flagrant and contumacious violation of symbolical possession duly delivered in the course of law. (Kumar Kalyan Prasad and anr. v. Kulanand Vaidik and others, AIR 1985 Patna 374).

P. 951, after the text corresponding to fn. 78:

Though the possession of a quondam-lessee, who continues in possession without there being a bilateral, consensual act of holding over is not "lawful possession", but is merely "juridicial possession", however, the landlord with the best of title cannot resort to forcible dispossession. Law in India does not recognise in the landlord a right of extra-judicial re-entry (M/s Patil Exhibitors (Pvt.) Ltd. v. The Corporation of the City of Bangalore AIR 1986 Karnataka 194).

P. 952, after the text corresponding to fn. 84:

Once it is decided by the Court that the suit is under Section 6, the scope of the suit becomes very limited. The Court will have to decide the question regarding possession and will have to decide as to who was in possession of the property within six months immediately proceeding the date of filing of the suit. The question of title and other issues are not to be gone into by the Court when the suit is under Section 6. (Mahomedsharif Kasamji Rangawala v. Amibai Allabux Rangawala and Anr. AIR 1984 Gujarat 90).

P. 953, add in fn. 91:

See, also, Mohammad Hussain Suleman Shaikh and Anr. v. Batukbhai Valjibhai and others, AIR 1984 Gujarat 66.

P. 954, add, after the last sentence, the following:

In a recent case, Smt. Sobhabati v. Lakshmi Chand & Ors. AIR 1984 Orissa 171, the High Court dismissed a Revision petition, holding that there was an effective remedy by way of a suit for declaration of title and possession. See, also, M/s. Industrial & Mining Equipment Co. Pvt. Ltd. Delhi v. N.L. Kanodia & Ors. AIR 1986 Delhi 36.

P. 962, after the text corresponding to fn. 28:

Where a suit for specific performance of an agreement is dismissed, the said agreement cannot be used as a defence to a suit for specific performance of a later agreement (Raminder Singh and anr. v. Sham Lal & anr. AIR 1984 Punjab & Haryana 145).

Specific performance could not be decreed against a person who was shown not to have signed or entered into the agreement (Bhanwar Singh v. Raghubir Nanwa Singh & Ors. AIR 1985 All. 331.

P. 965, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 42:

A contract by a guardian of a Hindu minor. A contract entered into by a guardian of a Hindu minor for purchase or sale of immovable property is specifically enforceable by or against the minor (Roomal & Ors. v. Siri Niwas, AIR 1985 Delhi 153).

Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 and decree for Specific Performance. A conditional decree for Specific performance subject to exemption being obtained under section 20 of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 is permissible (Shah Jitendra Nanalal v. Patel Lallubhai Ishverbhai, AIR 1984 Gujarat 145).

P. 965, add in fn. 42:

See, also, Ramvinder Singh and Anr. v. Sham Lal and anr. AIR 1984 P & H. 145.

P. 966, after the text corresponding to fn. 57:

In a later case, however, the same Court held that coal ash was not easily available in the market and came within the term "where the property is not an ordinary article of Commerce" and granted relief accordingly. The Court further held that it was "potential property" and that on its coming into existence, was covered by Cl. (ii) (b) of Explanation of this Section in the facts of the case (U.P. State Electricity Board, Lucknow v. Ram Barai Prasad and anr. AIR 1985 Allahabad 265).

P. 966, add in fn. 57:

See, also, Gujarat Electricity Board, Gandhinagar v. M/s Mahesh Kumar & Co. AIR 1982 Gujarat 289.

P. 967, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 66:

Damages for breach of contract and claim for specific performance. By claiming damages for breach of contract, the plaintiff disentitles himself, on account of his own election to treat the contract as at an end, from claiming specific performance of the same contract as an alternative case either originally or subsequently by way of amendment. Such conflicting claims are not permitted under order VII R. 7 of C.P.C. (Indian Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. M/s C.G. Engineering Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 Calcutta 6).

Premature Suit. Where it was agreed that conveyance would be executed after partition of the property, but the suit was filed for specific performance before the partition, it was contended that the suit was premature. In the meantime, however, the partition decree became final. The Allahabad High Court held that, in the circumstances, the suit could not be dismissed on the technical ground that it was premature. The fact that the plaintiff had filed the suit prematurely could at the best disentitle him from claiming costs and render him liable to pay costs of the defendants (Ram Niwas v. Smt. Omkari and anr. AIR 1983 Allahabad 310).

Amendment of plaint. Where the conduct pendente lite of the defendant is such as renders specific performance of agreement impossible, the plaintiff is entitled to claim compensation by amending the plaint (Gopal Debjibhai Patel v. Rishal Singh and anr. AIR 1982 Orissa 242).

P. 971, add the following before the paragraph headed "Explanation":

There is no duty in the Court of suo motu grant benefit under Section 12(3) Sub-clause (ii) requires the party who claims benefit of this sub-section to relinquish all claims to performance of the remaining part and all right to compensation for the deficiency or for the loss or damage occasioned through the default of the defendant. Unless the plaintiff conveys it to the Court that he is prepared to make such a relinquishment, it is under no legal duty to consider the desirability of allowing benefit of this sub-section to him.

There is nothing in Section 12 or any other provision of the Act which requires that the facts relevant to the applicability of these provisions should be pleased in the plaint or be set out in an application. Moreover the relinquishment of the claim for the performance of remaining part can be made at any stage of the litigation including the appellate stage. And delay, unless it has caused prejudice to the defendants should not by itself be taken as sufficient to disentitle the plaintiff to the relief (Ram Niwas v. Smt. Omkari and anr. AIR 1983 Allahabad 310).

The words 'unable to perform' suggest that the sub-section is applicable only when the party cannot for any reason perform the whole of what he has promised. The inability may arise by any cause whatsoever including statutory limitations. The inability to perform may arise by

(i) deficiency in quantity of the subject-matter, or
(ii) variance in quality, or
(iii) defect in title, or
(iv) some legal prohibition, or
(v) other causes.

The expression 'Considerable part' implies that the part which will be left unperformed is either large as regards quantity or as regards quality. In other words, it is material and not insignificant, so that a reasonable objection can be taken by the promises to accept performance. The phrase 'does not admit of compensation' implies that there are no data for ascertaining a fair and reasonable amount as the money value of the difference between what can be performed and the express subject-matter of the contract. The amount need not be mathematically accurate. If a reasonable estimate of the amount as the money value can be made it will not be a case where the compensation is unascertainable (Ram Niwas v. Smt. Omkari and anr. AIR 1983 Allahabad 310).

P. 975, after the text corresponding to fn. 3:

Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 and decree for specific performance. A conditional decree for specific performance subject to exemption being obtained under section 20 of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 is permissible (Shah Jitendra Nanalal v. Patel Lallubhai Ishverbhai, AIR 1984 Gujarat 145).

P. 982, add in fn. 45:

For another case where the Court held that compensation in money would afford adequate relief, see M/s Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. J. M. Baxi & Co. Ltd. AIR 1986 Delhi 336.

P. 983, after the text corresponding to fn. 52:

Where it was found that the plaintiff could be compensated in terms of money in a contract for sale of coal ash, it was held that injunction restraining the defendants from selling coal ash to other parties could not be granted (Gujarat Electricity Board, Gandhinagar v. M/s Mahesh Kumar & Co., AIR 1982 Guj. 289).

P. 983, add in fn. 57 and in fn. 59:

See, also, Smt. Usha Das (Roy) v. Smt. Arati Kar (Maiti) AIR 1982 Cal. 174.

P. 984, after the text corresponding to fn. 71:

Contract of Service and Forced labour — enforceability. Even if a person has contracted with another to perform service and there is consideration for such service in the shape of liquidation of debt or even remuneration, he cannot be forced, by compulsion of law or otherwise, to continue to perform such service, as that would be forced labour within inhibition of Article 23 of the Constitution of India. This Article strikes at every form of forced labour even if it has its origin in a contract voluntarily entered into by a person obligated to provide labour or service. The reason is that it offends against human dignity to compel a person to provide labour or service to another if he does not wish to do so, even though it be in breach of the contract entered into by him (People's Union for Democratic Rights & others v. Union of India AIR 1982 Supreme Court 1473).

P. 990, add in fn. 17:

See, also, M/s Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. J. M. Baxi & Co. Ltd. AIR 1986 Delhi 336.

P. 991, add in fn. 34:

See, however, Sujan Singh Sadhana v. Mehkam Chand Jain (deceased by L.R.s) and others AIR 1983 P & H 180, where the plaintiff was held not entitled to even compensation when the land was acquired by the government.

P. 997, after the text corresponding to fn. 73:

Section 16(c) is prohibitory and a duty is cast on courts by a public statute that specific performance of a contract cannot be granted in favour of a person unless be avers and proves his readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract. That being the nature of the statute, it would be the duty of the court to see whether the person who seeks to enforce the contract satisfies the mandatory provisions of Section 16 (H.G. Krishna Reddy & Co. v. M.M. Thimmiah & anr. AIR 1983 Madras 169).

The averment of readiness and willingness is required to be made only in case in which the plaintiff has already performed his part of the contract. When there remains nothing for the plaintiff to perform towards the contractual obligation, failure on his part to express his willingness to perform his obligation is of no legal consequence (Trimbak Shankar Tidke v. Nivratti Shankar Tidke AIR 1985 Bombay 128). (See, also, Mithu Khan v. Ms. Pipariyawali & Ors. AIR 1986 M.P. 39).

P. 997, add in fn. 73:

See, also Palthur Hunnur Saheb v. Bopanna Annapumamma & others AIR 1986 Karnataka 109 (Case law discussed); also Raminder Singh and Anr. v. Sham Lal & anr. AIR 1984 P & H. 145.

P. 998, after the text corresponding to fn. 74:

The words "ready" and "willing" imply that the plaintiff was prepared to carry out those parts of the contract to their logical end so far as they depend upon his performance. The terms of a contract performable by the plaintiff may be of two kinds (1) those that have to be performed before the other side can be called upon to fulfil his promise; and (2) others that may have to be subsequently performed. The actual performance of, or a readiness to perform, the former must be shown and an offer to perform the latter must be made (K. Sambasiva Rao v. P. Bangaru Raju AIR 1985 A.P. 393).

P. 998, add in fn. 75:

See, also, Dhian Singh v. Tara Chand and anr. AIR 1984 Allahabad 4 and Shafiq Ahmad v. Smt. Syeedan AIR 1984 All. 140.

P. 998, after the text corresponding to fn. 88:

Sec. 16(c) requires that a party must aver that he has performed or has always been ready and willing to perform his part of the contract. If there is no such averment, then no amount of evidence can help the plaintiff in getting a decree in his favour. An amendment of plaint to introduce the averment after the close of the defendant's case was not allowed by the Patna High Court in Ramswaroop Singh & others v. Bijoy Kumar Singh AIR 1986 Patna 60.

P. 998, add in fn. 88:

See, also, Ram Singhasan Choubey & Ors. v. Sudama Prasad Sah (AIR 1982 Patna 200); also, Bhanwar Singh v. Raghubir Nanwa Singh & others AIR 1985 All. 331.

P. 1000 after the text corresponding to fn. 99:

The plaintiff does not have to go about jingling money to demonstrate his capacity to pay the purchase price. Thus, even where the plaintiff had stated that she did not have the means to pay the court-fees but did in fact pay the full court-fees before the time for claiming specific performance expired, the court held that it could not be said that she was not ready and willing to perform her obligation. C1(1) of Explanation to Section 16(c) clearly enacts that money need be produced only when directed by the Court (Ganesh Prasad v. Saraswati Devi and others AIR 1982 Allahabad 47).

P. 1000, add in fn. 1:

See, however, Diwali Lal & Ors v. Sardar Baldev Singh and anr. (AIR 1985 Patna 344).

P. 1000, after the text corresponding to fn. 5:

The compliance of the requirements of Section 16(C) is mandatory and in the absence of necessary averments in this respect in the plaint even in the presence of proof that the plaintiff had been ready and willing to perform his part of the contract, the plaintiff cannot hope to succeed in the suit. Even where there is complete absence of a plea in defence on this point, it is the duty of the Court to feel satisfied on these twin mandatory requirements of law. Mere proof of readiness and willingness where the essential ingredients are absent in the pleadings must be deemed to be an exercise in vain. Proof in such cases cannot be regarded as substitute for averments which were absent in the pleadings (Bijai Bahadur and Others v. Shri Shiv Kumar and anr. AIR 1985 Allahabad 223).

Where a purchaser falsely claimed that he had paid the vendor a certain sum and offered the balance purchase price, the Court held that he had violated an essential term of the contract and also held that he was not ready and willing to perform his part of the contract and refused decree for specific performance (Mst. Sahida Bibi v. S.K. Golam Mohammad AIR 1983 Calcutta 216).

The plaintiff's readiness and willingness must be in accordance with the terms of the agreement. The plaintiff cannot add any additional condition for the performance of his part of the contract. Where the plaintiff, inconsistently with the contract, insisted that he would pay the agreed sum only after he was put in possession, was held not to be ready and willing to perform his part of the contract (Rahat Jain v. Hafiz Mohammad Usman, deceased by LRs and others, AIR 1983 Allahabad 343).

P. 1001, after the text corresponding to fn. 8:

While "willingness" is merely mental process, "readiness" is something to do with translating that will into action and is preceded by necessary preparation for being in a position to be ready. In other words, while 'willingness' may be something to do mainly with a person's mental process to do an act, his readiness implies close proximity of such willingness and its ultimate physical manifestation. 'Readiness' must in all cases be backed by 'willingness' and its imminent physical action is demonstrated when it is about to be put into action. Time lag between the two may sometimes be very short, may even be negligible, but it must always be preceded by an intention or a will to do. In short, 'readiness' must be said to be the total equipment of a person who is willing to do a thing before he actually does it. There may be cases where though a person may be willing, yet may not be able to do what he wills. He cannot be said to be ready to do it. In other cases, the person may possess all that is necessary to do an act. He may be ready but if the will to do is not there, his willingness may be lacking (Bijai Bahadur and others v. Shri Shiv Kumar & anr. AIR 1985 All. 223).

P. 1006, after the text corresponding to fn. 39:

A person who is a party to the contract for sale is bound to execute the sale deed if other terms are fulfilled by the purchaser, even though the property might not be belonging to him, as, in that case the purchaser would take risk of purchasing from him with open eyes. The person to whom the property might legally belong cannot be bound by that sale, but all the same the parties to the contract would be bound by the contract to sell and the purchaser under the contract can force the vendor under the contract to perform his part of the contract (Diwali Lal & others v. Sardar Baldev Singh & others AIR 1985 Patna 344).

P. 1011, add in fn. 68:

See, also, Ram Briksha Singh & Ors. v. Rudra Narain Singh (deceased by L.R.s.) AIR 1986 Allahabad 19.

P. 1011, add in fn. 69:

See, also, Rameshwar Singh v. Hari Narayan Singh & Ors. AIR 1984 Patna 277.

P. 1012, after the text corresponding to fn. 74:

The question of good faith is always a question of fact, which depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to the quantum of evidence that should be produced to convince a Court that the party has acted in good faith (Munna Lal v. Smt. Krishna Kumari and another AIR 1983 Allahabad 5).

P. 1012, add in fn. 74:

See, also, Rameshwar Singh v. Hari Narayan Singh and others AIR 1984 Patna 277.

P. 1012, add in fn. 78:

See, also, Raminder Singh and anr. v. Sham Lal and anr. AIR 1984 P & H. 145.

P. 1013, after the text corresponding to fn. 89:

Clause (C): In a suit for specific performance filed by A against B, a decree for possession could not be passed against C where it could not be shown that C was claiming through B or was later inducted into possession by B (Mohd. Hanif (deceased by LRs) and others v. Mariam Begum and Others AIR 1986 Bombay 15).

P. 1015, after the text corresponding to fn. 98:

In a suit against a minor for specific performance of an agreement for sale of immoveable property, the court, in exercising its discretion under section 20, is not justified in reopening the issue of the benefit of minor on the ground of rise in prices during the pendency of the suit when court had earlier granted permission under Section 8 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act to the Guardian of the minor for sale of minor's property (Chater Bhuj Goel v. Gurpreet Singh AIR 1983 Punjab & Haryana 406).

P. 1015, add in fn. 98:

See, also, Hamsmmal v. P.V. Thakkar AIR 1982 Madras 108.

P. 1015, add in fn. 99:

See, also, Smt. Harbans Atma Singh v. Ramesh Kumar, AIR 1986 P & H 14.

P. 1016, after the text corresponding to fn. 4:

Specific performance is a discretionary remedy which may or may not be granted. It is quite possible that in a given case the party who asks for specific performance may, even when successful, get only damages in lieu of specific performance. Therefore, unless the plaintiff gets a decree for specific performance in his favour, he does not get a right to possession. He cannot, therefore, at the interlocutory stage, dispossess somebody who is in possession prior to the filing of the suit. Receiver, accordingly, could not be appointed (Purushottam Vishindas Raheja v. L.I.C. & others AIR 1982 Bombay 523).

P. 1016, after the text corresponding to fn. 6:

Where the plaintiff was guilty of making a material alteration in the agreement, specific performance was refused (S.K. Panchaksharam Mudaliar & others v. T.V. Kanniah Naidu & others AIR 1986 Madras 156).

P. 1021, add in fn. 56:

See, also, K. Sambasiva Rao v. P. Bangaru Raju, (AIR 1985 Andhra Pradesh 393).

P. 1021, add in the fn. 57:

See, also, K. Sambasiva Rao v. P. Bangaru Raju (AIR 1985 Andhra Pradesh 393).

P. 1022, after the text corresponding to fn. 64:

Sec. 20 and Sec. 14: When Section 14 in term specifies the cases in which specific performance cannot be granted, it cannot be understood that Section 20 is a departure from the rigours of Section 14 (Gujarat Electricity Board, Gandhinagar v. M/s Mahesh Kumar & Co. AIR 1982 Gujarat 289).

P. 1023, add in fn. 78:

See, also, Smt. Ranganayakamma v. N. Govinda Narayan AIR 1982 Karnataka 264, where the Court, after considering the hardship of a widow (seller), and of a businessman (purchaser) held that it was manifestly unjust to decree specific performance in favour of the purchaser.

P. 1025, add the following paragraph after the paragraph headed "Sub-Sec (2)(c)":

The plaintiff must come to Court with clean hands. When the plaintiff does not come with clean hands, as where he is guilty of fraud or some other practice, he may ordinarily get no relief by way of specific performance. A contract is to be judged as at the time at which it was entered into, and if fair when made, the fact that it has become too hard by the force of subsequent circumstances, or changing events, will not prevent its specific performance. Nevertheless, if it is seen that the contract itself is not fair and is one-sided, the Court may refuse to enforce the contract. Where, therefore, not only the terms of the contract itself but also the mental condition of the defendant, the presence of heirs of the defendant, the absence of independent legal advice and the inadequacy of price in a second (connected) contract showed that the contract was one-sided, the Court held that it should not be enforced and that damages should constitute an adequate relief (Sunil Chandra Ghosh v. Hemendra Kr. Deb AIR 1985 Calcutta 233).

P. 1027, after the text corresponding to fn. 3:

A deity is not a perpetual minor and specific performance can be granted against a deity (Sri Durga Thakurani Bije Nijigarh and others v. Chintamani Swain & others AIR 1982 Orissa 158).

P. 1027, after the text corresponding to fn. 8:

A contract entered into by a guardian of a Hindu Minor for purchase or sale of immovable property is specifically enforceable by or against the minor (Roomal & Ors. v. Siri Niwas, AIR 1985 Delhi 153). See, also, Manik Chand v. Ramchandra (AIR 1981 Supreme Court 519).

P. 1027, add in fn. 11:

See, also, Roomal & Ors. v. Siri Niwas AIR 1985 Delhi 153.

P. 1028, add in fn. 16:

See, also, Prag Datt v. Smt. Saraswati Devi and anr. AIR 1982 Allahabad 37.

P. 1029, after the text corresponding to fn. 25:

Where, however, only four of the five co-owners had executed an agreement for reconveyance of property, a decree for specific performance was passed against the four co-owners in respect of their shares in the property (Lalit Mohan Taran v. Lal Mohan Deb and others AIR 1985 Gauhati 35).

P. 1032, after the text corresponding to fn. 45:

Where, however, in a suit for specific performance of an agreement for sale, the plaintiff claimed damages in the alternative, and on the plaintiff not pressing for specific relief, the court passed a decree for damages, it was held that the decree was not null and void or non est (John v. Mammootty AIR 1985 Kerala 120).

P. 1034, after the text corresponding to fn. 58:

It may also be as per the terms of the agreement (Smt. Harbans Atma Singh v. Ramesh Kumar, AIR 1986 P & H 14).

P. 1035, after the text corresponding to fn. 60:

Where the Court granted a decree for specific performance of agreement to sell immoveable property, but the decree was silent with regard to the prayer for possession, it was held that decree for specific performance necessarily embodied a mandate to fulfil all the terms including the term for delivery of possession (Debabrata Tarafder v. Biraj Mohan Bardhan AIR 1983 Calcutta 51).

P. 1035, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 61:

"At any stage of the proceeding". The term "proceeding" is a very wide and comprehensive term and it includes execution proceeding also. The term "at any stage of the proceeding" gives widest permission to the court to allow amendment at any stage of the proceeding including execution of the decree. The amendment can be allowed even in an appeal arising out of the order passed by the executing Court rejecting the prayer for permission. The proviso recognises the well settled position that the Court passing a decree for specific performance retains control over the subject matter as long as anything remains to be done in the case (Lotu Bandu Sonavane v. Pundalik Nimba Koli, AIR 1985 Bombay 412).

"An appropriate case". "An appropriate case" means a case in which the relief does not necessarily flow from the decree for specific performance of the agreement of sale. If such a relief is ancillary to and necessarily flows from a decree for specific performance then it is not necessary to specifically seek such a relief and the bar of Section 22(2) would not be attracted. If the defendant is in possession of the property agreed to be sold and the decree directs a specific performance of the agreement of sale, the defendant is bound to execute the sale deed as per the decree and put the plaintiff in possession of the property as contemplated by Section 55(1)(f) of the Transfer of Property Act. In such a case it is not necessary to specifically claim the relief of possession in the suit (Lotu Bandu Sonavane v. Pundalik Nimba Koli, AIR 1985 Bom. 412).

Section 22 enacts a rule of pleading. It enables the plaintiff to ask for possession in the suit for specific performance and empowers the Court to provide in the decree itself that upon payment by the plaintiff of the consideration money within the given time, the defendant should execute the deed and put the plaintiff in possession. If the said relief is not claimed in the Plaint, the Court shall permit the plaintiff at any stage of the proceedings, including execution proceedings, to amend the plaint on such terms as it deems proper. The purpose is to avoid multiplicity of suits which the law Courts always abhor. Where the High Court granted relief of possession without first allowing amendment of the plaint, the Supreme Court held that the omission to allow amendment was not so fatal as to deprive the decree-holders of the benefits of decree when section 55 of the Transfer of Property Act authorises the transferee to get possession in pursuance of a sale deed (Babulal v. M/s Hazari Lal Kishori Lal & others AIR 1982 Supreme Court 818).

In a suit for specific performance filed by A against B, a decree for possession could not be passed against C where it could not be shown that C was claiming through B or was later inducted into possession by B (Mohd. Hanif (deceased by LRs) and others v. Mariam Begum & Others AIR 1986 Bom. 15).

While decreeing refund of amount paid by plaintiff under an agreement and while holding that the subsequent purchasers were bona fide purchasers for value without notice, it was improper for the Court to allow to plaintiff to retain possession of the property until the amount was refunded and keep the subsequent purchasers out of possession (Balaram Barik & others v. Banambava Maharana AIR 1982 Orissa 271).

The Calcutta High Court, however, disallowed an amendment seeking to introduce relief for possession on the ground that the property in question was situate outside the jurisdiction of the Court (Rajkumar Singhania v. Benoy Kumar Mazumdar & Ors. AIR 1985 Calcutta 328).

P. 1035, before the sentence starting with the words "But see....." in the first line:

In this connection, see the observations of Calcutta High Court (Special Bench) in Sm. Dhiraj Bala Karia v. Jethia Estate Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 Calcutta 166.

P. 1035, after the text corresponding to fn. 61:

A plaintiff may amend the plaint to include a claim for refund of advance money paid to the defendant. The amendment may be made at any stage of the proceeding including the appellate stage (Mst. Sahida Bibi v. Sk. Golam Muhammad AIR 1983 Calcutta 216).

P. 1035, add in fn. 61:

See, also, Rahat Jan v. Hafiz Mohammad Usman (deceased by L.R.s) and others AIR 1983 Allahabad 343.

P. 1042, after the text corresponding to fn. 6:

A third party, who has acquired, bona fide, interest in the subject matter of the suit for value would be a proper party in a suit for rectification of deed relating thereto (Ram Suchit and anr. v. 1st Additional Dist. Judge, Gorakhpur AIR 1986 Allahabad 149).

P. 1046, add in fn. 24:

See, also, Babu Lal v. M/s Hazari Lal Kishorilal & others AIR 1982 Supreme Court 818.

P. 1047, add the following before the paragraph starting with the words "But under Sub-Sec.(4).....":

The use of the expression "further relief" in Sub-section (3) of Section 28 is a clear pointer that reliefs by way of delivery of possession or partition and separate possession of property mentioned in Section 22(1)(a) and in clause (b) of Sub-section 3 of Section 28 are ancillary or consequential to the passing of a decree for specific performance of a contract to transfer immoveable property (Sm. Dhiraj Bala Karia v. Jethia Estate Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 Calcutta 166).

P. 1047, after the text corresponding to fn. 32:

The Calcutta High Court has recently held that the Court does not lose its jurisdiction to extend time even where the original decree for specific performance provided that in the event of plaintiff default in depositing the balance of the consideration within the time fixed the plaintiff claim for specific performance "shall be barred for ever" (Tapan Kumar Chatterjee v. Kalyani Debi AIR 1985 Calcutta 243).

The Court can extend time for deposit of purchase-money or balance of the purchase money but the said Section does not empower the court to direct deposit of purchase money or balance of purchase money by instalments, not allowed by the conditional decree. Modification of a decree is not permitted by section 28 or by any other provision of the Act. The defendant should also be heard in plaintiff's application for modification (Sunity Chandra Bose v. Nil Ratan Sinha AIR 1985 Calcutta 282).

P. 1047, after the text corresponding to fn. 32:

Where the purchaser decree-holder failed to make payment of the amount within the time allowed to him under a decree for specific performance in his favour, and also failed to apply for extension of time, the defendant-seller became entitled to get the contract rescinded (Onkar Nath and anr. v. Basheer and othera AIR 1986 P & H. 152).

P. 1047, after the text corresponding to fn. 33:

An application for rescission of the contract for sale of land can be made in the suit in which the decree for specific performance is passed (Kanhaiyalal v. Mulla Abdul Hussain (deceased by L.R.s) and others AIR 1985 M.P. 24).

P. 1050, after the text corresponding to fn. 4:

For a case where the court declared the nullity of a power of attorney when two of the executants thereof were of unsound mind and consequent nullity of a deed of partition executed in exercise of power of attorney, see Mrs. Clara Aurora de Braganca & others v. Mrs. Sylvia Angela Alvares & Ors. AIR 1985 Bombay 372.

P. 1050, add in fn. 5:

See, also, Amar Krishna Kukherjee v. Smt. Asha Rani Ghosh AIR 1985 Cal. 398.

P. 1051, add in fn. 11:

See, also, Dunia Lal Datta v. Nagendra Nath Datta AIR 1982 Calcutta 163.

P. 1053, after the text corresponding to fn. 22:

Jurisdiction. A suit for cancellation of a decree passed by a Revenue Court on the ground that it was a result of a fraud, is triable by a civil court and not the revenue court (Gurucharansingh & others v. Mst. Gurdayal Kaur & others AIR 1982 Rajasthan 91)

P. 1053, add in fn. 22:

See, also, Smt. Uma Devi & Others v. Narayan Nayak and others AIR 1985 Orissa 96.

P. 1061, add in fn. 39:

See, also, K. Madhadeva Sastry v. Director, Post-Graduate Centre, Anantpur AIR 1982 A.P. 176.

P. 1062, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

Section 34 — not exhaustive: Section 34 is not exhaustive of all the circumstances and recourse to Order VII R. 7 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not excluded in appropriate cases (Government of State of Orissa v. Jaldu Rama Rao & Company AIR 1983 A.P. 214).

Section 34 and Section 35: Section 34 does not contemplate that a declaratory decree will be passed when the facts of the case come under the purview of Section 35 of the Act (Dunia Lal Datta v. Nagendranath Datta and anr. AIR 1982 Cal. 163).

P. 1063, add the following paragraph before the paragraph headed 'Discretion of the Court':

Declaratory Suit, Sec. 34 and Sec. 41: In a declaratory suit, whether governed by the provisions of S. 34 of the Specific Relief Act or not, the principles embodied in Section 41(b) of the Specific Relief Act are equally applicable (Anil Kumar Sinha and others v. Subhas Kumar Sinha & others AIR 1985 Calcutta 315).

P. 1066, after the text corresponding to fn. 79:

A worshipper, as next friend of deity, represents the deity, and can maintain a suit for declaration and to challenge alienation of deity's property (Bhagauti Prasad Khetan and etc. v. Laxminathji Maharaj and etc. AIR 1985 Allahabad 228).

P. 1068, add in fn. 10:

See, also, Mool Raj v. Atma Ram AIR 1986 J & K 24.

P. 1069, add in fn. 18:

See, also, Mangninath Tiwary & others v. Phool Mohammad Dhobi & Ors. AIR 1985 Patna 338.

P. 1073, after the text corresponding to fn. 54:

When the suit property is under attachment (custodia legis) at the commencement of the suit, the absence of prayer for possession does not render the suit bad (Gyasuddin v. Allah Tala Waqf Mausuma and anr. AIR 1986 Allahabad 39).

P. 1074, add in fn. 69:

See, also, Samad Dar v. Mohamed Ismail Tantrary, AIR 1983 J & K 59.

P. 1077, after the text corresponding to fn. 2:

A suit by a co-shebait for declaration of his right to perform Sheva and for restraining his co-shebait from preventing him from entering the room is not bad if there is no prayer for possession as possession of one Shebait is possession of another unless there is ouster (Sri Sri Iswar Kalimata Thakurani v. Shebaits of Sri Sri Iswara Kalimata Thakurani & Ors. AIR 1985 Calcutta 366).

P. 1077, after the text corresponding to fn. 95:

Where an Anjuman filed a suit for a declaration that a certain property was a waqf property and not of the defendants, but did not claim possession of the property, it was held that it was not a suit under Section 34. The Court further observed that even if it was a suit under Section 34, the plaintiff, not being mutawalli or trustee, were not entitled to possession and that the suit for declaration simpliciter was maintainable (Anjuman Islamia v. Najini Ali & Ors. AIR 1982 M.P. 17).

Where, however, the plaintiff seeks a declaration of his title and is in possession of the property, the suit without a prayer for possession is maintainable (Chitui Naga v. Onhen Kuku AIR 1984 Gauhati 62).

P. 1082, add the following paragraph after the paragraph headed 'vested interest':

A person likely to be adversely affected. A person who is likely to be adversely affected by an order may file a suit for a declaration that the order is ultra vires and beyond the powers of the authority that passed it (Anne Besant Girl's High School v. Deputy Director of Public Instruction & Ors. AIR 1983 Supreme Court 526).

P. 1084, after the text corresponding to fn. 71:

However, the Managing committee of a school constituted in accordance with the rules framed under the West Bengal Secondary Education Act 1950 is neither a body corporate nor a statutory body. An employee of such a school does not acquire a statutory status. The remedy of such an employee is in damages and not by way of declaration (Smt. Usha Das (Roy) v. Smt. Arati Kar (Maiti) AIR 1982 Calcutta 174).

P. 1085, after the text corresponding to fn. 83:

Section 34 and Section 35: A person not bound, under this section, by an earlier decree, cannot file a suit for a declaration under section 34 (Dumia Lal Datta v. Nagendra Nath Datta and anr. AIR 1982 Cal. 163).

P. 1085, add in fn. 82:

See, however, Autar Singh & others v. Th. Atma Singh & Others AIR 1982 J & K 141.

P. 1088, after the text corresponding to fn. 12, add the following:

Husband and Wife. Unless the suitor is in exclusive occupation of the premises and the defendant is trying to threaten that occupation by reason of the conduct which may be indecent, immoral, cruel or peace-breaking, injunctions are not to issue. Such injunctions may be granted where the value or utility of the property itself or the very existence of the occupant is threatened.

When suits of the kind which relate to property are filed, the wife has to work out exclusive title to the property. The principles applicable and operative are ordinary normal principles, in that those who are entitled to the enjoyment of the property while the entitlement subsists could not be excluded from such entitlement by reasons of the allegations with regard to devious marital conduct which requires further investigation and clear proof. More over when one of the parties forces entry without the aid of the Court relying on her entitlement, by sheer reason of such entry, she would not be entitled to protect such conduct and exclude the other spouse from the subsisting right or entitlement (Bharti Surendra Shah v. Surendra Ramanlal Shah AIR 1983 Bombay 258).

P. 1089, after the text corresponding to fn. 14:

In a suit for injunction it is not necessary for the plaintiff to plead readiness and willingness to pay the balance of the premium price (M/s Time Properties & Promoters v. Delhi Development Authority, AIR 1986 Delhi 317).

P. 1089, add the following before S. 37:

Privity of contract and Injunction. In absence of privity of contract no discretionary relief by way of injunction could be granted against electricity authorities restraining them from disconnecting the supply of electricity (M/s Puneet Plastic Industries v. M/s Rawat Hosiery & anr. AIR 1985 Delhi 257).

Breach of peace. Where there is considerable heat, tension and possibility of breach of peace, the proper course would be to see that the decree or interim order does not accentuate the problem. Granting of relief of injunction is discretionary. The relief must be granted where it is absolutely necessary. It may be granted where it would help in the preservation of peace and public order. Where there is a possibility of breach of peace of public order, the Court ought to proceed with caution (Sarwar Husain & others v. Additional Civil Judge, Moradabad and others AIR 1983 Allahabad 252).

P. 1089, after the text corresponding to fn. 18:

Where the defendant was publishing defamatory matter against the plaintiff, it was held that an ex-parte injunction was properly granted against the defendant (Hari Shankar v. Kailash Narayan & others AIR 1982 M.P. 47).

P. 1090, after the text corresponding to fn. 20:

In a suit for possession of a property the Court can grant a temporary injunction to ensure preservation of status quo and to restrain the defendants from wasting, removing, alienating, demolishing, altering, transferring and changing the same (Hari Shankar & Ors. v. Satya Prakash and another AIR 1982 Rajasthan 183).

P. 1090, add in fn. 20:

See, also, Bindeshwar Narayan Singh & others v. Managing Committee, Shri Sundermal Hindi High School & others (AIR 1982 Gauhati 69).

P. 1091, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 28:

Possession disturbed after suit, and permanent injunction. In a suit for permanent injunction to restrain the defendants from plaintiffs' possession of suit land, a temporary injunction was granted by the trial court and affirmed by the appellate Court. Later, the suit was dismissed for default and the defendants took possession of the suit land. On restoration of the suit, the court ordered the defendants to deliver possession to the plaintiffs. The fact that the defendants had come into possession for some time after the institution of the suit did not disentitle the plaintiffs to the grant of permanent injunction if the plaintiffs were found to be in possession of suit land on the date of the institution of the suit (Nirbhayasingh v. Shankarlal & Others AIR 1985 M. P. 141).

Balance of convenience. On consideration of balance of convenience, a Court may refuse injunction if it cannot be shown that irreparable injury will be caused if no injunction is granted (M/s Misra & Company v. Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. AIR 1985 Orissa 22). (See, also, Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. J. M. Baxi & Co. Ltd. AIR 1986 Delhi 336 and M/s Magnum Films and anr. v. Golcha Properties Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 Delhi 392).

No injunction against a person with better title. A plaintiff, being a transferee of the suit land under an unregistered conveyance, is not entitled to an injunction against a party who has a better title (Amrao Singh & others v. Sanatan Dharam Sabha, Chandigarh AIR 1985 P & H. 195).

Injunction against Municipality. The Court in order to safeguard the special interest of the neighbour can issue a mandatory injunction not only against the Municipality, but against those who are on the lands unauthorisedly through that municipality (Prabhudas Kalyanji and others v. Haji Hasan Haji Yusuf Maklal & others AIR 1983 Gujarat 119).

Temporary and Permanent Injunction: It is a settled principle of law that in a suit where there is no permanent injunction sought, ordinarily a temporary injunction cannot be granted. The principles that govern the grant of perpetual injunction would govern the grant of a temporary injunction also (Gujarat Electricity Board, Gandhinagar v. M/s Mahesh Kumar & Co AIR 1982 gujarat 289).

Breach of peace. Where there is considerable heat, tension and possibility of breach of peace, the proper course would be to see that the decree or interim order does not accentuate the problem. Granting of relief of injunction is discretionary. The relief must be granted where it is absolutely necessary. It may be granted where it would help in the preservation of peace and public order. Where there is a possibility of breach of peace of public order, the Court ought to proceed with caution. (Sarwar Husain & others v. Additional Civil Judge, Moradabad and others AIR 1983 Allahabad 252).

P. 1091, after the text corresponding to fn. 28, also add the following under a new heading "Sec. 37 and Sec. 41":

The Supreme Court considered the provisions of Section 41(b) in the context of Section 37 of the Specific Relief Act and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and observed as follows:

"Section 41(b) confers to the Court the jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining any person from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding in a court which is not subordinate to the court from which the injunction is sought. The Court can still grant an injunction restraining a person from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding in a court which is subordinate to the Court from which injunction is sought. As a necessary corollary, it would follow that the Court is precluded from granting an injunction restraining any person from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding in a Court of Co-ordinate or superior jurisdiction.

Expression 'Injunction' in Section 41(b) is not qualified by any adjective and, therefore, it would comprehend both interim and perpetual injunction. It is however, true that Section 37 specifically provides that temporary injunctions are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure. But if a dichotomy is introduced by confining Section 41 to perpetual injunction only and Section 37 read with Order 39 of Code of Civil Procedure being confined to temporary injunction an unnecesary grey area will develop.

The Court can in appropriate cases grant temporary injunction in exercise of its inherent powers in cases not covered by Order 39 of the Code of Civil Procedure. But while exercising this inherent power, the Court should not overlook the statutory provision which clearly indicates that injunction to restrain initiation of proceedings cannot be granted. Section 41(b) is one such provision. And inherent power of the Court cannot be invoked to nullify or stultify a statutory provision."

An interim injunction to restrain filing of winding-up petition was, accordingly, refused (Cotton Corporation of India Ltd. v. United Industrial Bank Limited & Ors. AIR 1983 Supreme Court 1272). (See, also, Sarat Chandra Panda v. Hari Das & Others AIR 1983 Orissa 196).

P. 1095, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 47:

'Obligation'. The 'Obligation' contemplated in Section 38 is legal obligation. Where, therefore, it was found that the State Government was under no legal obligation to assign the land, the Municipality committed no breach of obligation in not securing the assignment and, in the circumstances, no injunction was granted for restraining the state and municipality from proceeding with construction of inspection bungalow on a land which was earmarked for Gandhi Memorial under the draft Master Plan which, however, was not published under the relevant Town Planning Act (State of Orissa and anr. v. Puri Municipality & Ors. AIR 1984 Orissa 132).

'Obligation' means a duty enforceable by law. Where no such obligation was spelt out, injunction could not be granted (State Bank of Bikaner and Jaipur v. Firm Ballabh Das & Sons AIR 1984 Rajasthan 107).

P. 1096 after the figure "42" in paragraph headed "injunction to prevent breach of contract", add the following:

Where the statutory formalities following a municipal auction were not completed, there was no completed contract and there could, therefore, be no question of relief of specific performance or injunction in favour of auction purchaser plaintiff (Doshi Mohanlal Duralabhji v. Savarkundla Municipality AIR 1982 Gujarat 6).

Where there was no obligation in a bank to lend money or to keep the industry of the plaintiff running, an injunction requiring the bank to lend money or to do any acts to keep the industry running could not be granted under Section 38(1) (State Bank of India v. J.S. Ramamoorthy AIR 1982 Mad. 197).

P. 1096, add the following after the word 'remedy' in the 2nd paragraph under the heading "injunction to prevent breach of contract":

See, in this context, M/s Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. J. M. Baxi & Co. Ltd. AIR 1986 Delhi 336.

P. 1100, after the text corresponding to fn. 89:

The possession of a tenant by sufferance is juridical and should be protected by the Courts. He is entitled to remain in possession till he is evicted in the course of law. His possession till he is evicted in the course of law. His possession can, accordingly, be protected by an injunction (Mogilipuvvu Annapurnaiah v. Melampati Narasimha Rao and anr. AIR 1982 Andhra Pradesh 253).

P. 1100 add in fn. 89:

See, also, Raghavendra Narain Shah v. Motilal Gupta & others AIR 1982 Allahabad 304.

P. 1105, add in fn. 44:

See, also, Jagdish Rai & others v. Abdul Wahab AIR 1982 Allahabad 301.

P. 1105, after the text corresponding to fn. 48:

Where an owner of land obstructs another co-owner from using the land even when the use causes no injury or detriment to him, an injunction can be granted against the obstructing owner. The only restriction put by law on the common user of land by a co-owner is that it should not be so used as to prejudicially affect or put the other co-owner to a detriment (Ayyaswami Gounder and others v. Munnuswamy Gounder & others AIR 1984 Supreme Court 1789).

P. 1105, after the text corresponding to fn. 52:

A suit, however, for injunction at the instance of one of the brothers against the others and a nephew all of whom were co-sharers in the Shebaiti and Pujari rights was not maintainable (Nagarwali Devi & others v. Girjapati Tewari and others AIR 1982 Allahabad 80).

P. 1105, after the text corresponding to fn. 53:

A person in possession has no right to a permanent injunction to prevent his eviction for all times to come, but he cannot be evicted or removed without due process of law. In a doubtful case it is better to maintain the status quo possession should prima facie be protected (Smt. Shakuntala v. Hira Nand Sharma and Others AIR 1986 Delhi 27).

P. 1105, add in fn. 57:

See, also, Sardari Lal Gupta v. Siri Krishan Aggarwal, AIR 1984 P & H. 439.

P. 1108, after the text corresponding to fn. 81:

An injunction was granted where it was found that the defendants' user of the latrine constituted nuisance to the plaintiff (Abdul Hakim & another v. Ahmad Khan AIR 1985 M.P. 88).

P. 1112, after the text corresponding to fn. 16:

In Khawaz Bux v. Mirza Mohammad Ismail (AIR 1984 Allahabad 83) the Court, however, issued a mandatory injunction directing the defendant to forthwith execute the necessary documents required to effectuate the transfer of permit in favour of the plaintiff.

P. 1113, add in fn. 24:

See, also, Cotton Corporation of India Ltd. v. United Industrial Bank Ltd. & ors. AIR 1983 Supreme Court 1272.

P. 1114, add in fn. 32:

See, also, Surat Municipal Corporation v. Rameshchandra Shantilal Parikh AIR 1986 Gujarat 50.

P. 1114, add the following after the text corresponding to fn. 36:

Bank guarantee and injunction: Where the Court found that the bank guarantee was liable to be encashed without any recourse to Court of law, an injunction to restrain the bank from enforcing guarantee was refused when it was sought on the ground that there was a dispute between the principal debtor and the creditor which was referred to arbitration and till the award was made (Damodar Paints Pvt. Ltd. v. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., Delhi, and Anr. AIR 1982 Delhi 57).

In a suit where there is no permanent injunction sought, ordinarily a temporary injunction cannot be granted. The principles that govern the grant of perpetual injunction would govern the grant of a temporary injunction also (Gujarat Electricity Board, Gandhinagar v. M/s Maheshkumar & Co. AIR 1982 Gujarat 289).

Bank Guarantee and Injunction: See Road Machines (India) Pvt. Ltd. v. The Projects & Equipment Corporation of India Ltd. AIR 1983 Calcutta 91 where the court refused an injunction to restrain a bank from making payment under a bank guarantee.

P. 1115, add the following at the end of para headed 'At interlocutory stage':

A temporary mandatory injunction can be issued only in case of extreme hardship and compelling circumstances and mostly in those cases when status quo existing on the date of the institution of the suit is to be restored (M/s Magnum Films and another v. Golcha Properties Pvt. Ltd. AIR 1983 Delhi 392).

P. 1116, add in fn. 54:

See, also, Surat Municipal Corporation v. Rameshchandra Shantilal Parikh AIR 1986 Gujarat 50.

P. 1117, after the text corresponding to fn. 63:

A court granted an interim mandatory injunction requiring the defendant respondent to return possession of the premises to the plaintiff when the defendant, during the interval between the dismissal of the suit and filing of the appeal, managed to put his lock on the premises. Absence of prayer for mandatory relief was not a bar to granting such relief (Bhupatlal Govindji v. Bhanumati Dayalal AIR 1984 Gujarat 10).

P. 1117, add the following in the paragraph headed 'Contracts':

In Khawaz Bux v. Mirza Mohammad Ismail (AIR 1984 Allahabad 83) the Court issued a mandatory injunction directing the defendant to forthwith execute the necessary documents required to effectuate the transfer of permit (under the Motor Vehicles Act) in favour of the plaintiff.

P. 1118, after the text corresponding to fn. 70:

Where the defendant encroached upon the property of the plaintiff by erecting a wall, but the plaintiff, who filed the suit about 9 years after the event and prayed for removal of the wall four years later, was found to have acquiesced therein, the Court declined to order the removal of the wall (Krothapalli Satyanarayana v. Koganti Ramaiah and others AIR 1983 Supreme Court 452).

P. 1118, after the text corresponding to fn. 65:

An injunction was issued against Commissioner, Corporation of the City of Bangalore, at the instance of the tenants of a building when the Corporation issued a notice to the landlord for demolition of the building without observing the principles of natural justice (Commissioner, Corporation of the City of Bangalore v. M/s Kapoorchand Brothers, Bangalore and etc. AIR 1982 Karnataka 23).

P. 1120, after the text corresponding to fn. 87:

Party-Wall. Raising of a party-wall without the consent of other tenant-in-common is permissible if no damage is suffered by him. A party-wall is ordinarily a solid wall throughout its entire extent. It follows that co-owners of the wall do not have a right to open ventilators or windows or other openings in it except by an agreement with the other owner or under a statutory provision. An injunction, therefore, cannot be issued to prevent the raising of a party wall if no damage is suffered by the plaintiff. Nor can mandatory injunction be issued to prevent a co-owner from filling up the openings or to compel him to restore the openings (Sardari Lal Gupta v. Siri Krishan Aggarwal AIR 1984 P & H 439).

P. 1120, after the text corresponding to fn. 88:

Where there was an easy and more convenient alternative way of going to the properties of the plaintiff, mandatory injunction was refused and it was held that the plaintiff could be compensated by award of money in lieu of injunction (Inder Lal & Others v. Abdul Salam and Others AIR 1983 Rajasthan 57).

P. 1120, after the text corresponding to fn. 89:

An injunction was granted restraining the working of a brick kiln where it was likely not merely to cause some damage to the plaintiff's grove but was bound to destroy it altogether and loss could not be awarded for the loss that would be caused by total destruction of the grove (M/s Ganga Bricks Udhyog & others v. Jai Bhagwan Swarup and anr. AIR 1982 All. 333).

P. 1120, after the text corresponding to fn. 90:

Purchaser's right to injunction. A purchaser of land may maintain a suit for injunction against a person who is in mere physical custody, as distinguished from possession, of the property on behalf of the vendors from disturbing the plaintiff-purchaser's possession (Patel Naranbhai Jhinabhai v. Patel Gopaldas Venidas AIR 1982 Gujarat 340).

Licensor and Licensee. Upon termination of a license, a suit for mandatory injunction by the Licensor against the Licensee is maintainable (E. P. George v. Thomas John AIR 1984 Kerala 224). Where a suit in effect was a suit for possession, the relief should not be denied merely because the plaint is couched in terms of a suit for a mandatory injunction (Sant Lal Jain v. Avtar Singh AIR 1985 Supreme Court 857).

P. 1122, after the text corresponding to fn. 3:

Where the encroachment by the defendant was doubtful and the Court afforded opportunity to amend the plaint to include a claim for monetary compensation and the plaintiff did not avail of the opportunity, the Court dismissed the suit seeking demolition of alleged encroachment (Chandra Bhan Singh v. Sheo Shankar (deceased by LRs) and others, AIR 1984 Allahabad 92).

See, also, Gopal Chandra Chaudhury v. The Life Insurance Corporation of India AIR 1985 Orissa 120.

P. 1123, add the following paragraphs before the paragraph headed "Proceedings–Small Causes Court and Arbitrator":

The Supreme Court considered the provisions of Section 41(b) in the context of Section 37 of the Specific Relief Act and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and observed as follows:

"Section 41(b) denies to the Court the jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining any person from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding in a court which is not subordinate to the Court from which the injunction is sought. The Court can still grant an injunction restraining a person from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding in a Court which is subordinate to the Court from which injunction is sought. As a necessary corollary, it would follow that the Court is precluded from granting an injunction restrain-ing any person from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding in a Court of co-ordinate or superior jurisdiction.

Expression 'Injunction' in Section 41(b) is not qualified by any adjective and therefore, it would comprehend both interim and perpetual injunction. It is however, true that Section 34 specifically provides that temporary injunctions are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure. But if a dichotomy is introduced by confining Section 41 to perpetual injunction only and Section 37 read with Order 39 of Code of Civil Procedure being confined to temporary injunction an unnecessary grey area will develop.

The Court can in appropriate cases grant temporary injunction in exercise of its inherent powers in cases not covered by order 39 of the Code of Civil Procedure. But while exercising this inherent power, the Court should not overlook the statutory provision which clearly indicates that injunction to restrain initiation of proceedings cannot be granted. Section 41(b) is one such provision. And inherent power of the Court cannot be invoked to nullify or stultify a statutory provision."

An interim injunction to restrain filing of winding-up petition was, accordingly refused (Cotton Corporation of India Ltd. v. United Industrial Bank Limited & Ors. AIR 1983 Supreme Court 1272). (See, also, Sarat Chandra Panda v. Hari Das & Others AIR 1983 Orissa 196).

P. 1123, add in fn. 7:

See, also, M/s Udyogsilpa Pvt. Ltd. v. State of Orissa & Others, AIR 1983 Orissa 168.

P. 1123, after the text corresponding to fn. 8:

Where the injunction sought was not to prevent multiplicity of proceedings and was sought against certificate officer who was not subordinate to the Court from which injunction was sought, the relief of permanent injunction could not be granted (M/s Udyogsilpa Pvt. Ltd. v. State of Orissa & Others, AIR 1983 Orissa 168).

P. 1124, after the text re "clause (g) Acquiescence":

The provisions of Section 41 can be attracted at the threshold (interim application stage) to cases where there is no dispute in regard to the facts which would attract the application of relevant provision of Section 41 barring the jurisdiction of the Court in regard to the granting of injunction and by implication prohibiting the entertaining of injunction suit in question (M. Holkar and another v. A.P. Srihan AIR 1985 P & H. 24). However, in a similar case, the same Court refused ad interim injunction M/s Ram Gopal Banarsi Dass v. Satish Kumar AIR 1986 P & H 52 (Full Bench).

P. 1124, after the text corresponding to fn. 18:

An injunction restraining a bank from giving effect to its call off notice to the plaintiff, however, could not be granted. In this case, the plaintiff's own conduct also disentitled him to an injunction (State Bank of India v. J.S. Ramamoorthy AIR 1982 Madras 197).

P. 1124, after the text corresponding to fn. 19:

Where the effect of the order passed by the City Civil Court (a Subordinate Court) is clearly to prohibit and/or restrain the decree-holder from proceeding any further with the execution despite the order of execution passed by the High Court. Sec. 41(b) is attracted (Anil Kumar Sinha & others v. Subhas Kumar Sinha & others AIR 1985 Cal. 315).

P. 1124, add in fn. 19:

But, now, see Cotton Corporation of India Ltd. v. United Industrial Bank Ltd. & Ors. AIR 1983 Supreme Court 1272.

P. 1126, add in fn. 36:

See, also, M/s Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. J. M. Baxi & Co. Ltd. AIR 1986 Delhi 336.

P. 1127, after the text corresponding to fn. 47:

Delhi High Court, in Modern Food Industries India Ltd. v. M/s Shri Krishna Bottlers (P) Ltd. AIR 1984 Delhi 119 declined to grant injunction for enforcement of a negative covenant in a franchise agreement which required the defendant not to manufacture or bottle soft drinks other than those of the plaintiff. The Court felt that considerable damage would be done to the defendants while the plaintiff would not be hit so hard in the facts and circumstances of the case.

P. 1130, add the following at the beginning of the page:

Bank Guarantee and Injunction. See Road Machines (India) Pvt. Ltd. v. The Projects & Equipment Corporation of India Ltd. AIR 1983 Calcutta 91 where the Court refused an injunction to restrain a bank from making payment under a bank guarantee.

TABLE OF CASES TO THE ADDENDA

ACC Babcock Ltd. v. Straw Products Ltd, clxxii
A. P. Kochudevassy v. State of Kerala, clviii, clxvi
A.T. Brij Paul Singh & Bros. v. State of Gujarat, clxviii, clxix
Abdul Hakim & another v. Ahmad Khan, cxcvi
Abdul Jabbar v. Abdul Muthaliff, clix, clx
Abdulla Haji Adam Sait Dharuvasthaparam v. T. V. Hameed, clxvi, clxix
All Bengal Transport Agency and Others v. Hare Krishna Banik, clxi
Alliance Mills (Lessees) Pvt. Ltd. and anr. v. Union of india & Ors., clxxi, clxxii
Alok Kumar Aich v. Asoke Kumar Aich & Ors., clv
Amar Krishna Mukherjee, v. Smt. Asha Rani Ghosh & others, clvii, cxc
American Pipe Company v. State of Uttar Pradesh, clii, clxii
Amrao Singh & others v. Sanatan Dharam Sabha, Chandigarh, cxciv
Andalammal v. Rajeshwari Vedachalam (deceased by L.R.) and others, clvi
Andard Mount (London) Ltd., England v. Curewell (India) Ltd., clxii, clxviii, clxix
Anil Kumar Sinha and others v. Subhas Kumar Sinha & others, cxci, cxcix
Anjuman Islamia v. Najini Ali & Or. cxcii
Anne Besant Girls High School v. Deputy Director of Public Instruction & Ors., cxcii
Assar Alikhan & another v. Baijnath Prasad, clxvii
Autar Singh & others v. Th. Atma Singh & Others, cxcii
Ayyaswami Gounder and others v. Munnuswamy Gounder & others, cxcvi

Babulal v. M/s Hazari Lal Kishori Lal & others, clxxxix
Balaram Barik & others v. Banambava Maharana, clxxxix
Balkrishna Gupta and Ors. v. Swadeshi Polytext Ltd., clxxvii
Banwari Lal Radhe Mohan v. Punjab State Cooperative Supply & Marketing Federation Ltd., clxxii, clxxiii
Basant Rhymers, Alwar v. State Chemical Pharmaceuticals Corporation of India Ltd. & anr., clxxii
Bazpur Cooperative Sugar Factory Limited v. Surendra Mohan Agarwal, clxiii, clxviii
Bhagwani Bai v. L.I.C. of India, clvii
Bhagauti Prasad Khetan and etc. v. Laxminathji Maharaj and etc., cxci
Bhanwar Singh v. Raghubir Nanwa Singh & Ors., clxxxi, clxxxiv
Bharti Surendra Shah v. Surendra Ramanlal Shah, cxcii
Bhupatlal Govindji v. Bhanumati Dayalal, cxcvii
Bijai Bahadur and others v. Shri Shiv Kumar & anr., clxxxv
Bindeshwar Narayan Singh & others v. Managing Committee, Shri Sundermal Hindi High School & others, cxciii
Bishambhar Dayal v. Vishwanath, clx
Board of Trustees, Bombay Port and Ors. v. Mrs. Sriyansh Knitters, clxxvii
Bottle Glass Pvt. Ltd. v. U.O.I., clxxii

C.I. Abraham v. K.A. Cheriyan, clxvi
C.I.T. v. M/s Shantilal & Co. Pvt. Ltd., clxix
C.V. Enterprises v. M/s Braithwaite and Co. Ltd. and Ors., clii
Chandra Bhan Singh v. Sheo Shankar (deceased by LRs) and others, cxcviii
Chater Bhuj Goel v. Gurpeet Singh, clxxxvi
Chennuru Ramarao v. Gowri Shanker Talkies, Tekkali & others, clviii
Chet Ram and Others v. Sawanu Ram & Ors, clx
Chitui Naga v. Onhen Kuku, cxcii
Citibank N.A., v. Jaggilal Kamalpat Jute Mills Co. Ltd., clxxiv, clxxv
Clara Aurora de Braganca & ors v. Mrs. Sylvia Angela Alvares, cliv, cxc
Cochin Port Trust v. Associated Cotton Traders Ltd., clxxv, clxxvi
Commissioner, Corporation of the City of Bangalore v. M/s Kapoorchand Brothers, Bangalore and etc., cxcvii
Cotton Corporation of India Ltd. v. United Industrial Bank Ltd. & ors., cxcv, cxcvi, cxcix, cc

D.T.H. Construction (P) Ltd. v. Steel Authority of India Ltd., clxxii
Damodar Paints Pvt. Ltd. v. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., Delhi, and Anr., cxcvi
Daya Shankar v. Bachi, clv, clvi
Debabrata Tarafder v. Biraj Mohan Bardhan, clxxxviii
Deo Nandan (deceased, by L.R.s.) v. Chhote, cliii, cliv
Deota Prasad v. Tribhuwan & Ors., clvi
Dhian Singh v. Tara Chand and anr., clxxxiv
Dhiraj Bala Karia v. Jethia Estate Pvt. Ltd., clxxxix, cxc
Diwali Lal & Ors v. Sardar Baldev Singh and anr.,

clxxxiv, clxxxv
Doshi Mohanlal Duralabhji, v. Savarkundla Municipality, cxcv
Duggirala Balarama Krishnayya v. Arokapudi Jagannadha Rao, clx
Dunia Lal Datta v. Nagendra Nath Datta, cxc, cxci, cxcii
Durga Thakurani Bije Nijigarh & others v. Chintamani Swain & others, cliii

E.P. George v. Thomas John cxcviii
Eastern Bank Ltd. v. Parts Services of India Ltd., clxxiv

Fatechand Murlidhar and etc. v. Maharashtra State Electricity Board, cli
Firm Durga Prasad Magniram v. Dr. Ganesh Prasad, clviii, clxv
Frick India Ltd. v. M/s Sharma Cold Storage & Ice Factory (P) Ltd. clxi

Ganesh Prasad v. Saraswati Devi and others, clxxxiv
Ganga Bricks Udhyog & others v. Jai Bhagwan Swarup and anr., cxcviii
Ganpatrai Agarwal v. The Fertilizer Corporation of India, clxi
Gantok Auto Works Pvt. Ltd. & Ors. v. Tobgyal Wangchuk Tenzing Namgyal and Ors., clxiv
Gopal Chandra Chaudhury v. The Life Insurance Corporation of India, cxcviii
Gopal Debjibhai Patel v. Rishal Singh and anr., clxxxii
Government of State of Orissa v. Jaldu Rama Rao & Company, cxci
Gujarat Electricity Board, Gandhinagar v. M/s Mahesh Kumar & Co., clxxxi, clxxxiii, clxxxvii, cxciv, cxcvii
Gulab Chand Prasad v. Budhwanti and another, clx
Gurbax Rai & Ors. v. Punjab National Bank, clxxvii
Gurucharansingh & others v. Mst. Gurdayal Kaur & others, cxc
Gyasuddin v. Allah Tala Waqf Mausuma and anr., cxci

H. G. Krishna Reddy & Co. v. M. M. Thimmiah & anr., cli, clii, clxxxii
H. Mohamed Khan (deceased by L.R.s.) and Ors. v. Andhra Bank Ltd., clxxi
Haji Fatma Bee v. Prahlad singh, clxv
Hajra Bai & others v. Jadhavbai, clv, clvii
Hamsmmal v. P. V. Thakkar, clxxxvi
Harbans Atma Singh v. Ramesh Kumar, clxxxvi, clxxxviii
Harbilas v. Roshan Lal, clxix
Hari Satya Banerjee & Others, v. Mahadev Banerjee & Others, cliii
Hari Shankar v. Kailash Narayan & others, cxciii
Hari Shankar & Ors. v. Satya Prakash and another, clxxx, cxciii
Harprashad & Co. Ltd. v. M/s. Sudarshan Steel Rolling Mills & Ors., clxxiii
Himachal Fruit-Growers Co-operative Marketing and Processing Society Ltd. v. Upper India Food Preservers and Processors (P) Ltd., clxii
Himachal Pradesh State Forest Corporation v. Harichand, clxix
Hukum Chand v. Hazra Begum & Ors, AIR, clvi
Hyderabad Municipal Corporation v. M. Krishnaswami Mudaliar & anr, clxiii, clxviii

I.T. Commissioner, Bombay v. M/s Shantilal Pvt. Ltd., clxiv
Ideal Bank Ltd. v. Pride of India Pictures Ltd., clxxvii
Inder Lal & Others v. Abdul Salam and Others, cxcviii
Indian Drugs & Pharmaceuticals Ltd. v. Industrial Oxygen Co. Ltd., clxx
Industrial Finance Corporation of India and another v. M/s. Sehgal Papers Ltd. & Others clxii, clxv

Jadavendra Narayan Choudhury v. State of West Bengal & Ors clxvii
Jagannath Tewar v. Dr. Gopal Prasad, clxv
Jagdish Rai & others v. Abdul Wahab, cxcv
Jamna Auto Industries v. UOI & Others, clxi
Jayantilal Goel v. Smt. Zubeda Khannum, clxv
Jethruse D'Souza & Ors. v. Catherine D'Souza, clxvi
John v. Mammootty, clxxxiii

K. Abdulkhadar v. The Plantation Corporation of Kerala, clix, clxii
K. Kalliah v. Ningegowda, clxiii
K. Madhadeva Sastri v. Director, Post-Graduate Centre, Anantpur, cxci
K.S.R. Chakrapani Chettiar v. S. Guruswami Reddiar, clx
K. Sambasiva Rao v. P. Bangaru Raju, clxxxiv, clxxxvii
Kanhaiyalal v. Mulla Abdul Hussain (deceased by L.R.s) and others, cxc
Kharavela Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Orissa State Finance Corporation & Ors., clxiv
Khawaz Bux v. Mirza Mohammad Ismail, clix, cxcvi, cxcvii
Kiran Bala Asthana and anr. v. Bhaire Prasad Srivastava, clvi, clvii
Krishna Kishore Kar v. United Commercial Bank and anr., clxxvi
Krothapalli Satyanarayana v. Koganti Ramaiah and others, cxcvii
Kumar Kalyan Prasad and anr. v. Kulanand Vaidik and others, clxxx
Kumud Agarwalla v. Fertilizer Corporation of India Ltd., clxi
Kunjukrishnan v. State of Kerala, clxiii
Kuppanagari Sreeramamurthy and others v. Pydi

Andarao & others, clviii
Kuri Lal Rungta v. Smt. Banarasi Devi & Ors., clxxviii

L.I.C. of India v. R. Vasireddy, clii, cliii
L.N. Gupta & Others v. Smt. Tara Mani, clxii
Lalit Mohan Taran v. Lal Mohan Deb and others, clxxxviii
Lotu Bandu Sonavane v. Pundalik Nimba Koli, clxxxviii

M. G. Brothers Lorry Service v. M/s. Prasad Textiles, clix
M.K. Ansari v. U.O.I., clxx
M. John Kotaiah v. A. Divakar & Ors., clxxix
M. Holkar and another v. A. P. Srihan, cxcix
M.R.S. Ramakrishnan v. The Assistant Director of Ex-Servicemen Welfare (District Soldiers, Sailors & Airmen Board) Tiruchirapalli, & Others, clxxx
Magnum Films and anr. v. Golcha Properties Pvt. Ltd., cli, clxiv, cxciii, cxcvii
Mahabir Saha v. Haripada Saha & Ors, clv
Maharashtra Apex Corporation Ltd. v. Poovappa Salian and Anr., clxxv
Maharashtra State Electricity Board, Bombay v. The Official Liquidator, High Court, Ernakulam and anr, clxxiii, clxxiv
Mahomedshariff Kasamji Rangawala v. Amibai Allabux Rangawala and Anr., clxxx
Malik Abdul Ahad Shah Jalil Ahmad Akhtar v. State of Jammu & Kashmir, clxv, clxvii
Mallvarapu Suryanarayana Murthy & Ors. v. Buddaraju Surnarayana Raju & Ors., clxx
Manda Suryakanthamma v. District Registrar of Assurance, Srikakulam, clxxi
Mandakini Pundalik Salkar v. Chandrasen Raiker, clvii
Mangninath Tiwary & others v. Phool Mohammad Dhobi & Ors., cxci
Manik Chand v. Ramachandra, clxxxvii
Manni Devi v. Ramayan Singh, clxii
Mehru v. Mohan Lal & Ors., clxx
Industrial & Mining Equipment Co. Pvt. Ltd. Delhi v. N. L. Kanodia & Ors., clxxxi
Mir Abdul Jalil v. State of West Bangal, clxvii
Mizra Javed Murtaza v. U.P. Financial Corporation, clxvii, clxx, clxxi
Misra & Company v. Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd., cxciii
Mithu Khan v. Ms. Pipariawali & Ors., clxi, clxxxiv
Miti Bewa v. Daitari Nayak & Ors., clv
Modern Food Industries India Ltd. v. M/s Shri Krishna Bottlers (P) Ltd., cc
Modi Sugar Mills Ltd. v. U.O.I., clxvi
Mogilipuvvu Annapurnaiah v. Melampati Narasimha Rao and anr., cxcv
Mohd. Hanif (deceased by LRs) and others v. Mariam Begum and Others, clxxxvi, clxxxix
Mohd. Usman v. U.O.I. and Ors. clxiv
Mohammad Hussain Suleman Shaikh and Anr. v. Batukbhai Valjibhai and others, clxxxi
Mool Raj v. Atma Ram, cxci
Munna Lal v. Smt. Krishna Kumari and another, clxxxvi
Munni v. Atma Ram clxxix
Mysore Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Manohar Metal Industries, clxviii

N. Kullayyappa and anr. v. N. Dastagiri Saheb, clxx
N. R. Srinivasa v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd., clxxvi
N. Sulochana v. State of A.P., clxxiv
N. V. Chowdary v. Hindustan Steel Works Constr. Ltd., clxiii
Nagarwali Devi & others v. Girjapati Tewari and others, cxcvi
Nanalal M. Varma v. State of A.P., clxvii
National Project Construction Corporation Ltd. v. M/s. g. Ranjan, clxxii
Naveen Chandra Sharma v. 6th Additional District and Sessions Judge, Meerut, clix
Nirbhayasingh v. Shankarlal & Others, cxciii
Nokhia & Ors v. State of H.P., cliv

Oil & Natural Gas Commission & Ors. v. M/s Shyam Sunder Agarwalla & Co., clxvi
Onkar Nah and anr. v. Basheer and others, cxc
Orissa Agro Industries Corporation Ltd. and Ors. v. Sarabeswar Guru and Ors., clxxiv, clxxv

PL CT SP Subramaniam Chettiar v. Muthiah Chettiar & Ors., clxiv
Paidi Laxmayya v. Indian Bank Ltd., clxvi
Palthur Hunnur Saheb v. Bopanna Annapumamma & others, clxxxiv
Patel Naranbhai Jhinabhai v. Patel Gopaldas Vendisas, cxcviii
Patel Roadways Pvt. Ltd. v. Bata India Ltd., clx
Patel Roadways Pvt. Ltd. v. The Republic Forge Co. Ltd., clxi
Patil Exhibitors (Pvt.) Ltd. v. The Corporation of the City of Bangalore, clxxx
Patnaik Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. Kalinga Iron Works & another, clxi
Pesticides India v. State Chemicals and Pharmaceuticals Corporation of India Ltd. & Ors., clxxi
Prabhudas Kalyanji and others v. Haji Hasan Haji Yusuf Maklal & others, cxciv
Prag Datt v. Smt. Saraswati Devi and anr. cli, clxxxviii
Prestolite of India Ltd. v. Union Bank of India & Others, clxxviii
Punjab National Bank v. Mehra Brothers (P) Ltd., (in Liqn), clxxiii, clxxv
Punj Sons Pvt. Ltd. v. U.O.I., clxiii
Purushottam Vishindas Raheja v. L.I.C. & others, clxxxvi

Raghavendra Narain Shah v. Motilal Gupta &

others, cxcv
Rahat Jan v. Hafiz Mohammad Usman and Ors., clxxxv, clxx, clxxxix
Rajasthan Handicrafts Emporium v. Pan American World Airways and Others, clx
Rajkumar Singhania v. Benoy Kumar Muzumdar & Ors., clxxxix
Raman & Co. v. U.O.I. and anr., clxxvi
Ram Briksha Singh & Ors. v. Rudra Narain Singh (deceased by L.R.s.), clxxxvi
Ram Chandra Singh v. Basdeo Singh and anr., cliv, clx
Ram Dass & others v. Krishan Dev and another, clx
Rameshwar Singh v. Hari Narayan Singh and others, clxxxvi
Ram Gopal Banarsi Dass v. Satish Kumar, cxcix
Raminder Singh and Anr. v. Sham Lal & anr., clxxxi, clxxxiv, clxxxvi
Ram Niwas v. Smt. Omkari and anr., clxxxii
Ram Singhasan Choubey & Ors. v. Sudama Prasad Sah, clxxxiv
Ram Suchit and anr. v. 1st Additional Dist. Judge, Gorakhpur, clxxxix
Ram Swarup Gaur and anr. v. Ratiram, clxiv
Ramswarup Prasad v. Budhdeo Sao & ors. clviii
Ramswaroop Singh & others v. Bijoy Kumar Singh, clxxxiv
Ranganayakamma v. N. Govinda Narayan, clxxxvii
Road Machines (India) Pvt. Ltd. v. The Projects & Equipment Corporation of India Ltd., clxxii, cxcvii, cc
Roomal & Ors. v. Siri Niwas clxxxi, clxxxii, clxxxvii

S.K.A.R.S.M. Ramanathan Chettiar v. National Textile Corporation Ltd., clxviii
S.K. Panchaksharam Mudaliar & others v. T.V. Kanniah Naidu & others, clxxxvii
S. Paul & Co. v. State of Tripura & Ors, clxxix
Sabina D'Costa v. Joseph Anthony Noronha, clxx
Sahida Bibi v. S.K. Golam Mohammad, clxxxv, clxxxix
Sant Lal Jain v. Avtar Singh, cxcviii
Saraswati Devi v. Moti Lal, clxxix
Sarat Chandra Panda v. Hari Das & Others, cxcv, cxcix
Saraya Distillery v. U.O.I. anr, clxviii
Sardari Lal Gupta v. Siri Krishan Aggarwal, cxcvi, cxcviii
Sarwar Husain & others v. Additional Civil Judge, Moradabad and others, cxciii, cxciv
Shafiq Ahamad v. Smt. Syeedan, clxxxiv
Shah Jitendra Nanalal v. Patel Lallubhai Ishverbhai, clxxxi, clxxxiii
Shah Jugaldas Amritlal v. Shah Harilal Talakchand, clxxvi, clxxviii
Shaikh Dawood & Ors. v. Mahmooda Begum & Ors, clxxi
Shakuntala v. Hira Nand Sharma and Others, cxcvi
Shriram Refrigeration Industries Ltd. and anr. v. State Bank of India and anr., clxxx
Steel Authority of India Ltd. v. Transworld Marine Ltd. & another, clxxix
Shobhabati v. Lakshmi Chand & Ors., clxxxi
Special Secretary to Government of Rajasthan (Finance), Jaipur, The, Rajasthan & others v. Vedakantara Venkataramana Seshaiyer & others, cli, clii
Sri Durga Thakurani Bije Nijigarh and others v. Chintamani Swain & others, clxxxvii
Sri Narayan Gosain & Ors. v. Collector, Cuttack & Ors, cliii
Sri Sri Iswar Kalimata Thakurani v. Shebaits of Sri Sri Iswara Kalimata Thakurani & Ors., cxci
State v. Board of Revenue, Gwalior, clviii, clix
State Bank of Bikaner and Jaipur v. Firm Ballabh Das & Sons, cxcv
State Bank of India v. J.S. Ramamoorthy, cxcv, cxcix
State Bank of India v. M/s. Premco Saw Mills, clxxiii
State Bank of India v. M/s. Quality Bread Factory, Batala & Ors. clxiv, clxxv-clxxviii
State of Gujarat v. M/s. M. K. Patel & Co., clxx
State of Kerala v. K. Bhaskaran, clxix
State of Kerala & Ors. v. M/s United Shippers & Dredgers Ltd., clxxi
State of Orissa v. Ananda Prasad Mandal, clxvii
State of Orissa v. Goenka Investment & Mining Industries Pvt.Ltd. & Ors., clxxix
State of Orissa and anr. v. Puri Municipality & Ors., cxcv
State of Rajasthan v. Associated Stone Industries (Kotah) Ltd., clxv
Samad Dar v. Mohamed Ismail Tantrary, cxci
Subhash Chandra v. Nagar Palika, Kanpur, cli
Subhaschandra v. Narbadabai clix
Subhash Chandra Jain v. Feroze Khan & Ors, clxxviii
Sujan Singh Sadhana v. Mekham Chand Jain (deceased by L.R.s.) and others, clx, clxxxiii
Sunil Chandra Ghosh v. Hemendra Kr. Deb, clxxxvii
Sunity Chandra Bose v. Nil Ratan Sinha, cxc
Surat Municipal Corporation v. Rameshchandra Shantilal Parikh, cxcvi, cxcvii
Suresh Chandra v. Satish Chandra, clxv
Surta Singh v. Pritam Singh cliii
Syndicate Bank v. I.K. Amitha and Ors., clxxviii
Syndicate Bank v. Official Liquidator, M/s Prashant Engineering Co. (P) Ltd., clxxvii, clxxviii

T.S. Kotagi v. Tahsildar Gadag & Others, clxxvii, clxxiii
T.T. Augustine, v. Changanacherry Municipality clx
Takri Devi v. Smt. Rama Dogra & Ors, cliv
Tapan Kumar Chatterjee v. Kalyani Debi, cxc
Time Properties & Promoters v. Delhi Development Authority cxciii

Tip Top v. Indramani Devi, clviii
Trimbak Shankar Tidke v. Nivratti Shankar Tidke, clxxxiv

U.O.I. v. M/s Commercial Metal Corporation and anr., clxvii
Udyogsilpa Pvt. Ltd. v. State of Orissa & Others, cxcix
Uma Devi & Ors v. Narayan Nayak & Ors., cxci
Umarani Sen & Ors v. Sudhir Kumar Datta & Ors., clxxviii
People Union for Democratic Rights & others v. Union of India, clxxxiii
Union of India and anr. v. Chinoy Chablani & Co., clxxix
United Commercial Bank v. Bank of India, clxxiii
United Commercial Bank v. Hanuman Synthetics Ltd., clxxi
U.P. State Electricity Board, Lucknow v. Ram Barai Prasad and anr., clxxxi
Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. J.M. Baxi & Co. Ltd., clxxxiii, cxciii, cxcv, cc
Usha Das (Roy) v. Smt. Arati Kar (Maiti), clxxxiii, cxcii
Uttam Singh Dugal and Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. Hindustan Steel Ltd., clxi

Varsha Engineering Pvt. Ltd. v. M/s Vijay Traders & Ors. clxxviii
Ved Prakash Gupta v. Shishu Pal Singh clxii, clxiv
Venkateswara Minerals, Firm and anr. v. Jugalkishore Chiranjitlal, Firm, clxii, clxiii, clxv
Vijaysingh Mohansingh Solanki v. Transport Manager, Ahmedabad Municipal Transport Service, Ahmedabad and anr., cliv
Vinayakappa Suryabhanappa Dahenkar v. Dulichand Hariram Murarka, clvi, clvii
Vinay Engineering v. Neyveli Lignite Corporation Ltd., clxxi, clxxii
Vipinbhai R Parekh v. General Manager, Western Railways, clxiv
Vishwanath Maharudra Matkari v. Jan Mohammed and anr., clxvii

Latest Judgement

P. 263, Section 23. Public policy — unconscionable bargain

In a very recent judgement of the Supreme Court, Central Inland Water Transport Corporation Ltd. and another v. Brojo Nath Ganguly and another (AIR. 1986 S.C. 1571), it is now held that new heads of public policy can be evolved in the light of Fundamental Rights and Directive Principles in the Constitution of India.

INDIAN CONTRACT
AND SPECIFIC RELIEF ACTS

THE INDIAN CONTRACT ACT
(ACT IX OF 1872)

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend certain parts of the law relating to contracts; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

Extent and Commencement.

It extends to the whole of India except the State of Jammu and Kashmir; and it shall come into force on the first day of September, 1872.

Enactments repealed.

Nothing herein contained shall affect the provisions of any Statute, Act or Regulation not hereby expressly repealed, nor any usage or custom of trade, nor any incident of any contract,[1] not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.

Law anterior to Contract Act, Introduction of English Law into India.—The charters of the eighteenth century which established Courts of justice[2] for the three presidency towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, introduced into their jurisdictions the English common and statute law in force at the time[3] so far as it was applicable to Indian circumstances.[4] It is, however, a matter of controversy whether English law was introduced by the charter of 1726 (13 Geo. I.) so as to extend to India the statutes passed up to that date only, or subsequently

---

1 The words "not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act" are not to be connected with the clause "nor any usage or custom of trade." In the section as cited by the Privy Council there is no comma after "contract": Irrawaddy Flotilla Co. v. Bugwandas (1891) 18 I.A. 121, at p. 127; 18 Cal. 620, at p. 627. See further under "Saving of usage or custom of trade, etc.," below.

2 These were at first the Mayors' Courts, which, in Calcutta, were superseded by the Supreme Court in 1773, and finally by the High Court in 1862. The Mayors' Courts in Madras and Bombay were replaced, in 1797, by the Recorders' Courts. The Recorder's Court in Madras was abolished in 1799, and that in Bombay in 1823, and a Supreme Court was established in its stead, which again was superseded by a High Court in both places in 1862.

3 Though this view of the introduction of English law into India was pronounced incorrect and unreasonable by the Indian Law Commissioners in their celebrated lex loci Report of 31st October, 1840, it may now be taken as an accepted doctrine. The Commissioners maintained that neither the Hindu nor the Mahomedan law was the lex loci of British India, as it was so interwoven with religion as to be unfitted for persons professing a different faith, and they held that, there being no lex loci, the English law became ipso jure the lex loci when any part of British India became a possession of the British Crown, and binding upon all persons who did not belong to the Hindu or Mahomedan community. They recommended the passing of an Act declaring a lex loci for British India founded on the English Law, but the recommendation was never carried into effect. See in this connection Naoroji v. Rogers (1867) 4 B.H.C. 1, 17—26; The Indian Chief (1801) 3 Robinson Adm. pp. 28, 29, where Lord Stowell showed a much juster understanding than the Indian Law Commissioners of the nature of Asiatic personal law; and the cases cited in the next note.

4 Thus it has been held that the Statute of Mortmain, 9 Geo. II. c. 36, does not apply to India (Mayor of Lyons v. East India Co. (1836) 1 M.I.A. 175; 43 R.R. 27, 83); similarly the law as to forfeiture for suicide (Adv.-Gen. of Bengal v. Ranee Surnomoye Dossee (1863) 9 M.I.A. 391) and the law as to maintenance and champerty (Ram Coomar v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee (1876) 4 I.A. 23) do not apply to India, as not being applicable to Indian circumstances.

also by the charters of 1753 and 1774 so as to embrace statutes up to 1774.[5]

Introduction of Hindu & Mahomedan Laws of Contract into India.—The indiscriminate application of English law to Hindus & Mahomedans within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts led to many inconveniences.[6] To obviate this, the statute of 1781 (21 Geo. III. c. 70, s. 17) empowered the Court at Calcutta (being then the Supreme Court), and the statute of 1797 (37 Geo. III c. 142, s. 13) empowered the Courts of Madras and Bombay (being then the Recorders' Courts), to determine all actions and suits against the inhabitants of the said towns, provided that their succession and inheritance to lands, rents, and goods, and all matters of contract and dealing between party and party, should be determined in the case of Mahomedans by the laws and usages of Mahomedans, and in the case of Gentoos (Hindus) by the laws and usages of Gentoos, and where only one of the parties should be a Mahomedan or Gentoo by the laws and usages of the defendant.[7] The effect of these statutes was to supersede English law so far as regards Hindus and Mahomedans in the case of contracts and other matters enumerated in the statutes, and to declare the right of Hindus and Mahomedans to their own laws and usages. The result was that in a suit on contract, for instance, between Hindus, the Hindu law of contract was applied, and the Mahomedan law in the case of a contract between Mahomedans, and this continued up to the enactment of the Indian Contract Act.

Hindu & Mahomedan Laws of Contracts as administered by High Courts.—The statute of 1781 applied to the Supreme Court at Calcutta, and the statute of 1797 applied to the Recorders' Courts in Madras and Bombay. In 1862 High Courts were established for each of the presidency towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, but the same personal law continued to be administered to Hindus and Mahomedans, and is administered to them even at the present day subject to legislative enactments. Turning to matters of contract, the Hindu law of contract was in fact applied by the High Courts in the exercise of their original jurisdiction to Hindus, and the Mahomedan law to Mahomedans, up to the passing of the Indian Contract Act in 1872, although the Courts to which the statutes of 1781 and 1797 were applicable had been abolished. The preservation of this jurisdiction appears to be accounted for by the charters of the High Courts. Taking the case of the Calcutta High Court, the combined effect of the Letter Patent of 1862 (cl. 18) and of the amended Letters Patent of 1865 (cl. 19)[8] was to render it incumbent upon the High Court to apply in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction the same law or equity that would have been applied by the Supreme Court. Now, the law or equity applied by the Supreme Court being under the statute of 1781 the Hindu law of contract to Hindus, and the Mahomedan law of contract to Mahomedans, the provision in that statute for applying the Hindu & Mahomedan laws of contract to Hindus & Mahomedans became incorporated by implication in the charters of 1862 as well as 1865, and in this manner that provision came to have effect in the High Court. This was, however, subject to the legislative powers of the Governor-General-in-Council as provided by the forty-fourth clause[9] of the charter of 1865. The Indian Legislature had, therefore, the power to alter by legislative enactment the provisions of cl. 19 of the charter, and this is done in the case of contracts by the Indian Contract Act. The result is that notwithstanding the provisions of cl. 19 of the 5 This question has not only a historical interest, derived from the trial and conviction of Nuncomar under the English statute of 1728 (2 Geo. II. c. 25). According to the view that only the statutes up to 1726 were introduced into India, the conviction under the statute of 1728 would be illegal. It would, however, be legal according to the other view, and that view was maintained by Sir James Stephen in his Nuncomar and Impey, vol. ii. See Ilbert on the Government of India, pp. 34-35.

---

6 Cowell's Courts and Legislative Authorities in India, 6th ed. p. 55. Under the Regulating Act, 1773, the Supreme Court of Calcutta practically exercised a general jurisdiction over the whole of Bengal.

7 For similar Indian enactments, see note (12), infra.

8 "And we do further ordain that with respect to the law or equity to be applied to each case coming before the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, such law or equity shall be the law or equity which would have been applied by the said High Court to such case if these Letters Patent had not issued."

9 "And we do further ordain and declare that all the provisions of these our Letters Patent are subject to the legislative powers of the Governor-General-in-Council, exercised at the meetings for the purpose of making laws and regulations, and also of the Governor-General in cases of emergency under the provisions of an Act of the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth years of our reign, chapter sixty-seven, and may be in all respects amended and altered thereby."

charter of 1865, which directs the High Court to apply the same law or equity that would have been applied by the Supreme Court (i.e., to apply, inter alia, the Hindu & Mahomedan laws of contract to Hindus & Mahomedans), the High Court has now to administer the law as laid down in the Indian Contract Act, whether the parties to the suit be Hindus, Mahomedans, or otherwise.[10] In other words, the "law or equity" required to be administered by the High Court under cl. 19 of the amended Letters Patent is, in matters of contract, modified by the Indian Contract Act and other enactments relating to particular contracts. Subject, however, to any law made by the Governor-General-in-Council, the High Courts are still bound, in the exercise of their ordinary original civil jurisdiction, to apply the Hindu & Mahomedan laws of contract to Hindus & Mahomedans as comprised in the expression "law or equity" in cl. 19.

As respects the High Courts in Madras and Bombay, the statute of 1797 contained a provision similar to that of the statute of 1781 for applying Hindu law to Hindus and Mahomedan law to Mahomedans. The statute of 1797, however, applied to the Recorders' Courts in Madras and Bombay. Those Courts were superseded by a Supreme Court in Madras in 1799, and in Bombay in 1823. The charter of the Supreme Court of Madras and that of the Supreme Court of Bombay contained similar provisions for the application of Hindu and Mahomedan law. The "law or equity" administered by the Supreme Courts in Madras and Bombay thus consisted in the application of Hindu law to Hindus and Mahomedan law to Mahomedans, and the same "law or equity" is directed to be applied by the High Courts in Madras and Bombay, by virtue of their charters (which closely resemble those of the Calcutta High Court), to cases coming before those Courts in the exercise of their ordinary original civil jurisdiction. S. 17 of the statute of 1781 and s. 13 of the statute of 1797 referred to above have been repealed by the Government of India Act, 1915. S. 112 of the latter Act reproduced the sections almost verbatim. This section in turn has been repealed by the Government of India Act, 1935, and reproduced in sec. 223 of that Act.

Law administered in Mufassal Courts.—The old Bengal Regulation III of 1793 (s. 21) directed the Judges in the Zilla and City Courts in cases where no specific rule existed to act according to justice, equity, and good conscience. Similar provisions occurred in the Madras Regulation II of 1802, s.17. Both these regulations are now repealed, but the direction to act, in the absence of any specific rule, according to justice, equity and good conscience, still retains its place in the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1887, s. 37, and in the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, s. 16.

As to the Courts in the Mufassal of Bombay, The Bombay Regulation IV of 1827, s. 26, which is still in force, provides that the law to be observed in the trial of suits shall be Acts of Parliament and Regulations of Government applicable to the case; in the absence of such Acts and Regulations, the usage of the country in which the suit arose; if none such appears, the law of the defendant, and in the absence of specific law and usage, equity and good conscience.

The expression "justice, equity, and good conscience" has been interpreted to mean the rules of English law so far as they are applicable to Indian society and circumstances.[11] This expression also occurs in Indian Acts relating to Civil Courts in other parts of India.[12]

Applicability of the Act.—The second clause of s. 1 of the Act says in the most general

---

10 See Madhub Chunder v. Rajcoomar Doss (1874) 14 B.L.R. 76.

11 Waghela Rajsanji v. Shekh Masludin (1887) 14 I.A. 89, 96; 11 Bom. 551, 561; Dada v. Babaji (1865) 2 B.H.C. 36, 38; Webbe v. Lester (1865) 2 B.H.C. 52, 56; Naresh Chandra v. Ram Chandra, 1952 A. Cal. 93; Gogun Chunder Ghose v. Dhuronidhur, 7 Cal. 616.

12 The Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, s. 37; the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, s. 5; the Central Provinces Laws Act, 1875, ss. 5, 6; the Oudh Laws Act, 1876, s. 3; and the Burma Laws Act, 1898, s. 13. Originally the words were synonymous with the rules of natural reason, or the law of nature; but "an Englishman would naturally interpret" them "as meaning such rules of English law as he happened to know and considered applicable to the case": Ilbert, Government of India, 2nd ed. 330. Thus the Common Law has acquired in India a kind of moral predominance like that which Roman law obtained, under the name of "written reason," in various regions of Continental Europe where it was not recognised as having positive authority, especially in the customary law provinces of France under the old monarchy. Cp. Pollock, The Expansion of the Common Law, pp. 132-134.

terms that the Act is to extend to the whole of India. Those words are large enough to include all Courts and persons of all denominations. The third clause of s. 1 provides that nothing contained in the Act shall affect the provisions of any statute not thereby expressly repealed. The schedule of the Act enumerates the enactments repealed by the Act, but this enumeration does not include the provision in the statutes of 1781 and 1797 directing Hindu law to be applied to Hindus and Mahomedan law to Mahomedans. This circumstance gave rise, in Madhub Chunder v. Rajcoomar Doss,[13] to a question as to the applicability of the Contract Act to Hindus in cases coming before the High Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction. The parties to the suit were Hindus, and the case came before the High Court of Calcutta in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction. On behalf of the plaintiff it was contended that the Contract Act did not apply, and that the case was governed, as provided by s. 17 of the statute of 1781, by the Hindu law of contract, which, it was alleged, did not render an agreement in restraint of trade void, as was done by s. 27 of the Act. It was, however, held that the Act did apply to Hindus, having regard to the general words used in cl. 2 of the section; as respects non-repeal of the statute of 1781, it was said that it was not necessary to repeal it, as the Supreme Court to which it applied had been abolished, and there was nothing left to which it could apply.

Scheme of Contract Act.—The scheme of the Indian Contract Act is that it enacts in ss. 1 to 75 provisions applicable in general to all contracts, and then deals separately with particular kinds of contract such as sale, guarantee, bailment, agency and partnership, and the scheme necessarily posits that all these transactions are based on agreements.[14] Partnership and sale of goods are no longer parts of the Contract Act as separate statutes have now been enacted dealing with these two subjects.

Scope of the Act.—The Contract Act does not profess to be a complete code dealing with the law relating to contracts. As appears from the preamble, the Act purports to do no more than define and amend certain parts of that law. No doubt it treats of particular contracts in separate chapters, but there is nothing to show that the Legislature intended to deal exhaustively with any particular chapter or subdivision of the law relating to contracts.[15]

But to the extent it deals with a subject, it is exhaustive upon the same and it is not permissible to import the principles of English Law dehors the statutory provisions;[16] unless the statute is such that it cannot be understood without the aid of English Law;[17] or where any matter cannot be brought within the provisions of the Contract Act.[18] The same view was taken of the similarly worded preamble of the Specific Relief Act (Act I of 1877).[19] It has been observed by Bhagwati J. that in Chapter V the Act deals with relations which are not contractual.[20]

English law if applicable.—Therefore the principles of English law cannot be introduced where the subject is dealt with by the Act. But if it is necessary to interpret the Act, the aid of

---

13 (1874) 14 B.L.R. 76.

14 The State of Madras v. Gannon Dunkerley & Co. Ltd. (1959) S.C.R. 379, 397; (1958) A.SC. 560; Sheikh Brothers Ltd. v. Ochsner (1957) A.C. 136; (1957) 2 W.L.R. 254, 260 P.C. (structure of the Act).

15 Irrawaddy Flotilla Co. v. Bugwandas (1891) 18 I.A. 121; 18 Cal. 620, 628, 629, cited in Jwaladutt R. Pillani v. Bansilal Motilal (1929) 56 I.A. 174, at p.178; 1929 A.P.C. 132, 133-4; Meghu Mian v. Kishun Ram, 1954 A.P. 477: Special Officer Amaravati v. Thirumalaswami (1973) 2 Mad. L.J. 361

16 Satyabrata Ghose v. Mugneeram Bangur & Co. (1954) S.C.R. 310, 319; (1954) A.SC. 44, 47; State of Punjab v. Hindustan Development Board (1960) 2 Punj. 676; (1960) A. Punj. 585; Mohoree Bibee v. Dhurmodas Ghose, 30 I.A. 114, 125; 30 Cal. 539, 548 (exhaustive and imperative); Gajanan v. Moreshwar, 44 Bom. L.R. 703: (1942) A.B. 302 (ss. 124 and 125); Burn & Co. v. Mcdonald, 36 Cal. 354; Kapur Chand Godha v. Mir Nawab Himayatali (1963) 2 S.C.R. 168, 178: (1963) A.SC. 250, 254; Superintendence Company of India v. Krishna Narain (1980) A.SC. 1717, 1721.

17 State of West Bengal v. B.K. Mondal (1962) 2 Supp. S.C.R. 876, 894, 912; (1962) A.SC. 779; Ramanandi Kuer v. Kalawati Kuer, 55 I.A. 18; 7 Pat. 221, 227.

18 F. Kanhayalal v. Dineshwar (1959) A.MP. 254; Mohoree Bibee v. Dhurmodas Ghose 30 I.A. 114; 30 Cal. 539 (P.C.); Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal & Co. (1966) A.SC. 543; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656.

19 Ramdas Khatau & Co. v. Atlas Mills Ltd., 55 Bom. 659; 1931 A.B. 151; Meghu Mian v. Kishan Ram (1954) A.P. 477.

20 Tan Bug Taim v. Collector of Bombay (1945) 47 Bom. L.R. 1010; 224 I.C. 476; (1946) A.B. 216.

English law may be pressed into service.[21]

Law codified.—Where the law is codified it is of little avail to enquire what is the law apart from such codification. The code itself must be looked to as the guide in the matter.[22] When a statute clearly covers a case, it is hardly necessary to refer to decisions.[23] The language of the provisions of the Contract Act cannot be enlarged, or construed narrowly or otherwise modified in order to bring the construction in accord with the scope and limitations governing the English doctrine.[24]In regard to the Law of Contract, the Courts in India have generally been guided by the Common Law of England where no statutory provision to the contrary is in existence.[25] The courts should examine the language of Indian statutes uninfluenced by any consideration derived from the English Law upon the subject.[26]

The decisions of Australian, Canadian and other Commonwealth courts and of the courts of the United States of America, when relevant, will have persuasive authority and will be listened to in courts in India with attention and respect as judgments of eminent men accustomed to expound the principles of jurisprudence similar to our own.[27] The law of England so far as it is consistent with the principles of equity and good conscience has generally prevailed in this country unless it conflicts with Hindu or Mahomedan Law.[28] The English Common Law and the concept of justice, equity and good conscience cannot be excepted, adapted or amended by a court where the power is given to the Central Government to do so and it has not done so.[29]

Railway Receipts and Bills of Lading and Way Bills.—In Ramdas v. Amerchand & Co.[30] the point for decision was whether a railway receipt was an "instrument of title" within the meaning of s. 103 of this Act. It was contended that it was not, for the following reasons: First, that the Indian Contract Act was primarily a consolidating Act, and therefore ought, in default of a clear expression to the contrary, to be read as embodying the law as existing when it was passed. Secondly, that it was improbable that the Indian Legislature could have taken the lead in a legal reform for which England had to wait until the passing of the English Factors Act of 1877. In dealing with these arguments, the Privy Council said: "Their Lordships cannot attach any weight to either consideration. The Indian Contract Act recites the expediency of defining and amending certain parts of the law relating to contracts. It is therefore an amending as well as a consolidating Act, and beyond the reasonable interpretation of its provisions there is no means of determining whether any particular section is intended to consolidate or amend the previously existing law. Again their Lordships do not see any improbability in the Indian Legislature having taken the lead in a legal reform. Such a reform may have been long recognized as desirable without an opportunity occurring for its embodiment in a legislative enactment, and it may well be that the opportunity occurred sooner in India than in this country, where the calls for legislative action are so much more numerous."

---

21 Superintendence Co. of India v. Krishna Margin (1980) A.SC. 1717, 1721-22; Satyabrata Ghosh v. Mugneeram (1954) S.C.R. 310; (1954) A.SC. 44.

22 Burn & Co. v. Mcdonald, 36 Cal. 354.

23 Kapur Chand Godha v. Mir Nawab Himayat Ali Khan (1963) 2 S.C.R. 168, 178; (1963) A.SC. 250, 254 (per S.K. Das J.).

24 State of Punjab v. Hindustan Development Ltd. (1960) 2 Punj. 676; 1960 A. Punj. 585; Secretary of State v. Sarin & Co., 11 Lah. 375; 1930 A.L. 364; Chhunna Mal Ramnath v. Moolchand Ram Bhagat, 55 I.A. 154; 9 Lah. 510; (1928) A.P.C. 99: observations of Jenkins C.J. in Abaji Sitaram v. Trimbak Municipality, 28 Bom. 66 not accepted; Mr. Ramanandi Kuer v. Mt. Kalawati Kuer, 55 I.A. 18; (1928) A.PC. 2, 4 (Case of Wills).

25 Bhagwandas v. Girdhar Lal (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656: (1966) A.SC. 543. 549.

26 Mt. Ramanandi Kuer v. Mt. Kalawati Kuer, 55 I.A. 18, 23; 7 Pat. 221, 227; State of Punjab v. Hindustan Development Board (1960) 2 Punj. 670; (1960) A. Punj. 585 (s. 70 of Contract Act).

27 In re C.P. Motor Spirit Act, 1939 F.C.R. 18; (1939) A.F.C. 1; Tan Bug Taim v. Collector of Bombay (1946) A.B. 216.

28 Per Garth C.J. in Gogun Chunder Ghose v. Dhuroninder, 7 Cal. 616.

29 Indian Airlines Corporation v. Madhuri Choudhri (1965) A.Cal. 252 (case relating to liability of aircraft carriers).

30 (1916) 43 I.A. 164, 170; 40 Bom. 630, 636; Morvi Mercantile Bank v. Union of India (1965) 3 S.C.R. 251; (1965) A.SC. 1954; Official Assignee v. Mercantile Bank Ltd., 61 I.A. 75; (1934) A.P.C. 246; Ibrahim v. Union Bank of India (1966) A.Guj. 6, 12. (But to a limited extent.)

A Bill of Lading partakes of the nature of a negotiable instrument and by endorsing it, the holder of the Bill of Lading can transfer the property in the goods and by parting with it the holder parts not only with the property in the goods but also with their possession.[31] The registration book of a motor vehicle in Malaya or in England is not a document of title, nor, it is submitted, is it in India.[32] A way bill issued by a public carrier receiving goods for carriage is not a document of title so as to authorise by endorsement of delivery the possessor of the document to transfer or receive the goods thereby represented.[33]

How far Hindu & Mahomedan Laws of Contract are still in force.—As stated above, the Contract Act does not cover the whole field of contract law. In cases, therefore, not provided for by the Contract Act or other legislative enactments relating to particular contracts, it is incumbent upon the High Courts, in the exercise of their original jurisdiction, to apply the Hindu law of contract to Hindus and the Mahomedan law of contract to Mahomedans. This is because of the provisions of the chapters of those Courts noted above, which substantially continued the direction in this respect of the Acts of 1781 and 1797.[34] As an instance of the above proposition may be mentioned the rule of the Hindu law of contract known as damdupat, according to which interest exceeding the amount of the principal cannot be recovered at any one time.[35] This rule is still in force in Maharashtra[36] and in the presidency town of Calcutta,[37] but it is not recognised outside that town[38] or in the Madras Presidency.[39] There is, however, a difference of opinion as to whether the rule is abrogated by the Transfer of Property Act, 1882,[40] as regards interest on mortgages governed by that Act. It has been held by the High Court of Madras that it is;[41] by the High Court of Bombay[42] and Calcutta,[43] that it is not. Another instance is the rule applicable to Hindus governed by the Mitakshara law in the Bombay Presidency, that in the case of a debt wrongfully withheld after demand of payment has been made, interest becomes payable from the date of demand by way of damages. This rule according to the Bombay High Court, is not affected either by the Interest Act, 1839, or by the Contract Act.[44] The rule, however, is not applied to Hindus in the Madras Presidency.[45] But such cases are very few, and the Hindu & Mahomedan laws of contract may, for all practical purposes, be regarded as having been superseded by the Contract Act and other enactments relating to particular contracts.

Act and Regulations not expressly repealed.—The law made by the Legislatures for the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, before the date of the Government of India

---

31 Modi Co. v. Union of India, 1969 A.SC. 9.

32 Sajan Singh v. Sardara Ali (1960) A.C. 167; (1960) 1 All E.R. 269; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 180 (P.C.) (Logbook in England).

33 Canara Industrial & Banking Syndicate v. Ramachandra (1968) A.Mys. 133; Morvi Mercantile Bank v. Union of India (1965) 3 S.C.R. 245; (1965) A.S.C. 1954, dist.; Ramdas v. S. Amer Chand, 43 I.A. 164; followed.

34 It will be seen from what is said above that the statement in Ilbert, Government of India, 2nd ed. p. 327, is not formally accurate so far as it implies that these provisions are still in force by virtue of the Acts themselves: yet in Madhwa Sidhanta v. Venkataramanjulu (1903) 26 Mad. 662, 670, the Act of 1797 was assumed to be still in force.

35 See The Rule of Damdupat, by Framjee R. Vicajee, in Journ. Soc. Comp. Legisl. for December, 1900, at p. 464.

36 Dhondu v. Narayan (1863) 1 B.H.C. 47; Khushalchand v. Ibrahim (1866) 3 B.H.C.A.C. 23; Nathubhai v. Mulchand (1868) 5 B.H.C.A.C. 196; Hakma Manji v. Meman Ayab (1870) 7 Bom. H.C.O.C. 19; Pavanaga v. Govind (1873) 10 Bom.H.C. 382; Ramchandra v. Bhimrav (1877) 1 Bom. 577; Ganpat v. Adarji (1877) 3 Bom. 312; Dawood v. Vullubhdas (1893) 18 Bom. 227; Gopal Ramchandra v. Gangaram Anand Shet (1895) 20 Bom. 721, over-ruling Shri Ganesh v. Keshavrav (1890) 15 Bom. 625; Harilal v. Nagar (1896) 21 Bom. 38; Ali Saheb v. Shabji (1895) 21 Bom. 85.

37 Nobin Chunder v. Romesh Chunder (1887) 14 Cal. 781.

38 Het Narain v. Ram Deni (1883) 12 Cal. L.R. 590.

39 Annaji Rou v. Ragubui (1883) 6 Mad. H.C. 400.

40 See ss. 86 and 88 of the Act. Both these sections have been repealed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and are reproduced in that Code in O. 34, rr. 2 and 4.

41 Madhwa Sidhanta v. Venkataramanjulu (1903) 26 Mad. 662.

42 Jeewanbai v. Manordas (1910) 35 Bom. 199.

43 Kunja Lal v. Narsamba (1915) 42 Cal. 826; 31 I.C. 6.

44 Saundanappa v. Shivbasawa (1907) 31 Bom. 354.

45 Subramania Aiyar v. Subramania Aiyar (1908) 18 Mad. L.J. 245.

Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 85), were known as "Regulations." The statute of 1833 established a legislature for the whole of British India, and the laws made under that statute, and the subsequent enactments modifying that statute, are known as "Acts." As regards the Regulations, it may be stated that a major part of them has been repealed by subsequent Indian legislation. Among the Acts relating to particular contracts and not expressly repealed by the Contract Act may be mentioned the following: The Interest Act, 1839, the Usury Laws Repeal Act, 1855, the Indian Bills of Lading Act, 1856, the Workman's Breach of Contract Act, 1859 (now repealed), the Merchant Shipping Acts (English) of 1854 and 1859, the Carriers Act, 1865, and the Policies of Insurance Assignment Act, 1866 (now repealed). The Acts enumerated above were passed before the enactment of the Contract Act. Among the Acts dealing with particular contracts and passed after that date may be noted the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, the Transfer of Property Act. 1882, Merchant Shipping Act, 1883 (now repealed), the Indian Emigration Act, 1883 (now repealed) and the Indian Railways Act, 1890.

Saving of usage or custom of trade, etc.—The term "usage of trade" is to be understood as referring to a particular usage to be established by evidence, and perfectly distinct from that general custom of merchants which is part of the law of the realm and is to be collected from decisions, legal principles, and analogies, and, according to the opinion now received, can still be increased by proof of living general (not merely local) usage.[46] Such a usage remains unaffected by the provisions of the Act, even though it may be inconsistent with those provisions. Both the reason of the thing and the grammatical construction of the section[47] require that the words "not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act" should not be connected with the clause "nor any usage or custom of trade," and apply only to the immediately preceding words "nor any incident of any contract." This view was taken by the Privy Council in Irrawaddy Flotilla Co. v. Bugwandas.[48] The contrary seems to have been assumed by the Bombay and Calcutta High Courts in two earlier cases.[49] Both these cases were considered by the Privy Council in the above case. In both these cases, again the opinion was expressed by the Bombay and Calcutta High Courts that the liability of a common carrier under the common law of England, which renders him liable for all loss or damage to goods except when caused by the act of God or the King's enemies, was a "usage of trade," the one Court holding that it was inconsistent, and the other that it was consistent, with the provisions of the Contract Act. In the Privy Council case cited above, their Lordships were inclined to the opinion that the liability of a common carrier under the English common law as an insurer of goods was not a usage of trade, but an "incident" of the contract quite consistent with the provisions of the Act. Such an incident is not inconsistent with the provisions of ss. 151 and 152 of the Act, having regard to the words "in the absence of any special contract" occurring in s. 152. All these cases are considered more fully in the notes to s. 151. See also as to "usage of trade" in the case of High Courts attorneys, s. 171 and In re McCorkindale,[50] there cited.

Not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.—A stipulation in a contract of guarantee that the surety shall not have the benefit of s. 133 has been held to be inconsistent with the Act.[51]

Evidence as to usage of trade.—In this connection may be noted the provisions of s.92(5) of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, which enacts that, though a contract may be in writing, oral evidence may be adduced to prove any usage or custom by which incidents not expressly mentioned in the contract are usually annexed to contracts of that description, provided that the annexing of such incident would not be repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms

---

46 See Bechuanaland Exploration Co. v. London Trading Bank (1898) 2 Q.B. 658; Edelstein v. Schuler & Co. (1902) 2 K.B. 144.

47 In the section as cited by the Privy Council, there is no comma after "contract": see (1891) 18 I.A. 121, at p. 127.

48 (1891) 18 I.A. 121, 127; 18 Cal. 620, 627.

49 Kuverji v. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway Co. (1878) 3 Bom. 109, 113; Moothora Kant Shaw v. The India General Steam Navigation Co. (1884) 10 Cal. 166, 185.

50 (1881) 6 Cal. 1. The exception cannot of course apply unless there is a trade, e.g., the profession of a barrister is not a trade: Nihal Chand v. Dilawar (1933) 5 All. 570; 143 I.C. 727; 1933 A.A. 417 (F.B.).

51 Chitguppi & Co. v. Vinayak Kasinath (1921) 45 Bom. 157; 58 I.C. 184. See under s. 133.

of the contract.[52] For commercial transactions see the cases undermentioned.[53] And further such incident should not be inconsistent with the general provisions of the Contract Act, having regard to the words "nor any incident of any contract not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act." This is a reproduction of the English law on the subject.[54] As to the evidence necessary to prove a usage of trade, it is enough if it appears to be so well known and acquiesced in that it may be reasonably presumed to have been an ingredient imported by the parties into their contract. To prove such a usage, there needs not either the antiquity, the uniformity, or the notoriety of custom in its technical sense; the usage may still be in course of growth, and may require evidence for its support in each case.[55] But the Mysore High Court has held that the usage to be recognised in the ordinary course of business must be certain, definite and Uniformally recognised in the ordinary course of business. No such usage was proved in that case that goods covered by a way bill of a public carrier must be delivered against its production.[56] See also Evidence Act, s.13(b).

Rule of damdupat.—Rule of damdupat applies only during the continuance of the contractual relationship of debtor and creditor. It ceases to be operative when the contractual relationship ends by reason of a judgment or decree.[57]

Law merchant.—The law merchant is far from immutable and it is open to any court to find on the basis of evidence that it has changed, or if a change has previously been judicially ascertained and established in other proceedings, to take notice of that change.[58]

Sections referring to usage or custom of trade.—S. 190 enacts that an agent cannot delegate his authority to another unless allowed by the "ordinary custom of trade." Similarly an agent is bound, in the absence of directions from the principal, to conduct business according to "the custom which prevails in doing business" of the same kind at the place where the agent conducts such business (s. 211). It may here be observed that the expression "usage or custom of trade" used in s. 1. as well as the sections referred to above, relates to a particular usage as distinguished from a general or universal usage. A general usage pervading all trades has no binding force, if it is inconsistent with the provisions of the Act. A general usage is equivalent to a general law, and no general law or usage in contravention of the general law laid down by the Contract Act can be consistent with the validity of the Act itself.[59]

Law applicable to aircraft.—Rules of English Common Law applicable in the case of aircraft carriers and contracts of exemption of liability will not be applicable in India because the Common Law is justice, equity, and good conscience. And if a rule is inequitable or the Common Law has been abrogated or modified by statute law in England, that rule of Common Law will not be applicable in India.[60] But this view was not accepted by a Bench of the Calcutta

---

52 See Ruttonsi Rowji v. Bombay United Spinning and Weaving Co. (1917) 41 Bom. 518, at pp. 538, 540; 37 I.C. 271.

53 London Export Corporation Ltd. v. Jubilee Coffee Roasting Co. (1958) 3 All E.R. 411; Juggomohan Ghosh v. Manick Chand, 7 M.I.A. 262, 282; Binay Krishna v. North Bengal Sugar Mills (1945) 2 Cal. 173; (1949) A. Cal. 490 (contract for supply of molasses); Hind Mercantile Association Ltd. v. Miryala Venkateshwarlu & Co. (1959) A.AP. 545 (contract for supply of groundnut oil); Se Se Oil v. Gorkharam Gokalchand (1962) 64 Bom. L.R. 113.

54 Per Cur. in Brown v. Byrne (1855) 3 E. & B. 715; 23 L.J.Q.B. 316; and in Hamfrey v. Dale (1857) 7 E & B. 274; 26 L.J.Q.B. 137, 140.

55 Juggomohun Ghose v. Manickchand (1859) 4 W.R. 8, 10; 7 M.I.A. 263, 282; Wittenbaker v. Galstaun (1917) 44 Cal. 917, at p. 925; 43 I.C. 11. The allowance of new usage involves the possibility of allowing change in previous usage; Moult v. Halliday (1898) 1 Q.B. 125, 130.

56 Canara Industrial & Banking Syndicate v. Ramachandra (1968) A.Mys. 133, 137.

57 Kusum Kumari v. Debi Prasad, 63 I.A. 114; 1936 A.PC. 63; Devidas v. Yeotmal Central Bank Ltd. (1956) A.N. 239; (1955) Nag. 613.

58 Teheran-Europe Co. Ltd. v. S.T. Belton (Tractors) Ltd. (1968) 2 W.L.R. 523, 530; Miller, Gibb & Co. v. Smith & Tyrer Ltd. (1917) 2 K.B. 141; 33 T.L.R. 295, C.A. consd.; Elbinger Actiengesellschaft v. Claye (1873) L.R. 8 Q.B. 313 not folld.

59 Mothora Kant Shaw v. The India General Steam Navigation Co. (1883) 10 Cal. 166, 185. See also Meyer v. Dresser (1863-4) 16 C.B.N.S. 646; L.J.C.P. 289. where Erle C.J. said: "It is a contradiction to say the law does not give the right, and yet that there is a universally established usage to allow it. A universal usage cannot be set up against the general law."

60 Per P.C. Mallick J. in Mukul Dutta v. Indian Airlines Corporation, 1962 A.Cal. 311. Somewhat similar doctrine was hinted by Sinna C.J. in State of Rajasthan v. Vidya Vati (1962) Supp. 2 S.C.R.

High Court in Indian Airlines Corporation v. Madhuri Chaudhari,[61] and better opinion is that Carriage by air in India is not governed by the Contract Act or the Indian Carriage of Goods Act, 1934, but they are governed by rules of English Common Law. The carrier can therefore escape liability by an exemption clause in the contract exempting on the ground of misconduct or negligence of its servants. Such a clause is not hit by s.23 of Contract Act.[62]

Air accidents—Res ipsa loquitar.—The doctrine of res ipsa loquitar may or may not apply to an air accident dependent upon the facts and circumstances of the case.[63] A good working test of the application of this maxim (res ipsa loquitar) was laid down by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court thus:[64]

"... it only applies when the direct cause of accident and so much of the surrounding circumstances as were essential to its occurrence were within the sole control of the defendants or their servants."

Plaintiffs claimed against the defendant airline in respect of passenger's death, personal injury and property damage. On the tickets and baggage checks delivered to the plaintiffs the notification of the provisions of the Warsaw Convention was so small as to be virtually invisible. It was held in the United States District Court that (1) the Convention required not merely the delivery of a ticket and check before departure notifying the provisions of the Convention excluding and limiting liability but also that such excluding and limiting liability were applicable; (2) that the type in which the conditions on the ticket were printed was too small to constitute notification; and (3) that the defendant was in breach of the Convention and could not exclude or limit its liability.[65]

In case of inconsistency between the French and English Texts in Warsaw Convention, French Text prevails, (Corocraft v. Pan American Airways, (1969) 1, All E.R. 82.

In the U.S.A. the liability for air accident can be limited and consignment note (French text) need not contain all particulars (American Smelting & Refining Co. v. Philippine Airlines, (1956) U.S.& Can Av. R.387)

Choice of law governing contract.—It may be doubtful what law is to be applied to decide on the validity or the interpretation of a contract, or both, as where the contract is made in one jurisdiction and is to be performed in another, or is sued on in a jurisdiction where it was not made or to be performed. The Act does not deal with questions of this kind.

In ordinary circumstances the proper law of a contract (to use Mr. Dicey's convenient expression) will be the law of the country where it is made.[66] But where a contract is made in one country and is to be performed wholly or in part in another, the proper law may be presumed to be the law of the country where it is to be performed.[67]

But these rules are only in the nature of presumptions, and subject to the intention of the parties, whether expressly declared or inferred from the terms and nature of the contract and the circumstances of the case.[68] The subject cannot be discussed at large here; the above rules, however, are settled and will commonly be found sufficient.

---

989 (a case of liability of State for the torts of its servants).

61 1955 A.Cal. 252. See Rukmanand Ajitsaria v. Airways (India) Ltd. (1960) A.Assam 71; and Air Carrying Corporation v. Shibendra (1964) A.Cal. 396 (case confined to Presidency Towns). Cases of liability of a carrier; and Indian Airlines v. Sm. Madhuri Chaudhari (1965) A.Cal. 252, 259.

62 Air Carrying Corporation v. Shibendra (1964) A.Cal. 396 (a case of Presidency Towns), D.B.; Rukmanand Ajitsaria v. Airways (India) Ltd. (1960) A.Assam 71; Indian Airlines v. Madhuri Chaudhari (1965) A.Cal 253, D.B.; Contra Mukul Dutta v. Indian Airlines Corporation (1962) A.Cal. 311; American Smelting & Refining Co. v. Philippine Airlines, (1956) U.S. & Can Av. R. 387 (American Law).

63 Indian Airlines Corporation v. Madhuri Chaudhari (1965) A.Cal. 252, 266.

64 Wilson v. Colonial Air Transport Inc., 278 Mass. 420. See also Charles S. Rhyne: Aviation Accident (1947) published by Columbia Law Book Co. of Washington, pp. 130-38: the doctrine is inapplicable to aviation accidents.

65 Lisi v. Alitalia-Linee Aeree Italiane (1966) 2 Lloyds Rep. 328 (U.S. Distt. Ct.).

66 The English authorities will be found collected in Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 7th ed., pp. 804-811; the classical judgment in England is that of Lloyd v. Guibert (1865) 1 Q.B. 115, 122 (in Ex. Ch., a judgment of a very strong Court delivered by Willes J.); Shanker Vishnu v. Maneklal Haridas (1940) Bom. 799; 42 Bom. L.R. 873; 191 I.C. 653; 1940 A.B. 362.

67 Ibid.; Cox v. The Governors of Bishop Cotton's School (1874) Punj. Rec. No. 85; Auckland Corporation v. Alliance Assurance Co. (1937) A.C. 587; 167 I.C. 337; 1937 A.P.C. 54: In re United Railways & Regla Warehouses Ltd. (1961) A.C. 1007; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 969; (1960) 2 All E.R. 332.

68 Dicey, Rule 136, sub. rr. 1, 2 and 3; Hamlyn v. Talisker Distillery (1894) A.C. 202. And see Abdul

Generally (but with very important exceptions) the capacity to contract follows the law of domicile at the time of making the contract;[69] but capacity to contract with regard to immovable property is determined by the local law of its situation.[70] This of course is a matter of law which the parties cannot alter. A large proportion of the decisions under this head have been in matrimonial causes; but the special complications arising in questions of marriage and divorce are outside the scope of the present Act and of the ordinary law of contract.[71]

In recent years many cases on the subject have been decided both in India and in England which are indicative of how the problem of lex loci and lex situs is to be solved.

". . . Sovereignty being territorial, the English courts do not in general recognise the right of a foreign State to legislate as to the legality or legal effect of acts done in England unless some United Kingdom statute so provides. Where, however, the law of the foreign State purports to affect contractual rights between parties, the English court may give effect to it, even in respect of an act done in England, if the proper law of the contract is that of the foreign State. Even where the proper law of the contract itself is not that of the foreign State, the English court may also give effect to the law of the foreign State so far as it relates to acts required to be done in the foreign State in performance of the contract."[72]

Law applicable.—The proper law of the contract depends on the intention of the parties to be ascertained in each case on-

(i) the place of contracting;
(ii) the place of performance;
(iii) the place of residence or business of the parties respectively; and
(iv) the subject-matter of contract.
(v) Generally all surrounding facts.

The parties may have actually expressed their intention upon the matter and in such a case their intention will be effectuated.[73] The most satisfactory formulation is the law of the country "with which the transaction has its closest and most real connection".[74] According to Lord Radcliffe in re United Railways & Regla Warehouses Ltd.[75] the law of the place of performance ought to be regarded as of preponderating importance—where the capital was to be repaid and the trustees for certificate holders had their home (Pennsylvania). The doctrine of renvoi has no place in the law of contract. The proper law of the contract means the domestic rules of that law and not its rules of the conflict of laws.[76]

The parties' expression of intention is only a prima facie evidence as to the proper law applicable.[77] Whether the proper law applicable is the lex loci contractus or lex loci solutionis is a matter of presumption; but there are accepted rules for determining which of the two is ap-

---

Aziz v. Appayasami (1903) 27 Mad. 131; 31 I.A. 1 (parties bound according to the law as they understood and adopted it at the time, though their interpretation proved erroneous); Brijraj Marwari v. Anant Prosad, I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal.505; 202 I.C. 326; 1942 A.Cal. 509.

69 Lachmi Narain v. Fatah Bahadur (1902) 25 All. 195; Dicey, Rule 158.

70 Bank of Africa v. Cohen (1909) 2 Ch. 129, C.A.

71 See Ogden v. Ogden (1908) P. 46, C.A.

72 Sharif v. Azad (1966) 3 All E.R. 785, 789, 790-1 C.A.; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 1285; (1967) 1 Q.B. 605.

73 In re Claim by Helbert Wagg & Co. Ltd. (1956) 2 W.L.R. 183, 189; (1956) 1 All E.R. 129. 133; Mt. Albert Borough Council v. Australasian Temperance Life Assurance Society Ltd. 1938 A.C. 224, 240; (1937) 4 All E.R. 206; In re United Railways of the Havana & Regla Warehouse Ltd. (1959) 2 W.L.R. 251, 272; (1960) Ch. 52; on app. (1961) A.C. 1007, (1960) 2 All E.R. 332; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 969; F. Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1041; (1961) A.SC. 1285, 1294 (intention expressed overrides presumption; inference from terms and nature of contract); Societa Anonmina Luchesse Oili v. Gorkharam (1964) 2 Mad. 90; (1964) A.M. 532, See Mohammad Ishaq Ali v. Hiral Serogi, P.L.D. (1964) D. 637 (Pak).

74 Bonython v. Commonwealth of Australia, 1951 A.C.201, 219 (per Viscount Simonds); In re United Railways of the Havana & Regla Warehouse Ltd. (1959) 2 W.L.R. 251, 273; (1960) Ch. 52; (1959) 1 All E.R. 214; on app. (1961) A.C. 1007; (1960) 2 All E.R. 332; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 969.

75 (1961) A.C. 1007; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 969; (1960) 2 All E.R. 332. But see Miliangos v. George Frank (Textiles) Ltd. (1975) 3 All E.R. 801 (H.L.) where Swiss law was the proper law and judgment was in Swiss francs.

76 Chitty: On Contracts (24th Ed.) para. 1912. In re United Railways of Havana & Regla Warehouses Ltd. (1960) Ch. 52 not following a dictum of Lord Wright in Vita Food Products Inc. v. Unus Shipping Co. Ltd. (1939) A.C. 277, 292.

77 The Torni (1932) P. 78; disapproved in Vita Food Products v. Unus Shipping Co. (1939) A.C. 277. See Claim by Helbert Wagg Co. in re (1956) 2 W.L.R. 183, 191; (1956) 1 All E.R. 129, 136.

plicable. Where the parties have expressed themselves, the intention so expressed overrides presumption. Where there is no expressed intention, then the rule to apply is to infer the intention from the terms and nature of the contract and from the general circumstances of the case.[78] Where a contract is made between parties residing in different countries or is made in one country to be performed in another the validity and effect of an arbitration clause in the contract must be determined by the "proper law" of the contract as a whole. As a principle of law and practice a court will not enforce a contract which is illegal by its own lex fori.[79] In Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co.[80] the following two conditions were decisive as to the law applicable:

(1) The term of the jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court; and
(2) the existence of the arbitration clause indicating the arbitration would be in India.

The first term indicated that if the courts of a particular country are chosen, it is expected that they would apply their own laws unless there be either express intention or evidence. This is on the principle "qui elegit judicem eligit jus".[81] The second circumstance of arbitration being in India was indicative of the parties having adopted the law of the country in which the arbitration is made.[82] A clause in the Arbitration Agreement that disputes will be settled by Arbitration in New York according to rules of the American Arbitration Society, i.e. by the American Arbitration Association contemplates that American Law will apply.[83] The construction of a contract by English Law involves the application of relevant English statutes and rules of English Common Law.[84]The House of Lords in a case of carriage of crude oil held that the contract showed that the law applicable was the law of the flag of the vessel carrying the goods.[85]

But an Indian citizen making a contract whilst in India would not be able and cannot be permitted to avoid the applicability of the Indian law to the contract made in India or to be performed in part or whole in India.[86]

In a contract between an English company and a German company the contract was held to be governed by German Law where the facts were: (i) debt was payable in London in Sterling without deduction of German taxes; (ii) English translation was the governing translation; (iii) Form of the contract was appropriate to English Law; (iv) Bonds could be issued in accordance with the text and practice ruling in the City of London.

On the contrary there was to be a mortgage on German immoveable property and in case of default it was liable to immediate seizure in execution after formal authorisation by a Notary Public. The contract provided that the loan agreement would be construed in accordance with German Law.

From these facts the Court held German Law to be the proper law of the contract.[87] If a contract made between a party in India and a party in Italy and the contract is illegal under the law of India, the arbitration agreement and the entire proceedings following thereon are illegal and the award would be tainted with the same infirmity. This was a case of a foreign award

---

78 F. Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1041; (1961) A.SC. 1285, 1294; Sayers v. International Drilling (1971) 3 All E.R. 163 (Dutch law applied).

79 Societa Anonmina Luchesse Oili v. Gorkharam Gokalchand (1964) 2 Mad. 90; (1964) A.M. 532, 536 (Scots Law not applied).

80 (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1041; (1961) A.SC. 1285, 1294.

81 Spurrier v. La Cloche (1902) A.C. 446 (even where arbitration clause is void); N. V.Kurik Hoo Hendel v. James Finlay & Co., 1927 A.C. 604. Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd ed.) vol. 7, pp. 74, 75; Hamlyn & Co. v. Tallisker Distillery (1894) A.C. 202.

82 D. Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1041; A.I.R. 1961 S.C. 1285, 1294, para 29; Homlyn & Co. v. Tallisker Distilery (1894) A.C. 202; Spurrier v. La Cloche (1902) A.C. 446. See Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd ed.) Vol. 7, pp. 74,75.

83 Micheal Golodetz v. Seragud Din & Co., 1959 A.Cal. 603; Mury Exportation v. D. Khaitan & Sons (1956) A.Cal. 644.

84 Vita Food Products Inc. v. Unus Shipping Co. Ltd. (1939) A.C. 277; (1939) 1 All E.R. 513; Claim by Helbert Wagg & Co. in re (1956) 2 W.L.R. 183, 190; (1956) 1 All E.R. 129.

85 Compagnie Armement Maritine S.A. v. Compagnie Tunisienne de Navigation S.A. (1970) 3 All E.R. 71

86 Se Se Oil v. Gorakharam (1962) 64 Bom. L.R. 113; Societe Anonmina Luchesse Oili v. Gorkharam Gokalchand (1964) 2 Mad. 90; (1964) A,M. 532.

87 Claim by Helbert Wagg & Co. Ltd. in re (1956) 2 W.L.R. 183, 190; Vita Food Products Inc. v. Unus Shipping Co. Ltd., 1939 A.C. 277; (1939) 1 All E.R. 513 and The Torni (1932) P. 78 referred to.

between a party in India and a party in Italy in proceedings taken in London.[88] But Dutch law was held applicable where an Englishman was employed by a Dutch company working an off shore drilling in Nigeria; the contract was in English, and salary was to be paid in sterling. The case was one in tort. Sayers v. International Drilling, (1971) 3 All E.R.163. See W.J. Alen Ltd. v. El Nasar Co., (1972) 3 All E.R. 127 See Miliangos v. George Frank Textiles Ltd. (1975) 3 All E.R. 801 (H.L.) where Swiss law was the Law of the Contract.

A contract made between a cotton mill at Lyallpur (in Pakistan) and the plaintiffs was held governed by the law of Pakistan. After the Partition the plaintiffs migrated to India and the moneys in the hands of the mills were ordered to be paid over to the Custodian of Evacuee Property, Pakistan, under an Ordinance. In a suit by the plaintiff's evacuees in Delhi claiming the money, it was held that Lyallpur was the place of primary obligation, the elements out of which the contract to pay arose were most densely grouped at Lyallpur and Lyallpur was the natural seat of the contract and the place with which it had its closest and most real connection.

Accordingly the law of Pakistan was the proper law of the contract; and even under the English doctrine of situs, situs of the debt was Lyallpur and therefore either way the law of Pakistan applied.[89] Proper law of a contract is the law by which the parties intended or may fairly be presumed to have intended the contract to be governed. Prima facie it is presumed to be the law of the country where the contract is made.[90] Hence parties resident in Pakistan can enter into a valid contract in India for the sale of moveable property if the contract is to be performed in Pakistan in accordance with the laws of Pakistan and the money is to be paid in Pakistan. Such a contract is not hit by s. 5(1) of the Foreign Exchange Regulations Act (VII of 1947)[91]

A loan advanced to a borough in New Zealand and secured on the rateable value of all rateable property in the borough was payable at Melbourne in Australia.

The Privy Council held lex situs applied to the Security in New Zealand but not to the actual coupons, whether or not personal obligation to pay was properly regarded as a speciality debt. The Privy Council did not accept the view that the obligation to pay was governed by the place where the payment was stipulated to be made, in the sense that the amount of the debt could be lawfully varied by the laws of the place of payment to bind the courts in New Zealand because that would confuse two distinct conceptions—the obligation with performance.[92]

Consolidated 3½% stock of Commonwealth of Australia issued in 1932 against surrender of Queensland Government debentures issued in 1895 in varying sums of Pounds Sterling stipulating the payment either in Brisbane, Sydney, Melbourne or London, at the option of the holder was held to be governed by the law of contract of Queensland because the issue of debentures was under the Queensland's law and it was a charge on the revenues of the State.[93]

Where the building site was in Scotland and was owned by English owners and the building contractors were Scotch but the contract was made in London in R.I.B.A. form. English law was held applicable (Whiteworth St. Estates v. James Millar (1969) 2 All E.R. 210).

The rule in International Trade.—The rule in international trade where the contract specifies a foreign country in which the dispute will be adjudicated is thus stated by

---

88 Societa Anonmina Luchesse Oili v. Gorkharam Gokalchand (1964) 2 Mad, 90; (1964) A.M. 532, 536; Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1041; (1961) A.S.C. 1285; Juggilal v. General Fibre Dealers (1962) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 101; (1962) A.SC. 1123; and Khardah Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co. (1963) 2 S.C.R. 183; (1962) A.S.C. 1810 folld.; S.B. Jute Mills v. Fulchand (1963) A.Cal. 140 refd.

89 The Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. Ltd. v. Harnam Singh (1955) 2 S.C.R. 402; distd. in United Commercial Bank Ltd. v. Okara Grain Buyers Syndicate Ltd. (1968) A.SC. 1115. (Property had not been proved to have vested in Pakistan Custodian.)

90 Mohammad Ishaq Ali v. Hiral Serogi, P.L.D. (1964) D.637 (Pak.)

91 Ibid.

92 Mount Albert Borough Council v. Australasian T. & G. Assurance Co. (1938) A.C. 224; (1937) 4 All E.R. 206, 214 (P.C.); (1936) N.Z.L.R. 54 appd.; Adelaide Electric Supply Co. Ltd. v. Prudential Assurance Co. Ltd. (1934) A.C. 122 dist.

93 Bonython v. Commonwealth of Australia (1951) A.C. 201, 221 (P.C.).; Goldsbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Hall (1948-49) 78 C.L.R. 1; R v. International Trustee (1937) A.C. 500, 531. See also Mount Albert Borough Council v. Australasian T. & G. Assurance Co. Ltd. (1938) A.C. 224; (1937) 4 All E.R. 206, 214.

Cheshire[94] on Private International Law. "As distinct from the express or implied choice of proper law the express choice of a foreign tribunal is not absolutely binding in accordance with the excellent principle that a contractual undertaking should be honoured, there is indeed a prima facie rule that an action brought in England in defiance of an agreement to submit to arbitration abroad will be stayed, [95] but nevertheless the Court has the discretion in the matter and where the parties are amenable to the jurisdiction as for example the defendant is present in England, it will allow the English action to continue if it considers that the ends of justice will be better served by a trial in this country."[96] This view of the law was accepted by the Calcutta High Court although the action was stayed on other grounds.[97]

The principles applicable to international trade and the safeguards established for payment of price payable to the foreign sellers for goods supplied to buyers of other foreign countries have received approval by Indian Courts as shown by decided cases of which the latest Supreme Court decision is United Commercial Bank v. Bank of India (1981) A.S.C. 1428. The decisions of English Courts given herein are illustrative.

Proper law—Time of application.—The proper law attaching to a contract is that which applied at the time it was made. Hence the proper law could not be determined restrospectively by an event which at the time the contract was made was an uncertain event in the future. Nor could the contract flout in the absence of law until the proper law was determined nor change from one country to another on the happening of subsequent events. Therefore the choice of London by the plaintiff had no relevance in determining the proper law of a bond and as there were no other factors making English law the legal system with which the bond had the closest connection, the English courts did not have jurisdiction.[98]

In order to obtain a judgment for payment of money expressed in a foreign currency it was not necessary to establish that the proper law giving rise to the obligation was the law of foreign currency. Although the lex loci contractus, the lex loci solutionis and the proper law of the acceptance of a negotiable instrument were English, the money of account and the money in which payment might be made by the obligor were American. Therefore judgment could be given in US dollars.[99] In Markender v. Fieldia A.C.[1] the Court of Appeal held that although there was discretion to give leave to serve outside the jurisdiction, the Court would not do so where the contract was not void ab initio and the contract contained a clause for foreign jurisdiction. Hence the Court did not give leave.

A Panama Company entered into a contract with a Spanish Company for the construction of a rig. The price was fixed in U.S. dollars, part of which was paid and the rest was to be paid when the rig was accepted. A bank agreed to issue a letter of credit at the request of the Spanish Company for the repayment of the advance in the event of the order being cancelled by the Panama Company. The letter of credit was given on the instruction of a New York bank. But it contained no provision as to the system of law by which it was to be governed. A dispute arose between the parties concerning the validity of the period of the letter of credit. English law was not the proper law of the letter of credit and the question was whether the proper law was the law of New York State. It was held that the law was not necessarily the law of the issuing bank but the law with which the transaction had closest and most real connection; and although the letter of credit had been opened by the Spanish bank its closest and most real connection was with the law of New York State since the credit had been opened through a New York Bank and payment was to be made in U.S. Dollars. Accordingly the proper law was the law of New York State[2]

Insurance-marine.—The plaintiff's fleet was insured with an American insurer as a part in-

---

94 Cheshire; On Private International Law (6th Ed.) p. 222; (7th Ed.) p. 193.
95 The Cap Blanco (1913) p. 130, (1911-13) All E.R. Rep. 365.
96 The Athens (1922) 11 LL.R. 6. The Fehmarn (1958) 1 All E.R. 333; (1958) 1 W.L.R. 150.
97 Lakshminarayan Ramniwas v. Lloyd Triestino Societa (1960) A.Cal. 155.
98 Armar Shipping Ltd. v. Caisse Algerienic (1981) 1 All E.R. 498, 504 (C.A.).
99 Barclays Bank International Ltd. v. Levin Bros. (Bradford) Ltd. (1976) 3 All E.R. 99, 904, 905.
1 (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 849.
2 Offshore International SA v. Banco Central. SA (1976) 3 All ER 749, 751, 752. Re United Railways of surer. The premiums and the claim were payable in America. The other insurers included some London insurers including Lloyds. The majoirity of the vessels were insured under dollar policies. Each of the policies contained "follow London Clause" whereby the insurers were to follow Lloyds underwriters in all matters of insurance including terms, conditions and settlement and in all matters of insurance. The policies also included the 'the New York Suable Clause' which provided that the place of actual and physical issue and delivery of the policy is the City of London but the assured had the option of treating New York for all those purposes. The plaintiff sought to issue a writ in the English Courts. It was held that the inference to be drawn from "follow London clause" was that the American policies were to be governed by English law because the clause was of paramount importance and this inspite of the fact that the law of the country, the defendant's policy had its closest connection, was America. And the 'New York Suable Clause' did not alter the effect of the "follow London clause."[3]

In a case in the Court of Appeal[4] the cargo owner was in England, the cargo was found short in the port of London and the survey was done in London. The ship was a frequent visitor to London. The shipowners were willing to submit to adjudication in London but objected to the giving of security. The action was allowed to proceed in England although the contract provided for disputes to be judged in U.S.S.R. and the cargo was loaded in a Russian port. The Court laid down the following two principles against staying of suits;

(a) A stipulation that disputes will be judged by the tribunals of a foreign country will be respected by English Courts and normally give effect to it but it is subject to the overriding principle that no one by his private stipulation can oust the jurisdiction of English Courts in a matter properly belonging to them.

(b) On the facts of the case the disputed property belonged to a buyer in England and it was more closely connected with England than with Russia and because the shipowners did not object to the jurisdiction of English Courts they only wished to avoid giving security.

The Bombay High Court[5] in a case where the contract provided for adjudication by arbitrator in England stayed the action and so did the Calcutta High Court[6] in similar circumstances where the Italian Law governed the contract of international trade. On appeal the Calcutta High Court[7] held that where on a consideration of the circumstances the Court came to the conclusion that it would be unjust or unfair to stay the suit it would refuse to grant the stay. It also held that the proper law of contract was Italian law but the parties could not oust the jurisdiction of the Indian Court by agreement whether executed in India or outside. But in the circumstances of that case the balance of convenience was not in favour of the Indian Merchant and therefore granted the stay.

Considering all these cases and authorities the Andhra Pradesh High Court has laid down the law which may be stated thus: "It is open to the Court to consider the balance of convenience, the interest of justice and the circumstances when it decides the question of jurisdiction of the Court in the light of the clause in the agreement between the parties choosing one of the several Courts or forums which were available to them. Indeed such a consideration is essential in the interest of international trade and commerce for the better relation between the countries and the people of the world.[8]

Discharge of a contract, law applicable.—The validity of the discharge of a contract normally depends on the proper law of contract. A discharge according to proper law of contract is valid and a discharge not according to proper law is not valid. A contractual debt may and normally will be regarded as situate at the debtor's place of residence but the discharge of a debt whether by performance or through other events is a matter—subject not to the lex situs of the debt but to the proper law of contract from which it arises.[9] the Havana and Regla Warehouses (Ltd.) (1960) 2 All ER 332 applied.

---

3 Armadora Occidental S/A v. Horace Mann Insurance Co. (1978) 1 All ER 407, 410, 411; (1977) 1 All ER 347 affd.

4 The Fehmarn (1958) 1 All E.R. 333, 335-6; (1958) 1 W.L.R. 159. The Athens (1922) 11 LL. Rep. 6 applied. Racecourse Betting Control Board v. Secretary of State for Air, (1944) 1 All E.R. 60-65. considered.

5 Haji Abdulla v. G.R. Stamp (1924) A.B. 381 (Marine Insurance).

6 Messrs Lloyds Triestino Societa v. Messrs Lakshminarayan Ramniwas. (1959) A.Cal. 669.

7 Lakshminarayan Ramniwas v. Lloyd Triestino Societa (1960) A.Cal. 155 (D.B.), on appeal against (1959) A.Cal. 669.

8 Black Sea Steamship U.L. Lastochkina Odessa v. The Union of India (1976) A.AP. 103, 104.

9 Rule 155 of Dicey's Conflict of Laws, 7th edn., pp. 804 and 807. The rule applies to a debt accrued and to a contractual obligation to pay in futuro. Perry v. Equitable Life Assurance of the U.S.A. (1929) 45 T.L.R. 468 (A claim on insurance policy dismissed because Soviet Law annulled rights under

Novation and lex situs.—The validity of the transfer of a contractual debt depends on lex situs but a novation, even a compulsory novation, is not governed by lex situs as it comprises annulment of one debt and the creation of another and no transfer of property is involved. The former is governed by the proper law of the contract and the latter probably by the law of the country with which the substitution of the new debtor is most closely connected.[10] The fact that one aspect of a contract is to be governed by the law of one country does not necessarily mean that that law is to be the proper law of the contract as a whole.[11] Different parts of a contract may be governed by different laws though the English Courts will not split the contract readily and without good reason.[12]

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 4, provides that the chapters and sections of that Act which relate to contracts shall be taken as part of the Contract Act.

Distinction between liability in tort and in contract.—A distinction between liability in tort and in contract turns on the origin of the duty. In contract, the duty arises from the agreement of the parties; in tort it is independent of agreement and is imposed upon the parties by the law.[13] Tindal C.J. in Boorman v. Brown[14] stated the position thus:

> "The principle in all these cases would seem to be that the contract creates a duty, and a neglect to perform that duty, or the non-feasance, is a ground of action upon a tort."

According to Collins M.R. the distinction between tort and contract is not a logical one and it is sometimes difficult to see whether a particular thing is a wrong or a breach of a contract. Nevertheless, as the law has drawn a distinction, "tort" may be defined in terms of a breach of duty other than a contractual duty.[15] The distinction between tort and contract is discernible in many practical respects. The law relating to capacity is different; e.g. an infant is liable for his torts but not on contract excepting to a limited extent. A contractual right can be assigned but not a right of action in tort. The measure of damages is different. Exemplary damages can be awarded in tort but not in contract (except in breach of promise to marry). The tests for remoteness are different.[16] In two recent cases, Clark v. Kirkby-Smith,[17] a case of a Solicitor's liability, and Bagot v. Stevens Scanlan & Co. Ltd.,[18] a case of the liability of an architect, and in cases of professional relationships, it was held that liability arises out of contract. These cases distinguish between an action based on tort and an action based on contract.[19] Professor Winfield in The Province of the Law of Tort (1931) pointed out three main issues which in earlier centuries gave rise to the need to distinguish between tort and contract; these were survival of actions, joinder of actions and joint liability. Apart from these, there were other situations in which distinction might be material.[20] In modern times, the question is of importance in connection with damages and limitation. On the question of damages, there are two distinct points: remoteness of damage and measure of damages.

Act not retrospective.—The provisions of this Act do not apply to contracts made before insurance contracts). United Railways of the Havana & Regla Warehouses Ltd. in re (1959) 2 W.L.R. 251, 267, 268; (1959) 1 W.L.R. 214; affd. on app. 1961 A.C. 1007; (1960) 2 All E.R. 332; R. v. International Trustee (1937) A.C. 500; Mount Albert Borough Council v. Australasian Etc. Ltd. (1938) A.C. 224 (P.C.).

---

10 United Railways of the Havana & Regla Warehouses Ltd., in re (1959) 2 W.L.R. 251, 266-7, 269; (1969) 2 All E.R. 214, 233 (Wolff's Private International Law (2nd ed.) p. 458 reld. on.); on app. In re United Railways & Regla Warehouses Ltd.(1961) A.C. 1007; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 969; (1960) 2 All E.R. 332; Arab Bank Ltd. v. Barclay's Bank, (1954) 2 All E.R. 226 (not applied) and In re Russian Bank for Foreign Trade (1933) Ch. 747 dist.

11 Hamlyn & Co. v. Talisker Distillery (1894) A.C. 202.

12 Per Lord MacDermott in Kahler v. Midland Bank Ltd. (1950) A.C. 24, 42; (1949) 2 All E.R. 621.

13 Charlesworth on Negligence, 4th ed., section 1005; Criticised by Poulton in 82 L.Q.R. 346, 350; See also Winfield on Tort, p.6 (7th ed.) & Prosser: Torts (2nd ed.), p.5.

14 (1842) 3 Q.B. 511, 526.

15 Sachs v. Henderson (1902) 1 K.B. 612, 616.

16 Chitty on Contract (24th ed.) paragraph 6.

17 1964 Ch. 506; (1964) 3 W.L.R. 239.

18 (1964) 3 All E.R. 577.

19 Tort or Contract: 82 L.Q.R. 346.

20 82 L.Q.R. 346.

the Act came into force.[21]

Principles of construction of contracts.—A person is only entitled to enforce his contractual rights in a reasonable way and a court will not support an attempt to enforce them in an unreasonable way.[22] The courts should not, in commercial transactions, be astute to defeat the efficacy of documents which parties have acted on, by seeking to apply to their construction rules such as the "subject to contract rule". Such rules are but guides. They must not become tyrants, compelling a construction which in the circumstances of a particular case, produces a wholly artificial and unreal result.[23] The court should put itself in a frame of mind which would make itself possible to understand how commercial minds work. [24] The House of Lords in Adamastos Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. Ltd.[25] (H.L.) summarising the rules applicable to construction of commercial documents laid down that effort should be made to construe commercial agreements broadly and one must not be astute to find defects in them or reject them as meaningless. The dealings of men should, as far as possible, be treated as effective and the law may not incur the reproach of being the destroyer of bargains.[26] But in certain cases the court may relieve the parties to the contract of their duty on what is called public policy.[27]

The construction of a contract cannot be governed or affected by the intention or belief of one of the parties not communicated to the other.[28] The true construction of an agreement must depend upon the import of the words used and not upon what the parties choose to say afterwards.[29] In construing a contract the court must look at the words used in the contract unless they are such that one may suspect that they do not convey the intention correctly. If the words are clear there is very little the court can do about it.[30] Therefore, where an insurance policy provided that the "insurance may be terminated at any time at the request of the insured" and "the insurance may be terminated at any time at the instance of the company" the words "at any time" can only mean at any time the party concerned likes, or to put it differently, it means either party may at its will terminate the policy. No other meaning of the words used is conceivable.[31] It would be legitimate to take into account the surrounding circumstances for ascertaining the intention of parties and therefore the absence of a specific clause against transferability is not conclusive.[32] What has to be seen is whether it would be held on a reasonable interpretation of the contract aided by such considerations as can legitimately be taken into account that the agreement was not to be transferred.[33] In the construction of written instruments, it is legitimate in order to ascertain the true meaning of the words used and if that be doubtful then to have regard to the circumstances surrounding their

---

21 Omda Khanum v. Brojendro (1874) 12 B.L.R. 451, 458; ibid. p. 472, on appeal.

22 White & Carter (Councils) Ltd. v. McGregor (1962) 2 W.L.R. 17, 22 (H.L.); (1962) A.C. 413; (1961) 3 All E.R. 1178.

23 Cranleigh Precision Engineering Ltd. v. Bryant (1965) 1 W.L.R. 1293, 1302.

24 Navnit Lal v. Kishan Chand & Co. (1956) A.B. 151, 153.

25 (1959) A.C. 133, 158 (H.L.); Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1035; (1961) A.SC. 1285.

26 Per Lord Tomlin in Hillas & Co. v. Acros Ltd. (1932) 147 L.T. 503, 512; (1932) All E.R. Rep. 494; Coffee Board, Bangalore v. Haji Ibrahim (1966) A.Mys. 118; Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Khimji & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020; (1961) A.SC. 1285.

27 Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadevdas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; (1959) A.SC. 781, 795; Pearl Insurance Co. v. Atma Ram (1960) A. Punj. 236 (F.B.).

28 Hepburn v. Tomlinson (Hauliers) Ltd. (1966) A.C. 451; (1966) 2 W.L.R. 453, 456 (H.L.); Waters v. Monarch Fire & Life Assurance Co. (1856) 5 E. & B. 870 dist.

29 Ganga Saran v. Ram Charan Ram Gopal (1952) S.C.R. 36, 40; (1952) A.SC. 9; Goshto Bihari v. Surs Estate (1960) A.Cal. 752 (merely calling it a contract not enough); Namayya v. Union of India (1958) A.AP. 532; Central Bank of India v. Hartford Fire Insurance Co. (1965) A.SC. 1288.

30 Central Bank of India v. Hartford Fire Insurance Co. (1965) A.SC. 1288.

31 Ibid.

32 Khardah Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co. Ltd. (1963) 3 S.C.R. 183, 207; (1962) A.SC. 1810; Virjee Dayaram & Co. v. Ramkrishna Rice & Oil Mills (1956) A.M. 110 appd.; Hemraj Keshavji v. Shah Haridas Jethabhai (1964) 3 S.C.R. 686 at p. 698; 1964 A.SC. 1526; Modi Co. v. Union of India, 1969 A.SC. 9.

33 Modi Co. v. Union of India, 1969 A.SC. 9; Hemraj Keshavji v. Haridas Jethabhai (1964) 3 S.C.R. 686; (1964) A.SC. 1526; Adamastos Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. (1959) A.C. 133, 158; Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020, 1025; (1961) A.SC. 1285.

creation and the subject-matter to which it was designed and intended they should apply.[34] Even a formal antecedent contract cannot be looked at to control the terms of the conveyance much less mere communings which would only show what they intended to do but cannot show what they did do.[35]

In the words of Lord Wright in Luxor Ltd. v. Cooper:[36] However similar the contracts may appear, the decision as to each must depend on the consideration of the language of the particular contract and in the light of material circumstances of the parties in view of which the contract is made. To compare one contract with another is not a profitable task.[37] But an agreement to sell may be used to clear an ambiguity in the sale deed.[38] The courts have sometimes been ready to read an earlier oral statement and a later formal document forming together a single comprehensive contract, i.e. the parties have made their contract partly in writing and partly by word of mouth.[39]

The names of partners in a deed of partnership is a term of the contract. A contract deals with the subject-matter as well as the persons between whom it is entered into and the names of the parties in so far as they relate to terms creating obligations cannot be divorced from the terms of the contract.[40] Words which do not occur in the part dealing with description of the goods but elsewhere cannot reasonably be assumed to be intended as part of the description.[41]

A contract of sale of fallen and standing trees provided for the sale of "(excluding sandalwood, coconut, arecanut and all specified fruit trees and tamarind trees or 10 or 15 silver oak trees of below 36" girth grown and standing in ...Estate". It was argued that mango and jack fruit being fruit trees were excepted because mango and jack fruit trees are considered timber but there was no clause of the contract which excluded these trees which were also timber and fruit trees. Hence the contention was repelled.[42]

Additions to printed form.—In interpreting contracts, a special agreement or clause between parties added to the printed form must be given greater weight than those of the printed form, so also words in manuscript in a shipping contract would prevail over print.[43] There is no general rule extractable from H.O. Brandt & Co. v. H. N. Norris & Co. Ltd[44] that on every f.o.b. or f.a.s. contract the buyer must supply a ship into which or alongside which the goods can legally be placed, where there exists a prohibition on export except with a licence.[45] The obligation depends on contract and the surrounding circumstances in each case. A clause in a contract for sale of goods to the Union Government that "in the event of the contractor not being in possession of the goods, the contract would be deemed to have been cancelled" does not make the contract void as non-availability does not render the contract void.[46]

---

34 Rajah Vatsavaya Venkata v. Venkatapathi Raju, 1924 A.PC. 162; Royal Bank of Canada v. Joseph Salvatori, 1927 A.PC. 272; River Commissioners v. Adamson, 2 App. Cas. 734; Gulab Chand v. Kudilal, 1959 A.M.P. 151; on app. (1966) A.SC. 1734; Penn v. Simonds, (1971) 3 All E.R. 237 (Pre-contract negotiations cannot be looked at, but contract construed in view of surrounding circumstances and object of the contract).

35 Bomanji Ardeshir v. Secretary of State, 56 I.A. 51; 1929 A.PC. 34; 53 Bom. 322 (P.C.); Nokayya v. Jagga Rao (1955) Andh.L.J. 571.

36 (1941) A.C. 108; (1941) 1 All E.R. 33, 44; Narayana Rao v. Ramchandra Rao (1959) A.AP. 370, 374.

37 Sethia (1944) Ltd. v. Partabmull Rameshwar (1950) 1 All E.R. 51 (C.A); on app. (1951) 2 All E.R. 352n.

38 Desikhacharyulu v. Narasimhacharyulu (1958) A.AP. 278; Suleman Vadu v. Tricumji Velji, 12 Bom. H.C.R. 10 followed.

39 Birch v. Paramount Estate Ltd. citied in Oscar Chess Ltd. v. Williams (1957) 1 All E.R. 325, 329.

40 Shankar Bandhu v. Shankar Babaji, 1956 A.B. 165. But see Satyanarayana v. Lakshmi Narasimham (1968) A.AP. 330 (subject to Madras jurisdiction on top of a letter not part of contract).

41 Soundararajan & Co. v. Annamalai Nadar (1960) A.M. 480.

42 T.A. Sankunni v. B.J. Philips (1972) A.M. 272, 274; Pirthidin v. RamLal (1926). Oudh. 136; & Krishna Rao v. Babaji, 24 Bom. 31; reld on.

43 Riley v. Coglan (1967) 1 W.L.R. 1300, 1308, Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd ed.) vol. 11, para. 671; China Cotton Exporters v. Biharilal Cotton Mills (1961) 3 S.C.R. 845; (1961) A.SC. 1295 (manuscript prevails over printed matter). But see Jacques v. Lloyd D. George & Partner Ltd. (1968) 1 W.L.R. 625 (a printed form containing an unreasonable clause cannot be enforced in the case of an Estate Agent).

44 (1917) 2 K.B. 784.

45 A.V. Pound & Co. Ltd. v. M.H. Hardy & Co. Inc. (1956) 2 W.L.R. 683, 689.

46 Arun & Co. v. The Union of India (1964) A.Punj. 230.

Paramount Clause by addition.—Where a type "Paramount clause" was included in a charter party without words of limitation all the rules referred to in the Paramount Clause would form part of the terms of the charter party and would take precedence over the terms of the charter party.[47]

Conditions not binding on merger.—The terms of a contract of service must be strictly construed and there can be no question of beneficent construction.[48] After the change of sovereignty by the ruler of an Indian State merging his State with what was British India, the successor government is not bound by a contract of the previous ruler unless it agrees to be so bound.[49] The acceptance of a tender issued by Government for the sale of 244 tons approximately of iron scrap is a valid contract because it implies the sale of a quantity which if it is slightly more than that of quantity will require the purchaser to pay for the excess weight and if less then the Government will have to refund the amount paid in excess by the buyer. Such a term is implied where the contract would fail completely unless such a term is implied or where in effect it gives substance to the whole transaction or where circumstances demand such application.[50]

Construction of Terms.—The words "not in accordance with the bye-laws of any recognised cotton association" require that the contract notes must contain all the terms and conditions set out in the form in order to comply with it; but substantial compliance with the form would be enough and literal compliance is not essential.[51]

Hedge Contracts.—The omission in contract notes between the members to mention the difference of the Rs. _____ above or below the settlement rates of "hedge contracts" for the purposes of periodical settlements as required by bye-laws 139 and 141 or the omission to mention measurements of the bales as required by bye-law 80 of the prescribed form does not render the contract void.[52]

The question whether delivery should be spread over arises only in cases of instalment contracts.[53] The term "free of income-tax" in the case of salary to be paid to an officer means "free of taxes on incomes" and would include super-tax also because super-tax is additional income-tax.[54]

Football club.—An agreement between a football club and a player provided:

"The club hereby engages the player and the player in consideration of the sum of £500 . . . agrees to serve the club for the remainder of his football career from the date hereof. . . ."

By this agreement, what the club was getting was his agreement to serve and what the player was getting in return for that was the payment of £500.[55]

"Force majeure" is not a French version of "vis major". It is a term of wider import. Strikes, breakdowns of machinery though not included in vis major are included in "force majeure". By use of the term "force majeure" the intention is to save the performing party from the consequences of anything over which he has no control. The use of the word "usual" makes all the difference and parol evidence can be given to make it certain.[56] But the 47 Nea Agrex SA v. Baltic Shipping Co. Ltd (1976) 2 All E.R. 842.

---

48 State of Orissa v. Hari Chandan Babu, 1964 A.Or. 73.
49 Ibid.
50 Debi Prasad & Sons v. Union of India (1969) A.B. 163; Anson: Law of Contract (22nd ed.) p. 129; and Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd ed.) 121 para 212 quoted.
51 Gordhandas Purshottamdas v. Eastern Cotton Co. (1958) A.SC. 713; (1959) S.C.R. 346; Radhakisson Gopikisson v. Balmukund, 60 I.A. 63; (1933) A.PC. 55 referred to.
52 Gordhandas Purshottamdas v. Eastern Cotton Co. (1958) A.SC. 713; (1959) S.C.R. 346; Burchell v. Thompson (1920) 2 K.B. 80; Ex parte Stanford (1886) 17 Q.B.D. 259; Thomas v. Kelly (1888) 13 App. Cas. 506; and Parsons v. Brand (1890) 25 Q.B.D. 110 dist.
53 China Cotton Exporters v. Bihari Lal Cotton Mills (1961) 3 S.C.R. 845; (1961) A.SC. 1295.
54 Bharat Fire & General Insurance Ltd. v. Parameshwari Das Gupta (1968) A.D. 68; State of Madhya Pradesh v. Sirajud Din (1964) 53 I.T.R. 158; (1965) A.SC. 198 dist,; In re Reckitt, Reckitt v. Reckitt (1932) 2 Ch. 144; (1932) All E.R. Rep. 961 reld. on.
55 Riley v. Coglan (1967) 1 W.L.R. 1300, 1309.
56 Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020; (1961) A.SC. 1285, 1291; Lebeaupin v. Crispin (1920) 2 K.B. 714 refd. to cf. English Electrical Associated Industries Ltd. v. Patley Pressings (1953) 1 All E.R. 94 (subject to "force majeure conditions" held vague) and Scammell and term does not include the inability of a seller to get an export licence except at a sale price which was higher than the contract price.[57] In 1974 the Polish State estimating that production of sugar would be sufficient for internal consumption and for export authorised a State organisation Rolimpex to enter into contracts with purchasers for its export. In November the Polish Government imposed an immediate ban on export of sugar and revoked export licences already granted. Because of the ban export to 'C' was prevented. 'C' claimed damages and Rolimpex pleaded exemption from liability on the ground of force majeure by Government intervention and it was held that though Rolimpex was an organisation of the Polish State and because under the Polish law it was not entitled to plead sovereign immunity it was to be treated as a separate legal entity and it was beyond its control to export the contracted sugar. It was, therefore, entitled to rely on the force majeure as defence to the plaintiff's claim and in the circumstances Rolimpex could not be expected to apply for an export licence following the government's ban on export of sugar. This decision was affirmed by the House of Lords[58] The addition of the word "usual" refers to something which is invariably to be found in contracts of a particular type.[59] The expression "arising out of" or "concerning" or "in connection with" or "in consequence of" or "relating to the contract" in an arbitration clause are of sufficient amplitude to take in a dispute as to the validity of an agreement.[60] The use of the word "approximately" in a tender issued by Government for the sale of iron scrap which is filled in by a buyer and accepted by the Government only means that in case the quantity is slightly less the buyer will get a refund to that extent and if it is more he will have to pay for the excess.[61]

It is well settled that while the Indian Contract Act merely provides certain elementary conditions under which the contract becomes binding on the parties, it does not provide any particular form or condition of a contract. Therefore, the parties to a contract may agree to a particular form or condition or of mode in which the contract is to be executed. Where a contract with the Railways prescribes the particular form in which a contract is to be executed the contract has to be executed in that form. The provisions of the Contract Act are not superseded by the Railways Act. It only provides for a particular form in which the contract is to be executed.[62]

Construction of contractual documents.—All stipulations and acts which arise from and out of a written contract have to be understood pragmatically and given effect to in accordance with law. In a Madras case the question to be decided was whether a deed described as a partnership between the plaintiffs and the defendants was in reality a partnership, it was held that it never was intended to be acted upon as such as there was intrinsic evidence that it was only a working arrangement between the parties.[63] Merely because an express provision was not made in an agreement regarding the modus operandi of its implementation the legal obligation of one of the parties which is quite apparent in the agreement cannot be avoided.[63]

Forward contract—Construction—Transferability.—A contract for delivery of goods at a future date, even though for a specific price and of specific quality of goods, can be excluded from the definition of non-transferability, if it is shown on a reasonable interpretation of the Nephew Ltd. v. Ouston (1941) A.C. 251 ('on hire purchase terms' held vague) dist.; Shamrock S.S. & Co. v. Storey & Co. (1899) 5 Com. Cas. 21 refd. to in Bishop & Baxter Ltd. v. Anglo-Eastern Trading & Industrial Co. Ltd. (1944) 1 K.B. 12 appd.; Hillas & Co. v. Arcos Ltd. (1932) All E.R. Rep. 494 (H.L.) appd. in Adamastos Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. Ltd. (1959) A.C. 133, 158 (H.L.) (broad meaning to be given to commercial documents).

---

57 Brauer & Co. Ltd. v. James Clark (Brush Materials) Ltd. (1952) 2 All E.R. 497.

58 Czarnikow Ltd. v. Centrala Handlu Zagranicznego Rolimpex (1978) 1 All E.R. 81, affirmed in (1978) 2 All E.R. 1043. Trendtex Trading Corpn. v. Central Bank of Nigeria (1977) 1 All E.R. 881 appld.

59 Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Khimji & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020; (1961) A.SC. 1285, 1291.

60 Khardah & Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co. (1963) 3 S.C.R. 183; (1962) A.SC. 1810; Ruby Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pearey Lal Kumar (1962) 1 S.C.R. 501; (1952) A.SC. 119.

61 Debi Prasad & Sons v. Union of India (1969) A.B. 163.

62 Union of India v. The Steel Stock Holders Syndicate (1976) 3 S.C.R. 504; (1976) A.SC. 879, 883.

63 K.E.M. Mohamed Ibrahim Marcan v. Perumal Padayachi (1974) 1 M.L.J. 507, 513.

contract that it is not transferable.[64] The words in a mercantile agreement (1) "invoice weight to be accepted" and (2) "this contract is subject to import licence and therefore the shipment date is not guaranteed" were interpreted to mean that subject to import licence, shipment date was guaranteed.[65]

The purchaser at a forest auction of timber to be cut and recovered by the purchaser passes timber felled and logs cut by the purchaser and not the standing forest. Hence where for failure to pay the instalments by the purchaser the Government, under the contract, took possession of the timber and logs felled and cut by the plaintiff and sold them and also the balance of the standing timber, the auction purchaser was not entitled to the amount realised on resale.[66]

The term 'bilticut' in the law relating to contracts means a contract F.O.R. the price being payable against the delivery of Railway Receipt.[67] In Ganga Saran's case,[68] one of the terms of the contract was

"We shall continue sending goods as soon as they are prepared to you . . . we shall go on supplying goods to you of the Victoria Mills as soon as they are supplied to us by the said Mill."

The Supreme Court agreeing with the interpretation of somewhat similar phrase in Harnandrai v. Pragdas[69] held that the words did not mean that the goods will not be supplied at all. The words 'prepared by the Mill' are only a description of the goods to be supplied and expression "as soon as they are prepared" and expression "as soon as they are supplied to us by the said Mill" simply indicate the process of delivery. The Bombay High Court in Navnit Lal & Co. v. Kishan Chand & Co.[70] held that the term "the goods will be shipped to your friends 'as soon as they are delivered to us' by Messers. Allegappa Textile Cochin Ltd. is not a term of contingency or any condition precedent to the performance of the contract. The words of the term are regulatory of the mode of performance and not of the very obligation to perform the contract.

Contempt of Court and Exercise of Right under a Contract.—An employer brought a suit for declaration that the notice of termination of his service was illegal but no interim injunction had been asked for. The defendants gave a second notice of termination of service and the employee moved the Court for contempt. The Supreme Court held that the law of contempt and the operation of a contract have separate viable areas so that justice is not interfered with and the contract is not "cribbed and cramped." Hence the bona fide or honest exercise of right under a contract should be the yardstick for allocating respective areas to contempt and contract. So where a party during the course of litigation terminated the services of his adversary, his act will not constitute contempt in the absence of an injuction or undertaking to the contrary.[71]

Interpretation clause.

2. In this Act the following words and expressions are used in the following senses, unless a contrary intention appears from the context:-

(a) When one person signifies to another his willingness to do or to abstain from doing anything, with a view to obtaining the assent of that other to such act or abstinence, he is said to make a proposal:

(b) When the person to whom the proposal is made signifies his assent

---

64 Hemraj Keshavji v. Haridas Jethabhai (1964) 3 S.C.R. 686, 697-8; (1964) A.SC. 1526, 1530; Khardah & Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co. Ltd. (1962) A.SC. 1810; reld. on (1963) 3 S.C.R. 183.

65 China Cotton Exporters v. Biharilal Cotton Mills (1961) 3 S.C.R. 845; (1961) A.SC. 1295.

66 State of West Bengal v. Harendra Nath (1958) A.Cal. 21.

67 Moolji Jaitha v. Seth Kirodimal (1961) A.Ker. 21; Seth Harijimal v. F. Gulabchand Udeychand, 1955 Nag. 722; 1956 A.N. 118.

68 Ganga Saran v. Ram Charan Ram Gopal (1952) S.C.R. 36.

69 50 I.A. 9.

70 (1956) A.B. 151; Harnandrai v. Pragdas, 50 I.A. 9; Ganga Saran v. Ram Charan Ram Gopal (1952) S.C.R. 36.

71 K.T. Chandy v. Mansa Ram Zade (1974) A.SC. 642, 644: (1974) 25 CR 650; Tukaram G. Gaokar v. R.N. Shukla (1968) 3 S.C.R. 422: (1968) A.SC. 1050; Jang Bahadur Singh v. Baijnath Tiwari (1969) 1 S.C.R. 134: (1969) A.SC. 30; Pratap Singh v. Gurbux Singh (1962) Supp. S.C.R. 838; (1962) A.SC. 1172; and Govind Sahai v. The State of U.P. (1969) 1 S.C.R. 176; (1968) A.SC. 1513. disting.

thereto, the proposal is said to be accepted. A proposal, when accepted, becomes a promise:

(c) The person making the proposal is called the "promisor," and the person accepting the proposal is called the "promisee".

(d) When, at the desire of the promisor, the promisee or any other person had done or abstained from doing, or does or abstains from doing, or promises to do or to abstain from doing, something, such act or abstinence or promise is called a consideration for the promise:

(e) Every promise and every set of promises, forming the consideration for each other, is an agreement.

(f) Promises which form the consideration or part of the consideration for each other are called reciprocal promises:

(g) An agreement not enforceable by law is said to be void:

(h) An agreement enforceable by law is a contract:

(i) An agreement which is enforceable by law at the option of one or more of the parties thereto, but not at the option of the other or others, is a voidable contract:

(j) A contract which ceases to be enforceable by law becomes void when it ceases to be enforceable.

Summary of the Section.—This section is understood to be the work of Sir James Stephen. There is nothing like it in the original draft prepared by the Indian Law Commissioners at home, which only laid down in general terms that "a contract is an agreement between parties whereby a party engages to do a thing or engages not to do a thing".[72] As the section stands, its position and form are open to the remark that it professes to be an interpretation clause, but really declares a considerable part of the substantive law. Moreover, the propositions it lays down are by no means confined to principles of universal jurisprudence, but embody several conceptions which are peculiar to the Common Law, or of peculiar importance in it. We learn from cls. (a), (b), (c), (e), and (f) that an agreement is a promise or a set of reciprocal promises; that a promise is formed by the acceptance of a proposal; and that there must be a promisor who makes the proposal and a promisee who accepts it. In the case of reciprocal promises each party is a promisor as to the promise he makes and a promisee as to that which he receives; he is both proposer and acceptor, proposing to become liable and accepting the other's liability. The mutual proposals of the two parties become promises by mutual acceptance; whatever may have happened before the promises are exchanged is merely preliminary negotiation, and does not enter into the legal analysis of the transaction.

Proposal and Promise.—The word "proposal" is synonymous in English use with "offer." But the language of these definitions appears to confine "proposal" to an offer to be bound by a promise. One learned writer maintains that the presence of a request expressed or implied is an essential element in every true offer.[73] Thus a man who offers to sell and deliver, then and there, existing portable goods in his immediate control, such as a book or a jewel, does not offer a promise but an act, and if the other party takes the goods on the spot and becomes liable to pay for them, he (the buyer) is the only promisor.[74] In such a case the seller would seem not to make a proposal within the terms of the Contract Act. But in England no one would hesitate to say that he offers (or proposes, though this word is less usual) to sell his goods. A quotation of prices is not an offer, but an invitation for offers;[75] the same is true of 72 S.I. of draft Second Report of Indian Law Commissioners, 1866, at p. 11.

---

73 69 L.Q.R. 99, J.C. Smith.

74 We assume for simplicity's sake that there is no question of warranty, as in fact there often is none.

75 Mylappa Chettiar v. Aga Mirza Mohamed Shirazee (1919) 37 Mad. L.J. 712; 54 I.C. 550; cp Secretary

many common forms of advertisement. A statement of the lowest price at which a landowner is prepared to sell has been held by the Privy Council not to be an offer. [76] A term in a partition deed that any of the parties wishing to sell his share will sell to the others at the market value is not an offer but an undertaking to make an offer.[77]

The Manchester City Council adopted the policy of selling its houses to the tenants. One of the tenants applied on a printed form supplied by the Council to supply the terms. The Council wrote back saying that it may be prepared to do so and gave the terms of the sale and of the mortgage and asked the tenant to fill up the accompanying form if he would like to buy and send it to the Council Treasurer. The form was headed 'Application to buy a Council House' and it concluded with the statement 'I now wish to purchase my Council House.' The above answers are correct and I agree that they shall be the basis of the agreement regarding the purchase. Before the contracts could be prepared and exchanged there was a change in the Council and policy was changed and the sales were not completed. The tenant brought an action claiming specific performance. The House of Lords held that there was no completed contract and the Council had not made an offer but had invited the tenant to make an offer. The action therefore failed.[78]

Offer and acceptance of Counter offer.—The sellers gave to the buyers quotations for the sale of their machine tools and the terms and conditions included two clauses (1) a price variation clause providing price ruling on the date of delivery and (2) the terms and conditions in that letter to prevail over terms and conditions in the buyer's orders. The buyers placed an order with terms and conditions materially different from that of the sellers with no price variation clause. At the foot of the order there was a tear-off acknowledgement of receipt of order with the words "we accept your order on the terms and conditions stated thereon". When the goods were ready and delivered the price had gone up and the sellers demanded higher price. The buyers paid the price quoted and the sellers brought an action for the balance. The Trial Court upheld the claim but the Court of Appeal reversed the judgment for the following reasons:

1. The buyers order was a counter offer and the sellers by completing and sending the tear-off acknowledgement had accepted the counter offer and could not claim the increase in price.
2. The documents had to be read as a whole and the tear-off acknowledgement was the decisive document.[79]

The Act does not say, but it seems to imply, that every promise is an accepted proposal. In Shyam Sundar's case it was held that for a promise there must not only be a proposal but also acceptance of the proposal.[80] In the Common Law this is not so, for a binding promise may be made by deed, that is, by writing under seal without any communication between the parties at all. This is because the deed, as an ancient formal method of proof, was conclusive against its maker. It was introduced at a time when, under the archaic procedure still in force in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, all proof had to be conclusive or nothing. The party's solemn admission that he was bound originally excluded all defence. It still dispenses, in England, with positive proof of any ulterior ground of liability.[81] But the practice of executing deeds in the English form and the legal doctrines exclusively applicable to such instruments have never been introduced in India. We have, therefore, no occasion to dwell on them here. There is nothing analogous to them in the provision of our Act (s. 25, sub-s. 1, below) for sanctioning certain voluntary agreements by registration. It is also difficult at first sight to say, without doing some violence to language, that in the common affairs of life a promise is of State v. Madho Ram (1929) 10 Lah. 493, 502; 1929 A.L. 114; Grainger v Gough (1896) A.C. 325 (H.L.)

---

76 Harvey v. Facey (1893) A.C. 552. Followed in MacPherson v. Appanna, 1951 A.S.C. 184.

77 Pooran Singh v. Krishna Bai, 1951 A.M. 396.

78 Gibson v. Manchester City Council (1979) All E.R. 977.

79 Butler Machine Tool Co. Ltd. v. Ex-Cell-O Corporation (England) Ltd., (1979) 1 All E.R. 965, 967, 968, Hyde v. Wrench (1840) 3 Beav. 334; Brogden v. Metropolitan Railway Co. (1877) 2 App. Cas. 666 appld.

80 Shyam Sunder v. Parlakimedi Municipality (1964) A.Or 111.

81 This is subject to the important qualification that specific performance of a merely voluntary covenant will not be granted. In most American jurisdictions the peculiar law concerning the form and effect of deeds has been altered by legislation.

always an accepted proposal. Take the case of a man offering to sell and deliver goods on credit, then and there, to another who at first does not want the goods, but is finally persuaded to take them at a price named by the seller. Here the seller delivers the goods and receives in exchange the buyer's promise to pay for them. Now the buyer's promise has never been a proposal: the seller offered to sell, and the buyer accepted the offer by taking the goods and pledging his credit. It may be said, however, that the buyer must be deemed to adopt the seller's terms at the last moment before delivery of the goods. For the seller will not deliver them unless he knows that he will get the buyer's promise to pay for them; and the only way in which he can be sure of this is the existence of a proposal from the buyer to become liable for the price, which proposal will become a promise on the goods being delivered. Further, it may be said that this is the only way in which the promise can really be simultaneous with the performance for which it is exchanged, as the theory of the Common Law requires it to be. Both these reasons (though the force of the latter appears to be destroyed in India by sub-s. (d), as we shall see) appear to be sound, and sufficient on principle to justify the language of the Act. The case of mutual promises will be considered when we come to it under sub-s. (d).

New Agreement.—Where an employer asked his employee who was claiming his wages to wait till the disposal of the appeal it gives rise to a new agreement and falls under section 2(a) of the Contract Act.[82]

Option and offer.—The feature which distinguishes an option from a mere offer is consideration.[83] A circular by a bank notifying a raise in the bank rate on over-drafts is not an express but an implied proposal under s.2(a); if a constituent keeps alive his overdraft and even makes further borrowings, it would imply his promise to pay at a higher rate.[84]

Promise and Consideration.—Again, the technical use of the word "promise" in the Act is far narrower than the popular use. Express words of promise may be and often are in law no more than a proposal.[85] In common life many promises are made, and regarded as morally binding between one person and another, without any "view to obtaining the assent of that other" to the contents of the promise. In common speech no one thinks of acceptance by the promisee as being an essential condition which must be satisfied before a declaration of intention amounts to a promise. It may be asked, then, why the word "promise" should not have retained its literal and proper meaning, and further why all deliberate promises should not be binding, subject to necessary exceptions and regulations. For example, a promisor could not be held to remain bound if the promisee refused to accept; and some rules of evidence would be required by way of caution, so that men should not be burdened by legal obligations in consequence of hasty or trifling words which the other party had no moral right to take seriously. The answer is that the way thus suggested has indeed been taken by other systems of law, and especially the modern Roman law, which has been adopted on the continent of Europe and in the kingdom of Scotland, but the common law has taken a distinct road of its own. Apart from the peculiar case of a promise made by deed, English law will not enforce a promise unless it was given for value, that is, not necessarily for an adequate value, but for something which the law can deem of some value, and the parties treat as such by making it a subject of bargain[86] The value so received in exchange for the promise may consist in present performance, for example the delivery of goods, or it may itself be the promise of a performance to come. These elements are embodied in the definition of consideration by cl. (d) of our section. This clause is especially open to the remark that what purports to be interpretation of terms is really substantive enactment. Only in s. 25, however, with partial anticipation in ss. 10, 23, and 24 does it appear for what purpose the notion and definition of consideration have been introduced.

---

82 Union of India v. T.L. Dakshinamurthy (1975) A.M. 337, 340.

83 Goldsbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Quinn (1910) 10 C.L.R. 674.

84 Hulas Kanwar v. Allahabad Bank Ltd. (1958) A.Cal. 644.

85 Thus a letter requesting a loan of money, and promising repayment with interest on a certain day, is not a promissory note but a mere proposal for a loan. Dhondbhat v. Atmaram (1889) 13 Bom. 669; Narayanasami v. Lokambalammal (1897) 7 Mad. L.J. 220.

86 See under S. 25 under consideration; infra.

Consideration necessary.—Consideration is a necessity to the validity of an English simple contract though not so in Scotland.[87]

Said Denning L.J. in Combe v. Combe:[88]

The doctrine of consideration is too firmly fixed to be thrown by a side wind. Its ill effects have been largely mitigated of late, but it still remains a cardinal necessity of the formation of a contract although not its modification or discharge.

Definition of Consideration.—The terms of the Indian definition must now be examined. They do not appear to follow those of any authoritative English exposition; they expand, with only verbal difference, those of one of the explanations in the Commissioner's original draft.[89] Whether it was so intended by the framers or not, some of the terms are capable, in their literal meaning, of restoring a doctrine which was long ago finally disallowed in England, and, moreover, they have been held to have that effect.

In a recent Supreme Court case [90] Subbarao J. compared the content of the definition of consideration in Currie v. Misa[91] and of the definition in s.2 (d) of the Act.

According to English Law[92] it is:

"A valuable consideration in the sense of the law may consist either in some right, interest, forbearance, detriment, loss or responsibility, given, suffered or undertaken by the other."[92]

These observations were quoted with approval by the Supreme Court in Chidambara Iyer v. Renga Iyer[93] and it was observed that the contents of the above definition and of the definition in s. 2(d) is the same. An alternative approach is the view put forward by Sir Frederick Pollock:[94]

"An act or forbearance of the one party, or the promise thereof, is the price for which the promise of the other is bought, and the promise thus given for value is enforceable.[94]

The definition was approved by the House of Lords.[95]

...it has also found considerable favour with extrajudicial writers,[96] largely because it emphasises the notion of bargain upon which the English Law of contract may be said to be based.

So it is the price of a promise, a return or quid pro quo for a promise made.[97] The requirement of consideration, vital to the English conception of contract, is not satisfied by a purely moral obligation, nor is it synonymous with motive. It is the price paid by one party for the

---

87 Chitty on Contract, Vol. I (20th Ed.), p. 39. See 24th Ed., paras 1, 2, 24. Stairs Inst. Law of Scotland 95.

88 (1951) 2 K.B. 215, 220; (1951) 1 All E.R. 767, per Denning, L.J. See Lord Simonds in Tool Manufacturing Co. v. Tungsten Electric Co. (1955) 2 All E.R. 657, Gould v. Gould; (1969) 3 All E.R. 728. (A promise by husband to give £10 a week to wife "as long as I live" not binding as there was no consideration). See also Gould v. Gould, (1969) 3 W.L.R. 490. (Agreement by husband to pay £15 a week "as long as I have it").

89 S. 10, expl. 3: "A good consideration must be something which at the desire of the person entering into the engagement another person (N.B.) has done or abstained from doing, or does or abstains from doing, or promises to do or to abstain from doing." None of the illustrations show any intention to alter the modern common law.

90 Chidambara Iyer v. Renga Iyer (1966) 1 S.C.R. 168; (1966) A.S.C. 193, 197.

91 (1875) 10 Exch. 153, 162; on app. (1876) 1 App. Cas. 554.

92 Currie v. Misa (1875) 10 Exch. 153, 162; cf. Bunn v. Guy (1803) 4 East 190; and Thomas v. Thomas (1842) 2 Q.B. 851.

93 (1966) A.SC. 193, 197; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 168. But see Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (5th Ed.), p. 61; (6th Ed.), pp.59, 60. Dickenson v. Abel, (1969) 1 All E.R. 484; (1969) 1 W.L.R. 295 (Commission paid on sale without specifying service is without valuable consideration).

94 Pollock: Principles of Contract (13th Ed.), p. 133; quoted in Keshub Mohindra v. Commissioner of Gift Tax (1968) 70 I.T.R. 1, 23.

95 Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd. (1915) A.C. 847, 885, (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 333, 335, per Lord Dunedin.

96 Cheshire and Fifoot, op. cit., 60. Law Revision Committee's Sixth Interim Report (1937), para. 17; Salmond and Williams: Principles of the Law of Contract (2nd Ed.), p. 101; Williston: Contracts, S. 100; American Restatement on Contracts, para. 75.

97 Bachawat J. in Fazlad Din v. Panchanan Das (1957) A.Cal. 92 referring to Chitty on Contract, Vol. I (20th Ed.), p. 39.

promise of the other; and it must move from the promisee. But the Courts will not ask if the price is adequate: this is for the parties themselves to decide.[98]

Adequate consideration.—Consideration must be a reasonable equivalent or other valuable benefit passing from the promisor to the promisee or from the transferor to the transferee. Adequate consideration must be sufficient and valuable considering the facts, circumstances and necessities of the case. Gift on the other hand has no element of consideration; and passing of money is wholly foreign to a gift. It is submitted that the adequacy of consideration is for the parties to bargain about. And the concept given by their Lordships must be confined to the circumstances of the case.[99] Another view is:

"...Detriment to the promisee is of the essence of the doctrine, and benefit to the promisor is when it exists, merely an accident.[1]

The essential thing in a case is that the offeror should state a price which the offeree should pay if he wishes to purchase a promise.[2]

In Chappell & Co. Ltd. v. Nestles Co. Ltd.[3] where the latter had advertised to supply one of the six gramophone records named in the advertisement in return for a postal order for one shilling six pence and three wrappers, it was held that the wrappers were part of the consideration.

The Calcutta High Court referring to page 22 of 9th Edition of Pollock & Mulla's Contract Act with approval said that there is nothing to show in the definition of 'consideration' in section 2(d) of the Contract Act that the benefit of any act or abstinence as contained in that section must directly go to the promisor. A contract can arise even though the promise for doing or abstain[4] from doing something is for the benefit of a third party.[4]

The term "consideration" in the Gift Tax Act must be construed according to its definition in s. 2(d) of the Contract Act. There is nothing to show in that definition that the benefit of any act or abstinence as contained in that section must 'directly' go to the promisor. A contract can arise even though the promisee does or abstains from doing something for the benefit of a third party (in that case a limited company of which the assessees were shareholders and directors) and the promisor can treat benefit to the company as a consideration to them.[5] The consideration may be of benefit to the promisor or to a third party or may be of no apparent benefit to anybody but merely a detriment to the promisee but its adequacy is for the parties to consider at the time of making the contract and not for the court when it is sought to be enforced.[6] Lord Simon distinguished in Fibrosa's case[7] the meaning of consideration as used in quasi-contractual sense from that given in a contract.

We take the material phrases in order in a family settlement or a family arrangement which is binding on the parties the mother agreed to pay a sum which fell short of what the elder brother had to pay to the younger brother. Then it is a good consideration which brings about an enforceable agreement between the parties and it is not hit by s.25, Contract Act. The facts in this case were that on the death of the father differences arose between two brothers and the younger brother was claiming fifty lacs from the elder brother. The mother intervened and gave in writing to the younger brother promising to pay what fell short of the amount claimed. And the question arose in Wealth Tax proceedings. It did not matter if

---

98 Thomas v. Thomas (1842) 2 Q.B. 857; 114 E.R. 330

99 Somia Bhatia v. State of UP (1981) ASC 1280 (A case under S.5(6) of Imposition Ceiling of Land Holdings Act).

1 Holdsworth: History of English Law, VIII, p. 11.

2 67 L.Q.R. 456; 69 L.Q.R. 106; per Sir A. Goodhart.

3 (1960) A.C. 87; (1959) 2 All E.R. 701.

4 Sudhanshu Mohan Koley v. Mathura Mohan Adak (1975) 1 Cal. 182, 189; Turner Morrison & Co. Ltd. v. Hungerford Investment Trust Ltd. (1972) A.S.C. 1311; Central London Property Trust Ltd. v. High Trees House Ltd., (1947) 1 K.B. 130; Tool Metal Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Tungsten Electric Co. Ltd. (1955) 2 All E.R. 657; Century Spinning and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. Ulhasnagar Municipal Council (1971) A.SC. 1021, 1024. (1970) 3 SCR 854 relied on.

5 Keshub Mohindra v. Commissioner of Gift Tax (1968) 70 I.T.R. 1, 21.

6 Anson: Law of Contract (22nd Ed.), p. 91 relying on Bolton v. Madden (1873) 9 Q.B. 55, 57 quoted in Keshub Mohindra v. Commissioner of Gift Tax (1968) 70 I.T.R. 1, 23.

7 Fibrosa Spolka Akeyjna v. Fairburn Lawson C.B. Ltd. (1943) A.C. 32, (1942) 2 All E.R. 122, 129.

it was contingent contract under section 31, Contract Act, because when the event had happened it became enforceable under s. 32 Contract Act.[8]

Promise, before payment.—An act done before promise of making a payment or conferring other benefit could be a consideration for the promise where (i) the act was done at the promisor's request (ii) the parties understood that the act was to be remunerated by payment or conferment of a benefit and (iii) the payment or conferring of the benefit were legally enforceable. Since the consideration expressed in the guarantee, by incorporation, the plaintiffs promise in the main agreement not to sell the shares for a year, the defendants guarantee would not be treated as independent of the antecedent promise of the plaintiff not to sell because the parties understood the restriction on the sale to be within price of the shares. The plaintiffs promise was made at the request of defendant. The promise of indemnity was given to fulfill that intention. Hence the promise, although antecedent to the guarantee, was a good consideration and the indemnity given as a guarantee was enforceable.[9]

"At the desire of the Promisor."—The act constituting the consideration must have been done at the desire or request of the promisor, as when a person contracts a marriage in consideration of a promise of a settlement.[10] An act done at the desire of a third party is not a consideration. Thus a promise by the defendants to pay to the plaintiff a commission on articles sold through their agency in a market constructed by the plaintiff, not at the desire of the defendants, but of the Collector of the place, is void under s. 25, being without consideration.[11] Nor can it be supported under cl. 2 of that section, which enacts that an agreement without consideration is void, unless it is a promise to compensate a person who has already voluntarily done something for the promisor. The expression "voluntarily" appears to be used in contradistinction to the words "at the desire of the promisor".[12] In this case, even if the market were not established by the plaintiff at the desire of the defendants, the agreement would be binding, provided it was done by the plaintiff voluntarily for the defendants. The Court, however, found that the market was not constructed by the plaintiff for the defendants so as to bring the case within the provisions of s. 25, cl. 2.

Questions may sometimes arise whether the thing done by the plaintiff claiming under a promise was in fact done at the desire of the promisor. The Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality created themselves by deed trustees for the purpose of building a town hall in Howrah and inviting and collecting subscriptions for that purpose. The defendant was a subscriber to this fund of Rs. 100, having signed his name in the subscription book for that amount. As soon as the subscriptions allowed, the Commissioners, including the plaintiff, who was also vice-chairman of the municipality, entered into a contract with a contractor for the purpose of building the town hall. The defendant not having paid his subscription, a suit was brought against him by the plaintiff on behalf of himself and all the other Commissioners who had rendered themselves liable to the contractor. It was held that the suit would lie, as there was a contract for good consideration. It was stated in the course of the judgment that the subscriber knew the purpose to which the subscriptions were to be applied, and also knew that on the faith of their subscription an obligation was to be incurred to pay the contractor for the work.[13] In fact, the act of the plaintiff (promisee) in entering into the contract with the con-

---

8 Commissioner of Wealth Tax, Mysore v. Vijayaba Dowger Maharani Sahiba (1979) A.SC. 982, 983, 984; (1979) 3 S.C.R. 545; Kesoram Industries & Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Commissioner of Wealth Tax (Central) Calcutta 59 I.T.R. 767; (1966) A.SC. 1370, 1377 (1377); Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Wealth Tax, Bombay City I, 93 I.T.R. 603; (1975).A.SC. 756; Standard Mills Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Wealth Tax, Bombay 63 I.T.R. 470; (1967) A.SC. 595.

9 Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65, 74 (P.C.)

10 Nanjunda Swami Chetti v. Kanagaraju (1919) 42 Mad. 154, 159; 49 I.C. 666. It does not follow that where there are several promises included in one transaction a distinct "desire" must be found for each one, though the comment in Vishveshvar v. Sadashiv (1925) 27 Bom. L.R. 1456; 93 I.C. 930; 1926 A.B. 54, seems to go near to asserting this: qu. whether in that case there was a concluded agreement at all.

11 Durga Prasad v. Baldeo (1880) 3 All 221.

12 Sindha Shri Ganpatsingji v. Abraham (1895) 20 Bom. 755, at p. 758; Raja of Venkatagiri v. Sir Krishnayya, 1948 A.P.C. 150, 50 Bom. L.R. 517.

13 Kedar Nath v. Gorie Mahomed (1886) 14 Cal. 64, the statement of the facts in the body of the report is tractor may be said in this case to have been done at the desire of the defendant (promisor) so as to constitute a consideration within the meaning of the section for the promise to pay the subscription. If there were no contract with the contractor, or if no liability had been incurred and nothing substantial had been done on the faith of the defendant's promise, the promise to pay the subscription would have been without consideration, and therefore void. It would seem to follow that in the opinion of the Calcutta High Court every promise of a subscription to a public or charitable object becomes a legal promise, and enforceable by the promoters, as soon as any definite steps have been taken by them in furtherance of the object and on the faith of the promised subscriptions. There are two English decisions of a similar kind, Re Soames,[14] Re Mountgarret.[15] In Re Soames, S. promised to leave the plaintiffs £3000 by his will for the maintenance of a school. The plaintiffs established a school, which the court held they would not have done, but for S's influence. The will contained no such bequest, but the executors of S were held liable. In Re Mountgarret, M suggested that estimates be obtained for the cost of supplying seating in a school chapel. The school authorities obtained designs though no means were available. The designs were sent to M, and he replied that the school could look to him for £2800. He also stated that he was willing for lectern, pulpit and organ work to be added if the cost was not above £3000. Plans for the additional work were prepared, but then M died. M's estate was held liable for the seating, and the plans for the other work, but not the actual work. These two English decisions seem in accordance with the principle of unilateral contracts, that is where there is a promise for an act. A makes a promise to B if B performs an act. B is at liberty to act or not, but if he does so A is liable on his promise. Re Mountgarret indicates that a promisor in such a case may revoke his promise at any time, and remain liable only for work done up to that time. There is little English authority on the point, but in Errington v. E. Denning L.J. in the Court of Appeal expressed the opinion that such a revocation is impossible once the promisee has started on performance.[16] The Madras High Court has followed the decision of the Calcutta High Court and held that where a person promises to pay a subscription for a particular object and steps have been taken in furtherance of the object on the faith of the promised subscription, the subscriber is liable.[17] In a subsequent case it was held by the same High Court that a promise to pay a subscription in order to meet a liability already incurred was not enforceable as in such a case it could not be said that there was any request by the promisor to the promisee to do something in consideration of the promised subscription.[18] In an Allahabad case where a Mahomedan subscribed Rs. 500 to a fund started to rebuild a mosque, and no steps were taken to rebuild the mosque, it was held that the promise was without consideration, and that the subscriber was not liable.[19] Mere willingness to utilise a donation for the purposes of a trust which was proposed to be set up for promoting technical or business knowledge including knowledge of insurance cannot be regarded as consideration within s. 2(d). [20] The facts of that case were:

In pursuance of a resolution of the company an insurance company paid 2 lakhs out of shareholders' fund towards a certain memorial trust proposed to be formed to promote technical or business knowledge including insurance. After the payment insurance business was taken over by and vested in the Life Insurance Corporation, the trustees of the Trust were called upon to return the amount so paid. This inadequate. Dist. Adaitya Dass v. Prem Chand (1928) 120 I.C. 105; 49 C.L.J. 278; 1929 A.Cal. 369 (no evidence of plaintiff's expense being incurred at defendant's request). Also dist. in Dr. Gopal v. Trimbar, 1953 A.N. 195.

---

14 (1897) 13 T.L.R. 430.

15 (1913) 29 T.L.R. 325.

16 (1952) 1 K.B. 290, 295.

17 District Board of Ramnad v. Mahomed Ibrahim, 1933 A.M. 524; 64 Mad. L.J. 574; 143 I.C. 496; cf. Perumal v. Sendanatha, 1918 A.M. 311; 44 I.C. 479.

18 Doraswamy v. Arunachala, 1936 A.M. 135; 159 I.C. 345.

19 Abdul Aziz v. Masum Ali (1914) 36 All 268; 23 I.C. 600. Cp Re Hudson (1885) 33 W.R. 819; 54 L.J. Ch; 811 Claim in administration suit for unpaid instalments of testator's promised subscription with allegation of expense and liabilities incurred on the faith thereof, treated as unarguable. The Court did however indicate that had the claim been for liabilities actually incurred by the plaintiffs it might have been successful. The case was not cited in Re Soames or Re Mountgarret (supra) Re Hudson was applied in Commissioner of Income Tax v. Kameswar Singh, 1953 A.P. 231.

20 Dr. Lakshmanswami Mudaliar v. Life Insurance Corporation (1963) A.S.C. 1185, 1190; (1963) supp.

amount was held to be a donation and the resolution of the company and acceptance by the trustees did not constitute a contract and even if it was an offer there was no consideration moving from the trustees.

And the donation was ultra vires of the company.[21] At all events a voluntary payment, even if repeated, is not in itself evidence of a promise to continue it.[22] The question of consideration for a promise only arises if the offer is accepted so as to ripen into an agreement and if there is no concluded agreement between the parties then the further question whether it is supported by consideration would not arise.[23]

When Contract Constituted.—A Company entered into a contract with 'B', the owner of a building site, to construct a building within two years, and if the building was completed in pursuance of the stipulations and the building was approved by B's surveyors, 'B' agreed to lease out the building to 'A' for 125 years. The lease was granted as agreed. 'A' assigned the lease to another group of Companies for larger sum of money. The question arose in taxation for Capital Gains Tax which depended on the date of the lease. It was held that the contract was not a conditional contract and the lease was acquired by the lessee on the date of the contract and not on the date of execution of the lease .[24]

The Supreme Court has held that a lessor does not recognise the transferee of a lessee as the substitute of the original lessee by receiving a part of the lease money from him without recognising the transferee as his debtor. Failure of the lessee to make payment of his liability to the lessor in stipulated time will entitle the lessor to recover possession according to the lease agreement between the lessor and the lessee.[25]

Fundamental Condition of Contract.—'C' agreed with 'T' to introduce a financier who would finance the project which 'T' was proposing to put up. The condition was that the building contract would be given to 'C', but the parties could not agree on the price of construction, and, therefore, the contract fell through and 'T' employed other contractors to do the work. 'C' claimed that 'T' was in breach of the contract in employing others. It was held that T agreeing to give the building contract to 'C' under conditions abovementioned did not give rise to an enforceable contract between the two because (1) price was a matter which was fundamental to the contract and (2) a contract to negotiate even though supported by consideration was not a contract known to the law since it was too uncertain to have any binding force.[26]

Contractual duty no consideration:—Although the rule that a promise by one party to a contract to fulfil his contractual duty towards the other party did not constitute good consideration was still good law, so that in a contract to build a ship the builders' original liability to build the ship did not constitute good consideration for an agreement to pay further percentage, but on a devaluation of currency the increase by the ship builders in the amount of their letter of credit which they had agreed to give as security for instalments was sufficient consideration on their part for that agreement since by increase they had undertaken an additional obligation or had rendered themselves liable to an increased detriment, and were not merely fulfilling their existing contractual duty.[27]

"Or any other person."—In modern English law it is well settled that consideration must move from the promisee.[28] Under the Act, however, consideration may proceed from the promisee or any other person. The result, according to the decisions now to be cited, is to restore

21 Ibid.

22 Jiban Krishna Mullick v. Nirupama Gupta (1926) 53 Cal. 922; 96 I.C. 846; 1926 A.Cal 1009; Jamuna Das v. Ram Kumar, 1937 A.P. 358; 169 I.C. 396.

23 Pipraich Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Pipraich Sugar Mills Mazdoor Union, 1956 S.C.R. 872 at p. 885; 1957 A.SC. 95.

24 Eastham (Inspector of Taxes) v. Leigh London & Provinical Properties Ltd. (1971) Taxation Law Report 1976.

25 Prakash Chand Khurana v. Harbans Singh (1973) A.SC. 2065, 2068; Nochulliyil Euzhuvan Theethi v. Eralpad Rajah, 40 Mad, 1111; Saradindu Mukherjee v. Sm. Kunja Kamini Roy (1942) A.C. 514; Krishna Bhatta v. Narayana Achary (1949) A.M. 618 disting.

26 Courtney and Fairbairn Ltd. v. Tolaini Brothers (Hotels) Ltd. and another (1975) 1All E.R. 716.

27 North Ocean Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Construction Co. Ltd. and another (1978) 3 All ER. 1170.

28 "The meaning of this rule seems to be that the matter of the consideration must be given, done, or suffered by the promisee himself, or, if by a third party, at the request and by the procurement of the the doctrine of some earlier English decisions which are no longer of authority in England. In Dutton v. Poole,[29] decided so far back as 1688, where the father of a bride was about to fell timber on his estate to provide a marriage portion for her, and refrained from doing so on the eldest son promising to pay the amount to her, it was held that the daughter could maintain an action against the son on the promise to the father, It will be observed that no consideration proceeded from the daughter. She was not a party to the contract, and the whole consideration moved from the father. On the faith of the son's promise. the father abstained from felling the timber, and as a result the estate with the timber descended to the son as the heir-at-law. The ground of the decision was that, having regard to the near relationship between the plaintiff (daughter) and the party from whom the consideration moved (father), the plaintiff might be considered a party to the consideration. That is to say, a stranger to the consideration could, by construction of law, be regarded as a party to it, if he was closely related to the person from whom the consideration actually proceeded. But this decision is no longer law in England, and was finally set aside by Tweddle v. Atkinson.[30] In that case, decided in 1861, an agreement was entered into between the respective fathers of a husband and wife that each should pay a sum of money to the husband, and that the husband should have full power to sue for such sums. After the death of both the contracting parties the husband sued the executors of the wife's father upon the above agreement, but the action was held not to be maintainable. The husband was a stranger to the consideration, and the plea of nearness of relationship to the contracting parties was regarded as of no consequence. As to Dutton v. Poole. it was said that there was no modern case supporting that decision, and its authority was treated as overruled. It may now be taken as an established rule of English law that a third party cannot sue on a contract though made for his benefit, and the nearness of relationship cannot be invoked to import what may be called constructive consideration. The principle is as well established as any "in our law," said Lord Simonds in Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd.,[31] a "fundamental" principle as Lord Haldane called it in Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co.;[32] an "elementary" principle as it has been called times without number.[33] But the Privy Council declined to apply this Common Law rule to marriages under Muslim Law [34] or to partitions of joint properties.[35]

Dutton v. Poole was relied on, and Tweddle v. Atkinson distinguished, by Innes J., in Chinnaya v. Ramayya[36] in the High Court of Madras. In that case, A, by a deed of gift, made over certain property to her daughter, with a direction that the daughter should pay an annuity to A's brother, as had been done by A. On the same say the daughter executed a writing in favour of the brother agreeing to pay the annuity. The daughter declined to fulfill her promise, and the brother sued the daughter to recover the amount due under the agreement. On behalf of the daughter it was contended that no consideration proceeded from the brother, and that he, being a stranger to the consideration, had no right to sue, Innes J. held, following Dutton v. Poole,[37] that the consideration indirectly moved from the brother to the daughter, and that he was, therefore, entitled to maintain the suit, Tweddle v. Atkinson was distinguished upon the ground that there no consideration proceeded either directly or indirectly from the husband, as he was not worse off from the non-fulfilment of the promises than he would have been if they had not been made. It does not appear probable that this ingenious attempt to save the authority of Dutton v. Poole would be supported in an English promisee, and as the agreed equivalent for the promise; and, with this meaning, the rule seems to import no more than is necessarily implied in the conception of a consideration as an essential part of the agreement": Leake Law of Contracts, 8th ed. (1931) p. 459.

---

29 (1688) 2 Lev. 210 appd. by Lord Mansfield in Martyn v. Hind (1779) 2 Cowp. 437, 443.

30 1 B. & S. 393; 124 R.R. 610. See especially the judgment of Crompton J. This has been the law for over a century and accepted by H.L. in Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932, 955 (H.L.): (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197. See contra Denning M.R. in the same case (1966) Ch. 538; (1966) 3 All E.R. 1 (C.A.).

31 1962 A.C. 446; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 186; (1962) 1 All E.R. 1.

32 1915 A.C. 847, 853; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 333.

33 Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd., 1962 A.C. 446 (1962) 1 All E.R. 1; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 186, 191 (H.L.).

34 Khwaja Muhammud Khan v. Husaini Begum, 37 I.A. 152.

35 Dan Kuer v. Sarla Devi, 73 I.A. 208; (1947) A.P.C. 8, 15.

36 (1881) 4 Mad. 137.

37 (1688) 2 Lev. 210.

He held that estate duty was not payable on the daughters' annuities.[56]

Referring to this judgment, Lord Denning said in Beswick v. Beswick[57] that it was wrong to say that the daughters had no enforceable interest.

"Can the transferee take the assets and reject the promise? I think not.... In my opinion a contract such as this, for the benefit of widow and children, is binding."

The observations to the contrary in re Millers Agreement [56] and Green v. Russell[58] were held to be erroneous.

Lord Denning challenged the efficacy of the decision in Tweddle v. Atkinson[59] and characterised it as wrongly decided and as out of line with the law settled in previous centuries.[60] He considered the original common law rule to be more in accord with the needs of civilised society and remarked that in the United States and in Scotland the original view prevails.[61] The Court of Appeal by a majority held in Beswick v. Beswick[62] that a person for whose benefit a contract is made can sue on the contract in the name of the contracting party or jointly with him and if he refuses to join by adding him as a co-defendant. A somewhat similar view was expressed by Jenkins C.J. in Debnarayan Dutt v. Chunilal Ghose.[63] He said:

"In India we are free from these trammels (reference is to Tweddle v. Atkinson (1861) I B. & S.393) and are guided in matters of procedure by the rule of justice, equity and good conscience.

But the House of Lords[64] did not accept this view and considered the decisions of the House in Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd.[65] and Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd.[66] as a bar to such suits. The English Law Revision Committee recommended in 1937 a revision of the law relating to consideration and third party rights thus: "that where a contract by its express terms purports to confer a benefit directly on a third party, it shall be enforceable by the third party in his own name."[67]

Privity—cestui que trust.—The general rule is that only the persons entitled to the benefits or bound by the obligations of a contract are entitled to sue or be sued upon it.[68] This is so even where it is clear from the contract that some provision in it was intended to benefit such third party.[69] Nor can it be used as a shield and not a sword. Therefore, if A for good consideration agrees with B that he will not sue C for C's negligence, the latter will not be able to set up the promise of A to B as defence. There is no difference in principle between A promising B to pay C and A promising B that he will not claim that which C ought to pay A.[70] The Calcutta High Court has held that where a contract is made for the benefit of a third per-57 (1966) 3 W.L.R. 369, 402 (C.A.): (1966) 3 All E.R. 1.

---

58 (1959) 2 Q.B. 226; (1959) 3 W.L.R. 17; (1959) 2 All E.R. 525.
59 (1861) 1 B. & S. 393; (1861-73) All E.R. Rep. 369.
60 Beswick v. Beswick (1966) Ch. 538; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 396 (C.A.); Drive Yourself Hire Co. v. Strutt (1954) 1 Q.B. 250, 273-4; (1953) 2 All E.R. 1475, 1483. This view was not accepted by the Australian High Court in Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-7) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 486; see infra.
61 Drive Yourself Hire Co. v. Strutt (1954) 1 Q.B. 250, 273-4; (1953) 2 All E.R. 1475, 1483.
62 (1966) Ch.538; (1966) 3 All E.R. 1;(1966) 3 W.L.R. 396 (C.A.) (Salmon L.J. Contra).
63 41 Cal. 137, 145.
64 Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197; (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932 (H.L); Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1967) 40 A.L.J.R. 471 appd.
65 (1915) A.C. 847; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 333.
66 (1962) A.C. 446; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 188 (H.L.). See also Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-7) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, where the opinion of Denning M.R. was doubted.
67 Cmd. 5449 p. 31, refd. to in Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197; (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932 (H.L.).
68 Vandepitte v. Preferred Accident Insurance Corporation (1933) A.C. 70, 79; (1932) All E.R. Rep. 527; (1933) A.PC. 2 (P.C.); Carberry v. Gardiner (1936) 36 S.R. (N.S.W.) 559, 573; Ryder v. Taylor (1936) S.R. (N.S.W.) 31, 47-49; Cf. Cathels v. Commissioner of Stamp Duties (1962) S.R. (N.S.W.) 455 (Insurance by husband against death of bodily injury. Both husband and wife killed in an air crash). See Des Raj v. Concord of India Insurance Co. (1951) A. Punj. 114; Shiv Dayal v. Union of India (1963) A.Punj. 538.
69 Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd. (1962) 2 W.L.R. 186, 195, 196 (per Lord Reid), 213 (Lord Morris); (1962) 3 All E.R. 1. Crystallised in Tweddle v. Atkinson (1861) 1 B. & S. 393 (a stranger cannot "take advantage" from the contract) and finally established in Dunlop Pneumatic Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd. (1915) A.C. 847.
70 (1962) 2 W.L.R. 186, 213 (per Lord Morris) (H.L.); (1962) 1 All E.R. 1.

son there may be an equity in favour of the third person to sue upon the contract.[71]

Consideration contd.—A second principle is that there must be consideration to the promisor or at his request to some other person by the person enforcing the contract.[72] These two principles are not recognised in the same fashion by some continental countries or in Scotland. Lord Dunedin in Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd.[73] said that the effect of the doctrine of consideration is to make it possible for a person to snap his fingers at a bargain deliberately made, a bargain not in itself unfair, and which the person seeking to enforce, has legitimate interest to enforce.

Later cases on the doctrine.—The law has been crystallised in two recent cases; Beswick v. Beswick and Coulls's case. One decided by the English Courts[74] and the other by the High Court of Australia,[75] in which the rigor of the law relating to consideration and third party rights was reagitated. They may well be considered at some length.[74]

Beswick case was this:

One PB agreed with his nephew to transfer his business in consideration of the nephew employing him at £6-10s. a week for the rest of his life and to pay to PB's wife after his death an annuity charged on the business at £5 a week for her life. The nephew took over the business but after the death of PB refused to pay any sum to PB's widow. She brought an action against the nephew in her capacity as administratrix and her personal capacity. This action was decreed by the Court of Appeal. Lord Denning M.R. held that the rule that no third person can sue or be sued on a contract to which he is not a party is only a rule of procedure. Where a contract is made for the benefit of a third person, the third person may enforce it in the name of the contracting party or his executor or personal representative, or jointly with him, or, if he refuses to sue, by adding him as a co-defendant."[76]

Danckwerts L.J. there held that a contract to make a money payment can be specifically performed.[77] When the matter was taken to the House of Lords, the decision of the Court of Appeal was affirmed but the question whether the widow was entitled to sue at common law in her personal capacity as beneficiary, was not argued and the correctness of the decision in Tweddle v. Atkinson[78] was not challenged. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd.[79] and Midland Silicones v. Scrutton's Ltd.[80] were considered as the greatest difficulty in the way of widow's right to sue personally. The Lords held that the widow as administratrix of the estate of her husband was entitled to enforce the agreement by way of specific performance in her own favour notwithstanding that damages recoverable for her husband's estate were or might be nominal.[81] Lord Reid was of the opinion that the widow had no right in her personal capacity but as an administratrix she could sue for specific performance for the 71 Khirod Behari Dutt v. Man Gobinda, 1934 A.Cal. 682; (1934) 61 Cal. 841. Jenkins C.J.'s observations in Debnarayan Dutt v. Chunilal Ghose, 41 Cal. 137; (1941) A.Cal. 129; and Dwarika Nath v. Priya Nath, 36 I.C. 792; (1981) A.Cal. 941 reld. on; Khirod's case was not approved by the Privy Council in a Malayasian case Kepong Prospecting Ltd. v. Schmit (1968) 2 W.L.R. 55; see supra.

---

72 Dunlop Pneumatic Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd., (1915) A.C. 847. Snelling v. John Snelling Ltd., (1972) 1 All E.R. 79.

73 Ibid.

74 Beswick v. Beswick (1966) Ch. 538; (1966) 3 All E.R. 1, (1966) 3 W.L.R. 396 (C.A.); (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197; (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932 (H.L.).

75 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1967) 40 A.L.J.R. 471.

76 Beswick v. Beswick (1966) Ch. 538; (1966) 3 All E.R. 1; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 396 (C.A.) (Salmon, L.J. Contra). Contra Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 477, 486; Cf. Debnarayan Dutt v. Chunilal Ghose, 41 Cal. 137, 145 (per Jenkins C.J.— Courts in India not hampered by Tweddle v. Atkinson).

77 Beswick v. Beswick (1966) 3 W.L.R. 396, 410; (1966) 3 All E.R. 1 upheld by the House of Lords on appeal (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932; (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197 (H.L.); Hohler v. Aston (1920) 2 Ch. 420 (contract relating to purchase of a house); Keenan v. Handley, 2 DeG.J. & Sm. 283 (annuity); Drimmie v. Davies (1899) 1 Ir.R.176, 190 (annuity).

78 (1861) 1 B. & S. 393.

79 (1915) A.C. 847; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 333 (H.L.).

80 (1962) A.C. 446; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 188 (H.L.).

81 Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197, 1205, 1207, 1209, 1214, 1220 and 1221; (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932 (H.L.); Swift v. Swift (1841) 3 Ir.Eq.R. 267; Keenan v. Handley, 2 De G.J. & Sm. 283; 46 E.R. 384 (annuity); Drimmie v. Davies (1899) 1 Ir. 176 (annuity); and Hohler v. Ashton (1920) 2 Ch. 420 applied (contract relating to purchase of a house).

benefit of herself (p. 1205). Lord Hodson was of the same opinion (p.1207). For an unconscionable breach of faith, the equitable remedy was apt (p. 1208). So was Lord Guest. Lord Pearce was of the opinion that specific performance was the proper remedy[82] (p. 1212). Lord Upjohn held that in common law, a third party cannot sue to enforce a contract but equity must come in for the purpose of specifically enforcing a right (p.1218).

If the husband of the widow, said Lord Upjohn, in his lifetime could enforce the contract, there was no reason why the widow could not sue for her benefit (p.1219). The power of equity to specifically enforce a contract in favour of third party at the instance of the contracting party was not in doubt (pp. 1220, 1221). And further equity will act if damages would only be nominal[83] Note: pages mentioned herein are of the All E.R. The House of Lords in a later case observed that the question of third party rights required reconsideration Wodar Investment Development Ltd. v. Winpey Construction (U.K.). Ltd. (1980), All E.R. 571, 583.

In Hohler v. Aston,[84] Sargent J. enforced a contract relating to the purchase of a house for the benefit of third parties who were joined as co-plaintiffs but the relief was given to the plaintiff who made the contract. In Keenan v. Handley[85] the court enforced an agreement providing the benefit of an annuity in favour of the mother who was a party and after her death to her child who was not a party to it. In Drimmie v. Davies,[86] the Irish Court of Appeal ordered specific performance of an agreement whereby annuities were provided for third parties.

In Coulls's case,[87] "O" Company for a consideration of £5 agreed to quarry stone from the property of C and agreed to pay a fixed minimum royalty of £12 per week to C and his wife during their joint lives and thereafter to the survivor. The document was signed by the company, the husband and the wife. The wife was held entitled to receive the royalties after her husband's death and notwithstanding that she gave no consideration, she could enforce this right.

Barwick C.J. held that a person not a party to a contract may not himself sue upon the contract so as directly to enforce its obligations. But it is possible for that person to obtain the benefit of a promise made with another for his benefit by steps other than enforcement by himself in his own right.[88] It was also held:

In a contract where a promise by A is made to B & C for consideration to pay B & C, it is not open to A to question whether the consideration moved from both B & C or as between themselves only from one of them. The agreement was a promise in respect of which there was privity between A on the one hand and B & C on the other. It is enforceable in the joint lifetime of B & C but if both are parties to the action to enforce it. B though he supplied the consideration could not sue alone. If C were unwilling to join as plaintiff he could be joined as a defendant but judgment would be in favour of both B & C. Similarly if B would not join in the action, C, could join B as a defendant and with a similar judgment, i.e. in favour of B & C.[89]

---

82 Hart v. Hart (1881) 18 Ch.D. 670, 685 (per Kay J. an agreement for valuable consideration and partially performed should be carried out by a decree for specific performance) and Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471 refd. to and appd.

83 Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197; (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932 (H.L.), referring to cases of specific performance of contracts for benefit of third parties; Hohler v. Aston (1920) 2 Ch. 420 at p. 950 (purchase of a house for the benefit of third parties); Keenan v. Handley, 2 De G.J. & Sm. 283 at p. 950 (annuity to mother, and after her death to her child not a party) and Drimmie v. Davies (1899) 1 Ir.R. 176, 190 (Holmes, L.J.) annuities provided for third parties); Wilson v. Northampton & Banbury Junction Ry. Co. (1874) 9 Ch. App. 279, 284 (specific performance instead of damages when Court can do more complete justice); Windeyer J.'s observations in Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 486 appd. (then unreported); Veeramma v. Appayya (1957) A.AP. 965.

84 (1920) 2 Ch. 420 quoted in Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932, 950 (Lord Pearce) H.L.

85 2 De G.J. & Sm. 283 quoted by Lord Pearce in Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932, 950 (H.L.).

86 Holmes L.J. (1899) 1 Ir.R. 176, 190.

87 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-7) 40 A.L.J.R. 471.

88 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1967) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 477, 483; Beswick v. Beswick (1966) Ch. 538 reld. on); Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd., 1915 A.C. 847 dist. on the ground that the promise was gratuitous and privity was not lacking. See Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197 (H.L.) approving Coulls's case.

89 Per Garfield Barwick C.J. in Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 477.

In neither of these cases could A successfully deny either privity or consideration.

Similarly, if B were dead, the representatives of B would have to be joined by C because A's promise was not made with C alone though the judgment will be in favour of C being the survivor.[90] The mode of enforcing would be by the executor enforcing the promise to pay the survivor, i.e. for the benefit of the widow.

Windeyer J. reviewed the law relating to consideration and the right of third parties to enforce a contract where consideration moves from a joint promisee and seems to hold that C (the wife) could enforce the contract in the manner suggested by the Chief Justice.[91] After quoting from Lord Selbourne that

"the Court gives specific performance instead of damages only when it can by that means do more perfect and complete justice"[92]

and referring to Lord Erskine L.C. in Alley v. Deschamps.[93] Windeyer J. said:[94]

"Complete and perfect justice to a promisee may well require that a promisor perform his promise to pay money or transfer property to a third party. I see no reason why specific performance should not be had in such cases..."

The wife "could compel proceedings to enforce the contract".

Both Beswick v. Beswick and Coulls's case have provided some amelioration of the position of the tertius, e.g. to enforce the agreement as administratrix of her husband and to do so by way of an order for specific performance in her own personal favour.[95]

U.S.A.

In the U.S.A. in most but not in all jurisdictions, third persons (both donee beneficiaries or creditor beneficiaries)[96] are now able to sue directly upon contracts made by others for their benefit.[97] This view has been accepted after much conflict among courts and commentators:

Williston on Contracts (3rd Ed.) Vol. I, s. 114 contains the following question:

"Does the law require that promises shall be paid for by the promisee or does it merely require that the promise shall be paid for by some one?"

The rule as deducible from these cases is that third parties for whose benefit a contract has been made may not sue on the contract but the party making the contract may sue for specific performance for the benefit of the third party even where damages obtainable will be nominal.

Consideration—continued

In Gurtner's case.[98] the facts were:

By an agreement between the Minister of Transport and the Motor Insurers Bureau the latter agreed to pay the full amount of a judgment in favour of any injured person if that remained unsatisfied for seven days. The injured person not being a party, the Minister can sue for specific performance and can compel the bureau to honour its agreement by paying the injured person.

Lord Denning M.R. also held that if the Minister obtains an order for specific performance the injured person can enforce it for his own benefit.[98] and if the Minister hesitates to 90 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1967) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 477-8 appd. in Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197 (H.L.). See Allwood v. Rattenbury (1822) 6 Moo C.P. 579, 584.

---

91 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1967) 40 A.L.J.R. 477, 487 quoted with approval in Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197, 1213, 1221.

92 Wilson v. Northampton & Banbury Junction Ry. Co. (1874) 9 Ch. App. 279, 284.

93 (1806) 13 Ves. 225, 227.

94 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd., 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 487; Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932, 941 (Lord Pearce); (1967) 2 All E.R. 1187, 1214.

95 (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932; (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197.

96 40 A.L.J.R. 471. See also 41 A.L.J. 146-8.

97 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 484 referring to Tweedale v. Tweedale (1903) 116 Win. 17; 93 N.W. 440.

98 Gurtner v. Circuit (1968) 2 All E.R. 668, 674; Beswick v. Beswick (1967) 3 W.L.R. 932; (1967) 2 All E.R. 1197 (H.L.) folld.

sue the injured person may sue and thus compel performance.[99] (Per Denning M.R.); but Diplock and Salmon L.JJ. held the agreement to be enforceable only by the Minister and the injured party not being a party to the agreement cannot sue against it.[1]

There was no difference in this respect i.e. the right of third parties to sue between law and equity; but where a trust has been created by a contract, a cestui que trust can enforce the rights which the trust so created has given him. He is not a party to the contract and his rights are equitable, not contractual, though they arise out of a contract; and this exception to the general rule is apparent only, not real.[2] This equitable exception was applied in India by the Privy Council in Khwaja Muhammad Khan v. Hussaini Begam.[3] The father of the bridegroom had contracted with the father of the bride to make the daughter an allowanc called kharch-i-pandan if she married the son. After the marriage the daughter sued her father-in-law to recover arrears of the allowance. The Privy Council held that though she was no party to the contract yet "she was clearly entitled to proceed in equity to enforce her claim". A subsequent Calcutta case has suggested that in India there is no reason to fall back on this equity and that a person who takes a benefit under a contract may sue on the contract.[4] This view is, it is submitted, incorrect and has been dissented from by the Bombay High Court.[5] It is directly opposed to the decision of the Privy Council in Jamna Das v. Ram Autar[6] that a purchaser's contract to pay off a mortgage cannot be enforced by the mortgagee who was no party to the contract. Indeed the weight of decisions now is in favour of the view that a person not a party to the contract cannot sue on the contract unless the case comes within one of the recognized exceptions [7] and this seems clearly indicated by the provisions of sub-ss. (a), (b), (c) and (i) of s.2.[8] It has accordingly been held that where A mortgages his property to B, part of the consideration for the mortgage being B's promise to A to pay C the amount which A owed to C, C not being a party to the contract, cannot sue B for the payment.[9] Similarly, it has been held that where a policy of insurance is effected by the assured on his own life, and the policy is expressed to be for the benefit of his wife, the wife, not being a party to the contract of assurance, is not entitled, in cases not governed by the provisions of the Married Women's Property Act, 1874, to sue the insurance company on the policy unless the policy is assigned in writing as provided by Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s.130, or a trust has been declared by the assured as provided by the Indian Trusts Act. 1882, s.5.[10] Upon the same principle where a

---

99 Gurtner v. Circuit (1968) 2 W.L.R. 668, 674.

1 Ibid., 676, 679, 682.

2 Fletcher v. Fletcher (1844) 4 Hare 67; In re Empress Engineering Co. (1880) 16 Ch.D. 125, per Jessel M.R. at p. 129; Gandy v. Gandy (1885) 30 Ch.D. 57; Affreteurs Reunis v. Walford (1919) A.C. 801. Whether a trust is in fact created is a question of interpretation: see Underhill on Trusts, 10th ed., p. 56.

3 (1910) 37 I.A. 152; 32 All. 410; 7 I.C. 237.

4 Kshirodebihari v. Mangobinda (1934) 61 Cal. 841; 152 I.C. 351; 1934 A.Cal. 682 not appd. in Kepong Prospecting Ltd. v. Schmidt (1968) 2 W.L.R. 55, 64 (P.C.); Gauri Shankar v. Mangal, 1933 A.L. 178; 141 I.C. 490. The judgment in the latter case purports to follow Torabaz Khan v. Nanak Chand, A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 566; 138 I.C. 263, but this seems clearly to have been a case of trust.

5 National Petroleum Co. v. Popatlal (1936) 60 Bom. 954; 38 Bom. L.R. 610; 165 I.C. 338; 1936 A.B. 344. The two views are discussed in P.M.G. Patna v. Ram Kripal (1955) A.P. 442.

6 (1911) 39 I.A. 7; All. 63; 13 I.C. 304. See also Kepong Prospecting Ltd. v. Schmidt (1968) 2 W.L.R. 55.

7 Ganesh Das v. Mt. Banto (1935) 16 Lah. 118; 158 I.C. 387; 1935 A.L. 354; Adhar Chandra v. Dole Gobinda (1936) 63 Cal. 1172; 40 C.W.N. 1037; 1936 A.Cal. 663; Suryanaravana v. Basivireddi (1932) 55 Mad. 436; 139 I.C. 135; 1932 A.M. 457; Wali Uddin v. Ram Rakhan, A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 313; 162 I.C. 451; Pheku Ram v. Ganga Prasad (1940) All. 96; 186 I.C. 513; 1940 A.A. 98; Jnan Chandra v. Manoranjan (1941) 2 Cal. 576; 1942 A.Cal. 251; Shamji Bhanji & Co. v. North Western Railway Co. (1946) 48 Bom.L.R. 698, 231 I.C. 367, 1947 A.B. 169; Gulabchand v. Laxminarain (1944) Nag. 46, 212 I.C. 539, 1944 A.N. 120; Saraswatibai v. Haibatrao Ramji (1945) Nag. 581, 1945 A.N. 261; Suraj Prasad v. Ram Lal (1947) 25 Pat. 269, 230 I.C. 224, (1947) A.P. 131; Gajadhar Prasad v. Rishabhkumar (1949) Nag. 122, 1949 A.N. 319; Mst. Sudama Devi v. Ram Kishan Lal, 1954 A.A. 348.

8 Kepong Prospecting Ltd. v. Schmidt (1968) 2 W.L.R. 55 (P.C.).

9 Iswaran Pillai v. Sonnivevaru (1913) 38 Mad. 753; Kasturamma v. Venkatasurayya (1915) 29 Mad.L.-J. 538; see also Ganesh Das v. Mt. Banto (1935) 16 Lah. 118; 158 I.C. 387; 1935 A.L. 354.

10 Shankar v. Umabai (1913) 37 Bom. 471. The parties to the suit in this case were Hindus, and it was lease contained a stipulation that the lessee would pay to the zamindar zamindari dues which were payable by the lessor to the zamindar, it was held that the zamindar, not being a party to the lease, was not entitled to sue the lessee under the terms of the lease.[11] By a tharao the owners of certain villages were given full rights over the forests in those villages under their vahivat. Some of these villagers executed contracts in favour of the plaintiffs. But the Government after merger of the States cancelled the tharaos. In an action for injunction against the Government it was held that the plaintiffs could not enforce the agreement as they were not parties thereto.[12] So, where a man insures his life expressly for the benefit of his widow, this gives her no lien upon the policy moneys in preference to his creditors.[13] Where a person takes out a policy of insurance on his own life for his own benefit, and dies while the policy is still in force, leaving a will disposing of all his property, the beneficiaries under the will have no right either at law or in equity to enforce payment by the insurer, even though the executors refuse to sue and are made parties to the action.[14] In Graham Joint Stock Shipping Co. v. Merchants Marine Insurance Co. Ltd.[15] it was held that an insurance policy only protected the owner and not the mortgagees. The rule had previously been illustrated by Yangtsze Insurance Association Ltd. v. Lukmanjee.[16]

Insurance by bailee.—A bailee can insure to cover his full insurable interest upto full value of the goods entrusted to him and if he does that he can recover the full value of the goods though he suffers no personal loss at all. But in that case he will have to account to the owner of the goods who has suffered loss, i.e. he will be trustee for the owners. He would be able to retain so much as would cover his own interest and be trustee for the balance.[17] The argument that in such a case there would be conflict with the principle that parties to a contract cannot confer enforceable rights on third parties was not accepted. The principle preventing jus quaesitum tertio firmly established was described by Lord Reid not to be primeval or necessary principle of the Law of England.[18] But courts are not bound to extend it on a logical basis so as to cut down an exception which has stood unchallenged for a century since Waters case.[19] The Calcutta High Court has held that such insurance is of the carrier though for the benefit of the owner of the goods who can therefore sue on the contract making the carrier a party.[20]

Privity of contract.—The doctrine of privity of contract implies a mutuality of will and is interaction of parties and their successors. It creates a legal bond or tie or vinculum juris personal to the parties. The rule is that no one but the parties to a contract can be bound by it or entitled under it.[21] This doctrine which prevents a third party to enforce a contract operates with equal logic to forbid the contracting parties to enforce obligations against a stranger. So held that the provisions of s. 6 of the Married Women's Property Act did not apply to them: contra Balamba v. Krishnaya (1913) 37 Mad. 483 (F.B.); Re Engelbach (1924) 2 Ch. 348 is an English case of the same type.

---

11 Mangal Sen v. Muhammad Husain (1915) 37 All. 115; Adhar Chandra v. Dole Gobinda (1936) 63 Cal. 1172; 40 C.W.N. 1037; 1936 A.Cal. 663.

12 State of Gujarat v. Vora Fiddali (1964) A.S.C. 1043, 1076.

13 Krishna Lal Sadhu v. Pramila Bala Dasi, 55 Cal. 1315; 114 I.C. 658; 1928 A.Cal. 518; the principle is strongly reaffirmed. Cp. Mittar Sain v. Data Ram (1925) 24 All.L.J. 185, 205; 90 I.C. 1000, 1926 A.A. 194.

14 Miller v. National Mutual Life Insurance of Asia Ltd, (1909) V.L.R. 193; 30 A.L.T. 193.

15 (1924) A.C. 294.

16 (1918) A.C. 585.

17 Hepburn v. Tomlinson (Hauliers) Ltd. (1966) A.C. 451; (1966) 2 W.L.R. 453, 457; (Carriers case); Waters v. Monarch Fire & Life Assurance Co. (1843-60) All E.R. Rep. 654; (1856) 5 E. & B. 870 appd. (Warehouseman). There were no orders of the owner and insurance was without his knowledge). Dicta of Bowen L.J. in Castellain v. Preston (1883) 11 Q.B.D. 380, 397-9, dist.; Snowwhite Food Products (Pvt) Ltd. v. Sohanlal Bagla (1964) A.Cal. 209.

18 Hepburn v. Tomlinson (1966) A.C. 451; (1966) 2 W.L.R. 453, 460.

19 Waters v. Monarch Fire & Life Assurance Co. (1843-60) All E.R. Rep. 654; (1856) 5 E. & B. 870.

20 Snowwhite Food Products (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Sohanlal Bagla (1964) A.Cal. 209.

21 Shiv Dayal v. Union of India (1963) A. Punj. 538; (1963) 2 Punj. 463 that a contract between A & B cannot impose a liability upon C. [22] A person cannot be subjected to the burden of a contract to which he is not a party. It is the counterpart of the proposition that a third party cannot acquire rights under a contract.[21]

Goods supplied by the plaintiff to the defendant and admitted to have been received by the latter raise a presumption of an order having been placed by the defendant. It is immaterial whether or not the order was by a partner or a person authorised. The initial onus is thus discharged. Thus the privity of contract was established.[23]

A contract between A and Government authorised the latter to take possession of all tools, plant, machinery, stores and materials in or upon the works in certain eventualities of breach of contract. It could not, it was held, jeopardise the property of B who had entered into a partnership with A with the knowledge of Government and did not impose a liability on him.[21]

Exceptions.—There are exceptional cases in which a promisee may not be entitled to the money even though there was a tryst. In Cleaver v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association[24] a husband insured his life for the benefit of his wife by a policy which created a trust in her favour. The wife was convicted of murdering the husband and, therefore, disqualified from enforcing the trust. It was held that the executors of the husband could sue for the policy money.[25]

Consideration and privity of contract.—It has been controversial whether the rule that consideration must move from the promisee and the doctrine of privity of contract are fundamentally distinct or whether they are merely variations of a common theme. Two different factual situations may indeed arise. The plaintiff may be a party to an agreement without furnishing any consideration.

A, B & C may all be signatories to an agreement whereby C promises A & B to pay A £100 if B will carry out work desired by C. There may be another case where the person wishing to enforce a contract may not be a party to the agreement at all.

B & C may make an agreement whereby B promises to write a book for C and C promises to pay £100 to A.

In neither case can A sue C. But does he fail in the first case because the consideration has not moved from him and in the second because he is not privy to the contract? Lord Haldane in Dunlop Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge Co. Ltd.[26] differentiated the situation in law as well in fact, which was accepted by the Law Revision Committee in 1937. But this view has been criticised and the criticism would seem to be just.[27]

The fundamental assumption of the English Law, it must be repeated, is that a contract is a bargain. If a person furnishes no consideration, he takes no part in a bargain; if he takes no part in a bargain, he takes no part in a contract. In the second of the above two cases A is a stranger to the contract. But he is equally a stranger in the first; he is a party to an agreement but he is not party to a contract.[28] It is true if the doctrine of consideration were abolished the problem of privity will remain as in other continental legal systems. But as long as consideration is an essential feature of English Law it would seem to be immaterial whether a person is

---

22 Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract, p. 378 (5th Ed.) quoted in Shiv Dayal v. Union of India (1963) 2 Punj. 463; (1963) A.Punj. 538.

23 Khushalbai Mahijibhai Patel v. Mohammad Hussain Rahimbux (1981) A.SC. 977, 979.

24 (1892) 1 Q.B. 147.

25 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) pr. 1121 p. 528.

26 (1915) A.C. 847, 853 (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 333; Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.), p. 65.

27 Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.), p. 65. In the 5th edition, the authors accepted the differentiation. But they have been convinced that their arguments were fallacious. Furmstor 23 M.L.R. 382-384; A Casebook on Contract (2nd Ed.), p. 207; Salmond & Williams; The Law of Contracts (2nd Ed.), pp. 99-100 quoted by Windeyer J. in Coulls v. Bagot's Executor (1967) 40 A.L.J.R. 477, 483.

28 Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.), p.65.

forbidden to sue on the ground that he has given no consideration or on the ground that he is stranger to the contract. There are but two ways of saying the same thing.[29]

A transaction by which A promised to pay B & C for consideration during their joint lives and after the death of one of them to the survivor of them, the consideration moved from B but the agreement was signed by all three A, B & C. There was privity between A on one side and B & C on the other.[30] An agreement between the Government and forest officers appointed for the forests of a Raj is not enforceable against the Raj after the Government gives up its administration because there is no privity of contract.[31] In the case of industrial disputes, the rule as to privity of contracts is not applicable as the principle applicable is collective bargaining.[32]

A garage owner, after an Insurance Company had ordered that the plaintiff's car which was damaged in a collision be repaired undertook the job. Normally it should have taken five weeks, the garage owner took eight weeks. The owner sued the garage for expenses incurred by him in hiring a car for 3 weeks. The garage owner pleaded that the contract was with the Insurance Company and the car owner could not sue. The Court held that there was a second collateral contract when the garage undertook to do the job in a reasonable time and so it was liable to the plaintiff.[33]

A settlement under Industrial Disputes Act Wider.—A settlement under s. 18 (3) of Industrial Disputes Act is much wider in amplitude than a contract, the latter, assuming all other conditions under s.10 of the Contract Act are complied with, binds the parties to the contract. The ambit of the former is much wider. It binds not only the parties to the dispute, which the Conciliation Officer has settled, but binds all workmen in the establishment, present and future. It thus does not remain merely an agreement between the parties to the dispute or parties to the agreement but becomes a creature of statute having a binding effect on all the workmen in the establishment.[34]

Mutuality—lack of.—Lack of mutuality has exceptions or apparent exceptions, e.g. a contract where one party has an option by the exercise of which the other party becomes bound to perform his part.[35]

The facts in Safiya Bi's case were:

A sold immoveable property to B reserving right of repurchase within a specified time. B sold the property to C who took it with notice. The title conveyed is defeasible on the option being exercised. The transactions between A and B, and B and C constitute transactions supported by consideration and mutuality. C is a constructive trustee for A and the contract to reconvey is enforceable and s. 19 (b) of Specific Relief Act of 1963 applies.[36] There must be reciprocity as to the binding nature of the agreement between the person who wants to enforce it and the person against whom it is sought to be enforced. An agreement cannot be enforced at the instance of a person who is not himself bound by it. In other words there must be reciprocity as to the binding nature of the agreement between the person who wants to enforce it and the person against whom it is to be enforced.[37]

There is no contract between the manufacturer and the retail seller from the mere fact that the packets of tobacco or price lists or catalogues relating to goods contain a condition that goods are sold by the manufacturers on the condition that retailers do not sell the packet at a price below a fixed price.[38] A third party is not entitled to challenge the existence or the

---

29 Ibid,; quoted with approval by Windeyer J. in Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471, 483.
30 Coulls v. Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co. Ltd. (1966-67) 40 A.L.J.R. 471.
31 State of Bihar v. Charanjit Lal (1960) A.P. 139.
32 Tobacco Friends Union v. U.P. (1958) A.A. 688; B.K. Jobanputra v. B.S. Kalelkar (1965) A.B. 146.
33 Charnock v. Liverpool Corporation (1968) 1 W.L.R. 498.
34 B.K. Jobanputra v. B.S. Kalelkar, 1965 A.B. 746.
35 Safiya Bi v. Abdul Shakoor Sahib, 1967 A.M. 375; (1966) 1 Mad. 590; 36 Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd Ed.), p. 269.
36 Safiya Bi v. Abdul Shakoor Sahib (1967) A.M. 375; (1966) 1 Mad. 590.
37 Kedardas Mohta v. Nand Lal Poddar (1971) A.P. 253, 255.
38 Taddy & Co. v. Sterious & Co. (1904) 1 Ch. 354.

adequacy of consideration of a sale.[39]

The principle of the decision in Khwaja Muhammad Khan v. Husaini Begam[40] was followed by the High Court of Calcutta in a case which the facts were somewhat peculiar.[41] In that case A advanced Rs. 300 to B on the security of a pattah relating to immovable property and deposited with him by B. B then transferred by a registered kabala all his property, movable and immovable, to C for a sum of Rs. 2000. This Rs. 2,000 was not all paid in cash, but there was a provision and declaration in the kabala that out of this consideration money of Rs. 2,000, the sum of Rs. 300 due to A should be paid by C. A sued C for Rs. 300, basing his claim upon the kabala. It was found that there was no agreement between A and C for payment of Rs. 300 by C to A,[42] but that on the very day on which the kabala was executed C acknowledged the obligation to pay Rs. 300 to A, that the acknowledgement was communicated to and accepted by A, and that as a result of this the pattah, which was erroneously believed by the parties as constituting a charge,[43] was handed over by A to C. Upon these facts it was held that A was entitled to recover the amount claimed from C. This decision was followed by the same High Court in a later case when there was no communication to A of the arrangement between B and C, the Court holding that the absence of communication did not make any difference in principle.[44] And it seems that generally the beneficiary in a benami transaction may sue, joining the benamidar.[45]

The same principle has been applied by the Courts of India to cases where a provision is made for the maintenance of female members of a Hindu family on a partition of the joint family property between the male members. Thus where A and B, two Hindu brothers, divided the family property between them, and agreed at the time of partition that they should contribute Rs. 300 in equal shares and invest the sum on the security of immovable property and pay the interest towards the maintenance of their mother, it was held that the mother, though she was not a party to the contract, was entitled to sue her sons to have that amount invested in her favour.[46] Similarly where on a partition between a Hindu son and his father it was arranged that the father should remain in possession and management of the share of the property allotted to the son and maintain the son's wife and his children out of it, it was held that the wife, though not a party to the arrangement, was entitled to sue the father for the maintenance of herself and her children.[47] The wife and children, though not named as parties to the contract, possessed an actual beneficial right which placed them in the position of cestui

---

39 Sivarama Konar v. Thiruvadinatha Pillai (1957) A.TC. 189; Sudhakar Sahu v. Achutananda Patel (1967) A.Or. 89 (also adequacy of consideration).

40 (1910) 37 I.A. 152; 32 All. 410; 7 I.C. 237.

41 Debnarayan Dutt v. Chunilal Ghose (1914) 41 Cal. 137; 20 I.C. 630; see Jiban Krishna Mullick v. Nirupama Gupta (1926) 53 Cal 922, 925, 96 I.C. 846; 1926 A.Cal. 1009; and dist. Krishna Lal Sadhu v. Pramila Bala Dasi, note 73, p. 33; Hashmatmal v. Pribdhas (1928) 114 I.C. 111; 1929 A.S. 117. In Daw Po v. U Po Hmyin, A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 91, at p. 94; 187 I.C. 875, it is pointed out that the authorities show that "a stranger to a contract can sue upon it at any rate in the following circumstances, viz., (a) where a party to the contract agrees with the stranger to pay him direct or becomes estopped from denying his liability to pay him personally and (b) where the contract creates a trust in favour of the stranger." For a case of estoppel see Surjan Singh v. Nanak Chand, 1940 A.L. 471; 191 I.C. 763. For a case of agreement to pay direct, see Devaraji Urs v. Ramakrishniah, 1952 A.Mys. 109; P.M.G. Patna v. Ram Kripal (1955) A.Pat. 442. Two other exceptions are mentioned in Iswaran Pillai v. Sonnivevaru (1913) 38 Mad. 753, (a) the creation of a charge on immovable property by the promisor or allocation by him of the specific money in suit in favour of the plaintiff, (b) the creation of a settlement on marriage in which the plaintiff may be beneficially entitled as provided by s. 15 Specific Relief Act, 1963.

42 It was argued in this case that there was a novation within the meaning of s. 62 below, but it was held upon the facts that there was no novation.

43 The case was from the Mufassal, where a mortgage by deposit of title deeds is not recognised by law. See Transfer of Property Act, 1882, ss. 58 & 59.

44 Dwarika Nath v. Priya Nath (1917) 22 C.W.N. 279; 36 I.C. 792; see Debnarayan Dutt v. Chunilal Ghose (1914) 41 Cal. 137, at p. 141; 20 I.C. 630.

45 Areti Singarayya v. Areti Subhayya (1924) 47 Mad.L.J. 517; 84 I.C. 962; 1924 A.M. 861.

46 Shuppu Ammal v. Subramaniyan (1909) 33 Mad. 238; Arumuga Gounden v. Chinnammal (1911) 21 Mad.L.J. 918; Nehal Singh v. Fateh Chand (1922) 20 All.L.J. 708; 68 I.C. 778.

47 Rakhmabai v. Govind (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 421; Jang Bahadur v. Rana Uma Nath (1937) 12 Luck. 639; 165 I.C. 113; 1937 A.O. 99.

que trust under the contract.[48] "Though the plaintiffs are not named parties to the contract, yet they are not in that sense strangers to the consideration of the contract so as to prevent them from suing on it in their own name as to such part as is for their benefit and on their behalf".[49] Similarly where a provision is made for the marriage expenses of a female member of a Hindu family on a partition of the joint family property between the male members, the female member is entitled to sue the parties to the partition deed to enforce the provision in her favour.[50] A family arrangement between a father, his daughter and her husband whereby the father conveyed his house to his daughter who undertook to maintain him for life would be a sufficient consideration. The daughter can specifically enforce the contract.[51] This principle was again given effect to by the Privy Council in Mt. Dan Kuer v. Mt. Sarla Devi.[52]

Third party—consideration.—Nearness of relationship is a circumstance which may be indicative of a trust but does not per se enable a third party to sue.[53]

A third party can sue on a contract if it is intended to secure a benefit to him so that he is entitled to say that he has a beneficial right as a cestui que trust under that contract.[54] The trustee can sue and if he does not the beneficiary can sue joining the trustee as a defendant. But sometimes it has been found difficult to decide whether in a contract the intention is to create a right arising by way of contract or by way of property under a trust. Two such cases are In re Flavell[55] and In re Schebsman.[56] In the former a trust was held created and in the latter it was not.

In Les Affreteurs Reunis. v. Walford,[57] the charterers of a ship, in their charter party with the shipowner, stipulated that a commission should be paid to the broker, who was employed by the charterers. The House of Lords held that the broker could enforce the agreement against the owners, although he was not the promisee in the contract, and had given no consideration for the promise by the owners. the absence of the charterers, the trustees, as plaintiffs was held to be immaterial, as the parties agreed to treat the case as if they were plaintiffs. If a party to a contract is a trustee of rights under the contract for a third party, that third party can in equity sue on the contract. But when it is sought to show that a trust for the benefit of a third party has been created by means of a contract between two other parties, it is not sufficient to show merely that the contract was entered into by one of the parties to the contract with a view to the benefit of that third party. To entitle the third party to sue, it must be shown that the parties to the contract, or one of them, intended at the time the contract was entered into, to confer upon the third party some interest in the subject-matter of the contract, and to confer that interest in such a way that it could not be destroyed or varied solely by the action of the parties to the contract.[58]

There are other English cases to the same effect collected by Professor Corbin,[59] but the development of the doctrine received a check at the hands of the Privy Council in an appeal from Canada: Vandepitte v. Preferred Accident Insurance. There B had insured his car with

---

48 Gandy v. Gandy (1885) 30 Ch.D. 57 (a negative decision).
49 Per Green J. in Blackwell & Co. v. Jones & Co. (1870) 7 Bom.H.C. O.C. 144, at p. 148.
50 Sundararaja v. Lakshmiammal (1914) 38 Mad. 788; 24 I.C. 943.
51 Veeramma v. Appayya (1957) A.A.P. 965. See Khwaja Muhammad Hussain v. Hussaini Begum, 37 I.A. 152; 32 All. 410.
52 (1947) 73 I.A. 208, (1946) All. 756, 1947 A.P.C. 8.
53 Veeramma v. Appayya (1957) A.A.P. 965.
54 Ryder v. Taylor (1936) 36 S.R. (N.S.W.) 31, 47-49; Gandy v. Gandy, 30 Ch.D 57, 66 relied on; Robertson v. Wait (1853) 8 Exch. 299; Les Affreteurs Reunis Societe Anonyme v. Leopold Walford Ltd. (1919) A.C. 801 (agreement in a charter party whereby the owners agreed to pay commission to broker which was enforced by broker); Lloyds v. Harper (1880) 16Ch.D. 290 refd. to in Vandepitte v. Preferred Accident Insurance Corporation (1933) A.C. 70, 79; (1932) All E.R. Rep. 527, 530.
55 (1883) 25 Ch.D. 89; See also Harmer v. Armstrong, 1934 Ch. 65; (1933) All E.R. Rep. 778 (an article in partnership agreement providing for a yearly payment out of net profits).
56 (1944) Ch. 83; (1943) 2 All E.R. 387 (a contract between an employee and two companies employing him providing for payment to his widow and daughter in certain eventualities).
57 (1919) A.C. 801.
58 Ryder v. Taylor (1935) 36 S.R. (N.S.W.) 31.
59 46 L.Q.R. 12.

D, B's daughter J, driving with B's permission, negligently injured V. V sued J with success but the judgment was unsatisfied V then sued D claiming that the policy covered J as well as B, B having so stipulated for her as trustee. The Privy Council held for D, holding that the intention to constitute a trust must be affirmatively proved, and that the trust doctrine applied only to benefits to be conferred on a third party cestui que trust, whereas were the argument of D to prevail, serious duties and obligations would be placed upon J, without her consent.[60]

Despite the view of the Privy Council that the intention to create a trust must be clearly proved,[61] the Court of Appeal in Harmer v. Armstrong[62] held that a trust had been established, although there was no clear indication to that effect and no reference to beneficiaries. A agreed under seal to buy the copyright in certain periodicals from V. A entered into the agreement on behalf of H. V then, with notice of H's claim, allowed A to rescind. H obtained specific performance of the agreement against A and V.

Third Party cases

F & W agreed to sell a piece of land to a company and the company took the land with notice of the terms of a previous agreement between F & W. The company subsequently agreed with W that in consideration of his removing the caveat that he had filed, the company would pay to F the £250 "in accordance with the terms of agreement between F & W. wherein it was agreed that that sum should be a first charge on the land" in question.

The contract between W and the company was held unenforceable at the instance of F as it was without consideration and the caveat had lost its validity on the sale of land by F & W to the company.[63]

E, a married woman, claimed that D was the father of a child born to her which D denied. But D on correspondence through the department entered into a contract with E under which he was to pay maintenance to the children welfare department.

E sued for arrears of maintenance but the action failed on the ground that the agreement of D was to pay maintenance not to E but to the department and that her only remedy was to sue for damages for breach of contract.[64]

Security.—A deposit in a bank as security for the performance of a contract between the depositor and a third party remains the property of the depositor subject to its being placed at the diposal of the person for whose benefit the security is given on the breach of the contract. No trust is created in favour of the third party but it is a deposit for a particular purpose.[65] The facts were:

A contract of procurement of grain by a syndicate for and on behalf of the Punjab Government for the due performance of which security was deposited in a Bank in Okara, subsequently Pakistan, became impossible of performance due to the partition of the country and legal ownership of the deposit was and continued to be in the depositor and was claimable by the syndicate.[66]

Marriage Contracts—Who can enforce.—If a party holds out inducements to another to celebrate a marriage and the other party consents and does celebrate the marriage in consequence of them, a court of equity will give effect to the proposal.[67] A contract affects only parties to it and their successors in title and no one other than them can sue or be sued upon it. But there is an equitable exception to this rule where the contract is made in consideration of marriage and the intended beneficiary is within the marriage consideration.[68] In Hill v.

---

60 (1933) A.C. 70, 1933 A.P.C. 2. This case was applied to a paralled situation by Falshaw J. in Des Raj v. Concord of India Insurance Co., 1951 A.Punj. 114.

61 Where this intent is proved, the third party takes the benefits subject to any burdens: Pyrene Co. Ltd. v. Scindia Navigation Co. Ltd. (1954) 2 Q.B. 402.

62 (1934) Ch. 65.

63 Foster v. Genowlan Shale Co. (1895) 16 L.R. (N.S.W.) Eq. 59.

64 Egel v. Drogemuller (1936) S.A.S.R. 407.

65 Okara Grain Buyers Syndicate Ltd. v. United Commercial Bank, (1961) A.Punj. 66 affd. on app. (1968) A.SC. 1115.

66 Ibid.

67 Hammersley v. De Biel (1845) 12 Cl. & Fin. 45, 78.

68 In re Cooks Settlement Trusts (1965) 2 W.L.R. 179, 186.

Gomme[69] Cottenham L.C. described the children of the marriage as quasi parties to the contract—a marriage settlement. That is to say they are all treated for every purpose of settlement as though consideration moved from each one of them.[70] A child of marriage is treated as a party, who has given consideration, and equity will assist him to enforce any contract to settle property, which that settlement may contain.[71] But an intended beneficiary who is not an issue of marriage is not within the marriage consideration nor are children by a previous marriage unless their interests are interwoven with those of the children of marriage.[72] Even children of marriage would be strangers to a post-nuptial settlement.[73] Where the obligation to settle property has been assumed voluntarily no object of intended trusts can enforce the obligation,[72] e.g. where a spinster made a voluntary settlement in favour of herself and her issue which contained a covenant to settle after acquired property. She married and had children but they had, as volunteers, no right to enforce the convenant.[74]

Contract with third party—Limitation of liability.—The defendants cannot limit their liability to plaintiffs in tort by relying upon a contract between the plaintiffs and a third party to which they were not parties and for which they gave no consideration to plaintiffs. Therefore, stevedores, whose negligence results in damage to the goods of the consignee, cannot rely upon a bill of lading incorporating the U.S. Carriage by Sea Act clause limiting the liability of the carrier to £500.[75] The Australian High Court held that negligent stevedores were not protected by such a limitation in a bill of lading as they are complete strangers to the contract of carriage and had no concern with the bill of lading. [76] The Supreme Court of America held that the Elder Dempster's case[77] is no authority for the doctrine of vicarious immunity.[78] The word "carrier" does not include stevedores.[79] A carrier can stipulate by express words or by implication for exemption from liability not only for himself but also for those whom he engages to carry out the contract but the injured party must have assented to the exemption either expressly or by implication. This applies both to carriage of passengers and goods.[80] On the same principle, a master and crew are entitled to rely on a contract entered into by the owners and a third party.[81]

Marriage Settlement.—In equity a covenant for the settlement of property under a mar-

---

69 (1841) 5 M. & C. 250, 254; (1835-42) All E.R. Rep. 118; Krishna Lal Sadhu v. Pramila Bala Dassi, 55 Cal. 1315, 1321.

70 Per Kay L.J. in Attorney General v. Jacobs Smith (1895) 2 Q.B. 341, 353 (C.A.); Harvey v. Ashley (1748) 3 Atk. 607.

71 In re Cooks Settlement (1965) 2 W.L.R. 179, 185-6; Harvey v. Ashley (1748) 3 Atk. 607.

72 In re Cooks Trust (1965) 2 W.L.R. 179, 186.

73 Green v. Paterson (1886) 32 Ch.D. 95.

74 In re Kays Settlement (1939) Ch. 329.

75 Midland Silicones Ltd. v. Scruttons Ltd. (1959) 2 Q.B. 171; (1959) 1 All E.R. 1394; (1959) 2 W.L.R. 761, 776. On appeal (C.A.) (1960) 3 W.L.R. 372; (1961) 1 Q.B. 106; (1960) 2 All E.R. 737; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 186 (H.L.) (Lord Denning contra p. 209); (1962) A.C. 446; (1962) 1 All E.R. 1; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. Ltd. v. Selfridge & Co. Ltd., 1915 A.C. 847, 853 (Lord Haldane); Adler v. Dickson (1955) 1 Q.B. 158 (per Jenkins & Morris L.JJ., Denning L.J. contra); Wilson v. Darling Island Stevedoring & Co. Ltd. (per Fullagar & Kitto JJ.) (1956) 95 C.L.R. 43; (1956) 1 LL.R. 346 (Australian case) A case of Stevedores. Robert C. Herd & Co. v. Krawill Machinery Corp., 359 U.S. 297; (1951) 1 Lloyd Rep. 305; Elder, Dempster & Co. Ltd. v. Paterson Zochonis & Co. Ltd. (1924) A.C.522; (1924) All E.R. Rep. 135 (dist.). But see the Privy Council decision in New Zealand Shipping Co. Ltd. v. A.M. Satterthwaite & Co. Ltd. (1975) A.C. 154 (P.C.) & Jackson (1980) 2 All E.R. 556 (P.C.).

76 Wilson v. Darling Island Stevedoring & Lighterage Co. Ltd. (1956) 95 C.L.R. 43; (1956) 1 I.L.R. 346; Adler v. Dickson (1955) 1 Q.B. at p. 186 relied on; Elder Dempster & Co. Ltd. v. Paterson Zochonis & Co. Ltd. (1924) A.C. 522; The Kite (1953) p. 154; and the opinion of Denning L.J. in White v. John Warwick & Co. Ltd. (1953) 1 W.L.R. 1285 dist.

77 Elder Dempster & Co. Ltd. v. Paterson Zochonis & Co. Ltd. (1924) A.C. 522; (1924) All E.R. Rep. 135 (H.L.).

78 Robert C. Herd & Co. Inc. v. Krawill Machinery Corporation, 359 U.S. 297.

79 Ibid.; Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd. (1962) 2 W.L.R. 186, 189, 214; (1962) 1 All E.R. 1 (H.L.).

80 Per Denning L.J. in Adler v. Dickson (1954) 3 A.E.R. 397. See also Gilbert Stokes v. Dalgety, 48 S.R. (N.S.W.) 435.

81 Alsey Steam Fishing Co. v. Hillman, The Kirkness (1957) 1 A.E.R. 97, 107; The Kirkness (1957) 1 All riage settlement can be enforced by persons "within the marriage consideration", that is, by husband, wife and the issue of the marriage, but not by the next of kin of the wife, or her children by a previous marriage.[82]

Damages for Discomfort to third party—The plaintiff booked a holiday with the defendants in Sri Lanka. Certain representation were made by the defendant respecting the quality of the Hotel, its cuisine and its appointments which turned out to be quite untrue. The plaintiff and his wife and children found the hotel most disappointing and their holiday was spoiled and on their return to England the plaintiff brought an action for damages in respect of the loss of his holiday for himself, his wife and two small children. The trial Judge said that he could only consider the mental distress to Mr. Jackson and not to his wife and children. On appeal it was held that it was a contract for the benefit of the whole party, that is contract by one for the benefit of third persons, the law being that only the plaintiff could sue and none of the others, the question arose what damages he could recover. Is it limited to his own loss or can he recover for others. It was held that the case falls within the principle stated by Lush L. J. in Lloyd's v. Harper (1880) 16 Ch.D.290, 321, where he said:—

"I consider it to be an established rule of law that where a contract is made with A for the benefit of B., A. can sue on the contract for the benefit of B., and recover all that B. could have recovered if the contract had been made with B. himself."

which was quoted with approval by Lord Pearce in Beswick v. Beswick (1968) A.C. 58 (H.L.). Applying the principle to this case it was held that the damages could be awarded for the wife and children also. There is thus authority for the view that a breach of contract made for the benefit of a third party may similarly give the promisee a right to recover substantial damages in respect of loss suffered by the third party.[83]

Stevedore—liability of.—The House of Lords in Scruttons Limited v. Midland Silicones Ltd.[84] per Lord Reid said:-

"I can see a possibility of success of the agency argument if (first) the bill of lading makes it clear that the stevedores is intended to be protected by the provisions in it which limit liability, (secondly) the bill of lading makes it clear that the carrier, in addition to contracting for these provisions on his own behalf, is also contracting as agent for the stevedore that these provisions should apply to the stevedore (thirdly) the carrier has authority from the stevedore to do that, or perhaps later ratification by the stevedore would suffice, and (fourthly) that any difficulties about consideration moving from the stevedore were overcome."

These four propositions were held to have been satisfied in New Zealand Shipping Co. Ltd. v. A.M. Satterthwaite & Co. Ltd.[85] In that case the Judicial Committee by a majority held that a stevedore was protected by a clause in the bill of lading which contained appropriate words exempting him from liability and which was stated to have been made by the carrier acting as agent on behalf of the stevedore and action against him by the consignee, therefore, failed. The question of the effect of the exemption clauses in contracts of carriage of fundamental breach and diffusion of Himalaya clause was considered in an Australian case "The New York Star"[86] in which the New South Wales Court of Appeal had to decide the important issue of the exemption clause and doctrine of privity. The facts were these. A bill of lading contained the 'Himalaya' clause, that is exemption clause expressed to be for the benefit of the carrier, his servant, agents and independent contractors and was inserted by the carrier as agent of or trustee for independent contractors of the carrier. The defendant Company was a stevedore engaged by the carrier to unload the goods and deliver them to the plaintiff. Due to the negligence of the defendant the goods were removed by a party who presented no shipping documents and were not entitled to take delivery of the goods. The consignees

---

E.R. 97, 107; Elder, Dempster & Co. Ltd. v. Paterson Zochonis & Co. Ltd. (1924) A.C. 522; (1924) All E.R. Rep. 135 (H.L.).

82 Chitty on Contract, 24th Ed. Paragraph 1123. p. 529.

83 Jackson v. Horizon Holidays Ltd. (1975) 1 W.L.R. 1468 (C.A.). (1973) 3 All E.R. 92.

84 (1962) 1 All E.R. at p. 10 considered A.C. 446.

85 (1975) A.C. 154.

86 In Salmond & Spraggon (Australia) Pty. Ltd. v. Joint Cargo Services Pty. Ltd. (The New York Star) (1977) 51 A.L.J.R. 842. Revd by P.C. in (1980) 3 All E.R. 257.

were the plaintiffs and Stevedores the defendants. The suit was against the defendants as bailees who were not to deliver the goods except in exchange for shipping documents. The Stevedores relied on the Himalaya clause. It had been held by the Privy Council in New Zealand Shipping Co. Ltd. v. A.M. Satterthwaite & Co. Ltd. (The "Eurymedon"[87]) that Stevedores can take advantage of the exclusion clause if four conditions are satisfied. First, the bill of lading must contain the "Himalaya" clause; second, it must make clear that the carrier contracts for the Stevedore's protection as well as his own; third the carrier must have the Stevedore's authority so to contract or alternatively, the Stevedore must later ratify the carrier's action and fourth that the Stevedore must provide consideration for the protection extended to it. It was this condition which caused most difficulty in both the Privy Council case (supra) as well as in the case of the "New York Star"[86], the New South Wales case.

In the former case the transaction was held as involving an offer of exemption which the Stevedore accepted by providing the consideration by performing its obligation under its contract or a promise of exemption given in exchange for an act, namely the performance of those obligations, but in the later case there was no consideration because there was no evidence that the consignee had presented the shipping documents before unloading or misdelivery and the Stevedore had performed the act before the bill of lading was presented for delivery, and therefore, there was no acceptance of and consideration for offer and the Stevedores were deprived of the benefit of the exclusion clause in the bill of lading. Glass J. at page 449 observed that where conduct is relied on as the acceptance and consideration for an offer the acceptor must be shown to have acted in reliance of the offer. Therefore as there was no proof of reliance on the offer it was held that in doing the acts the Stevedores were carrying out their contractual duties already owed to the carrier. Thus the New York Star Case is a discouragement to the use of "Himalaya" clause.

Stevedore—whether entitled to benefit of bill of lading.—The Privy Council has held that a stevedore is entitled to the immunity which under the bill of lading attaches to the shipping carrier. In that case goods were shipped from Canada to Australia, Sydney, where according to the normal practice of the port the goods were discharged and placed in a shed by the Stevedore who normally acted for the shipping carrier. But the goods were delivered to a person who had no right to receive them. The consignee brought an action against the stevedore. The High Court of Australia on appeal held the stevedore liable as no consideration had moved from the stevedore and the immunity of the carrier did not extend to the stevedore.

On appeal the Privy Council reversed the decision. It held (1) It was established law that commercial practice required the contractual immunity of the carrier extended to the stevedore. In the particular case agency had been found as a fact and consideration by the stevedore proved according to established legal principles.[88]

Bankers' Commercial Credits—Sellers' position.—Bankers' commercial credits, in common parlance known as Letters of Credit, involve three transactions:

(1) A clause is inserted in the contract requiring payment in a particular manner. The buyer asks a bank to open a credit in the seller's favour, which shall remain irrevocable for a given time.
(2) The credit is opened in return for the buyer's promise to reimburse the bank, to pay a small commission and to give the bank a lien over the shipping documents.
(3) The buyer's bank notifies the seller that it has opened an irrevocable credit in his favour, to be drawn on as soon as the seller presents the shipping documents.

What is the legal position of the seller: should the bank refuse to honour its promise? If he sued the bank, he might be met by the objection that he is not a party to the contract. No bank has yet taken this objection but this business practice lacks legal sanction, although the English Court of Appeal has refused to interfere with this practice and its legalities.[89] In Malas

---

87 (1975) A.C. 154; (1974) 1 All E.R. 1015; (1974) 2 W.L.R. 865.
88 Port Jackson Stevedoring Pty. Ltd. v. Salmond & Spraggon (Australia) Pty. Ltd. The New York Star (1980) 3 All E.R. 257, 261, 264. p. 6.
89 Cheshire and Fifoot: The Law of Contract (6th Ed.) pp. 383-4; Malas v. British Imex Industries Ltd. (1958) 2 Q.B. 127; (1958) 2 All E.R. 262.

v. British Imex Industres Ltd.[90] the Court of Appeal held that the opening of a confirmed letter of credit constitutes a bargain between the bank and the seller of goods which imposes on the banker an absolute bargain to pay irrespective of any dispute between the buyer and the seller in regard to quality of goods. But that was not a case where the bank repudiated its liability and the observations were obiter.

Malas case was this:

Two letters of credit were opened in accordance with a contract between a foreign buyer and a British seller one for each of the two instalments of delivery. Goods taken against one of the letters of credit were considered not to be of the quality specified and the buyers brought an action for injunction restraining the sellers from dealing with the second letter of credit. The action failed because the bargain between the bank and the seller was irrespective of any dispute between buyer and the seller and it would be wrong to interfere with the commercial practice established on that principle.

Implied Warranty.—The liability of manufactured products under inplied warranty has been the subject-matter of dispute in some recent American cases. In Henningsen's case[91] the plaintiff sued in implied warranty for personal injuries. She suffered when a car manufactured by the defendant and presented to her by her husband who had got it from a retailer made an unscheduled turn into a wall. The Court stressed the principle of justice to the consumer and upheld the plaintiff's action without proof of negligence and rejected the defendant's disclaimer because of its unfair and unbargained for quality.

The Court in Henningsen v. Bloomfield Motors[91] had to deal with a situation in which privity was twice removed. Firstly, the plaintiff was not a buyer but only a donee of the buyer. Secondly, the suit was brought against the retailer as well as the manufacturer and the Court upheld the warranty as running from the manufacturer. Thus warranty liability ran from a remote seller to a non-buyer. There have been cases where Courts have denied liability even in the case of a buyer against the remote seller or manufacturer.

In a case from New York Randy Knitwear v. American Cyanamid Co.[92] the defendant manufactured fabrics and had attached tags stating the fabric would not shrink. The plaintiff for the purpose of manufacturing his goods purchased the material from an intermediary. The fabric shrank. The Court decreed recovery for the resulted loss on the express warranty despite the absence of privity.

In 1963 in a case from California, Greenman v. Yuba Power Products,[93] a husband successfully recovered for personal injury caused by a defective home carpentry outfit made by the defendant and given to the plaintiff by his wife who had purchased it from a local retailer. No negligence was required. The Court granted damages on implied warranty grounds without privity.

There are three cases from New Jersey State.

In Santor v. A.M. Karaghensian,[94] the plaintiff had purchased a carpet from a retailer. He recovered damages directly from the manufacturer for the reduced value of the carpet caused by the appearance of unusual lines. The carpet had been sold as Grade I. The defendant argued that the liability under implied warranty of a manufacturer which was accepted in Henningsen's[91] case covered only products dangerous to life and did not extend to total or partial loss of value. The Court referring to justice for the ultimate consumer principle invoked implied warranty and that the rule in Henningsen's[91] case could not be fenced by considerations of personal injury to him but operated in cases of total or partial loss of value also.

In Sely v. White Motor Co.[95] the plaintiff sought to recover from a truck manufacturer for money paid to a retailer on the purchase price and for profits lost in his business when he was unable to make normal use of the truck. It was pleaded that there was an express warranty limited to making good at the factory any defective part. But the Court disregarded the limitation because the warrantor had repeatedly failed for 11 months to correct the defect.

A case from Oregon is Price v. Gatlin.[96] In that case, plaintiff sued the wholesaler for damages suffered in his absence because a new Ford tractor failed to perform adequately. The Court did not decree the claim for varying reasons, the main reason being that the rule in Henningsen's[91] case did not extend to liability for economic loss.

---

90 Malas v. British Imex Industries Ltd. (1958) 2 Q.B. 127; (1958) 2 All E.R. 262.
91 32 N.J. 358; 161A. 2d 69 (1960).
92 11 N.Y. 2d. 5; 226 N.Y.S. 2d 363 (1962).
93 59 Cal. C. 2d. 57, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697 (1963).
94 44 N.J. 52 (1965).
95 Cal. Rptr. R. 17 (1965).
96 81 Ore. Adv. 169 (1965).

Oral Warranty.—The manager of a company made a statement to an intending purchaser of a harvesting machine that his experience was that the machine would be able to do 90 acres a day but this the machine could not do. It was held that the statement was, not a warranty and the suit for damages was dismissed.[97]

Past consideration.—In the same clause the words "has done or abstained from doing" call for special attention. They declare the law to be that an act done by A at B's request, without any contemporaneous promise from B, may be a consideration for a subsequent promise from B to A. Now, the general principle of the common law is that in the formation of a contract the consideration is given and accepted in exchange for the promise. Hence the acceptance of the consideration and the giving of the promise must be simultaneous, and, in order to have the effect of binding the party making it, a request must be the offer of a promise in return for some consideration, which offer will become a promise (if not meanwhile revoked)[98] if and when the consideration is furnished as requested. Thus the consideration must always be present at the time of making the promise, and there is no such thing as a past consideration. If a service is rendered without any immediate promise or understanding that it is to be recompensed, it is a merely gratuitous act having no legal effect except such transfer of property or the like as may be contained in the act itself. If there be such a promise, express by words or by tacit understanding, to be inferred from the circumstances, there is at once an agreement, in which, if the recompense be not specified, the promise is to give such reward as may be found reasonable. A subsequent promise specifying the reward will not make an obligation where there was none before, but will show what the parties thought reasonable; and there is generally no reason why the parties' own estimate, in a matter which concerns only themselves, should not be accepted. Such a promise "may be treated either as an admission which evidences, or as a positive bargain which fixes, the amount of that reasonable remuneration on the faith of which the service was originally rendered".[99] In many common circumstances the fact of service being rendered on request is ample evidence of an understanding that it was to be paid for according to the usual course.

The use of the perfect tense in the clause now under consideration embodies in the law of India the exception to the general rule which is supposed to have been made by the seventeenth-century case of Lampleigh v. Brathwait (A.D. 1615).[1] There it was allowed that in general a service rendered without any agreement for reward at the time will not support a subsequent promise of reward—"a mere voluntary courtesy will not have [2] a consideration to uphold an assumpsit"—But it was said that if the service was "moved by a suit or request" of the promisor, the promise "couples itself with the suit before," or, as we should now say, is held to relate back to the original request, and accordingly is deemed to be made on good consideration. A promise to pay compensation for something already done is past consideration and is no consideration.[3]

It would seem that this fiction was really needless, and that the true account of such cases was given by Lord Bowen (following an earlier dictum of Erle C.J.)in the passage above cited. Our Act has adopted the doctrine of Lampleigh v. Brathwait in its current form. We shall come to another exception from the general principle in s.25, sub-s. (2), below. The manner in which the law of consideration is split up between s. 2 and ss. 10, 23, 24, and 25, and the discrepance of style already noticed in the first Preface, do not conduce to certainty in interpreting the intention of the Act as a whole on the subject.

Indian Courts have here followed. as they were bound to do, the terms of the Act. In Sindha v. Abraham,[4] the plaintiff rendered services to the defendant at his desire expressed during

---

97 Ross v. Allis Chalmers Australian (Pty) Ltd. (1980) 55 A.L.J.R. 8.
98 As to revocation, see on s. 5, below.
99 Bowen L.J., Re Casey's Patents (1892) 1 Ch. 104, 115.
1 Hob. 105; 1 Sm. L.C. 148. The defendant's name is often miswritten in various ways in modern books.
2 Sic. One would expect "make".
3 Re: Mc Ardle (1951) 1 Ch. 669.
4 (1895) 20 Bom. 755; cf. Ramacharya v. Shrinivasacharya (1918) 20 Bom. L.R. 441; Dungarmall v. Sambhu Charan (1951) A.Cal. 55.

his minority, and continued those services at the same request after his majority. The question arose whether such services constituted a good consideration for a subsequent express promise by the defendant to pay an annuity to the plaintiff. The agreement was one to compensate for past services, and it was held that it could be enforced, as the services formed a good consideration within the meaning of this section. The Court was of opinion that the services were intended to be recompensed, though the nature and the extent of the proposed recompense were not fixed until the agreement sued upon was executed by the defendant. If so, there was a contract for reasonable recompense when the services were rendered, and the decision might have been put on that ground alone. It was chiefly rested, however, on the ground that, under the words of the present subsection, service already rendered at the desire of the promisor and such services to be rendered stood upon the same footing. It would seem that, under the Act, the decision must have been the same on this ground even if the services were rendered at the time gratuitously, though at the desire of the defendant. It was also said that if the services had been rendered without the desire of the defendant the case would be within s. 25 of the Act (see below). As to the conditions of suing in respect of services rendered by the plaintiff voluntarily without any request from the defendant, see s. 25 of the Act. It must be noted here that neither that section nor the clause now before us will enable a person who has purported to bind himself, when not competent to contract (s. 11), to repayment of a loan, to bind himself to it by a new promise when he is competent.[5]

"Or does or abstains from doing": Forbearance as Consideration.—The essence of consideration is that the promisee takes on himself some kind of burden, or "detriment," as the English authorities call it. Where the consideration is a present performance and not a promise (the only case now before us; promise as a consideration will be dealt with under the following words of this sub-section), the detriment may consist either in actually parting with something of value, or in undertaking a legal responsibility, or in foregoing the exercise of a legal right. It is not common experience that the exercise of one's legal rights is always profitable; nevertheless that which the law deems worthy of its protection must be presumed to be of some value. Thus the performance which constitutes a consideration may be negative as well as positive, provided that the promisee's abstinence from exercising a right was undertaken at the request of the promisor. There need not be a total abandonment of the right, or an undertaking to suspend it for a definite time. Such an undertaking, if it exists, is of course not a performance, but a promise, and then the contract is formed by mutual or reciprocal promises (subs. (f), below). The class of cases now before us is that in which the defendant has requested the plaintiff to forbear the enforcement of a claim against him, and has offered a new promise in return, and the plaintiff, without any express acceptance of the defendant's terms, has in fact forborne for an appreciable time. Here the defendant's offer to pay or give security, or as the case may be,[6] is accepted by the performance of its conditions (see s.8, below), and that performance is a good consideration for the defendant's promise. And where the defendant has made an offer to pay in consideration of forbearance, with some other alternative offer, the plaintiffs forbearing to sue in fact is a sufficient acceptance of the first alternative.[7] A request to forbear suing or other proceedings, not specifying any length of time, is understood to be a request of forbearance for a reasonable time;[8] and this is in fact a common case. If it is asked at what moment the proposal conveyed by such a request becomes a promise, the answer is

---

5 Suraj Narain v. Sukhu Ahir (1928) 51 All. 164; 112 I.C. 159; 1928 A.A. 440. The words are in themselves not clear, but if a merely void transaction could thus be in effect ratified, the intention of the Act would be frustrated.

6 See Alliance Bank v. Broom (1864) 2 Dr. & S. 289 as a good example of this class. See also Fanindra Narain v. Kacheman Bibi (1917) 45 Cal. 774; 41 I.C. 673; 22 C.W.N. 188.

7 Wilby v. Elgee (1875) L.R. 10 C.P. 497. But there is no forbearance, and therefore no consideration, where the offer of the defendant, though intended to secure fobearance, is withdrawn before the plaintiff is aware that it has been made; Oliver v. Davis (1949) 2 K.B. 727.

8 Alliance Bank v. Broom, supra, note (57); See Fullerton v. Provincial Bank of Ireland (1903) A.C. 309, 313, 314; Glegg v. Bromley (1912) 3 K.B. 474, 481. See also Mohes Chandra v. Rajani Kanta (1915) 22 C.L.J. 235; 31 I.C. 29; Fanindra v. Kacheman (1917) 22 C.W.N. 188; 41 I.C. 673; Srinivasa Raghava Aiyangar v. Ranganatha Aiyangar (1918) 36 Mad.L.J. 618; 51 I.C. 963; Anant Krishna Modak v. Sarasvati Padmanabh Shetti, 1928 A.B. 316; 30 Bom. I.R. 709; 111 I.C. 556.

that it does so whenever the other party has in fact forborne his rights for time which the Court considers long enough to amount to a reasonable compliance with the request. This appears to be a question of fact depending on all the circumstances, for which no general rule can be laid down. No great difficulty is found, so far as we are aware, in dealing with it in practice.

It will be found on examination that in many of the cases where forbearance to sue is said to be the consideration for a promise, that which is really given and accepted as consideration is a promise to forbear suing either for a definite time or for a reasonable time according to the circumstances, which promise may be express or inferred from the transaction as a whole.[9] Such cases really belong to the following head of contracts by mutual promises. Sometimes it is not easy to say whether, on the facts of a particular case, the consideration is actual forbearance or an agreement to forbear: in other words, whether the promise sued upon was exchanged for a promise of forbearance, or was an offer to be accepted by forbearance in fact, and became a promise when its condition was fulfilled by the plaintiff's forbearance for the specified time, if any, or otherwise for a reasonable time.[10] Where it was agreed at the time of partition that a particular co-sharer should realise arrears of rent due before partition, and distribute the amounts to the other co-sharers in proportion, and the particular co-sharer failed to realise the amounts, it was held that the other co-sharers could claim their share of the rent from him as there was consideration for the agreement.[11]

Carrying out Contractual duty.—The promisor Company[12] sold a building to the promisee company the consideration being the agreement to allot 4.2 million shares of the promisee company, the market value of each share was taken as $ 2.50 per share, and the promisor agreed not to sell or transfer 2.5 million shares out of the total for one year. But the latter agreement was replaced by an agreement of indemnity against loss on 2.5 million shares if their price went below $2.50 per share. This was done when the promisor threatened to breach the contract of sale unless the indemnity was given. The value of the shares did go down. The promisor enforced the indemnifying agreement and brought an action to recover the loss due to the slump and in the alternative for specific performance of the indemnity agreement. The promisee defendants pleaded (i) no valid consideration for the indemnity agreement as the consideration was past consideration, (ii) extrinsic evidence to prove additional security inadmissible and (iii) guarantee void on the ground that it was introduced by economic pressure. It was held that since the consideration expressed in the guarantee included by incorporation the promisor's promise in the agreement of sale not to sell the shares for a year the promisees' agreement of indemnity could not be treated as independent of the original promise. Since the promise not to sell for a year was made at the promisee-defendant's request the promise of indemnity was given to fulfil that intention and it is legally enforceable. Although the promisor plaintiffs' promise was antecedent to the guarantee it was a good consideration for the promisee defendant's promise of indemnity. Extrinsic evidence was held admissible. Although economic pressure was recognised as a factor to prove duress it was held that the act of the promisor plaintiff did not constitute economic distress.

Forbearance.—Forbearance to sue even though no definite time is allowed is a valuable consideration for a promise provided the promisee has a reasonable ground to believe that he has a good cause of action.[13] For forbearance to sue on a claim which is not only void but is also so known to the party forbearing is not a good consideration. Hence forbearing to sue in

---

9 For example, Amin Chand v. Guni, 1929 A.L. 466; 119 I.C. 766.

10 See per Bowen L.J. in Miles v. New Zealand Alford Estate Co. (1886) 32 Ch. D. 266, 289.

11 Nirbharam v. Sukhdeo (1944) Nag. 212, 1944, A.N. 307.

12 Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65, 74-75. Dictum of Bowen L.J. in Re Casey's Patents, Stewart v. Casey (1892) 1 Ch. 104, 114-115 appld.

13 Guiness (Bob) Ltd. v. Salomensen (1948) 2 K.B. 42; Oldershaw v. King (1857) 2 H. & N. 517 (forbearance to press for immediate payment); Crowhurst v. Laverack (1852) 8 Ex. 208 (mother of illegitimate children forbearing from affiliation proceedings); Wilby v. Elgee (1875) 10 C.P. 497 (forbearance to sue for doubtful claims sufficient); Alliance Bank Ltd. v. Broom, 2 Dr. & Sm. 289 & Fullerton v. Provincial Bank of Ireland (1903) A.C. 309 (forbearing by the bank to enforce existing debt on promise to give security); Balteel & Colmore v. Parker & Baleels Trustees (refraining from withdrawing balance of trust account from bank on bank's promise to give security).

respect of a void contract, e.g., a wagering claim is not a good consideration.[14] In *Guiness (Bob) Ltd.*v. Salomonsen,[15] D had incurred a void gaming debt to P who threatened to report to the Turf Protection Society unless he was paid. D promised to pay by instalments. After paying one instalment he ceased payment. P brought a suit for the balance. The suit failed as P never promised to forbear although he did forbear and had to prove fresh consideration the original debt being void. A promise to abstain from suing can be a consideration only when the person suing has a subsisting right to sue. Therefore non-payment of instalments of a debt fixed under the Debt Conciliation Act which had become barred under the Act cannot be a good consideration of a promise to pay these instalments by a third party.[16]The promise to forbear may be made absolutely or for a certain time or for no specified time at all. There need not be any express promise to forbear. It is sufficient if circumstances existed from which such a promise could be implied, and a forbearance has in fact followed. A compromise whereby the plaintiff forbears to proceed with a suit and the defendant avoids an adverse decision is for good consideration.[17]

In the Alliance Bank Ltd. v. Broom,[18]

the defendant was asked to give security for moneys owed by him to the bank and he promised to give title deeds to certain goods, which he failed to do. The bank sued for specific performance which was decreed as the bank forebore for some time and the debtor did receive benefit of some degree resulting in the bank staying its hand for some time.

In Crears v. Hunter,[19]

F borrowed money from C on the promise that on attaining majority, his son H would become surety for the debt, which he did by joining in and executing a joint promissory note with his father. Interest was paid in the presence of H and C issued receipts in the joint names of himself and his son.

Lord Esher, M.R., relied upon the fact that the term of payment of interest in the future indicated that the note could not be sued upon for some time though there was no express request by H that C should forbear to sue F.

On the discovery of an irregularity in advancing a loan, the Agent and a clerk of a bank were asked to explain the irregularity. They executed an undertaking to see to the payment of the loan with a month and in default they held themselves liable for payment.

This agreement was held to be for valid consideration, e.g. forbearance to take action.[20]

Forbearance to sue for ejectment is good consideration for agreement to pay enhanced rent.[21] An act done or forbearance made in return for unilateral promise is a sufficient consideration to support the promise.[22] Forbearance on the part of a creditor to sue can operate as a sufficient consideration for promise even though it be for a limited time.[23] The Allahabad High Court in Bittan Bibi v. Kuntulal[24] by a majority held that in order to constitute a valid consideration, forbearance to sue should be at the request of the debtor whether express or implied. This was a case under the Stamp Act. A forbearance to sue for the enforcement of a

---

14 Poteliakhoff v. Teakle (1938) 2 K.B. 816; (1938) 3 All E.R. 686, C.A.: Hill v. William Hill (Park Lane) Ltd. (1949) A.C. 530; (1949) 2 All E.R. 452.

15 (1948) 2 K.B. 42.

16 Tulsabai Nathudas v. Narain Ajabrao Raut (1974) A.B. 72, 73; (1975) Bom. 562.

17 Seraj-ud-Din v. State of Orissa, (1971) A.Cal. 414.

18 (1864) 2 Dr. & Sm. 289, 292; 34 L.J. (Ch.) 256. See also Miles v. New Zealand Alford Estate Co. (1886) 32 Ch.D. 267, 289-291; Crears v. Hunter (1887) 19 Q.B.D. 341; Holt v. Heatherfield Trust Ltd. (1942) 2 K.B. 1; Horton v. Horton (No. 2) (1961) 1 Q.B. 215; (1960) 3 All E.R. 649; (1960) 3 W.L.R. 914. (Amendment of a separation deed inserting a clause of paying £30 a month free of tax instead of just £30, the former being the true intention of parties, it being a compromise of a wife's possible action for rectification).

19 (1887) 19 Q.B.D. 341 reld. on in Bittan Bibi v. Kuntulal (1952) A.A. 996.

20 Bank of India v. Govinda, 1964 A.Ker. 267.

21 Lakshmi Chand v. Niadar Mal (1961) A.A. 295.

22 Fazaladdin v. Panchanan Das (1957) A.Cal. 92.

23 Alliance Bank v. Broom, 24 L.J.Ch. 256 (A case of giving security for a debt already advanced); Board of Revenue v. Annamalai Co. Ltd. (1967) 2 M.L.J. 515, 517. See Crears v. Hunter (1887) 19 Q.B.D. 341 refd. to in Bittan Bibi v. Kuntulal (1952) A.A. 998 (F.B.).

24 (1952) A.A. 998; Crears v. Hunter (1887) 19 Q.B.D. 341 refd. to.

contract for enhancement of rent[25] is a good consideration. Even forbearance for a limited time is a good consideration.[26] The withdrawal of pending proceedings for maintenance under s. 488 Cr. P.C. is a good consideration for an agreement to pay maintenance allowance.[27]

An actual forbearance, as opposed to an agreement to forbear to approach the court, is not a good consideration unless it proceeds from a request, express or implied, on the part of the promisor. If not moved by such a request the forbearance is not in respect of the promise.[28] A wife's promise to forbear from applying to the Divorce Court for maintenance is no consideration because it is not binding on the wife and is worth nothing.[29] The party at whose request forbearance is granted is bound by its terms.[30]

Compromise.—The most usual and important kind of forbearance occurring in practice is that which is exercised or undertaken by way of compromise of a doubtful claim. It is a question of some importance within what limits the abandonment or compromise of a disputed claim is a good consideration. But this seems to belong not to the definition of Consideration, but to the substantive law declared in s. 25 of the Act. We shall therefore deal with it under that section.

Apparent forbearance when really an act.—Actual performance is sometimes apparently passive. A trader exposes his goods for sale, the price being marked or otherwise well known. A customer comes in, takes the object he wants, and gives his name to the trader. The case is common enough. Here a captiously literal person might say that the consideration on the trader's part is forbearing to interfere with the customer's action. But what we do say, both in law and in common sense, is that the seller, by authorising the buyer to take the goods within his reach, in fact sells and delivers them by the buyer's own hand, and the act, though mechanically the buyer's, is in substance the seller's. This remark is needed only when the sale is on credit. If ready money is expected and given, there is no promise at all in the transaction, and therefore no contract; see the commentary on the next following words.

"Or promises to do or to abstain from doing something": Mutual Promises.—These words, supplemented by sub-ss. (e) and (f), convey in a somewhat indirect and inconspicuous manner the extremely important proposition that a contract may be formed by the exchange of mutual promises, each promise being the consideration for the other. In this case neither promise is of any value by itself, but each of them derives its value from the exchange which makes them both binding. This effect of mutual promises is not a logical deduction from the general notion of consideration,[31] but a positive institution of law required by the convenience of business in civilised life. In many archaic systems of law there is no obligation to perform a promise until there has been performance or at least some act done towards performance on the other side. The widespread custom of giving something by way of earnest "to bind the bargain" is a relic of this view.

Executory and Executed considerations.—A consideration which consists in performance (or so far as it consists in performance)is said to be executed. If and so far as it consists in promise, it is said to be executory. Some writers, especially in America,[32] speak of a contract in which the consideration on one side is executed as unilateral, and of a contract in which it is executory on both sides as bilateral. This terminology is concise and convenient. It is obvious that the consideration cannot be wholly executed on both sides. For where performances, and performances only, are exchanged, of which a sale of goods over the counter for ready money

---

25 Laxmichand v. Niadar Mal, 1961 A.A. 295; Alliance Bank v. Broom, 62 E.R. 631 a case of giving of security for money already advanced, reld. on.

26 Morton v. Burn 112 E.R. 378; Alliance Bank v. Broom (1864) 2 Dr. & Sm. 289.

27 Kastoori Devi v. Chiranji Lal, 1960 A.A. 446.

28 Combe v. Combe (1951) 2 K.B. 215, 221, 226-7; (1951) 1 All E.R. 767, 771, 774; see also Central London Property Trust Ltd. v. High Trees House Ltd. (1947) K.B. 130; (1956) 1 All E.R. 256.

29 Combe v. Combe (1951) 2 K.B. 215; (1951) 1 All E.R. 767.

30 Ogle v. Earl Vane (1868) 3 Q.B. 272; Hichman v. Haynes (1875) 10 C.P. 598; Levey & Co. v. Goldberg (1922) 1 K.B. 688.

31 For fuller theoretical exposition see Pollock, Prinicples of Contract, 13th ed., pp. 144-5.

32 See Langdell: Summary of the Law of Contracts; Harriman on Contracts, passim.

is a familiar example, nothing remains to be done by either party, and there is no promise at all and nothing for the law to enforce.[33]

Distinction between contracts where consideration is executed or executory.—The Supreme Court has quoted with approval Chitty's distinction between the two classes of contracts where the consideration is either executed or executory.[34] If a contract has been fully and completely performed on both sides, no question of any further rights and liabilities under the contract is likely to arise. If however the contract is one in which the consideration is unilateral or executed only on one side, there will be a right on one side and an outstanding liability on the other. If the consideration is executory on both sides, i.e. bilateral, there will be outstanding rights and liabilities on both sides.[35] In the 23rd edition of Chitty on Contracts, paras 112 and 113, the difference between the two is stated thus:

(a) Consideration may be executory or executed but may not be past.

112. Executory consideration.—Consideration is executory when a promise is made by one party in return for a promise made by the other; in such a case each promise is the consideration for the other. The rule that consideration could consist in mutual promises was established by the end of the sixteenth century[36] and it was stated by Holt C.J. as follows:[37]

"A promise without a consideration is void, but where there is a promise against a promise, one promise is consideration of the other because each may have his action against the other for non-performance."

Where the consideration is executory, the contract is binding as soon as the promises are exchanged. Thus, if there is a contract for the sale of goods, delivery and payment to be made at some future date, the consideration consists in the promise to sell and to deliver on the one hand and in the promise to pay on the other; the contract becomes binding as soon as the promises are made, and does not depend upon delivery or payment being made.

113. Executed consideration.—Consideration is executed when an act is performed in return for a promise. Illustrations of this may be found in offers of rewards.[38] Where, for instance, the owner of a lost article offers a reward to the person who finds and returns it to him, the finder by returning the article both accepts the offer and furnishes the consideration for the offeror's promise. Where the consideration is executed, liability is outstanding on one side only; where, on the other hand, the consideration is executory, liability is outstanding on both sides.

Intention to enter into a Contract.—Even though there is consideration an agreement is not a contract without an intention of creating legal relation.[39] But in the case of ordinary commercial transaction it is not necessary to prove that there was such an intention onus being on the party disputing such an intention. To quote Lord Moulton again "not only the terms of such contracts but the existence of an animus contrahendi on the part of all the parties to them must be clearly shown.[40]

Thus many social arrangements are not contracts as they are not intended to be legally binding; so also domestic arrangements. In Balfour v. Balfour[41] a husband in Ceylon (now Sri Lanka) promised to pay £30 a month to his sick wife. This she failed to get enforced because

---

33 The possible existence of a collateral promise, e.g. a warranty on sale, does not affect the general truth of this agreement.

34 Union of India v. Chaman Lal Loomba & Co., 1957 A.S.C. 652, 655 quoting Chitty on Contract, Vol.I (21st Ed.), pp. 43, 44; see (24th Ed. para 141) Board of Revenue v. Annamalai & Co. (1967) 2 M.L.J. 515.

35 Union of India v. Chaman Lal & Co. (1957) A.SC. 652. 655 quoting Chitty on Contract, Vol. I, (21st Ed.), pp. 43, 44. See Chitty on Contracts, Vol. I (24th Ed. para 141).

36 See, e.g. Pecke v. Redman (1552) 1 Dyer 113a; Joscelin v. Shelton (1557) 3 Leon 4; Manwood v. Burston (1586) 2 Leon. 203.

37 Harrison v. Cage (1698) 12 Mod. 214.

38 See also Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co. (1893) 1 Q.B. 256; Budgett v. Stratford Co-operative and Industrial Society Ltd. (1916) 32 T.L.R. 378.

39 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Paras 117 & 119.

40 Heilbut Symons & Co. v. Bucklaton (1913) A.C. 30, 47 (1911-13) All E.R. Rep 83.

41 (1919) 2 K.B. 571; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep. 860 (C.A.)

there was no consideration and the parties did not intend to be legally binding. But this does not apply to position where husband and wife have separated or are about to do so.[42] But where an estranged husband promised to pay £40 a month to his wife and told her to pay out of it the outstanding mortgage debt on the matrimonial house, the relevant papers of which he handed over to her, and agreed to transfer the house to her sole ownership after the mortgage was paid off and when the mortgage was paid off he reduced the monthly allowance to £25 per mensem and refused to transfer the house, the Court of Appeal affirming the judgment of Stamp J. held the agreement binding.[43] In all these cases it was observed the Court looks at the situation and asks itself whether the arrangement was intended to be binding.

Contractual Intent.—The plaintiffs were engaged to be married and the defendant promised the female plaintiff that he would pay her a sum of money as soon as pecuniary and other arrangements are made to constitute a legal marriage. The promise was held to be binding[44] but it is not clear what the consideration was whether the performance of marriage or the making of the pecuniary and other arrangements.

In another case where an uncle wrote to his nephew saying that he was glad that he the nephew, was marrying a particular lady and that he would pay the nephew £150 a year during his lifetime. The marriage did take place and the Court of Common Pleas by a majority held that the promise was binding the marriage having been performed.[45] The minority held that the promise was not meant with any contractual intent.

This supports the view that the performance of a contractual duty owed to a third party can be a good consideration for a promise. This view has recently been accepted by the Privy Council in The Eurymedon[46] where the facts were that a firm of Stevedores had unloaded goods from B's ship. Some of these belonged to 'C' who had promised the firm not to sue it for damaging the goods. It was held that the firm had provided consideration for this promise by unloading the goods even though he was bound by a contract with 'B' to do so.

Contractual relationship may be negatived by statements made in jest or anger. Thus where the defendant was a director of one company and of another company and the plaintiff company holding shares in this company resolved in the defendant's absence to sell their shares and later after a heated discussion rescinded the resolution and the defendant said that he would make good the loss which the plaintiff company might suffer by keeping those shares. He was held not liable on the undertaking. It was not recorded as a contract and not even put in the minutes of the meeting and the directors thought he was bound in honour.[47]

The agreement by which the plaintiffs were appointed the defendant's sole agents in the U.S. was as follows:

> "This agreement is not entered into nor is this memorandum written as a formal or legal agreement and shall not be subject to legal jurisdiction in the law Courts either of the United States or England, but it is only a definite expression and record of the purpose and intention of the three parties concerned to which they each honourably pledge themselves with the fullest confidence—that it will be carried through by each of the three parties with mutual loyalty and friendly cooperation."

---

42 Meritt v. Meritt (1970) 2 All E.R. 760(C.A.): see Jones v. Padavatton (1969) 2 All E.R. 616 (A case of possession of a house by a mother purchased out of mother's money against a daughter). See Gould v. Gould (1969) 3 All E.R. 728 (where the husband had promised to pay £12/ a week "as long as I can manage it" was held not to be binding.

43 Merritt v. Merritt (1970) 2 All E.R. 760 (C.A.); Balfour v. Balfour (1919) 2 K.B. 571 (C.A.); Jones v. Padavatton (1969) 2 All E.R. 616 (C.A.); Gould v. Gould (1969) 3 All E.R. 728 disting.

44 Chichester & Wife v. Cobb (1866) 14 L.T. 433.

45 Shadwell v. Shadwell (1860) 9 C.B.(N.S.) 159; 127 R.R. 604; 142 E.R. 62. cf. De Cicco v. Schweitzer, 221 N.Y. 413.

46 New Zealand Shipping Co. Ltd. v. A.M. Satterthwaite & Co. Ltd. (The Eurymedon) (1975) A.C. 154, 168; (1974) 1 All E.R. 1014; (1974) 2 W.L.R. 865. Contrary view in McDevitt v. Stokes (1917) 192 S.W. 671; 174 Ky. 515 (A was employed by 'B' to ride his horse in a race. 'C' who had owned some of the horse's relations promised 'B' to a sum of $ 1000 if he won the race which he did. But it was held 'B' could not recover from 'C').

47 Licences Insurance Co. v. Lawson (1896) 12 T.L.R. 501.

It was held that in social & family matters an intention of not creating a legal relationship is readily implied but there is no reason why in business matters also the parties should not intend to rely on each other's good faith and honor, and to exclude all ideas of settling disputes by any outside intervention. If they clearly express such an intention, there is no reason in public policy why effect should not be given to their intention.

The clause above given was interpreted by the Court of Appeal to mean that the clause was not intended to affect their legal relation or be enforceable in a Court of law, but it was held by Atkin L.J. that the order given by the plaintiffs & accepted by the defendants created an enforceable contract. The House of Laws accepted that.[48]

Irrevocable Power of Attorney.—An irrevocable power of attorney to the creditor to sell the hypothecated property and credit the same towards the loan advanced remains an executory promise of the debtor as long as the debt is outstanding and property not sold against the executed promise of the creditor. The consideration of the power of attorney is the loan advanced or remaining unpaid.[49] A somewhat similar case was decided by the Supreme Court where a bank was given by a debtor an irrevocable power of attorney to execute a decree and credit it to discharge the debt due to the bank from the debtor. The court held the power to be coupled with interest and hence not revocable.[50] It is not correct to say that as against the loan advanced the hypothecation of the property becomes a completed or executed promise. Hypothecation is only a step towards payment of the loan. But the promise of the debtor remains executory in character as against the executed promise of the creditor.[51] An executed consideration is within the definition of consideration within s.2(d) which consists in performance.[52]

The proposal to give a promise for a promise is accepted by giving the promise asked for, and thereupon, if there be no special ground of invalidity, the two parties are both bound, each being both promisor and promisee. It does not seem necessary or useful or indeed true to say that the promise of the party who accepts has ever been a proposal, though the language of sub-s. (b) does not seem to recognise the existence of promises which have not passed through that stage. Still it is true that, but for the counterpromise or "reciprocal promise" as the Act has it, neither party's "signification of willingness" could become a promise within the definition of the Act; and in this sense we may say, if we please, that the acceptance of an offered promise, by giving the reciprocal undertaking asked for, has itself the nature of a proposal, though it becomes a promise in the act of utterance, and there is no moment at which it exists merely as a proposal. But it does not appear that anything of practical importance can turn on this.

Promises of forbearance.—An actual forbearance to exercise a right may be a good executed consideration, provided it be at the promisor's request. So a promise of forbearance may be a good executory consideration. The validity of such considerations, as distinct from their formal definition, will be spoken of, as above mentioned, under s. 25.

"Such act or abstinence or promise is called a consideration for the promise": Further requirements.—It will be observed that, according to the terms of the definition, it is only required that something—no matter what—should have been done, forborne, or promised at the request of the promisor. We shall find, however, that in some cases expressly provided for by the Act, and in others apparently not so provided for, but well known in the Common Law, and still recognised in Indian practice, the legal effect of consideration in making promises binding is withheld from acts, forbearances, and promises which are within the terms of the definition. English lawyers are accustomed to say, in some at least of such cases, that there is no consideration. This way of speaking would seem to be excluded by the Act. One would

---

48 Rose & Frank Co. v. J.R. Crompton & Bros. Ltd. (1923) 2 K.B. 267 (C.A.): On appeal (1925) A.C. 445; (1924) All E.R. Rep. 245 (H.L.).

49 Board of Revenue v. Annamalai & Co. (1967) 2 M.L.J. 515. See Seth Loon Karan Sethiya v. Ivan E. John (1969) A.SC. 73.

50 Seth Loon Karan Sethiya v. Ivan E. John. See n. 34 supra.

51 Board of Revenue v. Annamalai & Co. (1967) 2 M.L.J. 515.

52 Fazeladdin v. Panchanan Das, 1957 A.Cal. 92.

expect the Act to say somewhere that, in order to have legal effect, a consideration must not only be something which the promisor asked for and got, but must be "good" or "valuable"; that is to say, something which not only the parties regard, but the law can regard, as having some value.[53] This is a fundamental rule in the Common Law. Had the Act abrogated it, the consequences would have been extensive; but it seems to be beyond doubt that such was not the intention, and that the silence of the Act cannot be taken as altering the English law as it stood settled in India.[54] The principle may be broadly expressed thus: The law will not enforce a promise given for nothing, and if it is apparent to the Court on the face of the transaction that an alleged consideration amounts to nothing (not merely to very little), then there is no foundation for the promise, and we say either that there is not any consideration or that there is an "unreal consideration." The Act does say in s. 10 that agreements are contracts i.e., enforceable, if they are (amongst other conditions) made for a lawful consideration. In s. 23 it is declared that certain kinds of consideration are not lawful. In s. 25 agreements made without consideration are declared (special exceptions excepted) to be void. It is not anywhere stated in terms that consideration is not lawful, or otherwise not sufficient, if it is not "good"or "valuable" in the sense which those terms bear in English law. Further explanation is reserved for the commentary on the sections last mentioned.

Consideration lawful.—Where the plaintiff bona fide pleads his title to the property in the suit and then there is a compromise whereby the plaintiff agrees to buy the property and some other property from the defendant such a contract is lawful and for valid consideration. Besides it was beneficial to the defendant inasmuch as he got paid for his interest in the suit property the title to which was in dispute in the suit. Such forbearance as was shown by the compromise is in law a lawful consideration. See Promissory estoppel.[55]

Sub-ss. (e) to (j): Agreement and Contract.—The group of sub-ss. (e) to (j) may be considered together. By sub-s. (e) an agreement is either a promise or a group of promises,[56] and, therefore, it would seem that an executed consideration is not reckoned as part of the agreement. This is not according to the current use of language, which treats an agreement as an act of both parties, whether a legal obligation is incurred by one or both of them. A unilateral contract is not the less a transaction between two parties to which both must contribute something. It would not be difficult, however, to find arguments for the language of the Act if required. The expression 'agreement' in section 2(e) is essentially and exclusively consensual in nature but in the case of contracts with Government with respect to leases under the Abkari Act it is not always so.[57] Sub-s. (f) agrees with common usage, except that the adjective "mutual" is more common in English books.

The distinction between "agreement" and "contract" made by sub-s. (h) is apparently original; it is convenient, and has been adopted by some English writers. The distinction is apparent from s.2. By clause (e) every promise and every set of promises forming the consideration for each other is an agreement and by clause (h) an agreement enforceable by law is a contract. By clause (g) an agreement not enforceable by law is said to be void.[58] A contract can only be bilateral and the same party cannot be a party on both sides. Hence there cannot be a contract between A on one side and A & B on the other.[59] Nor can a partner be a servant of his own firm as a man cannot be his own employer.[60] A tender inter alia contained the following terms:

---

53 Good consideration was in fact required by the original draft of the Act (s. 10).
54 Dr. Whitley Stoke's criticism of the language (Anglo-Indian Codes i. 497) was justified, but his fears have not been. See Kanak Sunder Bibi v. Ram Lakhan (1955) A.Pat. 458, 462.
55 Smt. Indubala Devi v. Jitendra Nath Ghose (1971) A.Cal. 411, 413. Callisher v. Bischoffsheim (1870) 5 Q.B. 449; and Wade v. Simeon (1846) 2 C.B. 548; 135 E.R. 1061 refd. to.
56 See Abajisitaram v. Trimbak Municipality (1903) 28 Bom. 66, at p. 72.
57 Sunnam Sattiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh (1980) A.AP. 18, 23.
58 Harnath Kunwar v. Indar Bahadur Singh, 50 I.A. 69, 75; 45 All. 179, 184.
59 S. Magnus v. C.I.T. (1958) A.B. 467; (1958) 33 I.T.R. 538.
60 Lindley on Partnership, p. 154 (11th Ed.), quoted in S. Magnus v. C.I.T. (1958) A.B. 467.

1. Requiring security deposit.
2. Orders for supply would be placed on the receipt of the intimation of the deposit of the security deposit with a nominated official.
3. The acceptor of the tender reserved the right to cancel the contract without calling up the outstandings on the unexpired portion.

Acceptance of this tender did not amount to placing an order for a definite quantity of goods on a definite date and therefore did not amount to a contract.[61] If bought and sold notes show a material variation, neither of them nor both of them taken together can be relied upon for the purposes of proving the terms of the contract and if the two notes agree, they would constitute a binding contract.[62] Acceptance of a tender with the condition of not purchasing from anyone else though with no condition of purchasing from the tenderer is a Contract.[63] Contribution to cost of petrol incurred by a friend in driving him on a journey by car does not create a legal contract of carriage, the arrangement between the parties to the journey being one not intended to create a legal relationship. It is more like a friendly or a gentleman's agreement to go on the trip[64] The distinction should be strictly observed in India, though lapses such as "void contract" sometimes occur. The conditions required for an agreement being enforceable by law are contained in Chap. II of the Act, ss. 10 sqq., below, where it will also be seen that the absence of any such condition makes an agreement void, and certain defects will make a contract voidable. The duties of parties to a contract are set forth in Chap. IV of the Act. The manner in which contracts are, if necessary, enforced belongs to civil procedure. Where a commission is paid on sale of shares without specifying any service to be performed there is no contractual consensus as there is no valuable consideration.[65] Bids at an auction for tehbazari become a contract when the bids are accepted in accordance with the procedure of the Municipal Board.[66]

For difference between contract and standing offer, see Manickam Chettiar v. State of Madras, (1971) A.M. 221; (1971) 1 Mad 354

Bye Laws of Cooperative Society.—The bye laws of a Cooperative Society have no higher status than a contract entered into by two parties. But they do not have the force of a statute.[67]

Contract and Licence.—An arrangement under which "a liquor licensee" is allowed to sell liquor is not a contract but a privilege permitting him to sell a commodity which he otherwise would not have been allowed to do.[68]

For technical reasons, the language of sub-ss. (g) and (i) would not be accurate in England; it would be useless to dwell on this here. The state of things really indicated by sub-s. (i) is that one of the parties (or possibly more) can at his option maintain the contract, or resist its enforcement, or take active steps to set it aside and the other party has no such option. Such a contract is voidable.[69] When rescinded by a party entitled to rescind, it becomes void.

---

61 Union of India v. Thataiah (1964) 3 S.C.R. 1774; Chaturbhuj v. Moreshwar (1954) S.C.R. 817; (1954) A.SC. 236 refd. to.

62 Radhakrishna Sivadutta Rai v. Tayeballi Dawoodbhai (1962) Supp. (1) S.C.R. 81; 1962 A.SC. 538, 544; John Cowie v. William Remfry (1845) 3 Moo.I.A. 448; 5 Moo.P.C. 232; Sievewright v. Archibald (1851) 117 E.R. 1221; 17 Q.B. 103; Ah Shain Shoke v. Moothia Chetty, 27 I.A. 30; 27 Cal. 403 (P.C.): Fort Gloster Industries Ltd. v. Sethia Mercantile Private Ltd. (1968) A.SC. 1308 (Contract not concluded if discrepancies between bought and sold notes). Fort Gloster Industries Ltd. v. Sethia Mercantile, (1971) A.S.C. 2289 (Case of minor variations but genuine notes.) L.P. Narayan v. Government of Madras (1971) A.M. 393 (Acceptance of tender with condition of not purchasing from any one else though no condition of purchasing from tenderer is a contract; Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. v. Ulhasnagar Municipal Committee, (1971) A.SC. 1021 (Acting on a representation of another).

63 P. Narayan v. Government of Madras (1971) A.M. 393.

64 Buckpitt v. Oates (1968) 1 All E.R. 1145, 1147; Balfour v. Balfour (1919) 2 K.B. 571, 578, 579; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep. 860, 864, 865 refd. to.

65 Dickinson v. Abel, (1969) 1 All E.R. 484; (1969) 1 W.L.R. 295.

66 Ishwar Dyal Hingwasia v. Municipal Board (1951) A.A. 143.

67 Special Officer Amaravathi Cooperative Society v. Thirumala Swami (1973) 2 Mad.L.J. 361; Central Bank of India v. Addl. Industrial Tribunal (1970) 1 S.C.R. 205; (1970) A.SC. 245 refd to.

68 Muhammad Akbar Khan v. Province of West Pakistan (1961) 3 P.S.C.R. 111; P.L.D. (1961) 1 S.C. 17 (Pak.).

69 Raja of Venkatagiri v. State of Andhra Pradesh (1958) A.A.P. 522, 529.

Nevertheless it is in the first instance a contract, being valid until rescinded. A contract obtained by fraud is the typical example of a voidable transaction. See ss. 19, 19A, 39; see also ss. 53, 55. The definition was not intended to alter, and does not alter, the substantive law.[70] In a recent case[71] their Lordships of the Privy Council observed that sub s. (j) did not declare every unenforceable contract void but only those unenforceable by law, and, by those words meant not unenforceable by reason of some procedural regulation, e.g., Limitation Act, but unenforceable by substantive law. "For example," observed their Lordships, "a contract which was from its inception illegal, such as a contract with an alien enemy, would be avoided by s. 2(g), and one which became illegal in the course of its performance, such as a contract with one who had been an alien friend but later became an alien enemy, would be avoided by s. 2(j). A mere failure to sue within the time specified by the statute of limitations or an inability to sue by reason of the provisions of one of the Orders under the Civil Procedure Code would not cause a contract to become void." A contract is concluded by tender and acceptance and therefore a clause in a contract between Government and another that in the event of vendor not being in possession of the goods, the contract would be deemed to be cancelled does not make the contract void by the non-availability of the goods.[72]

Concluded Contract.—Where there were five trustees for the sale of jewelleries and four out of them approved of the sale but the approval of the fifth non-participating trustee was not proved as required by sections 46 and 47, Trusts Act, it was held that the sale was not a concluded contract within section 2(h), Contract Act, as to be enforceable against and binding on the trustees or beneficiaries as the delegation of powers is not allowed by the Trusts Act.[73]

Where by correspondence the parties had reached a completed agreement the fact that a formal agreement had not been executed will not affect the validity of the agreement. The appellant had bought on hire purchase with the help of the respondent National Company Machine tools from the Hindustan Machine Tools Co. and was to execute a formal agreement with the National Company and make payments by instalments, but he did neither, the National Company was held entitled to recover the price.[74]

Contract with Government.—Even though no formal document was executed between the parties, the State and the others, there was a valid contract because of the correspondence which provided the other requirements of Article 299 which was thus complied with.[75]

Where an authority competent to enter into a contract accepts a tender for supply of goods specified in the tender from the tenderer during the period of the contract the contract is concluded. A condition in the tender that the authority may not purchase any of the specified goods is not fatal to the contract.[76]

No Contract.—But in case of contract for sale of land a contract is not concluded where the requirement is "subject always to preparation and execution of a formal contract for sale" and there is no such contract drawn up and executed.[77]

Contract.—The representation of an existing fact if it amounts to a representation as to some fact alleged at the time to be actually in existence raises an estoppel if another person

---

70 E.g., a contract is not vitiated by a clause conferring an option on one party (objection hardly intelligible) Chetoomal Bulchand v. Shankerdas Girdharilal, 1929 A.S. 83; 118 I.C. 220.

71 Mahant Singh v. U Ba Yi (1939) 66 I.A. 198; 41 Bom.L.R. 742; 181 I.C. 1; 1939 A.P.C. 110 Vishwanath v. Deokabai (1948) Nag. 50, 1948 A.N. 382; Venkatappa v. Chenappa, 1945 A.M. 171, 221 I.C. 153.

72 Arun & Co. v. Union of India (1964) A.Punj. 230.

73 Fatima Fauzia and another v. Syed Ul-Mulk (1979); A.AP. 229, 239 Man Mohan Das v. Janki Prasad (1945) A.PC. 23; Abdul Kayum v. Alibhai (1963) A.SC. 309; Atma Ram v. Gulam Husein (1973) A.Guj. 113 referred to.

74 Ram Metal Works v. The National Small Industries Corporation Ltd. (1977) A.Knt. 24.

75 Manickam Chettiar v. State of Madras (1971) A.M. 221, 225; Murray & Co. v. Union of India (1966) 2 Mad. L.J. 251; 1966 A.M. 235; Bhikrey v. Union of India (1962) A.SC. 113; and Union of India v. A.L. Ralliaram (1964) 3 S.C.R. 164; (1963) A.SC. 1685 reld. on.

76 L.P.K. Murthy & Bros. v. Govt. of Madras (1971) A.M. 393, 399. Queen v. Demers, 1900 A.C. 103; Percival Ltd. v. London County Council Asylums (1918) L.J.K.B. 677, 679 reld. on.

77 Bridle Estates Pty. Ltd. v. Myer Realty Pty. Ltd. (1977) 51 A.L.J.R. 743.

alters his position relying upon that representation. A representation that something will be done in future may involve an existing intention to act in future in the manner represented. If the representation is acted upon by another person, it may, unless the statute governing the person making the representation provides otherwise, result in an agreement enforceable at law, if the statute requires that the representation shall be in a certain form, no contract may result from the representation and acting therefor, but the law is not powerless to raise in appropriate cases an equity against him to compel performance of the obligation arising out of his representation.[78]

In another Supreme Court case the Court held that Government is not exempt from the equity arising out of the acts done by citizens to their prejudice, relying upon the representations as to its future conduct made by the Government.[79]

Lumpsum Contract.—A lumpsum (lump sum) contract is one where any certain specified sum is agreed to be paid on completion of the stipulated work.[80]

Contracts after filing of winding up petition.—Contracts except those that are bona fide, and in the ordinary course of business, entered into after the filing of a winding up petition are void and unenforceable being unsupported by a valid consideration.[81]

Unenforceability and voidness.—Unenforceability and voidness are not the same concept. When an agreement is wholly unenforceable as being contrary to English law, it would be void if the law applicable is English Law, Common Law or Statute Law. If, however, the agreement, though contrary to English law, e.g. marriage brokerage is not illegal by its proper law and it cannot properly be said to be void and thus no contract at all, it does give rise to rights and duties which are legally enforceable elsewhere than in England.[82]

Contract, making of.—Before a contract of sale comes into existence it must be shown that there was an agreement enforceable-in-law between the parties, and if the agreement was not made in accordance with Art. 299 of the Constitution it could not be enforced and was void against the State.[83]

Government Contract—formal deed not necessary—A contract with Government may be made otherwise than by a formal deed provided it is entered into by an officer duly authorised.[84]

When Contract subsists.—The Supreme Court held in Chatturbhuj v. Moreshwar[85] that in spite of its having been executed a contract for the supply of goods or for the execution of any works subsists until payment is made. In a later case the same Court held that the change in 1958 made in s. 7(1) of the Representation of Peoples Act of 1951 had made no difference in this respect.[86] But under the change made in 1966 by enacting s. 9A of that Act the contract ceases to exist if only payment by Government has not been made and to this extent the rule in Laliteshwar's case[86] had become ineffective.[87] But if the contract had been executed but payment was still due to Government from the contractor the contract would still subsist[87] and the rule in Laliteshwar's[86] case apply.

The parties to a "collateral" contract need not be the same as those to the "main" con-

---

78 Century Spinning & Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. The Ulhasnagar Municipal Council and another (1971) A.SC. 1021, 1024.
79 Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. Ulhasnagar M.C. (1971) A.SC. 1021 Union of India v. Messrs Indo-Afghan Agencies Ltd. (1963) 2 S.C.R. 366; (1968) A.SC. 718; Robertson v. Minister of Pensions (1949) 1 K.B. 227 per Denning L.J. quoted with approval See also: Howell v. Falmouth Boat Construction Co. Ltd. (1950) 1 All E.R. 538.
80 R.C. Thakkar v. The Bombay Housing Board (1973) A.Guj. 34, 41.
81 Sundaram Asari v. Abdul Hameed Sahib, 1956 A.M. 692.
82 Mackender v. Feldia A.G. (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 851.
83 State of U.P. v. Mumtaz Hussain (1979) A.A. 174, 181.
84 State of Madras v. Ranganathan Chettiar (1975) A.M. 290, 297.
85 (1954) S.C.R. 817; (1954) A.SC. 236. But see Munishamappa v. Venkatarayappa (1982) 3 SCC 260.
86 Laliteshwar Prasad v. Bateshwar Prasad (1966) 2 S.C.R. 63; (1966) A.SC. 580.
87 Abdul Rahiman v. Sadasiv Tripathy (1968) A.Or. 84, 92.

tract.[88] "It is evident, both on principle and on authority, that there may be a contract the consideration for which is the making of some other contract.[89]

A collateral contract was thus described by Lord Moulton:

"...there must be a contract the consideration of which is the making of some other contract. 'If you make such and such contract I shall give you £100' is in every sense of the word a complete legal contract. It is collateral to the main contract."[90]

This passage was quoted by the House of Lords in Esso Petroleum v. Commissioner of Customs and Excise[91] where it was held by a majority of the House that by advertising the giving of World Cup coins even though of insignificant value by ESSO dealers and by ESSO advertising that one coin will be given to every purchaser of every 4 gallons of Esso petrol the intention was the creation of a contractual relationship and hence this sale fell within the provisions of purchase tax. Three members of the House said that the arrangement gave rise to a contract between the motorist and the dealer in Esso petrol but the other two held that contractual intention was negatived by the fact that coins were "going free" and by their minimal value.[91] The latter view is more logical. The case of ESSO Petroleum Co. Ltd.[92] was this:

The Esso Petroleum started a scheme of sale promotion by distributing medals with the faces of English Football team which went to play at Mexico. Millions of medals were prepared to the order of Esso and Esso petrol pumps were to give one medal to every buyer of 4 gallons of petrol and two to buyers of 8 gallons, i.e., one each for every 4 gallons purchased. The question was whether the goods were "produced for sale" for the purpose of the Purchase Tax Act. The object of giving these medals was that the motorists may purchase ESSO petrol. Free Collector Cards were offered to every purchaser and a pamphlet named "Free World Cup coins" was also prepared and distributed. Large posters 60 by 40 inches were provided to ESSO petrol dealers for display. But what effect the statements of this kind have it was held depends on whether they are "mere representations" or have contractual force. In this case they were held to be the latter and a contractual relationship was established. But the Lords were divided 3 to 2, two holding no relationship established.

Collateral contract where main contract defective.—Denning L.J. has held that the law is that although a man may have been guilty of offence which is absolutely prohibited so that he is answerable in a criminal Court, nevertheless if he has been led to commit that offence by the representation or by the promise of another, then in those circumstances he can recover damages for fraud if there is fraud or breach of contract or warranty if he proves such to have been given, provided always he himself has not been guilty of culpable negligence on his part disabling him from that. Thus where a builder brought a suit against the architect for work done for the architect of the value of £6395 and the licences obtained were for £2150 only, the architect pleaded that no suit could lie for the work as it was unlawful under the Defence of Realm Act and the builder replied by saying that there was a warranty or a promise by the architect that he would get supplementary licences and failing to get that he would stop the work and on the faith of that promise they did the work and so they could recover damages on the breach of that promise and in respect of it; it was held that as the plaintiffs were entirely innocent and led into the illegality on the representation of the defendant the suit was successful.[93]

Contract by Incorporation.—The appellants carried out the annual overhaul of the respondents electrical equipment every year. In their last order to the appellants for an overhaul (purchase order) there was reference to the respondents conditions of contract "24001, obtainable on request". There were three versions of these conditions, the latest being of March 1970, the order was in July 1970. It was held that the conditions of March 1970 being the latest were intended to be and were incorporated in the contract between the parties. If the appellants had asked for the conditions, they would have been supplied the latest version.[94]

---

88 Shamklin Pier Ltd. v. Detel Products Ltd. (1951) 2 K.B. 854; (1951) 2 All E.R. 127 (case of paint manufactured by defendant used by plaintiff and found unsuitable).

89 Webster v. Higgins (1948) 2 All E.R. 127.

90 Heilbut Symons & Co. v. Buckleton (1913) A.C. 30, 47 (1911-13) All E.R. Rep. 83, 90; Webster v. Higgins (1948) 2 All E.R. 127; Wells (Mecothan) Ltd. v. Buckland Sand & Silica Ltd. (1965) 2 Q.B. 170; (1964) 1 All E.R. 41 (A case of sand of the defendants used by plaintiffs—tripartite situation).

91 Trietal: Outlines of Law of Contract (2nd Ed.) p. 56; (1976) 1 All E.R. 117.

92 Esso Petroleum Co. Ltd. v. Comm. of Customs & Excise (1976) 1 W.L.R. 1 (1976) 1 All E.R. 117.

93 Strongman (1945) Ltd. v. Sincock (1955) 2 Q.B. 525; (1955) 3 All E.R. 90; Burrows v. Rhodes & Jameson (1899) 1 Q.B. 816, 831 appld. In re: Mahmoud & Isphahani (1921) 2 K.B. 716 disting.

94 Smith v. South Wales Switchgear Ltd. (1978) 1 All E.R. 18, 21-23 (H.L.).

CHAPTER I

OF THE COMMUNICATION, ACCEPTANCE AND REVOCATION OF PROPOSALS

Communication acceptance and revocation of proposals.

3. The communication of proposals, the acceptance of proposals, and the revocation of proposals and acceptances, respectively are deemed to be made by any act or omission of the party proposing, accepting or revoking, by which he intends to communicate such proposal, acceptance or revocation, or which has the effect of communicating it.

Scope of S. 3.—Sections 3 and 4 of the Contract Act deal with the communication, acceptance and revocation of proposals. In determining the place where a contract takes place, s. 2, the interpretation section, must be taken into account.[1]

What is communication?—As the words of this section stand it would seem that some sort of communication of a proposal, etc., is made by an act which is intended to communicate it, but in fact has not that effect, and that such an inchoate communication fails to have legal effect only because the specific provisions of s. 4 prevent it from being complete. It would seem both simpler and more rational to say that an act intended to communicate a proposal, etc, but failing to do so, is not a communication at all. To get this sense from the section before us we should have to read "and" for "or" in the last clause. There are not any corresponding words in the Commissioners' draft.

It is matter of the commonest experience that the communication of intentions may be effectually made in many other ways besides written, spoken, or signalled words. For example, delivery of goods by their owner to a man who has offered to buy them for a certain price will be understood by every one, unless there be some indication to the contrary, to signify acceptance of that offer. No words are needed, again, to explain the intent with which a man steps into a ferry-boat or a tramcar, or drops a coin into an automatic machine. It is also possible for parties to hold communication by means of pre-arranged signs not being any form of cipher or secret writing, and not having in themselves any commonly understood meaning. This does not often occur in matters of business. Means of communication which a man has prescribed or authorised are generally taken as against him to be sufficient. Otherwise an unexecuted intention to communicate something, or even an unsuccessful attempt, cannot be treated as amounting to a communication; much less can a mere mental act of assent have such an effect in any case.[2]

Communication of special conditions.—In recent times there has been a series of cases in which the first question is whether the proposal of special terms has been effectually communicated. This arises where a contract for the conveyance of a passenger, or for the carriage or custody of goods, for reward, is made by the delivery to the passenger or owner of a ticket containing or referring to special conditions limiting the undertaker's liability, and nothing more is done to call attention to those conditions. English authorities have established that the first point to be considered is whether "the nature of the transaction is such that the person accepting the document may suppose, not unreasonably, that the document contains no terms at all, but is a mere acknowledgement of an agreement not intended to be varied by special

---

1 Bhagwandas v. Girdhar Lal, 1966 A.S.C. 543; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656.

2 Brogden v. Metrop. R. Co. (1877) 2 App. Ca. 666, at pp. 691, 692, per Lord Blackburn; and see Felthouse v. Bindley (1862) 11 C.B.N.S. 869; 132 R.R. 784; 135 R.R. Preface vii, judgment of Willes J. Silence to a letter does not amount to an acceptance of the terms proposed; S.M. Bholat v. Yokohama Specie Bank, 1941 A.R. 270; 197 I.C. 890; Bank of India v. R.F. Cowasjee (1955) A.B. 419, 430.

terms."[3] In short is the ticket a contract or a mere receipt?

Notice of Auction or for calling tenders.—Under R. 34 of the Rajasthan Minor Mineral Concession Rules it is mandatory for making Royalty Collection Contracts that they be made through auction or tenders for a maximum period of two years. Any other form will not be legal. But the rule as to the period of notice for auction or tenders is directory and a substantial compliance is sufficient.[4]

Doctrine of Fundamental breach—Fundamental term—evolution of.—The doctrine of fundamental term or fundamental breach has been evolved by the courts to defeat the rigours of an exemption clause even the most carefully drafted.[5] Every contract contains a "core" on fundamental obligation which must be performed. If a party fails to perform the fundamental obligation, he will be guilty of a breach of contract irrespective of exemption clause. A party cannot exempt himself from fulfilling the main purpose of the contract, and any loss sought to be covered by an exemption clause must fall within the four corners of the contract.[6]

The origin of the doctrine has been traced in an Australian case[7] to a series of decisions by Lord Devlin. According to a learned Australian writer,[8] the doctrine of fundamental breach was a judicial innovation inspired in some degree of the philosophy of necessity of some legal control to curb the oppression which one with a superior bargaining power is apt to practise. Although its overthrow in the Suisse Atlantique Case (1967) 1 A.C. 361; (1966) 2 All E.R.61, is generally accepted, there is much complexity and no little confusion in determining what is now the law. But judicial opinion in England favours this doctrine. Lord Denning M.R.[9] has said that a method of getting round the injustice of exemption or limitation clauses is by means of the doctrine of fundamental breach. This doctrine applies in standard form contracts where there is inequality of bargaining power. Whenever it can, the Court will construe the contract, so that the exemption clause avails the party when he is carrying out the contract in substance and not when breaking it in the manner which goes to the very root of the contract.

The Ontario Court[10] of Appeal said:

> "Whether the result is obtained by applying the doctrine of fundamental breach as a matter of contract construction or as an independent principle of law, it is clear that the phenomenon is alive and prospering in the law of this province."

This shows that the erosion of the doctrine as stated by some writers is not universally accepted.

Essential or Fundamental Fact.—Opinions may differ as to what is a fundamental fact. According to Lord Wright in Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society v. Low H. Price Ltd.[11] it is an "underlying assumption of the contract or transaction."[11]

Greene L.J. in Craven Ellis v. Canons Ltd.[12] described it as > "A fact essential to the making of the agreement and the basis upon which parties purported to contract."

---

3 Per Stephen J. in Watkins v. Rymill, 10 Q.B.D. 178, 189 (1883).
4 Pursha Ram v. Modern Construction Co. (1981) A.Raj. 47, 54.
5 Chitty on Contract (22nd Ed.) para 702. See 24th Ed. para 823 et seq.
6 Glynn v. Margetson (1893) A.C. 351, 355; (1891-4) All E.R. Rep. 693, 695. Chitty on Contract (22nd Ed) para 702; 23rd Ed. Paras 596, 734; A.G. Guest 77 L.Q.R. 98.
7 Sydney Corporation v. West, 114 C.L.R. 481 per Kitto J. at pp. 493 to 496.
8 Harold H. Glass, 46 A.L.J. 339.
9 Levison v. Patent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 498, 504; United Fresh Meat Co. Ltd. v. Charterhouse Cold Storage Ltd. (1974) 2 Lloyds Rep. 286.
10 Heffron v. Imperial Parking Co. (1974) 46 D.L.R. 642, 651. Quoted with approval in Levison v. Patent Steam Carpet Clearance Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 498, 505.
11 (1934) A.C. 455, 463; (1934) All E.R. Rep. 352, 356.
12 (1936) 2 K.B. 403; (1936) 2 All E.R. 1066.

Lord Thankerton in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.[13] put it thus:

"Something which both must necessarily have accepted in their minds as an essential and integral element of the subject-matter."

In McRae case[14] it was stated to be

A case in which the parties can be seen to have proceeded on the basis of a common assumption of fact so as to justify the conclusion that the correctness of the assumption was intended by both parties to be a condition precedent to the creation of contractual relations.

Lord Diplock in Photo Production Ltd. v. Secenricor Transport Ltd. has defined fundamental breach as follows:

"Fundamental breach is one which entitles the party not in default to terminate the contract. On his doing so the contract comes to an end. Exclusion clause was part of the contract, so that also comes to an end. The party in default can no longer rely upon it."[15]

These requirements have been summed up as follows:[16]

1. A party cannot exempt himself from fulfilling the main purpose of the contract; and
2. Any loss sought to be covered by an exemption clause must fall within the four corners of the contract.

Although the terms "fundamental breach and fundamental term" are sometimes used as if their meaning was the same, fundamental breach differs from a breach of a fundamental term.[17] In the case of a "fundamental breach" the question is whether, having regard to the character of the breach, performance has become something totally different from what the contract contemplated, but a breach of a "fundamental term" goes to the root of the contract so that any breach of that term, without regard having to be had to other circumstances, entitles the party not in breach to repudiate the contract.[18] According to Lord Reid the term "fundamental breach" means the type of breach which entitles the innocent party to treat it as repudiatory and to rescind the contract. One way of looking at it is to ask whether the party in breach has by the breach brought about a situation fundamentally different from anything which the parties could reasonably have contemplated when the contract was made.[17]

The doctrine was applied and elucidated in *Karsales (Harrow) Ltd.*v. Wallis[19] upon which most of the later decisions were founded. The following passage is taken from the judgment of Denning L.J. in Karsales case:

".....it is now settled that exempting clauses of this kind, no matter how widely they are expressed, only avail the party when he is carrying out his contract in its essential respects....They do not avail him when he is guilty of a breach which goes to the root of the contract apart from the exempting clauses and see what are the terms, express or implied which imposes an obligation on the party. If he has been guilty of a breach of those obligations in a respect which goes to the very root of the contract, he cannot rely on the exempting clauses."

---

13 (1932) A.C. 161, 235; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 36; McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission (1950) 84 C.L.R. 337, 409; Porter v. Latec Finance (Q.L.D.) Pty. Ltd. (1964) 111 C.L.R. 177; (1964) 38 A.L.J.R. 184, 194; Craven-Ellis v. Canons Ltd. (1936) 2 K.B. 403; (1936) 2 All E.R. 1066 (Greene L.J.); Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society v. Low H. Price Ltd. (1934) A.C. 455, 463; (1934) All E.R. Rep. 352, 356 (Lord Wright).

14 McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission (1950) 84 C.L.R. 377, 409; Porter v. Latec Finance (Q.L.D.) Pty. Ltd. (1964) 111 C.L.R. 177; (1964) 38 A.L.J.R. 184, 194.

15 "The Times" dated 20.2.1980. reported as (1980) 1 All E.R. 560. But in this case the House have rejected the doctrine of fundamental breach.

16 Glynn v. Margetson & Co. (1893) A.C. 351; (1891-4) All E.R. Rep. 693; Alderslade v. Hendon Laundry Ltd. (1945) K.B. 189, 192, 193; (1945) 1 All E.R. 244, 245; J. Spurling Ltd. v. Bradshaw (1956) 1 W.L.R. 461, 465; (1956) 2 All E.R. 121. 124-5. Chitty: On Contract (22nd Ed.) para 702; (23rd Ed.) paras 696-7, 734; Guest: 77 L.Q.R. 98; Suisse Atlantique Societe d'Armement Maritime S.A. v. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1967) 1 A.C. 361, 422; (1966) 2 All E.R. 61.

17 Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement Maritime v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1966) 2 All E.R. 61, 68 (H.L.); (1967) 1 A.C. 361.

18 Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement Maritime v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1966) 2 All E.R. 61, 68, 86 per Viscount Dilhorne and Lord Upjohn; (1967) 1 A.C. 361, 393, 421; referring to Smeaton Hanscomb & Co. Ltd. v. Sassoon I. Setty Son. & Co. (1953) 2 All E.R. 1471, 1473 (Devlin J.) and Hong Kong Fir Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Kawasaki K.K. Ltd. (1962) 2 Q.B. 26, 63; (1962) 1 All E.R. 474, 483 (C.A.); Harbutts Plasticine v. Wayne Tank Co. Ltd. (1970) 1 All E.R. 225; Harbutts Plasticine v. Wayne Tank Co. Ltd., (1970) 1 All E.R. 225 (C.A.) (How to determine fundamental breach. The contract is automatically ended by fundamental breach).

19 (1956) 1 W.L.R. 936; (1956) 2 All E.R. 866, 868.

In the language of the Privy Council[20]

'fundamental' obligation and the breach of it is the doing of an act which "runs counter to the main object and intent of the contract" and "there will be found a breach which evinces a deliberate disregard of their bounden obligations". So that the act which led to the loss was itself a breach of the contract.

Therefore a very serious breach, which even though within the four corners of the contract, cannot be covered by the exemption clause if it goes to the root of the contract.[21] That case concerned the release of goods against a banker's guarantee, when those who so released them well knew they ought not to do so except against the appropriate bills of lading. The exemption clause was therefore limited and modified so that the shipping company should not be permitted to deliberately disregard its obligation as to delivery.[22] There are other cases where the loss was preceded by an act which was such a departure from a breach of the contractual terms that the exemption clauses were held to have ceased to apply.[23]

Fundamental term.—"Fundamental term" in Chitty on Contracts para 825 has been described thus: The expression "fundamental term"[24] is also used in two different senses. It indicates a term of the contract which by reason of the intention of the parties or as a result of the operation of a rule of law, is considered to be so important that any breach of it entitles the innocent party to treat himself as discharged.[25] In this sense it is equivalent to a "promissory condition". Secondly, in relation to an exemption clause it has been used to denote a term which "is narrower than a condition of the contract" and which "underlies the whole contract so that if it is not complied with, the performance becomes totally different from that which the contract contemplates."[26] Such a term is said to be "core" of the contract, and howsoever extensive the exemption clause may be, it has no application if there has been a breach of the fundamental term.[27]

Rule of Construction.—The correct approach to questions raised in cases of fundamental breach is to see whether on a proper construction of the exemption clauses the act which caused the loss is covered by them. Next, if it is so covered, to consider whether there was an antecedent breach of the contract or perhaps some collateral breach which precludes the defendant from relying on those clauses. Where it is suggested that the act causing the loss is itself a fundamental breach of contract, then it is on the question of construction that there arises the issue whether the act is so contrary to the main intent and object of the contract as a whole that the court is justified in limiting the general words used.[28] In U.G.S. Finance v. National Mortgage Bank of Greece,[29] Pearson L.J. said:

Fundamental breach "is a rule of construction based on the presumed intention of the contracting parties. It involves the implication of a term to give to the contract that business efficacy which the parties as reasonable men must have intended it to have."

---

20 Sze Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd. (1959) A.C. 516; (1959) 3 All E.R. 182 (P.C.) distinguished in Hollins v. J. Davy Ltd. (1963) 1 Q.B. 844; (1963) 1 All E.R. 370, 374; Cf. Alexander v. Railways Executive (1951) 2 K.B. 882; (1951) 2 All E.R. 442.

21 Sze Hai Tong Bank v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd., 1959 A.C. 576; (1959) 3 All E.R. 182.

22 Sze Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd., 1959 A.C. 576; (1959) 3 All E.R. 182, 185; Glynn v. Margetson & Co. (1893) A.C. 351, 357; G.H. Renton & Co. Ltd. v. Palmyra Trading Corporation of Panama (1961) 1 All E.R. at p. 222; (1956) 3 All E.R. at p. 961 (H.L.); The Cap Palos (1921) P. 458 at p. 471 refd. to; Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China v. B.I.S.N. Co. Ltd. (1909) A.C. 369 dist.

23 Hollins v. Davy Ltd. (1963) 1 All E.R. 370, 373. Cf. Bontex Knitting Works Ltd. v. St John's Garage (1943) 2 All E.R. 690; affd. (1944) 1 All E.R. 381n (C.A.).

24 Chitty on Contracts (24th Ed.) Paragraph 825. Vol I.

25 Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement Maritime S.A. v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1967) 1 A.C. 361; (1966) 2 All E.R. 61.

26 Smeaton Hanscomb & Co. Ltd. v. Sassoon I. Setty, Son & Co. (1953) 1 W.L.R. 1468, 1470.

27 Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 1 W.L.R. 936, 941.

28 Holins v. J. Davy & Co. Ltd. (1963) 1 Q.B. 844; (1963)1 All E.R. 370, 374.

29 (1964) 1 Lloyds Rep. 446 (C.A.). at p. 543; approved in Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement v. N.V. Rotterdamsche (1966) 2 All E.R. 61, 68 (H.L.), See also Tappenden v. Artus (1963) 3 W.L.R. 685, 690; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. London & South-Western Ry. Co. (1894) 1 Q.B. 833, 837;

In Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement Maritime S.A. v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale the statement of Pearson L.J. above set out was approved. The view that the topic of fundamental breach is a matter of construction only was adopted by the House of Lords whereas Viscount Dilhorne observed—

> "In my view, it is not right to say that the law prohibits and nullifies a clause exempting or limiting liability for a fundamental breach or breach of a fundamental term. Such a rule of law would involve a restriction on freedom of contract, and in the older cases I can find no trace of it. In each case not only have the terms and scope of the exempting clause to be considered but also the contract as a whole."[30]

It is a principle of construction that exceptions are to be construed as not being applicable for the protection of those for whose benefit they are inserted if the beneficiary has committed a breach of a fundamental term of the contract.[31]

General rules for application and construction of an exemption clause are:

1. No exemption from liability for negligence of servants unless adequate words used.
2. The liability of a defendant apart from the exempting words must be ascertained.
3. The particular clause in question must be considered.
4. And if the only liability of the party pleading exemption is a liability for negligence, the clause will more readily operate to exempt him.[32]

The abrogation of the doctrine of fundamental breach means that the protection of an exception clause will not be lost by a party in radical breach irrespective of what the clause provides. It mean that whether the clause affords him protection or not depends upon a judicial determination as to—

(i) the proper construction of the agreement including the exception clause,
(ii) the events which have happened;
(iii) the application to such events of an agreement properly construed in the setting of the general law of contract.

The clause is construed strictly against the party for whose benefit it was inserted.[33]

P.C. Malik J. in Mukul Dutta v. Indian Airlines Corporation,[34] accepted the following three conditions in the case of air passengers:

1. If the person receiving the ticket did not see or know that there was any writing on the ticket, then he is not bound by the conditions,
2. If he knew that there was a writing, and knew or believed that the writing contained conditions, then he is bound by the conditions even though he did not read them and did not know what they were.
3. If he knew that there was writing on the ticket, but did not know or believe that the writing contained conditions, nevertheless he would be bound if the party delivering the ticket has done all that can reasonably be considered necessary to give notice of the term to persons of the class to which he belongs.

The third condition which is most difficult in its application, is known as the test of "reasonable sufficiency of notice".

Brian Coote: 40 A.L.J. 336, 341, 344.

30 (1967) A.C. 361; (1966) 2 All E.R. 61, 67.

31 Smeaton Hanscomb & Co. Ltd. v. Sassoon I. Setty Son & Co. (1953) 2 All E.R. 1471, 1473; (1953) 1 W.L.R. 1468; A.G. Guest: Fundamental Breach of Contract (1961) 77 L.Q.R. 98; Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement Maritime v. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1967) 1 A.C. 361. Kenyonson v. Baxter Hoare Co. Ltd. (1971) 2 All E.R. 708 (Performance totally different. Goods bailed damaged by rats due to negligence of bailee).

32 Rutter v. Palmer (1922) 2 K.B. 87, 92; Raynolds v. Boston Deep Sea Co., 38 T.L.R. 429 (C.A.); The Ballyalton (1961) 1 W.L.R. 929, 935; (1961) 1 All E.R. 459.

33 Wilson v. Darling Island Stevedoring and Lighterage Co. Ltd. (1956) 95 C.L.R. 43, 86, (Harold H. Glass, 46 A.L.J. 339, 341.)

34 1962 A.Cal. 311, 314; Anson's Law of Contract (25th Ed.) (should be 21st Ed.) p. 149 accepted. In the 22nd Edition, the rules are at p. 143, Chitty on Contracts (23rd Ed.) p.590. Cf. Singhal Transport v. Jesaram (1968) A.Raj. 89; Raipur Transport Co. v. Ghanyshamdas (1956) A.N. 145.

In Parker's case[35] the plaintiff deposited a bag in a cloak room of the defendant railway and he received a paper ticket. On the cloak room ticket there were on the face of it the words "See back". On the back were a number of conditions including one limiting liability to £10. [35] He was held bound although he had not read the conditions. The onus to prove adequacy of notice is on the person claiming exemption.[36] Whether such notice has been given or not is a question of fact. The test is highly objective and a non-legal disability is immaterial; e.g. inability to speak English, blindness or illiteracy, provided notice is sufficient for the class of people to which he belongs so that the degree of intelligence to whom a ticket is offered is relevant.[37] In a Calcutta case[38] the plaintiff purchased a ticket which was in French and it was held that in the case of first class passengers a French company is entitled to assume that he would know sufficient French and if he does not ask for a translation he is willing to accept the contents. Quaere what presumption is there, if any, as to educated persons in India being acquainted with any particular language. In an hire purchase agreement there was an exclusion clause about warranties. A motor bike taken on hire purchase was so defective that it had to be sent to the dealer for repair and even then it remained defective resulting in its chainbreaking and damaging the crank case. It was held that the defects were a fundamental breach disentitling the defence of exclusion clause as the defects made it unsafe to use the bicycle. Moreover the defendant had not affirmed the contract as he complained from the very beginning.[39]

The plaintiffs were the owners of a costly carpet. They gave it for cleaning to the defendants and signed an agreement which inter alia contained a term that the goods were accepted at owners risk. The costly carpet was lost. The plaintiffs claimed damages for the full value. The defendants relied upon the agreement. It was held by the Court of Appeal that the defendants were guilty of fundamental breach and the onus was on them as bailees, to show how they had dealt with the carpet. Further exemption clause should not be applied where there is inequality of bargaining power.[40]

Thus between 1951 and 1966 the Courts developed a substantive doctrine of fundamental breach, i.e. they have held that an exemption clause could not as a matter of substantive law protect a party from the liability for a fundamental breach even if as a matter of construction the words of the clause did apply to the breach which had occurred.[41] Although the substantive doctrine was an important protection for private consumers it created considerable uncertainty in commercial contracts and it was in that context that the House of Lords in 1966

---

35 Parker v. South Eastern Railway (1877) 2 C.P.D. 416.

36 Hood v. Anchor Line (Henderson Bros.) Ltd. (1918) A.C. 837; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep 98 (Onus on the Shipping Company which was held discharged; pointed attention drawn to the conditions); Penton v. Southern Railway (1931) 2 K.B. 103; Raipur Transport Co. v. Ghanshyamdas (1956) A.N. 145; Watkins v. Rymill (1883) 10 Q.B.D. 178 (Notice to depositors of goods prominently exhibited on the premises and words printed on the receipt drawing attention to conditions exhibited); Henderson v. Stevenson (1875) 2 H.L. Sc.App. 470. where an endorsement on a steamboat ticket was not refd. to on its face; Sheikh Dawood v. S.I. Ry. Co. Ltd. (1945) Mad. 174; Raipur Transport Co. v. Ghanshyamdas (1956) A.N. 145.

37 Thompson v. L.M.S. Ry. Co. (1930) 1 K.B. 41; (1929) All E.R. Rep. 474; Parker v. S.E. Ry. (1877) 2 C.P.D. 416; Richardson Spence & Co. v. Rowntree (1894) A.C. 217; (1891-94) All E.R. Rep. 823 (Case of a semi-illiterate steerage passenger who fell off the board during the voyage. The ticket was folded up so that no writing was visible unless it was unfolded; nothing being indicated to draw the passengers' attention to the conditions inside): See Madras Railway Co. v. Govinda Rau, 21 Mad. 172, 174; Henderson v. Stevenson (1875) 2 H.L.Sc. App. 470 (where endorsement on a steamboat was not refd. to on its face); Sheikh Dawood v. S.I. Ry. Co. Ltd. (1945) Mad. 174; Chitty on Contracts (23rd Ed.) para 592; Sugar v. L.M.S. Ry. (1941) All E.R. 172 (where the words for conditions etc. were obliterated by date stamp).

38 Mackillican v. Compagnie des Messageries Maritime de France, 6 Cal. 227.

39 Farnworth Finance Facilities v. Attryde (1970) 1 W.L.R. 1053; (1970) 2 All E.R. 174.

40 Levison v. Patent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 498, 502, 506 (C.A.); Spurling Ltd. v. Bradshaw (1956)2 All E.R. at 125 applied; Hunt v. Winterbotham (West of England) Ltd. v. BRS (Parcels) Ltd. (1962) 1 All E.R. 111 distinguished; Gillespie Bros & Co. Ltd. v. Roy Bowles Transport Ltd. (1973) 1 All E.R. at p. 200 applied (exemption clause not to be given effect to in case of inequality of bargaining power).

41 Alexander v. Railway Executive (1951) 2 K.B. 882; Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 2 All E.R. 866.

reverted to the view that in general the doctrine of fundamental breach was a rule of construction.[42]

This is an authority for the proposition that liability even for a fundamental breach can be limited and probably excluded, but there are three qualifications (1) there is a strong presumption against construing exemption clauses in a manner to cover fundamental breaches; (2) it is possible that certain breaches are so serious that substantive doctrine of fundamental breach will continue to apply to them, and (3) the House of Lords in Suisse Atlantique case (1967) 1 A.C. 361 stressed that the shipowners might have terminated the contract on account of the Charterer's delay, but that they had failed to do so and thus by implication affirmed the contract.[43]

The substantive doctrine will continue to apply where the injured party terminates the contract because in that case the exemption clause ceases to have effect for the benefit of the party in breach. This theory is not only supported but a recent decision in Harbutt's Plasticine Ltd. v. Wayne Tank & Pump Co. Ltd[44] takes this theory further. In that case contractors put up a plasticine making plant in a factory under a contract with liability limited to the cost of the contract. But in the fabrication they made a serious blunder and the plant caught fire burning down the whole factory causing a very much bigger loss. It was held that the breach was fundamental and even though expressly the factory owner had not repudiated the contract, he was entitled to recover the full loss because in the circumstances he had no alternative but to do so.

Similar reason was used in a later case[45] where a guard of a security firm engaged to guard a factory lit a fire which set the factory on fire. The firm was held not to be protected.

If the contract has been completed before the party discovers the breach, the only course open to him i.e. the innocent party is to sue for breach and he can do so on the footing that he is entitled to treat the contract at an end.[46]

The doctrine of fundamental breach was applied by the Court of Appeal in 1977 to a case[47] where the facts were these. One 'L' gave a carpet worth £900 for cleaning to the cleaners, the defendants. While in possession of the cleaners it got stolen. There was an exemption clause and a limitation clause in the contract between the parties which was a standard form. The exemption clause was "All merchandise is expressly accepted at owner's risk". This was held not to be sufficiently clear to give exemption from liability which was due to the cleaners fundamental breach of the contract.

The doctrine of fundamental breach has considerably been eroded, if not eclipsed by the recent judgment of the House of Lords in Photo Production Ltd. v. Secenricor Transport Ltd,[48] and by the Privy Council[49] where the rule of construction is that there is no rule of law by which exclusion clauses are eliminated or deprived of the effect regardless of their terms where there has been fundamental breach of contract. The question whether and to what extent an exclusion clause is to be applied in any breach of contract is a matter of construction of contract. (Per Lord Wilberforce). For a discussion of this doctrine of fundamental breach see below.[50]

---

42 See Suisse Atlantique (1961) A.C. 361.

43 Trietal: An outline of the Law of Contract (1977) pp. 86-87.

44 (1970) 1 Q.B. 447; (1970) 1 All E.R. 25; (1970) 2 W.L.R. 198. (C.A.) overruled in (1980) 1 All E.R. 556 (H.L.).

45 Photo Production Ltd. v. Securicor Transport Ltd. (1978) 3 W.L.R. 856 revd. on appeal (1980) 1 All E.R. 556 (H.L.).

46 U.G.S. Finance Ltd. v. National Mortgage Bank Greece (1964) 1 Lloyds Rep. 446. 450; Wathes (Western) Ltd. v. Austin (Menswear) Ltd. (1976) Lloyds Rep. 14, 24.

47 Levison v. Patent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 498, 503, 504; Adelaide v. Hendon Laundry Ltd. (1945) 1 All E.R. 244 refd. to; Suisse Atlantique Case (1966) 2 All E.R. 61, 67, 71, 76, 78, 92, 94 folld.

48 'The Times' dated 20.2.1980 since reported (1980) 1 All E.R. 556 (H.L.); Harbutt's Plasticine Ltd. v. Wayne Tank & Pump Co. Ltd. (1970) 1 Q.B. 447; (1970) 1 All E.R. 225; (1970) 2 W.L.R. 198 overruled.

49 (1978) 3 W.L.R. 856 reversed. Jackson Stevedoring Pty. Ltd. v. Salmond & Spratt (Aust) Pty. Ltd. (1980) 3 All E.R. 257.

50 (1979) 53 A.L.J. 289.

The Case of the House of Lords[51] was this.—In a contract between a factory owner, the plaintiff, and a Security Company, the defendant there was an exception clause to the effect that under no circumstances were the defendants to be responsible for any injurious act or default by any employee..... unless such act or default could have been foreseen and avoided by the exercise of due diligence on the part of the defendants as his employer; nor in any event were the defendants to be responsible for loss suffered by the plaintiffs..... through fire or any other cause except in so far as such loss (was) solely attributable to the negligence of the defendants, employees acting within the course of their employment...."

One night one of the employees lit a small fire which could not be controlled as a consequence of which the factory and the goods therein caught fire and were destroyed. No negligence was alleged in employing that employee. The House of Lords held against the finding of fundamental breach saying that (i) there was no rule of law by which an exception clause in a contract could be eliminated from a consideration of the parties position when there was a breach of contract (whether fundamental or not) or by which an exception clause could be deprived of effect, regardless of the terms of the contract; because the parties were free to accept what ever exclusion or modification of their obligations they chose and therefore the question whether an exception clause applied when there was a fundamental breach, breach of a fundamental term or any other breach, turned on the construction of the whole of the contract including any exception clause and because (per Lord Diplock) the parties were free to modify or reject any express words both their primary obligations to do that which they had promised and their secondary obligations to pay damages on the breach of any primary obligation. Although the defendants[52] were in breach of their implied obligation to operate their service with due and proper regard to the safety and security of the plaintiffs premises, an exception clause was clear and unambiguous and protected the defendants from liability. In this context attention is drawn to a judgment of the Supreme Court[53] where distinction was drawn to the difference between cases of loss due to negligence and loss caused by acts of volition e.g. theft of goods pledged.

The Privy Council in a case[54] from Australia where a Stevedore had stored goods after they were off loaded from the ship and later delivered to a person unauthorised, rejected the plea of "fundamental breach" raised by the consignees on the ground of construction of clause 17 of the bill of lading which dealt with the liability of the shipping carrier and gave it immunity from all liability if a suit for loss or damage was not brought within a year of the delivery of the goods or the date when the goods should have been delivered. Said their Lordships:

"It is quite unreal to equate this clause (clause 17) with those provisions in the contract which relate to performance. It is a clause which comes into operation when contractual performance has become impossible, or has been given up; then it regulates the manner in which liability for breach of contract is to be established. In this respect their Lordships found it relevantly indistinguishable from an arbitration clause or a forum clause which on clear authority survives a repudiatory breach. See Heyman v. Darwins Ltd. (1942) A.C. 356; (1942) 1 All E.R. 337; Photo Production Ltd. v. Secenricor Transport Ltd. (1980) 1 All E.R. 556, 567; (1980) 2 W.L.R. 283, 295."

The Privy Council also pointed out that "the proposition that an exception clause may be inapplicable to certain breaches of contract was a matter of construction as held by the House

---

51 Photo Production Ltd. v. Secenricor Transport Ltd. (1980) 1 All E.R. 556, 560, 561, 565, 566, 567, 570: Decision in (1978) 3 All E.R. 146 revd. See also (1979) 53 A.L.J. 289; Swisse Atlantique Societe D'Armamente Maritime S.A. v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1967) 1 A.C. 361; (1966) 2 All E.R. 61 (1966) 2 W.L.R. 944 explained and appld; Charterhouse Credit Co. Ltd. v. Tolly (1963) 2 All E.R. 432; Harbutt's Plasticinc Ltd. v. Wayne Tank & Pump Co. Ltd. (1970) 1 All E.R. 225. Watches Western Ltd. v. Austins Menswear Ltd. (1976) 1 Lloyds Rep. 14 overruled.

52 Photo Production Ltd. v. Secenricor Transport Ltd. (1980) 1 All E.R. 554, 564, 568, 569, 570. (1978) 3 All E.R. 146 rev.

53 State Bank of Saurashtra v. Chitranjan Ramnath Raja (1980) A.S.C. 1528, 1532 (See ct. of App. judgment (1978) 3 All E.R. 146.

54 Port Jackson Stevedoring Pty. Ltd. v. Salmond & Spragott (Australia) Pty. Ltd. (1980) 3 All E.R. 257, 261, 264.

of Lords in Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armamente Maritime S.A. v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1967) 1 A.C. 361; (1966) 2 All E.R. 61. and Photo Production Ltd. v. Securicor Transport Ltd. (1980) 2 W.L.R. 283; (1980) 1 All E.R. 556 and endorsed by Windeyer J. in Thomas National Transport (Melbourne) Pty. Ltd. v. May & Baker (Australia) Pty. Ltd. (1966) 115 CLR 353, 376".

It is submitted that in view of the interpretation given by the Supreme Court, the doctrine, as enunciated by Lord Denning M.R. in the Court of Appeal, should be accepted by Courts in India particularly in cases where, as suggested by Treital, the breaches are so serious that the substantive doctrine of fundamental breach continues to apply e.g. in cases of deliberate lighting of fire in an explosive or inflammable factory or godowns, to deliver goods to a person who is a total stranger, to put a poor lock on a locker for valuables and so forth. Besides regard should be had to the standards of care or cases of want of it. It is submitted that the interest of the common consumer will be seriously jeopardised by accepting the strict operation of the standards laid down by the House of Lords and the Privy Council. Further there are cases of gross negligence which are destructive of the protection of an exemption clause.

Fundamental breach—burden of proving.—The burden of proving the absence of fundamental breach where the defendant pleads a condition limiting the liability for loss "however sustained" is not on the defendant.[55] All exemption clauses are construed contra proferantum so that if there are two reasonable constructions of a word or a phrase, then the construction least favourable to the defendants will be adopted.[56] (Defendants relying on the clause.) Courts would as a last resort disregard as nonsense what commercial men had agreed upon. Where a paramount clause in its setting cannot be construed without results so incongruous that it could not be supposed that the parties ever intended to produce them, the clause must be rejected in toto as insensible.[57] Denning L.J. in John Lee & Son Ltd. v. Railway Executive[58] where a lease contained an exemption clause couched in extravagantly wide language, said that if the wide construction on the exemption clause is correct, there would be a serious question whether the courts will enforce it. "...the vigilance of Common Law while allowing freedom of contract, watches to see that it is not abused."

The Court held that the term should be confined to liability arising by reason of the relationship of the landlord and the tenant. It also held the clause to be ambiguous and construed it against the lessor. In a later case, Bonsor v. Musicians Union,[59] Denning L.J. repeated the suggestion in a different context. There the relationship between the union and its members was contractual but the rules which members had to accept were more like bye-laws. Denning L.J. said that any rule found to be contrary to natural justice or to what comes to the same thing to what is fair and reasonable will be held invalid. Against this are dicta in some cases.[60]

---

55 Hunt & Winterbotham (West of England) Ltd. v. B.R.S. (Parcels) Ltd. (1962) 2 W.L.R. 172, 184; (1962) 1 All E.R. 111 (a case of construction of clause) C.A.

56 Hollins v. J. Davy Ltd. (1963) 201, 205; (1963) 1 All E.R. 370, 373; J. Lee & Son (Grantham) Ltd. v. Railway Executive (1949) 2 All E.R. 581, 583—(Lease contained an exemption clause couched in extravagantly wide language).

57 Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. Ltd. v. Adamsons Shipping Co. Ltd. (1957) 2 W.L.R. 968, 978-980; John Lee & Son Ltd. v. Railway Executive (1949) 2 All E.R. 581, 584.

58 (Per Denning L.J.) John Lee & Son Ltd. v. Railway Executive (1949) 2 All E.R. 581, 584; Parker v. S.E. Ry. Co. (1877) 2 C.P.D. 416, 428 (a passenger would not be bound by conditions which were unreasonable to the knowledge of the Ry. Company); Thompson v. L.M.S. Ry. Co. (1930) 1 K.B. 53, 56; (1929) All E.R. Rep. 474, 482, 483 (if the conditions are unreasonable they would not be binding); Bonsor v. Musicians Union (1954) Ch. 479, 485; (1954) 1 All E.R. 822, 826, See also Lee v. Showmans Guild of Great Britain (1952) 2 Q.B. 329; (1952) 1 All E.R. 1175; contra Grand Trunk Rail Co. of Canada v. Robinson (1915) A.C. 740, 747; (1915) A.PC. 53, 55. (Such a contract cannot be pronounced unreasonable by a Court of Law); F.A. Tamplin S.S. Co. Ltd. v. Anglo Mexican P.P. Co. Ltd. (1916) 2 A.C. 397, 404.

59 1954 Ch. 479, 485; (1954) 1 All E.R. 822, 826. See also Lee v. Showmans Guild of Great Britain (1952) 2 Q.B. 329; (1952) 1 All E.R. 1175. (Judgment of Romer L.J. at p. 1185).

60 Grand Trunk Rail Co. of Canada v. Robinson (1915) A.C. 740, 747, F.A.; Tamplin S.S. Co. Ltd. v. Anglo American Petroleum Products Co. Ltd. (1916) 2 A.C. 397, 404; British Movietonews Ltd. v. London & District Cinemas Ltd. (1951) 2 A.E.R. 617, 624; (1952) A.C. 166, 183; Diplock L.J. in Faramus v. Film Artistes Association (1963) 1 A.E.R. 636, 650-2; Lord Denning did not express an

A fortiori where an exemption clause is relied upon to exempt from liability, its terms must be clear, effective and precise.[61] Where an act done is so contrary to the main intent and object of the contract as a whole the court is "justified in looking at the main object and content of the contract and in limiting the general words used having in view that object and intent."[62]

The plaintiff garaged a car with the defendant under a contract which relieved the defendants of "all liability ...for ...however caused" and the defendants did "not accept responsibility for loss or misdelivery of ...any vehicle ...arising from any cause including negligence". The car was lost because the garage attendant allowed a thief to drive away the car because of honest belief that the thief represented the plaintiff.

The defendants were held exempted from liability.[63] The negligence of the garage attendant was not such a deliberate disregard of the obligation of the contract as to amount to a fundamental breach precluding the defendants from relying upon the exemption but his oral assurance will override exemption clause.[63] A fundamental breach e.g. selling a defective motor cycle disentitles the seller from realising unpaid balance of price. Farnworth Finance Facilities Ltd. v. Attryde, (1970) 2 All E.R.774. After the decision of the House of Lords in Suisse Atlantique Case there is no reason for any special rule as to burden of proof to be formulated. In accordance with general principles of contract it would be for the plaintiff to prove the defendant's breach of contract. But he may have the advantage of a particular rule of law that the bailee in detinue may have to prove that the loss occurred without his negligence. Upon the plaintiff's proof to establish the breach, the Court will decide as a matter of construction whether the exemption clause applies.[64]

But in a very recent case[65] the burden of proof has been given thus. Where a fundamental breach of contract is alleged by the bailor of goods the burden of proof is on the bailee that the loss had not occurred in consequence of a fundamental breach of contract since he was in a better position than the bailor to know what happened to the goods while they were in the bailees' possession. Since they had not explained how the article bailed had been lost they had not disproved that the loss was due to a fundamental breach and hence not entitled to rely on the exemption clause.[66] The rule of burden of proof applies to gratuitous bailees also.[67]

Principle of deviation.—If a man promises to keep a thing at a particular place but instead keeps it at a different place, he cannot rely on the exemption clause.[68] This principle has been extended to cases where a man promises to perform his contract in a particular way and instead performs it in a totally different way. He too cannot rely on the exemption clause because it is construed only when he is carrying out his contract in the stipulated way. These cases still stand and are in no way diminished in authority by Suisse Atlantique Case (1967) 1 A.C. 361. Therefore where a garage keeper agreed to keep the car locked up and instead he left it unlocked and his servant stole a suit case, he could not rely on the exemption clause.[69] opinion on the point, but reiterated it in Boulting v. Association of Cinematograph, Television & Allied Technicians (1963) 1 All E.R. 716, 724.

---

61 Anglo Saxon Petroleum Company Ltd. v. Adamsons Shipping Co. (1957) 2 W.L.R. 968, 980; Petrofina S.A. of Brussels v. Compagnia Italiana (1937) 53 T.L.R. 650; 57 Ll.L Rep. 247.

62 Hollins v. J. Davy Ltd. (1963) 2 W.L.R. 201, 205; Glynn v. Margetson (1893) A.C. 351, 354 (per Lord Herscell). See also Sze Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd. (1959) A.C. 576; (1959) 3 All E.R. 182, 185 (P.C.). Harbutts Plasticine v. Wayne Tank Co. Ltd. (1970) 1 All E.R. 225 (C.A.) To determine fundamental breach events resulting from breach to be seen).

63 Hollins v. J. Davy (1963) 2 W.L.R. 201 (Sachs. J.); Ashby v. Tolhurst (1937) 2 K.B. 242 (C.A.) reld. on. But see Council of the City of Sydney v. West (1965-66) 39 A.L.J.R. 323 and Mendelssohn v. Normand Ltd. (1969) 2 All E.R. 1215. W. & J. Lane v. Spratt, (1969) 3 W.L.R. 950 (Loss due to theft by driver of a transport vehicle as employer has no duty to verify honesty of his employee).

64 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) para 841. (page 840)

65 Levison & another v. Patent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 498, 505, 506.

66 Ibid; Woolmer v. Delmer Price Ltd. (1955) 1 All E.R. 377 approved; Spurling (J) Ltd. v. Bradshaw (1956) 2 All E.R. 121; appld. Hunt & Winterbotham v. BRS (Parcels) Ltd. (1962); 1 All E.R. 111 disting. Gillespie Brothers & Co. Ltd. v. Ray Bowles Transport Ltd. (1973) 1 All E.R. 193, 200 appld.; United Manufacturers Ltd. v. W.A.F. Co. Ltd. (1964) E.A. 233 (East Africa Court of Appeal) noted with approval: See 2 Halsbury's Law (4th ed.) Para 1540.

67 Port Swettenham Authority v. T.W. Wu & Co. (1978) 3 All E.R. 337 (P.C.).

68 Gibaud v. G.E. Ry. (1921) 2 K.B. 426.

69 Mendelssohn v. Normand Ltd. (1969) 3 W.L.R. 139, 144. (1969) 2 All E.R. 1215.

The condition on the back of the garage ticket was "The Garage Proprietor will not accept responsibility for any loss or damage sustained by the vehicle, its accessories or contents however caused..." was held to be ambiguous even though due to a printing error.[70] This was a case where an owner had temporarily parked his car in the garage and was not allowed to lock it even though he told the servant that there were costly things in a suit case.

Fundamental Breach.—A party to a contract may be precluded from relying on the exemption clause in a contract where he has been guilty of fundamental breach or of a "breach of fundamental term". At the present moment there is considerable doubt concerning scope and even existence of this principle.[71] But the Court of Appeal have in a recent case[72] applied the Doctrine

Exception clause—when operative.—An exception clause in an agreement of lease that the landlord "shall not in any circumstances be liable for damage caused by ...water to any goods, whether in possession of landlord or not", was held wide enough to protect the landlord for his "own" admitted negligence in regard to a water closet on a higher floor possession whereof was retained by the landlord.[73] The principle, like the ejusdem generis rule, is that "any goods" does not mean "any goods whatsoever" but may mean a class or genus of goods which the parties had in mind as covered by the contract.[74]

The list of breaches enumerated by Delvin J. in Smeaton Hanscomb & Co v. Sassoon I. Setty[75] was soon added to by others. Cheshire and Fifoot added the undertaking as to title implied by s. 12(1) of the Sale of Goods Act.[76] K.W. Wedderburn postulated total failure of consideration.[77] Deliberate misconduct was added by the Privy Council in Sze Hai Tong Bank v. Rambler Cycle Co.,[78] e.g. acting contrary to main object and intent of the contract and the main objects of the contract.[79] Deviation is a fundamental breach.[80] An exemption clause would not exclude the liability of a seller where in a contract for sale of bags of copra cakes, they contain a liberal admixture of castor beans which is dangerous to cattle[81] or if a man offers to sell beans to another and he sends him oats.[82] The concept of fundamental term is not confined to contracts for sale of goods and hire purchase. It was applied to laundering of handkerchiefs.[83] An express provision in the agreement will exclude a stipulation regarding the same subject which would otherwise be implied. General words in the exception clause may be given limited operation to accord with the main object and intent of the contract.[84]

Thus where a banker's instructions from his customer are ambiguous or unclear, the bank commits no breach of contract with the customer if he has construed them in a reasonable sense, referred to.[85]

Contractual documents.—Contractual documents must be of a class which the party receiving it would expect to contain contractual conditions.[86] Thus a turnpike ticket,[87] a ticket

---

70 Ibid. p. 143.
71 Chitty on Contracts, 24th Ed. Pr. 823.
72 Levison v. Pertent Steam Carpet Cleaning Co. Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 498.
73 Akreib v. Booth & Others Ltd. (1960) 1 W.L.R. 454. On appeal (1961) 1 W.L.R. 367 reversed on another point.
74 Akreib v. Booth & Others Ltd. (1961) 1 W.L.R. 367, 371, 372 (C.A.) reversing the judgment of Jones J.
75 (1953) 1 W.L.R. 1468; (1953) 2 All E.R. 1471. (The Rise and Fall of Fundamental Breach) Brian Coote: (1967) 40 Aust.L.J. 336.
76 Cheshire & Fifoot: The Law of Contract (1964) 6th Ed. , p. 143.
77 Sutton & Shannon on Contracts (5th Ed.), pp. 306, 307 (1956).
78 (1959) A.C. 576 (P.C.); (1959) 3 All E.R. 182, 185 (P.C.).
79 Wedderburn (1957) Camb.L.J. 16.
80 Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement Maritime v. N.V. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1966) 2 A.E.R. 61, 67, 71 (H.L.).
81 Pinnock Brothers v. Lewis & Peat (1923) 1 K.B. 690.
82 (1838) 4 M. & W. 399, 404 (per Lord Abinger).
83 Alderslade v. Hendon Laundry Ltd. (1945) K.B. 189, 193; (1945) 1 All E.R. 244.
84 Glynn v. Margetson & Co. (1893) A.C. 351, 335.
85 Commercial Banking Company of Sydney Limited v. Jalsard Trading Company 46 A.L.J.R. 436.
86 Chitty on Contract, para 567 (22nd Ed.), para 587 (23rd Ed.) Para 677 (24th Ed.).
87 Parker v. South Eastern Ry. (1877) 2 C.P.D. 416, 422.

for a deck-chair[88] and a ticket handed at a public bath[89] are not such documents and the party receiving it can put it in his pocket unread.[87] The same is the case with a cheque book.[90] On the other hand, a railway[91] or steamship[92] ticket or a receipt for goods deposited[93] have been held to be contractual documents.[86]

A clause in a contract for the hire of a crane, providing that the driver supplied by the owners "shall be responsible for driving or operating the plant but shall use it and be under the direction and supervision of the hirer who shall be responsible for his action as though the driver were in the hirer's direct employ", was construed to mean that the hirer making use of the services of the driver is vicariously liable as a master, and it applies in the case of rehiring also,[94] so also where in a similar contract the term is "claims arising in connection with the operation of the plant" [95]

Amongst the exemptions from bridge-toll one was "in respect of military on duty or their equipment baggage or transport" which by a majority of the House of Lords was construed to mean that when the driver of a military vehicle was a soldier performing his military duty in driving it that vehicle was exempt from toll even though all the passengers were persons not on military duty.[96]

Conditions printed in small print.—Conditions printed in small type on the back of a "landing account" which included the "London lighterage" clause exempting the bailee from liability for any loss, damage or detention occasioned by the default of themselves, their servants or agents is a sufficient notice of the clause to make it a term of the contract and would protect the warehouseman against allegations of negligence simpliciter.[97]

The Indian Airlines Corporation, at the door of its Calcutta office, affixed a board on which the conditions of carriage were given in bold letters. In the ticket issued to the passengers it was stated that the ticket was issued subject to the conditions of carriage which were printed inside the cover page in very small letters.

It was held that the conditions displayed on the board gave reasonably sufficient notice of the conditions and must be deemed to have been accepted by a person buying the ticket.[98]

A ticket showing receipt of 2*d*. as hire for a deck chair is merely a receipt evidencing payment and anything printed on its back limiting liability for damage caused is not binding on the holder of the ticket. It has not the same implication as a railway ticket.[99]

Carrier's case.—An exempting clause can be invoked only where the loss has arisen in the course of performance of the carriage of goods according to the contract[1] and not in deviation of it.[2] The word "loss" in the exemption clause includes larceny and "misdelivery".[3] In 1915,

---

88 Chapelton v. Barry U.D.C. (1940) 1 K.B. 532.
89 Taylor v. Glasgow Corpn. (1952) S.C. 440.
90 Burnett v. Westminster Bank (1966) 1 Q.B. 742; (1965) 3 All E.R. 81 (notice appeared on new cheque books which had not appeared on previous cheque books).
91 Thompson v. L.M.S. Ry. (1930) 1 K.B. 41; (1929) All E.R. Rep. 474.
92 Hood v. Anchor Line (Henderson Bros.) Ltd. (1918) A.C. 837.
93 Parker v. S.E. Ry. (1877) 2 C.P.D. 416.
94 Herdman v. Walker (Tooting) Ltd. (1956) 1 W.L.R. 209 at p. 212; Mersey Docks & Harbour Board v. Coggins (1947) A.C. 1; (1947) 2 All E.R. 345.
95 Arthur White (Contractors) Ltd. v. Tarmac Civil Engineering Ltd. (1967) 1 W.L.R. 1508 (H.L.) (Case of excavator)—(1966) 1 All E.R. 209 (C.A.) reversed.
96 Nyali Ltd. v. Attorney General (1956) 3 W.L.R. 341 (H.L.).
97 J. Spurling v. Bradshaw (1956) 1 W.L.R. 461. See Mukul Dutta v. Indian Airlines Corporation (1962) A.Cal. 311. Also Richardson v. Rowntree (1894) A.C. 217 (A case of sea voyage ticket to a steering passenger who was semi-illiterate and the ticket was folded and nothing to indicate on the outside of the existence of conditions).
98 Mukul Dutta v. Indian Airlines Corporation, 1962 A.Cal. 311; Hood v. Anchor Line, 1918 A.C. 837, 842-3.
99 Chapelton v. Barry Urban Distt. Council (1940) 1 K.B. 532; Thompson v. London Midland & Scottish Ry. Co. (1930) 1 K.B. 41, 53 dist.
1 Hunt & Winterbotham Ltd. v. B.R.S. (Parcels) Ltd. (1962) 2 W.L.R. 172, 175 (C.A.).
2 Suisse Atlantique Societe D'Armement v. Rotterdamsche Kolen Centrale (1966) 2 All E.R. 61, 67.
3 Hollins v. J. Davy Ltd. (1963) 2 W.L.R. 201, 207.

Lord Haldane in Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada v. Robinson[4] observed that the liability of a carrier can be superseded by a specific contract which either enlarges, diminishes or excludes it. If the law authorises it such a contract cannot be pronounced unreasonable by a court of justice. The specific contract with its incidents either expressed or attached by law becomes in such a case the only measure of the duties between the parties.

Being unable to read.—Being unable to read does not avail the holder of an excursion ticket against the conditions on which it was issued. It bore on the face of it "issued subject to the company's time tables and notices..." and the time table contained the conditions.[5] But if the ticket is printed in such a way or is delivered to a passenger in a state as not to give reasonable notice on the face of it that it embodies special conditions, the railway cannot take advantage of it. In that case the words "for conditions see back" were obliterated by a date stamp.[6] Or if it is given not at the commencement of the journey but after the goods had been carried to their destination, it can have no restrospective effect.[7]

If the carrier—the Railway—agrees to carry perishable fruits by a special or a faster train and it does not do so not because it could not do so, it cannot rely upon the risk note excluding its liability except on the ground of misconduct on the part of the railway servants, because carriage by a fast train is of the essence of the contract and damages could be claimed without proof of misconduct.[8]

If a carrier employs a known thief and puts him in charge of goods that would be a fundamental breach. But if he employs a driver without reasonably investigating his antecedents that would not amount to a repudiation of the contract. It may be carrying it out negligently. Such conduct of the carrier does not take it out of the category of ordinary negligence to which the limiting clause is designed and apt to apply.[9]

A pass was issued by a Corporation free to an old woman passenger upon the express condition that the Corporation and its servants shall be under no liability either contractual or otherwise to the pass-holder.

This was held by the Court of Appeal to contain no express agreement not to sue an employee of the Corporation and no such condition could be inferred as the condition had to be construed against the Corporation.[10] a contractor agreed to carry for the plaintiff copper wire from London to Glasgow; there was an oral agreement incorporating the Road Haulage. Association conditions of carriage. The contractor sub-contracted without the knowledge of the plaintiff. The sub-contractor gave the name of a non-existing firm, took the goods, from the premises and vanished. No proper check was made of the man's credentials.

In Graham's case[11]

The exemption clause was held inapplicable because the contract did not authorise sub-contracting without the leave of the plaintiffs and this amounted to fundamental breach. In a contract to carry goods forthwith and immediately to their destination the goods were stolen from a van while its driver left it unattended to go to lunch, the carrier was not protected.[12]

In a time charterparty where the owners placed a vessel at the charterers' disposal for a fixed time for which they paid their hire, there was a clause that the vessel was not to be ordered to nor continue in any place or on any voyage which would bring her within a dangerous zone as a result of war, actual or threatened. At the time of negotiating the charterparty, both parties realised that the Suez Canal may be closed. The vessel entered the Suez Canal and was trapped.

---

4 (1915) A.C. 740; 1915 A.P.C. 53, 55. Halsbury's Laws of England, pp. 186-8 (3rd Ed.).
5 Thompson v. L.M.S.R. Co. (1930) 1 K.B. 41; (1929) All E.R. Rep. 474. See also Mackillican v. Compagnie de Messageries Maritime de France (tickets in French) 6 Cal. 227.
6 Sugar v. L.M.S.R. Co. (1941) 1 All E.R. 172.
7 Raipur Transport Co. v. Ghanshyamdas (1956) A.N. 145.
8 Dominion of India v. Gaya Prasad (1957) A.A. 193; Gunyon v. South Eastern & Chatham Railway Co. (1915) 2 K.B. 370; B.B. & C.I. Rly. v. Muhamadbhai (1929) A.B. 355.
9 John Carter Ltd. v. Hanson Haulage Ltd. (1965) 2 W.L.R. 553, 571 (C.A.) but see p. 565 (Seller L.J.) dist. in Garnham Harris & Elton v. Alfred Ellis (1967) 1 W.L.R. 940; The Albion (1953) 1 W.L.R. 1026 (1953) 2 All E.R. 679; Spurling (J) Ltd. v. Bradshaw (1956) 1 W.L.R. 461; (1956) 2 All E.R. 121.
10 Gore v. Van der Lann (1967) 1 All E.R. 360. See also cases under "Third Parity"
11 Garnham Harris & Elton v. Alfred W. Ellis (1967) 1 W.L.R. 940.
12 Bonter Knitting Works Ltd. v. John's Garage (1944) 1 All E.R. 381n confirming (1943) 2 All E.R. 690.

The charterers were held to be in breach of war clause when they ordered her to enter the canal.[13]

Carriage by air being governed by Common Law, the carrier can escape liability by an exemption clause exempting on the ground of misconduct or negligence of its servants.[14]

Delivery of goods without production of a way bill by a common carrier, cannot be sued upon by the holder, a bank which has advanced money against the goods and the goods are redelivered to the sender, because no right is created in its favour.[15]

Parking lots.—The High Court of Australia has discussed the doctrine of "fundamental terms" and "fundamental breaches" in the Council of the City of Sydney v. West.[16]

In that case[16] a car left at a municipal parking station was misdelivered to a person giving a fictitious name. The conditions of the parking station were: no responsibility for loss or damage and no surrender of the car except against presentation of the ticket.

Act of delivery was held to be negligent, neither authorised nor permitted by the contract and the municipality was held liable. Whether to hand a ticket to the driver of a moving vehicle in a stream of traffic at the entrance to the parking station was a reasonably satisfactory course to adopt in order to give notice of an exempting condition on the ticket was held to be a question of fact in each case.[16] See also under the heading "Principles of Deviation," supra.

Bailee and sub-bailee, and exemption clause:—

A fur cleaner, who was a sub-bailee, was held not protected by the clause: "not responsible for loss or damage howsoever caused" in the case of theft by his servant because they were responsible for the manner in which a servant or an agent carried out his duties which would include theft by a servant or a stranger.[17]

The defendant to whom a uniform of an officer was given for cleaning sent it to a sub-contractor to be cleaned, the exempting clause was held inapplicable; the clause was held applicable to personal handling.[18] The protection of an exemption clause will be lost to a bailee if the goods are stored in a place or in a manner other than that authorised by the contract or if the bailee consumes or destroys them instead of storing them[19] or by mistake he sells the goods bailed or stores them in a wrong place.[20] Whether the bailee has authority to deliver possession to a third party depends in each case upon the purpose of the bailment and terms of the contract (if any) under which the goods are bailed to him.[21]

An exemption clause avails when carrying out the contract not deviating from it. Rough handling warranting inference of indifference to safety would be a fundamental breach but momentary inadvertence would be within the clause.[22] This is because negligence simpliciter is

---

13 The Eugenia (1964) 2 W.L.R. 114, 120, 124; (1964) 2 Q.B. 226.

14 Indian Airlines Corporation v. Sm. Madhuri Chawdhari (1965) A.Cal. 253; Rukmanand v. Airways (India) Ltd. (1960) A.Asm. 71; Air Carrying Corp. v. Shibendra (1964) A.Cal. 396; Indian Airlines Corporation v. Keshavlal Gandhi (1962) A.Cal. 290; Contra Mukul Dutta v. Indian Airlines Corporation (1962) A.Cal. 311. See cases of Carriage by air under section dealing with Bailees.

15 Canara Industrial & Banking Syndicate v. Ramachandra (1968) A.Mys. 133.

16 (1965-66) 39 A.L.J.R. 323; Tozer Kemsley & Millbourn Ltd. v. Colliers Inter-State Transport Service (1956) 94 C.L.R. 384. (A case of bailee delivering goods to a third party) folld.

17 Morris v. C.W. Martin & Sons Ltd. (1965) 3 W.L.R. 276, 284; cf. also Garnham Harris & Elton v. Alfred E. Ellis (1967) 1 W.L.R. 940.

18 Davies v. Collins (1945) 1 All E.R. 247.

19 Council of City of Sydney v. West (1965-66) 39 A.L.J.R. 323, 325 (per Barwick C.J. and Taylor J.).

20 Per McNair J. in Woolmer v. Delmer Price Ltd. (1955) 1 Q.B. 291; (1955) 1 All E.R. 377.

21 Tappenden v. Artus (1963) 3 W.L.R. 685, 690; (1963) 3 All E.R. 213; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. London & South Western Rly. Co. (1894) 1 Q.B. 833, 837 (adopted. A hirer deposited a sewing machine in a cloak room and the owner claimed the machine. The railway claimed a warehouseman's lien). See also Canara Industrial & Banking Syndicate Ltd. v. Ramachandra (1968) A.Mys. 133 (a case of a way bill with condition of delivery against way bill but goods delivered to consignor).

22 J. Spurling Ltd. v. Bradshaw (1956) 1 W.L.R. 461, 466 (per Denning L.J.); (1956) 2 All E.R. 121, 124, 125; Woolmer v. Delmer Price Ltd. (1955) 1 Q.B. 291; (1955) 1 All E.R. 377 (dist.); Bontex Knitting Works Ltd. v. St. Johns Garage (1944) 1 All E.R. 381 (C.A.).

not a breach which goes to the root of the contract[23] and more than non-payment by itself is such a breach.[24]

Corporation, if can defend employees negligence.—A Corporation has no interest entitling it to a stay of proceedings for damages against its servant for his negligence where it is not legally bound to indemnify its servant.[25]

Exemption clause and previous course of dealings.—When a party assents to a document proving the whole or part of a contract he is bound by the terms read or unread, signed or unsigned simply because they are in the contract.

There can be no condition in any contract unless they are brought into it by expression, incorporation or implication. They are not brought into it simply because one party had inserted them into similar transactions in the past and has not given the other party any reason to think that he will not want to insert them again.[26]

In McCutcheon case[27]

A car was consigned for carriage by a vessel and a receipt for freight was given. The normal practice of giving a risk note was not followed on one occasion. The vessel sank through the negligence of the ship's employees. The Company pleaded previous practice and knowledge of the consignor of the car for exemption from liability.

This was rejected because in the absence of any contractual document a consignor of goods cannot, by a previous course of dealing, be bound by conditions of which he is generally aware but the specific terms of which he has no knowledge. Nor can a consignor be bound by the exemption conditions merely by posting copies of the conditions on the pier and on board a vessel.[27]

Hire-purchase.—Transactions by way of hire-purchase are of two kinds—(1) where the chattels are purchased by the financier from the dealer and the financier obtains a hire-purchase agreement from the customer under which the latter becomes owner of the chattel on payment of all the instalments of the stipulated hire and exercising his option to purchase the chattel on payment of a nominal sum.[28] (2) Where the customer is the owner of the chattel and with a view to get his purchase financed he enters into a hire-purchase agreement with the financier but in substance it is a loan subject to a hiring agreement under which the lender has the right of seizure.[29] The former is a sale within the Sales Tax Act, the latter is not.[30]

In an ordinary hiring agreement of a specific chattel there is an implied condition that the chattel is fit for the purpose of its hiring except in cases where the defect is apparent to the hirer and he does not rely on the skill and judgment of the owner.[31] Exemption in war risks policy due to infringement of customs regulations does not cover confiscation of a ship by a judicial tribunal if its order is caused by political or executive act of government but the onus to prove this is on the shipowners because the presumption is that the tribunal was acting according to the law of the foreign country. Panamanian Steamship Corpn. v. Wright, (1971) 2 All E.R. 1028.

---

23 J. Spurling Ltd. v. Bradshaw (1956) 1 W.L.R. 461, 485; (1956) 2 All E.R. 121; Swan Hunter and Wigham Ltd. v. France Fenwick Tyne and Wear Ltd. The Albion (1953) 2 All E.R. 679.

24 Mersey Steel & Iron Co. v. Naylor Benzon & Co. (1884) 9 App. Cas. 434.

25 Gore v. Van der Lann (1967) 1 All E.R. 360.

26 McCutcheon v. David Macbrayne Ltd. (1964) 1 W.L.R. 125, 131, 134, 136 (H.L.) S.C. Holler v. Rambler Motors Ltd. (1972) 1 All E.R. 399.

27 Ibid.

28 K.L. Johar & Co. v. Dy. Commercial Tax Officer (1965) 2 S.C.R. 112; (1965) A.S.C. 1182; Sundaram Finance Ltd. v. State of Kerala (1966) A.S.C. 1178. See infra under s. 74 dealing with clauses for compensation for depreciation and under s. 148 bailment.

29 Sundaram Finance Ltd. v. State of Kerala (1966) A.S.C. 1178; In re Watson, ex parte Official Receiver (1890) 25 Q.B.D. 27 (Court can see the substance of transaction); Polsky v. S.A. Services Ltd. (1951) 1 All E.R. 185 (Court can see behind the documents to see if it is a loan on security); also see p. 1062 (C.A.) on app. Both these cases are under the Bill of Sales Act.

30 Sundaram Finanace Ltd. v. State of Kerala (1966) A.S.C. 1178. See infra "under Bailment".

31 Yeoman Credit Ltd. v. Apps (1961) 3 W.L.R. 94, 102; (1961) 2 All E.R. 281; (1962) 2 Q.B. 508: dictum of Parker L.J. in Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 1 W.L.R. 936, 943 (1956) 2 All E.R.

An exemption clause in a hire-purchase agreement that there was no warranty of roadworthiness or age or fitness of a vehicle cannot be relied upon in a case where the car was in a deplorable condition requiring £150 for being put right, although when first shown it was "in an excellent condition." This was a breach of a fundamental condition going to the root of the contract of delivering the car in substantially the same condition as at the time of inspection.[32] The Court of Appeal held that it was an implied condition that the car was fit for the purpose it was hired, that the unusable condition of the car was a breach of the fundamental condition of the agreement not excluded by the exemption clause and the hirer was entitled to repudiate the agreement; but there was not a total failure of consideration, since the hirer had taken possession of the car and paid instalments and therefore he was entitled to damages but had to pay instalments for the period before repudiation.[33] If the accumulated defects in a car, purchased under a hire-purchase agreement, are such as to destroy the workable character of the car, there is a breach of the fundamental condition of the agreement to provide a functioning and usable car. The owner company is not protected by the exemption clause (given in the agreement in Yeoman's case) and the hirer can repudiate the agreement.[34]

Election in case of fundamental breach.—If a party to a contract had broken a fundamental term, an election by the other party to affirm the contract and sue for damages, does not of itself re-entitle the party in breach to rely on an exemption clause which he has disentitled himself from relying on by his breach of the fundamental term of the contract.[35]

A car taken by a hirer was found to have a defective back axle, defective tyres and other less serious defects making it unroadworthy and unsafe to drive. The defects in the car were held to be a breach of the term implied at common law to supply a roadworthy car and a defeat of back axle constituted a fundamental breach of contract against which the exemption clause that it "do not supply the vehicle with a subject to any warranties or conditions either express or implied by statute" could not avail the owners who were in breach.[36]

In some cases, there are a number of faults, which taken together add upto a fundamental breach. In another case, one important item which is defective may destroy the basis of a contract and a defective back axle is such a defect.[36] But if the hirer, in spite of defects, does not repudiate the agreement and approbates it by paying instalments and keeping the car there is not a total failure of consideration for the payments made; but if when the hirer refuses to pay the owners, the owners are still in breach of their obligation under the agreement, and the hirer is entitled to repudiate, he would be entitled to damages but he must pay the instalments due upto the date of repudiation.[37]

Strike Clause.—There is no settled rule of construction that a specific exception such as strikes or war cannot be relied upon if the strike or war was operative at the time when the contract was made or the ship ordered to the affected port: It must depend on the proper construction of the contract.[38]

---

866 applied. Farnmouth Finance Facilities v. Attryde, (1970) 2 All E.R. 774 (Selling defective motor cycle, the seller is not entitled to balance).

32 Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 1 W.L.R. 936 (C.A.); (1956) 2 All E.R. 866.

33 Yeoman Credit Ltd. v. Apps (1961) 3 W.L.R. 94 (C.A.); Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 1 W.L.R. 936 (C.A.); and Pollock & Co. v. Macrae (1922) S.C. (H.L.) 192 applied.

34 Yeoman Credit Ltd. v. Apps (1961) 3 W.L.R. 94 (C.A.); Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 2 All E.R. 866; (1966) 1 W.L.R. 936 (C.A.) and Pollock & Co. v. Macrae (1922) S.C. (H.L.) 192 applied.

35 Charterhouse Credit Co. Ltd. v. Tolly (1963) 2 All E.R. 432, 438 (C.A.); Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 2 All E.R. 866; Pollock & Co. v. Macrae (1922) S.C. (H.L.) 192; and Wallis, Son and Wells v. Pratt and Haynes (1911-13) All E.R. Rep. 989; (1911) A.C. 394 appd. Harbutts Plasticine v. Wayne Tank Co. Ltd., (1970) 1 All E.R. 225 (Automatic ending of contract).

36 Charterhouse Credit Ltd. v. Tolly (1963) 2 W.L.R. 1168, 1173, 1179, 1184; (1963) 2 All E.R. 432, 438 (C.A.); Karsales (Harrow) Ltd. v. Wallis (1956) 1 W.L.R. 936 (C.A.).

37 Yeoman Credit Ltd. v. Apps (1961) 3 W.L.R. 94, 105, 106, 107.

38 Reardon Smith Line Ltd. v. Ministry of Agriculture & Food (1961) 3 W.L.R. 110, 129 (Seller L.J.); S.S. Induna Co. Ltd. v. British Phosphatic Commissioners (1949) 2 K.B. 430; (1949) 1 All E.R. 522.

In the sale of a car on hire-purchase, the provision of a log book is a suspensive condition on which the existence of the contract depends and until that is provided there is no contract of hire-purchase and no instalments fall due. But this condition can be waived.[39]

Contract in English.—A hire purchase agreement in English was signed by the hirer in Hindi, he not knowing the English language, and not all the clauses were explained to him by the owner. The agreement does not bind the hirer.[40]

Exemption clause—Authorities not reconcilable:—The authorities upon the applicability of an exemption clause are not easy to reconcile. In Alexander v. Railway Executive[41] Devlin J. held that an exemption clause in a cloakroom ticket did not protect the defendants in respect of a delivery of the goods to a dishonest stranger. In Smeaton Hanscomb & Co. Ltd. v. Sassoon I. Setty, Son & Co.[42] (No. 1) Devlin J. said:

> "I do not think that what is a fundamental term has ever been closely defined. It must be something, I think, narrower than a condition of the contract, for it would be limiting the exceptions too much to say that they applied only to breaches of warranty. It is, I think, something which underlies the whole contract so that, if it is not complied with, the performance becomes something totally different from that which the contract contemplates.

While in Hollins v. J. Davy[43] Sachs J. held that a garage proprietor was protected by the exemption clause in respect of an innocent delivery of the plaintiff's car to a thief. In order to amount to a fundamental breach of contract, a breach had to be wilful or deliberate. In Sze Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd.,[44] Lord Denning's observations show that a fundamental breach disentitling a party from relying upon an exemption clause occurs if an act amounting to a complete departure from the contract is done which can be imputed to the contracting party himself as opposed to an act for which the contracting party is vicariously responsible as having been committed by one of his servants. In other words, there must be something amounting to a deliberate breach of the contract which can be attributed to the contracting party himself.[45] In Sze Hai Tong Bank Ltd. v. Rambler Cycle Co. Ltd.,[46] the exemption clause was very comprehensive: but its extent was limited and modified by the Privy Council because if such an extreme width were to be given to the exemption clause, it would run counter to the main object and intent of the contract, e.g., the proper delivery of the goods by the Shipping Company, "unto order or his or their assigns", against production of the bill of lading. It would defeat the object entirely if the shipping company were at liberty to deliver the goods to somebody else, not entitled at all, without being liable for the consequences. The clause must, therefore, be limited and modified to the extent necessary to enable effect to be given to the main object and intent of the contract: See Glynn v. Margetson & Co.,[47] and Renton & Co. Ltd. v. Palmyra Trading Corpn. of Panama.[48] A wide exemption clause, therefore, has to be limited so as not to permit a shipping company deliberately to disregard its obligations as to delivery. The shipping company's agents did something in such 39 Bentworth Finance Ltd. v. Lubert (1967) 3 W.L.R. 378; (1967) 2 All E.R. 810; C.A.

---

40 Tirathraj Pandey v. Amar Credit Corpn., 72 C.W.N. 243, 262-3, 264: Parker v. South Eastern Railway (1877) 2 C.P.D. 416; and L'Estrange v. F. Graucob Ltd. (1934) 2 K.B. 394; (1934) All E.R. Rep. 16 dist. Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (2nd Ed.) p. 92 not applied, (6th Ed.) 112. But see Mackillican v. Compagnie de Messageries Maritimes de France (1880) 6 Cal. 227 (where terms in French were held binding on persons travelling in I class by boat); Sugar v. L.M.S. (1941) 1 All E.R. 172 (where a ticket containing words "For conditions see back" were obliterated by the date stamp. There was no reasonable notice); Thompson v. L.M.S. Ry. (1930) 1 K.B. 41; (1929) All E.R. Rep. 474 (case of illiterate women).

41 (1951) 2 K.B. 882; (1951) 2 All E.R. 442.

42 (1953) 1 W.L.R. 1468, 1470; (1953) 2 All E.R. 1471. See John Carter (Fine Worsteds) Ltd. v. Hanson Haulage (Leeds) Ltd. (1965) 2 W.L.R. 553, 571.

43 (1963) 1 Q.B. 844, 852; (1963) 2 W.L.R. 201; (1963) 1 All E.R. 570.

44 (1959) A.C. 576; Chartered Bank of India v. B.I.S.N. Co. Ltd. (1909) A.C. 369 dist. United Africa Co. Ltd. v. Saka Owoade (1955) A.C. 130; (1957) 3 All E.R. 216.

45 John Carter Ltd. v. Hanson Haulage Ltd. (1965) 2 W.L.R. 553 at page 568.

46 (1959) 3 All E.R. 182, 185 (P.C.); (1959) A.C. 576.

47 (1893) A.C. at p. 357.

48 (1956) 1 All E.R. at p. 222; (1956) 1 Q.B. at p. 501; H.L. (1956) 3 All E.R. at p. 961; (1957) A.C. at p. 164.

circumstances that their acts were the acts of the shipping company itself and they deliberately disregarded one of the prime obligations of the contract. No court can allow so fundamental a breach to pass unnoticed under the cloak of a general exemption clause: see The Cap Palos;[49] Chartered Bank of India, Australia & China v. British India Steam Navigation Co. Ltd.;[50] and United Africa Co. Ltd. v. Saka Owoade.[51]

Incorporation of prospectus in a policy of assurance.—The question of the effect to be given to the prospectus of a company which was incorporated by reference in a policy of life assurance arose some time ago in Madras case[52] in connection with the onus of proof of age of the assured. In the course of the judgment, Bhashyam Ayyangar J., said: "As regards the effect to be given to the prospectus as a part of the contract of insurance, I think it will have the same effect as if it had been reproduced in the policy itself, and it is quite unnecessary to prove that the prospectus had been read by the assured or that it was specially brought to his notice by the company apart from the reference made to it in the policy itself. A policy of insurance being a contract entered into between the insurers and the assured, and the terms of such contract resting entirely upon the contract itself, and not in the main or even in part upon the common law or upon the statute, the assured, who makes the proposal, enters into the contract, and signs the policy, has in the very nature of things notice that the policy contains all the terms and conditions of the contract." The learned Judge proceeded to cite and rely on Watkins v. Rymull[53] and the test there laid down[54] by Stephen J. already cited (supra). B. Ayyangar J. concluded that the signatory was bound. Although it would not affect the decision, as the signatory was in any case held liable, a situation such as this, where the defendant has signed a document, should have been sharply distinguished from the ticket cases: a signatory is bound, unless there has been some misrepresentation, or it is a case of non est factum: L'Estrange v. Graucob.[55]

4. The communication of a proposal is complete when it comes to the knowledge of the person to whom it is made.

Communication when complete.

The communication of an acceptance is complete,— as against the proposer, when it is put in a course of transmission to him, so as to be out of the power of the acceptor; as against the acceptor, when it comes to the knowledge of the proposer.

The communication of a revocation is complete,— as against the person who makes it, when it is put into a course of transmission to the person to whom it is made, so as to be out of the power of the person who makes it;

as against the person to whom it is made, when it comes to his knowledge.

Illustrations.

(a) A proposes, by letter, to sell a house to B at a certain price. The communication of the proposal is complete when B receives the letter.

(b) B accepts A's proposal by a letter sent by post.

The communication of the acceptance is complete—
as against A, when the letter is posted;
as against B, when the letter is received by A.

---

49 (1921) P. 458, p. 471.
50 (1909) A.C. 369, dist.
51 (1955) A.C. 130; (1957) 3 All E.R. 216. (Case of theft by a servant—master and servant).
52 Oriental Government Security Life Assurance Co. v. Narasimha Chari (1901) 25 Mad. 183, 205, 206.
53 10 Q.B.D. 178.
54 Ibid., at p. 189.
55 (1934) 2 K.B. 394. See also Chimanram Motilal v. Divanchand Govindram (1932) 56 Bom. 180, 189.

(c) A revokes his proposal by telegram.

The revocation is complete as against A, when the telegram is despatched. It is complete as against B when B receives it.

B revokes his acceptance by telegram. B's revocation is complete as against B when the telegram is despatched, and as against A when it reaches him.

This section is really in the nature of an interpretation clause to s.5 and might, perhaps, have more conveniently followed it.

Agreement between parties at a distance.—No difficulty arises on the first paragraph[56] To bring about a concluded contract the acceptance must be communicated in some perceptible form which may be by speech, writing or other acts both offer and acceptance must be unqualified and unconditional. If it is conditional parties can withdraw at any moment. But where there is a statutory rule having force of law precluding withdrawal of a bid before its acceptance or refusal to communicate to the bidder the position may be different.[57] Whether a proposal has or has not come to the knowledge of the person to whom it was made is purely a question of fact. The rest of the section is intended, as shown by the illustrations, to meet the questions raised by the formation of agreements between parties at a distance. It has done this, as regards acceptance by enacting (in combination with s. 5) that for a certain time—namely, while the acceptance is on its way—the receiver shall be bound and the sender not. The proposal becomes a promise before it is certain that there is any consideration for it. This can be regarded only as a deliberate and rather large departure, for reasons of convenience, from the common law rule which requires the promise and the consideration to be simultaneous. No such departure has been found necessary in England. The case of an acceptance being "put in a course of transmission to" the proposer, but failing to reach him, is not expressly dealt with. It seems to result from the language of the second paragraph that the proposer must be deemed to have received the acceptance at the moment when it was despatched so as to be "out of the power of the acceptor," and that accordingly it becomes a promise on which the acceptor can sue, unless some further reason can be found why it should not. If the consideration on the acceptor's part was not promise but performance—for example, the sale of goods despatched at the proposer's request without previous negotiation—the failure of consideration may supply such a reason in the case proposed. The Act certainly does not say that the intending purchaser must be deemed to have received goods which have never arrived; it says at most that he must be deemed to have been aware of their despatch. But if the consideration on the acceptor's part was a promise, it would seem that the proposer cannot say he has not received that consideration; for he cannot say that the acceptance has not been communicated to him, and there is no difference between having the communication of a promise and having the promise itself. Consequently, where the agreement is to consist in mutual promises, a binding contract appears to be formed by a letter of acceptance despatched in the usual way, even if it does not arrive at all, unless the proposal was expressly made conditional on the actual receipt of an acceptance within a prescribed time, or in due course, or unless the acceptor sends a revocation as provided for by the latter part of the section and explained by illustration (c). This last qualification is probably, though not certainly, a departure from English law. Apart from the question of a possible revocation, the total result, on the words of the Act, is in accordance with the existing English authorities. Those authorities, however, are of later date than our Act, and in 1872 the current of opinion was rather the other way. It seems uncertain whether the framers of the Act really omitted to consider the case of an acceptance not arriving at all, or meant it to be an implied exception, on the ground that the want of any final consent between the parties (see s. 10) would prevent the formation of a contract, or how otherwise. The draft of 1866 appears to have assumed that actual communication was necessary.[58] When the proposal and acceptance are made by letters, the contract is made at the 56 Transactions conducted in a summary manner, as by telegraph, may raise doubt as to what, according to the usual course of business, the communication implied. Such questions are really of construction—e.g., Radha Kanta Dass v. Baerlein Bros. (1929) 56 Cal. 118; 32 C.W.N. 1101; 1929 A.Cal. 97; 117 I.C. 540.

---

57 Linga Gowder v. The State of Madras (1971) A.M. 28, 32; K.P. Chowdhry v. State of Madhya Pradesh (1966) 3 S.C.R. 919; (1967) A.SC. 203 disting.

58 "3. A proposal to enter into a contract may be retracted, or the terms of it altered by the party making it, at any time before it is accepted.

time when and the place where the letter of acceptance is posted.[59]

English rules.—The rules as now settled in England are as follows:-

The general rule is that an acceptance must be communicated to the offeror. (Holwell Securities Ltd v. Hughes (1974) 1 W.L.R. 155). Accordingly, there is no contract where the acceptance is not communicated to the offeror, the reason being that it would be unfair to hold the offeror bound by an acceptance of which he has no knowledge. Therefore, if the offeror knows of the acceptance, there can be a contract even though the acceptance was not brought to the notice of the offeror by the offeree. However, there can be no contract where a third party without the authority of the offeree communicates the acceptance to the offeror.[60]

Therefore, if the letter of defendant constituted an offer to take over the contract made with the company of which the defendant was the Managing Director, the absence of any response by the plaintiff to that offer could not be construed as an acceptance capable of binding the defendant. Such a result would only flow from an estoppel operating against the offeror. But the cause of action of the plaintiff could not be founded on an estoppel. Therefore, the claim in contract failed.[61]

In Entores, Ltd. v. Miles Far East Corporation[62] it was said:-

> "The ordinary rule of law, to which the special considerations governing contracts by post or exceptions, is that the acceptance of an offer must be communicated to the offeror, and the place where the contract is made is the place where the offeror receives the notification of the acceptance by the offeree"

The rule of acceptance by post applies if it is reasonable to use the post. It may be reasonable to use the post even though the offer was made orally if immediate acceptance was not required and the parties lived at a distance.[63] On the other hand, it would not normally be reasonable to accept a telegraphic offer by posting a letter.[64]

Acceptance by Silence and Conduct.—The Supreme Court[65] in a recent case has considered the question of acceptance of an offer by Silence reinforced by conduct. It has observed that the general rule is that an offer is not accepted by mere silence on the part of the offeree. But in the facts of a given case acceptance of a suggestion may be sub silentio reinforced by subsequent conduct. There may be further facts which taken with the offeree's silence, may constitute acceptance. One such case is where at the negotiation stage the offeree disputed a part of the offer and the offeree communicated that fact to the offeror showing that he understood the offer in a particular sense, which would probably be a counter offer which in the case of the offerer will constitute his acceptance.

If there is a mistake as to the terms of a document and amendments are made in the draft, the signatory to the original contract is not estopped from denying his signatures and saying that he intended to make an offer in terms of the document, with amendment suggested.

"Explanation.—A proposal is said to be accepted when an expressed acceptance of it has been communicated to the proposer, or when a letter of acceptance is posted or a telegraphic message delivered at the proper office, and the acceptance by letter or telegram is not cancelled by some communication which reaches the proposer before or at the same time with the letter or telegram of acceptance, or when acceptance is to be inferred from the circumstances of the case."

59 Kamisetti Subbiah v. Katha Venkataswamy (1903) 27 Mad. 355. English authority, so far as it goes, is to the same effect. See also Sepulchre Bros. v. Khushaldas (1941) 2 M.L.J. 481; 1942 A.M. 13; Protap Chandra v. Kali Charan, 1952 A.Cal. 32; Manilal v. Venkatachalapathy (1944) Mad. 95; Baroda Oil Cakes v. Parshottam, 1954 A.B. 491.

60 Chitty: On Contract, 24th Ed. para 54 (vol.1) p.33; Fairlines Shipping Corp. v. Adamson (1974) 2 All E.R. 967, 974.

61 Fairlines Shipping Corporation v. Adamson (1947) 2 All E.R. 967, 974; Felthouse v. Bindley (1862) 11 C.B. & S. 869 appl.

62 (1955) 2 Q.B. 327. (1955) 2 All E.R. 493; (1955) 3 W.L.R. 48.

63 Henthorn v. Fraser (1892) 2 Ch. 27.

64 Chitty: On Contract, Vol. 1, para 65, p. 34.

65 Ramji Davawala & Sons (P) Ltd v. Invest Import (1981) A.S.C. 2085, 2092; 70 Cal. W.N. 199 (revd.) Halsbury Laws of England (4th ed.) Vol. 9 para 251, 288 quoted.

Therefore where a contract is in a number of parts, it is essential that the parties should have assented to them or be taken to have assented to them i.e. to the same thing in the same sense or they should be consensus ad idem.

"A person who has made an offer must be considered as continuously making it until he has brought to the knowledge of the person to whom it was made that it is withdrawn.[66] In other words, the revocation of a proposal is effectual only if actually communicated before the despatch of an acceptance; and the time when the revocation was despatched is immaterial.[67] But where an acceptance, without notice of the offer being revoked, is despatched in due course by means of communication, such as the post, in general use and presumably within the contemplation of the parties, the acceptance is complete from the date of despatch, notwithstanding any delay or miscarriage in its arrival from causes not within the acceptor's control".[68] It seems[69] this is independent of the rule that, if the proposer of an agreement has prescribed or authorised any particular mode of communicating acceptance (cf. s. 7, sub-s. 2), he cannot dispute the sufficiency of that mode, and must take any risks of delay or miscarriage attaching to the acceptor's action in conformity with the request or authority. One of the conditions in a contract of sale by giving option to the buyer was that the option should be exercised by a notice given by registered post. The buyer gave notice by ordinary post which was held to be sufficient. The Court of Appeal laid down the following rules:

(1) An offeror may state the mode of acceptance.
(2) Whether it is mandatory or not is a matter of construction.
(3) If mandatory the mode must be acted upon but not necessary if it is declaratory.[70]

Offer to sell a house was made in the form of an option to be exercised by notice in writing to the intending Vendor. Such a notice was posted but did not arrive, and it was held that there was no contract of sale. The offer on its construction required actual communication of acceptance.[71]

In *Household Fire Insurance Co. Ltd.*v. Grant (1879) 4 Ex.D.216 the defendant applied for shares in the plaintiff Company. A letter of allotment was posted but it never reached the defendant. The Company went into liquidation, and it was held three years later that the defendant was a shareholder and liable for calls on the shares.[72]

Offer upto when Capable of acceptance.—An unconditional offer remains capable of acceptance until the offeree is made aware of its withdrawal.

Where the parties must, from the context, have reasonably assumed that the post might be used as a means of communicating the acceptance of an offer, the acceptance is complete as soon as it is posted.[73]

A letter of acceptance misdirected by the acceptor's fault cannot be deemed to have been effectually put in a course of transmission to the proposer;[74] this case was properly distinguished by the Allahabad High Court from that of an insufficient address furnished by

---

66 Lord Herschell in Henthorn v. Fraser (1892) 2 Ch. 27, 31, confirming Byrne v. Van Tienhoven (1880) 5 C.P.D. 344.
67 It is literally possible to read the words of s. 4 of the Act, par. 3, as giving only one chance of sending a revocation, so that if a man first sends a written acceptance by a slow ship, then sends a written revocation by a faster ship, and then returns to his first mind and confirms the acceptance by a telegram arriving before either letter, the revocation is operative, and the confirmation cancelling it is not. But this cannot be seriously entertained, and seems sufficiently excluded by the terms of s. 5.
68 Henthorn v. Fraser, supra, note 23; Household Fire, etc., Insurance Co. v. Grant (1879) 4 Ex.D. 216. A contract made by teleprinter is not concluded until notice of acceptance is received by the offeror (1955) 2 All E.R. 493 (C.A.); n. 36 infra.
69 Henthorn v. Fraser, supra, n. 23.
70 Yates Building Co. Ltd. v. R.J. Pulleyn & Sons. The Times Feb. 27, 1975.
71 Chitty: On Contract, 24th Ed. Para 65.
72 (1879) 4 Ex.D. 216.
73 Henthorn v. Fraser (1892) 2 Ch. 27.
74 Ram Das v. Official Liquidator, Cotton Ginning Co. (1887) 9 All. 366, 385.

the proposer himself.[75] There the proposer's own want of care obviously cannot extenuate, but will if possible aggravate, the risk imposed on him by the general rule of law.

Whether a particular letter or writing has been posted, delivered, or actually received by the addressee, is a question of fact having no more to do with the law of contract than any other matter of fact which it may be needful to prove in order to establish or contradict the formation of any kind of contract.[76]

Exclusion of Postal Rule.—Postal rule can finally be excluded by the terms of the offer, and whether it is excluded or not the question is one of construction.[77] If it is expressly agreed that the acceptance to be binding must not only be in writing but had to reach the offeror the mere posting not being enough, there will be no contract till the condition is fulfilled.[78]

It is not thought useful for Indian purposes to enter upon the history of the English doctrine, or to discuss the earlier cases, whose results, so far as not over-ruled are embodied in later decisions.[79]

Operation of the Rule.—The English authorities support the application of the postal rule in three situations—

(1) a postal acceptance prevails over a withdrawal of an offer which was posted before the acceptance but which had not reached the offeree when the acceptance was posted;

(2) a postal acceptance takes effect even though it never reaches the offeror because it is lost through an accident in the post, and

(3) the same rule applies where an acceptance is merely delayed through an accident in the post.[80]

Revocation arriving before acceptance.—One point remains unsettled in England. It has never been decided whether, a letter of acceptance having been despatched by post, a telegram revoking the acceptance and arriving before the letter is operative or not. A negative answer seems to be required by the reasoning of the English decisions.[81] If it can be said that every acceptance in writing is subject to an implied condition that it may be cancelled by a revocation arriving sooner or at the same time, it might as easily be held that every proposal expecting an answer by letter includes a condition that the answer shall actually be received in due course. But this suggestion has been definitely rejected.

In India, however, such a revocation is made valid by the express terms of ss. 4 and 5 of the Act.[82]

Statutory consents.—The validity of consents required by special statutory provisions, and revocations thereof, is governed by the terms of the statute, and, in case of difference, not by this or the following section.[83]

Contracts inter absentees.—The draftsmen of Contract Act did not envisage use of telephone as a means of personal conversation between parties separated in space and could not have intended to make any rule in that behalf.[84] A fortiori it will apply to modern telecommunication means still less. An offer is accepted by the communication of the acceptance to the offeror. The rule is modified where contracts are made through the post, for an offer

---

75 Townsend's Case (1871) L.R. 13 Eq. 148. Several dicta in this case are founded on authority since overruled; the decision is good law, though it would now be put on shorter grounds.

76 Cf. Evidence Act, ss. 16 and 114.

77 Holwell Securities Ltd. v. Hughes (1974) 1 W.L.R. 155. (1974) 1 All E.R. 161.

78 Ibid.

79 See Appendix to Pollock: Principles of Contract, 13th ed., pp. 554, seq.

80 See especially the judgment of Thesiger L.J. in Household Fire Insurance Co. v. Grant. 4 Ex.D. 216, at p. 222, Finch, Sel. Ca. at p. 137. The same view is taken in New Zealand; Wenkheim v. Arndt, 1 J.R. 73. Dunlop v. Higgins (1848) 1 H.L.C. 381. Chitty: On Contract, paras 67 to 69 (24th Ed.) p. 35.

81 Salmond and Williams: Law of Contracts, 2nd edn. 85, prefer this rule for English Law.

82 Lingo Ravji Kulkarni v. Secretary of State (1928) 111 I.C. 278; 30 Bom.L.R. 570; 1928 A.B. 201.

83 Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal & Co. (1966) A.SC. 543 at p. 550; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656.

84 See 8 Halsbury's Laws (3rd Ed.), 78, 79.

made by letter may be accepted by letter and the Post Office is in effect the agent of the offeror for the purpose of communicating the acceptance.[85] But the Court of Appeal have not extended this exception from the general rule to the case of contracts made by the Post Office Telex services.[85] In a contract concluded on the telephone or by teleprinter, the parties will be taken to be in the presence of each other and the place of acceptance will be the place where the acceptance is received or where the offeror was.[85] The rule of instantaneous communications between the parties is different from the rule about the post. In the case of communications by post an acceptance is complete as soon as it is put in the post box and that is the place where the contract is made. In the ease of instantaneous communications, the contract is only complete when the acceptance is received by the offeror and the contract is made when the acceptance is received. This is the rule in most of the European countries. But in the United States, the rule is the same as postal communications.[86]

Post Office Agent of Payee.—Where the debtor sends a bank draft well in time but it reaches the creditor after the stipulated time, the Post Office will be considered an agent of the creditor if it is reasonable to assume that in normal course it would be sent by post.[87]

Telephone.—In America, the rule is that even in the case of telephones and telex, the contract is made in the District where the acceptance is spoken. This is based on the deep rooted principle of common law that where the parties impliedly or expressly authorise a particular channel of communication acceptance is effective when it enters that channel of communication.[88] The rule in Entores case has been accepted in India in a majority judgment of the Supreme Court.[89] Hidayatullah J. in his minority judgment in Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal & Co.[90] applied the rule of the communication being put in the channel of communication accepted in U.S.A. In Canada also acceptance over the telephone is of the same effect as if the person accepting it had done so by posting a letter or by sending off a telegram. In Entores case[91] it was held that in the case of oral communication or by telex or telephone an acceptance is communicated when it is actually received by the offeror. The rule is sound and practical because the oral acceptance may be drowned by the noise of a flying aircraft, or the telephone goes dead or feeble and indistinct that it is not heard. There is consequently no contract.

In that case[92] the offer was made in Amsterdam and notification of the acceptance was received in London; the contract resulting thereupon was held to be made in London.

Where the parties are in the presence of each other the method of communication will depend upon the nature of the offer and the circumstances in which it is made. When an offer is orally made by an oral reply, but even a nod or other act which indubitably intimates acceptance may suffice. If the parties are not in the presence of each other and the offeror has not prescribed the mode of acceptance insistence upon communication of acceptance of the offer by the offeree would be inconvenient when the offer is made by post by a letter. In the case of negotiations by post, the contract is complete when acceptance of the offer is put into the course of transmission to the offeror.[93] If regard be had to the essential nature of communica-

---

85 Entores Ltd. v. Miles Far East Corporation (1955) 2 All E.R. 493; (1955) 2 Q.B. 327; Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 8 (3rd Ed.) p. 73, para 126; n. 25 supra. Chitty: On Contract, Vol. I, para 65 (24th Ed.).

86 Entores Ltd. v. Miles Far East Corporation (1955) 2 A.E.R. 493; Prof. Winfield: 55 L.Q.R. 514; Williston: Contracts I.s. 82.

87 Joseph Verghese v. Annamma (1971) 1 Ker. 494; Hairoon Bibi v. United India Life Insurance Co. Ltd. (1947) A.M. 122 reld. on.

88 Williston on Contracts (3rd Ed.), Vol. 1, p. 271. See Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal (1966) A.SC. 543; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656.

89 Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal & Co. (1966) A.SC. 543; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656; F. Kanhaya Lal v. Dinesh Chandra (1959) A.M.P. 234.

90 (1966) A.SC. 543, 553; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656; Carrow Towing Co. v. The Ed McWilliams, 46 D.L.R. 506 (Canada).

91 Entores Ltd. v. Miles Far East Corporation (1955) 2 Q.B. 327, 332, (1955) 2 All E.R. 493.

92 Ibid., observations of Hill J. in New Comb v. De Roos, 2 E. & E. 271 at p. 275; 121 E.R. 103 diff. from.

93 Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal (1966) A.SC. 543; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656;B. Kedia v. Purushottam (1966) 1

tion by telephone, it would be reasonable to hold that the parties being in a sense in the presence of each other and negotiations are completed by instantaneous communication of speech, communication of acceptance is a necessary part of formation of contract and the exemption of the rule imposed by commercial expediency (of post and telegraphs) is inapplicable.[94]

Telex—time of receipt of message.—A message sent by telex is taken to have been received by the addressee when the message is received by the telex machine and not when the addressees attention is drawn to it. He cannot rely on his own or his servants failure to take cognizance of the message in the normal business-like manner. Therefore notice of withdrawal of a vessel for nonpayment of hire will be taken to have been received when the message was received if not when it was brought to the notice of charterers. If it was before the payment of hire the withdrawal would be valid.[95]

Payment by Telex.—Where a ship's hire is sent by the charterers by telex, it will be deemed to have been received when the bank receiving the telex message debits the charterers and credits the ship owners in accordance with the ordinary banking practice. Mere receipt of the telex message does not amount to payment.[96]

Telegrams.—The rule in regard to telegraphs is the same as in the case of letters by post, i.e. the acceptance is complete when the letter is put in the post or the telegram is handed for dispatch to the telegraph office.[97] When by agreement, course of conduct or usage of trade, acceptance by post or telegram is authorised, the bargain is struck and the contract is complete when the acceptance is put into course of transmission by the offeree posting a letter or dispatching a telegram.[97] An offer is completed at the place where it was received and not at the place from where it was sent. Under s 4 of the Contract Act, the communication of a proposal is complete when it comes to the knowledge of the person to whom it is made.[98] But this view has been dissented from because according to the more recent view the communication of the receipt of the acceptance is not part of the cause of action.[99]

Withdrawal of bid by telegram.—The expression "telegraphic instructions regarding bids and conditions of the Bangalore Coffee Board auctions for export in the context of the condition was held not to include withdrawal or retraction of bids by telegrams" (M. Latchia Setty & Co. Ltd., v. Coffee Board Bangalore (1981) A.SC. 162, 166.)

Revocation of proposals and acceptances.

5. A proposal may be revoked at any time before the communication of its acceptance is complete as against the proposer, but not afterwards.

An acceptance may be revoked at any time before the communication of the acceptance is complete as against the acceptor, but not afterwards.

Illustrations

A proposes, by a letter sent by post, to sell his house to B.
B accepts the proposal by a letter sent by post.
A may revoke his proposal at any time before or at the moment when B posts his letter of acceptance, but not afterwards.
B may revoke his acceptance at any time before or at the moment when the letter communicating it reaches A but not afterwards.

S.C.A. 177 (oral proposal accepted by a nod).

94 Ibid., Entores Ltd. v. Miles Far East Corporation (1955) 2 Q.B. 327; (1955) 2 All E.R. 493.

95 The Brimnes—Tenax Steamship Co. Ltd. v. Owners of M.V. Brimnes (1974) 3 All E.R. 88, 100.

96 The Brimnes—Tenax Steamship Co. Ltd. v. Owners of MV Brimnes (1974) 3 All E.R. 88, 99-100.

97 Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal & Co. (1966) A.SC. 543; (1966) 1 S.C.R. 656; Cowan v. O'Connor, 20 Q.B.D. 640 (Telegraph); Tinn v. Hoffman & Co., 29 L.T. 271, 274, 278.

98 F. Kanhayalal v. Dinesh Chandra, 1959 A.M.P. 234; Baroda Oil Cakes Traders v. Parshottam, 1954 Bom. 1137; 1954 A.B. 491.

99 Mulla C.P.C. (13th Ed.). p. 145.

Revocation of Offers.—It is implied in this section that the proposer of a contract cannot bind himself (unless by a distinct contract made for a distinct consideration) to keep his offer open for any definite time, and that any words of promise to that effect can operate only for the benefit of the proposer and as a warning that an acceptance after the specified time will be too late (s. 6, sub-s. 2). Such is undoubtedly the rule of the Common Law. The reason is that an undertaking to keep the offer open for a certain time is a promise without consideration, and such a promise is unenforceable. A gives an undertaking to B to guarantee, for twelve months, the due payment of M's bills, which may be discounted by B at A's request. This is not a binding promise, but a standing proposal which becomes a promise or series of promises as and when B discounts bills on the faith of it. A may revoke it at any time, subject to his obligations as to any bills already discounted. "The promise"—or rather offer—"to repay for twelve months creates no additional liability on the guarantor, but, on the contrary, fixes a limit in time beyond which his liability cannot extend".[1] Z offers to take A's house on certain terms, an answer to be given within six weeks. A within that time writes Z a letter purporting to accept, but in fact containing a material variation of the terms (see s. 7, sub-s. 1, below); Z then withdraws his offer: A writes again, still within the six weeks, correcting the error in his first letter and accepting the terms originally proposed by Z. No contract is formed between Z and A, since A's first acceptance was insufficient, and the proposal was no longer open at the date of the second.[2] Similarly a proposal to sell goods allowing eight days' time for acceptance may be revoked within the eight days unless the promise to keep the offer open was supported by consideration.[3] An offer can be revoked before acceptance.[4] Therefore, a hirer can, before his offer under a hire-purchase agreement is accepted by a Financing Company, revoke his offer and no contract will result therefrom.[5] But when it is accepted the contract is concluded and binds the parties.[6] In Financings Ltd. the case was this:

> Before signing the hire-purchase agreement for car which was a condition of the agreement, the hirer returned the car to the dealer offering to forfeit the deposit. The car was stolen from the dealer's premises. The dealer, it was held, had authority to receive the hirer's revocation and there was therefore no concluded contract and this amounted to revocation before acceptance.[7]

In a Scottish case it was held that an acceptance sent by post would be revoked if before its reaching the offeror, the offeree were to revoke it by a telegram for instance.[8]

A statutory power to make rules for the conduct of departmental business will, however, justify a local government in prescribing, among the conditions of tenders for public service, that a tender shall not be withdrawn before acceptance or refusal.[9]

Revocation—option for value.—An option give for value is not revocable.[10] It is an offer together with a contract that the offer will not be revoked during the time, if any, specified in the option. If the offer is accepted within the time specified, the contract is made; but if the offeror purports to revoke the offer it is ineffectual to prevent the formation of a contract.[11]

---

1 Offord v. Davies (1862) 12 C.B.N.S. 748; 133 R.R. 491. The much-discussed earlier case of Cooke v. Oxley (1790) 3 T.R. 653; 1 R.R. 783; is now received authority only so far as it decides this. See Stevenson v. McLean (1880) 5 Q.B.D. 346, 351; Head v. Diggon (1828) 3 M. & R. 97 (in which the parties were face to face, and it is not clear whether the defendant did or did not signify his revocation before the plaintiff signified his acceptance) cannot be taken as going farther. The reason there given is clearly wrong, for it is supposed that on the acceptance of a proposal it is necessary for the proposer to make some fresh declaration of consent, which is contrary both to principle and to all recent authority.

2 Routledge v. Grant (1828) 4 Bing. 653; 29 R.R. 672.

3 Schonlank v. Muthunagana Chetti (1892) 2 Mad.L.J. 57.

4 Financings Ltd. v. Stimson (1962) 1 W.L.R. 1184; (1962) 3 All E.R. 386; Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad (1963) A.A.P. 110.

5 Financings Ltd. v. Stimson (1962) 1 W.L.R. 1184; (1962) 3 All E.R. 386.

6 Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad, (1963) A.A.P. 110.

7 Financings Ltd. v. Stimson (1962) 1 W.L.R. 1184, 1188, 1190; (1962) 3 All E.R. 386, 389; Discount Co. Ltd. v. Gall (1961) 1 Q.B. 431; (1961) 2 All E.R. 104 dist.

8 Dunmore v. Alender (1930) 9 Shaw (Ct. of Sess) 190. Chitty on Contract (24th Ed.), para 72.

9 Secretary of State v. Bhaskar Krishnail (1925) 49 Bom. 759; 89 I.C. 498; 1925 A.B. 485.

10 Per Farwell J. in Bruner v. Moore (1904) 1 Ch. 305, 309 followed in Goldsbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Quinn (1910) 10 C.L.R. 674.

11 Commissioner of Taxes (Queensland) v. Campin (1937) 57 C.L.R. 127, 132-4

Sale by Auction, etc.—The liberty of revoking an offer before acceptance is well shown in the case of a sale by auction. Here the owner of each lot put up for sale makes the auctioneer his agent to invite offers for it, and "every bidding is nothing more than an offer on one side, which is not binding on either side till it is assented to." Hence a bidder may withdraw his bid at any moment before the fall of the hammer.[12] It is common to insert in conditions of sale a proviso that biddings shall not be retracted, but it seems that such a condition is inoperative in law[13] for a one-sided declaration cannot alter the bidder's rights under the general law, nor is there any consideration for his assenting to it, even if he could be supposed to assent by attending the sale with notice of the conditions.[14]

The English rule that a bid may be withdrawn at any time before the fall of the hammer is followed in India.[15] When the bid of an agent at an auction sale was accepted by the auctioneers kutcha-pucca (subject to sanction of the owner of the goods), and the agent agreed thereto, it was held that this did not preclude the principals of the agent from exercising their right of retracting the bid before it was accepted by the auctioneers.[16] In this case an attempt was unsuccessfully made to prove a usage of trade according to which, if a bid were accepted kutcha-pucca, the bidder could not retract it until it had been finally accepted or refused. If such a usage were established, it would have been, no doubt, inconsistent with the terms of the present section. But, so far as the express enactments of the Act are concerned, such a usage is saved by the last clause of s. 1. It would remain to be seen whether it would not be disallowed as contrary to the general principles of the law. Where offer and acceptance "culminating in a contract" are themselves subject to a condition there is no completed contract till the condition is fulfilled. Therefore an offer before the fulfilment can be withdrawn.[17]

In two Madras cases, it has been held that where a bid has, to the knowledge of the bidder, been conditionally accepted, the agreement is complete once the condition has been fulfilled, and no communication to the offeror of the absolute acceptance is necessary. In Chitibobu Adenna v. Garimalla Jaggarayadu,[18] a bench decision, D, a bidder for a piece of land, was notified of X's acceptance of his bid 'subject to the approval and orders of the special agent V'. V did approve, and a document embodying his approval was drawn up, but was not communicated to D, and the land was sold by X to P. P sought to eject D, relying on s. 4, but the Court held for D, on the ground that the contract was complete on the fulfilment of the condition subsequent. The decision was followed in Rajanagram Village Co-operative Society v. Veerasami.[19] There property was knocked down to P, the highest bidder at an auction, 'subject to the approval of the C.D. bank'. The bank passed a resolution accepting the bid, but rescinded it before it was communicated to P. The Court nevertheless gave specific performance in favour of P, on the ground that communication of acceptance twice was not needed, once when the conditional acceptance was given and again when the condition was fulfilled

It is submitted that these two cases were wrongly decided. In the 1916 bench decision, the Court misunderstood the nature of a condition subsequent. A condition subsequent predicates a pre-existing obligation, which is to terminate upon the occurrence of some event. It is a resolutive condition, as distinct from a suspensive condition or condition precedent, which prevents the existence of any obligation until the condition is satisfied. Yet the court clearly decided that there was no binding agreement at any rate until V, the special agent, approved. In other words, their Lordships held that the condition was a condition precedent, for had the condition been a condition subsequent, there would have been a binding contract the 12 Payne v. Cave (1789) 3 T.R. 148; 1 R.R. 679; Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad (1963) A.A.P. 110.

13 Such was Lord St. Leonards' opinion: Dart, V. & P., 8th ed. i. 122; Linga Gowder v. State of Madras (1971) A.M. 28.
14 Somasundaram v. Provinical Government of Madras (1947) Mad. 837, 1947 A.M. 366 (The question whether the offer could have been withdrawn if the condition had statutory force did not arise in the case). Union of India v. Narain Singh, 1953 A.Punj. 274.
15 Agra Bank v. Hamlin (1890) 14 Mad. 235.
16 Mackenzie v. Chamroo (1889) 16 Cal. 702.
17 Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad, 1963 A.A.P. 110.
18 1916 A.M. 55.
19 1951 A.M. 322.

moment D's bid was accepted, liable to be defeated by V's failure to approve. Appropriate wording to impose a condition subsequent would have been to the effect that the bid was accepted, but if V should not approve the contract was to be at an end.

It is submitted that in both cases there was a condition precedent, and that the bidder could have retracted his offer before the final acceptance by V and the C.D. bank respectively, as in Somasundaram v. Provincial Government of Madras.[20] S. Rao J. in the Rajanagram Case seeks to escape from this conclusion by drawing a distinction, which he purports to find in the Somasundaram Case, between a provisional and a conditional acceptance. An acceptance, in his opinion, is provisional where the offeree has no authority to accept the bid: he is a mere conduit-pipe like the Sub-Collector in the Somasundaram Case. In the meantime, the offeror can withdraw his bid. But where the offeree has full power to accept the offer, yet gives only a qualified acceptance, although the offeree is not finally bound, the offeror cannot withdraw. This reasoning is, with respect erroneous. An acceptance is either absolute or conditional. There is no halfway house between the two. If an acceptance is conditional, the offeror can withdraw at any moment until absolute acceptance has taken place. Authority, if it be needed, is supplied by the English case of Hussey v. Horne-Payne. There V offered land to P, and P accepted 'subject to the title being approved by my solicitors'. V later refused to go on, and the Court of Appeal held that the acceptance was conditional and there was no binding contract: V could withdraw at any time until P's solicitors had approved the title. According to the reasoning of S. Rao J. this would be a case of conditional rather than provisional acceptance, as clearly P was no 'conduit-pipe', but the prospective owner of the property, with full power to accept V's offer if he chose. S. Rao J. would hold that V cannot withdraw, contrary to the decision of the Court of Appeal.[21]

Once it is established that there is no agreement binding on either party, at any rate until V or the C.D. bank respectively gives its approval, the only question remaining for determination is whether communication of this approval to the offeror is necessary before the agreement becomes binding. The general rule under s. 4 is that communication is required. Section 8 provides an exception, but this applies where the offeror expressly or implicity dispenses with the requirement of express communication.[22] It seems that the offeror gave no such express or implied dispensation in either of the two Madras cases, and that there was no contract concluded until the approval of V and the C.D. bank respectively had been communicated.

Tender acceptance of concluded contract:—Where the tender notice required the tenderer to quote the rates and make a deposit which was complied with and the other party accepted the tender, the contract was complete and the mere fact that the formal agreement had yet to be executed between the parties within the specified time did not affect the factum of the completion of the contract.[23]

A tender submitted by 'S' was accepted by Government and acceptance communicated by letter. Before the letter reached 'S' he by telegram revoked the tender but it reached Government after the letter of acceptance had been posted.

It was held that the contract was complete as soon as the letter of acceptance was posted.[24]

---

20 (1947) Mad. 837, 1947 A.M. 366. See also Union of India v. Narain Singh, 1935 A.Punj. 274.

21 (1878) 8 Ch.D. 670. This case is discussed at length (infra), and the law as to the effect of an agreement 'subject to the approval of the purchaser's solicitor' is considered. There are two lines of decisions, one based on the Court of Appeal in this case, holding that such words import a condition, the other, based on the view of Lord Cairns in the same case in the House of Lords, that the words do not import a condition at all. In this edition, the Court of Appeal view is preferred, but even if Lord Cairns is right, this does not destroy the value of the Court of Appeal decision as an authority contrary to the view of S. Rao. J. in (1947) Mad. 837. Criticism quoted with approval in Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad (1963) A.A.P. 110, 114.

22 See State of Bihar v. Bengal C. & P. Works, 1954 A.P. 14; Hindusthan Co-operative Insurance Society v. Shyam Sunder, 1952 A.Cal. 691.

23 Maheshwari Metals & Metal Refinery v. Madras State Small Industries Corp. Ltd. (1974) A.M. 39, 42; Von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg v. Alexander (1912) 1 Ch. 284, 289 approved by Privy Council in Shankar Lal Narayanlal v. New Muffasil Co. Ltd. (1946) A.P.C. 97.

24 Sadhulal Motilal v. State of Madhya Pradesh (1972) A.A. 137, 139; Baroda Oil Cakes Traders v. Parshottam Narayandas Bagulia (1954) A.B. 491 reld upon.

The plaintiff was the highest bidder at an auction sale of a lease in two forests. The terms and conditions of the sale notification were to form part of the agreement to be executed but the sale was subject to the confirmation of D.F.O. or the Conservator of Forests. The plaintiff had deposited the entire sale price together with security deposit as required by rules, but the bid was not confirmed by the District Forest Officer and the sale price was ordered to be refunded and second auction was held. The amount of sale price and security deposit were deposited in Court in the second sale. (The plaintiff brought a suit for declaration against the State that he was entitled to the amount deposited in Court on second sale and also to refund of the security deposit.

It was held that the auction sale of a successful bidder would be one which was not only the highest but also to a person to whom intimation or confirmation of the sale had been sent.[25]

At an auction sale the highest bid was accepted by the D.F.O. subject to confirmation. The confirmation was not communicated to the highest bidder and was later settled with a third party.

It was held that there was no concluded contract between the government and the highest bidder, and, therefore, the settlement with the third party was invalid on that ground.[26] Where after the auction but before the acceptance Government leased a forest to another person the claim of the highest bidder who had deposited his instalment of bid money was negatived by the High Court as there was no enforceable ground.[27] The mere fact that a person makes the highest tender cannot entitle the tenderer to claim acceptance.[28]

Where an auction sale was held on the express condition that the acceptance of the highest bid would be subject to the confirmation by a particular authority, the highest bidder can withdraw the offer in time before confirmation in spite of the fact that the bid was provisionally accepted or that he had desposited the earnest money or even the first instalment as per terms of the auction sale.[29]

And a clause disallowing the withdrawal of bid cannot take away that legal right in the absence of any rule or statute.[30] In an auction for tehbazari dues, it was knocked down to a bidder and affirmed by the Municipal Committee. That constituted a contract and was binding on the parties.[31]

Revocation before acceptance of bid.—A bidder at an auction sale of a liquor contract is not bound by his bid even though accepted if the bid is not binding on the Government for one month during which the Excise Commissioner under the conditions of sale can suspend or revoke the acceptance by his subordinates. The bidder can also withdraw his offer in spite of his depositing the sale price of the liquor shops.[32] Such a condition, i.e. the option of the Commissioner to suspend or cancel an auction is not a condition subsequent.[33]

An auctioneer receives money from the highest bidder as a stakeholder for the vendor and the purchaser; it being his duty to pay to the party ultimately entitled, and to hold it till the contract is completed or rescinded. But he cannot withhold the money from the purchaser in case of rescission. He may sue the vendor for loss suffered by him but the auctioneer alone can be compelled to reimburse the purchaser. If the vendor has not received the earnest money, he cannot be made to reimburse the purchaser.[34]

---

25 State of Madras v. R. Ranganathan Chettiar (1975) A.M. 298; State of Madhya Pradesh v. Hakim Singh (1973) A.M.P. 24; Sri Durga Saw Mills v. State of Madhya Pradesh (1973) A.Or. 41.

26 Haridwar Singh v. Begum Sumbrui and others (1972) A.S.C. 1242, 1245; (1972) 3 S.C.R. 629.

27 Nilgiri Construction Society v. State of Orissa (1975) A.Or.33; S. Raman Goud v. Andhra Pradesh (1970) and W.R. 342 diss. from Union of India v. Anglo Afghan Agencies (1968) 2 S.C.R. 368; (1968) A.S.C. 718 disting; Haridwar Singh v. Begum Sumbrui (1972) A.SC. 1242 reld on.

28 U.P. State Electricity Board v. Goel Electric Stores (1977) A.A. 494.

29 The State of Madhya Pradesh v. Hakim Singh (1973) A.M.P. 24; Sri Durga Saw Mill v. State of Orissa (1978) A.Or. 41.

30 Rajendra Kumar Verma v. State of Madhya Pradesh (1972) A.M.P. 131.

31 Ishwardas Hingwas v. Municipal Board Rath (1980) A.A. 143.

32 Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad, 1963 A.A.P. 110; Agra Bank v. Hamlin, 14 Mad. 235; and Somasundaram Pillai v. Provincial Govt. of Madras (1947) Mad. 837; (1947) A.M. 366 reld. on; Pollock & Mulla: Contract Act (8th Ed.), pp. 44 & 45 refd. to with approval; Rajanagram Village Co-operative Society v. Veerasami (1951) A.M. 322; and Chitibobu Adenna v. Garimalla Jaggarayadu, 28 M.L.J. 617; (1916) A.M. 75 diss. from; Abdul Rahim v. Union of India (1968) A.P. 438 following Bombay Salt & Chemical Industries v. Johnson (1958) A.SC. 289 (case of auction of Evacuee property and bid being subject to approval of Settlement Commissioner).

33 Raghunandan v. State of Hyderabad, 1963 A.A.P. 110.

34 Nannho Bibi v. Ram Swarup, 1965 A.A. 533.

Resignation—revocation of.—In the absence of any statutory rules a resignation is like a proposal. It is complete when it is put in course of communication so as to be out of reach of the proposer and as against the person to whom it is made, when it comes to his knowledge.[35]

A resignation of an office holder can be withdrawn before it becomes effective. Therefore where a Secretary of a School Committee resigned and asked for its acceptance by calling a meeting of the Society at an early date and before its acceptance by the meeting withdraws it, the resignation becomes ineffectual.[36]

Standing offers.—A writing whereby A agrees to supply coal to B at certain prices and up to a stated quantity, or in any quantity which may be required for a period of twelve months, is not a contract unless B binds himself to take some certain quantity, but a mere continuing offer which may be accepted by B from time to time by ordering goods upon the terms of the offer. In such a case, each order given by B is an acceptance of the offer; and A can withdraw the offer, or, to use the phraseology of the Act, revoke the proposal, at any time before its acceptance by an order from B.[37] Such a transaction may be reduced to a statement by the intending vendor in this form: "If you will send me orders for coal, I shall supply it to you for a period of twelve months at a particular rate." This is merely a proposal from A to B. If in reply to such a proposal, B says to A, "I agree," it does not constitute an acceptance of the proposal. An acceptance can take place only by B sending an order to A. If, however, there is an undertaking on the part of B not to send orders for coal (or whatever the goods in question may be) to any other person than A during a specified time, there is a good consideration for a promise by A to supply such coal as B may order on the specified terms and up to the specified extent. The same principle was affirmed by the Privy Council on an appeal from the Province of Quebec, where French-Canadian law, now codified, is in force. A printer covenanted to execute for the Government of the Province, during a term of eight years, the printing and binding of certain public documents on certain terms expressed in a schedule. In the course of the same year the Lieutenant-Governor cancelled the agreement. The printer sued the Crown by petition of right, and it was ultimately held, reversing the judgment below, that he had no ground of action.

"The contract ...does not purport to contain any covenant or obligation of any sort on the part of the Crown. The respondent undertakes to print certain public documents at certain specified rates. For all work given to him on the footing of the contract the Government was undoubtedly bound to pay according to the agreed tariff. But the contract imposes no obligation on the Crown to pay the respondent for work not given to him for execution. There is nothing in the contract binding the Government to give to the respondent all or any of the printing work referred to in the contract, nor is there anything in it to prevent the Government from giving the whole of the work, or such part as they think fit to any other printer".[38]

In another similar case in England where a town council had accepted a tender for the supply of certain goods for twelve months a Divisional Court held that a contract was formed by the acceptance of the tender.[39] One of the Judges thought there was an implied obligation on the council's part not to order goods of that kind elsewhere during the term. The case before the Privy Council which we have just mentioned was not cited. Unless some sufficient

---

35 Janardhan Mishra v. State of U.P. (1981) A.A. 213, 216.

36 Managing Committee of Sree Ganesh Etc. v. State of Bihar (1981) A.P. 271, 272; Union of India v. Gopal Chandra (1978) A.S.C. 694 reld on Shukhdev Narayan v. Municipal Committee (1956) A.P. 367. refd. to.

37 The Bengal Coal Co. v. Homee, Wadia & Co. (1899) 24 Bom. 97, following G.N.R. Co. v. Witham (1873) L.R. 9 C.P. 16; Kundan Lal v. Secretary of State for India (1904) Punj. Rec. No. 72; Joravia Mell Champalal v. Jeygopaldas Ghanshandas (1922) 43 Mad.L.J. 132; Chaturbhuj Vithaldas v. Moreshwar Parashram, 1954 A.S.C. 236.

38 R. v. Demers (1900) A.C. 103, 108. Followed in a closely similar case, where the real difference between the parties was of construction, Secretary of State v. Madho Ram (1929) 10 Lah. 493; 1929 A.L. 114.

39 Gloucester Municipal Election Petition (1901) 1 K.B. 683. The point arose in a curious manner, the question being whether the tradesman had an interest in a contract with the council (apart from any goods being actually ordered) which disqualified him for election as a town councillor.

distinction can be discovered in the facts (which the present writer[40] has failed to do), it is submitted that this judgment is contrary to both principle and authority, and ought not to be followed.

The defendant in reply to a tender issued by a Railway Company for the supply of certain goods at a fixed price and such quantities as the Company may require during the year, offered a tender. The tenderer after some time refused to supply. He was held liable for breach of contract as he had made a standing offer which the Company accepted whenever during the year it ordered goods.[41]

Advertisements of rewards and other so-called "general offers" have also raised questions whether particular acts were proposals of a contract capable of being promises by acceptance, or merely the invitation of proposals. This will be more conveniently dealt with under s.8

Indian Oaths Act.—It has been held that if A offers to be bound by a special oath taken by B, and B accepts the offer, A cannot resile from the agreement;[42] Having regard, however, to the provisions of the Indian Oaths Act, B may be allowed by the Court to resile from the agreement.[43]

Offer to abide by a statement of opposite party or another.—An offer of a party to litigation to abide by a statement made by the opposite party or one of them if accepted is binding and cannot be resiled from. But if sufficient cause is shown the Court may allow the withdrawal of the offer or acceptance as the case may be.[44]

6. A proposal is revoked—

Revocation how made.

(1) by the communication of notice of revocation by the proposer to the other party;

(2) by the lapse of the time prescribed in such proposal for its acceptance, or, if no time is so prescribed, by the lapse of a reasonable time, without communication of the acceptance;

(3) by the failure of the acceptor to fulfil a condition precedent to acceptance; or

(4) by the death or insanity of the proposer, if the fact of his death or insanity comes to the knowledge of the acceptor before acceptance.

Notice of Revocation.—Here sub-s. 1 appears to make it a condition of revocation being effectual that it shall be communicated by the proposer or (which is the same thing) by his authority. This was probably intended to correspond with the law of England, but a few years after the Act was passed the Lords Justices James and Mellish in Dickinson v. Dodds[45] used language apparently involving a different rule, though that case actually decided only that if an owner of immovable property makes a proposal to sell it to one man, and before that proposal is answered agrees to sell it to another, and the first, with the knowledge of this fact, then formally tenders an acceptance, the purchaser who first actually accepts has the better right to specific performance. It was not decided (though the Judges seem to have thought) that knowledge, not communicated by the proposer, that the property was sold to some one

---

40 The Rt. Hon'ble Sir Frederick Pollock.

41 Great Northern Railway v. Witham (1873) 9 C.P. 16.

42 Saheb Ram v. Ram Newaz, 1952 A.A. 882 (F.B.).

43 Mahadeo Prasad v. Srjug Prasad, 1952 A.P. 208.

44 Mrs. Florabel Skinner v. Jai Bajrang Mala Mandir (1980) A.Punj. 284 (F.B.); Ram Chand v. Dunichand (1926) A.L. 246 (Oath's case); Allah Rakha v. Punnun (1941) A.L. 173; Manohar Lal v. Onkar Das (1959) 61 Pg: L.R. 651; Kundan v. Kartara (1967) 69 P.L.R. 651 appvd.; Moniram v. Harichand (1955) 57 P.L.R. 327; Gian Chand Sharma v. Bansi Lal (1961) A.Punj. 31; Thakur Singh v. Inder Singh (1976) A.Punj. 287 overruled.

45 (1876) 2 Ch.D. 463.

else was such a revocation of the first proposal as in itself made acceptance by the person to whom it was made impossible. Acceptance of a proposal which the proposer has made it impossible to fulfil is not necessarily unmeaning or inoperative; the fact that an obligation cannot be specifically performed is consistent with the promisor being bound to pay damages for his default. Many obligations are from the first incapable of specific performance so far as any power of the Court is concerned. It would be absurd to hold that a promisor is to go scotfree because by his own action he has reduced the possibilities of his obligation from a higher to a lower level. The reasons given for the decision in Dickinson v. Dodds have been freely criticised in England; but, as the decision itself is not of positive authority in India in a matter covered by the terms of the Contract Act, it does not seem useful to pursue the discussion here. The true principle of such cases is stated by Langdell.[46] "An offer to sell property will not be revoked by a sale of the property to some one else. As evidence of a change of mind on the part of the offeror, such an act cannot be put higher than a letter of revocation sent to the offeree by mail; and yet it is well settled that a letter of revocation will not be operative until it is received by the offeree.[47] Nor will subsequent sale of the property to some one else consitute any legal obstacle to the continuance of the offer. The original offeree and the subsequent purchaser cannot, indeed, both acquire the property, but they can both acquire a right to it as against the seller, together with the alternative right to damages; and this is all that a contract secures to one in any case." It has, indeed, been suggested by writers entitled to respect.[48] that an act of the proposer inconsistent with his original intention will be operative, if it comes in any way to the knowledge of the offeree, as an act which, under s.3, "has the effect of communicating" a revocation of the proposal. If this were so, Dickinson v. Dodds would be good law in India to the full extent of the reasons there given. But, with all submission, the act of selling to one man property already offered to another cannot be itself an act which has the effect of communicating notice to that other. Such notice must be the effect of some other act or event. As in Dickinson v. Dodds, a stranger may inform the original offeree that the new transaction, or some such transaction, has taken place.[49] This is no act of the party supposed to be revoking, and therefore its effect, if any, cannot depend on the words of s.3. It is perhaps needless to consider what would be the result if the first offeree in person were to overhear a conversation between the vendor and the new purchaser constituting an agreement inconsistent with the first offer. We have already expressed a doubt whether the true meaning of s.3 was to ascribe the effect of communicating proposal, revocation, or acceptance, to acts done without any such intent. On the whole, we are unable to follow the learned commentators to whose interpretation we have referred.

Revocation not presumed.—As Lord Justice James said "prima facie every contract is permanent and irrevocable, and it lies upon a person who says that it is revocable or determinable to show either some expression in the contract itself, or something in the nature of the contract, from which it is reasonably to be implied that it was not intended to be permanent and perpetual, but was to be in some way or other subject to determination".[50] This dictum, and the Indian case cited in our note, really belong to the subject of interpretation, in cases

---

46 Summary of the Law of Contract, s. 181.

47 A cheque is not effectually countermanded by a telegram delivered at the bank on which it is drawn but not in fact brought to the banker's notice: Curtaile v. London City & Midland Bank (1908) 1 K.B. 293, C.A.

48 Cunningham and Shephard's Indian Contract Act, 9th ed., p. 25.

49 The informant was not in fact a stranger, but the agent of the plaintiff, the original offeree.

50 Llanelly Ry. & Dock Co. v. L. & N.W.R. Co. (1873) L.R. 8 Ch. 942, at p. 949. Accordingly, where a contract was made between the widow of a Gayawal priest and the defendant whereby the widow adopted the defendant, a married man, as her son in order that the defendant might get his feet worshipped by the clientele of her deceased husband and receive emoluments from them for the benefit of himself and the widow, and the contract itself specified the circumstances under which it might be cancelled, it was held that, though the adoption was invalid, the contract was not determinable at the mere choice of the widow so as to affect the rights created thereby in favour of the defendant. The Court said: "We are unable to accept the suggestion that the contract in this case was a contract of service, terminable upon reasonable notice. The contract itself indicates some of the circumstances under which it may be terminated, and it is impossible to hold that the parties intended that the contract should be terminable merely at the option of one of the parties": Lachmi Dai Mohutain v. Kissen Lall (1906) 11 C.W.N. 147, citing James L.J. as above.

where it is alleged that an option to determine a completed contract is conferred by the terms of the contract itself. But the principle that an intent to revoke what has once been deliberately uttered will not be lightly presumed or too readily inferred appears to be equally applicable to proposals. Moreover, the Act does not explicitly deal with interpretation anywhere. The Lord Justice went on to point out that many contracts, those of employment, agency, and the like, are by their nature not expected to be of indefinite duration. The agreement before him was an agreement for running powers between two railway companies.

Lapse of time for acceptance.—The rule laid down by sub-s. 2 is now elementary. We have already had to cite some of the authorities which recognise it. On the point of an acceptance after the expiration of a reasonable time being too late, there is one direct English authority, where it was held that a person who applied for shares in a company in June was not bound by an allotment made in November;[51] and this case has been followed by the Bombay[52] and Nagpur High Courts.[53] In another English company case an underwriting letter contained the words "This engagement is binding on me for two months"; they were incapable of operating as a promise, and it was held, with some doubt, that their real effect was an offer with a limit of two months for acceptance.[54]

Lapse of time without repudiation.—Lapse of time without any steps towards repudiation does not by itself constitute affirmation but is proof of it and when the lapse is great it probably would in practice be treated as conclusive evidence of an election to recognise the contract,[55] e.g. lapse of five years would bar the right of rescission.[56]

Acceptance of an offer where no time fixed.—In an English case it was held that where an offer is made without fixing any time for acceptance the offer must be accepted within a reasonable time to make a contract.[57] This case was applied by Allahabad in a case where the facts were the respondents made an offer by asking the petitioner to sign the fresh draft agreement by December 5, 1971, and in January 1972 wrote a letter to the petitioner renewing the proposal by saying that parallel supply agreement will be renewed if the petitioner signed the draft agreement earlier. The letter did not contain any period within which to sign the agreement. Thus the second part of s.6 (2) will apply and acceptance has to be in a reasonable time.[58]

Conditional Offer.—A conditional offer to pay certain amount by the employer to the employees lapses when the condition is not accepted[59] condition being the immediate withdrawal of strike notice.

Condition precedent to acceptance.—As to sub-s. 3, it is not very easy to see what a condition precedent to acceptance means. The words (like several other of the less felicitious phrases in the Act) appear to have been borrowed without much reflection from the draft Civil Code of the State of New York, completed in 1865 and never adopted in its own State. There is nothing in the original context to throw light on them. A man proposing a contract may request either a single act, or several acts, or a promise or set of promises, or both acts and promises, as the consideration for a promise which he offers. The other party may do something obviously inconsistent with performing some or one of the things requested. This amounts to

---

51 Ramsgate Victoria Hotel Co. v. Montefiore (1866) L.R. 1 Ex. 109.
52 Indian Co-operative Navigation Trading Co. v. Padamsey Premji, 1934 A.B. 97; 36 Bom L.R. 32; 150 I.C. 645.
53 Ramlalsao v. Malak, 1939 A.N. 225; 183 I.C. 748.
54 Hindley's Case (1896) 2 Ch. 121, C.A.
55 Clough v. L. & N.W. Rly. Co. (1871) 7 Ex. 26. 35.
56 Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693.
57 Manchester Diocesan Council for Education v. Commercial and General Investments Ltd. (1970) 1 W.L.R. 241; (1969) 3 All E.R. 1593 quoted in Hindustan Aluminium Corporation Ltd. v. The U.P. State Electricity Board (1973) A.A. 263, 267.
58 Hindustan Aluminium Corporation v. U.P. State Electricity Board (1973) A.A. 263, 266; Manchester Diocesan Council for Education v. Commercial & General Investment Ltd. (1970) 1 W.L.R. 271; (1969) 3 All E.R. 1593.
59 Pipraich Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Pipraich Sugar Mills Mazdoor Union (1956) S.C.R. 872, 884; 1957 A.S.C. 95.

a tacit refusal, and accordingly the proposal is at an end (see notes on s. 5, "Revocation of offers," above), and the parties can form a contract only by starting afresh. If the fact amounts to a refusal, there is no manifest reason for calling it failure to fulfil a condition precedent. The term is not used in this connection in English books. Everything required on the acceptor's part to complete an acceptance would rather seem to be part of the acceptance itself. This subsection does not appear to have been judicially interpreted of indeed to have any very material effect.

Death or insanity of proposer.—The provision made by sub-s. 4 is quite clear. It is a variation from English law, where on the one hand it is understood that "the death of either party before acceptance causes an offer to lapse," without any qualification as to notice, and on the other hand it does not seem that supervening insanity of the proposer operates as a revocation at all, since the contract of a lunatic is only voidable and not void. If an offer is addressed to a man who dies without having accepted or refused it, his executors have no power to accept it either in England or in India. For the proposer cannot be presumed to have intended to contract with a deceased person's estate. This is very different from the case of one who accepts a proposal without knowing that the proposer is dead.

An offer cannot be accepted by the offeree after the death of the offeror, the offeree having notice of the death and the offer merely remains an offer until the offeree signs the agreement. On the basis of an agreement of sale by the plaintiff's husband of land to two brothers only one of whom had signed in the lifetime of the husband and there was a claim by the offerees of breach of contract by the husband the claim failed.[60]

Death of an offeror.—The effect of death varies according to the nature of the particular contract. The offeree cannot accept after notice of offeror's death. If the offer is of a promise independent of the offeror's personality, e.g. guarantee, which can be satisfied out of estate of the deceased, death does not, unless notified, prevent acceptance.[61]

If, as in the case of agency, or in an offer to write a book or to perform at a concert, some element personal to the offeror is involved, death automatically terminates the negotiations.[62]

Death of offeree.—According Warrington L.J. in Reynolds v. Atherton, an offer ceases by operation of law on the death of the offeree because after death there is no longer an offer at all. The offer is not meant to be made to a dead person or his executors. But this point was expressly reserved when the case went to the House of Lords.[63]

Refusal—The rejection of a proposal by the person to whom it is made is wholly distinct from revocation, and is not within this section. A counter-offer proposing different terms has the same effect as a merely negative refusal; it is no less a rejection of the original offer, and a party who, having made it, changes his mind, cannot treat the first offer as still open.[64]

7. In order to convert a proposal into a promise, the acceptance must—

Acceptance must be absolute.

(1) be absolute unqualified;

(2) be expressed in some usual and reasonable manner, unless the proposal prescribes the manner in which it is to be accepted. If the proposal

---

60 Fong v. Cilli 11 F.L.R. 495; Dickinson v. Dodds (1876) 2 Ch.D. 463, 475. See also Re Whelan (1897) 1 I.R. 575; Coulthart v. Clementson (1879) 5 Q.B.D. 42.

61 Bradbury v. Morgan (1862) 1 H. & C. 249; Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.), p. 51; Contra per Mellish L.J. (obiter) in Dickinson v. Dodds (1876) 2 Ch.D. 463, 475. See also Pollock on Contract (13th Ed.) p. 30.

62 Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.) p. 51.

63 (1921) 125 L.T. 690, 695-6 (C.A.); (1922) 127 L.T. 189, 191 (H.L.); Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.) pp. 51-52.

64 Hyde v. Wrench (1840) 3 Beav. 334; not otherwise in India; Nihal Chand v. Amar Nath, 1926 A.L. 645; 98 I.C. 272; 8 Lah.L.J. 434. Cf. Stevenson v. McLean (1880) 5 Q.B.D. 346—a mere enquiry by the offeree cannot be treated as a rejection of the offer.

prescribes a manner in which it is to be accepted, and the acceptance is not made in such manner, the proposer, may, within a reasonable time after the acceptance is communicated to him, insist that his proposal shall be accepted in the prescribed manner, and not otherwise; but if he fails to do so, he accepts the acceptance.[65]

Certainty of acceptance.—Under section 7(1) of the Indian Contract Act, proposal to get converted into a promise the acceptance has to be absolute and unqualified.[66] The rule of the first sub-section is in itself obviously necessary, for words of acceptance which do not correspond to the proposal actually made are not really an acceptance of anything, and, therefore, can amount to nothing more than a new proposal, or, as it is frequently called, a counter-offer. The difficulties which occur under this head are difficulties not of principle but of construction, the question being in every case whether a particular communication is to be understood as a real and absolute acceptance, or as introducing a condition or qualification which makes it only a stage in a course of negotiation capable of leading, but not necessarily leading, to a concluded contract. Sometimes additional words that seem at first sight to make the acceptance conditional are no more than the expression of what the law implies, as where in England an offer to sell land is accepted "subject to the title being approved by our solicitors." The reasonable meaning of this appears to be not to make a certain or uncertain solicitor's opinion (which might by arbitrary) final, but only to claim the purchaser's common right of investigating the title with professional assistance and refusing to complete if the title proves bad.[67]

The words are a guard against its being supposed that the title was to be accepted without investigation, i.e. the title must be investigated and approved in the usual way, which would be by the solicitor of the purchaser.[67] The learned editors of Halsbury's Laws of England have put the matter thus in Vol. 8, pp. 76-77:

"However, the expression of what is necessarily a condition, not of acceptance, but of the contract itself does not prevent the agreement being enforceable"

e.g. the approval of vendor's title[68] But a condition "subject to the purchaser's solicitor's approval of the title" imports an addition to the obligation to make good title implied by law.[69] Similarly where an agreement of sale of a lease is "subject to the purchaser's solicitor approving the lease" the contract is conditional.[70] An agreement for the sale of land "subject to contract" is not binding until the entering into the contract is completed.[71] An agreement to grant a lease on approval by a party's solicitor may be construed as being merely a safeguard to ensure that the lease embodies the terms of the agreement and does not contain unusual stipula-

---

65 "These sections (7, 8 and 9) must be read without reference to the English law on the subject": Ashworth J., Gaddar Mal v. Tata Industrial Bank (1927) 49 All. 674, at p. 677; 100 I.C. 1023; 1927 A.A. 407; qu. whether provoked by irrelevant citations (argument not reported), but the language is clearly too wide; the real meaning must be that English decisions cannot prevail against the clear words of the Act.

66 U.P. State Electricity Board v. Goel Electric Stores (1977) A.A. 494.

67 Hussey v. Horne-Payne (1879) 4 App. Cas. 311, 322; (1874-80) All E.R. Rep. 716, 721, per Lord Cairns (followed in Treacher & Co. v. Mahomedally (1911) 35 Bom. 110). In such a case the seller should show good title or satisfaction of the solicitor. The decision of the C.A. which had taken a different view on this point, was affirmed on other grounds.

68 See Gordon v. Mahony (1850) 13 Ir. Eq.R. 383, 404; Chatterley v. Nicholls (1884) 1 T.L.R. 14 C.A.

69 Hussey v. Horne Payne (1878) 8 Ch.D. 670 (C.A.) at p. 678; affd. on app. (1879) 4 App. Cas. 311 (H.L.) at p. 322; (1874-80) All E.R. Rep. 716 (Lord Cairns held this does not affect a contract otherwise complete); Curtis Moffat Ltd. v. Wheeler (1929) 2 Ch. 224 (Maugham J. preferred this view of the C.A. to the contrary opinion of Lord Cairns L.C. in the H.L. and treated it as obiter); Sreegopal v. Ram Churn, 8 Cal. 856, 863 (observations are obiter); Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 8, p. 77.

70 Caney v. Leith (1937) 2 All E.R. 532 applying Hudson v. Buck (1877) 7 Ch.D. 683; Clark v. Wood (1882) 9 Q.B.D. 276; Curtis Moffat Ltd. v. Wheeler (1929) 2 Ch. 224; Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 8, p. 77.

71 Eccles v. Bryant (1948) Ch. 93 (C.A.); (1947) 2 All E.R. 587 (In England the customary way is by exchange of signed copies).

tions.[72] In Baij Nath's case[71] it was held that a lessor is bound to give the lessee a good title free from reasonable doubt and where a prospective lessee demands title deeds from the prospective lessor for investigation and approval it cannot be said that there is a final and concluded agreement. In that case the court found that the plaintiff did not intend any final lease being made until a good title had been made and until it had been approved by the plaintiff's solicitors after investigation. This it is submitted was a case on its own facts.[73] It is submitted that a term such as "subject to approval of title by the purchasers' solicitors" imports an addition to the obligation to make good title and is satisfied if the vendor proves that the solicitors did approve of it or the title tendered was such as it made it unreasonable not to approve of it.[74] Again, the offer of a new contract may be annexed to an absolute acceptance so that there is a concluded contract whether the new offer is accepted or not.[75] On the other hand, reference to special conditions not known to the other party,[76] as distinguished from terms already made part of the proposal,[77] will prevent an acceptance from being final. So will a reference to future unspecified terms "to be arranged," or the like, between the parties or their agents.[78] But an acceptance on condition, coupled with an admission that the condition has been satisfied, may be in effect unconditional.[79]

An acceptance which is in form conditional may also be considered in fact absolute, on the ground that the parties did not really envisage the incorporation in the contract of any terms other than those already agreed. In Nicolene v. Simmonds,[80] an offer was accepted "subject to the usual conditions of acceptance." It was held that there was a binding contract, as these words were on the facts quite meaningless: the offeree had not in mind that any further terms were to be agreed, but was using a high-sounding phrase to which he attached no particular meaning. In another case, also before the Court of Appeal, Branca v. Cabarro[81] D entered into a written agreement to buy P's mushroom farm. The agreement concluded with these words: "This is a provisional agreement until a fully legalised agreement drawn up by a solicitor and embodying all the conditions herewith stated is signed." No "fully legalised agreement" was ever prepared, but the Court held the parties bound, one of the points being that no other condition was to be incorporated in the agreement to be drawn up by the solicitor.

It is the essence of a contract that there should be aggregatio mentium the meeting of minds of the contracting parties. Therefore where there was no consensus ad idem as to mak-

---

72 Chipperfield v. Carter (1895) 72 L.T. 487 explained in Caney v. Leith (1937) 156 L.T. 483, p. 535. See also Endie v. Addison (1882) 52 L.J.Ch. 80; Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 8, p. 77.

73 Baij Nath v. Kshetrahari Sarkar (1955) A.Cal 210, 215-216.

74 Treacher & Co. Ltd. v. Mahomedally Peerbhoy (1911) 35 Bom. 110; Sreegopal v. Ram Churn, 8 Cal. 856. See supra.

75 Sir Mahomed Yusuf v. Secretary of State (1920) 22 Bom.L.R. 872; 45 Bom. 8; 57 I.C. 971: 1921 A.B. 200. The term "counter-offer" is clearly not the right one to use in this view of the facts.

76 Jones v. Daniel (1894) 2 Ch. 332.

77 Filby v. Hounsell (1896) 2 Ch. 737.

78 Honeyman v. Marryatt (1857) 6 H.L.C. 112; Stanley v. Dowdeswell (1874) L.R. 10 C.P. 102; Lockett v. Norman-Wright (1925) 1 Ch. 56. But an agreement to supply goods described in general terms at a price "to be agreed" is not necessarily void for uncertainty; for a term may be implied that the goods are intended to be of reasonable quality to be sold at a reasonable price: Hilla v. Arcos (1932) 147 L.T. 503; Foley v. Classique Coaches (1934) 2 K.B. 1. The question is one of construction in each case, and the inclusion of an arbitration clause in the contract is in such cases an important element: see also May and Butcher v. The King (1934) 2 K.B. 17. The Court takes into consideration the fact that the parties believed they had made a contract; ibid., followed on this point in Rajkishor Mohanty v. Banabehari, 1951 A.Or. 291. The implication of a reasonable sum is assisted if the agreement has been executed on one side: British Bank for Foreign Trade v. Novinex (1949) 1 K.B. 623, 630.

79 Roberts v. Security Co. (1897) 1 Q.B. 111, C.A. The principle is sound but its application in the particular case doubtful; see The Equitable Fire and Accident Office v. The Ching Wo Hong (1907) A.C. 96, 101.

80 (1953) 1 Q.B. 543, C.A. Distinguishing British Electrical v. Patley Pressings (1953) 1 W.L.R. 280 ("subject to force majeure conditions"—held too vague). and Scammell v. Ouston (1941) A.C. 251 ("the balance of purchase price can be had on hire-purchase terms over a period of 2 years"—too vague). The latter case was followed in Jai Gobind Singh v. Bagal Lal Singh, 1950 A.A.P. 445. See also Baijnath v. Kshetrahari Sarkar, 1955 A.Cal. 210 (lease subject to "all other usual clauses" held too vague).

81 (1947) K.B.854.

ing charges of windows of altered design there cannot be said to be a concluded contract.[82] A contract is created by the common intention of the parties to enter into legal obligation and the intention is inferred when the parties enter into an agreement conforming to the rules of law for formation of contracts. But this intention may be negatived.[83] Atkin L.J. in Rose & Frank Co. v. J.R. Crompton & Bros. said:[83]

> "It may be negatived impliedly by the nature of the agreed promise or promises, as in the case of offer and acceptance of hospitality, or of some agreements made in the course of family life between members of a family as in Balfour v. Balfour.[84] If the intention may be negatived impliedly it may be negatived expressly."[85]

Although there can be no contract without a complete acceptance of the proposal, it is not universally true that complete acceptance of the proposal makes a binding contract; for one may agree to all the terms of a proposal, and yet decline to be bound until a formal agreement is signed,[86] or some other act is done. An absolute acceptance of an offer does not make a binding contract if it does not extend to all the terms under negotiation or it is merely a provisional arrangement subject to a further agreement to be executed between the parties.[87] This is really a case of acceptance with an added condition, but of such special importance as to call for separate mention. There may be an express reservation in such words as these: "This agreement is made subject to the preparation and execution of a formal contract."[88]

In deciding whether a contract is a concluded contract or not the essential question is to find out whether the formal document is of such a nature that it was the very condition of the contract or whether it was commemorative of the evidence on the point.[89] In order to decide this matter the entire negotiations and the correspondence on which the contract depends must be considered.[90] It is a matter of construction whether the execution of a further contract is a condition of the contract or a mere expression of a desire of the parties as to the manner in which the transaction already agreed to will go through.[91] The fact that the parties refer to the preparation of an agreement by which the terms agreed upon are to be put in a more formal shape does not prevent the existence of a binding contract. But there may be cases where the signing of a further formal agreement is made a condition or term of the bargain and if the formal agreement is not approved and signed there is no concluded contract.[92]

In Sriramulu's case[93] the drawing up of a written agreement was not shown as a prerequisite to the coming into operation of the oral agreement to sell.

---

82 State of Punjab v. Hindustan Development Board Ltd. (1960) 2 Punj. 676; 1960 A.Punj. 585; Bhagwandas v. Girdhari Lal & Co. (1966) A.SC. 543. See also Rose & Frank Co. v. J.R. Crompton & Bros. (1923) 2 K.B. 261; (1925) A.C. 445; (1924) All E.R. Rep. 245. See sec. 7.

83 Rose & Frank Co. v. J.R. Crompton & Bros.; n.18 supra.

84 (1919) 2 K.B. 571. See Lala Muddun Gopal Lal v. Mt. Khikhinda Kuer, 18 I.A. 9 (case of Hindu Law).

85 Edwards v. Skyways Ltd. (1964) 1 W.L.R. 349, 355.

86 "If to a proposal or offer an assent be given subject to a provision as to a contract, then the stipulation as to the contract is a term of the assent, and there is no agreement independent of that stipulation": Chinnock v. Marchioness of Ely (1865) 4 D.J.S. 638, at p. 646. But see Branca v. Cobarro (supra).

87 Namayya v. Union of India (1958) A.A.P. 533. Hussey v. Horne-Payne (1879) 4 App. Cas. 311; (1874-80) All E.R. Rep. 716; Winn v. Bull (1877) 7 Ch.D. 29. See under s. 13.

88 Winn v. Bull (1877) 7 Ch.D. 29; Finch. Sel. Ca. 81, followed in Hatzfeldt-Wildenbury v. Alexander (1912) 1 Ch. 284; Rossdale v. Denny (1921) 1 Ch. 57, C.A.; Raingold v. Bromley (1931) 2 Ch. 307; cp, the cases cited in note 14, supra.

89 Goshto Bihari v. Surs Estate Ltd. (1960) A.Cal. 752; Harichand Mancharan v. Govind Luxman, 50 I.A. 25; 1923 P.C. 47; Currimbhoy Co. v. Creet, 60 I.A. 297, (1933) A.P.C. 29; Shankarlal v. New Muffasil Co. Ltd., 73 I.A. 98, (1946) A.P.C. 97; Von Hatzfeldt Wildenburg v. Alexander (1912) 1 Ch. 284; Hukamchand v. Ram Bahadur Singh, 51 I.A. 208; (1924) A.P.C. 156.

90 Namayya v. Union of India, 1958 A.A.P. 533; Damodar Shah v. Union of India (1959) A.Cal. 526; Ka Ron Lamong v. State of Assam (1959) A.Assam 75, 90.

91 Namayya v. Union of India (1958) A.A.P. 533; Currimbhoy & Co. v. Creet, 60 I.A. 297; 1933 A.P.C. 29.

92 Kollipara Sriramulu v. Aswatha Narayana (1968) A.SC. 1028; Von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg v. Alexander (1912) 1 Ch. 284, 288; Rossiter v. Miller, 3 A.C. 1124; Currimbhoy & Co. v. Creet, 60 I.A. 297 reld. upon.

93 Kollipara Sriramulu v. Aswatha Narayana, n. 28 supra.

But this rule has no application to a contract required to be evidenced by a formal document under Art. 299 of the Constitution.[94]

In the case[95] of contracts governed by Article 299 of the Constitution there can be a contract by correspondence and the execution of a formal document is not absolutely essential provided the other conditions of the Article are satisfied.

A contract to enter into a contract is not a valid contract and therefore a clause in an arbitration agreement that in the event of a dispute arising the same "can" be referred to arbitration is not a valid agreement to refer to arbitration. The word "can" cannot be construed as an option given to either party.[96]

An agreement[97] whereby the vendor agrees to sell and the purchaser agrees to purchase certain premises and whereby the vendor was required to sell within a certain period of time will constitute a concluded contract and will be enforceable by specific performance.

Acceptance of tender.—The effect of acceptance of a tender with a minimum guarantee for the purchase of articles tendered for constitutes a contract.[98]

Waiver of right by a party.—A suit was compromised whereby the defendant was to be given the first offer to purchase in case of sale. That was a concluded contract and the mere fact that the defendant could waive his right could not be taken as a criterion to determine whether there was or was not a binding contract.[99]

The municipality passed a resolution agreeing to renew the lease in favour of the lessee on his paying the upset price and annual rent within specified time. The lessee appealed to the Minister but failed and then seven years later he paid part of the money and agreed to the rest being paid in instalments which was accepted by the Municipal Commissioner. But the Supreme Court held that the Commissioner had no authority to do so in view of the municipality's resolution. Thus there was fresh offer and no contract came into existence.[1]

The plaintiff tendered to buy from the defendant 3,500 tonnes of coke at Rs.31/- per tonne and also deposited Rs.5000/- as security. The acceptance of the tender and the deposit of security money constituted a concluded contract. Further the plaintiff had accepted all the terms of the sale.[2]

The English authorities have also been followed on the point that parties are free to provide that the agreement shall not be complete and operative until its terms are reduced into writing, or are embodied in a formal document, and that it is a question of interpretation whether they have done so or not. Where, however, there is no such stipulation express or implied, the mere circumstance that the parties intend to put the agreement into writing or in a formal instrument will not prevent the agreement from being enforced, assuming, of course, that an agreement otherwise complete and enforceable is proved.[3]

Seeking Clarification.—Seeking clarification of an offer neither amounts to the acceptance of the offer nor to the making of a counter offer.[4]

Therefore where an offeree wrote to the offeror that defects in the tender submitted may

---

94 Damodar Shah v. Union of India, (1959) A.Cal. 526; K.P. Chawdhary v. State of M.P. (1967) A.SC. 203, 206.
95 Manikam Chettiar v. State of Madras (1971) 1 Mad. 345; (1971) A.M. 221.
96 Jyoti Bros. v. Shree Durga Mining Co. (1956) A.Cal. 280. See Namayya v. Union of India (1958) A.AP. 533.
97 Dr. Jiwan Lal v. Brij Mohan Lal (1973) A.SC. 559, 560. (1973) 2 S.C.R. 230.
98 Cummins Diesel Sales and Supply Ltd. v. D.G. Supplies and Disposal (1981) A.D. 61, 64.
99 Smt. Nirmalabala v. Sudarshan Jana (1980) A.Cal. 258; Baijnath v. Kshetra Hari (1955) A.Cal. 210; Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. Ulhas Nagar Municipality (1971) A.SC. 1071 folld.
1 Badri Lal v. Municipal Corporation of Indore (1973) A.SC. 508, 510: (1973) 3 S.C.R. 15.
2 Jagdish Prashad Keshwani v. Fertilizers Corporation of India (1981) A.P. 58, 60; Union of India v. Madan Lal (1966) A.SC. 1724 disting.
3 Whymper v. Buckle (1879) 3 All. 469, citing Brogden v. Metropolitan Railway Co. (1887) 2 App. Ca. 666; Lewis v. Brass (1877) L.R. 3 Q.B.D. 667; Bonnewell v. Jenkins (1878) L.R. 8 Ch.D. 70; and see note 22, supra.
4 U.P. State Electricity Board v. Goel Electric Stores, (1977) A.A. 494.

be rectified so as to make it fit for consideration it was only an opportunity given to the offeror and not a counter offer.[5]

Insurance Contract, formation of.—A policy of insurance becomes effective where all other formalities had been completed except that "the personal statement duly completed by the doctor had not been done" as this was held to be a mere formality.[6] The acceptance of a proposal of life insurance does not necessarily result in a binding insurance contract. It may merely amount to an intimation of willingness of the insurer to insure on payment of the necessary premium.[7] An acceptance of a proposal by an insurer on the condition that the first premium will be paid within 30 days from the date of acceptance is in law a counter offer, the fulfilment of which would result in a contract.[8] A contract of insurance, like any other contract, is concluded by offer and acceptance. A stipulation of attachment of liability on the payment of premium is a condition precedent to the policy taking effect. But that is a condition for the benefit of the insurer and can be waived by the insurer.[9]

Or a proposal for insurance may be accepted in all its terms, but with the statement that there shall be no assurance till the first premium is paid. Here again there is no contract, but only a counter-offer, and the intending insurer may refuse a tender of the premium if there has meanwhile been any material change in the facts constituting the risk to be insured against.[10] Where there is no precise clause of reservation, but the acceptance is not obviously unqualified, it becomes a question of construction whether the parties intended that the terms agreed on should merely be put into form,[11] or whether they should be subject to a new agreement the terms of which are not expressed in detail,[12] and this must be determined by examination of the whole of a continuous correspondence or negotiation. It will not do to pick out this or that portion which, if it stood alone, might be sufficient evidence of a contract.[13] But where it appears that a complete contract was formed by unqualified acceptance of an offer at a certain date, subsequent negotiations will have no effect unless they amount to a new agreement.[14] Similarly an unconditional acceptance of the original offer and the formation of the contract thereupon is not affected by a collateral term annexed to that acceptance.[15]

Revival of lapsed insurance.—A lapsed insurance policy on life does not become an enforceable contract until revived and if death takes place before revival, no rights in favour of the person applying for revival arise. Revival is not automatic nor a right. Revival gives rise to a new contract and there is no revival after death.[16]

---

5 Cheshire & Fifoot Law of Contracts, 9th Ed. p. 34.

6 Ramdev Moolchand v. Lakshmi Insurance Co. (1962) A.Punj. 125; Macgillivary on Insurance (4th Ed.) section 649. For cases of misrepresentation & fraud see infra.

7 Life Insurance Corp. v. Tirupathayya (1963) A.A.P. 353.

8 Benarsi Debi v. New India Assurance Co., 1959 A.P. 540.

9 Abdul Azeez & Co. v. New India Assurance Co. (1954) A.M. 520; (1953) 2 M.L.J. 714; Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corp. Co. v. Patkar, 1935 A.B. 236 folld.; South British Insurance Co. v. Stenson, 52 Bom. 532; (1928) A.B. 260 dist. See also Equitable Fire & Accident Office v. Ching Wo Hong, 1907 A.C. 96.

10 Canning v. Farquhar (1886) 16 Q.B.D. 727; see especially per Lindley L.J. at p.733.

11 Harichand Mancharam v. Govind Luxman Gokhale (1922) 50 I.A. 25; 47 Bom. 335; 71 I.C. 763; Currimbhoy & Co. v. Creet (1933) 60 I.A. 297; 60 Cal. 980; 141 I.C. 209; 1933 A.P.C. 29; Subimalchandra v. Radhanath (1933) 60 Cal. 1372; 149 I.C. 1000; 1934 A.Cal. 235; Gujjar Mal v. Governor-General of India, 1942 A.Pesh. 33; Shankarlal Narayandas v. The New Mofussil Co. Ltd. (1946) 73 I.A. 98, 48 Bom.L.R. 456, 224 I.C. 598, 1946 A.P.C. 97, reversing (1941) Bom. 361; Sitlani v. Viroosing (1947) 225 I.C. 264, 1947 A.S. 6; Amritlal v. Harkisandas (1945) 47 Bom.L.R. 878, 1946 A.B. 149. See Deep Chandra v. Sajjad Ali Khan, 1951 A.A. 93 (F.B.): Rahiman v. Sadashiv Tripathy (1968) A.Or. 84.

12 Jessel M.R. in Winn v. Bull, note 24 above; Akoojee Jadwet & Co. v. A.V. & Son, 1939 A.R. 423, 185 I.C. 705; Shamjibhai v. Jagoo Hemchand, 1952 A.N. 220.

13 Hussey v. Horne-Payne (1879) 4 App. Cas. 311; Aryodaya S. & W. Co. v. Javalprasad (1903) 5 Bom.L.R. 909.

14 Perry v. Suffields Ltd. (1916) 2 Ch. 187, C.A.; Elliott v. Pearson (1948) Ch. 452; Jainarain v. Surajmull (1949) F.C.R. 379, 51 Bom.L.R. 979, (1949) A.F.C. 211; Hindustan Construction Co. v. State of Bihar (1963) A.P. 254, 260; Namayya v. Union of India (1958) A.AP. 533.

15 Namayya v. Union of India, 1958 A.AP. 533; Jainarain v. Surajmal, 1949 A.F.C. 211, 216 reld. upon.

16 Ahmedunnissa Begum v. Life Insurance Corp. (1981) A.AP. 50, 54. McCanna v. City Life Assurance

Material fact in Insurance.—Any fact the knowledge or ignorance of which would materially influence an insurer in making the contract or in estimating the degree and character of risks in fixing the rate of premium is a material fact, but the withdrawal of a proposal of insurance with another insurer is not such a material fact.[8]

In a contract of insurance utmost good faith is essential, i.e., the insured is expected to answer various questions and give true and faithful information. If the insured has knowledge of a fact which others cannot ordinarily have, then he should not indulge himself in suppressio veri suggestio falsi by making a suggestion which is false. A proposal of insurance for a woman could not be accepted if she had last delivered a child within six months prior to the date of proposal. The primary information of the birth was within the exclusive knowledge of the parents and when that is not correctly given there is a deliberate omission and a conscious avoidance of duty on the part of the insured.[17]

Temporary covering note in Insurance.—A temporary covering note after the expiration of a policy is an offer to insure for the future, which is capable of acceptance by conduct and without communication with the insurance company; and the contract so created would contain an implied promise by the insured to pay either in the renewal premium or for the period for which the temporary cover note had been accepted, and without a valid acceptance there is no insurance.[18]

Subsequent demands.—A concluded contract for the sale of a tank of oil is not affected by a subsequent demand of Dharmada or a further term about time of dispatch of the wagon sought to be imposed by the buyers.[19]

Absolute acceptance.—Section 7 of the Contract Act requires that the acceptance of the offer must be absolute and unqualified. It cannot be conditional.[20] When there is a variation between the offer and acceptance even in respect of a material term, acceptance cannot be said to be absolute and it does not result in the formation of a legal contract.[21] A contract unlike a tort is not unilateral. If there be no meeting of minds, no contract may result. There should therefore be an offer by one party express or implied an acceptance of that offer by the other in the same sense in which it was made by the other. There must be intent to accept and some external manifestation of that intent by speech, writing or other act. Acceptance must be communicated to the offeror unless he has waived such intimation or the course of negotiations implies an agreement to the contrary.[22] A letter by a vendor "for a quick sale, I would accept £26,000" and a reply by buyer "I accept your offer" constitute a specifically enforceable contract. (Bigg v. Boyd Gibbins Ltd., (1971) 2 All E.R.183). In the case of a contract, an offer must be certain and such that, in law, is capable of being accepted. If its terms are unsettled or indefinite, it cannot create a contractual relationship. Parties must make their own contracts, the court will not make a contract for them.[23] In a tender form containing the conditions of a contract governing the Department of Supply Contracts, two of the relevant conditions were:

Co. (1919) 2 K.B. 491 reld on P. Sankunni Menon v. Empire of India Life Assurance Co. Ltd. (1932) A.M. 241 folld.

17 V. Srinivasa Pillai v. Agent of Life Insurance Corporation of India, Madras (1977) A.M. 381; Mithoo Lal v. L.I.C. of India (1962) A.SC. 814; Balkrishna v. New India Assurance Co. (1959) A.P. 102; A.I.G. Insurance Co. v. S.P. Maheshwari (1960) A.M. 484 and L.I.C. of India v. Parvathavardhini Ammal (1965) A.M. 357 followed.

18 Taylor v. Allon (1965) 2 W.L.R. 598.

19 Lakshmi Ginning & Oil Mills v. Amrit Banaspati (1962) A.Punj. 56.

20 Jawahar Lal Burman v. Union of India (1962) 3 S.C.R. 769, 785; (1962) A.SC. 278; Trollope and Colls Ltd. v. Atomic Power Construction Ltd. (1963) 1 W.L.R. 333; (1962) 3 All E.R. 1035 (corresponding English Law); Union of India v. Babulal Uttam Chand (1968) A.B. 294; Big v. Boyd Gibbins Ltd. (1971) 2 All E.R. 183 (What offer and acceptance constitute contract); Brown v. Gould, (1971) All E.R. 1505 (option to renew lease in future having regard to the then market value) and Union of India v. Uttam Singh Duggal (1972) A.D. 110.

21 Union of India v. Uttam Singh Duggal & Co. (1972) A.D. 110, 115, 116.

22 Bhagwandas v. Girdharilal & Co., 1966 A.SC. 543; Haridwar Singh v. Begum Sumbrui (1972) A.S.C 1242-1245 (No concluded contract where the acceptance is not conveyed to offeror).

23 Coffee Board, Bangalore v. Haji Ibrahim (1966) A.My. 118; Scammell and Nephew v. Ouston (1941) A.C. 251, 255, 269; (1941) 1 All E.R. 14; May & Butcher v. The King (1934) 2 K.B. 17n.

(a) that on acceptance of the tender the contractor shall at the option of the Secretary, Department of Supply, and within the period specified by him, deposit with him the security deposit therein-specified; and

(b) if the contractor is called upon to deposit security and the contractor fails to provide the security within the period, such failure will constitute a breach of the contract or/and the Secretary shall be entitled to make other arrangements at the risk and acceptance of the contractor.

The Secretary, Supply Department, entering into contract on the above terms, informed the contractor that his tender had been accepted "subject to your depositing 10% as security".... "The contract is concluded by this acceptance and formal acceptance of tender will follow immediately on receipt of Treasury Receipt"

The definition of the word "Contract" lays down that only those general and special conditions thay may be added to the contract shall apply to the contract between the parties. No special conditions were added to or incorporated in the contract between the parties, but by express words general conditions were added to and incorporated in the letter of acceptance of tender. The acceptance of the tender having been made only on terms and conditions contained in the letter of acceptance the said letter was a counter offer and the respondent having acted upon the letter of acceptance on the terms and conditions contained therein accepted the said counter offer. Even if the tender was submitted subject to the special conditions the said special conditions did not become part of the contract between the parties.[24]

The conditions of the contract read with the letter of acceptance were construed by the Supreme Court in Jawahar Lal Burman v. Union of India[25] that according to the tender, security deposit was a condition subsequent and the letter of acceptance did not make it a condition precedent. The agreement of parties as to the terms of a contract can be proved not only by their words but also by their conduct in accordance with the maxim non refert an quis assensum suum praefert verbis, aut rebus ipsis et factis.[26]

In a contract for supply of "screened zira" F.O.R. Jamalpur Railway Station. it was provided that the Railway Administration would not be liable for "anything that may happen to the suppliers' commodities until the same passed into the physical possession of the buyer (and not as a carrier) at a place of delivery noted in the Purchase Order." This condition was held to be a clear indication of keeping the liability of the Railway carrier and purchaser separate and distinct.

In such a case, in the absence of a contract, express or implied, the supply of wagons by the Railway Administration would not be a condition precedent to the supply of the commodities within the time specified by the contract.[27] A tender issued by Government for sale of 244 tons of iron scrap approximately was filled by a purchaser and accepted by Government. This was held to be a valid unconditional contract, implying that purchaser will pay more if the weight exceeded the quality tendered for and get a refund if the quality is less.[28]

In India it has been laid down, in accordance with English law as well as with the terms of the Act, that an acceptance with a variation is not acceptance; it is simply a counter-proposal, which must be accepted by the original promisor before a contract is made.[29] Thus where an offer was made for the purchase of certain goods which were to be ordered out from Europe, an acceptance "free Bombay Harbour and interest," being a term not contained in the offer, was held to be no acceptance within the meaning of this section. Where a buyer signed a bought note after inserting therein in Chinese certain terms which were not in the sold note previously signed by the seller, it was held that there was no contract unless the seller accepted the additional terms in Chinese.[30] In such a case the acceptance with a qualification is in its nature a counter-proposal which, if accepted by the proposer, would constitute an

---

24 Heavy Engineering Corporation Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd. (1972) A.Cal. 217, 220.
25 (1962) 3 S.C.R. 769.
26 Laxmi Ginning & Oil Mills v. Amrit Banaspati, 1962 A.Punj. 56, 61.
27 Union of India v. Vasudeva Aggarwal, 1960 A.P. 87, 96.
28 Debi Prasad v. Union of India (1969) A.B. 163.
29 Kundan Lal v. Secretary of State (1939) 14 Luck. 710; 183 I.C. 597; 1939 A.O. 249; Haji Mahomed v. Spinner (1900) 24 Bom. 510, 523. In the latter case the plaintiffs maintained that the additional term was already implied in the offer by a previous course of dealing or otherwise. The defendant maintained that there was a contract without that term. The Court held that there was no contract at all.
30 Ah Shain Shoke v. Moothia Chetty (1899) 4 C.W.N. 453.

agreement.[31] A contract relating to grant of license of sale of liquor is not complete till the bid is confirmed. Therefore, where the highest bidder did not deposit 1/6th of the purchase price during seven days whereupon resale was ordered without the bid having been confirmed by the Chief Commissioner, the essential pre-requisite of a completed sale was missing and no liability could be imposed on the auction-purchaser for the shortfall on the resale.[32]

According to the rules of a sale of forest products a man making a tender for the purchase of those products had also to make a deposit of 25% of the tendered price. The respondent firm's tender was the highest and the tender was accepted by forest authorities on behalf of the Chief Conservator of Forests. But the firm failed to make a deposit of 25% of the tendered price which was a condition precedent for the acceptance of the tender which even the Chief Conservator of Forests could not waive and hence the purported acceptance was not valid and there was no concluded contract.[33]

Offer, acceptance, counter offer—effect of.—In English law to make a contract, there must be an offer and unreserved acceptance of the offer. If the offer is rejected there may be a counter offer but that kills the original offer. The offeree cannot revert to the original offer and purport to accept it.[34] Similarly if the offer is accepted but another term, e.g. of price is introduced, the original offer is destroyed and cannot be accepted unless renewed.[35] When a party makes a composite offer each part being dependent upon the other, another party cannot by accepting a part of the offer compel the other to confine its dispute to the accepted part.[36]

The circumstance that the parties do intend a subsequent agreement to be made is evidence to show that they did not intend the previous negotiations to amount to an agreement, though not conclusive; they will be bound by a previous agreement "if it is clear that such an agreement has been made".[37] The terms of a contract have retrospective application if the parties during negotiations act on that understanding and in the anticipation that on the contract being made it would govern what was being done.[38] Where, however, the formalities are not of the parties' selection, so that nothing turns upon the intention of the parties, no inference against a concluded agreement can be drawn from the non-completion of these formalities. Thus, while a suit was pending the parties entered into a written agreement whereby the plaintiff agreed to accept the property of the defendant in adjustment of the suit. The agreement was not recorded as required under s. 98 of the Code of Civil Procedure then in force, being Act VIII of 1859 (now Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, O. 21, r. 2). It was not, therefore, such a final adjustment of the suit as precluded the case from being proceeded with. The plaintiff, taking advantage of that fact, proceeded with the suit, and obtained a decree against the defendant. The defendant subsequently brought a suit against the plaintiff for damages for breach of the agreement; and it was held that he was entitled to damages, there having been a binding agreement between the parties, though the formality of recording the agreement was not completed.[39] Such cases, however, must be distinguished from those where the negotiations have not led to a concluded agreement. Thus in Koylash Chunder v. Tariney Churn[40] the defendant wrote to the plaintiff: "The value of your house has been fixed through the broker at Rs. 13,125. Agreeing to that value, I write this letter. Please come over to the of-31 Bhagwandas v. Shiv Dial (1913) Punj. Rec. No. 92, where the counter-proposal was accepted; Muralidhar v. Paresh, 1947 A.Cal. 14, 228 I.C. 260.

---

32 Union of India v. Bhimsen Walaiti Ram, (1971) A.SC. 2295 (1964) 1 Punj. 548 affirmed.
33 State of Madhya Pradesh v. Gordhandas Kailash Nath (1973) A.SC. 1164, 1166.
34 Trollope & Colls Ltd. v. Atomic Power Constructions Ltd. (1963) 1 W.L.R. 333, 339; (1962) 3All E.R. 1035 (Megaw J.).
35 Moolji Jaitha & Co. v. Setho Kishorilal (1961) A.Ker. 21.
36 General Assurance Society v. L.I.C. (1964) A.SC. 892; (1964) 5 S.C.R. 125.
37 Ridgway v. Wharton (1856-57) 6 H.L.C. 238, at p. 264.
38 Trollope & Colls Ltd. v. Atomic Power Constructions Ltd. (1963) 1 W.L.R. 333; (1962) 3 All E.R. 1035.
39 Thota Venkatachellasami v. Krishnaswamy (1874) 8 M.H.C. 1. See Mulla's Code of Civil Procedure, 13th ed., pp. 957, sqq.
40 (1884) 10 Cal. 588; Baijnath v. Kshetrahari Sarkar, 1955 A.Cal. 210.

fice of my attorney between three and four this day,with the title deeds of the house and receive the earnest." In reply, the plaintiff wrote: "You having agreed to purchase our house for Rs. 13,125, have sent a letter through the broker, and we are agreeable to it, and we will be present between three and four this day at your attorney's, and receive the earnest." The plaintiff and the defendant met at the attorney's office, but the attorney was absent, and accordingly no inspection of title deeds or payment of the earnest money took place. The plaintiff sued the defendant for specific performance, but it was held that there was no binding contract, as two important matters—namely, inspection of the deeds[41] and the amount and payment of the earnest money—were left to be arranged at the attorney's office. Garth C.J. said: "As regards the earnest money, it must be observed that both parties treat that as an element in the bargain.... Suppose the meeting had taken place, and the parties had been unable to agree as to the amount of the earnest money, how could it possibily have been said that they have arrived at any binding agreement?"[42] A provision in an agreement for the sale of a house that "on approval of the title by the purchaser's solicitor the purchase money should be paid" has not the effect of rendering the completeness of the agreement conditional upon the approval of the title by the solicitor, but of simply fixing the time for the payment of the purchase money without waiting for a conveyance.[43]

Counter offer.—The seller offered to sell certain goods on certain terms of payment which shall prevail over buyers conditions in his order. The buyer placed an order with conditions and terms materially different from seller's terms. When the seller came to supply the goods he demanded a higher price which the buyer refused to pay. The sellers brought an action. The Court of Appeal held the buyer's offer to be a counter offer which destroyed the offer of the sellers and the seller by accepting the order was not entitled to bring his action for increased price (Case on construction of documents).[44]

Introducing new terms.—By introducing new terms in a letter of acceptance of an offer, a party makes a counter offer and the offer is not thereby accepted.[45]

Formation of a contract.—A rule of a society provided that "the secretary shall be responsible for the executive administration of the society subject to the control of the President". Any communication on behalf of the society has to be by the secretary as such and any communication by the President in a casual way will not be binding on the society nor would any such communication conclude a contract between the society and another person.[46]

McGregor's Case.—A stranger was a lodger with a family but was treated as a member of the family. The family and the stranger had devised separate answers for a fashion competition sharing the expenses and agreed to share the winnings and one of them won the prize. It was held that the stranger was entitled to share the prize as there was mutuality in the arrangement and that it could not be said that it did not give rise to a legal right because it was similar to a family matter.[47]

Contract—what is within s.7 (d) of People's Representation Act.—In his mining lease, the lessee undertook to sell to the Government out of the ore brought to the surface such quantities as are required by the Government after the Government had notified to the lessee. This was held to be an offer by the lessee and till it was accepted by the Government by exer-

---

41 It looks as if there had been some misapprehension here. In English practice, at any rate, a contract for purchase of land is not suspended until the title has been shown; there is a complete contract as soon as all the terms—including special conditions, if any, as to title—have been agreed upon, subject to the purchaser's right to rescind, or to compensation if a title is not shown according to the contract, and often, by agreement, to the vendor's right to rescind if he cannot remove any objection.

42 It looks very much as if some well-known customary proportion of earnest money was really intended by the parties, but apparently there was no proof of this.

43 Cohen v. Sutherland (1890) 17 Cal. 919.

44 Butler Machine Tools Co. Ltd. v. Ex Cell O' Corporation (1979) 1 All E.R. 965; Hyde v. Wrench (1840) 3 Beav. 334 appld.; High Trees Case (1956) 1 All E.R. 256 appld. in Brikom Investments Ltd. v. Carr (1979) 2 All E.R. 753, 756.

45 Northland Airlines Ltd. v. Dennis Feranti Meters Ltd. (1970) 114 S.J. 845.

46 Subramania v. Ammapet Co-operative Weavers Society, 1961 A.AP. 289; Powell v. Lee, 99 L.T. 284; 24 T.L.R. 606.

47 Simpkins v. Pays (1955) 1 W.L.R. 975.

cise of its option as a preferential purchaser, it would not amount to a subsisting contract within s. 7(d) of the People's Representation Act.[48]

Formation of contracts.—In commercial transactions, the mere acts of indulgence are not apt to create rights. (Per Viscount Simonds in Tool Metal Mfg. Co. v. Tungsten Electric Co.[49] disapproving of the principle in Combe v. Combe.[50] A sugar mill supplying sugar to a State under the orders of the Sugar Controller cannot be said to have entered into a transaction of sale and is not a contract within the provisions of s. 2 of the Contract Act.[51] A letter attached to a tender of a contractor that the tender was subject to adequate supply of labour being available as and when required was held not to have been incorporated in the contract in Davis Contractors Ltd. v. Farenham Urban Distt. Council,[52] as it was not listed in a clause of the formal contract although the tender was.

A hire-purchase agreement form was signed by a hirer and left with a dealer, who was not an agent of the finance company, to fill in and the dealer whether by mistake or fraud filled in sums different from those agreed between the parties, the hirer was held not to be estopped from denying the truth of the written document and it was held that there was no and never had been any agreement between the hirer and the finance company on which the latter could sue for instalments which were outstanding nor could the hirer recover the amounts paid as deposits to the dealer since it was not referable to any contract with the owner.[53] An arrangement whereby the owner of a vehicle agrees to carry a co-worker to the place of their work and back for a weekly sum paid does not show that either party intended to enter into a legal contract.[54]

The parties were two companies engaged in hiring out heavy cement moving machinery and had equal bargaining power. The defendants urgently needed a dragnet crane which the plaintiffs agreed to supply. The agreement was made on telephone and only hiring and transport charges were agreed upon and nothing was said about other conditions of hire. The plaintiffs sent a printed form to the defendants containing the conditions of hire for signature; but before it could be signed the crane sank into the marshy land. The plaintiffs conditions provided indemnifying for all expenses of use. Their conditions were common to all firms doing similar business even the defendants. The plaintiffs claimed charges for recovery and the defendants pleaded that they were not liable since the conditions were not incorporated in the oral agreement. It was held that the terms in the printed form were incorporated in the contract since the defendants know the conditions were the same as their own.[55]

Essentials of a lease.—In order that there be a valid agreement for a lease, the essentials are: the parties to be determined, the property to be determined, the length of the term and the rent; and also the date of its commencement.[56] The parties must themselves define the subject-matter of their bargain and a term of years can only be defined by indicating the commencement and the termination. Where an agreement for a lease starts at some future time and that time is not specified or agreed, there is no concluded contract.[57]

Ex Gratia.—"Ex gratia" is synonymous with "without admission of liability".[58] The use of the words "ex gratia" signifies that a pre-existing liability is not admitted but it does not preclude the legal enforceability of the settlement itself.[59]

---

48 Dantu Bhaskarrao v. C.V.K. Rao (1964) A.AP. 77; Satyanathan v. Subramanyan (1955) 2 S.C.R. 83; 1955 A.SC. 459 (dist).
49 (1955) 2 All E.R. 657, 660.
50 (1951) 1 All E.R. 767; (1951) 2 K.B. 215.
51 New India Sugar Mills v. Commissioner of Sales Tax (1963) 2 S.C.R. 459, 499; 1963 A.SC. 1207 distinguished in Andhra Sugars Ltd. v. State of Andhra (1968) A.SC. 599.
52 Davis Contractors Ltd. v. Fareham Urban Distt. Council (1956) 3 W.L.R. 37, 60; (1956) A.C. 696; (1956) 2 All E.R. 145.
53 Campbell Discount Co. v. Gall (1961) 2 W.L.R. 514, 522 (C.A.); (1961) 1 Q.B. 431; (1961) 2 All E.R. 104.
54 Coward v. Motor Insurers Bureau (1962) 2 W.L.R. 663, 672.
55 British Crane Hire Corp. Ltd. v. Ipswich Plant Hire Ltd. (1974) 1 All E.R., 1059 (C.A.); McCutcheon v. David MacBrayne Ltd. (1964) 1 All E.R. 430, 433 applied.
56 Harvey v. Pratt (1965) 1 W.L.R. 1025, 1027 (C.A.); Marshall v. Berridge (1881) 19 Ch.D. 223, 245 (C.A.). There must be a certain beginning and a certain ending, otherwise it is not a perfect lease.
57 Harvey v. Pratt (1965) 1 W.L.R. 1025, 1027.
58 Edwards v. Skyways Ltd. (1964) 1 W.L.R. 349, 356.
59 Ibid.

questing "parties negotiating bills under it to endorse particulars," has been held to amount to a general invitation or request to advance money on the faith of such bills being accepted, and to constitute a contract with any one so advancing money while the credit remained open.[70] This is undoubted law, but the same cannot be said of the judgments which have held (in the circumstances, not quite decisively) that when a sale by auction is advertised as without reserve the auctioneer makes a general offer to bidders, which becomes a binding promise to the highest bona fide bidder, and gives him a right of action "as upon a contract that the sale shall be without reserve",[71] and that a railway company's timetable is a general proposal to run trains according to the table, which is accepted by an intending passenger tendering the price of a ticket.[72] These last-mentioned cases, at any rate, mark the extreme limit of effective proposals of a contract as distinguished from the invitation of proposals by a general statement of the terms on which one is minded to do business. It has been held, on the other hand, that when particular goods are advertised for sale by auction the auctioneer does not contract with any one who attends the sale, intending to purchase those goods, that they shall be actually put up for sale;[73] and that an advertisement for tenders for goods to be sold is not a proposal capable of being a contract to sell to the highest bidder, but "a mere attempt to ascertain whether an offer can be obtained within such a margin as the sellers are willing to adopt".[74] An advertisement for tenders is only an invitation for offers which the offeree may or may not accept. He is not bound to accept the highest or the lowest tender[75] as the case may be. Similarly an advertisement for the award of a scholarship after holding an examination is no promise to give it to the best student.[76] In some cases the difficulty of ascertaining the acceptor, if the announcement is treated as a proposal, is enough to dispose of the question. A second-hand bookseller's catalogue is not a series of offers, but only invitation of offers; for if the catalogue had the effect of proposing a sale of every book to the first person who paid or undertook to pay the marked price, the bookseller would be bound to decide at his peril, as between practically simultaneous applicants, whose acceptance was first in order of time, and this might involve obscure matters of both fact and law.[77] Clearly the bookseller does not mean to tie his hands in this way, nor can any reasonable customer suppose that he does. In fact, interpretation must be largely guided, in this class of transactions, by business usage and common sense. So where brokers in Bombay wrote to merchants in Ghaziabad stating their terms of business and the merchants afterwards placed orders with the brokers which were executed by them, it was held that the first letter was only an invitation to do business; no contract was made until the orders given by the brokers were accepted by the merchants and hence the cause of action arose wholly in Bombay.[78] A bank's letter with quotations as to particulars of interest on deposits in answer to an enquiry is not an offer but only a quotation of business terms.[79] Where the owner of a property says that he will not accept less than Rs. 6,000, he does not make an offer, but merely invites offers.[80]

---

70 Re Agra and Masterman's Bank, Ex parte Asiatic Banking Corporation (1867) L.R. 2 Ch. 391; Finch, Sel. Ca. 40.

71 Warlow v. Harrison (1859) 1 E. & E. 309, Ex.Ch. Two members of the Court preferred to say that the auctioneer was liable as on a warranty that he had authority to sell without reserve. Probably courts of first instance in England are bound to follow this case: see Johnston v. Boyes (1899) 2 Ch. 73, 77. Professor Gower supports the case on the basis that an act done at the request of another, express or implied, is sufficient consideration to support a promise: 68 L.Q.R. 457. (See s. 2(d) of the Act.) This is unilateral consideration and the tendency to imply a request in such cases as Crears v. Hunter has been noted (supra). Contra Slade in 68 L.Q.R. 238, 69 L.Q.R. 21. The case was approved obiter by Innes C.J. in the South African Court of Appeal in Neugebauer v. Hermann (1923) A.D. 564, 571.

72 Denton v. G.N.R. Co. (1856) 5 E. & B. 860. It was also held that an action for deceit would lie on the facts. This opinion is not easy to reconcile with later authorities. See Pollock on Torts, 15th ed., pp. 221-2.

73 Harris v. Nickerson (1873) L.R. 8 Q.B. 286.

74 Spencer v. Harding (1870) L.R. 5 C.P. 561.

75 Spencer v. Harding (1870) 5 G.P. 561.

76 Rooke v. Dawson (1895) 1 Ch. 480.

77 In Grainger v. Gough (1896) A.C. 325, the House of Lords held that a wine merchant's catalogue was not an offer, for the reason stated in the text.

78 Devidatt v. Shiram (1932) 56 Bom. 324; 34 Bom. L.R. 236; 137 I.C. 381; 1932 A.B. 291.

79 State Aided Bank of Travancore Ltd. v. Dhirt Ram, 1942 A.P.C. 6; 198 I.C. 753.

80 MacPherson v. Appanna, 1951 A.S.C. 184, relying on the Privy Council in Harvey v. Facey (1893) A.C. 552.

Invitation for offer.—One 'G' wrote to a broker 'B' saying that he will sell his house at not less than a certain price and also that he will give commission at a certain rate if he (the broker) can arrange a sale and also that "offer" shall be valid for 3 weeks. One 'S' wrote through his Solicitors that he was willing to purchase the property at the price mentioned and asked for particulars. 'G' did not agree and 'S' brought a suit and asked for an injunction. It was held that the letter of 'G' was not an offer to the public at large, but only an invitation to treat. The word 'offer' in the letter to the broker related to him alone.[81] Where the acceptance of a proposal consists of the performance of the condition of the proposal, the contract is made at the place where the condition is performed.[82] A representation by a municipal committee that something will be done in future may result in a contract if another person acts upon it. Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. v. Ulhasnagar Municipal Committee, (1971) A.SC. 1021.

Where the chemist-operated a self serving super market displayed drugs which fall within the Prohibition of Drugs Statute, the Court of Appeal held that the display was only an invitation. The customer by presenting the goods at the cash desk only offered to buy which the cashier could accept or reject.[83]

The auctioneer in an auction to sell a motor car in an unroadworthy condition against a British Statute was held not guilty as an auctioneer on the rostrum does not make an offer to sell but only makes an invitation to treat. An offer by a bidder is only accepted by the auctioneer signified by a nod of the head.[84]

An advertisement for an auction is merely a statement of intention to hold the auction not an offer to hold it. Therefore any goods advertised to be sold at the auction can be withdrawn without notice and no action will lie for loss of time and expenses by a man who goes to the auction hoping to buy a particular article if it is withdrawn.[85]

According to English law, the proposal may emanate from a third person, who suggests to the prospective parties the terms of an agreement. In such a case, a contract is formed as soon as both parties have acted on the agreement, even though there has until that moment been no direct communication between them: Clarke v. Dunraven.[86] There a yacht club committee invited non-members to enter for a race on the terms, inter alia, that a yacht that fouled another should pay damages. A and B both entered yachts, but as they were jockeying for position preparatory to crossing the starting line,[87] A's yacht fouled B's and A was held liable in damages to B.[88]

Acting on offer—when sufficient acceptance.—The nature of the acceptance required in these cases was considered by the English Court of Appeal in Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co.[89] The defendant company, being the proprietor of the "carbolic smoke ball," a device for treating the nostrils and air passages with a kind of carbolic acid snuff, issued an advertisement offering £100 reward to any person who should contract influenza (or similar ailments as mentioned) after having used the ball as directed. It was also stated that £1,000 was deposited with a named bank, "showing our sincerity in the matter." The plaintiff bought one of the

---

81 Sanwarmal Goenka v. Soumyendra Chandra Gooptu (1981) A.Cal. 37, 41; Harvey v. Facey (1893) A.C. 552 referred to in D.L. MacPherson v. M.N. Appanna (1951) A.SC. 184 disting Abdulla Ahmad v. Animendra Narayan Sinha (1950) S.C.R. 30, (1950) A.SC. 15 refd. to.

82 Sitaram Marwari v. Thompson (1905) 32 Cal. 884; Heavy Engineering Corporation v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (1972) A.Cal. 217 (Tender containing special and general conditions. The latter were accepted).

83 Pharmaceutical Society v. Boots Cash Chemists Ltd. (1953) 1 Q.B. 401, (1953) 1 All E.R. 482; Fisher v. Bell (1961) 1 Q.B. 394; (1960) 3 All E.R. 751 (display of flick knife with price ticket).

84 British Car Auctions v. Wright (1972) 1 W.L.R. 1519; Fisher v. Bell (1861) 1 Q.B. 394 folld.

85 Harris v. Nickerson (1873) 8 Q.B. 286.

86 (1897) A.C. 59, H.L. Distinguished in Dharam Das v. Manik Lal, 1955 A.V.P. 33; Shanklin Pier Ltd. v. Metal Products Ltd. (1951) 2 All E.R. 471. (The parties to a collateral contract need not be same as those to the "main" contract).

87 A warning gun had already been fired to indicate that five minutes later the starting gun would sound: in the meantime no competitor could cross the starting line.

88 The judgments are not clear whether the contract between A and B was complete as soon as both had sent in the prescribed entry to the club secretary, or only when they actually sailed against one another.

89 (1893) 1 Q.B. 256; (1891-4) All E.R. Rep. 127.

smoke balls by retail, did use it as directed, and caught influenza while she was still using it. Hawkins J.[90] held in a considered judgment that she was entitled to recover £100 as on a contract by the company. The Court of Appeal held that the defendant company could not be heard to say the offer was not meant seriously; that the terms, though rather vague, were capable of a certain meaning, and at least included the event, which had happened, of the plaintiff taking influenza while still using the remedy; and that, if the offer was unguarded and improvident, that was the defendant's own folly and no answer to the plaintiff's claim. There was an offer to any one who performed the condition (namely, of using the smoke ball as directed) on the faith of the advertisement; and by such performance it became a contract, not absolute, but subject to the further independent condition of the user contracting influenza or the like while using the remedy, and perhaps during some reasonable time afterwards. (As to conditional, or, as the Act calls them, contingent contracts in general, see Chap. III. below, ss. 31 seq.) As to the objection that to complete the plaintiff's acceptance of the offer there must either be communication to the defendant or some act of a public nature, Bowen L.J. said[91]: "One cannot doubt that, as an ordinary rule of law, an acceptance of an offer made ought to be notified to the person who makes the offer, in order that the two minds may come together. ...But there is this clear gloss to be made upon that doctrine, that, as notification of acceptance is required for the benefit of the person who makes the offer, the person who makes the offer may dispense with notice to himself if he thinks it desirable to do so, and I suppose that there can be no doubt that where a person, in an offer made by him to another person, expressly or impliedly intimates a particular mode of acceptance as sufficient to make the bargain binding, it is only necessary for the other person to whom such offer is made to follow the indicated method of acceptance; and if the person making the offer expressly or impliedly intimates in his offer that it will be sufficient to act on the proposal without communicating acceptance of it to himself, performance of the condition is a sufficient acceptance without notification." Carlill's case shows that the principle is that an offer, to be capable of acceptance, must involve promise by the offeror that he will bind himself if the exact terms specified by him are accepted.

An offer may be made either to a particular person or to the public at large.

If an offer takes the form of a promise in return for an act, the performance of that act is in itself an adequate indication of assent.[92] Cp. s. 7(2), above. This principle was followed in Hindusthan Co-operative Insurance Society v. Shyam Sunder.[93] There A signed a proposal form of insurance on his life and handed it to N, an organiser of the defendant insurance company, with a cheque for the premium. N had no authority to receive the cheque as premium, but after A had been twice medically examined the company cashed the cheque. Two weeks later the company wrote to N, asking him to make further enquiries regarding A's proposal, but the next day A died of pneumonia. The company denied liability, but the Court held that the contract was complete from the moment the cheque was cashed, as A had dispensed with express communication of acceptance.

In an Australian Case it was held that to establish a contract it should be made to appear that an announcement or a statement relied on as a promise was offered as a consideration for the doing of the act and that act was done in consideration of a potential promise inherent in the statement or announcement and there must exist between the two a relation of quid pro quo.[94] In Australian Woollen Mills case an announcement was made by the Australian Commonwealth Government that it would pay subsidy to manufacturers of wool purchased and used for local manufacture after 30th June 1946. The plaintiff purchased large quantities of wool for local manufacture and received large sums by way of subsidy.

---

90 The facts were not disputed. See the report in the Court below, (1892) 2 Q.B. 484.

91 (1893) 1 Q.B. 256, at p. 269. Cited with approval in State of Bihar v. Bengal C. & P. Works, 1954 A.P. 14.

92 Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co. (1893) 1 Q.B. 256, (1891-4) All E.R. Rep. 127 C.A. See Cheshire & Fifoot; Cases on the Law of Contracts, p.1.

93 1952 A.Cal. 691.

94 Australian Woollen Mills Pty. Ltd. v. The Commonwealth (1954) 92 C.L.R. 424; Edwards v. Skyways Ltd. (1964) 1 W.L.R. 349, 355.

But this was held not to be a contract enforceable against the Commonwealth because the offer was not intended to give rise, on the doing of the act, to an obligation.[95]

It was said without hesitation, several years earlier, by a very learned American writer, that "in a unilateral contract"—i.e., where a performance is given for a promise—"an acceptance in terms may be, and commonly is, dispensed with.[96] Earlier still the question had been judicially thrown out: "If a man writes, 'Send me such and such goods, and I will pay for them,' is not the sending of the goods without more, an acceptance of the offer?"[97] Perhaps it would now be a safe and more elegant way of stating the law to say that a proposal is in every case accepted by performance of its conditions (or perhaps, more accurately, by compliance with its terms); that communication by the acceptor to the proposer or his authorised agent is necessary when the terms consist of or include a counter-promise (for there is no promise at all without communication),[98] but that when only acts are required the communication of their performance may or may not be added as a term of the offer at the will of the proposer, which may be either express or inferred from the nature and circumstances of the proposal.[99] From this point of view, the present section of the Act would be logically prior to s. 7.

Does an act done by a person in ignorance of the proposal amount to "performance of the conditions of the proposal" within the meaning of this section.? According to the High Court of Allahabad it does not. The plaintiff in that case was in the defendant's service as a munib. The defendant's nephew absconded, and the plaintiff volunteered his services to search for the missing boy. In his absence the defendant issued hand-bills offering a reward of Rs. 501 to any one who might find out the boy. The plaintiff traced him and claimed the reward. The plaintiff did not know of the hand-bills when he found out the boy. Held that the plaintiff was not entitled to the reward.[1] The Court declined to follow the English case of Williams v. Carwardine[2] as an authority that if A offers a promise for an act, and B does the act in ignorance of the offer, B is nevertheless entitled to claim performance of the promise from A. The Australian High Court has held that Contractual obligations do not arise if services are rendered which in fact fulfil the terms of an offer but are performed in ignorance that the offer exists. There cannot be assent without knowledge of the offer and reliance upon it.[3] There has been another somewhat peculiar case before the Privy Council.[4] The plaintiff was a grandniece of Papamma, a wealthy Hindu widow, and was brought up by her from early age. At the age of fourteen the plaintiff was married to an ex-zamindar who owned property of considerable value. Papamma was anxious that the plaintiff, although married, should continue to live with her, and she promised that if the plaintiff and her husband would reside with

---

95 Australian Woollen Mills Pty. Ltd. v. Commonwealth (1954) 92 C.L.R. 424. J.C. Smith: 69 L.Q.R. 99; Sir A. Goodhart: 67 L.Q.R. at p. 456 and 69 L.Q.R. 106 refd. to.

96 Langdell: Summary of the Law of Contracts, s. 12.

97 Cresswell J. in Harvey v. Johnston (1848) 6 C.B. 295, at p. 304; 77 R.R. 328, at p 332. The suggestion appears to have escaped the notice of text-writers for many years.

98 Even the English doctrine (unknown in India) that a covenant by deed is binding without communication to the covenantee is no real exception. The maker of the deed is bound, not because a promise not communicated can of itself be binding, but because he has solemnly acknowledged himself to be bound.

99 Definite proposals (e.g., to guarantee a particular ascertained or ascertainable debt) must be distinguished from expression of undefined willingness which only invite a proposal: see Ranga Ram Thakar Das v. Raghbir Singh, 1928 A.L. 938; 113 I.C. 780, and commentary on s. 5 above.

1 Lalman Shukla v. Gauri Dutt (1913) 11 All.L.J. 489; Crown v. Clarke (1927) 40 C.L.R. 227.

2 (1833) 4 B. & A. 621, 5 C. & P. 574, 38 R.R. 328. This is not a decision that an act done in ignorance of an offer can conclude a contract. It is clear from the report in 5 C. & P. 574 that the plaintiff Williams knew of the reward before she gave information to the police. However in Gibbons v. Proctor (1892) 64 L.T. 594, the Court misunderstood the 1833 case, because 5 C. & P. 574, the full report, was not cited, and decided that a person can claim a reward though ignorant of it when the information was supplied, purporting to follow the 1833 case. Thus the only English decision is contrary to the Indian case, but has not been followed by the High Court of Australia: R. v. Clarke (1927) 40 C.L.R. 227, or by the Court of Appeal in South Africa: Bloom v. American Swiss Watch Co. (1915) App. D. 100. Gibbons v. Proctor, might well not be followed in England, as a decision per incuriam. In the United States, a conclusion similar to the Indian case had already been reached: Fitch v. Snedaker (1868) 38 N.Y. 248.

3 Crown (R) v. Clarke (1927) 40 C.L.R. 227.

4 Malraju Lakshmi Venkayyamma v. Venkata Narasimha Appa Rao (1916) 43 I.A. 138; 39 Mad. 509; 34 I.C. 921.

her, she would make provision for her on a fairly ample scale by the purchase of immovable property for her. The plaintiff and her husband accordingly lived with Papamma. In 1893 Papamma bought a village in her own name, but, as she stated, for the appellant. Dissatisfaction arose because it was not transferred to the plaintiff, and the husband consequently ceased to reside with Papamma. Papamma sent messages to the husband asking him to return, but he did not return, In October, 1893, Papamma wrote a letter in her own hand to the plaintiff herself stating that the village had been purchased for the appellant and would be transferred to her upon the writer's death. The plaintiff and her husband thereafter resided with Papamma until Papamma's death in 1899. After Papamma's death the plaintiff instituted a suit for a declaration that she was entitled to the village and for possession thereof. Their Lordships held that the letter of October, 1893, constituted a promise which was accepted by the plaintiff, and that there was a completed contract which entitled the plaintiff to possession of the village: "The Board is of the opinion accordingly that there has been a completed contract. Papamma accomplished her desire, and she obtained the consideration which she had so much at heart. Acceptance of her terms and compliance with her stipulation were made. The words (sic) of Lord St. Leonards in Maunsell v. Hedges[5] might be asked here: 'Was it not a proposal, with a condition, which being accepted, was equivalent to a contract?' Their Lordships do not doubt that it was".[6]

A promised to leave a house to a relation with the arrangement that during the lifetime of the promisor the relation will come and live with him and share expenses. On the basis of the promise the relation sold his cottage and came to live with the promisor who terminated the arrangement and asked the relation to quit. This arrangement was held to be a binding contract and not merely an unenforceable family arrangement.

The promisee was held entitled to damages for the loss of the benefits of living in a big house during the lifetime of the promisor and damages for the loss of prospect of inheriting the house under the promisor's will.[7]

A husband's letter to the wife mentioning the conditions inter alia as to residence and alimony on which he was prepared to allow his wife to divorce him was acted upon by the wife although the acceptance was not communicated to the husband.

This was held a concluded contract supported by consideration because the wife acted upon it and invited the Divorce Court to act upon it.[8] But in Balfour v. Balfour where a husband promised to pay £30 a month to his wife but did not do so, the promise was not enforced as there was no consideration and it was merely a friendly arrangement between the husband and wife who were living together on friendly terms.[9]

A document, purporting to be an agreement, required to be signed by both plaintiff and defendant to operate as binding agreement, was signed by the defendant and the plaintiff acting upon that signature presented for signature some further documents necessary for effectuating the agreement to the defendant, which he signed. This could only have been done on the footing of the plaintiff having accepted the proposed agreement.

This was held to make the contract complete. Any repudiation afterwards was not sufficient to revoke the agreement.[10] Whether or not there is a contractual animus must depend largely on the true construction of the documents from which that animus is to be inferred.[11]

A cheque for a smaller amount in full and final payment of a bigger amount was cashed by the creditor without informing the debtor of his not agreeing to the condition; the creditor must be taken to have thereby agreed to the proposal. His subsequent demand does not make any difference to the position.[12]

---

5 (1854) 4 H.L.C. 1039.
6 (1916) 43 I.A. 138, at p. 146; 39 Mad. 509, at p. 522.
7 Parker v. Clark (1960) 1 W.L.R. 286; Todd v. Nicol (1957) S.A. S.R. 72.
8 Nalini v. Somasundaram, 1964 A.M. 52.
9 (1919) 2 K.B. 571; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep. 860.
10 Robophone Facilities Ltd. v. Blank (1966) 3 A.E.R. 110, 136. Lord Denning M.R. contra—No agreement without signature of plaintiff and communication of acceptance.
11 Gore v. Van der Lann (1967) 1 All E.R. 360; Wilkie v. London Passenger Transport Board (1947) 1 All E.R. 258 dist.
12 Union of India v. Rameshwar Lal Bhagchand (1973) A.Gau. 111, 113, 114; Amrit Banaspati Co. Ltd. v. Union of India (1966) A.A. 104. folld.; Kapurchand v. Himayatali Khan (1963) 2 S.C.R. 168;

Agreement to pay Compound interest.—Where for several years a constituent availed of an overdraft at a bank and periodical statements of account were sent to him showing the charging of a compound interest and no objection was taken by him, he must be taken to have agreed to the rate of interest.[13]

Compound interest, charging of, when binding.—A firm had a cash credit account with a Bank and every month interest was calculated on daily balances which was added on the last day of the month to the account. This amounted to charging compound interest which was held to be contemplated by the agreement—the expression being "shall be charged to such account or accounts".[14]

Conditional offer and acceptance.—When an offer of payment is made with a condition, the payment has to be accepted with the condition or not at all.[15] A conditional offer to pay a specified sum within a specified period in full discharge of the debt is not binding if not accepted as it is not a promise within s. 2(b).[16] The acceptance of a conditional offer is an acceptance of the offer and the condition attached thereto. The acceptance of the offer of a named sum in full payment of his claim by a person operates as a discharge of the claim. The claimant cannot accept the amount and repudiate its being payment in full discharge or claim it as payment of another claim.[17] Therefore acceptance of a cheque by the Railway in full and final discharge of liability cannot be accepted and cashed without the liability standing discharged.[18]

A conditional offer by a hirer under a hire-purchase agreement will not result in a contract if the condition is not or cannot be fulfilled, e.g. inability of the finance company to fulfil the condition of the car remaining substantially in the same condition until acceptance.[19] An application for a free pass, wherein a plaintiff specifically agrees that the use of the pass should be subject to the conditions specified therein, has all the elements of a contract because by submitting the application the plaintiff was accepting the offer of a free pass subject to conditions specified. Each party gave good consideration by accepting a deteriment in return for the advantages gained.[20] An acceptance of a proposal by a company subject to ratification by its Managing Director who was away at the time, becomes a concluded contract on the company writing that the Managing Director would be arriving to sign the agreement, the requirement of a formal document was held not to apply.[21]

In Goshto Bihari v. Surs Estates Ltd.,[22]

P, a proprietor, authorised a broker to sell his premises for a specified sum. The broker approached a well-known firm of solicitors who on behalf of their client offered to buy the premises free from incumbrances and the title being "found good and marketable" provided the client was satisfied with the area of the land and rent of the premises. P's solicitors in reply supplied the required information thus complying with the other party's request as to area and rent and also asked for a draft agreement by a specified date and time otherwise "negotiations... will be treated at an end". When the draft was sent, P refused to sell.

After quoting the following passage from Fry on Specific Performance[23]—

(1963) A.SC. 250 refd.; Dip Chand v. Abhechand (1962) A.Cal. 166; Shyamnagar Tin Factory (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Snow White Food Products Co. (1965) A.Cal. 541 disting.

13 K.V. Satyanarayana v. State Bank of India (1975) A.AP. 113, 119; Balakrishna v. Bhawanipur Banking Corp. (1932) A.Cal. 521; 59 Cal. 662; Haridas v. Mercantile Bank, India, 47 I.A. 17; (1920) A.PC. 61; Hulas Kunwar v. Allahabad Bank (1958) A.Cal. 644 reld. on.

14 Ibid. K.V. Satyanarayana v. State Bank of India (1975) A.A. 113, 117.

15 Union of India v. Gangadhar Mimraj (1962) A.P. 372; Amrit Banaspati v. Union of India (1966) A.A. 104.

16 Papraich Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Papraich Sugar Mills Mazdoor Union (1957) S.C.R. 872; (1957) A.S.C. 95; Shyam Sundar v. Parlakimedi Municipality (1964) A.Or. 111.

17 State of Bihar v. Charanjit Lal, 1960 A.P. 139; Faithful Croft v. Benjamin Lumley, 10 E.R. 1459, 1468; Sheikh Mohammad Jan v. Munshi Ganga Bishan, 38 I.A. 80; Ishaq Abdul Karim v. Madanlal (1965) A.A. 34. See also infra s. 63.

18 Amrit Banaspati v. Union of India, 1966 A.A. 104. See also cases under s. 63.

19 Financings Ltd v. Stimson (1962) 1 W.L.R. 1184; (1962) 3 All E.R. 386.

20 Gore v. Van der Lann (1967) 1 All E.R. 360, 366; Wilkie v. London Passenger Board (1947) 1 All E.R. 258 dist.

21 Municipal Committee Harda v. Harda Electric Supply Co., 1964 A.MP. 101.

22 (1960) A.Cal. 752.

23 Fry on Specific Performance, p. 162 (6th Ed.).

"The contracting parties may be indicated by description instead of by name provided the description is sufficient to preclude any fair dispute as to the identity."

the Calcutta High Court held that when a reputed firm of solicitors writes to say that one of their clients is willing to purchase the property there is no scope for dispute about the identity of the purchaser and there is no difficulty in ascertaining who the purchaser is "so as to either make the contract uncertain on that ground or unenforceable by specific performance.[24] If there is a prior agreement that contract forms if not returned unsigned with a letter shall amount to acceptance, then the non-return of the contract is acceptance but that is not so if there is no prior agreement.[25] This will apply to arbitration agreements also.[26]

Contract vague.—A condition in a letter of acceptance that it was subject to agreement for a satisfactory mortgage is vague and unenforceable.[27] But the words "22,000 standards of soft wood of fair specifications over the season 1930" are not vague to make a contract.[28]

Course of dealing—implied when.—The Court of Appeal has held that three or four transactions in the course of five years are not enough to establish a course of dealing.[29]

Acceptance by receiving consideration.—The second branch of the section as to "acceptance of any consideration," etc. is rather obscure. It is hard to say with any certainty what particular class or classes of transactions it covers, and the words seem more appropriate to gifts or transfers of property than to contracts. It is generally sound principle, no doubt, that what is offered on conditions must be taken as it is offered. The use of the word "reciprocal" is curious, for it hardly fits the most obvious class of cases, as where goods are sent on approval, and the receiver keeps them with the intention of buying them. Here the seller need not and commonly does not offer any promise, and there is therefore no question of a reciprocal promise as defined in the Act (s. 2(f)). No doubt the acceptance of an offered consideration, as such, amounts to giving the promise (whether reciprocal or not) for which it was offered, or else raises an equivalent obligation. But a thing which is offered in one right and for one purpose may be taken under a different claim of right and with a different intent; and in that case (which is exceptional but of some importance) the legal result will not be a contract between the parties, whatever else it is capable of being, unless indeed the party receiving the thing so conducts himself as to lead the proposer reasonably to conclude that there is an acceptance according to the offer; and then the proposer can hold him liable on the universal principle that a man's reasonably apparent intent is taken in law to be his real intent. We cannot suppose that the present section is intended to preclude all inquires of this kind by making every receipt in fact of a thing offered by way of consideration a conclusive acceptance of the proposal. It has been applied however to the case of a bank's customer receiving notice, which he did not answer, of an increase in the rate of interest on overdrafts, and afterwards obtaining a further advance; held that he accepted a consideration offered by the bank within the terms of this section[30] and as a consideration for that "reciprocal promise" the bank offers to desist from discontinuing the overdraft or from immediate recall of its debt.[31]

If 'A' is under a contractual obligation to 'B' and performs or promises to perform part of that obligation in return for 'B's' promise to forego the balance such performance or pro-

---

24 Goshto Bihari v. Surs Estate Ltd. (1960) A.Cal. 752.

25 Gaddarmal v. Chandrabhan (1968) A.A. 292; disting. Gaddarmal v. Tata Industrial Bank, 49 All. 674; and Alfred Domingo v. D'Souza, 50 All. 695; and Haji Mohammad v. E. Spinner & Co., 24 Bom. 510; and Paul Felthouse v. Bindley, 142 E.R. 1087.

26 Gaddarmal v. Chandrabhan (1968) A.A. 292; Jugal Kishore v. Goolbai (1955) 2 S.C.R. 857; (1955) A.SC. 812.

27 Lee Parker v. Izzet (1972) 1 W.L.R. 775.

28 Hillas & Co. v. Arcos Ltd. (1932) All E.R. Rep. 494.

29 Hollier v. Rambler Motors Ltd. (1972) 2 Q.B. 71; (1972) 1 All E.R. 399; (1972) 2 W.L.R. 401.

30 Gaddar Mal v. Tata Industrial Bank (1927) 49 All. 674; 100 I.C. 1023; 1927 A.A. 407. Followed in Behari Lal v. Radhyi Shyam, 1953 A.A. 745; Hulas Kanwar v. Allahabad Bank Ltd., 1958 A.Cal. 644 (overdraft kept alive for 3 years).

31 Hulas Kanwar v. Allahabad Bank Ltd., 1958 A.Cal. 644; Haridas Ranchhordas v. Mercantile Bank, 47 I.A. 17; Bruce v. Hunter (1813) 3 Camp. 467; Bata Krishna Pramanie v. Bhawanipore Banking Corporation Ltd., 59 Cal. 662; 1932 A.Cal. 521; Gaddarmal v. Tata Industrial Bank, 49 All. 674; 1927 A.A. 407.

mise on 'A's' part is not consideration for 'B's' promise; for 'A' is doing or promising no more than he was already obliged to do.

But if 'B' now sues 'A' on the original contract, 'A' may use 'B's' promise as a defence to the action provided that 'A' can show (1) that he has acted or omitted to act in reliance upon 'B's' promise; (2) that by this act or omission he has altered his position (for the worse); (3) that it is inequitable to allow 'B' to sue on the original obligation.[32]

No offer for Sale.—An invitation to treat is not an offer capable of coversion into a contract by acceptance, but represents a process of negotiation that precedes the making of a definite offer. The display of goods in a shop with price attached is only an invitation to treat.[33]

In an English case the facts were that a man advertised saying "Quality British A.B.-C.R..... Bramblefinch cocks, Bramblefinch hens, 25s. each". It was inserted under the general heading "Classified Advertisements" and there is no use of the words "offer for sale". One 'T' having seen the advertisement wrote for a hen which was sent to him. The advertiser was charged with unlawfully offering for a certain live bird contrary to the Protection of Wild Birds Act, 1954. The Justices were of the opinion that the advertisement was an offer for sale and convicted the adversary. On appeal it was held that the advertisement in the present case constitution in law an invitation to treat, not an offer for sale and the offence charged against the accused was not established.[34]

In another case a shopkeeper displayed in his shop window a knife with a price ticket behind it. There was a charge for offering for sale flick knife which was prohibited. But it was held that the shopkeeper was not guilty because the displaying of the knife in the shop window was merely an invitation to treat and he had not thereby offered the knife for sale.[35]

Promises, express or implied.

9. In so far as the proposal or acceptance of any promise is made in words, the promise is said to be express. In so far as such proposal or acceptance is made otherwise than in words, the promise is said to be implied.

Express and tacit promises.—This section assumes rather than lays down that which we have already found it needful to mention in the course of the commentary, namely, that both proposals and acceptances may take place without express words. An implied promise, in the sense of the Act, is a real promise, though not conveyed in words. It must be distinguished from the promises frequently said in English books to be implied by law, which were fictions required by the old system of pleading to bring cases of "relations resembling those created by contract" (ss. 68-72, below) within the recognised forms of action, and sometimes to give the plaintiff the choice of a better form of action. Thus, if the plaintiff desired to sue for a liquidated sum in the general form of assumpsit instead of in the less convenient form of debt, the law conclusively "implied" a promise to pay the debt, though there might not have been any promise in fact. The actual promise "made otherwise than in words" is a matter of fact which in common law practice would be established by the verdict of a jury; whereas in the case of the fictitious promise a jury might have to find the facts on which the law proceeded, but would not have been allowed to find that there was no real promise.

A tacit promise may be implied from a continuing course of conduct as well as from particular acts. Strictly speaking the word "implied" more appropriately applies to contracts implied by law but it is sometimes used to designate what may be called tacit contracts, i.e. contracts where proposal or the acceptance or both are signified not by words but by acts or conduct. But the acts or conduct must be such that it can only give rise to the inference that there must have been an implied offer and acceptance. If they are not consistent with there being an offer and acceptance they cannot give rise to a tacit or implied contract.[36] An "express con-

32 Foakes v. Beer (1884) 9 App. Cas. 605; (1881-5) All E.R. Rep. 106.
33 Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain v. Boots Cash Chemists (Southern) Ltd. (1953) 1 Q.B. 401; (1953) 1 All E.R. 482; (1953) 2 W.L.R. 427.
34 Partridge v. Crittenden (1968) 2 All E.R. 421, 424.
35 Fisher v. Bell (1960) 3 All E.R. 731.
36 Umed Singh Hamir Singh v. Marsien Mills, 1959 A.B. 143.

tract" means the reciprocal promises contained in words of the contract or resulting from a true construction of the excluded stipulations which may arise out of any usage or custom or which may be inferred from the conduct or course of dealings between the parties.[37] Thus an agreement between partners to vary the terms of the partnership contract may "either be express or be implied from a uniform course of dealing" (s. II(1) of the Indian Partnership Act, 1932, which reproduces well-settled English law). Again when a customer of a bank has not objected to a charge of compound interest in accordance with the usual course of business there is an implied promise to pay the charge.[38] Where parties have acted on the terms of an informal document which has passed between them, but has never been executed as a written agreement or expressly assented to by both, it is a question of fact whether their conduct establishes an implied agreement to be bound by those terms.[39] Questions may arise whether all the terms of another document are incorporated in a contract, when the contract refers to that document. The terms of a document can be incorporated by reference, when they are not inconsistent with the express terms of the incorporating document, and are not repugnant to the transaction which that document represents.[40] The Madras High Court has held that a contract of sale is a consensual act. The parties are free to settle any terms they please.[41]

The language of the section appears to assume that the terms of a contract may be (as undoubtedly they may, by familiar law and practice) partly express and partly implied. A term which, in the opinion of the Court, results from the true construction of the language used by the parties may be said to be implicit in that language, but in the sense of the present section it is not implied; for it is contained in the words of the agreement,[42] though not apparent on the face of them. But there is a class of cases, of considerable importance in England, where the parties are presumed to have contracted with tacit reference to some usage well known in the district or in the trade, and whatever is prescribed by that usage becomes an additional term of the contract, if not contrary to the general law or excluded by express agreement. Such terms are certainly implied, as resulting not from the words used, but from a general interpretation of the transaction with reference to the usual understanding of persons entering on like transactions in like circumstances.[43] In India most of the cases of this kind which have been reported in the High Courts appear to be on implied contracts to pay interest. Such a contract may exist by reason of mercantile usage.[44] The ground on which usages of this kind are enforced is not that they have any intrinsic authority, but that the parties are deemed to have contracted with reference to them. They need not, accordingly, be ancient or universal. It is enough that they are in fact generally observed by persons in the circumstances and condition of the parties.

No Implied Contracts under Art. 299.—There can be no implied contract between the Government and another person because that would nullify the provisions of Art. 299 (1)[45] and therefore no contract will be inferable from facts and circumstances and a contract not

---

37 Ramamoorthy v. Satyanarayana, 1958 A.AP. 550, 554.

38 Haridas Ranchordas v. Mercantile Bank of India (1920) 47 I.A. 17; 44 Bom. 474; 55 I.C. 522 (dist. in Gaddar Mal v. Tata Industrial Bank, supra, where no usual course of business was proved); Hulas Kanwar v. Allahabad Bank Ltd., 1958 A.Cal. 644; Bruce v. Hunter (1813) 3 Camp. 467; Bata Krishna v. Bhavanipore Banking Corporation Ltd., 59 Cal. 662; (1932) A.Cal. 674; K.V. Suryanarayana v. State Bank of India (1975) A.A.P. 113, 119.

39 Brogden v. Metropolitan Railway Co. (1877) 2 App. Ca. 666. This might also be regarded as a case of acceptance by acting on the terms of a proposal. Bajranglal v. Anandilal (1944) Nag. 101, 1944 A.N. 124. The conduct of the parties coupled with a chitti found sufficient to prove an agreement to pay.

40 Dwarkadas & Co. v. Daluram, 1951 A.Cal. 10, 19.

41 The State of Madras v. Ramalingam (1956) A.M. 695 (case under Sale of Goods Act).

42 We say agreement, not necessarily contract. It often depends on the true construction of an agreement whether it is a contract or not; and for this purpose there is no difference between express and implied terms, see Meherulla v. Sariatulla (1929) 57 Cal. 1093, 1095.

43 See Jiwibai v. Ramkumar (1946) Nag. 824, 838.

44 Juggomohun Ghose v. Manickchund (1859) 7 M.I.A. 263, a new trial was ordered on the ground that the evidence of mercantile usage had not been sufficiently considered. On the new trial the evidence was found insufficient, and on a fresh appeal the Privy Council refused to disturb the judgment: Juggomohun Ghose v. Kaisreechund (1862) 9 M.I.A. 260. See also Ramamoorthy v. Satyanarayana (1958) A.AP. 550, 554; Devi Prasad v. Union of India, 1969 A.B. 163.

45 K.P. Chawdhary v. State of M.P. (1967) A.SC. 203, 206. See cases under "s. 175(3) of Govt. of India Act", s. 65, infra.

complying with the provisions of Art. 299 (1) is not a contract at all and is not enforceable against or by the Government .[46] The Supreme Court held there was no contract either before or after the auction because of Art. 299 (1) and in the absence of that no moneys were recoverable under the Madhya Pradesh Land Revenue Code.[47]

Terms Implied—when business efficacy.— Under the law, apart from the terms imported by mercantile usage, the court may imply terms, which are necessary in order to repair an intrinsic failure of the expression in the contract, in other words, which will implement the presumed intention and give "business efficacy" to the contract.[48] This principle was laid down in the Moorcock[49] and also by the Privy Council.[50] The courts in England have limited the doctrine of "the Moorcock".[51] The current tendency is perhaps summarised in the words of Jenkins L.J.:[52]

"I do not think that the court will read a term into a contract unless, considering the matter from the point of view of business efficacy, it is clear beyond a peradventure that both parties intended a given term to operate, although they did not include it in so many words."[52]

But the Privy Council in an appeal from Australia has held[53] that in the first instance an implied term must be equitable. The other conditions are:

(1) It must be reasonable and equitable
(2) It must be necessary to give business efficacy to the contract and no term can be implied if contract is effective without it.
(3) It must be so obvious that it goes without saying
(4) It must be capable for clear expression
(5) It must not contradict any express term of the contract.

Sellers were held to warrant absolutely that they would obtain an export licence because of the clause "Delivery: prompt as soon as licence granted" which meant that licence would be granted, the only thing was when. In such cases, the warranty is to use reasonable diligence to get the licence.[54] Variation clauses were retrospectively applied because of a stipulation necessary for the business efficacy of the contract.[55] Where the provisions of a lease cannot be carried out and must remain inoperative without implying an easement of necessity into the lease, the court should read the lease in such a way that res magis valeat quam pereat and therefore the right course is to imply an easement of necessity.[56]

When a purchaser buys a house from a builder who contracts to build it, there is a threefold implication: that a builder will do his work in a good and workman like manner; that he will supply good and proper materials which will also apply to materials used before the contract; and that it is reasonably fit for human habitation.[57]

---

46 K.P. Chawdhary v. State of M.P. (1967) A.SC. 203, 206, 207; State of Bihar v. Karamchand Thapar (1962) 1 S.C.R. 827; (1962) A.SC. 110; Bikhraj Jaipuria v. Union of India (1962) 2 S.C.R. 880; (1962) A.SC. 113; State of West Bengal v. B.K. Mondal (1962) Supp. 1 S.C.R. 870; (1962) A.SC. 779; Union of India v. A.L. Rallia Ram (1964) 3 S.C.R. 164; (1963) A.SC. 1685.

47 K.P. Chawdhary v. State of M.P. (1967) A.SC. 203, 207.

48 Krishnarao v. State of Andhra, 1962 A.AP. 249, 252; Re Anglo-Russian Merchant Traders & Butt & Co. (1917) 2 K.B. 679.

49 The Moorcock (1889) 14 P.D. 64; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 530. (It was safe for the ship to be at the wharf.)

50 Kleinert v. Abosso Gold Mining Co. (1913) 58 Sol. Jo. 45; Delhi Cloth & General Mills Ltd. v. K.L. Kapur, 1958 A.Punj. 93, 101 (If it is so obvious that it goes without saying); Narayana Rao v. Rama Chandra (1959) A.AP. 370, 374: U.G.S. Finance v. National Mortgage Bank of Greece (1964) 1 Lloyds Rep. 446, 543 (per Pearson L.J.).

51 (1889) 14 P.D. 64.

52 Sethia (1944) Ltd. v. Partabmull Rameshwar (1950) 1 All E.R. 51 at p. 59 (C.A.). See also Compagnie Algerienne de Meuniere v. Katana Soc., etc. (1960) 2 Q.B. 115; (1960) 2 All E.R. 55; Debi Prasad Khandelwal & Sons v. Union of India (1969) A.B. 163.

53 B.P. Refinery (Westernport) Pty Ltd. v. Shire of Hastings (1976) 52 A.L.J.R. 20. The Moorcock (1889) 14 P.D. 64 (C.A.); (1886-9) All E.R. Rep. 530.

54 Peter Cassidy Seed Co. Ltd. v. Osuustukkauppa (1957) 1 All E.R. 484.

55 Trollope and Colls Ltd. v. Atomic Power Construction Ltd. (1963) 1 W.L.R. 333.

56 Wong v. Beaumont Property Trust Ltd. (1964) 2 W.L.R. 1325, 1333 (C.A.).

57 Hancock v. B.W. Brazier (Anerley) Ltd. (1966) 2 All E.R. 901, 903; Lawrence v. Cassel (1930) 2 K.B. 83; (1930) All E.R. Rep. 733; Millar v. Cannon Hill Estates Ltd. (1931) 2 K.B. 113; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 93.

Where the facts and circumstances lead to the irresistible conclusion that the parties must have agreed to do a particular thing on a particular footing and they may not have expressed it in their written contract the Court should imply an agreement or a term to that effect and in doing so the Court does not make a new contract for the parties but it only gives effect to their presumed intention as if they have expressly said to each other that this is our agreement or a term of the bargain.[58]

An unexpressed term could only be implied if it was necessary to give business efficacy to a contract, but it must be a term which the court finds the parties must have contemplated to be a term of their contract. If, however the terms of the contract are explicit and clear and free from ambiguity, those terms will be applied even if the Court considered that some other term will be more appropriate. Therefore in a building Contract if it was clear that phase III was to be completed by a particular date, no term for extension could be implied because of the delay in completion of a penultimate phase.[59]

But this implication may be excluded by an express provision.[60] An implied term, that when a broker is invited to produce an offer, there is a promise by the invitor that it would be accepted, unless just excuse for refusal existed was not raised in Luxor Ltd. v. Cooper.[61] In the case of commercial documents familiar to commercial parties, terms can be implied, in particular as to the mode of carrying out a contract.[62]

Term not implied.—The Court of Appeal refused to imply into the contract a term providing a lock to the dressing room of an actor whose clothes were stolen (a case of master's liability towards servant),[63] or to the term of employment of a house physician who had to reside at a neighbouring hostel provided by the hospital and he was required to leave the key of his bedroom in the lock (also a case of master and servant);[64] or into a contract for a sale of a patent that the patent would be kept alive by the seller;[65] or into a contract for sale of jute which required licence of the Government of India that it was subject to the necessary licences and shipments should be subject to "quota system"; it being within the knowledge of the sellers how much quota they had; and the court would read an implied term only where both parties intended that term to operate;[66] or into a contract, where it was within the power of the owners and outside the power of the charterers, to obtain permission to load. The obligation "expected to load" in the charter party was sufficient for business efficacy;[67] or into a contract, where parties have made express contract for remuneration; the amount of and conditions under which it will become payable must be ascertained by reference to the terms of that contract.[68] From the phrase "purchasers to use diligence to obtain approval of scheme" there is no implied term to appeal to minister if scheme not approved by planning authority. They can rescind contract and recover deposit-Hargreaves Transport v. Lynch, (1969) 1 W.L.R. 215; (1969) 1 All E.R. 455.

A contract for the shipping of goods from Brazil was "subject to any Brazilian export licence" but the goods could not be shipped as the Bank of Brazil could not give a licence except on payment of prices higher than the contract prices.

---

58 Smt. Durga Devi Bhagat v. J.A. Advani & Co. 76 Cal. W.N. 528, 541.

59 Trollope & Colls Ltd. v. N.W. Metropolitian Regional Hospital Board (1973) 2 All E.R. 260 (H.L.).

60 Lynch v. Thorne (1956) 1 A.E.R. 744; Hancock v. B.W. Brazier (Anerley) Ltd. (1966) 2 K.B. 113; (1931) 2 All E.R. 901, 904.

61 (1941) 1 All E.R. 33, 39 (H.L.).

62 Scammel v. Outston, 1941 A.C. 251; Hilas & Co. v. Arcos Ltd., 147 L.T. 503.

63 Deyong v. Shenburn (1946) 1 All E.R. 226.

64 Edwards v. West Herts Group Hospital Management Committee (1957) 1 All E.R. 541.

65 Re Railway & Electric Appliances Co. (1888) 38 Ch.D. 597.

66 Sethia (1944) Ltd. v. Partabmull Rameshwar (1950) 1 All E.R. 51 (C.A.); (1951) 2 All E.R.

67 Compagnie Algerienne de Meuniere v. Katana Societa (1960) 2 W.L.R. 719, 724 (C.A.). Dictum of Scrutton L.J. in re Comptoir Commercial Anversois & Power, Son & Co. (1920) 1 K.B. at p. 899 applied. "It must be such a necessary term that both parties must have intended that it should be a term of the contract and have only not expressed it."

68 Jones v. Lowe (1945) K.B. 73; (1945) 1 All E.R. 194; Raja Ram Jaiswal v. Ganesh Prasad (1959) A.A. 29.

The court did not insert an implied term that if the sellers could not obtain a licence at the contract prices, they would have an option to cancel.[69] But Lord Atkin observed in Bell's case:[70]

"Nothing is more dangerous than to allow oneself the liberty to construct for the parties contracts which they have not in terms made by importing implications which would appear to make the contract more businesslike or more just. The implications to be made are to be no more than are "necessary" for giving business efficacy to the transaction... a condition should not be implied unless the new state of facts makes the contract something different in kind from the contract in the original state of facts."[70]

No term to be imported.—If a contract is reduced into writing no unexpressed condition should be considered as implied in the contract except such terms as are necessary to give the transaction the efficacy which the parties must have intended to give it. Therefore, if the contract can be performed as it stands and is effective, no term or condition can be imported simply because it would seem reasonable to imply such a term.[71]

The Headmasters of Secondary Schools allow their pupils to appear for examinations of the Secondary Board under implied terms of the contract of education.[72]

Incorporation of Conditions of Contract.—The reference in the purchase order to the respondent's General Conditions of contract obtainable on request was sufficient to incorporate into the contract between the parties the general conditions of contract and the meaning reasonably to be attributed to the reference was that the conditions referred to were those current at the date of the contract.[73]

Variation of Terms—effect of.—A new condition that withdrawal of the tender is liable to the contractor being blacklisted cannot be subsequently inserted to operate retrospectively.[74]

---

69 Brauer & Co. v. James Clark (1952) 2 All E.R. 497, 500.
70 Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 32 (per Lord Atkin).
71 Navnithal v. Kishanchand & Co. (1956) A.B. 151, 153; Harnandrai v. Pragdas, 50 I.A. 9; 1923 A.PC. 54 reld. on; Ganga Saran v. Ram Chand Ram Gopal (1952) S.C.R. 36; 1952 A.SC. 54. But see the observations of Seller J. quoted in Brauer & Co. v. James Clark (1952) 2 All E.R. 497, 500.
72 Sophy Kelly v. State of Maharashtra (1968) A.B. 156, 168-9.
73 Smith v. South Wales Switchgear Ltd., (1978) 1 All E.R. 18.
74 Bhim Sain v. Union of India (1981) A.D. 260.

CHAPTER II

OF CONTRACTS, VOIDABLE CONTRACTS AND VOID AGREEMENTS

What agreements are contracts.

10. All agreements are contracts if they are made by the free consent of parties competent to contract, for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object, and are not hereby expressly declared to be void.

Nothing herein contained shall affect any law in force in India, and not hereby expressly repealed, by which any contract is required to be made in writing or in the presence of witnesses, or any law relating to the registration of documents.

The first paragraph of this section is developed and applied by the more specific provisions of several following sections, which will be considered as they occur.

As to contracts required to be in writing.—See s. 25, sub-ss. 1 and 3, and s. 28, Exception 2, below. See also Indian Companies Act, 1956, s. 15, as to memorandum of association, s.30 as to articles of association, and s. 46 as to contracts by companies. In this connection may also be noted the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, which require a writing in the case of sale (s.54), of a mortgage (s. 59), lease (s.107) and gift (s.123), and the provisions of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 which require a trust to be created in writing (s. 5); but these are not cases of contract in the proper sense of the word. Acknowledgements to save the law of limitation are required to be in writing by s.18 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Arbitration agreements under the Arbitration Act, 1940, are similarly required to be in writing.

Oral and documentary evidence.—The Act does not deal with the kind of proof generally required to establish the facts constituting a contract. In India the law on that subject is codified in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. See especially ch. VI of that Act, ss. 91 et seq. as to the exclusion of oral by documentary evidence.

Variance between print and writing.—Print and other mechanical equivalents of handwriting are generally in the same position with regard to rules of evidence and construction. But where a contract is partly printed in a common form and partly written, the words added in writing are entitled, as Lord Ellenborough said in a judgment repeatedly approved,[1] if there should be any reasonable doubt upon the sense and meaning of the whole, to have a greater effect attributed to them than to the printed words; inasmuch as the written words are the immediate language and words selected by the parties themselves for the expression of their meaning, and the printed words are a general formula adapted equally to their case and that of all other contracting parties upon similar occasions. But the print is not to be discarded altogether, and the Court should discover the real contract of the parties from the printed as well as from the written words.[2]

As to the law relating to Registration.—S. 17 of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, specifies documents which require to be registered; and s. 49 of the same Act provides that no document required by s. 17 to be registered shall affect any immovable property, unless it has been registered in accordance with the provisions of that Act.

Contracts.—A true contract requires the agreement of parties freely made with full knowledge and without any feeling of restraint. Under s.10 an agreement is a contract if it is made for a lawful purpose and object. Therefore an agreement between bidders at an auction

---

1 Robertson v. French (1803) 4 East, 130; 7 R.R. 538, 540, approved in H.L.; Glynn v. Margetson (1893) A.C. 351; 357; in C.A., Standard Marine Insurance Co. (1889) 22 Q.B.D. 499, 501; Noorbhai v. Allabux (1917) 19 Bom.L.R. 845; 42 I.C. 820; Moolchand Kesarimall v. Associated Agencies (1941) 2 M.L.J. 281; 1942 A.M. 139; Riley v. Coglan (1967) 1 W.L.R. 1300, 1308; China Cotton Exporters v. Biharilal Cotton Mills (1961) 3 S.C.R. 845; (1961) A.SC. 1295. See supra, s. 2.

2 Paul Beier v. Chotalal Javerdas (1906) 30 Bom. 1.

Courts also recognize that all cases may not be governed by the same rule. In Kashiba v. Shripat[19] a Hindu widow above the age of sixteen and under the age of eighteen years, whose husband had his domicile in British India, executed a bond in Kolhapur (outside British India), where she was then residing. As the widow had not changed her domicile after the husband's death, her domicile was the same as that of her husband at his death, namely, British India. The question arose whether her liability on the bond was to be governed by the law of Kolhapur (lex loci contractus), or by the law of British India (law of domicile). According to the law obtaining in Kolhapur, which is Hindu law unaffected by the Contract Act, she would have been liable on the bond, as the age of majority according to that law is sixteen years,[20] and the bond was executed by her after she completed her sixteenth year. According to the law in British India, namely, the Contract Act, she was not liable, as the contract was made when she was under the age of eighteen years, and was not ratified by her after she attained her majority. It was held that her capacity to contract was regulated by the Contract Act, being the law of her domicile, and that under the Act she was not liable on the bond. But the Madras High Court[21] has held that where a person aged eighteen domiciled in British India endorsed certain negotiable instruments in Ceylon, by the laws of which he was a minor, he was not liable as an endorse, the contract being a mercantile one and governed by the lex loci contractus.

Minor's agreement.—If the first branch of the rule laid down in the section be converted into a negative proposition, it reads thus: No person is competent to contract who is not of the age of majority according to the law to which he is subject; in other words, a minor is not competent to contract. This proposition is capable of two constructions: either that a minor is absolutely incompetent to contract, in which case his agreement is void, or that he is incompetent to contract only in the sense that he is not liable on the contract though the other party is, in which case there is a voidable contract. If the agreement is void, the minor can neither sue nor be sued upon it, and the contract is not capable of ratification in any manner;[22] if it is voidable, he can sue upon it, though he cannot be sued by the other party, and the contract be ratified by the minor on his attaining majority. The former current of Indian decisions was that, as under the English law, a minor's contract is only voidable at his option.[23] But in 1903, as mentioned above,[24] the Privy Council ruled that "the Act makes it essential that all contracting parties should be competent to contract," and especially provides that a person who by reason of infancy is incompetent to contract cannot make a contract within the meaning of the Act. It was accordingly held that a mortgage made by a minor is void, and a money-lender who has advanced money to a minor on the security of the mortgage is not entitled to repayment of the money under ss. 64 and 65 on a decree being made declaring the mortgage invalid. This decision leaves no doubt that a mortgage by a minor being void, no decree can be passed on the mortgage either against the mortgagor personally or against the mortgaged property.[25] Although an agreement with a minor is void, a compromise of a suit to which a minor is a party and which is made a decree of the Court is not void but voidable. If therefore, the minor desires to enforce it, it is not open to the defendant to plead that the compromise was void on the ground that the guardian did not obtain the consent of the Court.[26]

It was held by a Divisional Court that an infant who has paid for goods and received and used them cannot recover the money back.[27]

The Andhra Pradesh High Court has held that a contract with a minor is a nullity for want of legal competency and is not enforceable unless otherwise provided by Statute. It is

---

19 (1894) 19 Bom. 697. See also Rohilkhand and Kumaun Bank, Ltd. v. Row (1885) 7 All. 490.
20 See Mayne's Hindu Law, 10 ed., s. 229
21 T.N.S. Firm v. Mohammad Hussain, 1933 A.M. 756; 65 Mad. L.J. 458; 146 I.C. 608.
22 Suraj Narain v. Sukhu Ahir (1928) 51 All. 164; 112 I.C. 159; 1928 A.A. 440; cp. Indeshri (or Bindeshari) Bakhsh Singh v. Chandika Prasad (1926) 49 All. 137 100 I.C. 748; 1927 A.A. 242. See notes on s. 25, below.
23 At this distance of time it seems useless to cite these judgments.
24 See supra, "Infancy".
25 Saral Chand Mitter v. Mohun Bibi (1898) 25 Cal. 371, in which a mortgage decree was passed, is no longer good law. See judgment of Jenkins, J. on p. 385 of the report.
26 Hashem Howladar v. Sreenath, A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 438, 224 I.C. 570.
27 Valentini v. Canali, 24 Q.B.D. 166.

not void but voidable at his option, if it appears to the Court to be for his benefit, it may be binding, and especially if the contract is for necessaries. There was formerly, however, a current opinion, countenanced by the lax forms in which some of the decisions were expressed, that infants' agreements were of three kinds: namely, that some were wholly void as being obviously not for the infant's benefit, some valid as being obviously for his benefit, and all others voidable. This opinion is now quite exploded,[14] but it was to be found in text-books at the time when the Indian Contract Act was framed. Still, there was never any authority for saying that infants were absolutely incompetent to contract. The literal construction of the present section requires being of the age of majority according to one's personal law as a necessary element of contractual capacity. Since, however, the Act, as a whole, purports to consolidate in the English law of contracts, with only such alteration as local circumstances require, and there is no trace in the report prefixed to the original draft, or any other relative document, of any intention to make a new rule as to the contracts of minors, the Indian High Courts endeavoured to avoid a construction involving so wide a departure from the law to which they had been accustomed; but the Privy Council in 1903 declared that the literal construction is correct, and suggested that it was intended to give effect to the rule of Hindu law on the subject.[15]

We may mention that in England the powers of infants to contract and to ratify their contracts have been much restrained by the Infants' Relief Act, 1874, a statute of good intentions and imperfect workmanship; and the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, s. 2, has declared the liability of infants to pay a reasonable price[16] for necessaries sold and delivered to them, and has defined necessaries according to the latest and best judicial authorities. These enactments, of course, have no authority in India, and can be referred to only for the purpose of illustrating the common law rules. The result of the statutes is to bring the English law much nearer to the Indian law, for most practical purposes, than it might seem at first sight. We proceed to the details of the Indian law.

Age of majority.—This is now regulated by the Indian Majority Act, 1875. S. 3 of the Act declares that every person domiciled in India shall be deemed to have attained his majority when he shall have completed his age of eighteen years, and not before. In the case, however, of a minor of whose person or property or both a guardian has been appointed by a Court, or of whose property the superintendence is assumed by a Court of Wards, before the minor has attained the age of eighteen years, the Act provides that the age of majority shall be deemed to have been attained on the minor completing his age of twenty-one years. S.2 of the Act declares that nothing in the Act contained shall affect the capacity of any person to act in matters of marriage, dowry, divorce and adoption. An order discharging the guardian of a minor under s. 48 of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, does not terminate the minority when it is obtained by the fraud practised upon the Court by a third party.[17]

"Law to which he is subject."—The age of majority as well as the disqualification from contracting is to be determined by the law to which the contracting party is subject. The general principle of English law is that the capacity of a person to enter into a contract is decided by the law of his domicile, and not the law governing the substance of the contract; but the later trend of authority is not to recognize the law of domicile as having an exclusive prerogative in all cases; and there is a body of English opinion in favour of the lex loci contractus, the place where the contract is made, in the case of what are usually described as ordinary mercantile contracts; while in the case of contracts relating to land the lex situs, the place where the land is situated, has a prior claim.[18] The following examples show that the Indian

---

14 Anson, Law of Contract, 23rd ed., 184 seq.

15 Mohori Bibee v. Dhurmodas Ghose (1903) 30 I.A. 114; 30 Cal. 539; followed in Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakhruddin Mahomed (1912) 39 Cal. 232; 13 I.C. 331; Ma Hnit v. Hashim (1920) 22 Bom.L.R. 531; 55 I.C. 793.

16 It need not be the price contracted for. We shall recur to the significance of this point.

17 Subramaniam v. Doraisinga (1913) 24 Mad L.J. 49; 16 I.C. 943.

18 See Dicey: Conflict of Laws, 7th ed., pp. 740-745; Cooper v. Cooper (1883) 13 App. Cas. 88, esp. at pp. 105, 108; Bank of Africa v. Cohen (1909) 2 Ch. 129; Republic of Gautemala v. Nunez (1927) 1 K.B. 669; In re Auziani (1930) 1 Ch. 407. The suggestion with regard to mercantile contracts dates from Lord Eldon: Male v. Roberts (1790) 3 Esq. 163.

distinguish them; and all three cases seem to have been really decided on the ground that the contract was for the infant's benefit and that it would be unjust in the circumstances to deprive the latter of that benefit. But there is nothing in the Indian Contract Act corresponding to the rule of English law (saved by the Infants Relief Act, 1874) which makes a contract for the infant's benefit enforceable; all contracts in India made by an infant are void. In Raj Rani v. Prem Adib,[39] a film producer entered into an agreement with a minor girl to act in a film, and the same agreement was entered into by the father of the minor on her behalf with the producer. On a breach of the agreement, the minor sued the producer through her father as next friend. Desai J. held that the agreement with the father was void, seeing that the consideration moving from the father was the minor's promise to act, and as the minor could not in law promise, there was no consideration. On the other hand, had the consideration moved from the father in the shape of an undertaking by him that his daughter should act, the father could have sued, but could recover only the damages he had suffered.

Where a guardian, who himself is a partner along with other persons, gives consent in regard to the admission of a minor to the benefit of the partnership he can agree on behalf of the minor to be admitted to such benefits. Such a partnership deed is valid and can be registered under the Income Tax Act.[40] In an income tax case where the question was the registration of a firm, it was held by the Supreme Court that where one or more members of a Hindu undivided family enter into a partnership with a stranger, qua the latter they become partners and such a partnership will not be invalid merely because two or more of the persons who have agreed to share the profits of the business are members of the undivided family. In such a case it is not the Hindu undivided family which becomes a partner but it is the individual members who enter into the partnership.[41]

Fraudulent Representation.—In Mohori Bibee's case (30 I.A. 114) cited above it was contended on behalf of the money-lender that an order should be made for a return of the money advanced by him under s.41 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877. As to this part of the case the Privy Council said: "Another enactment relied upon as a reason why the mortgage money should be returned is s.41 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), which is as follows: 'Sec. 41. On adjudging the cancellation of an instrument the Court may require the party to whom such relief is granted to make any compensation to the other which justice may require.' Sec. 38 provides in similar terms for a case of rescission of a contract. These sections, no doubt, do give a discretion to the Court; but the Court of first instance, and subsequently the Appellate Court, in the exercise of such discretion, came to the conclusion that under the circumstances of this case justice did not require them to order the return by the respondent of money advanced to him with full knowledge of his infancy, and their Lordships see no reason for interfering with the discretion so exercised".[42]

The decision has been regarded by the Indian Courts as an authority that the circumstances of a particular case may be such that, having regard to s. 41 of the Specific Relief Act, the Court may, on adjudging the cancellation of an instrument at the instance of a minor, require the minor to make compensation to the other party to the instrument.[43] It has accordingly been held that where a mortgage of his property by a minor is set aside by the Court, the Court may order compensation to the lender if the loan was obtained by the minor by fraudulently representing that he was of full age.[44] It was similarly been held that where a sale of his property by a minor, which, of course, is void under the Privy Council ruling, is set

---

39 Raj Rani v. Prem Adib (1949) 51 Bom.L.R. 256, 1949 A.B. 215.

40 Addepally Nageswara Rao and Brothers v. Commissioner of Income Tax. A.P. 79 I.T.R. 306.

41 Commissioner of Income Tax v. Hukamchand Mannalal & Co. (1971) A.SC. 383, 384, 385. Pichappa Chettiar v. Chokalingam Pillai (1934) A.PC. 192; Charan Das Haridas v. Commissioner of Income Tax, Bombay North Kutch and Saurashtra Ahmedabad (1960) 39 I.T.R. 202; (1960) A.SC. 910 reld. on.

42 (1903) 30 I.A. 114, at p. 125; 30 Cal. 539, at p. 549; Thurston v. Nottingham Permanent Building Society (1902) 1 Ch. 1, 13 on app. (1903) A.C. 6.

43 See Dattaram v. Vinayak (1903) 28 Bom. 181, at p. 190; Manmatha Kumar v. Exchange Loan Co., 1936 A.Cal. 567; 41 C.W.N. 115; 165 I.C. 363; (1937) 1 Cal. 283; s. 33 of S.R.A. 1963.

44 Kamta Prasad v. Sheo Gopal Lal (1904) 26 All. 342; Indar Singh v. Narindar Singh (1904) Punjab Rec. No. 33; Vaikuntarama v. Authimoolam (1915) 38 Mad. 1071.

aside by the Court, the Court may, if satisfied that the sale was procured by the minor by a fraudulent misrepresentation as to his age, direct the minor to make compensation to the purchaser.[45] There appears to be some difference of judicial opinion whether something in the nature of fraud on the part of the minor must be shown before the Court will exercise the powers given it under s.41.[46] It is submitted that the Court's discretion is not to be fettered, though, no doubt, it will always be more ready to exercise its discretion where the element of fraud is present.

It is well established in English law that an infant cannot be made liable for what was in truth a breach of contract by framing the action ex delicto. "You cannot convert a contract into a tort to enable you to sue an infant": Jennings v. Rundall,[47] where it was held that an infant was not liable in tort for overriding a hired mare. A minor is not liable in tort if the tort is directly connected with the contract and is the means of effecting it and is a parcel of the same transaction.[48] "But if an infant's wrongful act, though concerned with the subject-matter of a contract, and such that, but for the contract, there would have been no opportunity of committing it, is nevertheless independent of the contract in the sense of not being an act of the kind contemplated by it, then the infant is liable. The distinction is established and well marked by a case where an infant hired a horse for riding, but not for jumping, the plaintiff refusing to let it for that purpose; the defendant allowed his companion to use the horse for jumping, whereby it was injured and died. It was held that using the horse in this manner positively forbidden by the contract was a mere trespass, for which the defendant was liable: Burnard v. Haggis".[49] This view of one of the learned authors[50] was adopted by the Court of Appeal in Ballett v. Mingay,[51] where a successful action in tort was brought to recover from an infant certain articles lent to him which he had, without authority, lent to a friend. In R. Leslie, Ltd. v. Sheill[52] the Court of Appeal held that where an infant obtains a loan by falsely representing his age, he cannot be made to pay the amount of the loan as damages for fraud, nor can he be compelled in equity to repay the money. As to the extent to which the aid of equity can be invoked in cases of fraudulent misrepresentation as to age Lord Sumner said: "I think the whole current of decisions down to 1913, apart from dicta which are inconclusive, went to show that, when an infant obtained an advantage by falsely stating himself to be of full age, equity required him to restore his ill-gotten gains or to release the party deceived from obligations or acts in law induced by the fraud, but scrupulously stopped short of enforcing against him a contractual obligation entered into while he was an infant, even by means of a fraud... Restitution stopped where repayment began.[53] His Lordship then proceeded: "The money was paid over in order to be used as the defendant's own, and he has so used it and spent it. There is no question of tracing it, no possibility of restoring the very thing got by the fraud, nothing but compulsion through a personal judgment to pay an equivalent sum out of his present or future resources, in a word, nothing but a judgment in debt to repay the loan. I think this would be nothing but enforcing a void contract. So far as I can find, the Court of Chancery never would have enforced any liability under circumstances like the present, any more than a Court of law would have done so".[54] In R. Leslie, Ltd. v. Sheill the loan was not secured by the mortgage. The principle of that decision was applied by the Privy Council to a 45 Jagar Nath Singh v. Lalta Prasad (1908) 31 All. 21; Shiam Lal v. Ram Piari (1909) 32 All. 25; Balak Ram v. Dadu (1910) Punj. Rec. No. 76; Muhammad Said v. Bishambhar Nath (1923) 45 All. 644; 85 I.C. 79; 1924 A.A. 156; s. 33 of 1963 S.R. Act.

---

46 Ko Maung U v. Ma Hla On (1939) Rang. 543; 1939 A.R. 399; 185 I.C. 733; Harimohan v. Dulu Miya (1934) 61 Cal. 1075; 155 I.C. 1017; 1935 A.Cal. 198; contra Hanumantha Rao v. Sitharamayya (1939) Mad. 203; 182 I.C. 639; 1939 A.M. 106.

47 (1799) 8 T.R. 335, 4 R.R. 680.

48 Liverpool Adelphi Loan Association v. Fairhurst (1854) 9 Ex. 422; 96 R.R. 778; Burnard v. Haggis (1863) 32 L.J. (C.P.) 189 per Byles J.; Khan Gul v. Lakha Singh, 9 Lah. 701, 714.

49 (1863) 14 C.B.N.S. 45.

50 Taken from Pollock on Contracts, 13th edn., 63.

51 (1943) 1 K.B. 281.

52 (1914) 3 K.B. 607; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 511; Atiyah; (1959) 22 Mad.L.R. 511, 518.

53 Ibid., at p. 618.

54 Ibid., at p. 619; Leslie Ltd. v. Sheill (1914) 3 K.B. 607; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 511, 518; Atiyah: (1959) 22 Mad.L.R. 273; Mahomed Syedol Ariffin bin Mahomed Ariff v. Yesh Ooi Gark, 43 I.A. 256; (1916) A.P.C. 242; Latcharao v. Bhimmayya (1956) A.Andh. 182.

case from the Straits Settlements where the loan was secured by a mortgage of the minor's property[55] If the defendant is an infant and the cause of action is in substance ex contractu and is so directly connected with the contract of loan that the action would be an indirect way of enforcing that contract, the action would fail. There are no cases which the minor was ordered to pay the plaintiff a sum equal to the principal sum borrowed.[56]

Debt of a minor in bankruptcy.—The judgment of Lindley J. in Re King ex parte Unity Joint Stock Mutual Banking Association[57] was in regard to a debt of a minor provable in bankruptcy which according to Lindley J. was the law in bankruptcy and could not be carried any further.

Where however an infant retains property obtained under the contract from the other party, the equitable remedy of restitution has been applied. even though the infant made no false representation as to his age. In Clarke v. Cobley,[58] a woman, at the time of her marriage with D was indebted to P on two promissory notes. After the marriage, D gave his bond for the amount of the notes, which P then delivered to D. P sued D on the bond. D pleaded infancy. Arden M.R., in the Chancery Court, ordered D to return the notes, and in any action P might bring on them, directed D to refrain from pleading any defence that could not have been pleaded when the bond was given.

In a transaction between an adult and an infant where an infant seeks unfairly to retain the benefit under the transaction while setting up its invalidity (and particularly in the case of an infant fraudulently misrepresenting his age) the courts have not allowed the infant to retain the unfair advantage.[59] Lush J. in Stocks v. Wilson expressed the opinion that delivery of goods to an infant under a contract of sale vests the property in the infant notwithstanding the contract being void.[60] There is a conflict of opinion as to whether this was obiter dictum or not. But the latter view has been accepted in Tasmania and New Zealand.[61] In Stock's case,[62] a minor obtained furniture and other articles by representing himself to be of age and promised to pay £300 therefor. The goods were not necessaries. He sold a portion of the goods and granted a bill of sale for the rest and were subsequently sold to the grantee.

The court held that he was liable to account to the plaintiff for this sum. Thus the judgment was in personam and was criticised in Leslie Ltd. v. Sheil[63] but not overruled.

S. 38 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, as already observed, gives the Court power "to make any compensation which justice may require" in cases where cancellation of a void or voidable written instrument is ordered. The question is whether the Court in exercising this power is bound to follow the principles adopted by the English Courts and so lucidly described by Lord Sumner in R. Leslie, Ltd. v. Sheil.[63] The Lahore High Court has held that the power to give equitable relief is more extensive in India than in England and ordered a money compensation in a case where the infant had misrepresented his age.[64] The court may impose terms on a minor if he seeks its aid as a plaintiff and it may refuse to exercise its jurisdiction if he

---

55 Mahomed Syedol Ariffin v. Yesh Ooi Gark (1916) 43 I.A. 256, at pp. 263-64; (1916) 2 A.C. 575; 39 I.C. 401; 21 C.W.N. 257; these authorities appear to rule out a dictum in Radha Kishan v. Bhore Lal (1928) 50 All. 862; 110 I.C. 373; 1928 A.A. 626. The decision is on the point of estoppel (infra, note 51), but of no value, as authorities, for some reason not apparent, were not even cited. See Radha Shiam v. Behari Lal (1918) 40 All. 558, 559-560. See also Latcharao v. Bhimayya (1956) A.Andh. 182.

56 Kennedy L.J. in Leslie Ltd. v. Sheill (1914) 3 K.B. 607; (1914-15) All E.R. 511, 519.

57 (1858) De G. & J. 63, 44 E.R. 1192.

58 (1789) 2 Cox 173, 30 E.R. 80.

59 Hall v. Wells (1962) Tas.S.R. 122; Valentini v. Canali (1889) 24 Q.B.D. 166 (infant not allowed to keep the goods purchased and recover price without making restitution); Pearce v. Brain (1929) 2 K.B. 310 (infant trading goods for others not permitted to recover them back while retaining benefit); In re Henderson (1916) 12 Tas.L.R. 40 (unpaid seller's right to possession from infant, if price not paid). See ss. 20 and 33 of the Specific Relief Act (47 of 1963).

60 (1913) 2 K.B. 235, 242; 108 L.T. 834.

61 Crisp J. in re Henderson (1916) 12 Tas.L.R. 40; Adams J. in Nelson Guarantee Corporation v. Farrell (1955) N.Z.L.R. 405; Burbury J. in Hall v. Wells (1962) Tas.S.R. 122, 129.

62 Stocks v. Wilson (1913) 2 K.B. 235; 108 L.T. 834.

63 (1914) 3 K.B. 607, 619; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 511 (per Lord Sumner). But see Pollock: Principles of Contract (13th Edn.), pp. 64-65.

64 Khan Gul v. Lakha Singh (1928) 9 Lah. 701; 111 I.C. 175; 1928 A.L. 609. The decision clearly goes happens to be a defendant. All that can reasonably be said is that the court in deciding whether relief against fraud practised by an infant should or should not be granted will consider with other circumstances of the case the fact that the infant is a defendant and not a plaintiff.[65] In a later Full Bench case of Allahabad High Court[66] the Indian and English decisions were exhaustively reviewed and it was held that where money had been borrowed by two minors under a mortgage deed with a fraudulent concealment of their age, the mortgagee was not entitled to a mortgage decree, nor was he entitled to a decree, for the principal money under any equitable principles other than those recognized in England. This is also the view taken by the Nagpur High Court.[67] It is submitted that the judgment of Shadi Lal. CJ., in the Lahore case is the more correct. In India the Court derives its power from a statutory enactment which is expressed in the widest terms, and the word used is "compensation" not "restitution". In ordering compensation the Court is not necessarily giving effect to a contract which is in law a nullity, but is doing its best to put the parties, so far as possible, in the position which they occupied before the void transaction took place and from which one of them was only induced to depart by reason of the minor's fraud. This is not a performance of the contract but a negation of it. The relief is in equity against fraud and not on the contract.[68] This view has now received legislative recognition in the new Specific Relief Act (Act 47 of 1963),[69] and meets the criticism of the Allahabad High Court in Ajudhia Prasad v. Chanda Lal,[70] where it was observed:

> "If the law in England is clear and there is no statutory enactment to the contrary in India, one should hesitate to introduce any supposed rule of equity in conflict with that law."

Thus in no circumstances can a claim for interest be allowed as part of the compensation; for that would be to enforce one of the stipulations of the contract.[71] The nature of the compensation "which justice may require" must depend on the circumstances of each case, and there is nothing which requires that justice to be interpreted as the exact counterpart of the English rules of equity.

Nottingham Permanent Benefit Building Society v. Thurstan[72] was a case in which an infant became a member of a building society and obtained advances of which part was paid by the society to the vendor of a piece of land which the infant had agreed to purchase and the remainder was expended on improvement of the land. The infant gave mortgage in the original form of a building society mortgage to secure the advances and interest. The infant brought an action in the Chancery Division for a declaration that the mortgage was void and she was entitled to have it delivered to her and cancelled.

The mortgage was declared void but the society was held to have a lien on the land for that portion of the advances which had been paid to her. In what cases in particular equity will exert itself is not easy to determine.[73] A Court of Equity cannot say that it is equitable to compel a person to pay any moneys in respect of a transaction which against that person the Legislature has declared to be void.[74] To pass a decree against a minor enforcing his pecuniary liability would, while holding the contract is void and unenforceable at the same time, be passing a decree against him on the footing that he had entered into the contract and had not carried out its terms.

---

beyond the English doctrine of following property which was the ground of Stocks v. Wilson (1913) 2 K.B. 235; see s. 38 of Sp. R. Act of 1963.

65 Khan Gul v. Lakha Singh, 9 Lah. 701, 721. See also Kennedy L.J. in R. Leslie Ltd. v. Sheill (1914) 3 K.B. 607; (1914-15) All E.R. Rep. 511, 519; Latcharao v. Bhimayya (1956) A.Andhra 182 (restitution necessary—Lahore view not accepted).

66 Ajudhia Prasad v. Chandan Lal (1937) All. 860; 170 I.C. 934; 1937 A.A. 610 (F.B.).

67 Tikkilal v. Kowalchand (1940) Nag. 632; 1940 A.N. 327.

68 Khan Gul v. Lakha Singh, 9 Lah. 701, 722.

69 Sections 20 and 33 of Act 47 of 1963 (Specific Relief Act).

70 37 All. 860, 873.

71 Manmatha Kumar v. Exchange Loan Co. (1937) 1 Cal. 283; 1936 A.Cal. 567; 41 C.W.N. 115; 165 I.C. 363. Cf. Kunhipi v. Kalliani, 1939 A.M. 881; (1939) 2 Mad.L.J. 463.

72 1903 A.C. 6; 1900-3, All E.R. 830 refd. to in Mohori Bibee v. Dharmodas Ghose, 30 I.A. 114; 30 Cal. 539.

73 Knight Bruce V.C. in Stikeman v. Dawson (1847) 1 De.G. & Sin. 90; (1843-60) All E.R. Rep. 1076.

74 Romer L.J. in Thurston v. Nottingham Permanent Building Society (1902) Ch. 1, 13 on app. (1903) A.C. 6.

Burden of proof.—A party sued on an instrument who denies liability on the ground that at the date of its execution he was a minor must, of course, prove his allegation.[75]

Estoppel.—If a minor procures a loan or enters into any other agreement by representing that he is of full age, is he estopped by s. 115 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872[76] from setting up that he was a minor when he executed the mortgage? The point was raised, but not decided in Mohori Bibee's case.[77] In that case the Privy Council said: "The Courts below seem to have decided that this section does not apply to infants; but their Lordships do not think it necessary to deal with that question now. They consider it clear that the section does not apply to a case like the present, where the statement relied upon is made to a person who knows the real facts and is not misled by the untrue statement. There can be no estoppel where the truth of the matter is known to both parties, and their Lordships hold, in accordance with English authorities, that a false representation, made to a person who knows it to be false, is not such a fraud as to take away the privilege of infancy." There were many conflicting decisions whether a minor could be estopped by a false representation as to his age. But the question is now settled by the case of Sadik Ali Khan v. Jai Kishore[78] where the Privy Council observed that a deed executed by a minor is a nullity and incapable of founding a plea of estoppel. The principle underlying the decision is that there can be no estoppel against a statute. The Bombay High Court has since this case reversed its former course of decisions.[79] And the law of estoppel in India as contained in section 115 is no different from the law in England.[80]

Mortgages and sales in favour of minors.—S. 7 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, provides that every person competent to contract and entitled to transferable property is competent to transfer such property. But it is not provided anywhere in the Act that a person not competent to contract is incapable of being a transferee of property. It has accordingly been held that though a sale or mortgage of his property by a minor is void,[81] a duly executed transfer by way of sale[82] or mortgage[83] in favour of a minor who has paid the consideration money is not void, and it is enforceable by him or any other person on his behalf. A minor, therefore, in whose favour a deed of sale is executed is competent to sue for possession of the property conveyed thereby.[84] The Patna High Court, however, has held that a lease to a minor is void, as it imposes upon him obligations to pay rent and perform covenants.[85] A lessor—a 75 Narain Singh v. Chiranji Lal. 46 All. 568; 79 I.C. 945; 1924 A.A. 730; followed in Surja v. Suti Prasad (1925) 47 All. 493; 87 I.C. 445.

---

76 "When one person has by his declaration, act or omission intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true, and to act upon such belief, neither he nor his representative shall be allowed in any suit or proceeding between himself and such person or his representative to deny the truth of that thing."

77 (1903) 30 I.A. 114, 122; 30 Cal. 539, 545, referred to by Lord Sumner in his judgment in R. Leslie Ltd. v. Sheill (1914) 3 K.B. 607, at p. 615; Lal Dhar v. Piarey Lal (1921) 19 All L.J. 578; 62 I.C. 258; Bhim Mandal v. Magaram (1961) A.P. 21.

78 1928 A.P.C. 152; 30 Bom.L.R. 1346; 109 I.C. 387; Khan Gul v. Lakha Singh, 9 Lah 701. See Bakaram Januji v. Kashirao (1945) Nag. 1005, 1945 A.N. 288 (where estoppel by res judicata was negatived, in the absence of proof that the minor had knowledge of his infancy at the relevant time); Levene v. Broagham, 25 T.L.R. 365.

79 Gadigeppa v. Balangauda (1931) 55 Bom. 741; 135 I.C. 161; 1931 A.B. 561. Earlier cases are: Kanhaya Lal v. Girdhari Lal (1912) 9 All.L.J. 103; 13 I.C. 956; Vaikuntrama v. Authimoolam (1915) 38 Mad. 1071; 23 I.C. 799; Golam Abdin v. Hem Chandra (1916) 20 C.W.N. 418; 32 I.C. 388.

80 Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha, 19 I.A. 203; 20 Cal. 296; Khan Gul v. Lakha Singh, 9 Lah. 701, 712; Cf. Mohori Bibee v. Dhurmodas Ghose, 30 Cal. 539; 30 I.A. 114.

81 Mohori Bibee v. Dhurmodas Ghose (1903) 30 I.A. 114, 123; 30 Cal. 539, 547.

82 Ulfat Rai v. Gauri Shanker (1911) 33 All. 657; Narain Das v. Musammat Dhania (1916) 38 All. 154; 35 I.C. 23: Munni Koer v. Modan Gopal (1916) 38 All. 62; 31 I.C. 792; Munia v. Perumal (1911) 37 Mad. 390. See also Maghan Duba v. Pran Singh (1908) 30 All. 63 (purchase by a joint Hindu family in the name of a minor member); Collector of Meerut v. Lala Hardian (1945) All. 204, 1945 A.A. 156.

83 Raghava Chariar v. Srinivasa (1917) 40 Mad. 308 (F.B.), overruling Navakotti v. Logalinga (1909) 33 Mad. 312; Madhab Koeri v. Baikuntha Karmaker (1919) 4 Pat.L.J. 682; Zafar Ahsan v. Zubaida Khatun, 121 I.C. 398; (1929) All.L.J. 1114; 1929 A.A. 604.

84 33 All. 657, supra: 38 All. 62, supra: 37 Mad. 390, supra: 38 All. 154, supra: Collector of Meerut v. Lala Hardian (1945) All. 204, 1945 A.A. 156.

85 Pramala Basi Das v. Jogeshar Mandal (1918) 3 Pat.L.J. 518; 46 I.C. 670. S. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act has been amended and a lease must now be executed by both parties. A minor therefore cannot be a lessor or lessee. Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakhar ud Din, 39 I.A. 1; 39 Cal. 232; Raghava Chariar v. Srinivasa, 40 Mad. 308, 335 (Lease is void).

minor—who has been subject to covenants in a lease which are not binding on him has the right to avoid them. But he must elect to avoid the lease as a whole or adopt it; he cannot approbate and reprobate.[86] A guardian of a Muhammadan minor can lease a minor's property. A minor may not be bound by the lease if it is in excess of the guardian's power or not beneficial to him. But it is not the same thing as saying that the contract is void and the other party can ignore it. The minor can sue for the recovery of rent.[87] Similarly where property is conveyed to a minor, and the latter is subsequently ousted on suit by third parties, he is entitled to recover from the vendor the sum which he had paid as purchase money.[88] And it has been held by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court that a mortgage executed in favour of a minor who has advanced the mortgage money is enforceable by him or by any other person on his behalf.[89] The High Court of Madras had held, on the analogy of the above cases, that a promissory note executed in favour of a minor is not void and can be sued upon by him.[90]

Possession lawful at the inception does not become adverse under an arrangement made with a minor as the minor cannot give consent[91] Therefore, if the mortgagor is a minor at the time the agreement for the change of the nature of possession, the possession does not become adverse as the minor is incapable of giving consent.[92]

Ratification.—As it is now finally settled that a minor's agreement is void, it follows that there can be no question of ratifying it.[93] Upon the same principle a promissory note given by a person on attaining majority in settlement of an earlier one signed by him while a minor in consideration of money then received from the obligee cannot be enforced in law. Such a note, the Madras High Court holds, is void for want of consideration.[94] In a Calcutta case [95] a bond was executed by S, after attaining majority, promising to pay within a year Rs. 7,000, being the price of piece goods sold to him during his minority, and also to repay Rs.76 advanced to him for necessaries. The obligee sued S on the bond, and it was held that S was liable. The Court said: "Here the contract on which the suit is brought is by a defendant of full age, it is a new contract, by it the plaintiff has debarred himself from suing until the expiration of one year after the date of the contract for moneys which are alleged to be due at the date of the contract, and he had made an advance of Rs. 76. There was thereupon a new consideration for the promise on which the defendant is sued, and in my opinion, in the absence of any statutory provision such as that to be found in England in s.2 of the Infant's Relief Act, 1874, he is liable." The only difference between this and the Madras case, so far as the note sued upon goes, is that in the latter case there was a promissory note passed during minority, and the note was renewed by the defendant on attaining majority, while in the Calcutta case there was no bond passed during minority, but the bond was executed for the first time after attaining majority. This circumstance however, cannot make any difference in principle, nor is there anything in the judgment in the Calcutta case to show that the decision proceeded upon any such difference. The ground of the decision was that there was a new consideration for the promise on which the defendant was sued. We fail to see how either the forbearance to sue or the advance for necessaries could be regarded as a new consideration, and we are of opinion

---

86 Jagannada Rao v. Venkata Kumara, 54 Mad. 163; (1931) A.M. 140; Zeebunnissa Begum v. Mrs. Danagher, 59 Mad. 952; (1936) A.M. 564.

87 Zeebunnissa Begum v. Mrs. Danagher, 59 Mad. 952; (1936) A.M. 564. See S. 20 of Act 47 of 1963 (Specific Relief Act).

88 Walidad Khan v. Janak Singh (1913) 35 All. 370; 19 I.C. 610.

89 Raghava Chariar v. Srinivasa (1917) 40 Mad. 308; Hari Mohan v. Mohini Mohan (1917) 22 C.W.N. 130 I.C. 994.

90 Rangarazu v. Maddura (1913) 24 Mad.L.J. 363; Madhab Koeri v. Baikuntha Karmaker (1919) 4 Pat.L.J. 682.

91 Padma Vithoba v. Mohammad Multani (1963) A.S.C. 70.

92 Padma Vithoba v. Mohammad Multani (1963) A.S.C 70; Kandasami v. Chinnabba, 44 Mad. 253; 1921 A.M. 82 (Adverse possession for change of possession in case of majors).

93 Gobind Ram v. Piranditta (1935) 16 Lah. 456; 158 I.C. 243; 1935 A.L. 561 (F.B.); Nazir Ahmad v. Jiwan Das, 1938 A.L. 159; 177 I.C. 388; Tukaram v. Mddhorao (1947) Nag. 710; 1948 A.N. 293.

94 Indrau Ramaswami v. Anthappa Chettiar (1906) 16 Mad.L.J. 224; Arumugan v. Duraisinga (1914) 37 Mad. 38; 12 I.C. 568; Suraj Narain v. Sukhu Ahir (1928) 51 All. 164; 112 I.C. 159; 1928 A.A. 440, cited under "minor's agreement," above. See also Chuah Hooi Guoh Neoh v. Khaw Sim Bee (1915) 19 C.W.N. 786 (reopening settlement of property made during plaintiff's infancy).

95 Kundan Bibi v. Sree Narayan (1906) 11 C.W.N. 135, followed in Karm Chand v. Basant Kuar (1911) Punj. Rec. No. 31.

that the decree so far as it awarded to the plaintiff the price of the goods sold was erroneous in law[96] In England it has been held that money advanced to a minor for the purchase of necessaries is recoverable in equity, on the ground that the lender stands in the place of the person paid.[97]

Contracts of marriage—Ratification of.—Contracts of marriage are included in s.2 of the Infants Relief Act and therefore no action can be brought upon a mere ratification after attaining majority of a minor's promise of marriage before majority.[98] The law in India it is submitted is the same.

Divorce.—A divorce brought about by minors without the consent of the guardians is not valid.[99]

Payment of debt incurred during minority.—Where a person on attaining majority pays a debt incurred by him during minority, no question of ratification of a contract arises, since an agreement with a minor is merely void and not unlawful, the sum paid cannot be sued for subsequently, and in law it must be regarded on the same footing as a gift.[1]

Specific performance.—A minor's agreement being now decided to be void, it is clear that there is no agreement to be specifically enforced; and it is unnecessary to refer to former decisions and distinctions, following English authorities which were applicable only on the view now overruled by the Privy Council. The guardian of a minor unless competent to do so has no power to bind the minor by a contract for the purchase or sale of immovable property, and the minor therefore is not entitled to specific performance of the contract: so held by the Privy Council in Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakhruddin Mahomed.[2] In the course of the judgment their Lordships said: "They are, however, of opinion that it is not within the competence of a manager of a minor's estate or within the competence of a guardian of a minor to bind the minor or the minor's estate by a contract for the purchase of immovable property, and they are further of opinion that as the minor in the present case was not bound by the contract, there was no mutuality and that the minor who has now reached his majority cannot obtain specific performance of the contract," even though purchase was advantageous, as there was no mutuality.[3] But one of the learned authors of the Contract Act has said that: There is no reason why a minor's contract entered into by his guardian if it appears to the court to be for his benefit should not be valid and enforceable.[4] It is, however, different with regard to contracts entered into on behalf of a minor by his guardian or by a manager of his estate, where the guardian or manager, as under Hindu Law, is competent to alienate property.[5] In Suryaprakasham v. Gangaraju,[6] it was held by a Full Bench of Andhra High Court that a contract entered into by a guardian of a Hindu minor for sale or purchase of immovable property is specifically enforceable against the minor but whether a Court of Equity would give a decree or not would depend upon the circumstances of each case. It was also held that as a result of 96 The opinion here expressed was approved by the Lahore High Court: Bhola Ram Harbans Lal v. Bhagat Ram (1926) 99 I.C. 318; 1927 A.L. 24; Karim Khan v. Jaikaran Godadmal (1937) Nag. 458; 170 I.C. 543; 1937 A.N. 390. The decision in Narain Singh v. Chiranji Lal (1924) 46 All. 568; 79 I.C. 945; 1924 A.A. 730, seems of doubtful validity.

---

97 Marlow v. Pitfield (1719) 24 E.R. 516.

98 Coxhead v. Mullis (1878) 3 C.P.D. 439; Northcote v. Doughty (1879) 4 C.P.D. 385; Watson v. Campbell (1920) V.L.R. 347. S. 11 of Contract Act.

99 Smt. Sodha v. Mansha Ram (1971) A.HP. 27.

1 Anant Rai v. Bhagwan Rai, 1939 A.A. 12; (1939) All.L.J. 935; 187 I.C. 4; Tukaram v. Madhorao (1947) Nag. 710; 1948 A.N. 293.

2 (1912) 39 I.A. 1; 39 Cal. 232 reversing (1906) 34 Cal. 163. In Amir Ahmmad v. Meer Nizam Ali, 1952 A.Hyd. 120 F.B. it was held, it is submitted, erroneously, that there were Muslim texts which enabled the de jure guardian to enter into contracts for the sale of immovable property on behalf of a minor.

3 Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakhar ud Din, 39 Cal. 232; 39 I.A. 1; Raghava Chariar v. Srinivasa. 40 Mad. 308, 335 (case of a lease which was held void); Mulla's Transfer of Property Act, p. 72. But see s. 20(4) of Sp. Relief Act (47 of 1963).

4 Pollock on Contracts, 12th Edn., pp. 46 and 47.

5 Mulla's Hindu Law, 11th Ed. p. 617. Suryaprakasam v. Gangaraju, 1956 A.Andh. 33; Zeebunnissa Begum v. Mrs. Danagher, 59 Mad. 942; (1936) A.M. 564.

6 Suryaprakasham v. Gangaraju, 1956 A.Andhra 33.

the decision in Subrahmanyam v. Subba Rao.[7] all the decisions based on Mir Sarwarjan's case[8] were overruled. At page 40 of the A.I.R. Reports, Subba Rao C.J. was of the opinion that the judgment of the Privy Council in Subrahmanyam's case[7] was an authority for saying that in the case of contracts entered into by guardians acting within the powers prescribed by law, the contract can be specifically enforced both against and by the minor and as there is legal competence on the part of the guardian, in the circumstances, no question of mutuality can arise at all. Viswanath Sastri J.[9] criticised the applicability of the doctrine of mutuality to cases of contracts of minors and held that when a guardian of a minor enters into a contract for the sale of property of the minor for purposes considered as necessary under Hindu Law, the contract would be specifically enforced against the minor and the line of authorities beginning with Mir Sarwarjan case[8] had no application to such circumstances. The mere ground of want of mutuality is now under section 20 of Specific Relief Act of 1963 not a ground of refusing specific performance.[10] In such a case it has been held by the Privy Council that the contract can be specifically enforced by or against the minor, if the contract is one which it is within the competence of the guardian to enter into on his behalf so as to bind him by it, and further, if it is for the benefit of the minor.[11] But if either of these two conditions is wanting, the contract cannot be specifically enforced at all.[12] But the Bombay High Court has held that a guardian of a minor has no authority to sell property on behalf of his ward.[13] This is, it is submitted, too broadly stated as the power of a guardian to sell would depend on the extent of the powers of a guardian which under Hindu Law extends to necessity or benefit to the estate. And it also appears that the law as stated in section 6 of the Transfer of Property Act and at page 372 of Mulla's Transfer of Property Act on the subject and what was decided by the Full Bench of the Madras High Court was not considered.[14] The principle of mutuality applies to the separate property of a minor and not where he is a coparcener or a co-tenant with adults and the contract is with regard to coparcenery or co-tenancy property.[15] A contract is not void for non-availability of the remedy of specific performance and therefore a lessee cannot avoid a lease on the ground of the lessor's infancy.[16] A court may refuse specific performance and award damages.[17]

It is also within the competence of a certificated guardian appointed by statute, such as the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890, or the various Courts of Wards Acts to enter into a contract for the purchase or sale of immovable property on behalf of the minor with the sanction of the Court[18] A guardian cannot contract on behalf of a minor so as to impose on him a personal liability.[19] Whether a guardian of a minor can or cannot make a contract for purchase of shares in a given set of circumstances or whether a minor can be placed on the register of

---

7 Subrahmanyam v. Subba Rao, 75 I.A. 115.
8 Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakruddin Mahamad, 39 I.A. 1.
9 Ramalingam Reddi v. Bavanambal Ammal, 1951 A.M. 431; Gujoba v. Nilkanth, 1958 A.B. 202.
10 Section 20 of the Act 47 of 1963.
11 Subramanyam v. Subba Rao (1948) 75 I.A. 115, (1949) Mad. 141, 1948 A.P.C. 95; Brahamdeo v. Haro Singh, 1935 A.P. 237; Ramalingam v. Babanam, 1951 A.M. 431.
12 Venkatachalam Pillai v. Sethuram Rao (1932) 56 Mad. 433, 142 I.C. 315, 1933 A.M. 322; Singara v. Ibrahim Baig, 1947 A.M. 94, 229 I.C. 501; Durga Charan v. Akbari Das, 1949 A.Cal. 617; Krishna Chandra v. Rishabha Kumar (1940) Nag. 55, 1939 A.N. 265: Abdul Haq v. Mohamed Yahya Khan, 1924 A.P. 81. In the following cases specific performance was refused although legal necessity had been proved: Srinath Bhattacharjee v. Jotindra Mohan, 1926 A.Cal. 445; Hari Mohan v. Sew Narayan, 1949 A.Asm. 57; Ramakrishna Reddiar v. Kasivasi, 1928 A.M. 407; but in Nageswara Rao v. Mandava, 1928 A.Mad. 830, there was no proof of legal necessity and specific performance was rightly refused.
13 Gopalkrishna v. Tubaram, 1956 A.B. 566.
14 See Raghava Chariar v. Srinivasa, 40 Mad. 308.
15 Sitarama Rao v. Venkatarama, 1956 A.M. 261; Ramalingam Reddi v. Babanambal Ammal (1951) A.M. 431 disappd.
16 Zeebunnissa Begum v. Mrs. Danagher (1936) 59 Mad. 942; (1936) A.M. 564; Zouchu v. Parsons, 97 E.R. 1103 refd. to.
17 Zeebunnissa Begum v. Mrs. Danagher, 59 Mad. 952; (1936) A.M. 564; James Jones & Sons Ltd. v. Tankerville (1909) 2 Ch. 440.
18 Babu Ram v. Said-un-Nissa (1913) 35 All. 499, 20 I.C. 916; Etwari v. Chandra Nath (1906) 10 C.W.N. 763; Innatunnessa v. Janaki Nath (1917) 22 C.W.N. 477.
19 Waghela Rajsanji v. Sheikh Masludin, 16 I.A. 89, 96; 11 Bom. 551, 561.

members was raised before by a full bench of the Delhi High Court but not decided in Golconda Industries v. Companies Registrar.[20]

Membership of Societies.—Subject to certain conditions a minor can become a member of a friendly society, an industrial and Provident Society, a trade union or building society.[21] That is English Law but all this is based on Statute Law. It is submitted that in India the law would not be different provided such memberships are for the benefit of the minor or a requirement of conditions of service or for the welfare of the minor or his family.

Necessaries.—S. 68, below, provides for liability in respect of necessaries supplied to a person incapable of entering into a contract. A minor is a person incapable of contracting within the meaning of that section,[22] and, therefore, the provisions of that section apply to his case. It will be observed that the minor's property is liable for necessaries, and no personal liability is incurred by him, as it may be under English law. S. 70 cannot be read so as to create any personal liability in such a case. Under English law the liability is not on the express promise, if any there be; the obligation is quasi ex contractu to pay a reasonable price for necessary goods supplied: Sale of Goods Act, 1893, s.2. It would probably be held that this only declares the common law,[23] and, therefore, that the rule is the same as to necessaries other than goods. Necessaries must be things which the minor actually needs; therefore it is not enough that they be of a kind which a person of his condition may reasonably want for ordinary use, they will not be necessary if he is already sufficiently supplied with things of that kind, and it is immaterial whether the other party knows this or not.[24] It may be presumed that Courts in India would follow the English decisions on this point, which does not appear to be precisely covered by the language of s.68. Objects of mere luxury cannot be necessaries, nor can objects which, though of real use, are excessively costly. The fact that buttons are a normal part of many usual kinds of clothing, for example, will not make pearl or diamond buttons necessaries.[25] See notes to s. 68. below.

There has been in English law some extension as to necessaries. What are necessaries for a minor's wife & child are necessaries for him[26] Though he is not responsible for his wife's debt unless she has his authority to pledge his credit yet the minor husband of a minor wife will be liable for household necessaries purchased by the wife.[27] It is submitted the law in India will be the same.

Bond jointly passed by a minor and an adult.—A and B jointly pass a bond to C. A is a minor at the date of the bond. B is liable on the bond, though A may not be liable.[28] Similarly, where a minor was one of the executants of a promissory note, his immunity from liability cannot absolve the other adult promisors from liability.[29]

"Of sound mind."—See s. 12 below, for the definition of soundness of mind. By English law a lunatic's contract is void, but voidable at his option, and this only if the other party had notice of his insanity at the time of making the contract.[30] But, after the decision that this section makes a minor's agreement wholly void, it is clear that a person of unsound mind must in India be held absolutely incompetent to contract. And it has in fact been held to be so in a 20 (1968) A.D. 170 (F.B.).

---

21 Chitty on Contracts (24th Ed.) para 525.
22 Watkins v. Dhunnoo Baboo (1881) 7 Cal. 140, 143; Mohori Bibee v. Dhurmodas Ghose (1903) 30 I.A. 114; 30 Cal. 539
23 See Nash v. Inman (1908) 2 K.B. 1, C.A., especially the judgment of Fletcher Moulton, L.J.
24 Johnstone v. Marks (1887) 19 Q.B.D. 509, followed in Jagon Ram v. Mahadeo Prasad (1909) 36 Cal. 768; Daw Nyun v. Maung Nyi Pu, 1938 A.R. 359; 178 I.C. 680. Previous English decisions were conflicting, but the point may now be taken as settled. Cp. the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, s. 2.
25 The classical English authority is Ryder v. Wombwell (1868) L.R. 4 Ex. 32. The minuteness of the English cases on this point seems due, as matter of fact, to the general bias of juries in favour of tradesmen, and their opinion that it is shabby to plead infancy.
26 Chitty: on Contract, Vol. I para 486 (24th ed.)
27 Ibid.
28 Jamna Bai v. Vasanta Rao (1916) 43 I.A. 99, at p. 103; 39 Mad. 409. See also Rup Chand v. Fazal Ilahi (1917) Punj. Rec. No. 40, p. 156; 41 I.C. 70 (lease to a minor and an adult in equal shares).
29 Sulochana v. The Pandiyan Bank Ltd. (1975) A.M. 70, 72.
30 Imperial Loan Co. v. Stone (1892) 1 Q.B.599, C.A., confirming previous authorities.

Madras case.[31] The supply of necessaries to lunatics, among other persons "incapable of entering into a contract," is dealt with by s. 68 of the Act; see the illustrations.

Persons otherwise "disqualified from contracting."—The capacity of a woman to contract is not affected by her marriage either under the Hindu or Mahomedan law. A Hindu female is not, on account of her sex, absolutely disqualified from entering into a contract; and marriage, whatever other effect it may have, does not take away or destroy any capacity possessed by her in that respect. It is not necessary to the validity of the contract that her husband should have consented to it. When she enters into a contract with the consent or authority of her husband, she acts as his agent, and binds him by her act; and she may bind him by her contract, in certain circumstances,[32] even without his authority, the law empowering her on the ground of necessity to pledge her husband's credit. Otherwise a married woman cannot bind her husband without his authority, but she is then liable on the contract to the extent of her stridhanam (separate property).[33] Similarly, a married Hindu woman may contract jointly with her husband, but then she is liable to the extent of her stridhanam only.[34] In the same way a married Mahomedan woman is not by reason of her marriage disqualified from entering into a contract.

Turning next to persons of other denominations, there are two Indian enactments that create the separate property of married women, and impliedly confer upon them, as an incident of such property, the capacity to contract in respect thereof. The one is the Indian Succession Act, 1925, sec. 20, and the other the Married Women's Property Act, 1874. Both these enactments apply to the whole of India, but neither of them applies to any marriage one or both of the parties to which professed, at the time of the marriage, the Hindu, Mahomedan, Buddhist, Sikh, or Jain religion.[35] S. 20 of the Succession Act provides that no person shall by marriage acquire any interest in the property of the person whom he or she marries, nor become incapable of doing any act in respect of his or her own property which he or she could have done if unmarried. The effect of this was that on or after January 1st, 1866, all married women to whose marriages the Act applied became absolute owners of all property vested in, or acquired by them, and their husbands did not by their marriage acquire any interest in such property.[36] It was subsequently considered expedient to make due provision for the enjoyment of wages and earnings by women married before 1866,[37] and Married Women's Property Act enacted that the wages and earnings of any married woman acquired or gained by her after the passing of that Act in any employment, occupation, or trade carried on by her, and all money or other property acquired by her through the exercise of any literary, artistic, or scientific skill, should be deemed to be her separate property (s.4). The Act also provides that a married woman may sue and may be sued in her own name in respect of her separate property (s.7), and that a person entering into a contract with her with reference to such property may sue her, and to the extent of her separate property recover against her, as if she were unmarried (s.8).

Certain classes of persons may be disqualified under certain enactments from entering into contracts in respect of matters specified in those enactments. Thus where a person in Oudh is declared a "disqualified proprietor" under the provisions of the Oudh Land Revenue Act, 1876, he is not competent to alienate his property, and the same incapacity extends to contracts entered into by him, though they relate to property situate outside the province of Oudh.[38]

Contract by insolvent—formation.—There is no prohibition against a contract by an insolvent after the insolvency proceedings have commenced but before adjudication. Insolvency

---

31 Machaima v. Usman Beari (1907) 17 Mad.L.J. 78; see also Kamola Ram v. Kaura Khan (1912) Punj. Rec. No. 41.

32 E.g., pressing necessity: Pusi v. Mahadeo Prasad (1880) 3 All. 122, at p. 124.

33 Per Cur. in Nathhubhai v. Javher (1876) 1 Bom. 121.

34 Govindji v. Lakmidas (1879) 4 Bom. 318; Narotam v. Nanka (1882) 6 Bom. 473.

35 See The Married Women's Property Act, 1874, s. 2, and the Indian Succession Act, 1925, s. 20.

36 The Indian Succession Act, 1925, s. 20(2).

37 See the preamble to The Married Women's Property Act, 1874.

38 Lacmi Narain v. Fateh Bahadur Singh (1902) 25 All. 195, 202; Jethalal v. D.S.A. Laxamanwala, 1953 A. Sau. 177.

does not determine a contract nor operate per se as rescission thereof.[39] There is no statutory prohibition against the sale of property by an insolvent after insolvency proceedings have been initiated. The vesting of the property in the Official Receiver is for the benefit of the creditors and so does not purport to affect the transactions between the insolvent and other persons except in so far as they affect the administration of the insolvent's estate for the benefit of the creditors. As far as the parties to the transaction are concerned they are binding on them. A sale deed executed by the insolvent before the insolvency petition was filed but registration whereof took place in the course of insolvency proceedings was held valid and binding on the parties by the Madras High Court.[40]

An English barrister, enrolled as an advocate of an Indian High Court, is not a person "disqualified from contracting by any law to which he is subject" so as to prevent him from suing for his fees in India. Qua advocate the law to which he is subject is that of the bar where he is practising.[41]

Capacity of Governments.—Every contract is an agreement between parties who are 'persons' within the meaning of the Contract Act. A State Government is a "person" within that section and enters into contracts as such person.[42] The Government of India or Government of a State are not incompetent to enter into contracts like a minor.[43]

The disability of alien enemies to sue in our Courts without licence is a matter of general public policy not coming under this head.

Gift deed by a person of unsound mind:—Consolidation of Laws.—Where a deed of gift is made by a person of unsound mind and the land comprised in the deed becomes the subject matter of consideration proceedings, the civil suit even if at the appellate stage will abate under S 4(c) of the Bihar Consideration of Lands and Prevention of Fragmentation Act and the matter will have to be decided by the consolidation authorities and not by the civil courts.[44]

What is a sound mind for the purposes of contracting.

12. A person is said to be of sound mind for the purpose of making a contract if, at the time when he makes it, he is capable of understanding it and of forming a rational judgment as to its effect upon his interests.[45]

A person who is usually of unsound mind, but occasionally of sound mind, may make a contract when he is of sound mind.[46]

A person who is usually of sound mind, but occasionally of unsound mind, may not make a contract when he is of unsound mind.

Illustrations

(a) A patient in a lunatic asylum, who is at intervals of sound mind, may contract during those intervals.

(b) A sane man, who is delirious from fever, or who is so drunk that he cannot understand the terms of a contract, or from a rational judgment as to its effect on his interests, cannot contract whilst such delirium or drunkenness lasts.

---

39 Rama Raju v. Official Receiver (1964) A.AP. 299. P.T.I. Act, s. 65; P.I. Act, ss. 53, 54.

40 Peraya v. Kondayya, 1948 Mad. 872, (1948) A.M. 430; Mulla's Law of Insolvency in India (2nd Ed.) 270.

41 Nihal Chand v. Dilawar (1933) 55 All. 570; 143 I.C. 727; 1933 A.A. 417 (F.B.); see also Reg. v. Doutre (1884) 9 App. Cas. 745, a Privy Council decision.

42 Articles 295 and 299 of the Constitution; S. 3 of General Clauses Act; State of U.P. v. P.V. Kanhaiya Lal, 1956 A.A. 383.

43 State of West Bengal v. B.K. Mandal & Sons (1962) A.SC. 779, 789; (1962) 1 S.C.R. 876. See also Arts. 295 & 299.

44 Tarkeshwar Upadhaya v. Mahesh Kahar (1981) A.P. 348, 350.

45 As to evidence of unsound mind see Ram Sundar Saha v. Kali Narain Sen 1927 A. Cal. 889; 104 I.C. 527.

46 See for an elementary illustration the facts in Jai Narain v. Mahabir Prasad (1926) 2 Luck. 226; 95 I.C. 857; 1926 A.O. 470.

Burden of proof.—The difficulty of understanding what is really the effect of this section, in conjunction with s. 11, has already been pointed out. The presence or absence of the capacity mentioned in this section at the time of making the contract is in all cases a question of fact.[47] A disposition by a lunatic is completely void.[48] Where a person is usually of unsound mind, the burden of proving that at the time he was of sound mind lies on the person who affirms it. Lunatic is not a person who is continuously in state of unsoundness of mind; once it has been established that a person is of unsound mind, the onus is on the person who alleges execution of a document during a lucid interval.[49] In cases, however, of drunkenness or delirium from fever or other causes, the onus lies on the party who sets up that disability to prove that it existed at the time of the contract. In order to establish the plea of being incapable of comprehending the meaning and effect of an agreement, it has to be shown that the party was so drunk as to be unable to do so and that the other party was aware of his condition.[50] Questions of undue influence and of incapacity by reason of unsoundness of mind must not be mixed up, involving as they do totally different issues.[51]

Not capable of understanding.—An instrument of conveyance executed by a person incapable of understanding its effect, in the sense of its general purport, is not on that account void though in the circumstances it may be voidable by the conveyor or his representatives.[52] A person though he may apparently be of sound mind may still be incapable of understanding the nature of the transaction or to judge whether it is to his benefit or not. To such a person the principles applicable to a pardanashin lady will apply. A man incapable of judging the consequences of this act should not be held to be bound by his contract.[53]

Contract in lucid interval.—The second paragraph of the section provides that a person who is usually of unsound mind, but occasionally of sound mind, may make a contract when he is of sound mind. Thus even a patient in a lunatic asylum may contract during lucid intervals (see illustration (a)). The question may arise whether a lunatic adjudged to be so under the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912, and of whose property a committee or manager is appointed, can contract during intervals of sound mind. In England, a lunatic not so found, or before he is so found, by inquisition is not by reason of that fact absolutely incapable of contracting, though the burden of proof in such a case is on the party maintaining that he is not insane, or that the contract was made during a lucid interval,[54] and the same would appear to be the law in India. Where, however, a committee or a manager of the estate of a lunatic adjudged to be so is appointed under either of the Indian Acts, no contract can be entered into by a lunatic in respect of his estate, even though at the time of the contract he may be in a lucid interval. Similarly it is now settled in England that a person found lunatic by inquisition is incapable of dealing with his property inter vivos while the inquisition is in force.[55]

Undue advantage to one party.—The circumstances adversely affecting a party, which may induce a court of equity either to refuse its aid or to set a transaction aside, include pover-

---

47 U Aung Ye v. Ma E Mai 1932 A.R. 24; 137 I.C. 766; Tilok Chand v. Mahandu 1933 A.L. 458; 144 I.C. 741; Mst. Hazrabi v. Mst. Fatmabi 1938 A.N. 204; 177 I.C. 80. Medical evidence is almost essential: Kanhaiyalal v. Harsingh (1944) Nag. 698, 1944 A.N. 232; Chunilal v. Chandra, 1953 A. Asm. 94.

48 Re Walker (1905) 1 Ch. 160; Re Marshall (1920) 1 Ch. 284 (not a lunatic so found but a receiver appointed).

49 Subramanya Sastri v. Lakshminarasamma (1958) A.A.P. 22.

50 Flax Lands Development Ltd. v. Joll (1926) Gazette L.R. 470 (N.Z. case); Mc Garvie & Pannam. Cases & Materials on Contract page 638 (1966 Edn.) Australian; Bromley v. Ryan, (1956) 99 C.L.R. 362, 405; Cooke v. Clayworth, 34 E.R. 222 (inadequacy of consideration). See p. 120.

51 Sayad Muhammad v. Fatteh Muhammad (1894) 22 I.A. 4, at p. 10; 22 Cal. 324; Durga Bakhsh Singh v. Mirza Muhammad Ali Beg (1904) 31 I.A. 235; Subramanya Sastri v. Lakshminarasamma (1958) A.A.P. 22.

52 Gibson v. Wright (1954) 91 C.L.R. 423.

53 Inder Singh v. Parmeshwardhan Singh (1957) A.P. 491; See Subramanya Sastri v. Lakshminarasamma (1958) A.A.P. 22.

54 Hall v. Warren (1805) 9 Ves. 605; 7 R.R. 306, to which Snook v. Watts (1848) 11 Beav. 105, adds nothing material; Mohanlal Madangopal v. Vinayak 1941 A.N. 251; 196 I.C. 660.

55 Re Walker (1905) 1 Ch. 160, C.A. Of a will it is otherwise for the reason explained under S. 23 (other rules of law in force in India), infra.

ty or need of any kind, sickness, age, sex, infirmity of body or mind, drunkenness, illiteracy or lack of education, lack of assistance or explanation where assistance and explanation are necessary. The common characteristic seem to be that they have the effect of placing one party at a serious disadvantage vis-a-vis- the other.[56]

Drunkenness and Specific Performance.—Mere drunkenness affords no ground for resisting a suit to enforce a contract. But where the judgment of one party was, to the knowledge of the other party, seriously affected by drink, equity will generally refuse specific performance at the suit of the other. And, where the court is satisfied that a contract disadvantageous to the party affected has been obtained by "drawing him in to drink" or that there has been real unfairness in taking advantage of his position, the contract may be set aside.[57] Specific performance was refused in the case of a sale where the seller had been indulging in bouts of drunkenness, the consideration was inadequate, at the time of contract of sale for £25,000; £5 was paid as deposit; the consideration was payable in more than four years and the interest thereon was only 4% p.a.[58]

In Pitt v. Smith[59] it was held that a person in a state of complete drunkenness "has no agreeing mind". In a later case it was held that if a party was drunk when he signed an agreement the document is a nullity.[60] It has now been held that equity has a wider jurisdiction to set aside an unfair or unconscionable transaction entered into by a person affected by drink.[61]

According to another well known author[62] a liability on a contract cannot be avoided if a person's commercial judgment was befuddled at the time of the contract but equity will not enforce a contract by specific performance where a party has taken advantage of another's intoxication.[63] But in England the contract is voidable if the latter could not understand the transaction and the other party knew[64] it unless it is ratified during a period of sobriety.[65] But a drunken person is liable for necessaries supplied to him while suffering from incapacity to contract.[66] According to Indian law the contract would be void, it is submitted, and therefore unenforceable.

"Consent" defined.

13. Two or more persons are said to consent when they agree upon the same thing in the same sense.

Apparent and real consent.—The language of this section is, on the face of it, more of a judicial or expository than of a legislative kind. As an authoritative definition it does not seem to define very much. It would need some courage to maintain that persons can be said to consent when they do not agree upon the same thing, or that if they do not agree in the same sense they can be said to agree in any sense at all.

If the section is to cover all kinds of contracts, as presumably it does, the word "thing" must obviously be taken as widely as possible, though it seems most appropriate where the contract has to do with corporeal property. We must understand by "the same thing" the whole content of the agreement, whether it consists, wholly or in part, of delivery of material

---

56 Bromley v. Ryan (1956) 99 C.L.R. 362, 405; Cooke v. Clayworth 54 E.R. 222 (inadequacy of consideration).
57 Bromley v. Ryan (1956) 99 C.L.R. 362, 405, See n. 34, p. 119.
58 Bromley v. Ryan (1956) 99 C.L.R. 362, 406. See n. 34, p. 119.
59 (1811) 3 Camp. 33, 13R.R. 741.
60 Fenton v. Holloway (1815) 1 Stark 126.
61 Cooke v. Clayworth (1811) 18 Ves. 12; Butler v. Mulvihill (1823) 1 Bligh 137; Wiltshire v. Marshall (1866) 14 L.T. (N.S.) 396; Bromley v. Ryan (1956) 99 C.L.R. 362; Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) para 545.
62 Treitel: Outlines of the Law of Contract (2nd Ed.) P. 206.
63 Malins v. Freeman (1837) 2 Keen 25, 34.
64 Gore v. Gibson (1843) 13 M.&.W. 623.
65 Mathews v. Baxter (1873) L.R.8 Exch. 132.
66 Treitel: Outlines of the Law of Contract (2nd Ed.) p. 206.

objects, or payment, or other executed acts or promises. The phrase comes originally from the New York Civil Code, but it has, at all events, high judicial sanction, and the passage in which it was used by the late Lord Hannen, in the year before this Act was passed, is perhaps the best commentary on the general significance of the present section:—

"It is essential to the creation of a contract that both parties should agree to the same thing in the same sense. Thus if two persons enter into an apparent contract concerning a particular person or ship, and it turns out that each of them, misled by a similarity of name, had a different person or ship in his mind, no contract would exist between them: Raffles v. Wichelhaus.[67]

"But one of the parties to an apparent contract may, by his own fault, be precluded from setting up that he had entered into it in a different sense to that in which it was understood by the other party. Thus in the case of a sale by sample where the vendor, by mistake, exhibited a wrong sample, it was held that the contract was not avoided by this error of the vendor: Scott v. Littledale.[68]

"But if in the last mentioned case the purchaser, in the course of the negotiations preliminary to the contract, has discovered that the vendor was under a misapprehension as to the sample he was offering, the vendor would have been entitled to show that he had not intended to enter into the contract by which the purchaser sought to bind him. The rule of law applicable to such a case is a corollary from the rule of morality which Mr. Pollock[69] cited from Paley,[70] that a promise is to be performed 'in that sense in which the promisor apprehended at the time the promisee received it,' and may be thus expressed: 'The promisor is not bound to fulfil a promise in a sense in which the promisee knew at the time the promisor did not intend it.' And in considering the question in what sense a promisee is entitled to enforce a promise it matters not in what way the knowledge of the meaning in which the promisor made it is brought to the mind of the promisee, whether by express words, or by conduct, or previous dealings, or other circumstances. If by any means he knows that there was no real agreement between him and the promisor, he is not entitled to insist that the promise shall be fulfilled in a sense to which the mind of the promisor did not assent.[71] It is a question of construction whether the execution of a further contract is a condition or term of the contract or a mere expression of a desire of the parties as to the manner in which the transaction already agreed to will in fact go through".[72]

Students and young practitioners must be warned not to exaggerate the working importance of cases which are quoted and discussed for the very reason that they are exceptional. Generally parties who have concurred in purporting to express a common intention by certain words cannot be heard to deny that what they did intend was the reasonable effect of those words; and that effect must be determined, if necessary, by the Court, according to the settled rules of interpretation. Whoever becomes a party to a written contract "agrees to be bound, in case of dispute, by the interpretation which a Court of law may put upon the language of the 67 2 H. & C. 906; 133 R.R. 853. This is a very peculiar case of an equivocal term understood in different senses by the parties. There were two ships of the same name sailing at different times. The decision was on the pleadings, so that the questions of fact which might arise in the proof of such a defence were not and could not be considered.

---

68 8 E. & B. 815. (Note that the sale was of a specific cargo, and the seller misled the buyer, though innocently. If any one was entitled to set aside the contract, it was the buyer.)

69 Charles Pollock, then Q.C., afterwards a Baron of the Court of Exchequer and a member of the Exchequer and Queen's Bench Divisions of the High Court of Justice (died 1897).

70 Moral and Political Philosophy, Book III, Chap. V. Paley's rule, however, is not quite correct. The true test is not what either promisor or promisee actually thought, but the sense in which the promise would reasonably be understood by the promisee: Whately's note to Paley, l.c., and per Blackburn J. in Fowkes v. Manchester and London Assurance Association (1863) 3 B. & S. 917, 929; cp. L.Q.R. xxi, 219, 537. See also under s.7.

71 Per Hannen J., Smith v. Hughes (1871) L.R. 6, Q.B. 597, at p. 609.

72 Per Parker J., in Von Hatzfeldt Wildenberg v. Alexander (1912) 1 Ch. 284, 288; appd. in Hukam Chand v. Ram Bahadur Singh (1924) A.PC. 156; 51 I.A. 208; Harichand v. Govind (1923) A.PC. 47; 50 I.A. 25; Currimbhoy & Co. Ltd. v. A. Creet (1933) A.PC. 29; 60 I.A.

instrument," whatever meaning he may attach to it in his own mind.[73] Exceptions to this rule exist, but they are admitted only for special and carefully limited reasons.

Warning is also still needed, having regard to the language current in all but the most modern text-books, against the habit of using the word "mistake" as if it denoted any general legal principle, or was capable, taken alone, of explaining any departure from the normal grounds of decision.[74]

The cases of mistake so far discussed by the learned authors have all been instances of what has been called mutual mistake, that is where the parties have misunderstood one another. For such a mistake to render an agreement void the mistake must first be as to a term in the agreement. If A buy oats believing them to be old oats when in fact they are new oats, A cannot plead that the agreement is void for mistake: A must prove that he believed that the seller warranted them to be old oats. The difference, as Blackburn J. put it in Smith v. Hughes,[75] is between buying a horse believed to be sound, and buying a horse believed to be warranted sound. The former case is one of mistaken motive, giving no relief to the disappointed buyer, whereas in the latter case the buyer has proved the first essential in establishing operative mutual mistake. Secondly the mistake as to a term in the agreement must either be known to the other party, or reasonable in the circumstances. Scriven v. Hindley[76] is a case where the mistake was reasonable in the circumstances. There are a buyer purchased tow at an auction, believing he was buying hemp, a more valuable commodity. The Court held that there was no contract: the mistake was reasonable in the circumstances, as the catalogue was misleading, and also it was unique for hemp and tow to bear the same shipping marks. This case may be contrasted with Van Praagh v. Everidge,[77] where the defendant, at an auction, bid for lot 1 when he believed that lot 2 was being offered, and the Court decreed specific performance of the agreement to buy lot 1, there being nothing to mislead, and the auctioneer being unaware of the defendant's misapprehension, which was probably due to his deafness.

If both parties are behaving reasonably, but have different things in mind, as in Raffles v. Wichelhaus (supra), there is no contract: there the Court, considering the matter objectively, was unable to determine which ship was the contract ship. Owing to the mistake of one party an offer may be innocently accepted in a different sense from that in which it was intended by the offeror and the terms in which the contract is expressed may suffer from such latent ambiguity that it is impossible to say that the conduct of the parties points to one solution rather than another. ...The contract will be void because the terms of the offer and the acceptance did not coincide.[78]

It is sometimes stated that the mistake as to a term in the agreement must be a mistake as to a fundamental term, before the Court will hold the agreement void. In Smith v. Hughes (supra), Blackburn J. lays down no such requirement, but Cockburn C.J. does speak of essential terms,[79] and this is the better view, which finds support from the judgment of Blackburn J. himself in Kennedy v. Panama Royal Mail Co.[80]

Ambiguity.—Sometimes an apparent agreement can be avoided by showing that some term (such as a name applying equally to two different ships) is ambiguous, and there has been a misunderstanding without fault on either side. Such cases, however, are in fact extremely

---

73 Per Lord Watson, Stewart v. Kennedy (1890) 15 App.Ca 108, 123; Sunitibala Debi v. Manindra Chandra Roy, 1930 A.P.C. 217; 52 Cal. L.J. 435; 127 I.C. 739; Sathappa Rai v. Santhiraja (1938) 1 Mad. L.J. 676; 178 I.C. 563; 1938 A.M. 426.

74 Sir W. Anson's pages on this subject (Law of Contract, 20th Ed., Chap. V, 22nd Ed., Chap. VIII) should be carefully read by all students. They are the most concise exposition to be found in English books of repute, of which this is one of the most accurate.

75 (1871) 6 Q.B. 597, 608. This is the old and new oats case.

76 (1913) 3 K.B. 564.

77 (1902) Ch. 266.

78 Anson: Law of Contract (22nd Edn.) 269. Cited with approval in Alampi v. Swartz (1963) 38 D.L.R. (2nd) 300.

79 Supra, at p. 606

80 (1867) L.R. 2 Q.B. 580, 587.

rare. It usually turns out either that the terms have an ascertained sense by which both parties are bound, and there is a contract which neither can dispute, whatever either of them may profess to have thought, or that, when the facts are established, there was really never a proposal accepted according to its terms, and therefore the conditions of a binding contract were not satisfied. Many of the cases cited in the books under the head of mistake belong to the latter class, as where a broker employed to sell goods delivered to the intending vendor and the intending purchaser two sale-notes describing goods of different qualities.[81] "The contract" said the Court, "must be on the one side to sell, and on the other side to accept, one and the same thing." No such contract being shown on the face of the transaction, there was no need to say, and the Court did not say, anything about mistake. If bought and sold notes show a material variation, neither of them nor both of them taken together can be relied upon for the purposes of proving the terms of the contract and if the two notes agree they would constitute a binding contract.[82] In another case the defendant wanted to order three rifles by telegraph, and a blunder in transmitting the message turned three into the, which the plaintiff naturally took as referring to the number of fifty mentioned in a previous letter. Here it was held that the telegraph clerk had no authority to send the message except as it was delivered to him, so that the message as communicated to the plaintiff was not the defendant's offer at all.[83] This, again, has really nothing to do with mistake in point of law. It was immaterial whether the wrong message was sent by the clerk's mistake, or by fraudulent alteration, or through some external accident, such as a thunderstorm, affecting the instruments. Similarly if the addressee of a cipher or code message conveying a proposal misreads the proposal not unreasonably, and accepts it according to his own understanding, he cannot be held bound to the contract which the proposer intended. If the terms are really ambiguous there is nothing in such a case which either party can enforce.[84]

Fundamental error.—In certain classes of cases there may be all the usual external evidence of consent, but the apparent consent may have been given under a mistake, which the party is not precluded from showing, and which is so complete as to prevent the formation of any real agreement "upon the same thing." Such fundamental error may relate to the nature of the transaction, to the person dealt with, or to the subject-matter of the agreement.[85] Acceptance of an offer must be in the same sense in which it was made.[86]

A mutual mistake as to some fact which by the common contention of the parties to a contract, whether express or implied, constitutes the underlying assumption without which the parties would not have made the contract they did, which, therefore, affects the substance of the whole consideration, is sufficient to render the contract void.[87]

As to the nature of the transaction.—A man who has put his name to an instrument of one kind understanding it to be an instrument of a wholly different kind may be entitled, not only to set it aside against the other party on the ground of any fraud or misrepresentation which caused his error, but to treat it as an absolute nullity, under which no right can be acquired against him by any one. In an English case the defendant had purported to endorse a bill of exchange which he was told was a guaranty. The plaintiff was a subsequent holder for value, and therefore the fact that the defendant's signature was obtained by fraud would not have protected him in this action. But the Court held that his signature, not being intended as an endorsement of a bill of exchange, or as a signature to any negotiable instrument at all, was wholly inoperative, as much so as if the signature had been written on a blank piece of paper

---

81 Thornton v. Kempster (1814) 5 Taunt. 786; 15 R.R. 658.

82 Radhakrishna Sivadutta Rai v. Tayeballi (1962) Supp. (1) S.C.R. 81; 1962 A.SC. 538; John Cowie v. William Remfry (1845) 3 Moo. I.A. 448; 5 Moo P.C. 232; Sievewright v. Archibald (1851) 117 E.R. 1221; 17 Q.B. 103; Ah Shain Shoke v. Moothia Chetty, 27 I.A. 30; 27 Cal. 403 (P.C.); Fort Gloster Industries v. Sethia Mercantile (P)Ltd. (1968) A.SC. 1308.

83 Henkel v. Pape (1870) L.R. 6 Ex. 7.

84 Falck v. Williams (1900) A.C. 176, a decision of the Privy Council on very peculiar facts.

85 Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1.

86 Bhagwandas v. Girdharilal (1966) A.SC. 543.

87 Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161; 1931 All E.R. Rep. I; U.P. Government v. Nanboomal (1960) A.A. 420; Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.) 188-9.

first, and a bill or note written on the other side afterwards.[88] There are much older authorities showing that if a deed is falsely read over to an illiterate man, and he executes the deed relying on the false reading as being the true substance of the transaction, his act is wholly void.[89]

We may expect to find fraud as an element in cases of this class. But it is not the decisive element. A signature attached to a document supposed to be of a wholly different kind, or not to contain a clause so important as substantially to alter its character, is invalid unless the signor is estopped by negligence from denying that he understood what he was signing, and this "not merely on the ground of fraud, where fraud exists, but on the ground that the mind of the signor did not accompany the signature; in other words, that he never intended to sign, and therefore in contemplation of law never did sign, the contract to which his name is appended".[90] Neither is fraud a necessary element. The principle was applied by the High Court of Bombay, while this Act was still recent, to a case[91] where, in very peculiar circumstances, there was a misrepresentation by inadvertence, but no question of fraud. There the plaintiffs, who were creditors of the defendants, sued to have the signature of their agent to a composition deed cancelled, and to have it declared that the deed was not binding on the plaintiffs. The deed was signed under these circumstances: the defendants' firm had suspended payment, and at a creditors' meeting it was resolved that the business of the defendants' firm should be wound up by voluntary liquidation under the supervision of a committee. This resolution was confirmed at a subsequent meeting, and it was further resolved that a composition deed should be prepared in pursuance of the above resolutions. No mention was made at either of the meetings of any release of the claims of the creditors. After a few days a deed was tendered by one of the defendants' firm to the plaintiffs' agent for execution. He was then engaged with urgent English mail business, and he declined to sign it without being able to read it. The debtor then earnestly pressed him to execute the document at once, stating that it was of the utmost importance that no time should be lost, and adding that the deed was nothing more than an assignment to trustees for the benefit of creditors as agreed to at the creditors' meeting. Upon the faith of that assurance the plaintiffs' agent executed the deed. As a matter of fact the deed contained a release by the creditors to the debtors. As soon as the plaintiffs' agent came to know of this he repudiated his signature and refused to be bound by the deed. On behalf of the plaintiffs it was contended that the deed, so far as it operated as a release, was a different deed from that which the plaintiffs' agent intended to execute, for he believed he was signing a deed for the benefit of the creditors, whereas in fact it was for the benefit of the debtors, and that his signature could not therefore be held to be a consent to its contents. This argument was upheld, and it was declared that the deed was not the deed of the plaintiffs, but void ab initio and a nullity so far as it purported to operate as a release to the debtors. The Court proceeded further to hold that the transaction was brought about by misrepresentation within the meaning of s.18, cl. 2 (which see below). It is difficult to see why sub-s. 2 was more in point than sub-s. 1; but in any case it would seem that, having found that the supposed contract was void because there was no contract at all, the Court had no need to consider whether or not the consent, if any, was free within the meaning of s.14.[92] In a Calcut-

---

88 Foster v. Mackinnon (1869) L.R. 4 C.P. 704. It has been observed that it is arguable that the case was not one of non est factum at all, since the defendant was assured he was signing a guarantee, whereas in fact he put his signature to an endorsement of a bill of exchange, which is a guarantee for many purposes: 37 L.Q.R. 514, 39 L.Q.R. 131. 20 Can. Bar. Rev. 748. 61 L.Q.R. 194.

89 Thoroughgood's Case, 2 Co. Rep. 9 b, and other books cited in Foster v. Mackinnon (to be used with some caution at this day).

90 Foster v. Mackinnon, L.R. 4 C.P. 704, at p. 711. Followed in Sarat Chandra v. Kanai Lal, 26 Cal. W.N. 479, 1921 A. Cal. 786; Raja Singh v. Chaichoo Singh, 1940 A. Pat. 201, 185 I.C. 816; Appanna v. Venkatappdu, 1953 A.M. 611.

91 Oriental Bank Corporation v. Fleming (1879) 3 Bom. 242.

92 It will be seen in this case that the mistake as to the nature of the transaction was caused by the misrepresentation of the other contracting party. Sir W.R. Anson suggests (Principles of the Law of Contract, p. 156, 17th ed.) that in such a case the contract is only voidable for misrepresentation, and that it is void on the ground of mistake only if the mistake is brought about by the act of a third party. This view is not supported by any English authority, and is contrary to Oriental Bank Corporation v. Fleming. The element of truth in it is that A, who has misled B, however innocently, is estopped from disputing the validity of the contract as against B, if it turns out to be B's interest to affirm it. But still ta case, where a document was signed only on the first page, but was not signed on the other pages, the executant having discovered that it was not in accordance with the terms previously agreed upon, it was held that the document was a nullity.[93]

The decision in Oriental Bank Corporation v. Fleming (supra), although supportable on the ground that the deed was voidable for misrepresentation, is, in so far as it holds the deed void ab initio, contrary to English decisions on non est factum, which require a mistake not merely as to the contents, but as to the character of the instrument signed. Banku Behari Shaha v. Krishto Gohindo (supra) is open to the same objection, and is not supportable on the alternate ground, as the plaintiff had to prove the deed void not merely voidable. The English doctrine is illustrated by Howatson v. Webb.[94] There H took a lease of land in the name of his employee D. When D was leaving H's service, H required him to execute a transfer of the leasehold property in H's favour. D of course agreed, but the document on which H procured D's signature was in fact a mortgage to W, acknowledging that D had received £1,000/- from W, a client of H for whom H had agreed to find an investment. H retained the £1,000/- advanced by W, and paid back only £200/-. P, W's assignee, ultimately sued D for the balance of £800/-. D pleaded non est factum, but the Court of Appeal held D bound, although he was a victim of H's fraud, seeing that the mistake was only as to contents: D realised the document dealt with the leasehold property, merely believing it to be a deed of transfer instead of a mortgage deed. In Canada the High Court of Ontario has,[95] however, reached a decision similar to that of Sargent J. in the Fleming Case (supra). There the plaintiff's husband had executed a policy of life insurance for her benefit, to secure her a lump sum of $1,000/- and an annuity of $50/- per month. Later the husband, being financially embarrassed, wanted to borrow from the insurance company on the policy. Not wishing to disclose his financial difficulties to his wife, he obtained her signature by misrepresenting that the policy was being altered to provide her with a lump sum of $10,000/-, in place of the annuity and the lump sum of $1,000. After the husband's death, McRuer C.J. held that the charge in favour of the company was absolutely void so far as the plaintiff was concerned: it was a case of non est factum, she believing the document she was signing conferred a benefit upon her, while in fact it created an immediate obligation. It seems that in England this would have been held to be a mistake merely as to contents, rather than as to the character of the document.

It has been mentioned that a signatory may be estopped by negligence from pleading non est factum. The Court of Appeal has however held in Carlisle & Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg,[96] that a signatory can treat as a nullity a document in a category different from the one he intended to sign, even though he has been negligent, unless he has in fact signed a negotiable instrument. This case has been much criticised,[97] mainly on the ground that it is arbitrary and illogical to hold that the need for the signatory to take care and his consequent liability should ever depend upon the document he has in fact signed, irrespective of what he believed he was signing, when ex hypothesi he is ignorant of its nature.[98]

Consent and estoppel.—The Indian Courts have followed English authority in holding that, in normal circumstances, a man is not allowed to deny that he consented to that which he has in fact done, or enabled to be done with his apparent authority.[99] Thus when a person en-the transaction is void in the sense that even innocent third persons cannot acquire rights under it against B's will.

---

93 Banku Behari Shaha v. Krishto Gohindo (1903) 30 Cal. 433.

94 (1908) 1 Ch. 1. Followed in Mohammed Hussain v. Fida Hussain, 1952 A. Punj. 224.

95 Marks v. Imperial Life Assurance Co. of Canada (1949) 1 D.L.R. 613.

96 (1911) 1 K.B. 489.

97 28 L.Q.R. 190; Can Bar. Rev. 661.

98 Professor Goodhart in 46 L.Q.R. 263 argues that Foster v. Mackinnon is only a weak authority for the view that negligence defeats a plea of non est factum where a negotiable instrument has in fact been signed.

99 But where a person was told that a stipulation in a written contract would not be enforced, it was held that she could not be said to have assented to it and therefore that the document did not represent the real agreement between the parties: Tyagaraja Mudaliar v. Vedathanni (1935) 63 I.A. 126; 59 Mad. 446; 160 I.C. 384: 1936 A.P.C. 70. Where a person signed after stating that he had understood the terms, he was bound by the contract: Mitha Shah v. Devi Dass, 1944 A. Pesh. 23. See also Rameswar v. Nurul Huq, 1949 A.F.C. 78.

trusts to his own man of business a blank paper duly stamped as a bond and signed and sealed by himself in order that the instrument may be drawn up and money raised upon it for his benefit, if the instrument is afterwards duly drawn up and money obtained upon it from persons who have no reason to doubt the good faith of the transaction, it is presumed that the bond was drawn in accordance with the obligor's wishes and instructions.[1] As to inchoate stamped negotiable instruments provision is made by the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, s. 20. which is as follows:—"Where one person signs and delivers to another a paper stamped in accordance with the law relating to negotiable instruments then in force in British India, and either wholly blank or having written thereon an incomplete negotiable instrument, he thereby gives prima facie authority to the holder thereof to make or complete, as the case may be, upon it a negotiable instrument, for any amount specified therein and not exceeding the amount conveyed by the stamp. The person so signing shall be liable upon such instrument, in the capacity in which he signed the same, to any holder in due course for such amount: provided that no person other than a holder in due course shall recover from the person delivering the instrument anything in excess of the amount intended by him to be paid thereunder." As to the existence or non-existence of apparent authority in particular circumstances very delicate questions may arise under the law and practice of English company business. It would not be useful to pursue these here.[2]

Estoppel by Conduct.—Where an owner entrusted his property (a car) to the care of another person and that person by his conduct albeit intentionally led a third person to believe that the owner had no title or had a limited title and the third person acted on that belief, the owner would be estopped from asserting his title against the third person if it would be unjust or inequitable to allow him to do so. Therefore where HPI was set up as an organisation to give information about hire-purchase of vehicles and the plaintiff was a member of it and it gave the information of no hire-purchase of the plaintiff's car, the information was attributable to the plaintiff and he was bound by it.[3]

Parda-nishin cases.—It might be possible to refer to this head some of the cases in which gifts or other acts, practically amounting to acts of bounty, of parda-nishin[4] women have been set aside. But it is certainly not necessary for this purpose to show that the nature of the act was not understood at all. The jurisdiction rests on a presumption of imperfect knowledge of the world and exposure to undue influence, making it the duty of a person taking a beneficial grant or contract from a parda-nishin woman to show that the deed was explained to her and understood by her,[5] so that the ordinary burden of proof is reversed. These cases accordingly belong to the head of undue influence.

Contract inter praesentes.—"There is no branch of law of contract which is more uncertain and difficult" than that involved in cases where the question of identity of the promisor is involved.[6] The test is "How ought the promisee to have interpreted the promise" and not Pothier's test "What did the promisor intend when he made the promise" which if taken literally seems to involve inquisition into the "feelings" and into the motives of the promisor.[7]

Error as to the person of the other party.—There can be no real formation of an agreement by proposal and acceptance unless a proposal is accepted by the person or one of a class or number of persons to whom it is made. Similarly the acceptance must be directed to the proposer, at least the acceptor must have so acted as to entitle the proposer to treat the acceptance as meant for him.

---

1 Wahidunessa v. Surgadass (1879) 5 Cal. 39.
2 George Whitechurch Ltd. v. Cavanagh (1902) A.C. 117; Ruben v. Great Fingall Consolidated (1904) 2 K.B. 712, C.A.
3 Moorgate Mercantile Co. Ltd. v. Witchings (1975) 3 All E.R. 314, 323; (C.A.) Att. General v. Cotton (1916) 2 K.B. 193, 203; Eastern Distributors v. Goldring (1953) 2 All E.R. 525, 529. applied.
4 The current spelling nashin is a mere blunder. It does not even represent a current mispronounciation.
5 Annoda Mohun Rai v. Bhuban Mohini Debi (1901) 28 Cal. 546, 548.
6 Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 O.B. 31; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332, 338; Fawcett v. Star Car Sales Ltd. (1960) N.Z.L.R. p.406; Goodhart: L.Q.R. Vol. 57, pp.228, 240.
7 Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332, 340, per Pearce L.J. Goodhart: (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228, 244. (It is certainly time that Pothier's statement was firmly and finally buried.)

Mistake as to the identity of the person with whom the contract is made[8] may often be of no importance. For instance an auctioneer who accepts a bid at a public auction is generally not concerned with the identity of the bidder nor can one, who invites an offer by advertisement, say that he was mistaken as to the identity of the acceptor.[9] But a person cannot constitute himself a contracting party with one, whom he knows or ought to know, has no intention of contracting with him.[10] A mistake as to the person dealt with prevents the contract from coming into existence for want of assent.[11]

Fundamental Fact.—But Barwick C.J. held that the effect of the mistake as to the identity of the borrower in the case of a mortgage is not fundamental to the transaction.[12]

Impersonating by one party to a purported contract makes the contract void. So that if the seller believes that he is entering into a contract with the person impersonated and the impersonator knows it then there is no contract.[13] Mistake as to the identity of a person is of two kinds—(i) where the parties are dealing with each other from a distance and (ii) where the parties are in each others' presence.

Parties at a distance.—Three cases illustrative of the former are: Boulton v. Jones;[14] *Upton-on-Severn R.D.C.*v. Powell[15] and Cundy v. Lindsay.[16]

In Boulton v. Jones,[17]

there had been dealings between Jones and one Brocklehurst against whom Jones had a set off and who had recently transferred his business to his foreman Boulton. Jones sent an order to Brocklehurst which was complied with by Jones without disclosing the change of ownership. Jones refused to pay.

The court held he was not liable; the rule being that if A intends to contract with B, C cannot give himself any right under it. But the buyer would be bound as on a new contract if after notice he treated the sale as subsisting.[18] But where a general offer is made, e.g. by advertisement, the offeror cannot say he was mistaken as to the identity of the acceptor.[19]

In Upton-on-Severn R.D.C. v. Powell[20] the defendant sent for the fire brigade of a wrong area and the call was accepted in good faith; the defendant was held contractually liable to pay.

In Cundy v. Lindsay,[21]

one Blenkarn pretending to be the respectable firm Blenkiron & Co. fraudulently induced the respondents to send the goods to his address and then sold the goods to the appellant. The respondents sued for the return of the goods.

---

8 Goodhart: (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228; Wilson: (1954) 17 Mod. L.R. 515; Unger: (1955) 18 Mod. L.R. 259; Hall: (1961) Camb. L.J. 86.

9 Dennant v.Skinner (1948) 2 K.B. 164; Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31, 57; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332; Smith v. Wheatcraft (1878) 9 Ch.D. 223.

10 Anson; Law of Contract (22nd Ed.), p. 274.

11 Kerr on Fraud and Mistake (7th Ed.) 156; Fawcett v. Star Sales Ltd. (1960) N,Z.L. 406,414 (Gresson P.) but contra, pp. 426, 430 (Majority). Also contra per Barwick C.J. in Porter v. Latec Finance Ltd. (1964) 111 C.L.R. 177; 38 A.J.L.R. 184, 187; Anson: Law of Contract (22nd Ed.) p.274.

12 Porter v. Latec Finance (Q.L.D.) Pty. Ltd. (1964) 111 C.L.R. 177; 38 A.J.L.R. 184. 187.

13 Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332; but see Devlin L.J., p. 338; Philips v. Brooks Ltd. (1919) 2 K.B. 243; Lake v. Simmons (1927) A.C. 487; (1927) All E.R. Rep. 49 and Fawcett v. Star Sales Ltd. (1960) N.Z.L.R. 406 refd to; Porter v. Latec Finance (Q.L.D.) Ltd. (1964) 111 C.L.R. 177, 194; Dr. Goodhart: (1941) L.Q.R. 228.

14 (1857) 2 H. & N. 564; (1857) 6 W.R. 107 (Boulton knew of the set off).

15 (1942) 1 All E.R. 220

16 (1878) 3 App. Cas. 459.

17 (1857) 2 H. & N. 564, 565; 115 R.R. 695 folld. by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts in Boston Ice Co. v. Potter, 123 Mass. 28 (1877). See Benjamin on Sale (6th Edn.) 119. 120, where the learned author's suggestion of some different equitable rule is not supported by his latest editors. Sir Frederick Pollock was never able to accept it.

18 See Mitchell v. Lapage (1816) Holt N.P. 253; 17 R.R. 633

19 Dennant v. Skinner (1948) 2 K.B. 164; (1948) 2 All E.R. 29; Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31, 57; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332.

20 (1942) 1 All E.R. 220.

21 (1878) 3 App. Cas. 459, 465. Quaere: What would have been the result if by some lucky accident the

The House of Lords held that the contract never came into existence and was void ab initio and not merely voidable and therefore the respondents were entitled to succeed. Similarly, in a Punjab case[22] where A entered into a contract with B, a brother of C, on the representation of B that he was C, the then Chief Court of the Punjab held that the case came within the section and there was no contract between A and B. But if the mistake is not as to identity of the other party but as to his attributes, e.g. solvency or social position, then the mistake is insufficient. In Edridge's case[23] the plaintiff supplied metal wire to Wallis who sent the order under the name of a non-existing firm Hallam & Co., making it appear a substantial firm with a large factory. The contract was held not void on the ground of mistake as the plaintiffs had contracted with him. The purchaser from Wallis got a good title as there was no mistake as to identity.[23]

Mistake inter praesentes.—A more difficult problem is raised by cases where transactions are between persons in each others' presence. In such cases the party contracting has to prove not only that he did not intend to contract with the person with whom the contract was made but with a third identifiable person with whom he intended to make the contract.[24] a rogue calling himself Hutchinson came to two sisters, the Misses Ingrams and offered to buy their car which was advertised for sale. He offered to give them a cheque which they refused. Then one of the sisters went to the Post Office and ascertained from the telephone directory that there was such a person as Hutchinson at the address given by the rogue. The cheque was accepted and the car taken away by the rogue, and sold to a third person who took it in good faith. The cheque was discovered to be worthless.

In Ingram v. Little,[25]

The contract was held to be void on the ground that it was with Hutchinson that the ladies intended to deal and not with the person who was physically present before them and the swindler knew this. The offer was therefore one which was not capable of being accepted by him. But in Fawcett v. Star Car Sales Ltd.[26] where the facts were similar, the New Zealand Court of Appeal held that the sale passed the property to the buyer and the sale was not void but voidable. Similarly in Lewis v. Averay where the facts were similar the judgment was given for the bona fide purchaser for value but this judgment was reversed.[27]

In Hardman v. Booth,[28]

one of the plaintiffs was fraudulently persuaded by one Edward Gandell that he was a member of Gandell & Co. which in fact consisted only of Thomas Gandell.

It was held that there was no contract since plaintiff's offer was made to Thomas only and this Edward also knew.

In Philips v. Brooks Ltd.[29]

the rogue North went into a shop and inspected goods for a considerable time and selected some pieces of jewellery. He then wrote out a cheque saying "I am Sir George Bullough"—a person known by reputation to the plaintiff. He took away the goods and pledged them with the defendant who accepted them in good faith.

The plaintiff's action failed as it was held that the contract was with "the person present and identified by sight and hearing" and was not therefore void on the ground of mistake but voidable on the ground of fraud.

---

goods had been delivered to Blenkiron & Co.? It seems they might have treated the goods as offered to them. They would not, of course, have been bound to accept them.

22 Jagganath v. Secretary of State, 21 P.R. 1886.

23 King's Norton Metal Co. v. Edridge Merrett & Co. Ltd. (1897) 14 T.L.R. 98; dist. in Ingram v. Little (1960) 1 All E.R. 332, 337; Cf. Newborne v. Sensolid (Great Britain) Ltd. (1954) 1 Q.B. 45; (1953) 1 All E.R. 708 (a contract with a company not registered a nullity).

24 Goodhart: (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228; Unger: (1955) 18 Mod. L.R. 259.

25 Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332 (Devlin J. dissenting). Goodhart: (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228 at p. 231 quoted with approval.

26 (1960) N.Z.L.R. 406 (Gresson P. Dissenting).

27 (1972) 1 Q.B. 198 (C.A.); (1973) 1 W.L.R. 510; (1973) 3 All E.R. 329.

28 (1863) 1 H. & C. 803.

29 (1919) 2 K.B. 243; see Goodhart: (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228, 241 dist. in Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31;

This case was distinguished in Lake v. Simmons[30] where it was pointed out that the misrepresentation by North of his identity had not occurred until after the sale had concluded and the property had passed. Dr. Goodhart has thus discussed Philips case:[31]

Did the shopkeeper believe that he was entering into a contract with Sir George Bullough and did North know it? If both answers are in the affirmative then it is submitted that there was no contract.

In Lake v. Simmons[32]

jewellery was entrusted by a jeweller to a customer who had purchased articles of small value and paid for them. She misrepresented herself to be the wife of a certain person and wanted to show the jewellery to her husband and another person for approval but she disposed it of for her benefit.

Her conduct was held fraudulent and she was guilty of larceny by trick and therefore the transaction was not within the exemption clause of an insurance policy. i.e. "loss by theft or dishonesty committed by... any customer ...in respect of goods entrusted to them by the assured."[32]

In Lewis v. Averay[33] a rogue appeared before Lewis who had a car to sell and purchased the car impersonating a film actor Richard Green and gave a cheque for £450 and signed it in the name of R.A. Green. He convinced the vendor by showing his special pass in the name of Richard A. Green with a photograph which was of the rogue himself. Being convinced the vendor gave the car and the log book and registration certificate to the rogue and the papers. The latter soon after sold the car to Averay a music student who paid £200/- for the car and he now pretended to be Lewis. The cheque in favour of Lewis was dishonoured and Lewis brought a suit claiming the car as his. The question before the Court was which of the two innocent persons must suffer. The Court of Appeal held in favour of the ultimate buyer Averay. Denning M.R. observed that Lewis should suffer because he made it possible for the rogue to commit the fraud. He further observed that when two parties have come to a contract the fact that one party is mistaken as to identity of the other does not mean that there is no contract. Further, when a deal is made between a seller and a buyer the presumption in law is that there is a contract in spite of fraudulent representation although such a contract is voidable for fraud, but it is a good contract till it is set aside. Not only Philips v. Brooks[34] but American cases[35] have held that "the Courts hold that if 'A' appeared in person before 'B' impersonating 'C' an innocent purchaser from 'A' gets the property in the goods against 'B' Ingram v. Little[36] was not followed by the Court of Appeal.

It is difficult to reconcile the decision in Philips v. Brooks[29] (1919) 2 K.B. 243 and Ingrams v. Little[29] (1961) 1 Q.B. 31. In the former, the shopkeeper at least of the existence of Sir George Bullough; in the latter, the plaintiffs had never heard of Hutchinson, and therefore there was less reason for attributing to them as intention to deal with him rather than with the person identified by sight and hearing. In all cases of this type, the vital factor in the mind of the seller is the ability of the buyer to pay, but there seems to be little substantial dif-

---

(1960) 3 All E.R. 332; Lewis v. Averay, (1971) 3 All E.R. 907. (Sale to a rogue who posed as a famous actor. Sale not void but voidable as identity was not shown to be of vital importance. The mistake was as to credit-worthiness).

30 (1927) A.C. 487; dist. in Rigby, John (Haulage) Ltd. v. Reliance Insurance Co. Ltd. (1956) 2 Q.B. 468; (1956) 3 All E.R. 1, 6; and Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31 at p. 71; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332.

31 Philips v. North (1919) 2 K.B. 243, question posed by Dr. Goodhart in (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228, 240; Quoted by Seller L.J. in Ingram v. Little (1961) 1 Q.B. 31; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332, 338; but see Devlin L.J. (dissenting). But in Lewis v. Averay (1972) 1 Q.B. 198; (1971) 3 All E.R. 907 the C.A. approved Philips case (1919) 2 K.B. 243; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep. 241.

32 (1927) A.C. 487; (1927) All E.R. Rep. 49.

33 (1972) 1 Q.B. 198; King Norton Metal Co. Ltd. v. Eldridge Merrett & Co. Ltd. (1897) 14 T.L.R. 98 applied.

34 (1919) 2 K.B. 243; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep. 241.

35 The passage is from Corbin on Contracts Vol. 3 S. 602. appld.

36 (1961) 1 Q.B. 31, 61; (1960) 3 All E.R. 332, 344 not folld.

ference between a mistaken reliance upon the credit-worthiness of a non-existent person and of a person who indeed exists but of whom the mistaken party has never heard.[37]

No third party in existence.—A little more different problem is where there is no third person in existence, i.e. A makes a contract with B believing that B is not B and B knows of this error. The contract is not void ab initio but may be voidable by fraud.

In Gordon v. Street,[38]

one Isaac Gordon—a self-confessed extortionate and usurious money-lender under a concealed identity of Addison offered to lend money to the public. The defendant borrowed from him on a promissory note which he would not have done had he known the identity of the lender.

The contract was held voidable for fraud and not void.

In Sowler v. Potter,[39]

the defendant had previously been convicted under the name Ann Robinson of keeping a disorderly cafe. Concealing her identity under the name Ann Potter she took on lease the plaintiff's premises.

The contention of the plaintiff that the contract was void for mistake was upheld by Tucker J. The contract should have been held voidable.[40]

Mistake (contd.)

Where personal considerations enter into a contract error as to the person with whom the contract is made annuls the contract.[41]

Therefore where the plaintiff knew that the theatre would not contract with him by the sale of a ticket and yet he purchased one through and under the name of Pollock the plaintiff could not constitute himself a contractor with the theatre. If he was evicted there would be no breach of the contract.[42]

American and New Zealand Laws.—According to an American decision, Edmunds v. Merchants' Despatch Transportation Co.,[43]

"(i) if A, fraudulently assuming the name of a reputable merchant in a certain town, buys, in person, goods of another, the property in the goods passes to A. (ii) If A, representing himself to be a brother of a reputable merchant in a certain town buying for him, buys, in person, goods of another, the property in the goods does not pass to A."

In New Zealand the doctrine of mistake was not applied to a sale by a woman impersonating the true owner of the car.[44]

A car in that case was sold by Mrs. Fawcett to one Saint Merat who the very same day sold it to Star Car Sales Ltd. through a woman who purported to be Mrs. Fawcett. The cheque for price of the car issued by the buyer Saint Merat was dishonoured and Mrs. Fawcett got the car seized in execution of the judgment. The Star Car Sales Ltd. brought interpleader proceedings claiming the car; Mrs. Fawcett pleaded that the sale between Star Car Sales Ltd and the personator was void for mistake.

Gresson P. held the contract to be void for mistake as the transaction failed to bring about a concluded contract. The car was purchased under the mistaken belief that the seller was Mrs. Fawcett. Thus there was no consensus ad idem.[45] But the other two judges held 37 Cheshire and Fifoot, The Law of Contract, 6th Edn., p. 212; Levis v. Averay, (1971) 3 All E.R. 907.

---

38 (1899) 2 Q.B. 641.
39 (1940) 1 K.B. 271.
40 Criticised by Denning L.J. in Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671, 691; by Goodhart (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228; Anson: Law of Contract (22nd Ed.) 282.
41 Smith v. Wheatcroft (1879) 9 Ch.D. 223, 230 quoting with approval Pothier: Traite' des Obligations 3.19. Fry on Specific Performance, s. 229. But see Goodhart: (1941) 57 L.Q.R. 228, 244. ("It is certainly time that Pothier's statement was firmly and finally buried.")
42 Said v. Butt (1920) 3 K.B. 497, 502.
43 (1883) 135 Mass. 283.
44 Fawcett v. Star Car Sales Ltd. (1960) N.Z.L.R. 406. (Gresson P. contra).
45 Fawcett v. Star Car Sales Ltd. (1960) N.Z.L.R. 406, 414, 426-430; Barwick C.J. in Porter v. Latec Finance Pty. Ltd. (1964) 111 C.L.R. 177; 38 A.L.J.R. 184, 187. See Kerr on Fraud and Mistake (7th Edn.) 156—(A mistake as to the person dealt with prevents the contract from coming into existence against that view. North J. held it a case of false description and Cleary J. a case of agency.[46]

As to the subject-matter of the agreement.—It is quite possible for the parties to a contract to be under a common mistake of this kind. If the mistake is not common, it may happen, in very exceptional cases, that by reason of an ambiguous name, or the like, each party is mistaken as to the other's intention and neither is estopped from showing his own intention.[47] Otherwise a contract (assuming the other conditions for the formation of a contract to be satisfied) can be affected by such a mistake, not common to both parties, only where it is induced by fraud or misrepresentation. We shall find (see below on s. 18) that wilful acquiescence in the other party's mistake is equivalent to misrepresentation under certain circumstances. If the mistake is common, it can seldom, if ever, be said that there was no consent. A simpler and more correct explanation is to say that there was an agreement subject to a condition understood or implied in the nature of the agreement itself, though not expressed, and that condition has not been fulfilled. It may be that at the date of the agreement the condition is already incapable of fulfilment by reason of some fact unknown to the parties, as in the case of an agreement for the sale of a horse which in fact is dead, or a specific cargo which in fact is lost. In that case no operative obligation ever arises under the agreement. But this may be the case with any conditional contract. The interposition of a time of suspense, during which it cannot be known whether there will be an operative contract or not, can make no difference to the legal nature of the transaction. This particular class of cases, however, is specially dealt with by s. 20 of the Act.

In many cases falling under the foregoing heads, though not in all, the same result may be arrived at by observing that there is no consideration for the promise which it is sought to enforce.

Coercion wholly excluding consent.—Coercion might possibly be such as not only to prevent consent from being free (ss. 14, 15), but to exclude any real or intelligent consent altogether. In two English cases marriages have been declared void, in extremely peculiar circumstances, on the ground of combined fraud and coercion having operated on the pretended wife to such an extent that the marriage was not her voluntary act.[48] No case of this kind is known to have occurred in the region of ordinary contract.

14. Consent is said to be free when it is not caused by—

"Free consent" defined.

(1) coercion, as defined in section 15, or

(2) undue influence, as defined in section 16, or

(3) fraud, as defined in section 17, or

(4) misrepresentation, as defined in section 18, or

(5) mistake subject to the provisions of sections 20, 21, and 22.

Consent is said to be so caused when it would not have been given but for the existence of such coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake.

Unfree consent.—Not only consent but free consent is declared by s. 10 to be necessary to the complete validity of a contract. The Act now proceeds to declare the meaning of this addition. Where there is no consent or no real and certain object of consent (cf. s. 29, below) there can be no contract at all. Where there is consent, but not free consent, there is generally a contract voidable at the option of the party whose consent was not free. This section declares in general the causes which may exclude freedom of consent, leaving them to be more fully ex-for want of assent). Chitty: On Contract (22nd Edn). para. 216; (24th Edn.) para 297 (Contract was void ab initio.).

---

46 23 Can. Bar. Rev. 271, 381.

47 Baffles v. Wichelhaus, 8 E. & B. 815; Falck v. Williams (1900) A.C. 176, where an offer made by an ambiguous code message was accepted unconditionally, but in fact not in the proposer's sense, and there was no contract.

48 Scott v. Sebright (1886) 12 P.D. 21; Ford v. Stier (1896) P. 1, where the woman thought the ceremony was only a betrothal.

plained by the later sections referred to in the text. In one respect the language is open to objection. It seems, when read together with that of other relevant sections, to assume that there are cases in which a contract is voidable on the ground of mistake. We are not aware of any such cases. We have seen that certain kinds of mistake may exclude consent altogether. In such cases no real agreement is ever formed, or there is no real object on which the parties are agreed, and the seeming agreement is wholly void. Otherwise mistake, if not induced by misrepresentation or fraud, is inoperative. If there be any specific exceptions to this rule, the Act gives no clue to them; in fact, we do not believe there are any. The specific provisions of the Act, however, cover the ground sufficiently to avoid any danger of serious error in practice.

Since the learned authors wrote these words, the English Court of Appeal in Solle v. Butcher[49] has held a contract voidable on the ground of mutual mistake.[50] There D proposed to let a flat to P. It was doubtful whether the flat was subject to the Rent Restriction Acts, and a maximum rent of £140/- per annum. The parties believed that the flat had changed its identity because of rebuilding, and was no longer subject to this maximum. A lease for seven years was executed at a rent of £250/- per annum. The Court held that there had been no change of identity, and that the parties had been labouring under a mistake of fact. They granted rescission to D on the ground of mutual mistake.[51]

The decision purported to be based on equitable grounds, but it seems on the new equity that Denning L.J. has often advocated,[52] rather on established doctrine of the Chancery Courts. The Court relied on Cooper v. Phibbs,[53] where A agreed to take a lease of a salmon fishery for three years from R, but thereafter it transpired that A was already entitled to possession of the fishery as tenant in tail. The House of Lords viewed A's request to be relieved from the lease with favour, but R, who was trustee of the estate, had spent large sums in obtaining an Act of Parliament to sanction diversion of the stream to decrease the height the salmon had to leap, and might have a lien on the property for his expenditure, which would be binding on the remaindermen who were not before the Court, and could not be the subject of adjudication in their absence. A's petition was therefore stood over, with liberty to apply to bring the remaindermen as parties before the Court. It is not clear whether the Court regarded the lease as prima facie void or voidable. Their Lordships declare that the lease ought to be set aside, suggesting voidability, but Lord Cranworth, one of the two judges, observes that the rent must be repaid,[54] indicating that in his view the agreement was void, though it appears from the judgment of Lord Westbury[55] and from the actual order that no rent had been paid as the mistake had been discovered before any rent became due. The better view is that the agreement was void, and the case is no authority for any doctrine that contracts may be voidable in equity for mistake. This view is confirmed by the remarks in Bell v. Lever Bros. of Lord Atkin in the House of Lords,[56] and of Scrutton and Lawrence L.JJ. in the Court of Appeal.[57] All three learned judges dicuss Cooper v. Phibbs and say that the agreement was void. "See under s. 20 Mistake and under s. 19 Restitutio in integrum and under s. 13."

---

49 (1950) 1 K.B. 671.

50 Sir Frederick Pollock has observed (infra Part II, Chapter III) that "mutual" is bad English for "common", where as here the parties do not mistake each other, but make the same mistake. Cheshire and Fifoot, Law of Contract, 3rd edn. 175 make the same point.

51 The advantage of rescission to D was that before the new lease, he could serve a notice on P under the Rent Restriction Acts making lawful increases in the rent of £140/- During the running of a lease such a notice would be ineffective.

52 In Rose v. Pim (1953) 2 Q.B. 450, 460, Denning L.J. indicates his readiness, had the facts permitted, to follow the doctrine of voidability for mutual mistake that he laid down in Solle v. Butcher. His view has been applied by the Supreme Court of Newfoundland in O'Flaherty v. McKinlay (1953) 2 D.L.R. 514, 518. In 69 L.Q.R. 291. Professor Goodhart however observes that this novel doctrine has found little support, and was held not applicable by Pilcher J. in Harrison v. Bunten (1953) 1 Q.B. 646.

53 (1867) L.R. 2 H.L. 149.

54 At page 164.

55 At page 171. See also p. 153 in the statement of facts.

56 (1932) A.C. at p. 218.

57 (1931) 1 K.B. at pp. 585, 591.

15. "Coercion" is the committing, or threatening to commit, any act forbidden by the Indian Penal Code, or the unlawful detaining, or threatening to detain, any property, to the prejudice of any person whatever, with the intention of causing any person to enter into an agreement.

"Coercion" defined

Explanation.—It is immaterial whether the Indian Penal Code is or is not in force in the place where the coercion is employed.

Illustration

A, on board an English ship on the high seas, causes B to enter into an agreement by an act amounting to criminal intimidation under the Indian Penal Code.

A afterwards sues B for breach of contract at Calcutta.

A has employed coercion, although his act is not an offence by the law of England, and although section 506 of the Indian Penal Code was not in force at that time when or place where the act was done:

Extent of "Coercion" under the Act.—The words of this section are far wider than anything in the English authorities; it must be assumed that this was intended. In the original draft the word "coercion" is used but not defined. As the definition stands the coercion invalidating a contract need not proceed from a party to the contract, or be immediately directed against a person whom it is intended to cause to enter into the contract or any member of his household, or affect his property, or be specifically to his prejudice. In England the topic of "duress" at common law has been almost rendered obsolete[58] partly by the general improvement in manners and morals, and partly by the development of equitable jurisdiction under the head of Undue Influence.[59] Detaining property is not duress. Two singular cases of marriage under coercion have been cited under s. 13 above. As to repayment under s. 72 of money paid under coercion (not necessarily within the present definition), see the commentary on that section.

Duress.—To constitute duress of any kind there has to be coercion of will so as to vitiate consent.[60]

During the course of a struggle for power between 'A' and 'B' over 'L' Ltd., 'A' threatened 'B' on various occasions with death if 'L' Ltd. did not agree to pay a sum of money and purchase his shares. The evidence showed that 'B' was frightened by those threats, but they had not influenced him in executing a deed on behalf of 'L' Limited. 'B' sought a declaration that the deed was secured under duress and was void. The Privy Council[61] held that if a man threatens another with unpleasant consequences if he does not act in a particular manner he must take the risk that the impact of his threats may be accentuated by extraneous circumstances for which he is not in fact responsible. They further held that 'A's' threats may have been unnecessary. but it would be unrealistic to hold that they played no part in making 'B' decide to execute the documents. The proper inference to be drawn from the facts found was that though it may be that 'B' would have executed the documents even if 'A' had made no threats and exerted no unlawful pressure to induce him to do so, the threats and unlawful 58 In Gnapp v. Petroleum Board (1949) 1 All E.R. 980, the plaintiff sued the Board to recover money overpaid for short delivery of eleven gallons of petrol. The Board were the sole suppliers of petrol to retailers under war-time conditions. The provisions of sale precluded the plaintiff G from objecting to short delivery, and the Court held that the overpayment could not be recovered as G was not acting under duress, although he was compelled to accept the Board's terms if he wanted any supply of petrol at all.

---

59 This view is confirmed by reference to Talbot v. Von Boris (1911) 1 K.B. 854, one of the few cases where duress has been pleaded in this century: a plea of undue influence would have given the defendant just the same chance of obtaining relief.

60 Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65. Barton v. Armstrong (1976) A.C. 104, 108; (1975) 2 All E.R. 465, 476-77 reld. on See also (1980) 54 ALJ 633.

61 Barton v. Armstrong (1976) A.C. 104; (1975) 2 All E.R. 465 (P.C.)

pressure in fact contributed to 'B's' decision to sign the documents and recommend their execution. The Privy Council made the declaration that the deeds in question were executed by 'B' under duress and were void so far as the rights or obligations inter se of the parties to the deed were concerned.

Duress, Contract under.—A disposition made under duress or under undue influence was to be regarded in the same manner as disposition made as the result of fraudulent misrepresentation.[62]

Duress—Commercial or economic pressure.—The Privy Council has held in a later case[63] that a guarantee is not voidable because of duress on the plaintiffs part. To constitute duress of any kind there has to be coercion of will so as to vitiate the consent and in relation to a contract, commercial pressure alone did not constitute duress. Coercion vitiating consent depended on whether the person alleged to have been coerced did or did not protest, whether he had an alternative course open to him (e.g. adequate legal remedy) at the time of coercion alleged, whether he was independently advised and whether after entering into the contract he had taken steps to avoid it. For economic duress see (1980) 54 ALJ 381.

Economic duress.—In a shipbuilding contract[64] the price was to be paid in US dollars. On the devaluation of the dollar the builders demanded corresponding increase in instalments of price remaining unpaid and threatened to terminate the contract. After sometime the owners agreed to pay the increased price without protest and the builders agreed to increase the amount of the letter of credit for repayment. When the vessel was ready the owners took delivery of the vessel without protest. They then laid claim to the return of the increase in price on the ground of economic duress which made the contract voidable. It was held that the agreement was voidable. But as the owners had affirmed the contract by failing to protest, the owners were not entitled to the return of the increase.

The recovery of money on the ground that it had been paid under duress other than under duress to the person is not limited to cases where there had been duress to goods: The duress could also take the form of economic duress which could be constituted by a threat to break the contract that led to a further contract. That contract even though for good consideration is voidable by reason of economic duress. But if a party who had entered into a contract under the economic duress later affirmed the contract, he was bound by it.[65]

Recently in two English cases[66] it was recognised that commercial or economic pressure may constitute duress the pressure of which may render the contract voidable. Both cases stressed that pressure must be such that the victim's consent is not a voluntary act on his part. The Privy Council[67] while recognising this said that there is nothing contrary to principle in recognising economic duress as a factor which may render a contract voidable provided the basis of such recognition is that it must amount to coercion of will which vitiates consent. It must be shown that payment made or contract entered into was not a voluntary act. American Law[68] also recognises that a contract may be avoided on the ground of economic duress.

---

62 Barton v. Armstrong and others (1975) 2 All E.R. 465 PC.

63 Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65,78 (P.C.); Barton v. Armstrong (1975) 2 All E.R. 465, 476-477 (Lord Wilberforce & Lord Simond) applied. The Siboen and the Sibotre (1976) 1 Lloyds Reports 293, 336 appd.

64 North Ocean Shipping v. Hyundai Construction Co. Ltd (1978) 3 All E.R. 1170, 1182-4; Smith v. William Charlick Ltd. (1924) 34 CLR 38, 56 applied

65 North Ocean Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Construction Co. Ltd. and another (1978) 3 All E.R. 1170; dictum of Isacs J in Smith v. William Charlick Ltd. (1924) 34 CLR 38 at 56 appld.; Skeate v. Beale (1840) Ad & El 984; 52 R.R. 558 considered.Recognised by Privy Council in Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65, 78-79.

66 Per Kerr J. in the Siboen & the Sibotre (1976) 1 Lloyds Rep. 293. PerMocatta J. in North Ocean Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Construction Co. Ltd. (1978) 3 All E.R. 1170. Recognised by the Privy Council in Barton v. Armstrong (1975) 2 All E.R. 465, 477-8 (Lord Wilberforce & Lord Simon of Glaisdale).

67 All cases applied in Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65, 78-79.

68 Williston on Contract (3rd Ed.) 1970 Ch. 47 ref. to.

The defendant, International Transport Workers Federation, held up the plaintiff-Shipowners vessel and prevented it from sailing unless the shipowners paid a large sum of money towards the seafarers International Welfare Protection and Assistance Fund. The shipowners were made to sign a typed script for payment to the defendant Federation a sum of money towards the abovementioned Protection Fund and difference in wages claimed. The payment was only means by which the shipowners could get possession of their vessel and make it free for sailing. It was held that there was no protection under the Trade Disputes Act for the sum of money which the shipowners were made to pay towards the Seafarer Protection Fund which was extorted by means of a tort. The law did not allow a union to add a demand unconnected with a trade dispute to a claim which fell within the Act.[69]

Burden of proof is Contracts under duress.—In a contract made between parties where duress was not the sole reason for entering into a contract there is no burden on the party threatened to show that but for the threat no agreement would have been made. Such an agreement is void unless the party who made the threats can show that the threats contributed nothing to the other party's decision to enter the agreement.[70]

Consideration: Duress—public policy.—Where the consideration for a promise is an existing contractual duty to a third party, which was otherwise valid consideration, it is not invalid as being against public policy (in the absence of proof of duress) merely because the promise was secured by a threat of repudiation of an existing contract or by the unfair use of a dominant bargaining position. In the case of businessmen negotiating at arms length, it was unnecessary to invoke that position for the achievement of justice, because what justice required was that businessmen must be held to their bargain unless the consent is shown to have been vitiated by fraud, mistake or duress. Accordingly the consideration for the indemnity established by extrinsic evidence was not invalidated on the ground of public policy.[71]

Act forbidden by the Penal Code.—The words "act forbidden by the Indian Penal Code" make it necessary for the Court to decide in a civil action, if that branch of the section is relied on, whether the alleged act of coercion is such as to amount to an offence. The mere fact that an agreement to refer matters in dispute to arbitration was entered into during the pendency and in fear of criminal proceedings is not sufficient to avoid the agreement on the ground of "coercion," though the agreement may be void as opposed to public policy within the meaning of s. 23.[72] It must further be shown that the complainant or some other person on his behalf took advantage of the state of mind of the accused to apply pressure upon him to procure his consent.[73] So far as we are aware, there is no Indian case decided with express reference to the branch of the section now under consideration.[74] In Banda Ali v. Banspat Singh,[75] the High Court of Allahabad refused to enforce a bond executed by a judgment debtor in favour of the decree holder to procure his release from custody in execution of a decree of a Court which had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. The Court held that the bond was obtained when the judgment debtor was in duress, and it could be said with some amount of certainty that the decision proceeded on the ground (though no reasons are stated) that the alleged act of coercion amounted to an offence within the meaning of the Penal Code.[76] The judgment of the High Court, so far as it holds that the bond was executed under coercion, seems open to question as involving the assumption that the arrest of a judgment debtor in execution of an apparently regular decree amounts to the offence of wrongful confinement if the 69 Universe Yorkships Inc. of Moravia v. International Transport Workers Federation: decided on 2.4.1980 by Parker J. published in the London Times of 10.4.1980.

---

70 Barton v. Armstrong and others (1975) 2 All E.R. 465 PC.

71 Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65, 77, 78 (P.C.); Marris v. Watson (1775-1802) All E.R. Rep. 493; Stilk v. Myrick (1809) 2 Camp. 317 disting.

72 Gobardhan Das v. Jai Kishen Das (1900) 22 All. 224; Masjidi v. Mussammat Ayisha (1882) Punj. Rec. No. 135.

73 22 All 224, at p. 227, citing Jones v. Merionethshire Building Society (1892) 1 Ch. 173.

74 See, however, Amiraju v. Seshama (1918) 41 Mad. 33, infra, note 37.

75 40 I.C. 352; (1882) 4 All 352.

76 See extract from judgment of the District Judge, 4 All 352, at p. 354.

Court is ultimately found to have no jurisdiction. This would be a dangerous doctrine to adopt in India, where the majority of suitors consist as a rule of illiterate and ignorant persons who cannot be expected to understand the respective jurisdictions of the Courts of various grades spread over different parts of the country. In the next place, assuming that the defendant abetted the offence of wrongful confinement, it does not appear that he did it with the intention of causing the plaintiff to execute the bond, though the plaintiff may have signed the bond with the object of procuring his release from custody. There is yet another case which might be considered under the present head. In that case[77] the High Court of Madras held that an adoption by a Hindu widow thirteen years old[78] was not binding upon her, it having been found that the relatives of the adopted boy obstructed the removal of the corpse of her husband from her house until she consented to the adoption. The decision proceeded on the ground that the widow's consent to the adoption was not free. The Court seem to have thought that the act of the relatives in obstructing the removal of the corpse was within the present section as being forbidden by the Indian Penal Code, but it does not appear under what section of the Code they would have held it punishable. The only section possibly applicable to obstructing the removal of a corpse would seem to be s. 297, which enacts inter alia that whoever with the intention of wounding the feelings of any person, or with the knowledge that the feelings of any person are likely to be wounded, offers an indignity to any human corpse, or causes disturbance to any person assembled for the performance of funeral ceremonies, is liable to imprisonment or fine or both. On the facts of the case there could hardly be any doubt that the act was done with intent to wound the widow's feelings, or at any rate with the knowledge that her feelings would be wounded. The fact, therefore, would constitute an offence if obstructing the removal of the corpose could be regarded as an indignity offered to the corpse, or as a disturbance to the persons assembled to perform the funeral ceremonies. The act constituting coercion did not proceed from any party to the agreement, but the words of the section, as pointed out above, make this immaterial. In any event there would have been no difficulty in holding that the widow's consent was obtained by undue influence within the meaning of s. 16 of the Act.

In a later Madras case the question arose whether if a person held out a threat of committing suicide to his wife and son if they refused to execute a release in his favour, and the wife and son in consequence of that threat executed the release, the release could be said to have been obtained by coercion within the meaning of this section. Wallis C.J. and Seshagiri Aiyar J. answered the question in the affirmative, holding in effect that though a threat to commit suicide was not punishable under the Indian Penal Code, it must be deemed to be forbidden, as an attempt to commit suicide was punishable under the Code (s. 309). Oldfield J. answered the question in the negative on the ground that the present section should be construed strictly, and that an act that was not punishable under the Penal Code could not be said to be forbidden by that Code.[79] This view seems to be correct. A penal code forbids only what it declares punishable. It might be well to amend the present section by adding after "forbidden" such words as "or an attempt to commit which is forbidden"; but that is the business of the legislature, not of the Courts. The truth is that the language of the Act had omitted to take account of a singular case.

Compulsion of law.—Compulsion of law is not coercion under s. 15 of Contract Act and in the eye of law it is freely made.[80] Under Andhra Pradesh Sugar (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, the cane-grower is not bound to offer cane to the factory of his area but if he does, the factory is bound to accept it. This is an agreement not caused by coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake. Under s. 14, compulsion of law is not coercion

---

77 Ranganayakamma v. Alwar Setti (1889) 13 Mad. 214.

78 The Indian Majority Act, 1875, does not affect the capacity of any person to act in matters of adoption (s. 2). The capacity to adopt is determined by the personal law to which the party adopting is subject.

79 Amiraju v. Seshama (1917) 41 Mad. 33.

80 Andhra Sugars Ltd. v. State of Andhra Pradesh (1968) A.SC. 599; Palaniappa Mudaliar v. Kandaswamy Mudaliar (1971) 1 My.L.J. 258; Rameshwar Marwari v. Surendranath Das (1926) A.Cal. 455.

under s. 15 and in the eye of the law it is freely made. It is neither void nor voidable. The transaction is a contract under s. 10.[81] Andhra Sugar Case[80] was a case of the exigibility of sales tax on "sales" of sugar. Bachawat J. relied on the Court's decision in India Steel & Wire Products Ltd. v. the State of Madras[82] which was a case of "sale" by the company (the assessee) to a third party of its steel products under the orders of the Steel Controller. The company it was held had certain amount of flexibility and manoeuvreability and it could not be said that nothing was left to mutual "assent". The Controller's directions were confined to narrow limits and there were several matters which the parties could decide by mutual assent; and freedom to contract, was because of economic compulsions, and freedom to contract being confined to narrower limits.[83] It is submitted that Andhra Sugar case goes much further than the Indian Steel case. There was no manoeuvreability in this case nor mutual assent. The provisions of s.10, require not only consent but free consent, and the Act[84] in that case discussed and adjudicated upon excluded free consent. It cannot be said that the occupier of a factory who accepts and is compelled to accept the sugar-cane offered to him under threat of prosecution is exercising free consent so as to result in a contractual relationship.[85] Where there is an element of compulsion, e.g. of law there is no contractual relationship.[86]. It is also submitted that where law is to be changed because it no longer conforms to the prevailing social philosophy the proper forum for that is the legislature and not the courts.[87]

Unlawful detaining of property.—A refusal on the part of a mortgagee to convey the equity of redemption except on certain terms is not an unlawful detaining or threatening to detain any property within the meaning of this section.[88]

Proof of Coercion.—Where the defendant relied in defence on the plea of coercion and undue influence, fraud and misrepresentation, he should set out all the facts constituting these invalidating circumstances.[89] The mere fact that the plaintiff could get a receiver appointed by the Court who would have acted in pursuance of the warrant to take possession of the goods and the premises cannot amount to coercion within s. 15 of the Act, nor would a suit for dissolution of partnership amount to coercion.[90]

"Undue influence" defined.

16. (1) A contract is said to be induced by "undue influence" where the relations subsisting between the parties are such that one of the parties is in a position to dominate the will of the other and uses that position to obtain an unfair advantage over the other.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing principle, a person is deemed to be in a position to dominate the will of another—

---

81 Ibid, Indian Steel & Products Ltd. v. State of Madras (1968) A.SC. 478; folld.; Treitel: Law of Contract (2nd Ed). p. 5 not accepted; Ridge Nominee v. I.R.C. (1962) 2 W.L.R. refd. to; New India Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Commissioner of Sales Tax (1963) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 459, 499; (1963) A.SC. 1207, 1222 dist.; Cf. Pfizer Corporation v. Ministry of Health (1965) A.C. 512; (1965) 1 All E.R. 450 (Drugs supplied under Public Health Scheme. There is no sale which is a consensual contract).

82 (1968) A.S.C 478.

83 Kirkness v. John Hudson & Co. Ltd. (1955) A.C. 696; (1955) 2 All E.R. 345 dist.

84 Andhra Pradesh Sugarcane (Regulations of Supply & Purchase) Act (Andhra Pradesh Act 45 of 1961).

85 See also S. 14 of the Contract Act and the comment thereunder.

86 Treitel: The Law of the Contract (5th Edn.) page 5; and the cases discussed therein.

87 See Scruttons Ltd. v. Midland Silicones Ltd. (1962) A.C. 446; (1961) 2 W.L.R. 189,191; (1962) 1 All E.R. 1 (per Viscount Simonds). See also p. 134. supra.

88 Bengal Stone Co. Ltd. v. Joseph Hyam (1918) 27 Cal. L.J. 78, 80-82. Detaining office books, etc., left in the hands of an outgoing agent may, of course, fall under the section: Muthiah Chettiar v. Karuppan Chetti (1927) 50 Mad. 786; 105 I.C. 5; 1927 A.M. 852, reported chiefly on an independent question of counsel's authority to compromise.

89 Palaniappa Mudaliar v. Kandaswamy Mudaliar (1971) 1 Mys. L.J. 258; Bishundeo Narain v. Seogeni Rai (1951) A.SC. 280 reld. on.

90 Palaniappa Mudaliar v. Kandaswamy Mudaliar (1971) 1 Mys. L.J. 258; Rameshwar Marwari v. Surendranath Das (1926) A. Cal. 455 reld. on.

(a) where he holds a real or apparent authority over the other, or where he stands in a fiduciary relation to the other; or

(b) where he makes a contract with a person whose mental capacity is temporarily or permanently affected by reason of age, illness, or mental or bodily distress.

(3) Where a person who is in a position to dominate the will of another, enters into a contract with him, and the transaction appears, on the face of it or on the evidence adduced, to be unconscionable,[91] the burden of proving that such contract was not induced by undue influence shall lie upon the person in a position to dominate the will of the other.

Nothing in this sub-section shall affect the provisions of section 111 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1972.

Illustrations

(a) A, having advanced money to his son, B, during his minority, upon B's coming of age obtains, by misuse of parental influence, a bound from B for a greater amount than the sum due in respect of the advance. A employs undue influence.[92]

(b) A, a man enfeebled by disease or age, is induced, by B's influence over him as his medical attendant, to agree to pay B, an unreasonable sum for his professional services. B employs undue influence.[93]

(c) A, being in debt to B, the money lender of his village, contracts a fresh loan on terms which appear to be unconscionable. It lies on B to prove that the contract was not induced by undue influence.

(d) A applies to a banker for a loan at a time when there is stringency in the money market. The banker declines to make the loan except at an unusually high rate of interest. A accepts the loan on these terms. This is a transaction in the ordinary course of business, and the contract is not induced by undue influence.

This section was submitted for the original s. 16 by the Indian Contract (Amendment) Act, 1899 (VI of 1899), s.2.

The section before it was amended stood as follows:—

" 'Undue influence' is said to be employed in the following cases:—

"(1) When a person in whom confidence is reposed by another, or who holds a real or apparent authority over that other, makes use of such confidence or authority for the purpose of obtaining an advantage over that other which, but for such confidence or authority, he could not have obtained;

"(2) When a person whose mind is enfeebled by old age, illness, or mental or bodily distress, is so treated as to make him consent to that to which, but for such treatment, he would not have consented, although such treatment may not amount to coercion."

There were no illustrations appended to the old section. Illustrations (a) and (b) of the present section are elementary law.[94] They were intended to be added to the section in its original form, but for some reason withdrawn before the Act was passed. Illustrations (c) and (d) are evidently intended to explain the application and the limits of para 3.

The doctrine of undue influence in England.—"The equitable doctrine of undue influence has grown out of and been developed by the necessity of grappling with insidious forms of spiritual tyranny and with the infinite varieties of fraud."[95] The Supreme Court has,

---

91 This condition is essential for throwing the burden of proof on the person who was in a dominating position. Otherwise the actual use of that position must be proved as a fact: Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar (1919) 47 I.A. 1; 43 Mad. 456; 55 I.C. 447; Mahmud-un-Nissa v. Barkatullah (1926) 48 All. 666; 96 I.C. 684.

92 Carpenter v. Heriot (1759) 1 Eden 338.

93 Diala Ram v. Sargha (1927) 102 I.C. 707; 1927 A.L. 536.

94 As to the relation between medical attendant and patient, see Dent v. Bennett (1839) 4 My & Cr. 269; 48 R.R. 94. A gift of this kind may of course (like any other voidable transactions) become unimpeachable by subsequent confirmation: Mitchell v. Homfray (1881) 8 Q.B.D. 587. The English doctor and patient cases are collected in Pollock on Contracts, 13th edn., 492.

95 Lindley L.J. in Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch.D. 145,183; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90 in two cases, considered the essential ingredients of undue influence and has held that section 16 of the Contract Act is based substantially on the rules of English common law.[96] In a leading case,[97] Lord Chelmsford stated the principle of undue influence thus:

> "Wherever two persons stand in such a relation that while it continues, confidence is necessarily reposed by one, and the influence which necessarily grows out of that confidence is possessed by the other and this confidence is abused, or the influence is exerted to obtain an advantage at the expense of the confiding party, the person so availing himself of his position, will not be permitted to retain the advantage, although the transaction could not have been impeached if no such confidential relation had existed."

In Allcard v. Skinner,[98] Lindley, L.J. prescribed its boundaries as follows:

> "The undue influence which courts of equity endeavour to defeat is the undue influence of one person over another; not the influence of enthusiasm on the enthusiast who is carried away by it, unless indeed such enthusiasm is itself the result of external undue influence. But the influence of one mind over another is very subtle, and of all influences religious influence is the most dangerous and the most powerful."

The doctrine applies alike to acts of pure bounty by way of gift and to transactions in the form of contract which are clearly more advantageous to one party than to the other.[99] According to the Madras High Court a partition is not a contract where there was an offer and acceptance and passing of consideration. Hence s. 16 will not apply. It is submitted however that where a partition is proved to be the result of undue influence and is an unfair transaction equity will step in and the transaction avoided.[1] In combination with other special rules it may even be applied to transactions which do not show on the face of them any "unfair advantage." S. 16 of the Act, as it stood till 1899, did not adequately represent the generality of the English doctrine. In fact, however, one at least of the Indian High Court acted boldly and beneficially on the general principles of English equity without fettering itself by the precise words of the Act. Another defect now remedied was that nothing was said in the Contract Act about the important question of burden of proof, and magistrates and practitioners were left to discover for themselves that the real working strength of this section could be understood only by reading it with s.111 of the Evidence Act.[2]

The English authorities are numerous, and many of them are complicated by questions on the one hand of actual fraud[3] or on the other hand of breach of some special duty, such as that of an agent, which is independent of the state of mind of the parties. It will be sufficient for the present purpose to refer to a few of the leading authorities on the various points dealt with by the test of the Act. The first paragraph of the section lays down the principle in general terms; the second and third define the presumptions by which the Court is enabled to apply the principle.[4] It is obvious that the same power which can "dominate the will" of a 96 Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270,300; (1963) A.SC. 1279, 1290 (per Shah J.); Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 334; (1967) A.SC. 878, 881 referring to Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, 51 I.A. 101; (1924) A.P.C. 60; Poosathurai v. Kanappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1; 43 Mad. 546; (1920) A.PC. 65; but contra in Bholaram v. Peari Devi (1962) A.P. 168. 171 (our law is slightly different).

---

97 Tate v. Williamson (1886) 2 Ch. App. 55, 61, quoted in Karnal Distillery Co. v. Ladli Prasad (1958) A. Punj. 190, 204. (On app. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 331; (1963) A.SC. 1279. Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract pp. 244-5 (6th Ed.); Johnson v. Buttress (1936) 56 C.L.R. 113,135.

98 (1887) 36 Ch.D. 145; (1886-1890) All E.R. Rep. 90, 99.

99 Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270, 300; (1963) A.SC. 1279; Subhas Chandra Mushib v. Ganga Prosad Mushib (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 334; (1967) A.SC. 878; Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327; (1976) A.SC. 163,168.

1 Harekrishna Sahu v. Bhagirthi Sahu (1975) A. Or. 97, 99. Contra Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327; (1976) A.SC. 163, 168 (A case of gift inter vivos).

2 See the judgment of the Privy Council in Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad (1923) 51 I.A. 101; 3 Pat. 279; 82 I.C. 817; 1924 A.P.C. 60. Even now the rule as to burden of proof seems not to be always understood, see Safdarali v. Nur Mahomed (1929) 118 I.C. 737, 740; 1930 A.S. 25.

3 For a curious case of this kind, adding nothing to the law, see Satgur Prasad v. Har Narain Das (1928) 111 I.C. 817; 1929 A.O. 44. The judgment reviews the history of Sikh schisms and controversies.

4 Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 334; (1967) A.SC. 878, 880; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270, 300; (1963) A.SC. 1279; Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, 51 I.A. 101; (1924) A,PC. 60; Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1; 43 Mad. 546.

weaker party is often also in a position to suppress the evidence which would be required to prove more constraint in a specific instance. Modification of the ordinary rules of evidence is accordingly necessary to prevent a failure of justice in such cases. Where the special presumptions do not apply, proof of undue influence on the particular occasion remains admissible, though strong evidence is required to show that, in the absence of any of the relations which are generally accompanied by more or less control on one side and submission on the other, the consent of a contracting party was not free. In the case of a pure voluntary gift (though there is no general presumption against the validity of gifts) the proof is less difficult; but this is not within our subject.

Influence—Undue Influence.—"Influence" has been defined as the ascendancy acquired by one person over another. "Undue influence" is improper use by the ascendant person of such ascendancy for the benefit of himself or someone else, so that the acts of the person influenced are not, in the fullest sense of the word, his free, voluntary acts.[5]

Sub-s. 1: Undue influence generally.—The first paragraph gives the elements of undue influence: a dominant position and the use of it to obtain an unfair advantage. It requires the court trying a case to consider two things:[6]

(i) are the relations between the donor and donee such that the donee is in a position to dominate the will of the donor; and
(ii) has the donee used that position to obtain an unfair advantage over the donor?[7]

It is manifest that both the conditions have ordinarily to be established by the person seeking to avoid the transaction: he has to prove that the other party to a transaction was in a position to dominate his will and that the other party had obtained an unfair advantage by using that position.[8]

The words "unfair advantage" must be taken with the context. They do not limit the jurisdiction to cases where the transaction would be obviously unfair as between persons dealing on an equal footing. Relief in equity is not restricted to cases of fiduciary relationship strictly so called.[9] "The principle applies to every case where influence is acquired and abused, where confidence is reposed and betrayed",[9] or, as Sir Samuel Romilly expressed it in his celebrated argument in Huguenin v. Baseley, which has been made authoritative by repeated judicial approval,[10] "to all the variety of relations in which dominion may be exercised by one person over another." "As no Court has ever attempted to define fraud, so no Court has ever attempted to define undue influence, which includes one of its many varieties".[11] "Allowing a fair latitude of construction, acts of undue influence must range themselves under one or other of these heads—coercion or fraud.[12] But the English cases on the subject have been said

---

5 Union Bank of Australia. v. Whitelaw (1906) V.L.R. 711, 720.
6 Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 334; (1967) A.SC. 878, 880; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270; at page 300;(1963) A.S.C. 1279; Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, 51 I.A. 101.
7 Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327; (1976) A.SC. 163.
8 Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270; (1963) A.S.C. 1279; Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1, 3; 43 Mad. 546; (1920) A.P.C. 65, 66; Govinda Naik v. Gururao (1971) A. Mys. S. 30, 330; Smt. Chinnamma v. Devanga Sangha (1973) A. My. 338, 348; Subhash Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 633, (1967) A.SC. 878, 880; Mohinder Singh v. Achal Trust Agra (1970) 2 All. 94 (A case under ss 19 & 19A); Jitendra Nath Bose v. National Rolling & Steel Ropes Ltd. (1973) 2 Cal. 508; Raghunath Altia v. Arjuno Altia (1973) A.Or. 76, 78 (must give particulars under O.E.R.U.C.P.L.); Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327, (1976) A.SC. 163 (onus probandi).
9 Lord Kingsdown in Smith v. Kay (1859) 7 H.L.C. 750, at p. 779. This was a case of general control obtained by an older man over a younger one during his minority without any spiritual influence or other defined fiduciary relation. Quoted in Karnal Distillery Co. v. Ladli Prasad Jaiswal (1958) A. Punj. 190, 204. This was reversed by the Supreme Court but not on this point. Sattema v. Subbi Reddy (1963) A.AP. 72, 75; Mahboob Khan v. Abdul Rahim (1964) A. Raj. 250.
10 (1807) 14 Ves. 285; 9 R.R. 283; 48 R.R. 102; per Wright J. (1893) 1 Ch. 752.
11 Lindley L.J. in Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch. D. 145 at p. 183; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90.
12 Someshwar Dutt v. Tribhuwan Dutt, 61 I.A. 224; 1934 A.PC. 130, 133, adopting the view of Lord by the same authority to be divisible into two groups, according as the charge against the donee (to use this word for shortness' sake) was of aggressive circumvention or of abusing the opportunities given by a duty.

"First, there are the cases in which there has been some unfair and improper conduct, some coercion from outside, some over-reaching, some form of cheating, and generally, though not always, some personal advantage obtained by a donee placed in some close and confidential relation to the donor...

"The second group consists of cases in which the position of the donor to the donee has been such that it has been the duty of the donee to advise the donor or even to manage his property for him.... In this class of cases it has been considered necessary to shew that the donor had independent advice, and was removed from the influence of the donee when the gift to him was made".[13] Cotton L.J. in the same case divided the cases relating to influence into two categories: first where the court is satisfied that the gift was the result of influence expressly used by the donee for the purpose, and secondly where the relations between the donor and donee have at or shortly before the execution of the gift been such as to raise a presumption that the donee had influence on the donor.[14] The first class of cases depends on the principle that no one shall be allowed to retain any benefit arising from his own fraud or wrongful act. In the second class of cases, the court interferes not on the ground that any wrongful act has in fact been committed but on the ground of public policy and to prevent relations between the parties and the influence arising therefrom being abused.[15]

It is an essential condition for the application of the section that one of the parties should be in a position to dominate the will of the other.[16] No further question arises until this is proved. A plea of undue influence can only be raised by a party to the contract and not by a third party.[17]

"Undue influence", "fraud" and "misrepresentation" to be specifically pleaded.—Although "undue influence", "fraud" and "misrepresentation" are cognate vices and may in part overlap in some cases, yet in law they are distinct categories and in view of O.6 rule 4 read with O.6 rule 2 C.P.C. they require to be pleaded separately with particularity and precision. A general allegation that the plaintiff was an old man of 90 who had a great deal of confidence in the defendant is insufficient to amount to averment of undue influence.[18]

Onus.—Where fraud, misrepresentation or undue influence is alleged by a party the onus is on him to show such fraud, etc. But where a transaction is with an illiterate woman and the other party is in a fiduciary relation with her the burden of proving want of fraud, etc. is on such person who being in that capacity deals with her. The Court will jealously watch all transactions between the parties no placed.[19]

Sub.-s. 2: Different forms of influence.—The second paragraph of the present section is illustrative as to when a person is considered to be in a position to dominate the will of the other.[20] It makes a division of the subject-matter on a different principle, according to the

---

Cranworth in Boyse v. Rossborough (1857) 6 H.L. Cas. 2.

13 Ibid., at p. 181.

14 (1887) 36 Ch. D. 145; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90.

15 Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch. D. 145; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90, 98.

16 Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, supra, note 57; Sanwal Das v. Kure Mal (1927) 9 Lah. 470; 109 I.C. 729; 1928 A.L. 224; Bahore Mahton v. Juro Sahu, 1936 A.P. 78; 160 I.C. 1073; Gafur Mohammad v. Mohammad Sharif, 1932 A.P.C. 202; 34 Bom. L.R. 1194; 36 C.W.N. 994; 137 I.C. 893; Latif Jahan Begum v. Mahomed Nabi Khan, 1932 A.A. 174; (1932) All. L.J. 9; 137 I.C. 231; Santhappa Rai v. Santhiraja, 1938 A.M. 426; (1938) 1 Mad. L.J. 676; 178 I.C. 563.

17 Kotumal v. Dur Mahomed, 1931 A.S. 78; Natha Ram v. Sohan Devi, 1952 A.E.P. 277.

18 Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327; (1976) A.SC. 163,167.

19 Guljan Bibi v. Nazir-ud-din Mia (1975) A. Gau. 30. Ballo v. Paras Ram (1972) A.H.P. 33. See Supra under Subsection 1: "Undue influence" origin of the relation of dependence, continuing or transitory, which makes undue influence possible. Such a relation may arise (a) from a special authority or confidence committed to the donee, or (b) from the feebleness in body or mind of the donor. However, it is impossible to find plain and clear-cut categories for transactions which are often obscure and complicated, and sometimes purposely made so. According to the Supreme Court[20] it lays down a special presumption that a person is deemed to be in a position to dominate the will of another where he holds a real or apparent authority over the other or where he stands in a fiduciary relation to another or where he enters into a transaction with a person whose mental capacity is temporarily or permanently affected by reasons of age, illness or mental or bodily distress.[20] Where it is proved that a person is in a position to dominate the will of another, such proof being furnished either by evidence or by the presumption arising under sub-section (2) and he enters into a transaction with that person, which on the face of it or on the evidence adduced, appears to be unconscionable the burden of proving that the transaction was not induced by undue influence lies upon the person in a position to dominate the will of the other. The Madras High Court has held that the mere existence of fiduciary relation raises the presumption of undue influence.[21] The facts were peculiar. The donor was under the influence of his mother, he had given away all his property to her and the transaction was held to be improvident. Practically the most important thing to bear in mind is that persons in authority, or holding confidential employments such as that of spiritual, medical, or legal adviser, are called on to act with good faith and more than good faith in the matter of accepting any benefit (beyond ordinary professional remuneration for professional work done) from those who are under their authority or guidance. In fact, their honourable and prudent course is to insist on the other party taking independent advice.[22] Following these principles, the High Court of Allahabad set aside a gift of the whole of his property by a Hindu well advanced in years to his guru, or spiritual adviser, the only reason for the gift as disclosed by the deed being the donor's desire to secure benefits to his soul in the next world.[23] Similarly, where a cestui que trust had no independent advice, it was held that a gift by him to the trustee of certain shares forming part of the trust funds was void, though in the same case a gift of shares which did not form part of the trust funds was upheld.[24] The case of Wajid Khan v. Ewaz Ali,[25] in which the Privy Council set aside a deed of gift executed by an old illiterate Mahomedan lady in favour of her confidential managing agent, comes under this head. And so does the case in which the Calcutta High Court refused to enforce an agreement executed by a poor woman in favour of her mookhtear by which she bound herself to give him, by way of remuneration for his services, one half of the property which she might recover by his assistance.[26]

20 Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331 at page 334; (1967) A.SC. 878, 880; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270 at page 300; (1963) A.SC. 1279, 1290; Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad, 51 I.A. 101; (1924) A.PC. 60.

Fiduciary relationship.—In cases of fiduciary relationship between the parties there is a presumption of one having undue influence over the other. But in such cases it is necessary to show that one party relies on the other to such an extent that complete trust and confidence is

---

21 M.A. Abdel Malik Sahib v. Mohammad Yousuf Sahib (1961) A.M. 190.

22 In the case of a gift from client to solicitor it is an essential condition to the validity of the gift that the client should have competent independent advice: Liles v. Terry (1895) 2 Q.B. 679, C.A., following and explaining Rhodes v. Bate (1865) L.R. 1 Ch. 252, and other earlier authorities: and the Court must also be satisfied that the influence has in fact ceased: Wright v. Carter (1903) 1 Ch. 27. It is hardly too much to say that such a gift, whatever it may be in form, is practically revocable. The principle of Liles v. Terry was followed in Rajah Papamma Row v. Sitaramayya (1895) 5 Mad. L.J. 234, and Vasireddi Bala Chendra v. Unnaya Subbaya Garu (1929) 120 I.C. 882; 1929 Mad. W.N. 360. The independent advice must of course have been given before the transaction: Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada (1934) A.C. 468; 151 I.C. 981; 1934 A.P.C. 210; Babu Nisar Ahmad v. Raja Mohan Manucha (1940) 67 I.A. 431; 43 Bom. L.R. 465; 191 I.C. 94; 1940 A.P.C. 204; see infra.

23 Mannu Singh v. Umadat Pande (1890) 12 All. 523; Manbhari v. Sri Ram (1936) All. L.J. 1215; 165 I.C. 240; 1936 A.A. 672. But see Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch. D. 145; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90 (case of gift to mother superior).

24 Raghunath v. Varjivandas (1906) 30 Bom. 578; Knight v. Majoribanks (1849) 2 Mac. & G. 10; 2 H. & Tw. 308. As to purchase by a trustee from a beneficiary, see Indian Trusts Act, 1882. s. 53.

25 (1891) 18 I.A. 144; 18 Cal. 545

26 Pushong v. Mania Halwani (1868) 1 B.L.R.A.C. 95; Ram Kalap v. Bansidhar, 1947 A.O. 89, 227 I.C. 9 (an old man and his manager). In Tufton v. Sperni (1952) 2 T.L.R. 516, D had sold a house to P for a Muslim cultural centre at more than twice its value and upon onerous terms. Both parties were members of a committee concerned with the foundation of such a centre. The Court of Appeal held that D stood in a fiduciary relation to P and set aside the sale.

placed in the other enabling him to influence the former and the burden of proof of there being no undue influence is on such other. In Tate v. Williamson[27] a contract for sale was set aside because the purchaser who owed a fiduciary relation to the vendor did not advise him that the estate had been valued at a much higher price.

An old man was advised by his bank, where a Company started by his son also had an account to guarantee the overdraft of the Company and also to mortgage his farm to guarantee the same. The Company failed and the Bank enforced the guarantee and the mortgage. The Court of Appeal held (1) that there was a special relationship of trust and confidentiality between the Bank and the defendant, (2) the execution of the mortgage and the guarantee was of benefit to the bank and it involved a conflict of interests and it could have left the defendant destitute in his old age, (3) the bank was under a duty to advise the defendant to have independent advice to the wisdom of the transaction (4) The Bank was in breach of its duty of care to the defendant. The guarantee and the mortgage were therefore set aside.[28]

Where the daughter's paramour stayed in the same house with her and her father, and the father gifted away the whole of his property to the paramour, it was held that there was a presumption that the gift was obtained by undue influence.[29] So also in the case of a paramour and mistress.[30] The same principles apply to agreements for remuneration between an attorney and a client,[31] between a managing clerk in an attorney's office and a client.[32] and between and elder sister's husband who was the manager of the estate and two younger sisters.[33] Their father and mother were both dead and they executed a promissory note in favour of the elder sister's husband.[33] The rule of undue influence applies to all variety of relations in which dominion may be exercised by one person over another.[34] In Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad,[35] Mitter J. observed:

> "Generally speaking the relation of solicitor and client, trustee and cestui que trust, spiritual adviser and devotee, medical attendant and patient, parent and child are those in which such a presumption arises. Section 16(2) of the Contract Act shows that such a situation can arise wherever the donee stands in a fiduciary relationship to the donor or holds a real or apparent authority over him."

But a gift to the advocate's wife if it is an object of bounty and as a matter of gratitude will be upheld.[36] This case must however be confined to its own facts. A parent stands in a fiduciary relation towards his child, and any transaction between them by which any benefit is procured by the parent to himself or to a third party at the expense of the child will be viewed with jealousy by courts of equity, and the burden will be on the parent or third party claiming the benefit of showing that the child in entering into the transaction had independent advice, that he thoroughly understood the nature of the transaction, and that he was removed from all undue influence when the gift was made.[37] If a gift is made to a parent or guardian soon after the donor attains majority, the presumption of the parents' influence continues. It has been

---

27 (1) (1866) 2 Ch. App. 55.

28 Lloyds Bank Ltd. v. Bundy (1975) Q.B. 326, 329. Tate v. Williamson (1866) 2 Ch. App. 55 reviewed.

29 Ram Chander v. Sital Prasad, 1948 A.P. 130.

30 Shivgangawa v. Basengowda (1938) A.B. 304; Sattemma v. Subbi Reddy (1963) A.A.P. 72 held undue influence not proved.

31 Brojendra Nath v. Sreemutty Luckhey Money (1901) 6 C.W.N. 816; Shamaldhone Dubt v. Lakshimani Debi (1908) 36 Cal. 493; Sandersons & Morgans v. Mohanlal, 1955 A. Cal. 319; Amritlal v. Ram Kumar (1962) 2 Punj. 201; (1962) A. Punj. 325 (p.36); Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 335; (1967) A.SC. 878, 881 (per Mittar J). In McMaster v. Byrne (1952) 1 All E.R. 1362, the Privy Council held that the confidence arising from the relationship continues even though the solicitor is not acting for the client in the particular transaction, but independent advice is not absolutely necessary.

32 Harivalabhdas v. Bhai Jivanji (1902) 26 Bom. 689.

33 Palanivelu v. Neelavathi, 1937 A.P.C. 50; 39 Bom. L.R. 720; 167 I.C. 5; Subbamma v. Mohamed Abdul, 1950 A. Hyd. 55.

34 Dant v. Bennett, 41 E.R. 105 at page 108; Smith v. Kay (1859) 7 H.L.C. 750; 11 E.R. 299; Aylesford v. Morris (1873) 8 Ch. 484, 491; Johnson v. Buttress (1936) 56 C.L.R. 113, 119 (a case of illiterate and weakminded person); See Huguenin v. Baseley (1807) 14 Ves. 273; 33 E.R. 526

35 (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 335 at page 336; (1967) A.S.C. 878, 881 per Mitter J.; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270, 300; (1963) A.S.C. 1279, 1290.

36 Bireswar Sen v. Ashalata Ghose (1969) A. Cal. 111.

37 Mariam Bibi v. C.E. Malim (1940) Rang. L.R. 35; 1939 A.R. 278; 184 I.C. 171

held to exist in England upto the age of 23 and 25 and it continues till the child is emancipated.[38] Same will be the case of a daughter who shortly before her marriage stood surety for her mother in an important moneylending transaction.[39] Upon these principles the High Court of Madras refused to enforce against an adopted son a deed of trust of joint family property executed by him and his adoptive father whereby annuities were created in favour of certain relations of the father, in a suit brought by them after the father's death to recover arrears of annuities. The deed was executed by the son soon after he attained majority, and there was no evidence to show that the son had independent advice, or that he understood the nature of the transaction, or that his father's influence had ceased when the document was executed.[40] The donee must show that the donor was emancipated or was equated to emancipation by the possession of independent advice.[41]

Equitable presumption—Husband and Wife.—A wife gave a second mortgage of some property owned by her to help her husband to borrow money for buying a piece of land and a house thereon. The vendors—the mortgagees, issued a writ against the wife and the husband the borrower as the interest and the principal remained unpaid. The wife succeeded in her defence of undue influence and decree was passed against the husband. Dixon J. in appeal said that the relationship of husband and wife was such that presumption of undue influence does not arise in their case but "it has never been divested completely of what may be called equitable presumption of an invalidating tendency."

His Honor then referred to three principles applying to the voluntary disposition by the wife in favour of the husband which are: firstly, if impeached places the onus on the husband to prove that it was not improperly or unfairly procured, secondly a third party dealing with the wife through the husband in a transaction with the wife to the husband's advantage may by that fact alone be affected by any equity between the husband and the wife; and thirdly it still is or may be a condition of the validity of the transaction that she adequately understood the actual nature and consequences of the transaction. All these three principles will apply to suretyship where the wife without recompense except advantage to the husband saddles herself or her separate property with a liability for the debt. But in this case, the wife went to the Solicitors office to execute the mortgage and he fully and properly explained to her and she was under no misapprehension that the solicitor was acting for her. If the transaction is understood by the wife or on reasonable grounds the creditor believes it to have been understood, the transaction cannot be set aside.[42]

Similarly, where a creditor obtains a document from his debtor and a third party knowing full well that the transaction was the result of undue influence exercised by the debtor over the third party, the creditor will not be allowed to enforce the transaction against such third party.[43] When a third party, who benefits by a transaction, has notice of the facts which raise the presumption of undue influence he is in no better position than the person exercising the influence.[44] The relations subsisting between a malik and a cultivator are such that the malik is in a position to dominate the will of the cultivator.[45] But an agreement between a landlord and tenant that the landlord will get compensation money in case of acquisition is not an unconscionable transaction where the consideration is the transfer of possession to a tenant without

---

38 Abdul Malick v. Mohammad Yousuf (1961) A.M. 190, 193; Ashburners Principles of Equity (2nd Edn.) p. 302 refd. to.

39 Lancashire Loans Ltd. v. Black (1934) 1 K.B. 380.

40 Lakshmi Doss v. Roop Loll (1907) 30 Mad. 169, on app. from 29 Mad. 1.

41 Powell v. Powell (1900) 1 Ch. 243.

42 Yarkley v. Jones (1940) 63 C.L.R. 649, 675-676; Yarkley v. Jones (1940) 63 C.L.R. 649,688,689; Bank of Victoria Ltd. v. Mueller (1925) V.L.R. 642; (per Cussen J.) Howes v. Bishop (1909) 2 K.B. 390; Talbot v. Von Boris (Philimore J.) 27 T.L.R. 95 appld.

43 Rama Patter v. Lingappa Gounder (1934) 58 Mad. 454; 158. I.C. 485; 1935 A.M. 726.

44 Tungabai v. Yeshwant, 71 I.A. 184; (1945) Bom. 180; (1945) A.P.C. 8, 10; Lancashire Loans Ltd. v. Black (1934) 1 K.B. 380; Badiatannessa Bibee v. Ambika Charan Ghose, 18 C.W.N. 1183. See p. 152 infra.

45 Kashi Nath v. Durga Prasad (1916) 1 Pat. L.J. 604. As to transactions between a guardian and a ward, soon after the ward has ceased to be a minor, see Guardian and Wards Act, 1890, s. 20.

payment of salami; nor does it raise the presumption of undue influence.[46] But the presumption of undue influence does not apply to a gift by a mother to her daughter. If such a gift is sought to be set aside on the ground of undue influence, the burden lies upon those who seek to avoid it to establish domination on the part of the daughter and subjection of the mother,[47] nor does the presumption of undue influence arise between husband and wife.[48] The Privy Council upheld the plea of undue influence in a case of a husband exercising undue influence over his wife who was illiterate though she could sign her name, whose properties he was managing and she passively acquiesced in what he did and signed whatever documents she was asked to execute.[49] In such a case it is unnecessary that there was an actual fraud, it is sufficient if it is shown that the wife was acting under the influence of her husband and not as a free agent.[50] It has also been held that the relation of master and servant is not by itself enough to show a dominant position,[51] nor is the circumstance that the defendant is daughter-in-law of a ruler, and the plaintiff a subject.[52] But an undertaking given by a Stenographer to the Deputy Registrar of a High Court in a matter which the latter was otherwise bound to do[53] was held to be a result of undue influence. Age and capacity are important elements in determining whether consent was free in the absence of any confidential relation, but as against the presumption arising from the existence of such a relation they count for very little.[54]

In order to constitute undue influence it is necessary that a person should have utilised his position for obtaining an undue advantage. If it is shown that a person has embezzled money and if the victim exerts his influence that the embezzler should make a partial separation without the victim getting an undue advantage then there is no case of undue influence.[55]

Bargaining Power.—Where an agreement between the plaintiff and the other party was made in circumstances in which there was inequality of bargaining powers and the other party had received no independent legal advice before signing the agreement and the terms of the agreement were manifestly unfair it followed that there was a presumption that the agreement was invalid.[56]

Clause (b) of this paragraph seems to include the principle, established by a series of English decisions, that "where a purchase is made from a poor and ignorant man at a considerable undervalue, the vendor having no independent advice, a court of equity will set aside the transaction".[57] Inadequacy of price is not per se sufficient to authorise the vacating of a contract, but coupled with other inexperience and absence of competent advice on the part of the seller are sufficient to set in motion the protective powers of the Court of equity.[58] Infirmity of body or mind on the vendor's part will make it still more difficult to uphold any such contract. There is no absolute rule as to the necessity or sufficiency of independent advice.[59] It is not the only possible proof of a donor's competence and understanding; on the other hand,

---

46 Radha Gobinda Rai v. Dibakar Mahto (1960) A.P. 194 (F.B.).
47 Ismail Mussajee v. Hafiz Boo (1906) 33 Cal. 773; 33 I.A. 86.
48 Sarfaraz Ali Khan v. Ahmad Kamil Mustafa Khan (1944) All. 141, 214 I.C. 135, 1944 A.A. 104. So held by the Privy Council in Bank of Montreal v. Stuart (1911) A.C. 120.
49 Tungabai v. Yashwant, 1945 Bom. 189; (1945) A.P.C. 8; 71 I.A. 184. See Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada (1934) A.C. 468 (P.C.) (a case of undue influence of husband and misrepresentation by the Bank's manager).
50 Tungabai v. Yeshwant, 71 I.A. 184; (1945) Bom. 189; (1945) A.P.C. 8.
51 Daulat v. Gulabrao, 1925 A.N. 369; 88 I.C. 295. But see Bhagwan Das v. Mt. Bitton (1945)All. 148, 1945 A.A. 227 (where the relationship was between an old woman, who had no relatives, and a trusted servant). J.K. Cotton Manufacturers Ltd. v. J. N. Tewari, 1959 A.A. 639.
52 Bhagwan Pancha v. Nayankunvarba, A.I.R. A.Sau. 53.
53 U.P. v. J. R. Bhatia (1956) A.A. 439.
54 Rhodes v. Bate (1866) 1 Ch. 252, at p. 257.
55 Mahendra Singh v. Achal Trust Agra (1970) 2 All. 94, 104.
56 Clifford Davis Management Ltd. v. WEA Records Ltd. (1975) 1 All E.R. 237, 240, 241; Schroeder Music Publishing Co. Ltd. v. Macaulay (1974) 3 All E.R. 616; & Lloyds Bank Ltd v. Bundy, (1974) 3 All E.R. 757, 765 applied.
57 Per Kay J., Fry v. Lane (1888) 4 Ch.D. 312. 322.
58 Q'Rorke v. Bolingbroke (1878) 2 A.C. 814 (a case of expectant heirs against the consequences of their not being on equal terms with the buyer).
59 Approved per Lawrence L.J. in Lancashire Loans v. Black (1934) 1 K.B. 380, 413. Applied in McMaster v. Byrne (1952) 1 All E.R. 1362 (P.C.).

advice relied on to support the transaction must not only be independent, but "must be given with knowledge of all relevant circumstances and must be such as a competent and honest adviser would give if acting solely in the interests of the donor.[60] As to the effect of inadequacy of consideration see s. 25. expl. 2, below.

What is competent and independent advice?—Competent and independent advice does not mean independent and competent approval. All that is necessary is that some independent person free from the taint of the relationship or of the consideration of interest which would affect the act should put clearly before the person what are the nature and the consequences of the act. It is for adult persons of competent mind to decide whether they will do the act. It applies to adults who are competent to form an opinion. In the case of those who are not capable of managing their own affairs in the broadest sense of the word other conditions may arise.[61]

There is no absolute rule of law absolutely requiring independent advice.... cases on the subject carefully read show that the issue is: was it really the result of his own free will and that the question of independent advice is a subsidiary, the answer to which comes in to help to determine the ultimate issue in the case.[62]

Mental distress.—"A state of fear by itself does not constitute undue influence. Assuming a state of fear amounting to mental distress which enfeebles the mind, there must further be action of some kind, the employment of pressure or influence by or on behalf of the other party to the agreement." The mere fact, therefore, that a submission to arbitration was executed by the defendant during the pendency and under fear of a criminal prosecution instituted against him by the plaintiff will not avoid the transaction on the ground of "undue influence." It was so held by the High Court of Allahabad[63] in a case decided under the old section. The decision would, it seems, be the same under the section as it now stands. It could not be said in the case above that the plaintiff was in a position to dominate the will of the defendant merely by reason of the fact that criminal proceedings had been pending against the defendant at the time when the submission was executed by him; but assuming that he was there is nothing to show in the facts of the case that the plaintiff used any such position to obtain an unfair advantage over the defendant. "The law says that (1) not only must the defendant have a dominant position, but (2) he must use it".[64] Both these elements were present in the case where the High Court of Madras refused to enforce an agreement entered into by a Hindu widow to adopt a boy to her husband, it appearing on the evidence that the relatives of the boy obstructed the removal of her husband's corpse from the house until she consented to the adoption.[65] The same elements are also to be found in the case where the Allahabad High Court set aside a deed of gift executed by an indigent Brahman to a temple of which the defendant had charge, it having been found that the gift left the donor without any means, and that the defendant had motives of personal gain in procuring it. The gift was made while the donor was living in the defendant's house, where he was fed and maintained by him, and during the pendency of a suit to recover the property prosecuted by the defendant on behalf of the donor at his own expense.[66] An aged father executed deeds of gift and a wakfnama at a time when he

---

60 Inche Noriah v. Shaik Allie Bin Omar (1929) A.C. 127, 135; Mahboob Khan v. Abdul Rochman (1964) A.Raj. 250; Lakshmi Doss v. Roop Loll, 30 Mad. 169, cp. the other judgments of the Privy Council cited under "Transactions with Parda-nishin women" below, and Ram Sumran Prasad v. Gobind Das (1926) 5 Pat. 646, 661; 99 I.C. 782; 1926 A.P. 582, where the substantial question was of Hindu law. Mt. Sewti v. Rattan, 1951 A.H.P. 54.

61 Insare Coomber, Coomber v. Coomber (1911) 1 Ch. 723, 730.

62 Equity, Trustees, Executors & Agency Co. Ltd. (1919) 27 C.L.R. 231, 234-235; Griffiths v. Robins (1914) 18 C.L.R. 544 explained; Linderstam v. Barnett (1915) 19 C.L.R. 528; Kali Bakhsh Singh v. Ram Gopal Singh 41 S.A. 23, 28, 29; 36 All. 81, 89 applied.

63 Gobardhan Das v. Jai Kishen Das (1900) 22 All. 224. See also Masjidi v. Mussammat Ayisha (1882) Punj Rec. No. 135.

64 Amjadennessa Bibi v. Rahim Buksh (1915) 42 Cal. 286. See also Bara Estate, Ltd. v. Anup Chand (1917) 2 Pat.L.J. 663, at p. 670; 41 I.C. 337; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270; (1963) A.SC. 1279; Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1, 3; 43 Mad. 546; (1920) A.PC. 65, 66.

65 Ranganayakamma v. Alwar Setti (1889) 13 Mad. 214.

66 Sital Prasad v. Parbhu Lal (1888) 10 All. 535.

was in a weak state of mind as the result of a long drawn out illness. These transactions were brought about at the instance of his son and had the effect of depriving the other members of the family of their just share of the inheritance. As it was proved that the son was in a position to dominate the will of the father and that he used that position to his own advantage, the deeds of gift and the wakfnama were set aside.[67]

In an Australian case the facts were as follows:

A Miss 'D' an elderly lady employed the defendants as her estate agents and financial advisers and they had worked for her for quite a number of years. In 1957 she advanced money to her estate agents on a mortgage. In 1960 Miss 'D' signed a discharge of the mortgage but without payment of the mortgage money. The mortgagees contended that she had had made a 'gift' of the mortgage to them for their long service.' This document was lodged for registration and the executors of Miss 'D's' estate sought to have the discharge of the mortgage set aside on the ground of undue influence. Gillard J. raised two points to decide about the nature of the gift-(1) What was the relationship of the parties, and (2) Was the act of the lady "purely voluntary" and "well understood". The Court found the relationship to be that of trust and confidence reposed by the lady in the Estate Agents and, therefore, the onus was on them to rebut the presumption of undue influence and even though it may be proved that the lady was competent and capable of understanding the nature of the transaction, equity might set in and set aside the gift: Relying on what Lord Eldon observed in Hugerenin v. Baseley[68] the question in such a case is not whether the donor knew what he was doing but how the intention was proved. Gillard J. considering the size of the gift and that there was no independent advice, set aside the gift.[69]

Instances of undue influence

Noriah's case was that

Gift by a feeble old woman, who was even unable to leave her house, to her nephew upon whom she was relying, for everything for food and clothing and leaving the management of her affairs to him and she was completely in the donee's hands.

In such a case the presumption of undue influence arises.[70]

The plaintiffs who were both old and infirm with no one to look after them, were helped by a brother's grandson during illness. They agreed to make a will in his favour but actually a deed of gift was got executed which was held unconscionable because the donee was in a position to dominate the old couple.[71] But in Raghunath Rai v. Shri Ram Janki,[72] no inference of undue influence was drawn in the case of a waqf deed executed by a lady 80 years old because the deed had been read and explained to her by the scribe and she herself had read it.

An illiterate woman, executed a document—a deed of gift—under the impression that it was a deed authorising management of her property.

It was held that the deed was vitiated by fraud. But the question whether an illiterate woman could be equated to a pardanashin lady was not decided[73] It would be difficult to equate the two but the decision will depend upon the circumstances of each case. Another case of undue influence was of 67 Abdur Rauff v. Aymona Bibi 1937 A. Cal. 492.

---

68 Hugrenin v. Baseley (1807) 14 Ves. Jun. 273.
69 Union Fidelity Trustee Co. of Australia Ltd v. Gibson (1971) V.L.R. 573.
70 Inche Noriah v. Shaik Allie (1929) A.C. 127; (1929) A.P.C. 3; Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch.D. 145 approved.
71 Debi Prasad v. Chhotey Lal (1966) A.A. 438. See Johnson v. Buttress (1936) 56 C.L.R. 113, where in somewhat similar circumstances a transfer was set aside.
72 (1964) A.P. 284.
73 Patalbala Debi v. Santimoy Mazumdar (1956) A.Cal. 575; Sonia Parshini v. Moula Baksh (1955) A.Cal. 51; Hodges v. Delhi & London Bank Ltd., 27 I.A. 168; 23 All. 137 refd to.

A maternal uncle over his niece who became a widow at nine and was brought up by his maternal uncle.[74]

Cases of undue influence arise not only where family or confidential relationship exists between the parties, but also where one of the parties is necessitous or in duress.

No undue influence.—No presumption of undue influence was held to arise in a case where a sister gifted her share in the property descended from the father to her brothers. She was married a long time and was residing with her husband in a separate house. The document was attested by her husband. The properties were the family property owned by the father and the plaintiff's share was only a fractional share in the total estate. It was also proved that when she was married she was given 70 gold sovereigns as a marriage gift.[75]

It is not sufficient to show for a person seeking relief that the relations of the parties were such that one naturally relied on the advice of the other and the other was in a position to dominate the will of the first in giving it. More than mere influence must be proved so as to render influence in the language of the law "undue".[76]

A mortgage was executed by a woman looking after her affairs personally. The transaction was not unconscionable. The woman's brother was under the influence of the mortgagee's father. In such a case the brother being under the influence of the mortgagee's father is irrelevant in deciding the question of undue influence.[77]

Undue influence not established.—An old woman of eightyone had carried on business which she sold to a company in lieu of certain paid up shares in the company. She gave almost half the shares to her son who resided with her, managed the business and gave her advice. Other shares were given to the other children and employees. The Public Curator who took charge of her affairs sought to have the gift to the son set aside. The Jury found that the son stood in a confidential relation to his mother, that the agreement made between her and the Company and transfer to the son were the result of her own will freely exercised that she was capable of understanding these transactions and that she did not sufficiently understand them. The trial Judge gave a judgment for the Public Curator declaring the son to be a trustee for the shares and accountable for all profits. The son appealed. The High Court of Australia took the Jury's answer to mean that she did not fail to understand the transaction but she failed to grasp the consequences that would ensue to her financially. In this case the donor was not dependent upon the donee physically as was the case in Equity Trustees, Executors & Agency Co. Ltd. v. Haskew.[78] The Court decided that the donor did not sufficiently understand the transaction relating to matters of general reasoning and business wisdom and acumen as opposed to facts known to the donee in virtue of his position and not disclosed, is not enough by itself to invalidate the gift.[79]

By his will a testator provided for trustees to carry on his business according to the terms of the will. The trustees were his wife and his eldest son and the beneficiaries all the children. From time to time the trustees borrowed money from the plaintiff bank. As they wanted further advances the trustees arranged that their account should be guaranteed by the beneficiaries under the will for whose benefit the business was carried on. The plaintiff Bank did not have anything to do with the procuring of the guarantee except in relation to one beneficiary, but simply received it duly completed. Action was brought by the principal against the trustees as principals and the beneficiaries as sureties. It was held that there was no undue influence because the Bank had nothing to do with getting of the guarantee. They were brought to the Bank to secure the account and the guarantee was signed by persons who were known to the Bank to be beneficiaries and that there was no duty cast upon the Bank to make any inquiries or to search after the persons who had signed the guarantee, the guarantee was

---

74 Narayan Doss v. Buchraj (1928) A.M. 6.
75 T. Syed Mohamed v. Ahmed Fathummal (1973) A.M. 302, 305.
76 Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327; (1976) A.S.C. 163, 168
77 Kanwarani Madna Vati v. Raghunath Singh (1976) A.HP. 41, 49.
78 (1918) 27 C.L.R. 231.
79 Jenyns v. Public Curator (1953) 90 C.L.R. 113, 133,-134. Moody v. Cox (1917) 2 Ch.71, 80.

held to be binding on all the beneficiaries excepting the one which the Bank had been involved in obtaining.[80]

Wherever one member of the family exercises weighty influence in the domestic counsels either from age, from character or from superior position acquired from other circumstances, an inference as to existence of undue influence has been drawn.[81] Undue influence may be inferred when the benefit is such as the taker had no right to demand (i.e. not natural or moral claim) and the grantor had no rational motive to give.[82] From the mere fact that the donor is old or of weak character no presumption of imposition or fraud arises, e.g. there is no presumption of undue influence in the case of a gift to a son, grandson or son-in-law or made during the donor's illness and a few days before his death.[83] Where there is no relationship shown to exist from which undue influence is presumed that influence must be provided.[84]

"...in the category of cases of undue influence might be covered cases where the party to a transaction exercised that influence in conspiracy with or through the agency of others.[85]

A deed of settlement by a widow having absolute estate in the property in favour of the defendant was held void for undue influence. The circumstances were that the defendant took the widow to Madras and a few days later got the deed executed when the widow had no independent advice and further the onus was on the defendant to prove the voluntary nature of the transaction which he failed to do.[86]

A brother got a release deed from his unmarried sister soon after she attained majority and she was being looked after by that brother of hers and had no independent advice. The transaction was set aside as being one executed under undue influence.[87]

Where a collateral of the 4th degree got a deed of gift from an old widow whose nearest heir was a widowed daughter who was indigent and lived with her mother but was temporarily away and the donee took a leading part in getting the gift executed, the transaction was set aside on the ground of undue influence, the gift itself being unconscionable.[88]

Where an old illiterate woman suffering from cancer gifted the whole of her property to a Society and had to depend on the Society for maintenance and medical treatment until death; the transaction was held to be unconscionable under s.16 (2) (b) and the onus was on the Society to prove the want of undue influence.[89]

A family consisting of a septuanagerian, his wife and a half witted daughter were living together in amity but after an argument with his wife the husband left to stay with his sister's son. During that period he settled the whole of his property on his nephews to take effect after his death. This was challenged on the ground of undue influence. The High Court of Andhra Pradesh set aside the settlement. It held "that where a situation exists in which dominion may be exercised by one person over another the Court will annul the transaction which is unconscionable or immoderate in its effect or terms, if the person possessing such power takes

---

80 Union Bank of Australia v. Whitelaw (1906) V.L.R. 711, 721.
81 17 Corpus Juris Secundum, p. 541.
82 Karnal Distillery Co. v. Ladli Prasad Jaiswal (1958) A.Punj. 190, 204 (revd. on app. but on another point (1964) 1 S.C.R. 331; (1963) A.SC. 1279). Pollock: On Contract (12th Ed.) 494 refd. to.
83 Halsbury Laws in England, 3rd Edn., Vol. 17, pages 678-681, quoted my Mitter J. in Subhas Chandra
84 Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd Ed.) p. 674, qouted by Mitter J. in Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 335-6; (1967) A.SC. 878, 881.
85 Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1; (1920) A.P.C. 65; 43 Mad. 546, 549.
86 Rathnam Naidu v. Kani Ammal (1972) A.M. 413.
87 Rajamani Ammal v. Bhoorasami (1974) A.M. 36; Abdul Mallick Saheb v. Md. Yousuf Sahib, (1961) A.M. 190; 2 Mad.L.J. 355.
88 Smt. Kartari v. Kewal Krishan (1972) A.H.P. 117, 120.
89 Smt. Chinnamma v. Devanga Sangha (1973) A.Mys. 338, 348; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery (1963) A.SC. 1279 (1963) 1 S.C.R. 270; Lakshmi Amma v. Talengala Narayana Bhatta (1970) A.SC. 1367.

thereby a benefit, unless he can show that the transaction is a right one "and the burden is on him to show that the transaction was free from the taint of undue influence.[90]

In a peculiar case of undue influence in Australia the facts were that the deceased, an old illiterate and unstable man, unstable in his relation with other persons, transferred his property without receiving any consideration to the defendant who had looked after his ailing wife who died. Then the old man visited the defendant frequently. He then transferred his property, a cottage on the rent of which he was living. His other property was a few pieces of furniture and a life policy of £50. The transfer deed was prepared by the defendant's solicitor and consideration was natural love and affection. He then went to stay with the defendant but stayed 3 weeks only. He had a son who had ceased to please him and a sister who had a daughter and he made a will in their favour. He visited the defendant a number of times and ultimately transferred all his property to the defendant. The Australian High Court set aside the transaction saying: "The first and most important consideration affecting the question is the standard of intelligence and character of Buttress" (the deceased) "No doubt once it is established the relation of influence exists, presumption arises independently of these matters .....in this particular case it is the man's illiteracy, his ignorance of affairs and his strangeness in dispositions and manner that provide the foundation of the suggested relation". Considering the circumstances of the case the burden of proving that the transaction was the exercise of the donor's independent will." This not having been done, the transaction was set aside.[91]

The plaintiff, a widow with pressing financial obligations. desired to sell a farm in order to purchase a house in Melbourne which she urgently needed. She engaged the defendant, a real estate agent, to find a suitable home for her and to sell the farm. The agent was well acquainted with her financial position and her problems. He inspected the farm and obtained reliable information as to what it was worth. But he wrote to the widow unduly deprecating the farm and suggesting a lower price than she was demanding. Some time later he wrote to her offering to exchange his suburban house on terms most advantageous to himself and highly disadvantageous to the plaintiff. He sold the farm to a third party at an increased price. The plaintiff commenced an action and claimed rescission of the agreement and retransfer of the property, accounts, and alternatively damages for deceit and negligence. The Court held him to be an agent. It was not shown by the defendant that he made reasonable use of the confidence or that he furnished the plaintiff all the knowledge which he himself possessed. On the contrary he set out to make a bargain with her as advantageous to himself as possible and to the end suppressed the information he had obtained knowing full well that the land could be sold at a higher price. He took no steps to find a purchaser and wrote an untruthful report to her. In these circumstances the plaintiff was held entitled to have the agreement set aside. But as the rights of the third parties had intervened in that the farm having been resold and remortgaged a decree for payment of compensation was given rather than rescission, and the claim for damages and negligence and deceit were held not made out.[92]

No undue influence shown and relationship was the test.—Relief has been given even where no undue influence is shown if the relationship between the parties is such that one of them is able to take unfair advantage of the other. Such a relationship has been held to exist between parents and child, doctor and patient, solicitor and client, trustee and beneficiary, religious leader and disciple, in some cases between fiance and fiancee but not husband and wife. The relief is not confined to any particular relationship; it applies when even one party is in a position to take unfair advantage of the other because of a relationship of trust and con-

---

90 Krishnamurthy v. Bhramaramba (1974) And. Pra. 1102, 1118; Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) A.SC. 878 dist. Tungabai v. Yeshwant (1945) A.PC. 4; Smith v. Kay (1859) 7 H.L.C. 750; 15 R.R. 367; Incha Nariah v. Shaikh Allie Bin Omar (1929) A.C. 127 (P.C.) Bank of Montreal v. Stuart (1911) A.C. 120; Morley v. Longman (1843) 1 Ch.D. 736, 750; & Bennet v. Vade 2 Ves. 627; folld.

91 Johnson v. Buttress (1936) C.L.R. 113, 137, 138.

92 McKenzie v. McDonald (1927) V.L.R. 134, 145-146; Davies v. London & Provincial Marine Insurance Co. (1878) 8 Ch.D. 469, 474; Moody v. Cox & Hatt (1917) 2 Ch. 71, 80; Gibson v. Jeyes (1801) 6 Ves. J. 266, 278; 31 E.R. 1044, 1050; Lowther v. Lowther (1806) 13 Ves. J. 95, 103; 33 E.R. 230, 233. relied on.

fidence existing between them. In all these cases there is presumption of undue influence which may be discharged by showing that the complaining party had the advantage of independent advice.[93] It is submitted that the presumption will arise between husband and wife in India where the wife is generally in much weaker position.

In Bundy's case[94] the transaction—the guarantee given by the father in regard to the debt of his son which was given on the manager's advice and the father was held to have complete faith without any outside advice the Court of Appeal held the transaction between the Bank and the father was very unfair and had resulted from the inequality in the bargaining powers of the parties. Macauley's case[95] was one of a songwriter and publishers. The songwriter had been engaged by the publisher for five years. It was also provided that he must assign to the publishers full copy right of all his musical works but there was no undertaking by the Company to publish those works. The songwriter applied after 4 years of working with the Company to get the contract declared void. The agreement was held to be in restraint of trade by the House of Lords. In this case the contract was held to be simply an unfair bargain. Lord Denning in Clifford Davis Management Ltd. v. W.E.A. Records Ltd.[96] interpreted the speech of Lord Diplock in Macauley's case[95] as "if one party uses his superior bargaining power so as to extract terms that are unfairly onerous or to drive an unconscionable bargain, then the Courts will relieve the other party of his legal duty to fulfil it".

The result of all these decisions is that the contract will not be unconscionable if the difference between parties is slight difference in the bargaining power. But if there is such a degree of inequality that the more powerful party is able to force the weaker into a contract of his choosing, i.e., the bargaining power of one party is "grievously impaired" or there is gross inequality of bargaining power, the transaction will be set aside.[97]

B a young man (a Maltese) was charged with criminally corrupting a girl of 15 in 1953. When released on bail, he was told by his Solicitor that he was bound to be convicted even though he was innocent. Because of this fright he married the girl at her father's insistence and then they went to live in England. After acquiring an English domicile B sought a declaration to have the marriage declared void as it was on the Solicitor's advice which had induced fear. The declaration was granted.[98]

In a case under Election Law, undue influence was thus described:[99]

> "A friendly advice or an influence arising from gratitude or esteem is not undue influence unless thereby the functioning of a free mind is destroyed. Mere suggestions or appeals cannot have such an effect. An influence which exists from attachment or respect or which results from arguments or appeals to the reasons and judgement is not undue."

Duress at common law could only be pleaded where the end arrived at was achieved by the use of something in the nature of unlawful force or the threat of unlawful source.[1] The tort of intimidation comprehends not only threats of criminal or tortious acts but also threats of breaches of contract.[2] Said Lord Reid:

> "I can see no difference in principle between a threat to break a contract and a threat to commit a tort".[3]

In Rookes v. Bernard,[4]

---

93 Treitel: Law of Contract (2nd Ed.) p. 154. Tate v. Williamson (1866) 2 Ch.App. 55; Lloyds Bank Ltd v. Bundy (1975) Q.B. 326; (1974) 3 W.L.R. 501; (1974) 3 All E.R. 757.
94 Ibid.
95 (1974) 1 W.L.R. 1308; (1974) 3 All E.R. 616 affirming (1974) 1 All E.R. 171.
96 (1975) 1 W.L.R. 61.
97 P.H. Clarke: Unequal bargaining power in the Law of Contract, 49 A.L.J. 229, 232, 233.
98 Buckland v. Buckland (1968) p. 296.
99 Amirchand v. Sucheta Kripalani (1961) A.Pun. 383, 386 (Election case).
1 Mutual Finance Ltd. v. John Wetton & Sons Ltd. (1937) 2 K.B. 389, 395.
2 Rookes v. Barnard (1964) 2 W.L.R. 269; (1964) A.C. 1129; (1964) 1 All E.R. 367, 374.
3 Ibid, p. 374 (of All E.R.).
4 (1964) A.C. 1129; (1964) 1 All E.R. 367; (1964) 2 W.L.R. 269.

Rookes was employed as a draughtsman by BOAC which had a "closed shop" agreement with the employees that it would not employ any person who was not member of the union of the employees. Rookes resigned from the union and the union threatened that unless Rookes was dismissed from service, the employees would strike. Rookes was thereupon dismissed and he brought an action against union officials for damages.

It was held that the principle of law of tort if a person threatened to commit an unlawful act (and in this case the strike would have been a breach of contract—unlawful act because the employees had contracted not to strike) in order to injure a third party and that third party is injured, the third party would be entitled to damages. As Lord Reid put it in Stratford's case[5] "the defendants caused loss to the plaintiff by using unlawful means to induce a third party to inflict that loss on him." Rookes' case was distinguished in a later case, Morgan v. Fry.[6]

In that case, some 30 lochmen decided to leave their union and form their own union. The old union gave notice to the Port of London Authority that unless it dismissed those lochmen the union members would strike. The rebel lochmen then sued the union officials and succeeded in the Queen's Bench which held that the act done by the union officials was in the genuine belief that it was necessary to protect the legitimate interests of the union and was done in contemplation or furtherance of a trade dispute but the union officials could not be protected against an act of intimidation based on threat to induce breaches of lochmen's contracts of service and their conduct was unlawful and thus unjustified.

The plaintiff was entitled to recover damages for intimidation. On the matter being taken to the Court of Appeal, Rookes case[4] was distinguished on the ground that in Morgan's case[6] unlike in Rookes case there was no agreement not to go on strike and therefore the intimidation was not unlawful. Davies L.J. said that it would be a startling proposition in these days of collective bargaining that a concerted withdrawal of labour or threat of it could be held to be illegal.[7]

Carrying out the dictates of law is not coercion or undue influence.—Where under the requirements of the Factories Act and the rules thereunder a Company had to maintain a canteen for food and drink for the workers, it could not be said that carrying out the provisions of the law was compulsion giving rise to the plea of coercion or undue influence. The fear of penal consequences is not compulsion which would vitiate the contract of sale (a case under Sales Tax Act).[8]

Third Party—whether can avoid contract.—According to the Allahabad High Court a contract obtained by undue influence is voidable at the instance of the person so influenced and no other person has been given the power to avoid such a contract.[9]

Threat to prosecute a third person.—Undue influence in equity might exist where a promise was extracted by a threat to prosecute certain third persons unless the promise was given.[10] No direct threat is necessary, it is enough if the undertaking were given owing to a desire to prevent a prosecution and that desire were known to those to whom the undertaking was given. In such a case, one may imply a term in the contract that no prosecution should take place. The doctrine extends to any case where the person giving the undertaking was in substance influenced by the desire to prevent prosecution of the person implicated.[11] A debtor may secure his debt though the object may be to avoid a prosecution as in Flower v. Saddler,[12] because there is a further consideration. The question in every case of threat to prosecute is

---

5 Stratford & Sons Ltd. v. Lindley (1964) 3 W.L.R. 541, 554; (1965) A.C. 269; (1964) 3 All E.R. 102.
6 (1967) 2 All E.R. 386 (Q.B.D.); revd. on appeal (1968) 3 All E.R. 452.
7 (1968) 3 All E.R. 452, 460 (C.A.); See (1968) 2 S.C.A. xiii. see also Stratford & Son Ltd. v. Lindley (1965) A.C. 269; (1964) 3 All E.R. 102; (1964) 3 W.L.R. 541.
8 Hyderabad Asbestos Products Co. v. State of Andhra Pradesh (1972) Tax.L.R. 1641.
9 Mahendra Singh v. Achal Trust Agra (1970) 2 All. 94, 104-5.
10 Williams v. Bayley (1866) 1 H.L. 200, 216 (threat to prosecute son); Mutual Finance Ltd. v. John Wetton & Sons Ltd. (1937) 2 K.B. 389, 395.
11 Jones v. Merionetshire Permanent Benefit Building Society (1892) 1 Ch. 173; Mutual Finance Ltd. v. John Wetton & Sons Ltd. (1937) 2 K.B. 389, 395 (threat to prosecute brother and father); Kaufman v. Gerson (1904)1 K.B. 591 (threat to prosecute son); Seear v. Cohen, 45 L.T.R. 589 (threat to prosecute son of one and nephew of the other); Brook v. Hook (1871) 6 Ex. 89 (threat to prosecute brother-in-law of the defendant.
12 (1882) 10 Q.B.D. 572.

what was the person giving the guarantee in substance doing and intending to do to the knowledge of the person to whom the guarantee was given?[13] The case of Mutual Finance Ltd. was this:

A guarantee was obtained from a family company under an implied threat to prosecute a member of the family who forged the signature of the company on a previous guarantee. The receiver of the guarantee knew that the guarantee was only given because the father of the alleged forger was in such a state of health that the shock of the son's prosecution would endanger his life.

The plaintiff's action on the guarantee was held voidable although common law duress was held not proved and the company was subject to undue influence up to the issue of the writ.[14] Any guarantee obtained by undue influence is voidable and not void and can be repudiated when undue influence has ceased to operate.[15] Kaufman's case[15] was this:

The defendant was induced by threats of criminal prosecution in France against her husband to give an undertaking to the plaintiff to pay him the money which her husband had misappropriated.

This contract was, by the law of France, not invalid and was enforceable there but the courts in England, it was held, will not enforce this contract, it having been obtained by coercion.

In a Madras case where the plaintiffs agreed to relinquish their right to a religious office in favour of the defendant in consideration of the latter withdrawing a charge of criminal trespass preferred against them, it was held that the agreement was voidable, the charge of trespass being false, and the sole cause for entering into the agreement being "the well-founded terror of the influence of the prosecutor and of the civil death which would probably result from his proceedings".[16] Similarly where criminal proceedings were threatened against a mookadam for misappropriation of his master's moneys, and a bond was passed by an ignorant Hindu widow who had brought him up as her son to save him from the threatened prosecution, it was held that the agreement was not binding upon the widow, she having had no independent advice.[17] See s. 19A, ill. (a).

Proof of undue influence.—In dealing with cases of undue influence there are four important questions which the Court should consider, namely, (1) whether the transaction is a righteous transaction, that is, whether it is a thing which a right-minded person might be expected to do; (2) whether it was improvident, that is to say, whether it shows so much improvidence as to suggest the idea that the donor was not master of himself and not in a state of mind to weigh what he was doing; (3) whether it was a matter requiring a legal adviser; and (4) whether the intention of making the gift orginated with the donor.[18] All these are questions of fact.[19]

In Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad & Others[20] the Privy Council indicated the following three stages for consideration of a case of undue influence:

(i) whether the relations between the parties to each other are such that one is in a position to dominate the will of another;

---

13 Mutual Finance Ltd. v. John Wetton & Sons Ltd. (1937) 2 K.B. 389, 397.

14 Mutual Finance Ltd. v. John Wetton & Son Ltd. (1937) 2 K.B. 389, 397; (1937) 2 All E.R. 657. 662-3; Kaufman v. Gerson (1904) 1 K.B. 591; (1904-7) All E.R. Rep. 896 refd. to.

15 Per Collins M.R. in Kaufman v. Gerson (1904) 1 K.B. 591, 596; (1904-7) All E.R. Rep. 396.

16 Pudishary Krishnen v. Karampally (1874) 7 M.H.C. 378.

17 Kessowji v. Hurjivan (1887) 11 Bom. 566. See also Rangnath v. Govind (1904) 28 Bom. 639.

18 Per Lord Macnaghten in Mahomed Buksh v. Hosseini Bibi (1888) 15 Cal. 684, at pp. 698-700; 15 I.A. 81 at, pp. 92-93; Thrasia v. Varkey Mathai, 1951 A.T.C. 42; Karunamayee Debi v. Maya Mayi Debi, 1948 A.Cal. 84. These questions obviously do not arise where there is neither proof nor presumption of any one's influence, see Venkatarama Aiyar v. Krishnammal (1927) 52 Mad.L.J. 20; 99 I.C. 571; 1927 A.M. 255; Narayana Bhatta v. Narasimha Bhatta (1965) A.Ker. 189.

19 There is really no law in e.g. such a case as Narayana Dass Balakrishna v. Buchraj Chordia Sowcar (1927) 53 Mad.L.J. 842; 106 I.C. 315; 1928 A.M. 6, though the facts may call for a careful judgment; another such is Parbhu v. Puttu (1926) 1 Lück. 144; 95 I.C. 995: Tirath Ram v. Harbhajan Singh, 1935 A.L. 479; 158 I.C. 257; Sattemma v. Subbi Reddy, 1963 A.P. 72.

20 51 I.A. 101., Afsar Shaikh v. Soleman Bibi (1976) 2 S.C.R. 327; (1976) A.SC. 163, 168

(ii) whether the contract has been adduced by undue influence; and
(iii) onus probandi.

If the transaction appears to be unconscionable, then the burden of proving that the contract was not adduced by undue influence lies upon the person in a position to dominate the will of another.[21] The Privy Council in Poosathurai v. Kappanna Chettiar and others[22] observed and said and that was quoted with approval by the Supreme Court in Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad.[23]

"It is a mistake (of which there are a good many traces in these proceedings) to treat undue influence as having been established by a proof of the relations of the parties having been such that the one naturally relied upon the other for advice, and the other was in a position to dominate the will of the first in giving it. Up to that point 'influence' alone has been made out. Such influence may be used wisely, judiciously and helpfully. But whether by the law of India or the law of England, more than mere influence must be proved so as to render influence, in the language of the law, 'undue'. It must be established that a person in a position of domination has used that position to obtain unfair advantage for himself."

Where undue influence is alleged it is necessary to examine very closely all the circumstances of the case. The principles are always the same though the circumstances differ, and, as a general rule, the same questions arise.[24] No single circumstance is conclusive. The character of the transaction is an important circumstance but unfairness of the transaction by itself is insufficient to invalidate the transaction.[25] Whether a transaction is vitiated on the ground of undue influence is primarily a question of fact.[26]

Transactions with parda-nishin women.—From a time before, though not long before, the passing of the Contract Act, some of the High Courts, with a certain amount of support from the Privy Council, have treated parda-nishin women (sometimes in terms only Hindu women, but in fact those concerned are not always Hindus) as a class of persons specially exposed to undue influence, and have gone near to laying it down as a rule of law that every one dealing with a parda-nishin woman is bound to show affirmatively that she understood the nature of the transaction, and that the terms were fair. The rule was stated by the late Sir W. Rattigan, in a paper where he forcibly criticised this policy,[27] to have been first announced in 1867 in a Calcutta case not regularly reported. "It does not necessarily follow," Sir W. Rattigan observed, "that a native woman simply because she sits behind the parda, is to be placed in the same category as the 'weak, ignorant, and infirm persons' whom the Court of Chancery, under a proper interpetation of its approved practice, is accustomed to protect. On the contrary, it is common experience to find in India parda ladies who are highly intelligent, strong minded, and who possess excellent business capacity, and contrive to manage large estates with great success. To adopt a sweeping generalisation, and to hold that every parda-nishin lady who enters into any commercial transactions, or who makes a disposition of her property, is presumably the victim of 'undue influence', is to make an assumption which is contrary to actual facts, and to cause the law to be abused for the purpose of avoiding bona fide engagements."

In the earliest Privy Council decision on the subject, where a Mahomedan lady sued to recover from her husband the value of Company's paper of a considerable amount alleged to have been endorsed and handed over to him to receive interest thereon, and the defence was that he had purchased the paper from his wife, it was held by their Lordships that, though the wife failed to prove affirmatively the precise case set up by her in the plaint, the burden of proof was upon the husband to show, the plaintiff being a parda-nishin, that the sale was a bona fide one for value, and that upon the evidence he had failed to satisfy the burden.[28] A few

---

21 Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1, 3; 43 Mad. 546; (1920) A.P.C. 65; Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331; (1967) A.S.C. 878.
22 47 I.A. 1, 3; 43 Mad. 546; (1920) A.P.C. 65.
23 (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 334; (1967) A.S.C. 878, 881; Bhola Ram v. Peari Devi (1962) A.P. 168.
24 Mahomed Buksh Khan v. Hussaini Bibi, 15 I.A. 81, 92; 15 Cal. 684.
25 Ahmad Saleh Mohammad v. Khanmull (1959) A.Mys. 102.
26 Satgur Parshad v. Har Narain Das, 59 I.A. 147; (1932) A.P.C. 89; Ladli Prasad v. Karnal Distillery Co. (1963) A.S.C. 1279; (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270.
27 Journ. Comp. Legisl., December, 1901, pp. 252, 257, 258.
28 Moonshee Bazloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonissa Begum (1867) 11 M.I.A. 551. A mortgage of property years later it was declared by the same tribunal that, as regards deeds taken from parda women, the Courts have always been careful to see "that the party executing them has been a free agent, and duly informed of what she was about".[29] It is not sufficient to show that a document executed by a parda-nishin woman was read out to her; it must further be shown that it was explained to her or that she understood its conditions and effect;[30] and the explanation must include all material points as well as the general nature of the transaction.[31] The reason is that the ordinary presumption that a person understands the document to which he has affixed his name does not apply in the case of a parda-nishin woman.[32] Independent legal advice is not the only way to rebut the presumption of undue influence nor does the fact that independent legal advice was given rebut the presumption unless it be shown that the advice was taken. The obvious way to prove that the gift was the result of the free exercise of independent will is to prove that the gift was made after the nature and effect of the transaction had been fully explained to the donor by some independent and qualified person.[33]

The law as to the burden of proof is summarised in a decision of the Privy Council.[34]

"In the first place, the lady was a parda-nishin lady, and the laws throws around her a special cloak of protection. It demands that the burden of proof shall in such a case rest, not with those who attack, but with those who found upon the deed, and the proof must go so far as to shew affirmatively and conclusively that the deed was not only executed by, but was explained to, and was really understood by the grantor. In such cases it must also, of course, be established that the deed was not signed under duress, but arose from the free and independent will of the grantor. The law as just stated is too well settled to be doubted or upset."

Subbarao J. has thus stated the law in Kharbuja Koer v. Jangbahadur[35]:

The burden shall always rest upon the person who seeks to sustain a transaction entered into with a parda-nashin lady to establish that the said document was executed by her after clearly understanding the nature of the transaction. It should be established that it was not her physical act but also her mental act. The burden can be established not only by proving that the document was explained to her and that she understood it but also by other evidence, direct and circumstantial.

In the case of Parda-nashin women apart from other consideration applicable, if the document executed is not in the "mother tongue" of the executant the law requires further that she understood the document and not merely heard its contents.[36] belonging to male and female members of a Mahomedan family by the males does not operate as a transfer of the interest of the females, because the management of the properties is left in the hands of the males: Azima Bibi v. Shamalanand (1913) 40 Cal. 378 (P.C.).

---

29 Geresh Chunder v. Bhuggobutty (1870) 13 M.I.A. 419, 431; Sudisht Lal v. Sheobarat Koer (1881) 8 I.A. 39; 7 Cal. 245; Behari Lal v. Habiba Bibi (1886) 8 All. 267; Annoda Mohun Rai v. Bhuban Mohini Debi (1901) 28 I.A. 71; 28 Cal. 546; Kali Baksh v. Ram Gopal, 43 I.A. 23, 29.

30 Shambati Koeri v. Jago Bibi (1902) 29 I.A. 127; 29 Cal. 749; Sham Koer v. Dah Koer (1901) 29 I.A. 132; 29 Cal. 664; Mirza Sajjad Husain v. Nawab Wazir Ali Khan (1912) 39 I.A. 156; Kali Baksh v. Ram Gopal (1913) 41 I.A. 23, 29; 36 All. 81, 89; 21 I.C. 985; Sri Kishan Lal v. Kashmiro (1916) 14 All.L.J. 1236; 34 I.C. 37 (P.C.); Sumsuddin v. Abdul (1907) 31 Bom. 165.

31 Farid-un-Nisa v. Mukhtar Ahmad (1925) 52 I.A. 342; 89 I.C. 649; 1925 A.P.C. 204; cp. Barkatunnissa Begum v. Debi Baksh, also a P.C. appeal, (1927) 31 C.W.N. 693; 25 All.L.J. 314; 101 I.C. 29; 1927 A.P.C. 84; followed in Ram Sundar Saha v. Raj Kumar Sen Choudhury (1927) 55 Cal. 285; 104 I.C. 527; 1927 A.Cal. 889, in the case of a man said to be of weak intellect, who was held on the evidence to have been sufficiently informed and protected. Abdul Manan v. Mutwalli of Janebali (1956) A.Cal. 584; Hem Chandra v. Suradhani Debya (1940) A.P.C. 134; I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 436; 67 I.A. 309.

32 Ashgar Ali v. Delroos Banoo Begum (1877) 3 Cal. 324; Mariam Bibi v. Sakina (1892) 14 All. 8; Acchhan Kuar v. Thakur Das (1895) 17 All. 125; Hoti Lal v. Musammat (1903) Punj. Rec. No. 77. In Ashgar Ali's case the Privy Council set aside a tauliatnama executed by a Mahomedan lady on the false representation that the effect of the document was what she desired. The case looks very like one of positive fraud.

33 Inche Noriah v. Sheikh Alie bin Umar (1929) A.C. 127; (1929) A.P.C. 3; Mahboob Khan v. Abdul Rahim (1964) A.Raj. 250; Lakshmi Doss v. Roop Loll, 30 Mad. 169.

34 Kali Bakhsh v. Ram Gopal, supra note 51: Farid-un-Nisa v. Mukhtar Ahmad, supra, note 52; Muhammad Ibrahim v. Umatullah Jan (1917) Punj. Rec. No. 90, p. 350; 39 I.C. 798; Bibi Saleha v. Zakariya Khan, 1950 A.P. 247.

35 (1963) A.S.C. 1203, 1206; (1963) 1 S.C.R. 456.

36 Hussaina Bai v. Zohra Bai (1960) A.M.P. 60. (It appears the executant's language was not Hindi in which the document was written.)

More lately, on an attempt to repudiate a parda-nishin woman's compromise of a litigated family dispute, Lord Buckmaster said[37]:

"It is not necessary—indeed, it is undesirable—to insist in such cases upon a test which depends upon a clear understanding of each detail of a matter which may be greatly involved in legal technicalities. It is sufficient that the general result of the compromise should be understood, and that people disinterested and competent to give advice should, with a fair understanding of the whole matter, advise the lady that the deed should be executed."

Some Indian decisions suggest that a deed of gift by a parda-nishin woman is invalid in the absence of proof that she had independent advice. But in Kali Bakhsh v. Ram Gopal[38] the Privy Council held that there is no rule of law of the absolute kind above indicated. "The possession of independent advice, or the absence of it, is a fact to be taken into consideration and well weighed on a review of the whole circumstances relevant to the issue of whether the grantor thoroughly comprehended, and deliberately and of her own free will carried out the transaction. If she did, the issue is solved and the transaction is upheld; but if upon a review of the facts which include the nature of the thing done and the training and habit of mind of the grantor, as well as the approximate circumstances affecting the execution—if the conclusion is reached that the obtaining of independent advice would not really have made any difference in the result then the deed ought to stand. The present, in their Lordships' judgment, appears to be a case of that kind... In short their view is that if independent outside advice, which is an essentially different thing from independent outside control, had been obtained, the lady would have acted just as she did. Much as their Lordships support and approve of the protection given by law to a parda-nishin lady, they cannot transmute such a legal protection into a legal disability. She might, especially if the outside adviser had been a lawyer, have altered the shape or form of the transaction, but in substance and result she would have carried out the same purpose and will as are expressed by the deed under challenge. They refer to the judgment of Lord Macnaghten in Mohamed Buksh Khan v. Hosseni Bibi".[39] See under "Proof of undue influence," above.

It should be noted that "the undue influence which may affect a parda-nashin lady's understanding of a document may proceed from a third party." It was so held by Jenkins C.J. in a case where a mortgage of her property by a parda-nishin woman to a creditor of her husband was set aside, the undue influence having proceeded from the husband.[40]

It appears that most, if not all, of the decisions could have been arrived at without the aid of any general presumption, on such grounds as that the act was done under the influence of marital control, or actual fraud or misrepresentation, or even in total ignorance of its nature and effect. The only thing in English law that seems analogous to the treatment of a parda-nishin woman's dealings as presumably invalid is the treatment of dealings with "expectant heirs" by Courts of Equity, where fraud is said to be "presumed from the circumstances and condition of the parties contracting." But this equitable doctrine is peculiar, and depends, in party at any rate, on reasons not existing in India.[41]

---

37 Sunitabala Debi v. Dhara Sundari Debi (1919) 46 I.A. 272, 278; Pattu Kumari v. Nirmal Kumar, 1939 A.Cal. 569; 43 C.W.N. 907; 185 I.C. 691.

38 Supra, note 51. (In this case the Privy Council upheld a gift by a parda-nishin woman of about one half of her estate to her paramour's son on the ground that there was no undue influence); Keshub Lall v. Radha Raman (1913) 17 C.W.N. 991; Mahatur Prasad v. Taj Begum (1915) 19 C.W.N. 162.

39 (1888) 15 I.A. 81; 15 Cal. 684. In this case the charge of undue influence was discredited by being made as an after thought and not by the lady herself who was the original plaintiff, but by her representative after her death. Cp. Barkatunnissa Begum v. Debi Bakhsh, 1927 A.P.C. 84; 31 C.W.N. 693; 101 I.C. 29; Lala Kundan Lal v. Mst. Musharrafi (1936) 63 I.A. 326; 11 Luck. 346; 163 I.C. 156; 1936 A.P.C. 207; Kanchanlal v. Hariprasad, (1951) A.N. 379.

40 Badiatannessa Bibee v. Ambika Charan (1914) 18 C.W.N. 1133. The Privy Council approved and followed this decision in Tungabai v. Yeshwant (1945) 71 I.A. 184, (1945) Bom. 189, 47 Bom. L.R. 242, 220 I.C. 362, 1945 A.P.C. 8. (It seems that non est factum might have been pleaded in this case). The doctrine is not confined to documents executed by parda nishin women: it is based upon the principle that a third party who benefits under the deed, and entrusts it to a husband to obtain his wife's signature, cannot escape the consequences of the husband's misrepresentation or durees exercised by him in securing his wife's signature: Bank of Montreal v. Stuart (1911) A.C. 120 (P.C.).

41 See Pollock, Principles of Contract, 13th Ed., 500 sqq. O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke (1877) 2 App. Ca. 814, marks the limit of its application.

A number of other cases relating to parda-nishin women are collected in footnote.[42] They do not lay down any rules differing in principle from those discussed above, but illustrate various aspects of the rules. With the gradual relaxation of the custom of parda and the spread of education, the cases on the subject will become of less and less importance.

Who is parda-nishin.—The expression "parda-nishin" connotes complete seclusion. It is not enough to entitle a woman to the special care with which the Courts regard the disposition of a parda-nishin woman that she lives in some degree of seclusion.[43] Thus a woman who goes to Court and gives evidence, who fixes rents with tenants and collects rents, who communicates, when necessary, in matters of business, with men other than members of her own family, could not be regarded as a parda-nishin woman.[44] In Hodges v. The Delhi and London Bank,[45] a Privy Council case, it was said: "It is abundantly clear that Mrs. Hodges was not a parda-nishin. The term quasi-parda-nishin seems to have been invented for this occasion. Their Lordships take it to mean a woman who, not being of the parda-nishin class, is yet so close to them in kinship and habits, and so secluded from ordinary social intercourse, that a like amount of incapacity for business must be ascribed to her, and the same amount of protection which the law gives to parda-nishins must be extended to her. The contention is a novel one, and their Lordships are not favourably impressed by it. As to a certain well-known and easily ascertained class of women, well-known rules of law are established, with the wisdom of which we are not now concerned: outside that class it must depend in each case on the character and position of the individual woman whether those who deal with her are or are not bound to take special precautions that her action shall be intelligent and voluntary, and to prove that it was so in case of dispute" [46]

Parda-nishin Women—extension of the rule.—The protection afforded to parda-nashin ladies can be extended to ladies of similar class who though not parda-nashin technically are similarly placed in that they are illiterate and sometimes old and sick and have lack of understanding and appreciation of the transaction without independent advice and are helpless and thus exposed to the danger of entering into unfair deals. The emphasis should be on the factual understanding of the transaction entered into and not the disability presumed in the case of parda-nashin ladies on the ground of mere status.[47] The protection of "Parda-nishin" extends to illiterate rustic village women.[48]

Sub-s.3: Rule of evidence.—The third paragraph of the present section does not lay down any rule of law, but throws the burden of proving freedom of consent on a party who, being in a dominant position, makes a bargain so much to his own advantage that, in the language of some of the English authorities it "shocks the conscience." The sub-section is limited in its application. It lays down the conditions for raising a rebuttable presumption that a transaction is

---

42 Tara Kumari v. Chandra Mauleshwar (1931) 58 I.A. 450; 34 Bom.L.R. 222; 134 I.C. 1076; 1931 A.P.C. 303; Ramanamma v. Viranna, 1931 A.P.C. 100; 35 C.W.N. 633; 33 Bom. L.R. 960; 131 I.C. 401 (Independent advice); Nawab Sikander Begam v. Zulfikar Wali Khan, 1938 A.P.C. 38; 40 Bom. L.R. 697; 172 I.C. 720 (Independent advice); People's Bank of Northern India v. Ghulam Jan, 1938 A.P.C. 276; (1938) 2 Mad. L.J. 902; 176 I.C. 773 (Independent explanation); Lachmeshwar Sahai v. Moti Rani, 1939 A.P.C. 157;41 Bom L.R. 1068; 43 C.W.N. 729; 181 I.C. 359 (Mistaken view of deed); Hem Chandra Roy Choudhury v. Suradhani Debya Chaudhurani (1940) 67 I.A. 309; (1940) 2 Cal. 436; 189 I.C. 509; 1940 A.P.C. 134 (Effect of whole document must be understood); Bank of Khulna v. Jyoti Prokash Mitra (1940) 67 I.A. 377; (1940) Kar. P.C. 341; 1891 I.C. 890; 1940 A.P.C. 147 (Execution of deed must be result of conscious act) Karunamayee Debi v. Maya Mayi Debi, 1948 A. Cal. 84; Maiyan v. Mohan (1945) All. 315, 1945 A.A. 409; Mt. Sunder Kuer v. Shah Uday Ram, 1944 A.N. 42, 212 I.C. 168; Amir Alam v. Bibi Salma, 1952 A.P. 19.

43 Shaik Ismail v. Amirbibi (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 146, 148.

44 Ismail Mussajee v. Hafiz Boo (1906) 33 I.A. 86; 33 Cal. 773, 783; Shaik Ismail v. Amirbibi (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 146.

45 (1901) 27 I.A. 168, at pp. 175-6; 23 All. 137 at p.145. If it is intended to challenge the assertion that a person is of the parda-nishin class, the matter must be pleaded and put in issue; Bank of Khulna v. Jyoti Prokash Mitra, supra, note 64.

46 Applied in Sonia Parshini v. Moula Baksha, 1955 A. Cal. 17.

47 Kanwarani Madna Vati v. K. Raghunath Singh (1976) A.HP. 41; 44; Smt. Sonia Parshini v. Moula Baksha (1955) A. Cal. 17,19 reld. on; Koze v. Makkan Singh (1973) A.M.P. 252, 254 (Gond women). But see: Hodges and another v. Delhi and London Bank Ltd., 27 I.A. 168.

48 Ashok Kumar v. Gaon Sabha (1981) A.A. 222.

procured by the exercise of undue influence. The reason for this rule is that a person who has obtained an advantage over another by dominating his will, may also remain in a position to suppress the requisite evidence in support of the plea of undue influence. The third sub-section becomes operative when two factors are proved, namely, that a person was in a position to dominate the will of another and the transaction appears on the face of it or on the evidence adduced to be unconscionable. If either of these two conditions is not fulfilled the presumption of undue influence will not arise and burden will not shift.[49] Money-lending cases are those chiefly contemplated (see illustration (c)). It must not be supposed, however, that there may not be other forms of unconscionable bargain within the mischief and the remedy of this enactment.[50]

In Poosathurai's case[51] Lord Shaw observed:

and "where the relation of influence,.... has been established, and the second thing is also made clear, viz., that the bargain is with the "influencer" and in itself unconscionable, then the person is in a position to use his dominating power has the burden thrown upon him, and it is a heavy burden, of establishing affirmatively that no domination was practised so as to bring about the transaction, but that the grantor of the deed was scrupulously kept separately advised in the independence of a free agent."

Wherever the relation between the parties to a contract is of a confidential or fiduciary nature the person in whom confidence is reposed and who thus possesses influence over the other cannot hold that such other to the contract unless he satisfies the Court that it is advantageous to the other party and that he has disclosed all material facts within his knowledge.[52] Where the relative position of the parties to a contract is such that it was incumbent on the creditor to establish affirmatively that the transaction was fair, just and reasonable, the transaction, in the absence of such proof, would not stand. This was a case of expectant heir.[53] When there is evidence of overpowering influence and the resulting transaction is immoderate and irrational proof of undue influence is complete.[54] The Australian High Court has put the position thus.[55]

When a man is occupying a position involving ascendency or influence over another or a dependence or trust on his part it is his duty to use his position of influence in the interest of no one but the man who is governed by his judgment. When he takes from that man a substantial gift of property, it is incumbent upon him to show that it cannot be ascribed to the inequalities between them which must arise from his special position.

The burden will be heavy in the case of illiterate or weakminded person and heavier where the donor has given all or practically all his property to the donee.[56] A party pleading undue influence must show that the opposite party had influence over him because of close relationship or other circumstances and that by exercising that influence he took advantage at his cost. It will then be for the other side to establish the validity of the transaction. An overall view has to be taken of the matter.[57] The donee must show that the donor was emancipated or was equated to emancipation by the possession of independent advice.[58]

Third Parties.—If a third party is aware of the existence of the confidential or fiduciary relation, he is under the same disability as the party occupying the position of confidence.[59] It

---

49 Subhas Chandra v. Ganga Prosad (1967) 1 S.C.R. 331, 334; (1967) A.S.C. 878; Ladli Prasad Jaiswal v. Karnal Distillery Co. Ltd. (1964) 1 S.C.R. 270 at page 300; (1963) A.S.C. 1279 per Shah J.; Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1;43 Mad. 546; (1920) A.P.C. 65.

50 E.g. Thakurji Maharaj v. Ram Dei (1930) 123 I.C. 175; 1930 A.P.C. 139 (merely on facts).

51 Poosathurai v. Kannappa Chettiar, 47 I.A. 1,4; 43 Mad. 546; (1920) P.C. 65; Bhola Ram v. Peari Devi (1962) A.A.P. 168; Moodi v. Cox & Halt (1917) 2 Ch. 71, 88 (Relationship of a confidental or fiduciary nature and confidence is reposed).

52 Moody v. Cox & Halt (1917) 2 Ch. 71,88. Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Edn.) page 244.

53 Permanent Trustee Co. v. Bridgewater (1937) A.P.C. 14.

54 Bank of Montreal v. Stuart (1911) A.C. 120. Quoted in Ahmad Ibrahim v. Meyyappa (1940) A.M. 285.

55 Johnson v. Buttress (1936) 56 C.L.R. 113, 135.

56 Price v. Price, 42 E.R. 571; Inche Noriah v. Shaik Allie Bin Omar (1929) A.C. 127; (1929) A.P.C. 3.

57 Ahmad Seleh Mohammad v. Khanmull (1959) A. My. 102 (A case of debtor and creditor); Balls v. Paras Ram (1972) A.HP. 33; Guljan Bibi v. Naziruddin Mia 1975 A. Gau. 30.

58 Powell v. Powell (1900) 1 Ch. 243.

59 Ahmad Ibrahim v. Meyyappa (1940) A.M. 285 (a case of guardian making his ward a partner in is not necessary that the person in a position of domination must himself benefit. A benefit to a third party may be sufficient, e.g. undue influence by office bearers of a society benefiting the Society in which they are interested.[60]

"Unconscionable bargains."—Illustration (c) contemplates the case of a person already indebted to a money-lender contracting a fresh loan with him on terms on the face of them unconscionable. In such a case a presumption is raised that the borrower's consent was not free. The presumption is rebuttable, but the burden of proof is on the party who has sought to make an exorbitant profit of the other's distress. The question is not of fraud, but of the unconscientious use of superior power. Inadequacy of consideration, though it will not of itself avoid a contract (s.25, expl. 2, below), has great weight in this class of cases as evidence that the contract was not freely made.

"Inadequacy of consideration in conjunction with the circumstances of indebtedness and ignorance were facts from which it would have been as permissible before the amendment of (this section) to infer the use of undue influence as it would be since that amendment."[61]

Relief in cases of unconscionable bargains is an old head of English equity. It was formerly associated in a special manner with sales of reversionary interests, which the Court was eager to restrain; and for some time it was the doctrine of the Court that a sale of any reversionary interest, if proved to have been made for only a little under the value, must be set aside without further inquiry. This rule was at last found so inconvenient that it was abolished by statute. But the general principles of equity in dealing with what are called "catching bargains" remain, and the third clause of the section now before us is apparently intended to embody them. In fact, the Indian High Courts had acted on these principles, both before and since the passing of the Contract Act, without any express authority of written law. Thus, where the interest was exorbitant, relief was granted by reducing, the rate of interest in cases where the loan was made to an illiterate peasant,[62] and to a Hindu sixteen years old[63] (but not a minor according to the Hindu law). And where an heir to an estate borrowed Rs. 3,700 to enable him to prosecute his claim at a time when he was without even the means of subsistence and gave the lender a bond for Rs.25,000 to be paid after receiving possession of the property, the Court held that the bargain was hard and unconscionable, and gave the lender a decree for Rs. 3,700, with interest at 20 per cent per annum.[64] Acting upon the same principles, the High Court of Bombay held that a covenant in a mortgage executed by illiterate peasants in favour of a money-lender to sell the mortgaged property to the mortgagee at a gross undervalue in default of payment of interest was inequitable and oppressive, and the mortgage was set aside to that extent.[65] After the amendment of the present section, the High Court of Allahabad disallowed compound interest payable at 2 per cent per mensem with monthly rests in the case of a bond executed by a spendthrift and a drunkard eighteen years old.[66] And where a person twenty eight years old, the son of a wealthy father, but of profligate habits and greatly in need of money, his father having refused to provide him with any money, executed a bond to secure a sum of Rs. 500 with interest at the rate of Rs. 37-8-0 per cent per annum with six-monthly rests, with a stipulation that the borrower should not be empowered to pay the money within business); Narayan Doss v. Bucharaj (1928) A.M. 6; (106) I.C. 315; Lancashire Loans Ltd. v. Black (1934) 1 K.B. 380; Ram Patter v. Manikkam, 58 Mad. 454; (1935) A.M.4. See S. 89, Trusts Act; see also Turnball & Co. v. Duval (1902) A.C. 299. See p. 141, supra.

---

60 Smt. Chinnamma v. Devanga Sangha (1973) A. Mys 338; Sital Prasad v. Prabhu Lal. 10 All. 535 reld. on.

61 Bhimbhat v. Yeshwantrao (1901) 25 Bom. 126, 128.

62 Lalli v. Ram Prasad (1886) 9 All. 74. See also the observations of the Privy Council in Kamini v. Kaliprossunno Ghose (1885) 12 I.A. 215, at pp. 225-6; 12 Cal. 225, 238, 239; where the loan was made to a parda-nishin lady.

63 Mothoormohun Roy v. Soorendro Narian Deb (1875) 1 Cal. 108. The Indian Majority Act, which fixes the age of majority at eighteen, was passed on 2nd March, 1875.

64 Chunni Kuar v. Rup Singh (1888) 11 All. 57, confirmed on appeal sub nom. Raja Mohkam Singh v. Raja Rup Singh (1893) 20 I.A. 127; 15 All. 352. See also Hussain Bakhsh v. Rahmat Hussain (1888) 11 All. 128.

65 Kedari Bin Ranu v. Atmarambhat (1866) 3 B.H.C.A.C. 11.

66 Kirpa Ram v. Sami-ud-din (1903) 25 All. 284.

three years, and if he did pay within three years, he should nevertheless be obliged to pay three years' interest at the rate above mentioned, the same Court held that the bargain was unconscionable, and gave the lender a decree for Rs. 500 with simple interest at the rate of 24 per cent per annum.[67] Where a poor Hindu widow borrowed Rs. 1,500 from a money-lender at 100 per cent per annum for the purpose of enabling her to establish her right to maintenance, the High Court of Madras allowed the lender interest at 24 per cent.[68] Similarly, where a talukdar, who had been declared a "disqualified proprietor" under the provisions of the Oudh Land Revenue Act, 1876, and whose property was placed in the charge of the Court of Wards on the ground of his indebtedness and consequent inability to manage it, executed a bond for Rs. 10,000 repayable with interest at 18 per cent per annum, and compound interest in default of payment of instalments, the Privy Council disallowed compound interest on the ground that the position of the parties was such that the lender was "in a position to dominate the will" of the borrower, and that the charging of compound interest in the circumstances of the case was "unconscionable".[69] The relief, however, has not been confined to money-lending transactions, and so far back as the year 1874 the Privy Council set aside a bond obtained by a powerful and wealthy banker from a young zamindar who had just attained his majority, and had no independent advice, by threats of prolonging litigation commenced against him by other persons with the funds and assistance of the banker.[70] Three years later the same tribunal set aside an ikrarnama executed by a minor and another who had just come of age of half of their property in favour of the defendants, who had no title to the property, and who had taken possession thereof by show of force and with the assistance of a large body of retainers.[71] Similarly, where the plaintiff, an illiterate agriculturist heavily indebted to the defendant, who was a money-lender, passed a sale-deed to the defendant of his lands worth thrice the amount of the debt under pressure of payment, the High Court of Bombay ordered by its decree that the sale should be set aside on the plaintiff paying to the defendant the debt owed by him within a fixed period.[72] Again, where a person entirely under the influence of his manager, who managed his litigation and household expenses, executed a perpetual lease in favour of the manager for a wholly inadequate consideration and subject to terms onerous to the lessor, the transaction was set aside.[73] But the question whether a transaction should be set aside as being inequitable depends upon the circumstances existing at the time of the transaction, and not on subsequent events.[74]

Unconscionability—Canadian view.—Where there is no legal duress or undue influence (whether presumed or not rebutted) a contract can nevertheless, be set aside on the ground of its being unconscionable or was obtained by unconscionable conduct exercised by one party over the other. Traditionally unconscionable conducts are of two kinds. One type involves one of the parties being infirm in some way and the other the contract having been obtained by unconscionable conduct.[75] Mundinger v. Mundinger is an instance of the first type. In that case a

---

67 Balkishan Das v. Madan Lal (1907) 29 All. 303. Doubted in Kesavula v. Arithulai (1913) 36 Mad. 533 at p. 537; 22 I.C. 769.

68 Ranee Annapurni v. Swaminatha (1910) 34 Mad. 7. See further as to the test of what is excessive: Din Muhammad v. Badri Nath (1929) 120 I.C. 417. Exact definition is not possible: Ramkishun Ram v. Bansi Singh (1929) 116 I.C. 43; 10 P.L.T. 322; 1929 A.P. 340.

69 Dhanipal Das v. Maneshar Bakhsh Singh (1906) 28 All. 570; 33 I.A. 118; Maneshar Baksh Singh v. Shadi Lal (1909) 36 I.A. 96; 31 All. 386. The same principle has been applied where two persons who were under arrest for non-payment of Government revenue obtained from the tahsildar temporary release to go to a money-lender, and subsequently borrowed Rs. 99 from the money-lender and executed a mortgage-bond bearing compound interest at the rate of 37½ per cent per annum with half-yearly rests. In a suit by the money-lender to recover the amount the Court held that the bargain was unconscionable, and allowed 18 per cent compound interest: Baldeo Singh v. Bulaki Das (1910) 7 All. L.J. 591; Abdul Majid v. Khirode Chandra Pal (1915) 42 Cal. 690; 29 I.C. 843, is disapproved by the Privy Council, Raghunath Prasad v. Sarju Prasad (1924) 51 I.A. 101, 108, 82 I.C. 817; 1924 A.P.C. 60.

70 Chedambara Chetty v. Renja Krishna Muthu (1874) 1 I.A. 241; 13 B.L.R. 509.

71 Prem Narain Singh v. Parasram Singh (1877) 4 I.A. 101.

72 Bhimbhat v. Yeshwantrao (1901) 25 Bom. 126. For a case of gift by a person of weak intellect, see Tribuvan Datt v. Someshwar Datt, 1931 A.O. 34; 130 I.C. 119.

73 Sant Bux Singh v. Ali Raza Khan (1946) 21 Luck. 194, 1946 A.O. 129.

74 Ganga Baksh v. Jagat Bahadur Singh (1895) 22 I.A. 153; 23 Cal. 15; Mt. Reshmi v. Ghungaria, 1952 A.H.P. 16.

75 Contract: Cases & Commentaries by C. Boyle & D.E. Percy (1978) Ed. pp. 610, & 613; 44 Canadian

In cases under this section, English decisions are to be resorted to only so far as they illustrate the express terms. This warning was given by the Privy Council in Dhanipal Das v. Maneshar Bakhsh Singh.[91]

"The Subordinate Judge was wrong in deciding the case in accordance with what he supposed to be English equitable doctrine. He ought to have considered the terms of the amended section 16 only. He also mistook the English law. Apart from a recent statute, an English Court of Equity could not give relief from a transaction or contract merely on the ground that it was a hard bargain, except perhaps where the extortion is so great as to be of itself evidence of fraud.... In other cases there must be some other equity arising from the position of the parties or the particular circumstances of the case."

Drastic legislation in most parts of India with regard to money-lending transactions has to a great extent supplanted the provisions of the Contract Act for the protection of debtors. It is not possible in this book to enlarge on the details of this legislation and reference must be made to special works on the subject.

Lapse of time and limitation.—Delay and acquiescence do not bar a party's right to equitable relief on the ground of undue influence, unless he knew that he had the right, or, being a free agent at the time, deliberately determined not to inquire what his rights were or to act upon them.[92] Lapse of time is not a bar in itself to such a relief. There must be conduct amounting to confirmation or ratification of the transaction.[93] In Allcard's case although the equitable title of the donee, the mother superior, was imperfect due to undue influence, the delay and conduct of the donor after her leaving the sisterhood were such as to disentitle her to recover.[94] In a Privy Council case a Hindu widow having a widow's estate entered into a lease which was neither prudent nor beneficial to the estate; but with full knowledge of the lease the widow, and after her, her reversioners, accepted rent under the lease. Their Lordships held that such conduct amounted to confirmation of the transaction by conduct both by the widow and her reversioners.[95] If there be no such conduct, it is open to the party, though he may not sue to set aside the transaction within the period of limitation, to plead undue influence as a defendant in a suit brought against him to enforce the transaction. "A defendant in a suit is entitled to resist a claim made against him by pleading fraud (or undue influence), and he is entitled to urge that plea though he may not have himself brought a suit to set aside the transaction, and is not, in circumstances like the present, precluded from urging the plea by the (law of limitation)".[96] This statement was adopted in a Madras case where it was said: "We do not think it follows that because a party's remedy as plaintiff to have an instrument avoided is time-barred, his right to say by way of equitable defence, if sued, that the instrument ought not to be enforced is equally time-barred".[97] This is in entire accordance with the authorities familiar in English equity practice, to which it is needless to make further reference. A lease obtained by undue influence would "at the worst" be voidable at the option of the lessor. In Land Acquisition proceedings this question cannot be considered unless it is set aside by proper proceedings. The use of the word "possibly" in regard to the powers of Land Acquisition Courts considerably minimises the force of the observations.[98]

W.N. 167; Hem Raj v. Khuda Bakhsh (1905) Punj. Rec. No. 13; Aziz Khan v. Duni Chand (1918) Punj. Rec. No. 101, p.334; 48. I.C. 933; Bhutt Nath Chatterjee v. Rama Nath Naskar (1921) 48 Cal. 93; 57 I.C. 1004.

91 (1906) 33. I.A. 118; 28 All. 570. The relief granted below was substantially confirmed on the ground that the facts brought the case within the section. The borrower "was under a peculiar disability and placed in a position of helplessness by the fact of his estate being under the control of the Court of Wards", and "the lender used his position to demand more onerous terms than were unreasonable."

92 Lakshmi Doss v. Roop Loll (1907) 30 Mad. 169; Someshwar Dutt v. Tirbhawan Dutt (1934) 61 I.A. 224, 9 Luck. 178, 149 I.C. 480, (1934) A.P.C. 130.

93 Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch. D. 145, at pp. 181, 182, 186; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90; Wright v. Vanderplank (1856) 8 D.M. & G. 133; 114 R.R. 60.

94 Allcard v. Skinner (1887) 36 Ch.D. 145; (1886-90) All E.R. Rep. 90.

95 Jugal Kishore v. Charoo Chandra, 1939 A.P.C. 159; 42 Bom.L.R. 1055; 181 I.C. 341.

96 Rangnath Sakharam v. Govind Narasinv (1904) 28 Bom. 639; per Jenkins C.J.

97 Lakshmi Doss v. Roop Loll (1907) 30 Mad. 169, 178; Mst. Manbhari v. Sri Ram (1936) All. L.J. 1215; 165 I.C. 240; 1936 A.A. 672.

98 Santosh Kumar v. Nanda Kishore (1958) A. Cal. 56, 64.

Right of legal representatives.-A sale-deed obtained by an uncle from his niece by the exercise of undue influence, the uncle standing in a fiduciary relation to the niece, may be set aside, after the death of the niece, by her legal representative.[99]

17. "Fraud" means and includes any of the following acts committed by a party to a contract, or with his connivance, or by his agent, with intent to deceive another party thereto or his agent, or to induce him to enter into the contract:—

"Fraud" defined.

(1) the suggestion, as to a fact, of that which is not true by one who does not believe it to be true;

(2) the active concealment of a fact by one having knowledge or belief of the fact;

(3) a promise made without any intention of performing it;

(4) any other act fitted to deceive;

(5) any such act or omission as the law specially declares to be fraudulent.

Explanation.—Mere silence as to facts likely to affect the willingness of a person to enter into a contract is not fraud, unless the circumstances of the case are such that, regard being had to them, it is the duty of the person keeping silence to speak, or unless his silence is, in itself, equivalent to speech.

Illustrations

(a) A sells, by auction, to B, a horse which A knows to be unsound, A says nothing to B about the horse's unsoundness. This is not fraud in A.

(b) B is A's daughter and has just come of age. Here, the relation between the parties would make it A's duty to tell B if the horse is unsound.

(c) B says to A—"If you do not deny it, I shall assume that the horse is sound. A says nothing. Here A's silence is equivalent to speech.

(d) A and B being traders, enter upon a contract. A has private information of a change in prices which would affect B's willingness to proceed with the contract. A is not bound to inform B.

Section 17 analysed.—When analysed S.17 (1) it shows the following ingredients:

(i) There should be a suggestion as to a fact;

(ii) The fact suggested should not be true;

(iii) the suggestion should have been made by a person who does not believe it to be true; and

(iv) the suggestion should be made with intent either to deceive or to induce the other party to enter into the contract.[1]

Fraud in general.-A mere false statement is not fraud.[2] Fraud is committed wherever one man causes another to act on a false belief by a representation which he does not himself believe to be true. He need not have definite knowledge or belief that it is not true.[3] When fraud produces damage it is generally a wrong entitling the person defrauded to bring a civil action. Under the Contract Act we are concerned with the effects of fraud only so far as consent to a contract is procured by it. We have already pointed out that the result of fraudulent practice may sometimes be a complete misunderstanding on the part of the person deceived as 99 Govind v. Savitri (1918) 20 Bom.L.R. 911; Indian Trusts Act, 1882, s. 88; Shravan Goba v. Kashiram Devji (1926) 51 Bom. 133; 29 Bom.L.R. 115; 100 I.C. 932; 1927 A.B. 384; Rash Behari Naskar v. Haripada Naskar, 1934 A. Cal. 762; 59 Cal.L.J. 387; 152 I.C. 561; Mst. Manbhari v. Sri Ram (1936) A.A. 672; (1936) All. L.J. 1215.

(1936) All. L.J. 1215.

1 R.C. Thakkar v. Gujarat Housing Board (1973) A. Guj. 34,44.

2 Kamal Kant Paliwal v. Prakash Devi Paliwal (1976) A. Raj. 79,81.

3 This is well settled in England: Evans v. Edmonds (1853) 13 C.B., 777; 93 R.R. 732; R.C. Thakkar v. Gujarat Housing Board (1973) A. Guj 34, 54.

to the nature of the transaction undertaken, or the person of the other party. Such cases are exceptional. Where they occur, there is not a contract voidable on the ground of fraud, but the apparent agreement is wholly void for want of consent, and the party misled may treat it as a nullity even as against innocent third persons. But the fraudulent party is of course estopped from denying that there is a contract if the party deceived finds it to be to his interest to affirm the transaction, which is a conceivable though not probable case. In the same way the party deceived must be at liberty to treat the transaction as a voidable contract if he thinks fit. No doubt many transactions have in fact been so treated notwithstanding that under the law as settled in Cundy v. Lindsay[4] they might have been declared wholly void.

Falsity.—To constitute falsity of a statement it must be false in substance and in fact.[5] Where false statements are knowingly made it is unnecessary to probe into the motive which is irrelevant in that case.[6]

Where a public body issues a notice for a tender and also estimated costs of the project, it is binding on the public body even though it is not obligatory on it to mention any estimate. In this case the estimates were knowingly false.[7]

The plaintiff, an educated person, had signed a document which was a trust deed. It was attested by his father and by his Advocate. Its execution was also admitted by him before the Registrar. He cannot be allowed to turn round and say that he did not read it and he believed it to be a power of attorney. It was held that in the circumstances no fraud was practised on the plaintiff.[8]

Sub-ss. 3,4,5.—The language of the Act throws no light on the relation of fraud to misrepresentation. It might even be said to obscure it. That relation, however, may be very simply stated. Fraud, as a cause for the rescission of contracts, is generally reducible to fraudulent misrepresentation. Accordingly we say that misrepresentation is either fraudulent or not fraudulent. If fraudulent it is always a cause for rescinding a contract induced by it; if not, it is a cause of rescission only under certain conditions, which the definitions of s.18 are intended to express. There are, however, forms of fraud which do not at first sight appear to include any misrepresentation of fact, and sub-ss. 3,4, and 5 are intended to cover these. With regard to a promise made without any intention of performing it (sub-s. 3), it may fairly be said that a promise, though it is not merely a representation of the promisor's intention to perform it, includes a representation to that effect. Some promises are given more readily and willingly than others; but we accept promises only because we believe them to be made in good faith, and no one would be content with a promise which he believed the promisor to have no intention of keeping. Similarly it is fraud to obtain property, or the use of it, under a contract by professing an intention to use it for some lawful purpose when the real intention is to use it for an unlawful purpose.[9] Our modern authorities have removed the difficulty which used to be felt in treating the statement of a man's intention as a representation of fact. "There must be a misstatement of an existing fact, but the state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion. It is true that it is very difficult to prove what the state of a man's mind at a particular time is, but if it can be ascertained it is as much a fact as anything else." Accordingly it is fraud to obtain a loan of money by misrepresenting the purpose for which the money is wanted, even if there is nothing unlawful in the object for which the money is actually wanted and used.[10] In particular, it is well settled in England that buying goods with the intention of not paying the price is a fraud which entitles the seller to rescind the contract.[11] On 4 (1878) 3 App. Ca. 459; see under s. 13, above.

---

5 R.C. Thakkar v. Gujarat Housing Board (1973) A. Guj. 34,44.
6 Ibid. p. 32. United Motor Finance Co. v. Addison & Co. Ltd. (1937) A. PC. 26, 41 Cal. W.N. 347 reld. on.
7 R.C. Thakkar v. Gujarat Housing Board (1973) A. Guj. 34,44.
8 Kamal Kant Paliwal v. Prakash Devi Paliwal (1976) A. Raj. 78,81.
9 See Feret v. Hill (1854) 15 C.B. 207; 100 R.R. 318, which, admitting this, decided that the defrauded party, having given possession, is not entitled to resume it by force without process of law.
10 Edgington v. Fitzmaurice (1885) 29 Ch.D. 459, 480, 483, per Bowen L.J.
11 Clough v. L. & N.W.R. Co. (1871) L.R. 7 Ex. 21, in Ex. Ch.; Ex parte Whittaker (1875) L.R. 10 Ch. 446, at p. 449.

the whole, then, sub-s. 3 of the present section did not introduce any novelty.[12]

The mention of "any other act fitted to deceive" in sub-s. 4 appears to be inserted merely for the sake of abundant caution.

Acts and omissions specially declared to be fraudulent.—Sub-s. (5) applies to cases in which the disclosure of certain kinds of facts is expressly required by law, and non-compliance with the law is expressly declared to be fraud. Thus by s. 55 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the seller of immovable property is required to disclose to the buyer "any material defect in the property or in the seller's title thereto of which the seller is, and the buyer is not, aware, and which the buyer could not with ordinary care discover," and the buyer to disclose to the seller "any fact as to the nature of extent of the seller's interest in the property of which the buyer is aware, but of which he has reason to believe that the seller is not aware, and which materially increases the value of such interest," and "omission to make such disclosures... is fraudulent," and this, it seems, even if the omission be due merely to oversight.[13] In England a similar duty of disclosure exists, and failure to fulfil it is a misrepresentation creating a right to rescind the contract, but, if not shown to be wilful, the omission would not be called fraudulent. Various dealings with property are made voidable as being fraudulent, or declared to be fraudulent as against the transferor's creditors or assignees, by other enactments. But, as these transfers of property cannot well be employed as inducements to any other party to enter into any contract beyond such agreement as is involved in the fraudulent transfer itself. they do not come within the scope of the Contract Act, and we have no occasion to dwell upon them here.[14]

Mere non-disclosure.—There are special duties of disclosure (of which we have just seen an instance) in particular classes of contracts,[15] but there is no general duty to disclose facts which are or might be equally within the means of knowledge of both parties.[16] Silence as to such facts, as the Explanation to the present section lays down, is not fraudulent. There is a well-known American case on this point arising out of the conclusion of peace between Great Britain and the United States after the war commonly known as the war of 1812. The contract was for the sale of tobacco: the buyer knew, but the seller did not, that peace had been made; and on the seller asking if there was any news affecting the market price, the buyer gave no answer. The Supreme Court of the United States held that there was nothing fraudulent in his silence.[17] But there are at least two practical qualifications of this rule. First, the suppression of part of the known facts may make the statement of the rest, though literally true so far as it goes, as misleading as an actual falsehood. In such a case the statement is really false in substance, and the wilful suppression which makes it so is fraudulent.[18] Secondly, a duty to disclose particular defects in goods sold, or the like, may be imposed by trade usage. In such a case omission to mention a defect of that kind is equivalent to express assertion that it does not exist.[19] 12 Borrowing money with no intention of repaying it is cheating under the Penal Code: s. 415, illustration (f).

---

13 Note that an agreement between vendor and purchaser that the vendor is not to be liable for defective title will not excuse active concealment: Akhtar Jahan Begam v. Hazari Lal (1927) 25 All. L.J. 708; 103 I.C. 310; 1927 A.A. 693.

14 See Transfer of Property Act, s. 53 (transfers in fraud of other transferees or of creditors); Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, s. 56; Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 s. 54; Manmohandas v. Macleod (1902) 26 Bom. 765.

15 E.g., Contract of fire insurance: Imperial Pressing Co. v. British Crown Assurance Corporation (1913) 41 Cal. 581; 21 I.C. 836. See also s. 143 below.

16 An important English case is Bell v. Lever Bros. (supra). The company agreed to pay large compensation to two employees, subsidiary company directors, whose services were being dispensed with. After paying the money, the company discovered that the directors had committed breaches of duty, which would have justified their dismissal without compensation. The House of Lords held that the directors had not these breaches in mind, and were under no duty to disclose them.

17 Laidlaw v. Organ (1817) 2 Wheat. 178.

18 Peek v. Gurney (1873) L.R. 6 H.L. 392, 403; Rex v. Kylsant (1932) I K.B. 442; Subramanian Chetty v. Official Assignee, 1931 A.M. 603; 133 I.C. 372; Jewson v. Arcos (1933) 39 Com. Cas. 59, C.A.

19 Jones v. Bowden (1813) 4 Taunt. 847; 14 R.R. 683.

Where the vendor did not disclose to the purchaser of a material defect in the title, in that the property agreed to be sold was the subject matter of a pending litigation and attachment, the non-disclosure was held to be a fraudulent act and the purchaser was entitled to rescind the contract and claim the earnest money back.[20]

We are not aware of any English authorities corresponding to illustrations (b) and (c). When a special condition restricting enquiries into title is inserted in a contract of sale, a purchaser has the right to assume that there has been a full and fair representation as to the title on the part of the vendor.[21]

Hindu Marriage Act—Fraud meaning of.—Fraud as used in s. 12(1)(c) of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, is not used in the sense as defined in section 17 Contract Act. Concealment of fact by the wife that she was suffering from a venereal disease does not amount to fraud. (Special Marriage Act Compared).[22]

Fraud—Insolvency—Third Party.—Mere delay in payment of money due on a building contract or withholding of money is not fraud and therefore no principle for payment of interest becomes operative.[23] An owner of property cannot by contract or otherwise qualify his own interest in property by a condition determining or controlling it in the event of his insolvency to the prejudice of his creditors.[24] A condition in the rules of provident fund of a company that on insolvency of a member, the amount standing to his credit shall be liable to forfeiture to the Fund is invalid as a fraud on the law of insolvency.[24] A third party cannot plead that a deed of gift was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation and should, therefore, not be given effect to.[25]

Party pleading fraud—Onus.—The party pleading fraud has to prove it by cogent evidence. Where a party was able to manage his own affairs and had started a jewellery shop; in the absence of suspicious circumstances it could not be said that a simple mortgage was obtained by fraud.[26]

Where the plaintiff was aware of the contents of the will of the father, the partition of property on the death of the father & the mother was not set aside on the ground of fraud of not disclosing the contents of the will and no fresh partition was ordered.[27]

Art. 226 and fraud.—Where an objection to an order of resale of the property smacked of collusion and fraud the Court refused to give any relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution.[28]

18. "Misrepresentation" means and includes—

"Misrepresentation" defined.

(1) the positive assertion, in a manner not warranted by the information of the person, making it, of that which is not true, though he believes it to be true;

(2) any breach of duty which, without an intent to deceive, gains an advantage to the person committing it, or any one claiming under him, by misleading another to his prejudice or to the prejudice of any one claiming under him;

---

20 Jaswant Rai v. Abnash Kaur (1974) 1 Del. 689, 705.

21 Becker v. Patridge (1966) 2 W.L.R. 803, 813; In re Haedicke & Lipski's Contract (1901) 2 Ch. 666; Bousfield v. Hodges (1863) 33 Beav. 90, 94.

22 Madhusudan v. Smt. Chandrika (1975) A.MP. 174; Harbhajan Singh v. Smt. Brij Ballabh (1961) A. Pun. 351; Rani Bala Debnath v. R.K. Debnath, 73 Cal. W.N. 751, Raghunath v. Vijaya (1972) A.B. 132; Raja Ram v. Deepabai (1974) A.MP. 52 reld. on Yand Kishore v. Munnibai (1979) A.MP. 45, 48.

23 Kapila Textiles v. Madhava & Co. (1963) A. My. 39. 47; Hudson: Building Contract (8th Ed.) 312 refd. to.

24 Muktilal v. Trustees of Provident Fund (1956) S.C.R. 100; (1956) A.SC. 336.

25 Venkatasubbaiah v. Subbamma (1956) A. Andh. 195.

26 Govinda Naik v. Guru Rao (1971) A. My. 330, 332.

27 Janakiammal v. Ravendra Menon (1981) A. Ker. 205.

28 Smt. Maina Devi v. State of U.P. (1971) A.A. 241,244.

(3) causing, however innocently, a party to an agreement to make a mistake as to the substance of the thing which is the subject of the agreement.

Language of the section.—This is one of the sections taken wholly or in part from the draft Civil Code of New York, and it is one of the least satisfactory in point of form. In sub-s. 1 the use of the word "warranted" in a sense (whatever that sense may precisely be) unknown to the law, and in a subject-matter where the words "warranty" and "condition" have already caused quite enough trouble, is an elementary fault. Nor is the intention of the qualifying clause, to which we shall return, altogether clear. However, the Contract Act has at least made some improvement on the classification of the New York draft, where the original of this clause stands under the head of Fraud. Sub-s. 2 is obscure and apparently useless. Sub-s. 3 (which does not occur in the New York draft Code seems to involve confusion between contracts voidable because consent was obtained by misrepresentation and transactions which can have no legal effect, except possibly by way of estoppel, because there was no real consent.

Difference between fraud and misrepresentation.—The principal difference between fraud and misrepresentation is that in the one case the person making the suggestion does not believe it to be true and in the other he believes it to be true though in both cases it is a misstatement of fact which misleads.[29]

Principles of English law as to misrepresentation.—The common Law recognises a general duty not to make statements which are in fact untrue, with the intent that a person to whom they are made shall act upon them to the damage of a person so acting, and without any belief that they are true. The breach of this duty is the civil wrong known as fraud or deceit. But, if belief is there, it is not required by any general rule of law to be founded on any reasonable ground, though want of any reasonable ground may be evidence of want of belief.[30] Nor is there any universal duty to give correct information, except so far as a partial statement of the truth may be rendered substantially false by omission of known facts (see notes on s. 17, "mere non-disclosure," above), or to give any information at all. With regard to contracts, the general principle is that if one party has induced the other to enter into a contract by misrepresenting, though innocently, any material fact specially within his own knowledge, the party misled can avoid the contract. We do not know of any positive authority for extending such a rule, even in equity, to matters of fact equally within the means of knowledge of both parties; but reliance on the other party's statement in such matters is not common or easily proved, and it is certainly convenient to state the law in the broad form that "a false representation by one party in regard to a material fact made for the purpose of inducing the other party to enter into a contract, and actually inducing the latter to enter into the contract, renders the contract voidable".[31]

If this can be accepted as the rule of the modern Common Law, the Contract Act does not go beyond it, if indeed it goes so far. The qualifying words of the Act will be considered below. In certain classes of contracts, where the facts are specially within one party's knowledge, a positive duty of disclosure is added, and the contract is made voidable by mere passive failure to communicate a material fact. The principal examples of this special duty are to be found in the several branches of the contract of insurance, and in sales of immovable property (cp. notes on s.17, above). But there is no positive duty of disclosure between contracting parties where the facts are not by their nature more accessible to one than to the other, though one party may have acquired information which he knows that the other has not.[32] But see the next paragraph.

---

29 Niaz Ahmad Khan v. Parshottam Chandra (1931) 53 All. 374; (1931) A.A. 154, 156; R.C. Thukkar v. Gujarat Housing Board (1973) A. Guj. 34, 43.

30 Derry v. Peek (1889) 14 App. Ca. 337. Such is the law settled for England by the House of Lords. It is by no means clear that the common law is generally so understood in other jurisdictions.

31 Harriman, s. 426; cp. Anson, 20th ed., 169 sqq.; 22nd Ed., 207 sqq.

32 Laidlaw v. Organ, 2 Wheat. 98 (see on s. 17 "mere non-disclosure", above). "The question in this case is whether the intelligence of extrinsic circumstances which might influence the price of the commodity, and which was exclusively within the knowledge of the vendee, ought to have been communicated by him to the vendor. The Court is of opinion that he was not bound to communicate it. It would be difficult to circumscribe the contrary doctrine within proper limits where the means of intelligence are equally accessible to both parties. But at the same time each party must take care not

An assured died within 3 years and 9 months & 3 years and 6 months of the first and last insurance policies. The Insurance Corporation having discovered information that the assured had given false information on certain vital questions about his health, stopped payment of the cheque issued by it. In a suit by the trustee of the assured it was contended that fraudulent representations were irrelevant in view of Explanation to s. 19. It was held that s. 19 Contract Act could not be invoked in such contracts.[33]

But it is not each and every misrepresentation which would render a contract of insurance liable to be avoided. A misdescription of the tea dust is not such a material fact. It was described as Pekoe tea dust whereas it was ordinary tea dust and there was no column in the proposal form for marking the brand or quality of tea. The mere mention of tea would have been sufficient. Similarly, when there was no column for giving the value of tea, overvaluing will not avoid a policy. But where material facts are not disclosed the policy of insurance will be void and on that will depend a reinsurance policy which will also be rendered void.[34]

Allahabad High Court has held that where the Insurance Corporation made an allegation of misrepresentation by the deceased insured about his having suffered from carbuncle and diabetes but the officer accepting the policy was not produced and the person produced by the corporation made no enquiries about the deceased's family and the person to be insured was 56 years of age, it was held that in the circumstances the corporation must be deemed to have accepted the deceased for insurance with knowledge of diseases that go with that age and the claim was decreed.[35]

Silence not misrepresentation.—A commercial traveller employed by the defendants had to use a car for his work. He was convicted of a driving offence and his driving licence cancelled. The employers dismissed him and he sued for wrongful dismissal. He succeeded as he was under no duty to disclose his previous convictions and he could engage some one else to drive his car.[36]

Misrepresentation—half truths.—Half truth and careless advice of a Solicitor may be pleaded as a misrepresentation.[37]

Uberrima fides—Contracts of Insurance.—Apart from fiduciary relationships contracts of partnership, contracts of insurance are the leading instances of contracts expressed by the law to be contracts of the utmost faith where material facts must be disclosed; if not the contract is voidable.[38] Contracts such as contracts of marine, fire and life are examples where uberrima fides is to be shown by persons obtaining them. In each of them the person desiring to be insured must, in setting forth the risk to be insured against, not conceal any material fact affecting the risk known to him. Ordinary contracts of guarantee are not amongst those requiring uberrima fides on the part of the creditor towards the surety.[39] According to the Patna High Court, sections 1, 2(g) and s. 10 of Contract Act read together lead to the conclusion that the incidents of insurance contracts in India are "on the same footing" as in England and the agreement is not enforceable if the basis of the agreement is broken.[40] In a contract of into say or do anything tending to impose upon the other": per Marshall C.J. For a later example see Turner v. Green (1895) 2 Ch. 205.

---

33 Life Insurance Corporation v. Canara Bank Ltd. (1973) Knt. 1292,1303; Mithoo Lal Nayak v. Life Insurance Corporation (1962) A.SC. 814,819.

34 Hindustan General Insurance Society v. Punam Chand (1974) 2 Cal. 496; (1971) A. Cal. 285,287; The Vanguard Investments Ltd. Madras v. The Indian Mutual General Insurance Society Ltd. (1973) A.M. 147, 148, 149; Australian Widows Fund Life Assurance Society Ltd. v. National Mutual Life Assurance of Australia Ltd. (1914) A.C. 634; (1914) A. PC. 220 disting.

35 Smt. Kamala Wanti v. Life Insurance Corporation (1981) A.A. 366, 372.

36 Hands v. Simpson Fawcett & Co. Ltd. (1928) 44 T.L.R. 295.

37 Tapp v. Lee (1803) 3 Bos & P. 367 (Half truth not disclosing Bankruptcy in a reference; Nottingham Patent Brick & Tile Co. v. Butler (1866) 16 Q.B.D. 778 (Solicitor's negligence in not noticing restrictive covenant.

38 Bell v. Lever Brothers Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161; (1931) All E.R. Rep. I, 32; S. Subramuniam v. Hindustan General Insurance Society, (1972) A.M. 196; Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Chandravatlamma (1971) A.AP. 41, 43, 45

39 Scaton v. Heath (1899) 1 Q.B. 782, 792-3; Hindustan General Insurance Society v. Punam Chand, (1971) A. Cal. 285 (Facts not material do not avoid contract). (Quality of insured and its real value not material facts)

40 Balkrishna v. New India Insurance Co. (1959) A.P. 102.

surance, any fact which materially influences the making or not making a contract or determining whether to accept or not to accept the risk at ordinary rates of premia is a material fact which has to be correctly stated.[41] But withdrawal of a proposal with another insurer is not such a fact.[42] A proposer is not only required to state all matters within his knowledge which he believes to be material to the question of insurance but also all which in point of fact are so.[43] Suppression of material facts when making a proposal for insurance by one having knowledge or belief of the fact would fall under section 17 of the Contract Act and the policy issued would be vitiated thereby;[44] e.g. case of suppression of the fact that the policy holder applying for revival was treated for a serious disease.

The following facts have been held to be material facts and the non-disclosure makes the contract voidable:

(1) that goods were insured upon a voyage for an amount in excess of their value;
(2) that in relation to an insurance comparable to that sought previous claims had been made. A circumstance that is material for one type of insurance is not necessarily material for another; for example that the risk has been refused by another Company is material in life, fire, accident and burglary insurance but not in marine insurance. Whether a particular circumstance is material is a question of fact, and the opinion of the assured on its materiality is irrelevant.[45]

Misrepresentation—Insurance.—Non disclosure in the case of insurance does not automatically avoid the contract. It only makes it voidable. It gives the insurers a right to elect, to avoid or to affirm the contract. A 'foreign jurisdiction' clause is therefore not abrogated in such case. A dispute as to non-disclosure is "a dispute arising under" the policy and remains within the clause.[46] Declaration in an application for life insurance amounts to a warranty.[47] It is an implied condition of the contract that non-disclosure would entitle the insurer to avoid the contract.[48] It is the duty of a person, wishing to take an insurance policy of any kind, marine, fire, life, guarantee, to make full disclosure to the insurer, without being asked, of all material circumstances.[49] A contract of marine insurance appears to be based on

---

41 Docker & Woolf Ltd. v. Western Australia Insurance Co. (1906) 1 K.B. 408, 415; Hindustan General Insurance Society v. Subramaniam (1975) A.M. 162; (1972) A.M. 196 revd. (case of misstatement about carrying capacity); Hindustan General Assurance Society v. Punam Chand Chhajjar (1974) 2 Cal. 496; (1971) A. Cal. 285. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Sulochana Chaudhurani (1962) A. Asm. 651; & Rohini Nandan Cooswami v. Ocean A. & G. Corpn. Ltd. (1960) A. Cal. 696, 700 reld on.

42 Benarsidebi v. New India Insurance Co. (1959) A.P. 540.

43 Daglish v. Jarvie, 20 L.J. Ch. 475; (1850) 2 Mac. & G. 231, 243; B. A. S. Chopra v. New Zealand Insurance Co. (1967) A. Cal. 35; Brownlie v. Campbell (1880) 5 A.C. 925, 954 Joel v. Law Union & Crown Insurance Co. (1908) 2 K.B. 863, 883; Srinivasa Pillai v. Life Insurance Corporation (1977) A.M. 381, 383. (policy of a husband & wife who delivered a child within 6 months of the proposal).

44 Mithoolal v. Life Insurance Corporation of India (1962) A.SC. 814; (1962) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 571; Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Chandravathamma (1971) A.A.P. 41, 45; Life Insurance Corporation v. Canara Bank Ltd. (1974) A. My. 51, 56; Life Insurance Corporation v. Baidyanath Singh (1978) A.P. 334; 336; All India Life Insurance Co. Ltd v. S.P. Maheshwari (1960) A.M. 484.

45 Chitty on Contracts: 24th Ed. paragraph 412 and see cases therein.

46 Mackender v. Feldia A.G. (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 850; Heyman v. Darwins Ltd. (1942) A.C. 356; (1942) 1 All E.R. 337.

47 Brahm Dutt v. Life Insurance Corporation (1966) A.A. 474; A.I.G. Insurance Co. v. Maheshwari (1960) A.M. 484; Mithoo Lal v. Life Insurance Corporation (1962) Supp. 2. S.C.R. 571; (1962) A.SC. 814; B.A.S. Chopra v. New Zealand Insurance Co. (1967) A. Cal. 35 (motor car insurance).

48 Blackburn Low & Co. v. Vigors (1886) 12 App. Cas. 531, 537; B.A. S. Chopra v. New Zealand Assurance Co. (1967) A. Cal. 35; Dawson Ltd. v. Bonnin (1922) 2 A.C. 413; (1922) All E.R. Rep. 88 (H.L.).

49 Ionides v. Pender (1874) 9 Q.B. 531 (Marine insurance for a sum exceeding the value of goods); Hood v. West End Motor Car Packing Co. (1917) 2 K.B. 38 (Marine goods carried on deck where it is unusual to carry them); London Assurance v. Mausel (1879) 11 Ch.D. 363 (Life, previous proposals rejected); Lindenau v. Desborough (1828) 8 B. & C. (Life, doubt about health); Treitel: Law of Contract (5th Ed.) p. 299 (2nd Ed.) pp. 252-3; Rozanes v. Bowen (1928) 32 L.1.L.R. 98, 102 refd. to Joel v. Law Union & Crown Insurance Co. (1908) 2 K.B. 863 (Material facts in non-marine insurance); B.A.S. Chopra v. New Zealand Insurance Co. Ltd. (1967) A. Cal. 35 (Motor insurance).

an implied condition that there is no misrepresentation or concealment.[50] Any statement can be made on the basis of the contract of insurance and if any statement is inaccurate its materiality is immaterial. Whether there is a warranty as to the correctness of statements contained in an application for insurance and insurance policy is a question of construction;[51] and an enquiry into the issue of materiality is precluded. The falsity may be by inadvertence or without fraud;[52] because representation is a part of the contract.[53] The insured cannot turn round and say "it would have made no difference if you had known the truth" about his state of health.[54] In cases of breach of warranty of the truth of statements in an insurance proposal by one of the parties to the contract, the other party shall be discharged from the performance of his part of the contract and neither s. 64 nor s. 65 has any application.[54] A policy of insurance is effective on the completion of all formalities even without "the personal statement duly completed by the doctor" as that is a mere formality.[55] In motor-car insurance, the truth of the answers to question by the assured is a warranty which is a basis of the liability[56] But there need be no disclosure of facts which the insurer himself ought to know or the knowledge of which he waives.[56] And disclosure to the insurer's agent by the assured is disclosure or representation to the insurer.[57] Age admitted by the insurer can be questioned later if it is shown that the admission was obtained by fraud or fraudulent misrepresentation.[58]

Convictions.—In a building insurance also an insured is bound to disclose all facts which prudent or reasonable insurer might want to know as material facts and moral character of an insured is one of them. And therefore where criminal convictions including one of robbery must be disclosed. And even if there is no proposal by the insured because of a package insurance by a building Society will not make any difference. And the insurance company—the insurer—can repudiate the policy.[59]

Uncustomed Goods.—The plaintiff had insured his goods against loss with the defendant company. Some of the goods were lost, among them were some uncustomed articles. The plaintiffs claimed damages for the loss of goods. The defendant pleaded that the agreement was illegal and also relied on public policy as a defence. The Court held that although the policy of insurance were not tainted with illegality it would be contrary to public policy for the court to assist the plaintiff by enforcing them to the extent of granting him an indemnity against the loss of uncustomed articles; for by doing it the Court would be assisting the plaintiff to derive a profit from deliberate breach of law.[60]

Misrepresentation—Warranty.—The Esso Petroleum Company using its expert knowledge induced a dealer to take a petrol pump on lease. The estimate was exaggerated and the dealer was awarded damages for breach of warranty.[61]

---

50 Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors (1886) 17 Q.B.D. 552, 561-562

51 Provincial Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Morgan & Foxon, 1933 A.C. 240, 246; Oriental Government Security Life Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Narasimha Chari, 25 Mad. 183; Dawsons Ltd. v. Bonnin (1922) 2 A.C. 413, 421; Srinivasa v. Premier Life & General Insurance Co. (1958) A. My. 53; Balkrishna v. New India Insurance Co. (1959) A.P. 102; Benarsidebi v. New India Insurance Co. (1959) A.P. 540.

52 Condogianis v. Guardian Insurance Co. (1921) A.PC. 195 (per Lord Shaw).

53 Condogianis v. Guardian Insurance Co. (1921) A.PC. 195; Anderson v. Fitzgerald (1853) 4 H.L.Cas. 484, 10 E.R. 551); See also Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853.

54 Mithoolal v. Life Insurance Corporation (1962) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 571; (1962) A.S.C. 814 (A case of life insurance); Hindustan General Insurance Society v. Punam Chand, (1971) A. Cal. 285 (Facts not material do not avoid contract).

55 Ramdev Moolchand v. Lakshmi Insurance Co. Ltd. (1962) A. Punj. 125; MacGillivary on Insurance (4th Ed.) s. 649.

56 B. A. S. Chopra v. New Zealand Insurance Co. Ltd. (1967) A. Cal. 35.

57 Ayrev v. British Legal & United Provident Assurance Co. Ltd. (1918) 1 K.B. 136. MacGillivary on Insurance Law (5th Ed.) Art. 999; B.A.S. Chopra v. New Zealand Insurance Co. (1967) A.Cal. 35, 38.

58 Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Baidyanath Singh (1978) A.P. 334; Alliance and Stuttgarter Ltd. v. Hemanta Kumar Das (1938) A. Cal. 641; Maneklal Kalidas Shah v. Yorkshire Insurance Co. Ltd. (1939) A.B. 161; referred to.

59 Woodcott v. Sun Alliance & London Insurance Ltd (1978) 1 All E.R. 1253; General Accident Fire and Life Assurance Corpn. Ltd. v. Midland Bank Ltd (1940) 3 All E.R. at pp. 257,258; Lambert v. Cooperative Insurance Society Ltd (1975) Lloyds Rep. at p. 487 applied.

60 Geisman v. Sun Alliance and London Insurance Ltd. (1977) 3 All E.R. 570,580-1 (Q.B.D); Parkin v. Dick (1809) 11 East 502; Mackender v. Feldia AG (1916) 3 All E.R. at p. 850 applied.

61 Esso Petroleum Co. Ltd. v. Marden (1976) Q.B. 801; (1976) 2 W.L.R. 583; (1976) 2 All E.R. 5.

The plaintiff purchased a Benlay car which was sold to him with the representation that it had done 20,000 miles after its reconditioning whereas it had done over 100,000 miles and was unsatisfactory. The plaintiff succeeded in getting damages for breach of what was intended to be a warranty.[62]

The plaintiff looking for a stallion was examining a horse in the stable when the defendant told him that the horse was sound. The plaintiff purchased the horse a few days later. The horse was found utterly unfit for the purpose of the stud. This was held to be a warranty by the House of Lords.[63]

Relying on one's own fraud, no action will lie.—Where contract is vitiated on the ground of fraud, the party guilty of fraud or a person deriving title from him cannot ask for refund of money paid. The courts will not entertain an action for money had and received where in order to succeed a person has to prove his own fraud.[64] If parties give a transaction a particular form they must take the consequences thereof. A party to a fraud cannot be allowed to plead his own fraud, e.g. splitting up advance rent in two parts in order to defraud income-tax.[65]

In the same way parties are not bound to remove mistakes to which they have not contributed.[66] It must be remembered that the parties can always decide before hand for themselves, if they choose, what facts shall be deemed material and to what extent. On the one hand, they can make the existence of any specified state of facts, or the truth of any affirmation, an essential term or condition of the contract, so that without it there is no contract at all;[67] on the other hand, they can make any fact or affirmation the subject-matter of a warranty or collateral agreement, so that failure to make it good shall not avoid the principal contract, but only give a right to damages. This is exemplified by the ordinary warranties expressed or implied, on a sale of specific chattels.[68] In every case the question is what the parties really intended. Much perplexity would have been avoided if this principle, explicitly recognised only in the second half of the nineteenth century,[69] had been understood earlier.

Sub-s. 1.—What is meant by "the positive assertion, in a manner not warranted by the information of the person making it, of that which is not true"? Many persons would say that, in any ordinary use of the English language, the assertion of that which is not true, though it may be innocent and even free from negligence, cannot be "warranted" in any manner. Now the framers of the New York Civil Code put this clause under the head of Fraud. Probably what they meant was that a misrepresentation made with reasonable and probable cause for believing it true should in no case be treated as fraud, but that a reckless or grossly negligent misrepresentation should be. The result would be to lay down a more stringent rule as to fraud than is sanctioned by English decisions—in fact, some such rule as the Court of Appeal laid down in England, but the House of Lords refused to adopt, in Derry v. Peek.[70] When this clause is transferred to the head of misrepresentation, it would seem to mean that innocent misrepresentation does not give cause for avoiding a contract unless the representation is made without any reasonable ground. The High Court of Calcutta has held that an assertion cannot be said to be "warranted" for the purpose where it is based upon mere hearsay. Thus if A makes a positive statement to B that C would be a director of a company about to be formed, and B applies for shares on the faith of that statement, the statement would be a misrepresentation if A did not derive the information from C direct, but from a third party, D.[71] In the

---

62 Dick Benlay Production Ltd. v. Harold Smith (Motors) Ltd. (1965) 1 W.L.R 623.

63 Sehawel v. Reade (1913) 2 I. R. 81 (H.L); Contra: Hopkins v. Tanqueray (1854) 15 C.B. 130. See Couchman v. Hill (1947) K.B. 544 (guarranty of the heifer being unserved which was wrong); Harling v. Eddy (1951) 2 K.B. 739 (sale of heifer who died of tuberculosis.

64 Mithoo Lal v. Life Insurance Corporation (1962) A.SC. 814; (1962) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 571.

65 Abdul Razzak v. Mohammad Shafi PLD (1962) 1 S.C. 134, 137 (Pak.).

66 Smith v. Hughes (1871) L.R. 6 Q.B. 597.

67 Behn v. Burness (1863) 3 B. & S. 751 (ship described in charter-party as "now in the port of Amsterdam"), Bannerman v. White (1861) 10 C.B.N.S. 844 (hops bought on terms of being free from treatment with sulphur).

68 See the sections on Warranty in the Sale of Goods Act, 1930.

69 See note 52 supra.

70 (1889) 14 App. Ca. 337, reversing judgment of C.A. 37 Ch.D. 541.

71 Mohan Lall v. Sri Gungaji Cotton Mills Co. (1899) 4 C.W.N. 369.

course of the judgment Maclean C.J. said: "I need scarcely say that we must deal with this case according to the law of India and not of England, and if we find the term 'misrepresentation' defined by statute in this country, we must do our best to ascertain whether the case is brought within that statutory definition... (A) says that (D) told him that he (D) had authority from (C) to use his name in the prospectus as a director, in other words, that he (A) obtained his information not from (C) direct, but only through (D) I am not disposed to think that if (A) had relied on the secondhand information he derived from (D), he was 'warranted' in making the positive assertion that (C) would be a director".[72] This appears to require, on the part of the person making the representation, a belief not merely having some reasonable ground—for it is often quite reasonable to act upon second-hand information, even when it is not unavoidable—but founded on the best information that is available. There is no reason to be dissatisfied with this judgment, though it may be matter of historical doubt whether the framers of the Act intended to go so far. The qualification does not, of course, apply to the classes of contracts where there is a special duty to disclose all material facts within a party's knowledge. Outside these contracts of "abundant good faith" the rule of the High Court of Calcutta sets up a standard of diligence which may well be thought adequate; though it would not satisfy those learned writers in England and America who take the view that "innocent misrepresentation which brings about a contract is now a ground for setting the contract aside"[73] in all cases. Misrepresentation as to title made by vendors recklessly or with gross negligence cannot escape the charge of fraudulent misrepresentation.[74]

Statement of opinion & intention.—According to a learned writer "A representation is a statement of fact, past or present or as distinct from a statement of opinion, or of intention or of law".[75] A mere statement of opinion proved to be unfounded is not misrepresentation nor a mere statement of intention which has not been put into effect. But the statement of opinion or of intention may, in certain circumstances, be regarded as a statement of fact. Thus if the person expressing the opinion did not hold it or no reasonable man could have held it on the known facts, the statement may be regarded as a statement of fact. Similarly where a vendor's solicitor honestly but without any reasonable ground believed that estate duty would be payable on the death of an annuitant "who is believed to have no aggregable estate", the purchaser of an absolute reversion in a trust fund was held entitled to rescind the sale because the vendor was in a stronger position to ascertain the facts.[76] On the other hand "puffs and commendatory statements" do not amount to representation.[77] But statements made in good faith are not misrepresentation if they turn out to be wrong.[78] Statements of opinion published as if they were a fact may be regarded as a statement of fact.[79] Statement of intention may be misrepresentation of existing fact if at the time it was made there was not the intention or the ability to put it into effect.[80] For example where a man orders goods which he had no intention to pay for, this was fraudulent misrepresentation.[81]

Opinion and fact.—A statement by an estate agent that some flats would bring not less than 6 guineas a week and others not less than 5 gms a week was a mere matter of opinion and not a statement of fact.[82]

---

72 Ibid, at p. 388.

73 Anson, Law of Contract (22nd Ed.) p. 210; Harriman, s. 426, see supra, note 30.

74 Sayu Mohammad Abdulla v. Neelakantan (1958) A. Ker 322; Mohan Lal v. Sri Gangaji Cotton Mills, 4 C.W.N. 369; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337 (1889); Ganpat v. Mangilal (1962) A.MP. 144; Cf. Hedley Bryne & Co. Ltd. v. Hellers & Partners Ltd. (1964) A.C. 465 (Careless misstatement); and Brown v. Raphael (1958) 2 W.L.R. 647 (without reasonable grounds).

75 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Para 354.

76 Brown v. Raphael (1958) Ch. 636; (1958) 2 All E.R. 79; (1958) 2 W.L.R. 647.

77 Dimmock v. Hallett (1866) L.R. 2 Ch. App. 21, 27.

78 New Brunswick and Canada Ry. & Land Co. v. Conybeare (1862) 9 H.L. Cas. 711; Bisset v. Wilinson (1927) A.C. 177, Anderson v. Pacific Insurance Co. (1872) 7 C.P. 65.

79 Reese River Silver Mining Co. Ltd. v. Smith (1869) L.R. 4 H.L. 64.

80 See Edgington v. Fitzmaurice (1885) 29 Ch.D. 459; Angus v. Clifford (1891) 2 Ch. 449, 470. (449, 470).

81 Re: Shackleton, exp. Whittaker (1875) L.R. 10 Ch. App 446; Ray v. Sempers (1974) A.C. 370.

82 Fitzpatrick v. Michell (1928) 28 S.R. (N.S.W.) 285.

Non-disclosure.—The general rule is that mere non-disclosure does not constitute misrepresentation, for there is no duty on the parties to disclose material facts to each other howsoever dishonest such non-disclosure may be in the particular circumstances.[83] For example a Company director who had inside information that the value of shares is likely to go up was held to be under no duty to disclose this fact to a shareholder whose shares he purchased.[84] Thus tacit acquiescence in another's self deception does not in itself amount to misrepresentation provided it is not previously caused by a positive misrepresentation.[85]

Representee.—Representees are of three classes:[86]

(1) Persons to whom the representation is directly made and their principals;
(2) persons to whom the representator intended the representation to be passed on;
(3) members of a class at which the representation was directed. The representee may be the general public but it does not follow that a legal remedy exists for it. But if the representation is directed at a particular class a representative must bring himself within that class. Peek v. Gurney[87] is an instance illustrating this point. There, the promoters of a Company issued a false prospectus and the plaintiff purchased shares of the Company in the open market relying on the prospectus. The House of Lords held that the plaintiff was not of that class it was meant for inviting the public to subscribe and not buy in the market and hence he could not recover.

So also in Gross v. Lewis Hillman Ltd.[88] it was held that the right of the purchaser of certain land to rescind the contract for misrepresentation did not run with the land and a purchaser from the original purchaser could not avail of it. But where a false statement is made in a bill of lading any person who relies on it will be a representee.[89]

Two remedies to a representee.—A representee, who was induced by misrepresentation into a contract, has two remedies open to him:

(1) to elect to rescind the contract and to demand from the representor a complete restoration if that is possible; or
(2) to affirm the contract and sue for damages.[90]

Misrepresentation need not be direct.—To succeed on the basis of innocent misrepresentation, the plaintiff must show that

(1) the language relied upon does import or contain a representation of some material facts;
(2) the representation is untrue; and
(3) the plaintiff in entering into the contract was induced so to do in reliance upon it.[91]

In order to constitute misrepresentation there must be some active misstatement of fact, or at all events such a partial and fragmentary statement of fact as that the withholding of that which is not stated makes that which is stated absolutely false.[92] Mere silence is not misrepresentation; but where so many things are unsaid and reduces the little that is said into half truths and silence distorts a positive representation, such silence amounts to misrepresentation and avoids the rest of the terms of the contract.[93] A wrong statement to become 83 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Para 358 relying on Ward v. Hobbs (1878) 4 App. Cas. 13.

---

84 Percival v. Wright (1902) 2 Ch. 421.
85 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Para 358.
86 Chitty on Contract 24th Ed. Para 363 relying on Swift v. Winterbotham (1873) 8 Q.B. 244,253.
87 (1873) 6 H.L. 377.
88 (1970) Ch. 445; (1969) 3 All E.R. 1476.
89 Brown Jenkinson & Co. Ltd. v. Percy Dalton (London) Ltd. (1957) 2 Q.B. 621; (1957) 2 All E.R. 844; (1957) 3 W. L.R. 403.
90 S. Gormley & Co. Pty. Ltd. v. Cubit (1964-65) N.S.W.R. 557, 560.
91 Brown v. Raphael (1958) 2 W.L.R. 647, 650; Smith v. Land & House Property Corporation (1884) 28 Ch.D. 7.
92 Lord Cairns in Peek v. Gurney (1873) 6 H.L. Cas. 377, 403.
93 Tirathraj Pandey v. Amar Credit Corporation, 72 C.W.N. 243; Macher v. Foundling Hospital, I.V. & B 188; 35 E.R. 74 (Silent acquiescence about a prohibited trade no inference of consent).

misrepresentation need not be directly made to the plaintiff. It is enough if it is made to a third person in a manner that the plaintiff will become aware of it.[94]

After learning from a talk between her father and another that the proposed bridegroom was a young man in a comfortable position, a statement which was false, a girl, who was sui juris gave her consent to her marriage. Such consent is vitiated by fraud and misrepresentation.

S. 12(1)C of Hindu Marriage Act applies.[94]

Commendatory expressions such as advertisements to the effect that a soap powder "washes whiter than white" or that certain brand of cigarettes gives "lasting satisfaction" are not considered as serious misrepresentations of fact. "Puffs and commendatory statements" do not amount to representation.[95] In a private contract, a similar latitude is allowed when a person wants to seek a customer although the borderline of permissible assertion is not always discernible. At an auction sale, land was stated to be "fertile and improveable" whereas it was partly "abandoned and useless." This was held to be "a mere flourishing description by an auctioneer". But in the Carbolic Smoke Balls case a manufacturer making a precise claim that his carbolic smoke balls gave immunity from influenza was held liable.[96] In the case of a sale of a hotel, where the tenant was described as "a most desirable tenant" whereas his rent could be recovered under pressure and he was currently much in arrear, such statement was held to entitle the purchaser to rescind the contract.[97] But in a misrepresentation as to the status of a lessee[98] to prospective purchaser the maker is not guilty unless he intended to give a false impression. It is a question of fact in each case whether it is a statement of mere praise or an assertion of "verifiable facts".

Acquiescence, tacit consent and connivance.—To consent means to acquiesce, i.e. consent indicated otherwise than words.

In an election case, the Rajasthan High Court held that tacit consent which may be used in connection with unlawful and immoral matters as also with matters not immoral or unlawful is 'consent' and so is connivance which can only be used for matters unlawful and immoral. And therefore the word consent is not stronger than the word connivance.[99] But it was held in an English case that mere silent acquiescence by a lessor respecting a trade forbidden by the lease raises no inference that he has given consent to the lessee's carrying on any forbidden trade.[1]

We may refer to a Punjab case to illustrate the meaning of the expression "positive assertion." A sells a mare to B. Before the sale A writes to B as follows, in answer to inquiries from B: "I think your queries would be satisfactorily answered by a friend if you have one in the station, and I shall feel more satisfied. All I can say is that the mare is thoroughly sound." The letter is a "positive assertion" of soundness coupled with a recommendation to B to satisfy himself before purchasing; but it does not amount to a warranty.[2]

A second hand motor car dealer sold an old car to the plaintiff representing it to be in excellent condition but when the plaintiff purchased and ran it for three weeks he discovered that the engine was in a very bad condition and had to be replaced. The motor car dealer was held to be liable in damages for misrepresentation and breach of the implied warranty.[3]

Inducement may not be the sole inducement.—Thus where a plaintiff was induced to take debentures partly on the inducement of the prospectus but also because of a mistaken belief of his own, he was held to be entitled to have the contract rescinded. Said Cotton L.J. "It is not

---

94 Babui Panmato Kuer v. Ram Agya Singh (1968) A.P. 190.
95 Dimmock v. Hallett (1866) 2 Ch. Ap. 21, 27.
96 Dimmock v. Hallett (1866) 2 Ch. Ap. 21; Anson: On Contract (22nd Ed.) 210; Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co. (1893) 1 Q.B. 256; (1891-94) All E.R. Rep. 127; Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) para 354.
97 Smith v. Land & House Property Corporation (1884) 28 Ch.D.7;51 L.T. 718.
98 Gross v. Lewis Hillman, (1969) 3 W.L.R. 787.
99 Sheopatsingh v. Harishchandra (1958) A. Rai. 324.
1 Macher v. Foundling Hospital, I.V. & B. 188; 35 E.R. 74.
2 Currie v. Rennick (1886) Punj. Rec. No. 41.
3 Crowther v. Shannon Motor Co. (1975) 1 All.E.R. 139, 141. (C.A.); Bartlett v. Sidney Marcus Ltd. (1965) 2 All.E.R. 753 disting.

necessary to show that the statement was sole cause of his acting as he did."[4]

Sub-s. 2.—This sub-section is, as already stated, obscure.[5] It was considered in a Bombay case[6] by Sargent J.: "The second clause of s.18 is probably intended to meet all those cases which are called in the Courts of Equity, perhaps unfortunately so, cases of 'constructive fraud',[7] in which there is no intention to deceive, but where the circumstances are such as to make the party who derives a benefit from the transaction equally answerable in effect as if he had been actuated by motives of fraud or deceit." In that case the plaintiffs, who were creditors of the defendants, sued to set aside a composition deed executed by their agents, alleging that their signature was obtained by a representation made by one of the defendants that the deed was nothing more than an assignment to trustees for the benefit of creditors, as agreed to in a previous meeting of the creditors. It was further alleged that the deed contained a release of which no mention was made at the meeting, and of which the plaintiffs' agents had no knowledge. Under those circumstances the High Court of Bombay declared the release absolutely void, on the ground that the deed as it was signed was essentially different from that which the plaintiffs' agent intended to execute, or thought they were executing, when they affixed their signature to the deed. The Court went further, and said that there was another ground on which the plaintiffs were entitled to relief, namely, that there was a duty on the part of the defendants within the meaning of the present sub-section to communicate to the plaintiffs' agents the fact of the existence of the release and that the breach thereof entitled the plaintiffs to avoid the transaction under s. 19 of the Act. But it is submitted that the first sub-section was more applicable, as there was a "positive assertion" by one of the defendants that the document was nothing more than a mere assignment of the creditors' property to trustees.

This sub-section would also cover the position where a true statement is made, but it becomes false to the knowledge of the maker before it has been acted upon. In Incledon v. Watson[8] A, in negotiating for the sale of the goodwill of a school to B, told him that there were twenty-two boarders with perfect truth. But before the bargain was concluded, the number had dropped to seventeen to A's knowledge, and he said nothing. Wightman J. held that this amounted to fraud. In With v. O'Flanagan,[9] the plaintiff was allowed to rescind a contract to buy the defendant's medical practice. The defendant had, before the signing of the contract, correctly stated that the practice was worth £2,000/- a year, but before the plaintiff went into possession on completion four months later, the practice had dwindled to a mere £5/- per week to the defendants' knowledge, and he kept silent. The Court of Appeal based their decision on the defendant's duty to communicate the change of circumstances. Similarly this non-disclosure would appear to be a breach of duty within sub-section 2.

Misrepresentation, though innocent.—A contract of guarantee like any other contract is liable to be avoided if induced by innocent misrepresentation or undue influence.[10]

Innocent misrepresentation are a separate class from that of negligent or fraudulent misrepresentations and no action for damages lies for a mere innocent representation in this sense Heibut Symonds & Co. v. Buckleton; Gilchester[11] Properties Ltd. v. Gomm.[12] But a claim will lie for damages if it ends in a contract. Thus where the parties enter into a contract and the misrepresentation becomes a term of the contract an action will lie for damages whether the representation is innocent, negligent or fraudulent. Similarly where the

---

4 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Para 365. Edgington v. Fitzmaurice (1885) 29 Ch. D.459.

5 The framers of the New York draft Code seem to have extracted this rule from Bulkley v. Wilford (1834) 2 Cl. & F. 102; 37 R.R. 39, which really proceeded on the much more intelligible principle that an agent who is bound to be skilled shall not profit by his own incompetence.

6 Oriental Bank Corporation v. Fleming (1879) 3 Bom. 242, 267; see this case cited in the commentary on s. 13. "As to the nature of transaction", above.

7 This term has been obsolete for many years in English practice.

8 (1862) 2 F. & F. 841.

9 (1936) Ch. 575.

10 Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada, 1934 A.C. (P.C.) 475 (per Lord Atkin); Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard (1963) 1 Q.B. 904; (1963) 2 W.L.R. 87; Governor of Orissa v. Shiv Prasad (1963) A. Or. 217; Kaufman v. Gerson (1904) 1 K.B. 591, 596.

11 (1913) A.C. 30.

12 (1948) 1 All E.R. 493.

representee enters into a contract with a third party relying on the misrepresentation.[13] In the case of an innocent misrepresentation being passed on to a sub-buyer, thus bringing about a sub-contract, the sub-buyer may rescind the sub-contract.[14] In that case the original contract can be rescinded by the original buyer.

The principle stated by Lord Atkin in Mackenzie's case[15] where the plaintiff was held entitled to set aside a guarantee into which she had entered and to recover her securities was that "A contract of guarantee like any other contract is liable to be avoided if induced by misrepresentation of an existing fact even if made innocently..... that it was.... That it was material..... the plaintiff was at all times, on ascertaining true position entitled to avoid the contract and recover her securities." Of the guarantee there were renewals before the plaintiff was advised of true facts. There was no difficulty as to restitutio in integrum.

The Privy Council[16] applying these cases gave the relief of rescission in case where a partner sold his portion of stockbrokers business to the plaintiff who after she took over as managing partner found that she had been induced to buy the partnership business on a false though not fraudulent representation brought an action for the return of her money. The defendant inter alia pleaded that the plaintiff was not entitled to rescind the contract on the ground of innocent misrepresentation because it was executed and relied on Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co. Ltd. Lord Morris referred to Seddon Case and other cases but thought it unnecessary to discuss them and held that "the mere fact that the party making the representation has treated the contract as binding and has acted on it does not preclude relief. Nor can it be said that the plaintiff received anything which she is unable to restore" and decreed the plaintiff's claim.

A motor dealer made a statement to the buyer that a car had done 20,000 miles since it was fitted with a new engine. This was a conclusion by looking at the log book and was a wrong statement. The dealer also gave a year's guarantee. The car was found to be unsatisfactory and the buyer brought an action for breach of warranty. The Court held the statement made by the seller to have made a wrong statement but innocent representation not dishonestly made. He had jumped to a conclusion and stated it as a fact that the buyer would act on it. Consequently damages were awarded.[17]

The plaintiff prayed for rescission of the contract of sale on the ground of false representation as to the age of the car and as to its original cost. The finding of the jury was that the representation was false though not fraudulent and that each of them formed part of the inducement. To this the Court applied common law rules and held that innocent misrepresentation is not a ground for rescission of a contract for sale of goods. This decision really is based on the Sale of Goods Act.[18]

Misrepresentation leading to committing an offence.—Fraud and false representation injurious to an innocent person cannot be committed with impunity and such injured person unwittingly made to commit an offence is entitled to compensation for any loss suffered by him but not if he has knowledge that a particular act is an offence.[19] A misrepresentation, even

---

13 Bentley (Dick) Productions Ltd. v. Herald Smith (Motors) Ltd. (1965) 1 W.L.R. 623; (1965) 3 All E.R. 65.

14 Abram S.S. Co. v. Westville Shipping Co. (1923) A.C. 773.

15 Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada (1934) A.C. 468, 475. Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard (1963) 1 Q.B. 904; (1963) 2 W.L.R. 87; Governor of Orissa v. Shiv Prasad (1963) A. Or. 217; Kaufman v. Gerson (1904) 1 K.B. 591,596.

16 Senanayake v. Cheng (1966) A.C.63; (1965) 3 All E.R. 926; (1965) 3 W.L.R. 715; Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada (1934) A.C. 468,475; Adam v. Newbigging (1888) 13 App. Cas. 308, 317; applied. Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co. Ltd. (1905) 1 Ch. 326; Solle v. Butcher, (1950) 1 K.B. 671; Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86; Curtis v. Chemical Cleaning & Dyeing Co. (1951) 1 K.B. 805; Long v. Lloyd (1958) 1 W.L.R. 753 disting.

17 Dick Bentley Productions Ltd. v. Smith (Motors) Ltd. (1965) 2 All E.R. 65 (C.A.); Heibut, Symons & Co. v. Buckleton (1913) A.C. 30. (An affirmation at the time of sale is warranty provided it appears on the evidence to be so intended.)

18 Watt v. Westhoven (1933) V.L.R. 458; Riddiford v. Warren (1901) 20 N.Z.L.R. 572; Kennedy v. Panama, New Zealand & Australian Royal Mail Co. (1867) 2 Q.B. 580 appld.

19 Burrows v. Rhodes & Jameson (1899) 1 Q.B. 816; Janu Sait v. Ramaswamy Naidu (1923) A.M. 626; Muneyya v. Venkayya (1957) A.AP. 781. (No representation was proved.)

though innocent and not wilful, will avoid a contract, if it is made without reasonable grounds.[20] Merely marking the trees of a forest from external appearance by a Forest Officer as sound and sold to a forest contractor is not misrepresentation if the trees turn out to be unsound. A contract is not voidable under s.22 if it is caused by one of the parties being under a mistake of fact.[21]

In a Canadian case[22] showing misrepresentation and undue influence the facts were:

A married woman stood guarantee (with pledge of securities) given by her for the indebtedness of a company in which her husband was a principal shareholder. Before she stood guarantee she was assured by her husband and the bank manager that her shares were bound to the bank and that they had gone anyhow and the only chance of getting them back was if she signed the guarantee. There were subsequent renewals of the guarantee before the plaintiff was advised of the true facts.

The contract of guarantee was held liable to be avoided as induced by material misrepresentation even if innocently made. The mere fact that the party making the representation had treated the contract as binding and had acted on it did not preclude relief nor could it be said that the plaintiff received anything under the contract which she was unable to restore. Lord Atkin pointed out in that case.[23]

"...Independent advice to be of any value must be given before the transaction, for the question is as to the will of the party at the time of entering into the disputed transaction. Advice given after the event when the supposed contracting party is already bound is given under entirely different circumstances, with a different position presented to the minds both of the adviser and his client."

A lorry purchased on the representation of being "in first class condition" was found to have some defects when driven on business purposes. The seller agreed to pay half the price for removing those defects. It was again taken for business purposes and broke down.

In an action for rescission for innocent misrepresentation the court held that even if the plaintiff had a right of rescission he lost it in the circumstances of the case.[24]

Innocent misrepresentation and executed contracts.—An executed contract cannot be rescinded on the ground of innocent misrepresentation; but this rule does not apply to cases of fraud or breach of fiduciary relations.[25] This rule applies to disposition of interests in land,[26] e.g. vendor's title. The extension of this rule to executed conveyances has been criticised by Denning L.J.[27] and by Scrutton L.J. in Lever Bros. v. Bell.[28] In MacKenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada[29] an executed agreement of guarantee was set aside by the Privy Council. The rule has also been applied to sale of shares.[30] In Curtis v. Chemical Cleaning & Dyeing Co.[31] the plaintiff signed a receipt which was represented to the plaintiff as exemption of the defendants from certain risks, e.g. damage to the beads and sequins on the wedding dress but actually it exempted defendants from "any damage howsoever caused".

---

20 Governor of Orissa v. Shivprasad (1963) A. Or. 217.
21 Ibid.
22 MacKenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada, (1934) A.C. 468 at page 476.
23 Ibid, 474-475; See Bireswar Sen v. Ashalata Ghose (1969) A. Cal. 111 (a case of gift to the lawyer's wife upheld).
24 Long v. Lloyd (1958) 1 W.L.R. 753; (1958) 2 All E.R. 402; Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co. Ltd. (1905) 1 Ch. 326; Angel v. Jay (1911) I K.B. 666; (1908-10) All E.R. Rep. 470 (An executed contract cannot be rescinded on the ground of innocent misrepresentation).
25 Angel v. Jay (1911) I K.B. 666; (1908-10) All E.R. Rep. 470. (A case of lease; could not be rescinded on ground of representation of conditions of drains.) Criticised by Denning L.J. in Solle v. Butcher (1950) I K.B. 671, 695; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1121; Long v. Lloyd (1958) 1 W.L.R. 753; (1958) 2 All E.R. 402.
26 Wilde v. Gibson (1848) I H.L. Cas. 605; Brownlie v. Campbell (1880) 5 App. Cas. 925, 937.
27 Solle v. Butcher (1950) I K.B. 671, 695; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107 (C.A.); Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86, 90; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693; (C.A.); Cf. Curtis v. Chemical Cleaning & Dyeing Co. (1951) 1 K.B. 805, 810; (1951) 1 All E.R. 631. (It cannot be said that Angel v. Jay (1911) 1 K.B. 666. has been overruled).
28 (1931) 1 K.B. 488.
29 (1934) A.C. 468.
30 Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co. Ltd. (1905) 1 Ch. 326 criticised by Hammelman 55 L.Q.R. 90 and by Treitel: The Law of Contract (5th Ed.) p. 282 (as based on false analogies).
31 (1951) 1 K.B. 805; (1951) 1 All E.R. 631.

The Court of Appeal held it to be not available to the defendant as there was misrepresentation howsoever innocent. If an estate agent misrepresents, even though innocently, the effect of the printed form of contract by saying that the commission would be payable only if the sale went through but the printed form of contract contains different terms contrary to the misrepresentation, then the contract with the estate agent is not binding and the contract would be avoided on the ground of misrepresentation.[32]

In Seddon's case the absence of fraud and the absence of any allegation of fraud was held to be a bar to an action for rescission in the case of an executed contract for the sale of shares from the persons who really owned the shares.[33] This case had lost all force since Scrutton L.J. had thrown doubts on it in Lever Brothers Ltd. v. Bell[34] and the Privy Council actually set aside an executed agreement in Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada[35] Angel v. Jay[36] was wrongly decided. It was so held in Solle v. Butcher[37] and Leaf v. International Galleries.[38]

A contract of sale will be rescinded where the solicitor for the vendors makes an honest statement, but without reasonable ground for so believing, if the statement vitally affects the subject-matter of sale. There must be imported into the representation the further representation that the vendor had reasonable ground for supporting that belief.[39] There can be liability in negligence in respect of an innocent though careless misstatement which causes financial loss but where there is specific disclaimer of responsibility there is no liability. The responsibility exists even where there is no fiduciary relationship between the parties.[40]

Negligent misrepresentation.—Negligent misrepresentation is one made carelessly or without reasonable grounds for believing it to be true; but it cannot be so regarded unless the representor owes a duty to the representee to be careful, since the decision in Derry v. Peak[42] it has undergone a change in its concept. The House of Lords in Nocton v. Ashburton[43] and in Hadley Byrne & Co. Ltd. v. Heller and Partners Ltd.[44] have in the former case decided that the duty to take care arises in cases of fiduciary relationship and in the latter it was held that it could arise in many other relationships. In the former case a Solicitor was sued by his client for giving wrong advice whereby he was induced to release a part of the security and thereby the security became insufficient and it was also alleged that the advice was given to benefit himself (the Solicitor) and that the Solicitor knew that security will become insufficient. The House of Lords held that the mortgagee was entitled to relief for the breach of duty by the Solicitor towards his clients. The latter case has widened the scope of the law. Although the House made it clear that advice given in the course of social relationship would not be a ground of liability, they also made it clear that many special relationships will suffice. In case of professional relationships even where there is no contract between the parties it will give rise to a duty of care whenever the representor knew that the representee was likely to act on the representation. So if a Company's auditor gives negligent advice to a person and the latter invests money in the Company & loses, an action for negligent misrepresentation will lie against the auditor if it can be shown that the auditor knew that representee would act on the advice—32 Jaques. v. Lloyd D. George & Partners Ltd. (1968) 1 W.L.R. 625; Dictum of Scrutton L.J. in L'Estrange v. F. Graucob Ltd. (1934) 2 K.B. 394, 403, and Curtis v. Chemical Cleaning & Dyeing Co. (1951) 1 K.B. 805; (1951) 1 T.L.R. 452; (1951) 1 All E.R. 631, C.A. applied.

---

33 Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co. Ltd. (1905) 1 Ch. 326. This rule in England has been abrogated by s.l (b) of the Misrepresentation Act and this performance of the contract is no bar to an action thereon.

34 (1931) 1 K.B. 557, 588.

35 (1934) A.C. 408.

36 (1911) 1 K.B. 666.

37 (1950) 1 K.B. 671.

38 (1950) 2 K.B. 86.

39 Brown v. Raphael (1958) 2 W.L.R. 647. (Sale of an absolute reversion in a trust fund on the death of an annuitant); See also Hedley Bryne & Co. Ltd. v. Hellers & Partners Ltd. (1964) A.C. 465 (careless misstatement); and Sayu Mohammad Abdulla v. Neelakantan (1958) A. Ker. 322.

40 Hedley Bryne & Co. Ltd. v. Hellers & Partners Ltd. (1964) A.C. 465; Stevens: 27 M.L.R. 121. Cf. Sayu Mohammad Abdulla v. Neelakantan (1958) A. Ker. 322.

41 Chitty: On Contracts (24th ed) para 376.

42 (1889) 14 App. Cas. 337.

43 (1914) A.C. 1129.

44 (1964) A.C. 465.

Candler v. Crane, Christmas & Co.[45] the majority decision was overruled in Hedley Byrne's case. Even where an advisor is not acting in his professional capacity, advice given by him "in a business capacity" may give rise to a duty of care provided he has some financial interest in the transaction. W.B. Anderson & Sons Ltd. v. Rhodes (Liverpool) Ltd.[46] But see Mutual Life & Citizens Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Evatt[47] noted in (1971) 87 L.Q.R. 147 where the principle of Hedley Byrne's case was somewhat limited by a majority view of the Privy Council that in general there is no duty unless the maker has held himself out as having some special skill on competence in the matter. But the minority view was adopted in Esso Petroleum Co.Ltd. v. Mardon.[48] In this case a petroleum Company negotiating for a lease of a filling station negligently gave the prospective tenant over optimistic estimates of the sales potential of the filling station which was based on detailed evaluation by the petroleum Company and the tenant was not in as good a position as the Company to make estimates. It was held to be liable to the tenant for negligent misrepresentation.

A contractor who had to dump excavated soil into the sea entered into a contract of hire of barges. The marine manager of the barge owners made a representation as to their capacity of the barges which was incorrect, though he acted negligently in not consulting his papers but relied on his memory of what was contained in Lloyds register. On discovering the error in the statement of capacity of the barges the contractor refused to pay the hire for work done and also claimed damages by way of counter claim.

The Court of Appeal held that the counter claim would succeed on the ground that the statement of the marine manager was made so that it be acted upon and it was acted upon and therefore the barge owners were liable unless it was proved that the marine manager had reasonable cause to believe that the statement about the capacity was true. Moreover it was a specific fact and not expert advice which the contractor was seeking and this was within the particular knowledge of the barge owners.[49]

Reckless statement.—Representation made by one of the two defendants, by an agent of the other defendant and by another agent who was the agent of both the defendants, induced the plaintiff to enter into the purchase of a fruit business for £700 the representation being that the average takings of the business were £100 a week. The statement was found to be false in fact and made either knowing it to be false or recklessly. Plaintiff brought an action for rescission on the ground of misrepresentation and his claim succeeded and was confirmed by the High Court.[50]

Plaintiff made a representation with regard to the leased premises which was not only as to their physical State but also as to the availability of planning permission for them to be used for the full term of 15 years for which they were leased to the defendant for the intended purpose of offices. The plaintiffs were negligent in making that representation for the planning permission was for two years which the plaintiffs did not check which they could have done and the lease was rescinded.[51]

Specific Performance refused.—The plaintiff, the owner of two shops and the floors above applied for permission to use them as offices but permission was granted for the ground floor and a part of the first floor. He however gave the premises for office use forgetting about the restricted permission. He was held guilty of misrepresentation and his action for specific performance failed.[52]

Sub-s. 3—This sub-section was applied in a Bombay case,[53] where it was held that though a company was not liable as drawer on a bill of exchange signed by two of the directors and the

---

45 (1951) 2 K.B. 164; (1951) 1 All E.R. 426.
46 (1967) 2 All E.R. 850.
47 (1971) A.C. 793; (1971) 1 All E.R. 150 (P.C.).
48 (1975) Q.B. 819 reversed in part in (1976) Q.B. 801; (1976) 2 All E.R. 5(C.A.) (1976) 2 W.L.R. 583.
49 Howard Marine and Dredging Co. Ltd. v. A. Ogden & Sons (1978) 2 All E.R. 1134, 1148 (C.A.); Hedley Byrne & Co. Ltd. v. Heller & Partners (1963) 2 All E.R. 574 at pp. 617-8 (H.L.); Mutual Life & Citizens Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Evatt (1971) 1 All E.R. 150, 163. applied.
50 Alati v. Kruger (1955) 94 C.L.R. 216.
51 Laurence v. Lexcourt Holdings Ltd. (1973) 2 All E.R. 810, 818, 821; Re: Davis & Cavey (1888) 40 Ch. D. 601; and Charles Hunt Ltd. v. Palmer (1931) 2 Ch. 287 appld.
52 Laurence v. Lexcourt Holdings Ltd. (1978) 2 All E.R. 810,818,820; Re Davis & Cavey (1888) 40 Ch. D. 601 & Charles Hunt Ltd. v. Palmer (1931) 2 Ch. 287 applied.
53 In re Nursey Spinning and Weaving Co. (1880) 5 Bom. 92.

secretary, treasurer, and agent of the company, yet it was liable to the bank to which the bill was sold as for money received by the company to the use of the bank. The decision proceeded on the ground that the directors, while acting within the scope of their authority, had sold the bill as one on which the company was liable, but upon which, having regard to the form in which it was drawn, the company could not be rendered liable, and the directors were, therefore, guilty of misrepresentation within the meaning of the present subsection. The case was no doubt within the terms of the Act, but it might have been decided on the broader ground that a buyer "is entitled to have an article answering the description of that which he bought," and that here the document which the bank had bought had not the force or value which it purported and was supposed to have. Thus it might be regarded as a case of common mistake under s. 20 of the Act, entitling the party who had paid money to recover it under s. 72. In The Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Soonderdas Dhurumsey[54] the defendants in Bombay chartered a ship wholly unknown to them from the plaintiffs, which was described in the charter-party, and was represented to them, as being not more than 2,800 tonnage register. It turned out that the registered tonnage was 3,045 tons. The defendants refused to accept the ship in fulfilment of the charter-party, and it was held that they were entitled to avoid the charter-party by reason of the erroneous statement as to tonnage. It is difficult to see how the Court, having regard to the terms of the Act and to the evidence of the usage of Bombay and the understanding of the parties in the particular case, could have decided otherwise. But this case does not necessarily lay down any rule that an error in stating the amount of tonnage will in general render a charter-party voidable. In England such a statement does not, in the absence of special circumstances, amount even to a warranty.[55] As further illustrating the rule laid down in the present sub-section we might cite an earlier case, where it was held by the Allahabad Court that an agreement by the defendant to sell and deliver a boiler to the plaintiff at Rijghat was voidable at the option of the defendant, the plaintiff having represented (though innocently) to the defendant that there was a practicable road all the way, while, as a matter of fact, there was at one point a suspension bridge not capable of bearing the weight of the boiler.[56]

Non est factum.—This doctrine is a category of mistakes which is based on a few cases of a comparatively recent origin although the doctrine is an old one. Ordinarily, a man is bound by the document he executes provided he is a party of full age and understanding. But, if he has been misled into executing the deed or signing it and the document is different from what he intended to execute or sign, it is completely void. In some cases the mistake may have been induced by fraud, but according to some authorities the presence of fraud is not a necessary factor. Byles J. said in Foster v. Mackinnon:[57]

> "It is invalid not merely on the ground of fraud where fraud exists but on the ground that the mind of the signor did not accompany the signature: in other words, that he never intended or contemplated to sign, and, therefore, in contemplation of law never did sign the contract to which his name is appended."

The doctrine of non est factum does not apply unless there is a misrepresentation inducing a mistaken belief as to the class and character of the supposed document and not a misrepresentation simply as to its contents, so that a guarantee for £1000 would not be enforceable if the executant believed it to be a promissory note, but a promissory note for £10,000 would be binding even if the maker believed it to be for £100.[58] The distinction may not be easy to define because the character and class of a document may be said in one sense to depend on its contents, so that misrepresentation as to its contents involves misrepresentation

---

54 (1890) 14 Bom. 241. Mare de Lanto Compagnia v. Bergbau Handel, (1970) 3 All E.R. 125 (False assurance by owners as to availability of vessel).

55 Barker v. Windle (1856) 6 E. & B. 675; 106 R.R. 762.

56 Johnson v. Crowe (1874) 6 N.-W.P. 350. In fact the agreement was made several months before the Contract Act came into operation, but the case was treated at every stage as if it fell within the Act. The same result might have been arrrived at on the ground that the existence of a practicable road all the way was an essential term or condition of the contract. Cp. Pollock, Law of Fraud in British India, p. 101.

57 (1869) 4 C.P. 704, 711.

58 Treital: The Outlines of the Law of Contract (2nd Ed.) p.124.

of the character and class. But cases do illustrate distinctions.[59] Thus, where the defendant signed a document which in reality was an indemnity but which he was told was a release note, he would not be bound by his signature because it was wholly different in its class and character from the supposed release note through the actual and supposed document related to the same article e.g. a car.[60] The distinction may seem a somewhat narrow and artificial one to draw and perhaps it is. The justification for it lies in the practical necessity to keep the plea of non est factum within manageable bounds.[61]

In Mercantile Credit Co. v. Hamblin[62] there was no real misrepresentation as the party signing the document had no positive belief that the documents which she was signing were mortgage documents and these documents were of the class and character which she had in mind being documents capable of being used for raising money on the security of the car.[63] The doctrine of non est factum was therefore not applicable. But if the issue is whether there was a contract at all (e.g. on a plea of non est factum then the foreign jurisdiction clause (in that case the exclusive jurisdiction of Belgium Courts) would not apply as the contract is wholly unenforceable, accurately put void.[64]

Document signed in blank.—The plea of non est factum applies[65] where a party signs a document and hands it over to the other party in order to enable him to fill in the details and complete the transaction[66] and the document is not in accordance with the instructions of the executant. Even in that case he will be bound if it is not essentially different in substance or in kind from the intended transaction.[67] The burden of proof is on the executant that he acted carefully[68] and if he fails to show it he will be bound. But negligence on the part of the executant will be a bar to the plea of non est factum. At one time the negligence was held to apply to negotiable instruments only (Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg).[69] But this and other similar cases were criticised in Courts[70] and were overruled by House of Lords[71] and it was held to apply to all documents where negligence was found.

Doctrine reviewed.—This doctrine came to be reviewed in Gallie v. Lee,[72] where a seventy-eight years old widow executed a deed assigning her leasehold interest in a house to

---

59 Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard (1963) 1 Q.B. 904; (1963) 2 W.L.R. 87 (1963) All E.R. 81; (Donovan L.J.); Howatson v. Webb (1907) 1 Ch. 537; affd, (1908) 1 Ch.1 (C.A.) the character and class of the document was that of a conveyance of property and Webb knew this. What he did not know was that the contents made it a conveyance by way of mortgage. His mistake was as to contents only. Carlisle & Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg (1911) 1 K.B. 489 (C.A.). The character and class of the document was that of a guarantee of another's debt and Brogg did not know this. He was deceived into believing that he was dealing with some insurance matter. Tirathraj Pandey v. Amar Credit Corpn., 72 C.W.N. 253, 263; (There must be misrepresentation as to the nature of the document). L 'Estrange v. F. Graucob Ltd. (1934) All E.R. Rep. 16. (Contract signed contained exclusion of implied warranty, held binding although the buyer did not read it); Abdul Hasoan v. Mt. Wajibul Nissa (1948) A.P. 186; and Appanna v. Jami Venkattappadu (1953) A.M. 611 disting.

60 Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard (1963) 1 Q.B. 904; (1963) 2 W.L.R. 87. But see Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada (1954) A.C. 468,475 (P.C.) (Case of innocent misrepresentation.)

61 Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard (1963) 1 Q.B. 904, 912; (1963) 2 W.L.R. 87, 91 (per Donovan L.-J.); referring to Howatson v. Webb (1970) 1 Ch. 537; affd. (1980) 1 Ch. 1 (C.A.) and Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg (1911) 1 K.B. 489 (C.A.)

62 (1965) 2 Q.B. 242; (1964) 3 All E.R. 591; (1964) 3 W.L.R. 798.

63 Mercantile Credit Co. Ltd. v. Hamblin (1964) 3 W.L.R. 798, 808; (1964) 3 All E.R. 591; (1965) 2 Q.B. 242

64 Mackender v. Feldia A.G. (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 849, 851.

65 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Paras 303, 304

66 United Dominion Trust v. Western (1976) Q.B. 513; (1975) 3 All E.R. 1017: (1976) 2 W.L.R. 64.

67 United Dominion Trust v. Western (1976) Q.B. 513 disapproving Campbell Discount Finance Ltd. v. Gall (1961) 1 Q.B. 431; (1961) 2 All E.R. 104; (1961) 2 W.L.R. 514.

68 British Railway Traffic & Electric Co. Ltd. v. Roper (1939) 162 L.T. 217; Eastern Distributors Ltd. v. Goldring (1957) 2 Q.B. 600; (1957) 2 All E.R. 525; (1957) 3 W.L.R. (23).

69 (1911) 1 K.B. 489.

70 Muskham Finance Ltd. v. Howard (1963) 1 Q.B. 904, 913; Mercantile Credit Co. v. Hamblin (1965) 2 Q.B. 242; (1964) 3 W.L.R. 790; (1964) 3 All E.R. 562.

71 Saunders v. Anglia Building Society (1971) A.C. 1004, 1019, 1038; (1970) 3 All E.R. 961; (1970) 3 W.L.R. 1078.

72 (1969) 2 W.L.R. 901; (1969) 1 All E.R. 1062 reversing 1 W.L.R. 1190 (Stamp J.) Appd. an appeal, Subnominee Saunders v. Anglia Building Society (Braggs case overruled Carlisle & Banking Co. v. Bragg (1911) 1 K.B. 489 overruled.

one Lee who mortgaged the property gifted to him to a Building Society. The assignor did at all times intend to make a gift of the property to her nephew. On discovering the truth the widow brought an action against both Lee and the Building Society that the assignment was void. This plea succeeded before Stamp J., but the Court of Appeal reversed the judgment and the Master of Rolls pointed out that the mistake as to contents might be just as fundamental as a mistake as to class and character. It was not really a distinction at all. He said "a document takes its class and character from its contents and a mistake as to one is often also a mistake as to the other". The Master of Rolls did not accept the distinction that if a man is mistaken as to the person in whose favour the deed is made, he can rely on non est factum. He said, "...but whatever may be the merits of the rule in contract, I am clear that.....a man cannot plead non est factum simply because he has made a mistake as to the person in whose favour the document was made".

The plaintiff's case was that despite her carelessness in allowing herself to be misled as to the character of the document she signed she was not estopped from maintaining non est factum against the Building Society; Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg relied upon as establishing the rule. The principle was thus stated by the Court of Appeal: "Whenever a man of full age and understanding who can read and write signs a legal document put before him for signature which on its face is intended to have legal consequences, then, if he does not take the trouble to read it, but signs it as it is, relying on the words of another as to its character or contents or effect, he cannot be heard to say that it is not his document when it goes into the hands of one who has in all innocence advanced money on the faith of it being his document". Therefore the plaintiff was held not entitled to succeed on the plea of non est factum. Carlisle's case[73] was held to be wrongly decided. On the case going to the House of Lords this was upheld subnominee Saunders v. Anglia Building Society.[74]

In Saunders v. Anglia Building Society[75] the House of Lords reviewed and restated the law on the subject and the distinction between the character and nature of a document and the contents of the document was rejected as unsatisfactory. It was stressed that the defence of non est factum was not lightly to be allowed where a person of full age and capacity had signed a written document embodying the contract, but allowable so long as the person signing the document had made a fundamental mistake as to the character of effect of the document. The House of Lords concentrated on and emphasised the disparity between the effect of the document actually signed and the document as it was believed to be (rather than on the nature of the mistake stressing that the disparity must be "radical", "sensational", "fundamental" or "very substantial".

Lord Reid said—[76] "The plea of non est factum could not be available to anyone who signed without taking the trouble to find out at least the general effect of the document. Nor could it be available to a person whose mistake was really a mistake as to the legal effect of the document. There must be a radical or fundamental difference between what he signed and what he thought he was signing (pp. 1016,1017).

Said Lord Hodson: "The difference to support a plea of non est factum must be in particular which goes to the substance of the whole consideration or to the root of the matter". (pp. 1018, 1019).

Lord Dilhorne: It is not enough that the signer of the document thought that the document would have a different legal effect from what it has; nor will it suffice if in some respects it departs from what he thought it would contain. The difference must be such that the document signed is entirely or fundamentally different from that which it was thought to be, so that it was never the signer's intention to execute the document (1022).

Per Lord Wilberforce:

---

73 (1911) 1 K. B. 489 (held wrongly decided in (1969) 1 All E.R. 1062).

74 (1971) A.C. 1004; (1970) 3 All E.R. 961.

75 (1971) A.C. 1004. 1017, 1022, 1026; (1970) 3 All E.R. 961. See also Chitty's Law of Contract (24th Ed.) Para 302.

76 Saunders v. Anglia Building Society, 1971 A.C. 1004, 1035; (1970) 3 All E.R. 961; Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Co. v. Bragg (1911) 1 K.B. 489, overruled; Howatson v. Webb (1908) 1 Ch. (C.A.) considered. Decision of the Court of Appeal in (1969) 2 Ch. 17; (1969) 2 W.L.R. 901; (1969) 1 All E.R. 1062 affd.

"A document should be held to be void only when the element of consent to it is totally lacking i.e., when the transaction which the document purports to effect is essentially different in substance or in kind from the transaction intended (1026)".

But these various terms were not defined, the question being treated as one of degree. The House of Lords also held that the essential features of the doctrine as expressed by Byles J., in Foster v. Mackinnon (1869) 4 C.P. 704, 711, have been correctly expressed.

Carelessness.—The House of Lords also held[77] that the essential features of the doctrine as expressed by Byles J., in Foster v. Mackinnon (1869) 4 C.P. 704, 711 have been correctly expressed.

Carelessness.—A ground for decision in Gallie v. Lee[78] was that the plea of non est factum can only succeed if the person raising it was not careless in signing it. The standard of care seems to be a subjective one depending upon the actual capacity of the signer; but even an elderly widow of moderate education should not sign a document without making sure that the transfer is in favour of the right person.

Mistake.—W. bought a car from a dealer and gave him a signed agreement with blanks for figures to be filled in by the dealer believing the documents to be a hire purchase agreement. The dealer instead of filling in the agreed figures filled in wrong figures. Later 'W' received a copy of the document but did not complain; nor did he make any payment. He was held liable for the whole sum as he failed to discharge the burden of proving that, as he acted carelessly. His plea of non est factum failed.[79]

The plaintiff signed an agreement believing it to be a hire-purchase agreement for the purchase of a caravan which was really a simple hire agreement. But the defendants were in no way responsible for the mistake. On the plaintiff falling into arrears the defendants took possession of the caravan and also kept the initial payment. The plaintiff's action for the recovery of initial payment failed because the plaintiff's signatures was not the result of a fraud of the defendant and therefore he was bound by his signature.[80]

If a contract entered into through fraud is not avoided before a third party intervenes and gets an interest in the subject-matter of the contract, a claim to rescind will not lie.[81]

Misrepresentation of title.—Where a husband misrepresented that a house belonged to him, it belonged to him and his wife, and he sold it but the wife refused to give consent to the sale. The purchaser brought an action for damages and the husband pleaded that in the absence of fraud the plaintiff was entitled to loss of costs he had incurred, the court held the defendant liable for damages for misrepresentation.[82]

Misrepresentation of fact or law.—It used to be said in English books that misrepresentation which renders a contract voidable must be of fact; but there does not seem to be really any dogmatic rule as to representations of law. The question would seem on principle to be whether the assertion in question was a mere statement of opinion or a positive assurance—especially if it came from a person better qualified to know—that the law is so and so. It seems probable in England, and there is no doubt here, that at any rate deliberate misrepresentation in matter of law is a cause for avoiding a contract. Where a clause of re-entry contained in a kabuliyat (counterpart of a lease) was represented by a zamindar's agent as a mere penalty clause, the Privy Council held that the misrepresentation was such as vitiated the contract, and the zamindar's suit was dismissed.[83]

---

77 Saunders v. Anglia Building Society, 1971 A.C. 1004, 1035 (1970) 3 All E.R, 961; Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Company v. Bragg (1911) 1 K.B. 489, overruled; Howatson v. Webb (1908) 1 Ch. 1 (C.A.) considered. Decision of the Court of Appeal in (1969) 2 Ch. 17; (1969) 2 W.L.R. 901; (1969) 1 All E.R. 1062 affd.

78 (1971) A. C. 1004; (1970) 3 All E.R. 961

79 United Dominion Trust Ltd. v. Western (1976) Q.B. 513; (1976) 2 W.L.R. 64; (1975) 2 All E.R. 1017; Saunders v. Anglia Building Society (1971) A.C. 1004 folld. This case overruled Carlisle & Banking Co. v. Bragg (1911) K.B. 489

80 Galbraith v. Mitchemall Estate (1965) 2 Q.B. 473 (Q.B.)

81 White v. Garden (1851) 10 C.B. 919; Balacock v. Lawson (1880)5 Q.B.D. 284; Re: L.G. Clarke (1967) Ch. 1121.

82 Watt v. Spence (1975) 2 All E.R. 528, 536.

83 Pertap Chunder v. Mohendranath Purkhait (1889) 16 I.A. 233; 17 Cal. 291.

Misrepresentation as to a question of law.—If a person states his opinion as to the legal position which in fact is not his real opinion, that is a misrepresentation of fact and even an innocent statement of law may do so where it carries an implication of fact which itself is untrue.[84] Therefore a statement by a tenant to his vendee that War regulations applied to the case although he knew that they did not apply was held to be a material representation entitling the vendee to rescind the sale.[85] When a purchaser chooses to rely upon his own judgment or upon that of his agent he cannot afterwards say that he relied upon a previous representation made by the vendor.[86] Onus is on the person alleging misrepresentation to establish it.[87]

Misrepresentation and marriages.—The Bombay High Court in Bai Appibai v. Khimji Cooverji[88] has held that fraudulent misrepresentation or concealment does not affect the validity of a marriage to which the parties had given consent with knowledge of its nature and with the clear and distinct intention of entering into a marriage unless there are threats or duress or an erroneous belief as to the nature of the ceremony and without real consent. The test of validity is whether there was real consent to the marriage.

False representation—Marriage contract.—A statement by a person that the bridegroom was his son, whereas, he was, in fact, an illegitimate son, is a false representation which amounts to a fraud sufficient to make the marriage voidable. A half truth or a partial statement may be as false a statement in effect as if the fact had been misstated altogether.[89]

This was the law before passing of the Hindu Marriage Act and as the Madhya Pradesh case was one under that law, the decision, it is submitted, is erroneous. Even after the Hindu Marriage Act, on the analogy of Christian Marriages a marriage is not an ordinary contract as contemplated in the Contract Act which is voidable at the instance of one of the parties on the grounds mentioned in that Act. The High Court of the Punjab has held that a statement by the bride's father that the bride was a virgin, whereas she had an illegitimate child, is not 'fraud' within s. 12(1)(c) of the Hindu Marriage Act as the word 'fraud' there does not connote the same thing as in s. 17 of the Contract Act, because Hindu marriage is a sacrament and not a contract and s. 12(1) (d) of the latter Act specifically mentions pregnancy at the time of marriage as a ground for avoidance of marriage and fraud is equivalent to "deception".[90]

A Hindu marriage under Hindu Law is not a mere contract in which a consenting mind is indispensable. A minor and even a person of unsound mind can be duly married if the rites are duly performed.[91] The grounds of nullity of marriage under s.12 of Hindu Marriage Act of 1956 are the same as those of the Indian Divorce Act, s. 19. A marriage amongst Christians is a contract but not an ordinary contract which is voidable at the instance of one party on the grounds mentioned in the Contract Act.[92] Under English law, if a person is induced to go through a ceremony of marriage without any real consent to the marriage, it is invalid. In all such cases, the test of validity is whether there was any real consent to the marriage.[93] Unless the party imposed upon has been deceived as to the person and thus had given no consent at all, there is no degree of deception which can avail to set aside a contract of marriage knowingly made.[94]

Fraud as a ground for avoiding a marriage is limited to such fraud as procures the ap-

---

84 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.), para 356.

85 Qudaille v. Lawson (1922) N.Z.L.R. 259. See also West London Commercial Bank v. Kitson (1884) 13 Q.B.D. 360; Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Canada (1943) A.C. 468. (Representation that A's shares are pledged to B.)

86 Holmes v. Jones (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1692, 1702, 1709, 1711; Lysney v. Selby, 2 Raym. (1d) 1118; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1, 15.

87 Kuppuswami v. Arumugam (1967) A.SC. 1395.

88 60 Bom. 455; 1936 A.B. 138, 144.

89 Bimla Bai v. Shankar Lal (1959) A.MP. 8. (A case of pre-Hindu Marriage Act); Peek v. Gurney (1873) 6 H.L. Cas. 377 reld. on.

90 Harbhajan Singh v. Smt. Brij Ballabh (1964) A. Punj. 361; Kshatish Chandra v. Emp. (1937) A. Cal. 214 reld. on. Raghunath v. Vijaya, (1972) A.P. 132 (misrepresentation about health of a girl).

91 Venkatacharyulu v. Rangacharyulu, 14 Mad. 316.

92 Mt. Titli v. Alfred Robert Jones (1934) A.A. 273; Harbhajan Singh v. Smt. Brij Ballabh (1964) A. Punj. 359.

93 Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd Ed.) Vol. 19, p. 776.

94 Swift v. Kelly (1835) 3 Kn. 257; 12 E.R. 648.

pearance without the reality of consent.[95] It must be inconsistent with the idea of there having been a real or intelligent consent by one of the parties. It must be such as has procured the form without the substance of agreement.[96] A false representation by a Hindu that he had been converted to Christianity and was a bachelor would amount to fraud entitling the innocent party to sue for divorce even if a nullity of marriage was denied to her.[97] In Hindu Law, if the marriage rites are duly performed and there is no impediment to the marriage, the doctrine of factum valet applies and makes the marriage indissoluble in the absence of proof of any force or fraud.[98] The reason for the exception is that where a girl is abducted by force or fraud and married, there is neither any gift nor the performance of religious rites.[99]

Difference Between claim for Damages and for Rescission.—The difference between a claim for damages and suit for rescission is this. In the former case the contract is left in tact and the suit is to enforce it and substitutes money damages for performance. In the latter case the object is to avoid performance of the contract. Hence any order made on rescission should have as its object the restoration of the parties to their original position. The idea is restitutio in integrum and the parties to be restored to status quo ante.[1]

Award of damages in place of rescission.—Where a person has entered into a contract after a misrepresentation otherwise than fraudulently made to him as a result of which he suffers loss, and the claim is for rescission of the contract, the Court may declare the contract subsisting and award damages in lieu of rescission if rescission would cause undue loss to the other side.[2]

Estoppel.—A statement made by a person with the intention that it should be acted upon and which is acted upon is estopped from contesting its truth even though it is not fraudulently made.[3]

Right to rescind when lost.—A right to rescind for misrepresentation can be lost in a variety of ways, some depending on the right of election. A representee on discovering the truth loses his right to rescind if once he has elected not to rescind. But he may lose even before he has made any election[4] where by reason of his conduct or other circumstances it would be unjust or inequitable that he retains the right. For instance where third parties have acquired rights under the contract; again where it would be unjust to the representor because it is impossible to restore him to his original position. Restitutio in integrum is not only a consequence of rescission, its possibility is indispensable to the right to rescind. Again delay in election may make it unjust to others that the right to elect should continue. For this reason the right to rescission for misrepresentation in general must be promptly exercised particularly in transactions regarding company shares. But no question of affirmation arises unless the representee knows of his right to elect to avoid or affirm.

A claim for rescission can be lost by failure to act promptly.[5]

If third party rights intervene by acquiring interest in the subject matter of the contract rescission will not lie provided the third party acted in good faith and gave consideration. This rule operates in all classes of misrepresentations unless the effect of the misrepresentation is to make it void for mistake.[6]

---

95 Moss v. Moss (1897) p. 263.
96 Consterdine v. Smaine (1918) L. Bur. 83; 47 I.C. 544.
97 Vermani v. Vermani (1943) Lah. 51; (1943) A.L. 51.
98 Brindaban v. Chandra Kurmokar, 12 Cal. 140.
99 Kshatish Chandra v. Emperor (1937) A. Cal. 214 (F.B.) quoted with approval in Harbhajan Singh v. Smt. Brij Ballab (1964) A. Punj. 359, 362.
1 Contract Cases & Commentaries by Christine Boyle & D.R. Percy (1978) Ed.) p. 281.
2 Cheshire & Fifoot: Cases on the Law of Contract (7th Ed.) page 209.
3 Low v. Bouverie (1891) 3 Ch. 82.
4 Coastal Estates Pty. Ltd. v. Melevende (1965) V.R. 433, 451.
5 Leaf v. International Galleries (a firm) (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693.
6 White v. Garden (1851) 10 C.B. 919 Babcock v. Lawson (1880) 5 Q.B.D. 284.

Voidability of agreement without free consent.

19. When consent to an agreement is caused by coercion[7] fraud or misrepresentation, the agreement is a contract voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused.

A party to a contract, whose consent was caused by fraud or misrepresentation, may, if he thinks fit, insist that the contract shall be performed,[8] and that he shall be put in the position in which he would have been if the representations made had been true.

Exception.—If such consent was caused by misrepresentation or by silence, fraudulent within the meaning of section 17, the contract, nevertheless, is not voidable, if the party whose consent was so caused had the means of discovering the truth with ordinary diligence.[9]

Explanation.—A fraud of misrepresentation which did not cause the consent to a contract of the party on whom such fraud was practised, or to whom such misrepresentation was made, does not render a contract voidable.

Illustrations

(a) A, intending to deceive B, falsely represents that 500 maunds of indigo are made annually at A's factory, and thereby induces B to buy the factory. The contract is voidable at the option of B.

(b) A, by a misrepresentation, leads B erroneously to believe that 500 maunds of indigo are made annually at A's factory. B examines the accounts of the factory, which shows that only 400 maunds of indigo have been made. After this B buys the factory. The contract is not voidable on account of A's misrepresentation.

(c) A fraudulently informs B that A's estate is free from encumbrance. B thereupon buys the estate. The estate is subject to a mortgage. B may either avoid the contract, or may insist on its being carried out, and the mortgaged-debt redeemed.[10]

(d) B, having discovered a vein of ore on the estate of A, adopts means to conceal, and does conceal, the existence of the ore from A. Through A's ignorance B is enabled to buy the estate at an under-value. The contract is voidable at the option of A.

(e) A is entitled to succeed to an estate at the death of B; B dies; C, having received intelligence of B's death, prevents the intelligence reaching A, and thus induces A to sell him his interest in the estate. The sale is voidable at the option of A.

Scope of the section.—The section states the legal effect of coercion, fraud, and misrepresentation, in rendering contracts procured by them voidable;[11] the foregoing sections have only laid down their respective definitions. Perhaps the most important parts of the section, certainly those which need the most careful attention, are the exception and the explanation. These mark, though hardly with practical completeness, the limits within which the rule is applied. Before considering them we have to pause on the second paragraph of the body of the section. It reads plainly enough at first sight, but the thought does not seem to be really

---

7 In s. 19, the words "undue influence" have here been omitted, being repealed by the Indian Contract Act (Amendment Act) 1899 (VI of 1899), s.3.

8 The same contract; he cannot set up a different one in the same suit: Mahmad v. Ramappa (1929) 119 I.C. 684; 1929 A,N. 254 (a mortgage case, connection with general contract law remote).

9 This question is rather frequent in disputes arising from a defect of title on the sale of immovable property, e.g., Harilal Dalsukhram v. Mulchand (1928) 52 Bom. 883; 113 I.C. 27; 1928 A.B. 427.

10 Under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 55 (g), the seller, not having sold subject to encumbrances, is bound to discharge the encumbrance, independently of any question of fraud.

11 Fraud in the performance of a contract is no ground for rescission: Jamsetji v. Hirjibhai (1913) 17 Bom. L.R. 158, 169; Fazal v. Mangaldas (1921) 46 Bom. 489, 508; 66 I.C. 726. The principle is obvious; when a man is once bound to perform an enforceable promise, any further inducement or encouragement to do so is gratuitous and immaterial, and he cannot complain if any expectation raised in this manner is disappointed. On the other side, a promisor either performs his promise or not; if not, the breach of contract is the same whether his conduct has been honest or fraudulent (though fraud may have other consequences outside the contract in criminal or bankruptcy jurisdiction). It must be remembered that an act done as the consideration for an offered promise is not the performance of a contract, for there is no contract until it is done, and the foregoing observation does not apply to it. The option which characterises a voidable contract is an option either to say "it shall not be enforceable at all" or to leave it as a good contract enforceable by any party on the usual conditions: Murlidhar v. International Film Co., 1943 A.P.C. 34 at p. 39.

clear. The party entitled to set aside a voidable contract may affirm it if he thinks fit. That is involved in the conception of a contract being voidable. And if he affirms it, he may require the performance of the whole and every part of it (subject to the performance in due order of whatever may have to be performed on his own part) or, in default thereof, damages for non-performance (subject to special causes of excuse, if any, which we are not now considering). If, as may well be the case, the default is wholly or partly due to the non-existence of facts which the defaulting party represented as existing, this party can obviously not set up the untruth of his own statement by way of defence or mitigation; and, if the case is a proper one for specific performance, and if it is in his power to perform the contract fully, though with much greater cost and trouble than if his statement had been originally true, he will have to perform it accordingly.[12] Is anything more than this meant by the declaration of the affirming party's right to "be put in the position in which he would have been if the representations made had been true"?[13] A voidable contract is one in which by making an election one or more parties have the power to avoid the legal relations created by the contract, or by ratification of the contract to extinguish the power of avoidance.[14] "...In English law, contracts may be voidable, e.g., for misrepresentation, duress, undue influence, infancy, lunacy or drunkenness. If the contract is wholly executory, the party entitled to avoid the contract need do nothing: he can wait until he is sued and then plead the voidability of the contract. But if the contract has been partly executed, the right to avoid it must usually be exercised promptly, in the interests of the other party and of third parties; and until the right is exercised, the contract is valid, and things done under it cannot afterwards be undone. Thus if a contract for the sale of goods is voidable for fraud (without being void for mistake), the fraudulent party may acquire a valid title to the goods which he can transfer to an innocent purchaser for value."[15]

There are obviously many cases in which such restitution is not literally possible. Thus, if the owner of an estate subject to a lease for an unexpired term contracts to sell it to a purchaser who requires immediate possession, and conceals the existence of the lease,[16] the purchaser cannot be put in the same position as if the representation that there was no tenancy, or only such a tenancy as could be determined at will, had been true. Cases may occur, on the other hand, where a seller of land has held out, though not in express terms or wilfully, an element of attractiveness or security in the property offered for sale which it is in his power to realise by some act or undertaking on or with regard to adjoining property of his own. In such a case there is English authority for saying that he can enforce the contract only on the terms of making good what he has represented.[17] But it is dangerous to formulate general propositions in the law of contract from decisions in suits for the specific performance of contracts relating to land, and it is not clear that the facts of the decision in question are not reducible to misrepresentation or an ambiguous offer. Nor is it certain that the present enactment can always be literally relied on. A sells a house to B, and by some blunder of A's agent the annual value is represented as being Rs. 2,000 when it is in truth only Rs. 1,000. According to the letter of the present paragraph, B, may insist on completing the contract and on having the difference between the actual and the stated value paid to him and his successors in title by A and A's successors in title for all time. Nothing short of that will put him "in the position in which he would have been if the representations made had been true." This is obviously not the intention of the enactment.

---

12 See the Specific Relief Act, 1963, s. 13. Quaere whether this clause can usefully be applied as a measure of money compensation, see Sorabshah Pestinji v. Secy. of State (1927) 109 I.C. 141; 29 Bom. L.R. 1535; 1928 A.B. 17, but this seems a simple case of the party having lost his claim, if any, to rescind the contract by delay.

13 The Indian Law Commissioners' draft was curiously worded (cl. 6): "A person who, either knowingly, or ignorantly, makes a false representation whereby he induces another to enter into a contract with him, is bound to place the other in the same position as if the representation had been true, and in default of his doing so the contract is voidable at the option of the person who has been misled." This, literally read, says that the contract is voidable only if the representation, besides having been untrue when made, cannot be subsequently made good. Such a restriction of the misled party's rights is, we believe, unknown to the law.

14 Restatement of contracts, para 13. Chitty on Contract, Vol. 1, para 16 (24th Ed.).

15 Chitty: on Contracts (24th Edn.). para 16. But see s. 11 for infancy, lunacy or drunkenness.

16 Morgan v. Government of Haidarabad (1888) 11 Mad. 419.

17 Baskcomb v. Beckwith (1869) L.R. 8 Eq. 100. See s. 13 of Specific Relief Act of 1963 below.

Restitutio in integrum.—If a fraudulent misrepresentation is made the innocent party is entitled to rescinding of the contract and damages. Thus where an ironmonger's business was purchased by the plaintiff[18] at an exaggerated price in consequence of false representation, the Court allowed the rescission of the contract and damages for deceit based on tort and not on breach of contract, the proper measure being compensation for loss upto the final disposal of the business less any benefit received.

Misrepresentation.—But where a buyer on obtaining the earning capacity of the mines to be purchased from the owners had it checked and after the contractor found the figures to be wrong, his action of rescinding the contract failed as he had not relied on the sellers figures.[19]

A promised his fiancee that after marriage he will give an allowance of half of what his father gave him annually i.e., half of £1000/-. The father died after the marriage leaving 'A' £30,000 a year but 'A' misrepresented an income of £1000 a year. 'A' and his wife separated and wife's maintenance remained on husband's misrepresentation. They by agreement destroyed their letters to each other. The wife on discovering the true income sought to have the agreement rescinded. The husband resisted pleading that the wife had spent the money. The Court of Appeal rescinded the agreement holding that a Court of Equity will do what is practically just even though it cannot restore the parties to the position they were in.[20]

In Newbigging v. Adam[21] it was said by Cotton L.J. that "there ought to be a giving back and a taking back on both sides. "Thus the remedy will not lie if the parties are unable to make restitutio in integrum. Crompton J. explained the principle thus: when a party "exercises his option to rescind the contract, he must be in a state to rescind; that is he must be in such a situation as to be able to put the parties into their original state before the contract.[22] Thus rescission restores status quo ante and the House of Lords upheld the judgment. The House of Lords in appeal in Adam's case[23] said that because Col. Newbigging entered into a bona fide concern solvent and profitable and continued in that delusion till he finds out that he was deluded he cannot be without a remedy.

In Adam v. Newbigging[24] even though the business was insolvent and no longer going, it was held that restitutio in integrum had not become impossible and the contract was rescinded although the plaintiff entered the concern and continued in it till he found out.

The House of Lords in the case[25] of a lease of mines refused to set aside the lease on the ground of misrepresentation of the owner as the mines had been substantially worked and it was impossible to restore the parties to their original positions. So the owner was entitled to receive the balance of the money due from the lessee.

What further relief is to be granted after the rescission of a sale on the ground of misrepresentation was considered in Brown v. Smit.[26] Ordinarily rescission is granted when the parties can be restored to substantially the same position as they were in before the contract was made,[27] but as Lord Blackburn said in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co.[28]

> "...the practice has always been for a Court of Equity to give this relief by the exercise of its powers, it can do what is practically just, though it cannot restore the parties precisely to the state they were in before the contract."

and this was done in Cooper v. Phibbs.[29]

---

18 Doyle v. Olby (Ironmongers) Ltd. (1969) 2 Q.B. 158.
19 Allwood v. Small (1838) 6 Ch. & Fin 232; 49 R.R. 115.
20 Hulton v. Hulton (1917) 1 K.B. 813.
21 (1886) 34 Ch. D. 582, 595, on app. (1888) 13 App. Cas. 308, 317.
22 Clarke v. Dickson (1858) 27 L.J.Q.B. 223; 113 R.R. 483.
23 Adam v. Newbigging (1888) 12 App. Cas. 308. 317.
24 Ibid.
25 Vigeors v. Pike (1840-42) 8 Ch. & F 562. (See also Chitty (24th ed) Para 401).
26 (1924) 34 C.L.R. 160.
27 Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1119.
28 (1878) App. Cas. 1218; Garrard v. Frankel (1862) 30 Beav. 445; Paget v. Marshall (1884) 28 Ch.D. 255.
29 (1867) 2 H.L. 149

It was held that on the parties being relieved of contractual obligations each must give back what he obtained under the contract. Where restitution is not possible there can be no rescission. But where there is improvement or deterioration equity adjusts the rights of parties by awarding money compensation to bring about status quo but subject to all just allowances. It means putting them back in the position they were before the contract, not in all respects but only in respect of the rights and obligations created by the contract which is rescinded.[30] A party exercising his option to rescind is entitled to be restored as far as possible to his former position.[31] This doctrine would not justify "improving the vendor out of his estate" or rendering it impossible for him to recover it. Again allowance for improvements which were matters of taste or personal enjoyment could not be justified.[32] But limitation of restitutio in integrum must not be strictly construed and mere deterioration does not destroy the right.[33]

The principle of restitutio in integrum does not require that a person must be placed in the same position as before; it means he must be placed in as good a position as before. The Courts are more inclined to give restitution in cases of fraud than in cases of innocent misrepresentation.[34] In Hulton v. Hulton the Court rescinded a separation—deed obtained by the husband fraudulently and refused to order the wife to repay sums already received and because husband had received benefits under the deed—freedom from molestation and from proceedings is of restitution of conjugal rights.[35]

Rescission of a contract of partnership—misrepresentation.—Where after the plaintiff a newly made partner in a firm had an opportunity to discover the falsity of the representation and did not affirm the contract but elected to rescind it within a short time, he would not be debarred from seeking the rescission of the contract and for recovery of the money paid for his share of the contract. It would be manifestly unfair if in those circumstances, the mere fact of becoming a partner would debar the plaintiff from relief of rescission and recovery of money. It would be so even if he had made a wrong statement in a document of having seen the books and accounts and the balance sheet of the firm.[35a] The more important question in cases such as these is not whether contract is executed or executory but whether restitutio in integrum is to be restored to original position is substantially possible and whether rescission is timely and just and fair.[35b]

There is an important class of cases in which, although there is no such misrepresentation as to make the contract voidable, complete performance is, by reason of misdescription or otherwise, unattainable, and specific performance will be decreed subject to compensation for the defect. It was originally proposed to deal with such cases in the Contract Act. The enactment governing them is now to be found in the Specific Relief Act, of 1963 s. 12(2); see the comments thereon below.

Suit by representatives.—The option of avoiding a contract procured in any of the ways mentioned in ss. 19, 19A, is exercisable by the party's representatives unless at the date of his death he had lost it by acquiescence or otherwise. It is rather surprising that the High Court of Bombay should have been called upon to reject an apparently serious argument to the contrary.[36]

---

30 Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. (1878) 3 App. Cas. 1218, 1278; Brown v. Smit (1924) 34 C.L.R. 160, 164; Senanayake v. Cheng (1965) 3 W.L.R. 715, 729 (P.C.); Satgur Prasad v. Har Narain 59 I.A. 147; (1932) A.PC. 89.

31 Kerr on Fraud & Mistake (6th ED.) 469 quoted with approval by Privy Council in Satgur Prasad v. Har Narain, 59 I.A. 147; (1932) A.PC. 89.

32 Brown v. Smit (1924) 34 C.L.R. 160, 165; Mill v. Hill (1852) 3 H.L.C. 328; Kerr on Fraud and Mistake (4th Ed.) 372.

33 Armstrong v. Jackson (1917) 2 K.B. 822, 829; Alati v. Kruger (1955) 94 C.L.R. 216; Brown v. Smit (1924) 34 C.L.R. 160.

34 Chitty: On Contracts (24th Ed.) para 401; Spence v. Crawford (1939) 3 All E.R. 271.

35 (1917) 1 K.B. 81.

35a Senanayake v. Cheng (1965) 3 W.L.R. 715 at page 729 (P.C.); Mangi Lal v. Appellate Tribunal of State Transport (1957) A. Raj. 167 (Consent by fraud or misrepresentation).

35b Senanayake v. Cheng (1965) 3 W.L.R. 715 at page 729 (P.C.). See Satgur Prasad v. Har Narain Das, 59 I.A. 147; (1932) A.PC. 89.

36 Sharvan Goba v. Kashiram Devji (1926) 51 Bom. 133; 100 I.C. 932. The head-note has the effect of

Exception: Means of discovering truth.—The exception is wider—we must suppose deliberately so—than the corresponding English authorities.[37] In England the principle is that if a man makes a positive statement to another, intending it to be relied on, he must not complain that the other need not have relied upon it. "The purchaser is induced to make a less accurate examination by the representation, which he had a right to believe".[38] The test is not whether the party might have inquired for himself but whether he did inquire and trust his own inquiries rather than the representation,[39] and so far is this doctrine from being confined to cases of actual fraud that there is no decisive or recent authority for not applying it even to cases where the misrepresentation consists only in failing to disclose some fact which ought to be disclosed. When a purchaser chooses to rely upon his own judgment or of his agent he cannot afterwards say that he relied upon a previous representation made by the vendor.[40] No doubt there may be a question whether the party alleged to have misrepresented a fact really said, "I tell you it is so," or only "I think you will find it so." This question will, according to the circumstances, be of the construction of particular words, or of the inferences to be drawn from words and conduct. Again, the possession of obvious means of knowledge may lead, in some cases, to a fair inference that those means were used and relied on. But still the real point to be considered is whether the party misled did put his trust in the representation made to him of which he complains, or in other information of his own. In the latter case the misrepresentation did not really cause his consent. In other words, the present Exception, so far as allowed by English law, is logically nothing but a branch of the following Explanation. However, the words of the Exception are perfectly clear. If, as seems not altogether improbable,[41] they were not intended to alter the English rule, they were chosen with singular infelicity. It will be observed that the Exception does not apply to cases of active fraud as distinguished from misrepresentation which is not fraudulent.[42] The words "fraudulent within the meaning of s. 17" go with the word "silence" and not "misrepresentation".[43] Exception to s. 19 applies to active misrepresentation or silence amounting to fraud within s. 17 but does not cover a case of fraud under s. 17(3).[44] It has been held that if a person desirous of selling property causes letters to be written to him in which fictitious offers at high prices are made with the sole purpose of showing it to an intending purchaser, the making and exhibiting of such letters to the purchaser and thus inducing him to purchase the property amounts to fraud within the meaning of s.17, and the case does not fall within the Exception to s. 19.[45] A vendor of a house and land knew that the purchaser wanted immediate possession, and, while admitting that the property was occupied by a tenant, first concealed the fact that the tenant had a lease, and then pretended that the lease was forfeited; the purchaser was entitled to rescind the contract, although he might have ascertained by independent inquiry what the tenant's interest really was.[46] Where the vendor not only failed to disclose his having leased the land, which was being suggesting, quite wrongly, that the Court had some doubt on this point: it did, for abundant caution, add other reasons. And see notes to s. 16, "Rights of legal representatives", above; Rash Behari Naskar v. Haripada Naskar, 1934 A. Cal. 762; 59 Cal. L.J. 387; 152 I.C. 561; Mst. Manbhari v. Sri Ram (1936) All. L.J. 1215; 165 I.C. 240; 1936 A.A. 672.

---

37 See John Minas Apcar v. Louis Caird Malchus (1939) 1 Cal. 389, at p. 398; 184 I.C. 321; A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 473, per Lort-Williams J.

38 Dyer v. Hargrave (1805) 10 Ves. 505, 510; 8 R.R. 35, 39.

39 Redgrave v. Hurd (1881) 20 Ch.D. 1.

40 Holmes v. Jones (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1692, 1702, 1709, 1711; Lysney v. Selby, 2 Raym (1d) 1118; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch.D. 1, 15.

41 At least the reading out of conditions of sale in English does not constitute means of discovering the truth for a buyer who does not understand English, and such a buyer at a sale under the direction of the Court is entitled to rely on statements made by the auctioneer in the presence and hearing of the chief clerk in charge: Mahomed Kala Mea v. Harperink (1908) 36 I.A. 32; 36 Cal. 323. See also Rustomji v. Vinayak (1910) 35 Bom. 29, at p. 34.

42 See Abdulla Khan v. Girdhari Lal (1904) Punj. Rec. No. 49.

43 Niaz Ahmad Khan v. Parshotam Chandra (1930) 53 All. 374; 129 I.C. 545; 1931 A.A. 154; John Minas Apcar v. Louis Caird Malchus, supra, note, 39.

44 Niranjan v. Tirilochan Kuar (1956) A. Or. 81; Niaz Ahmad Khan v. Parshotam Chandra, 53 All. 374; 1931 A.A. 154; Venkataratnam v. Sivaramudu, 1940 A.M. 560; J.M. Apcar v. L.C. Malchus (1939) 1 Cal. 389; (1939) A. Cal. 473.

45 John Minas Apcar v. Louis Caird Malchus, supra.

46 Morgan v. Government of Haidarabad (1888) 11 Mad. 419, 439. See also Jogendra Nath v. Chandra Kumar (1915) 42 Cal. 28, at p. 34; 24 I.C. 193.

sold, but stated that immediate possession would be delivered, the sale is voidable and the defence of the absence of due diligence under exception to s. 19 by the vendee is not open to the vendor.[47] A person purchased a decree obtained in favour of an insolvent from the Official Assignee for 20 per cent of its face value by representing that the decree was practically unrealisable although he knew that satisfactory security had been given for the full amount of the decree. The Official Assignee was held entitled to rescind the contract.[48] A false statement that the property to be sold was free from mortgage does not fall under Exception to s. 19 and the contract is voidable at the instance of the vendee on account of fraud.[49] One agent cannot be said to have knowledge of fraud because the principal has vicarious knowledge of fraud on account of the knowledge of another agent.[50] Therefore a Tahsildar conducting a court sale cannot be said to have knowledge of fraud because of the knowledge of the Government Pleader.[51]

The ordinary diligence of which the Exception speaks may be taken to be such diligence as a prudent man would consider appropriate to the matter, having regard to the importance of the transaction in itself and of the representation in question as affecting its results. A possibility of discovering the truth by inquiries involving trouble or expense out of proportion to the value of the whole subject-matter would not, it is conceived, be "means of discovering the truth with ordinary diligence." In Re Nursery Spinning and Weaving Co.,[52] (see notes on s. 18, sub-s. 3, above), it was contended on behalf of the company that the exception to s.19 was applicable to that case, and that the bank could have discovered with ordinary diligence that the company was not liable on a bill drawn by its secretary, treasurer, and agent. Sargent J. said: "No ordinary diligence would have enabled the bank to discover that the company was not liable on this bill. The form of the bill would naturally lead the bank, as it admittedly did lead the bank to suppose that it was the company's bill as represented, and the discovery could only be made by persons trained in the law and after a careful examination of legal authorities." But where a purchaser of rice stored up at a place to which he had an easy access refused to take delivery on the ground that the rice was of an inferior quality to that contracted for, it was held that he could not rescind the contract, for he could have discovered the inferiority of the quality by using "ordinary diligence".[53]

Explanation: as to "causing consent."—The principle of the caution given here is obvious. A false representation, whether fraudulent or innocent, is merely irrelevant if it has not induced the party to whom it was made to act upon it by entering into a contract or otherwise.[54] He cannot complain of having been misled by a statement which did not lead him at all. In the common phrase of English textbooks, the representation must be definable as dans locum contractui, bringing about the contract. Hence an attempt to deceive which has not in fact deceived the party can have no legal effect on the contract, not because it is not wrong in the eye of the law, but because there is no damage. This rule is applicable where a seller of specific goods purposely conceals a fault by some contrivance, in order that the buyer may not discover it if he inspects the goods, but the buyer does not in fact make any inspection.[55] "Misrepresentation which does not affect conduct cannot create liabilities".[56] In particular cases it may be hard to determine whether a certain representation was in fact relied upon so that it can be said to have caused consent to the contract. In English law if the representation was one of the inducing causes, it is immaterial that it was not the sole inducing cause.[57] This 47 Venkataratnam v. Sivaramudu (1940) A.M. 560. Contra Harilal Dilsukhram v. Mulchand, 52 Bom. 883; 1928 A.B. 427 dist.; Governor of Orissa v. Shiv Prasad (1963) A. Or. 217 (a case of innocent representation).

48 Subramanian Chetti v. Official Assignee, 1931 A.M. 603; 133 I.C. 372.

49 Ganpat v. Mangilal (1962) A.MP. 144.

50 Bappu Rowther v. State of Kerala (1964) A. Ker. 109; See also Gordon Hill Trust Ltd v. Segall (1941) 2 All E.R. 379; Armstrong v. Strain (1952) 1 K.B. 232.

51 Bappu Rowther v. State of Kerala (1964) A. Ker. 109.

52 (1880) 5 Bom. 92.

53 Shoshi Mohan Pal v. Nobo Kristo (1878) 4 Cal. 801.

54 Mithoolal v. Life Insurance Corporation (1962) A.SC. 814; (1962) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 571; Hindustan General Insurance Society Ltd. v. Punam Chand (1974) 2 Cal. 496, (1971) A. Cal. 285, 289.

55 Horsfall v. Thomas (1862) 1.H. & C. 90; 130 R.R. 394.

56 Anson, Law of Contract, 18th ed., p. 195; 22nd Ed., p. 212.

57 Edgington v. Fitzmaurice (1885) 29 Ch.D. 459. P was induced to take debentures in a company partly because of a misstatement in a prospectus issued by D. and partly because of his own mistaken belief question, where it arises, is a question not of law, but of fact,[58] on which the character of the statement made and the probability that it would influence a reasonable man's determination may be taken into account. "If it is proved that the defendants with a view to induce the plaintiff[59] to enter into a contract made a statement to the plaintiff to such a nature as would be likely to induce a person to enter into a contract, and it is proved that the plaintiff did enter in to the contract, it is a fair inference of fact that he was induced to do so by the statement.... Its weight as evidence must greatly depend upon the degree to which the action of the plaintiff was likely, and on the absence of all other grounds on which the plaintiff might act".[60] There is no rule of law that any particular kind of statement is necessarily material in some cases and immaterial in others. In general one man's money is as good as another's, and in a contract of loan the lender's personality is different to the borrower; but where a money-lender who has acquired an evil repute for hard dealing in his own name advertises and lends money in assumed names, it is a permissible inference of fact that the concealment of his identity was a fraud inducing the borrower to contract with him.[61] The fact that a person has taken pains to falsify or conceal a fact is cogent evidence that to him at any rate that fact appeared material, and the falsification or concealment an important condition of obtaining the other party's consent. A man who has so acted cannot afterwards turn round and say, "It could have made no difference if you had known the truth." A special condition restricting enquiries into title of the vendor (like that under s. 44(2) of the Law of Property Act, 1925) is no bar to a claim for rescission where the purchaser discovers from other sources defects, liable to render the title worthless, unless the vendor discloses to the purchaser defects which he knows or ought to have known. A purchaser ought to have known defects, like an authorised subletting and alterations, which make forfeiture a possibility.[62]

Illustrations.—There is nothing calling for particular comment in the illustrations to this section, except that the case put in illustration (c) would now be more simply disposed of under the specific provisions of the Transfer of Property Act; see the note on it above.

Avoidance of a voidable contract.—When a voidable contract is said to be avoided it does not mean that the contract never existed, but that it ceased to exist from the moment of avoidance. By innocent misrepresentation, or in the case of insurance, non-disclosure, it is not that there is no consent at all, but that the party would not have consented if he had the facts before him.[63] A voidable transfer until avoided is valid and therefore a third party acquires a good title in the meantime if he takes without notice (transaction induced by fraud). If the defrauded party by express words or unequivocal contract affirms the contract his election is determined for ever.[64] There is a clear distinction between fraudulent misrepresentation as to character of a document and as to its contents. The former is void and the latter is merely voidable.[65]

By purchasing a railway ticket, a contract to carry the buyer's luggage comes into existence. The buying of a half ticket by misrepresentation make the contract voidable and not void ab initio. Therefore, the liability of the railway in regard to the luggage received for car-that debenture holders would have a charge upon the property of the company. D pleaded that one of the inducements operating on P's mind was his own mistake, but P was allowed to rescind.

---

58 Currie v. Rennick (1886) Punj. Rec. No. 41.

59 Of course the positions of the party having made the statement and the party to whom it was made, as plaintiff and defendant, will depend on the form in which each case comes before the Court: the suit may be to enforce or to rescind the contract, or (as in the case now cited) to recover damages for the wrong of deceit.

60 Smith v. Chadwick (1884) 9 App. Ca. 187, at p. 196 (Lord Blackburn).

61 Gordon v. Street (1899) 2 Q.B. 641, C.A.

62 Becker v. Patridge (1966) 2 W.L.R. 803. In re Haedicke & Lipski's Contract (1901) 2 Ch. 666; Bousfield v. Hodges (1863) 33 Beav. 90, 94.

63 Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853. Cf. Sundara Rao v. C.I.T. (1957) I.T.R. 449; (1957) A.M. 451. See also discussion of this topic, infra.

64 Ningawwa v. Byrappa (1968) A. SC. 956, 958; Clough v. L.N.W. Ry. (1871) 7 Ex. 26, 34, refd. to; Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853.

65 Ningawwa v. Byrappa (1968) A.SC. 956; Foster v. Machinon (1869) 4 C.P. 704 refd. to; This case was followed in Sanni Bibi v. Siddik Hossain (1919) A. Cal. 728; and in Brindaban v. Dhurba (1929) A Cal. 606; Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853.

riage of such a passenger is a liability as a bailee which arises under s. 74 of the Railways Act.[66]

The Madras High Court has held that a voidable contract when avoided at the instance of a party affected thereby takes effect from the date of the transaction and not when it is avoided. In law, it is as if the transaction had never taken place. It cannot be regarded as an alienation which is perfect till it is set aside.[67] But a transfer which is valid remains valid till avoided, but a transaction which is void ab initio must be deemed to have never taken place. It is not to be regarded as valid till it is set aside. There is a clear distinction between a fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of a document and as to its contents. Where the misrepresentation is both the transaction is wholly void.[68]

Where a document which was intended to be in favour of a particular person but was as a result of fraud of the defendant, conveyed to some one else the transaction would be voidable under s.19.[69]

The Supreme Court in licensing a case under the Export & Import (Control) Act held that a licence obtained by misrepresentation does not make it non est so that goods imported are deemed to be without a licence in contravention of s. 3 of the Act inviting the application of cl. (8) of s. 167 of the Sea Customs Act.[70] Assuming that the principles of the law of contract apply to licences under the Import & Export (Control) Act, s. 3, a licence obtained by fraud is only voidable. It is good till avoided in the manner prescribed by law.[71] It is submitted that the Madras, Sundara Rao's case[72] was not a case of contract and the rights of third parties were not involved. The question was one under the Income-tax Act as to whether tax was exigible from the date when the transaction was avoided by a decree of court or from the date when the transaction was effected and it was held from the latter date. The transaction in Satgur's case was not regarded merely as a contract voidable at the option of the plaintiff but it was in effect a conveyance under which title had passed to the defendant and the matter was viewed both as a contract and as one under s. 88 of the Trusts Act. Both the courts in India had found that the defendant stood in a fiduciary relation to the plaintiff. And finally the doctrine of restitutio in integrum was applied.[73] The pronouncement of the Supreme Court in the East India Commercial Company v. Collector of Customs[74] accepts the principle that misrepresentation does not make a contract non est but is only voidable. That was also the Court's view in Ningawwa v. Byrappa.[75]

This pronouncement of the Supreme Court, it is submitted, is in consonance with the decision of cases decided in England that if the contract has been partly executed, it must be avoided promptly and until the right is exercised, the contract is valid and things done under it cannot afterwards be undone.[76]

Plea of fraudulent representation in written Statement.—If a suit is brought by a party to enforce a contract the defrauded party can pray for avoiding the contract in his written statement being well within the period of limitation and it is not necessary for him to bring a suit to avoid the contract.[77]

---

66 Union of India v. Benode Kumar (1962) A. Cal. 48; 64 C.W.N. 878.

67 Sundara Rao v. C.I.T. (1957) 31 I.T.R. 449; 1957 A.M. 451; Vishwara Rao v. Suryarao, 59 Mad. 666; (1936) A.M. 440 refd. to (an alienation is perfect till set aside) doubted in Maynes H.L. 508 (11th Ed.); Satgur Prasad v. Harnarain Das, 59 I.A. 147; 1932 A.P.C. 89; 7 Luck. 64 (Case of fraud—restoration to the former position). Contra Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853. See post.

68 Pratap v. Puniya Bai (1977) A.MP. 108, 110. Ningawwa v. Byrappa Shidappa (1968) A.SC. 956 folld: (1968) 2 SCR 797.

69 Havildar Singh v. Aditya Singh (1978) A.P. 266.

70 East India Commercial Co. v. Collector of Customs (1962) A.SC. 1893 (Sarkar J. contra). See Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853.

71 East India Commercial Co. v. Collector of Customs (1962) A. SC. 1893.

72 Sundara Rao v. C.I.T. (1957) 31 I.T.R. 449; (1957) A.M. 451.

73 Satgur Prashad v. Harnaraindas, 59 I.A. 147; 1932 P.C. 89.

74 (1962) A.SC. 1893.

75 (1968) A.SC. 956, 958; Partap v. Puniyabai (1977) A.MP. 108, 110.

76 Chitty on Contract (24th Ed.) para. 16; see Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 853.

77 Gosto Behari Roy v. Ramesh Chandra Das (1978) A. Cal. 235, 238.

Gift right to revoke survives to Legal Representatives.—Where a gift is induced by fraud, misrepresentation or undue influence the right to have it rescinded survives to the legal representations and does not die with the death of the donor.[78]

Rescission of voidable contracts.—As to the consequences of the rescission of voidable contracts, see s.64.

Specific performance.—As to the effect of fraud and misrepresentation on the rights of a party to claim or resist specific performance, see Specific Relief Act, 1963, ss. 18(a), 26 and 27(1)(a).

A person who alters a contract—a deed of sale—can neither get specific performance nor damages in lieu thereof because the court will not accept and act upon such a document.[79]

Right of third party cannot be set up.—It is no defence to an apparently regular claim to property to suggest, without showing any title of one's own, that the original transaction from which the claimant's title is derived may have been voidable under this or the following section.[80]

Admission by misrepresentation.—Admission obtained by misrepresentation has no legal effect. Such implied admission being gratuitous made in ignorance of real facts may be withdrawn unless barred by estoppel for example.[81]

A person whose consent is obtained by fraud or misrepresentation is entitled to avoid the contract at his option as fraud vitiates the contract and he can withdraw any advantage that the other party has obtained as a result of the fraud.[82]

Exception.—The exception to s. 19 does not apply to cases where there is a positive case of an active fraudulent representation which has brought about the contract between the parties.[83]

Insurance policy.—When a repudiation of a policy is for undisclosed hydrocele suffered by the assured but the insurer's Medical Officer had given a secret report on the illiterate assured which was not shown to be false even the fact of suffering from hydrocele suppressed by the assured will not affect the validity of the insurance policy as Exception to s.19 will apply.[84] Fraudulent in Exception to s. 19 qualified silence and not misrepresentation.[85]

Power to set aside contract induced by undue influence.

19A. When consent to an agreement is caused by undue influence, the agreement is a contract voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused.

Any such contract may be set aside either absolutely or, if the party who was entitled to avoid it has received any benefit thereunder, upon such terms and conditions as to the Court[86] may seem just.

---

78 Pardhana v. Amin Chand (1977) A.HP. 94; Mitchell v. Homfray (1881) 8 Q.B.D. 587.

79 Kameshwar Rao. v. Hemalathamma Rao (1959) A.AP. 596.

80 Trimbak Bhikaji v. Shankar Shamrav (1911) 36 Bom. 37. This would be too elementary to call for decision or report in England.

81 Hyderabad State Bank v. Raghunath (1958) A.AP 605; Mt. Jzhar Fatima Bibi v. Mt. Ansar Fatima Bibi (1939) A.A. 348 refd. to. Mohammad Imam Ali Khan v. Hussain Khan, 25 I.A. 161, 26 Cal. 81, refd. to.

82 Mangilal v. Appellate Tribunal of State Transport (1957) A. Raj. 167.

83 R.C. Thakkar v. Gujarat Housing Board (1973) A. Guj. 34, 43. Venkataratnam v. Palleti Sivaramudu (1940) A.M. 560 refd. to.

84 Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Smt. Manjula Mohanlal 1975 A. Mys. 116, 120.

85 Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Baidyanath Singh (1978) A.P. 334, 337; Niaz Ahmed Khan v. Parsottam Chandra (1931) A.A. 154 & Venkataratnam v. Sivaramudu (1940) A.M. 560 reld. on.

86 The refusal of terms suggested by the Court leaves this discretion free: Sundar Rai v. Suraj Bali Rai (1925) 47 All. 932; 88 I.C. 1013.

Illustrations

(a) A's son has forged B's name to a promissory note. B, under threat of prosecuting A's son, obtains a bond from A for the amount of the forged note. If B sues on this bond, the Court may set the bond aside.

(b) A, a money-lender advances Rs. 100 to B, an agriculturist, and, by undue influence, induces B to execute a bond for Rs. 200 with interest at 6 per cent per month. The Court may set the bond aside, ordering B to repay the Rs. 100 with such interest as may seem just.

This section, inserted by the Indian Contract Act (Amendment Act), 1899, s.3, appears to be intended to give express sanction to the constant practice of Indian as well as English Courts in cases of unconscionable money-lending, namely, to relieve the borrower against the oppressive terms of his contract, but subject to the repayment to the lender of the money actually advanced with reasonable interest.[87] (See the illustrations.) The rate of interest allowed by the High Courts as reasonable has varied, according to circumstances, from 6 and 12 per cent in Bengal to 24 per cent in Bombay and the United Provinces.[88] See notes to s. 16, "unconscionable bargains," above. It has already been pointed that this branch of the law is now mainly governed by the money-lending legislation of a drastic kind in most parts of India.[89]

The second paragraph is the only portion of the section that is new. However, as it stands it is virtually a reproduction of ss. 35 and 38 of the Specific Relief Act. The combined effect of those two sections is that a contract in writing may be rescinded at the suit of a party when (amongst other causes) it is voidable, but that the Court may require the party rescinding to make any compensation to the other which justice may require. It may be noted that under the present section the contract need not be in writing. See also s. 64 below, which leaves no discretion to the Court in the matter of restitution.

S. 19A is applicable to Mahomedans and the heirs of a Mahomedan donor have the right to avoid a gift under that section.[90] But it is not applicable to the defence in a suit for possession by the donee against even trespassers.

The Select Committee gave the following reason for adding this section to the Act:—

"We have recast the language of the new s. 19A of the Act of 1872 proposed by cl. 3 of the Bill, so as to bring it more closely into accord with the language of s.19. A contract obtained by undue influence is on a different footing from a contract obtained by fraud. In the case of the latter a party who, with knowledge of the fraud, has taken any benefit under the contract, is held to have elected to affirm it; but where a contract has been obtained through the exercise of undue influence it is necessary that the Court should have power to relieve the party who acted under the undue influence, even although he may have received some benefit under the contract. On the other hand where such benefit has been received the Court ought to have full power to impose such conditions as may be just upon the party seeking relief."

Agreement void where both parties are under a mistake as to matter of fact.

20. Where both the parties to an agreement are under a mistake as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement, the agreement is void.

Explanation.—An erroneous opinion as to the value of the thing which forms the subject-matter of the agreement is not to be deemed a mistake as to a matter of fact.[91]

---

87 Cited with approval in Poma Dongra v. William Gillespie (1907) 31 Bom. 348, at p. 352.

88 Mothoormohun Roy v. Soorendro Narain Deb (1875) 1 Cal. 108; Mackintosh v. Hunt (1877) 2 Cal. 202; Chunni Kaur v. Rup Singh (1888) 11 All. 57; affirmed in appeal sub. nom. Raja Mohkam Singh v. Raja Rup Singh (1893) 20 I.A. 127; 15 All. 352 (where 20 per cent was allowed): Dhanipal Das v. Maneshar Bakhsh Singh (1906) 33 I.A. 118; 28 All. 570; Maneshar Bakhsh Singh v. Shadi Lal (1909) 36 I.A. 96; 31 All. 386 (where 18 per cent was allowed); Balkishan Das v. Madan Lal (1907) 29 All. 303 (where 24 per cent was allowed); Poma Dongra v. William Gillespie (1907) 31 Bom. 348 (where 24 per cent was allowed); Ranee Annapurni v. Swaminatha (1910) 34 Mad. 7 (where 24 per cent was allowed.

89 See commentary on s. 16, "unconscionable bargains ', above.

90 Mahboob Khan v. Abdul Rahim (1964) A. Raj. 250.

91 This may cover, if required, Harilal Dalsukhram v. Mulchand (1928) 52 Bom. 883; 113 I.C. 27; 1928

Illustrations

(a) A agrees to sell to B a specific cargo of goods supposed to be on its way from England to Bombay. It turns out that, before the day of the bargain, the ship conveying the cargo had been cast away, and the goods lost. Neither party was aware of these facts. The agreement is void. (Couturier v. Hastie (1856) 5 H.L.C. 673; 101 R.R. 329.)

(b) A agrees to buy from B a certain horse. It turns out that the horse was dead at the time of the bargain, though neither party was aware of the fact. The agreement is void. (Pothier, Contract de Vente, cited 5 H.L.C. 678; so in modern French Law, Code Civ. 1601. For Roman example see Pollock on Contract, 13th ed., 402.)

(c) A, being entitled to an estate for the life of B, agrees to sell it to C. B was dead at the time of the agreement, but both parties were ignorant of the fact. The agreement is void. (Strickland v. Turner (1852) 7 Ex. 208; 86 R.R. 619; Cochrane v. Willis (1865) L.R. 1 Ch. 58.

Scope of the section.—The practical scope of this section is shown (though not completely) by the illustrations. No doubt is possible as to the actual solution, in any civilised system of jurisprudence, of the cases put. But the wording of the section (which follows the Indian Law Commissioners' original draft) tends to obscure the principle which governs them. It is not that the mistake has any special operation because it is a mistake, but that the true intention of the parties was to make their agreement conditional on the existence of some state of facts which turns out not to have existed at the date of the agreement. Where the contract was for the sale of an object not existing, or which had ceased to exist according to the description by which it was contracted for, the result is still more easily apprehended if we say that there was nothing to buy and sell. In England partial destruction or loss of goods contracted for has the same effect.[92]

Indian decisions have furnished a few more illustrations. The section will no doubt continue to be interpreted, as occasion arises, largely and beneficially.

Mistake is of three kinds.—There are four kinds of mistakes—(1) unilateral mistake where one party is mistaken which will make the contract void if the other party knows or must be taken to know of the mistake of the first party, e.g., a picture believed to be a Constable but is really a copy. The buyer believes it to be so and the seller knows of it. It will be mutual if the seller is ignorant of the buyer's belief. Mere unilateral mistake of the lessor where the lessee had in no way contributed to the mistake is no ground for rescission of the lease either with or without the option to the lessee to accept rectification to cure the mistake.[93]

(2) Mutual mistake where the parties misunderstand each other and are at cross purposes. There is no real correspondence offer and acceptance. The parties are not really consensus ad idem. There is thus no agreement at all; and this contract is also void, e.g. A intends to offer his 8 h.p. car but B believes it to be 10 h.p. (3) Common mistake where both parties are mistaken about the same vital fact although both parties are ad idem, e.g., the subject-matter of the contract has already perished. This is also void. Section 20 is concerned with common mistake of fact and not mutual mistake.[94] There is yet a fourth kind of mistake—non est factum. But it really falls under Sec. 18 and has been appropriately dealt with there.

Common mistake.—Common is defined as "possessed or shared alike by both or all the persons or things in question" and mutual means "possessed or entertained by each of two persons towards or with regard to each other".[95] Two decisions of the House of Lords,

---

A.B. 427; but the Court rightly held that a defect in title of property known to both vendor and purchaser raises no question of mistake at all. Cp. Secy. of State v. Yellepeddi Janakiranyya Pantulu, 1925 A.M. 859; 87 I.C. 644 (assessment paid for patta of land resumed by Government, with knowledge that the resumption was disputed, but also held that the transaction was not contract at all). As to a deficiency in quantity specified only as reported, Soorath Nath Banerjee v. Bhabasankar Goswami (1928) 33 C.W.N. 626; 119 I.C. 205; 1929 A. Cal. 547; Kochuvareed v. Mariappa, 1954 A.T.C. 10, 24.

92 Barrow Lane & Ballard v. Philip Philips & Co. (1929) 1 K.B. 574.

93 Riverlate Properties Ltd. v. Paul (1974) 2 All E.R. 656, 661 (C.A.)

94 U.P. Government v. Nanhoo Mal (1960) A.A. 420; Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.), pp. 188-9.

95 Cheshire & Fifoot: Law of Contract (6th Ed.), 188, n2.

Cooper v. Phibbs[96] and Bell v. Lever Brothers Ltd.[97] are the main sources from which flows the, stream of the law relating to "mistake" in English Law. There is yet a third case[98]—a case from Kenya decided by the Privy Council. It is of importance as to the law of "mistake" in India, as it deals with the structure of the Act and with ss. 10 and 20 of the Indian Contract Act and points out the distinction between ss. 20 and 56 of the Act. In Cooper v. Phibbs,[99]

A agreed to take a lease of a fishery from B, though contrary to the belief of both parties at the time, A was tenant for life of the fishery and B had no title at all.

Lord Westbury applied the principle that

"if parties contract under a mutual mistake and misapprehension as to their relative and respective rights, the result is that the agreement is liable to be set aside as having proceeded upon a common mistake"

The transfer of ownership being impossible, the stipulation was naturali ratione inunitilis. Lord Atkin in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.[1] described the statement of Lord Westbury too wide and said that the correct view was that there was a contract which the vendor was either incapable of performing or had committed a breach of a stipulation as to title; the contract was unenforceable but not void. The principle of Cooper v. Phibbs[96] has been repeatedly acted on; see for instance Earl Beauchamp v. Winn[2] and Huddersfield Banking Co. v. Henry Lister & Sons.[3] It is in no way impaired by Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.[97]which was treated in the House of Lords as a case at law depending on whether the contract was nullity or not. According to Denning L.J., if Lever Bros.'s case[97]had been considered on equitable grounds the result might have been different.[4] In Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.,[97] an agreement of service between a company and two of the directors of its subsidiary company was terminated on payment of compensation. The parties proceeded on the assumption that the service agreements were not liable to immediate termination by reason of misconduct of the directors which assumption proved to be mistaken. Fraud was however negatived.

In an action by the company for rescission of contract and repayment of moneys paid the agreement was set aside by Wright J. and the Court of Appeal on the ground of mutual mistake. But the House of Lords by a majority reversed the judgment on the ground that the mutual mistake related not to the subject-matter but to the quality of the service contract and was not of such a fundamental character.[97] Sir John Simon in his arguments formulated for the assistance of the House the following proposition:[5]

"Whenever it is to be inferred from the terms of a contract or its surrounding circumstances that the consensus has been reached upon the basis of a particular contractual assumption, and that assumption is not true, the contract is avoided: i.e., it is void ab initio if the assumption is of present fact and it ceases to bind if the assumption is of future fact."

This was accepted by the House with the additional rider that the assumption must have been fundamental to the continued validity of the contract or a foundation essential to its existence. The House was divided as to the assumption being sufficiently fundamental but not as to the principle.[6]

In the words of Lord Atkin:[6]

---

96 (1867) 2 H.L. 149.
97 1932 A.C. 161; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1 (H.L.).
98 Sheikh Brothers Ltd. v. Ochsner (1957) A.C. 136; (P.C.).
99 (1867) 2 H.L. 149, 170; see Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161, 218; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 27 per Lord Atkin).
1 (1932) A.C. 161, 218; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 27; Kennedy v. Panama Royal Mail Co. (1867) 2 Q.B. 580 and Smith v. Hughes (1871) 6 Q.B. 597 appd.
2 (1873) 6 H.L. 223.
3 (1895) 2 Ch. 273; (1895-99) All E.R. Rep. 868.
4 Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1120 (per Denning L.J.); see also Grist v. Bailey (1966) 2 All E.R. 875; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618 (per Goff J.).
5 Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161, as recorded by Lord Atkin, p. 225. (For arguments see p. 167); (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 31.
6 Ibid, pp. 218 & 28 (All E.R. Rep.); at p. 226 & p. 32 (All E.R. Rep.).

"Does the state of new facts destroy the identity of the subject-matter as it was in the original state of facts?" This is a common standard for mutual mistake and implied condition as to existing or as to future facts.

Or in the words of Lord Thankerton the error must be such that

"it either appeared on the face of the contract that the matter as to which the mistake existed was an essential and integral element of the subject-matter of the contract or was an inevitable inference from the nature of the contract that all parties so regarded it".[7]

The range of authorities relating to some alteration in circumstances subsequent to the date of the contract do not... raise a question of mutual error or mistake: in them the formation of the contract is complete and binding, but subsequent events arise which critically affect the contract but whose occurrence has not been provided for in the contract.[8] (per Lord Thankerton).

Effect of mistake at law and its effect in equity.—According to Denning L.J. the correct interpretation of Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.[97] is that once a contract has been made then the contract is good unless and until it is set aside for breach of some condition expressed or implied in it, or for fraud, or on some equitable ground. Neither party can rely on his own mistake to say that it was a nullity from the very beginning, no matter that it was a mistake which to his mind was fundamental and no matter that the other party knew he was under a mistake; a fortiori, if the other party did not know of the mistake but shared it.[9] A distinction was drawn by Denning L.J. between (i) the effect of a mistake at law and (ii) its effect in equity. At law, mistake, if effective at all, makes the contract void. In equity, mistake is a common ground for rescission or for refusing specific performance and is wider than the jurisdiction at law.[10] In Solle v. Butcher,[11] the parties entered into a lease under the mutual mistake that the alterations made had so altered the identity of the leased premises as to make it a new dwelling house outside the Rent Acts. The tenant sued for the return of rent overpaid and the landlord applied for rescission of the lease.

The Court of Appeal held that the landlord was entitled to have the lease set aside in equity on such terms as the Court thought fit. The defendants took the premises of the plaintiffs on lease for 15 years for the purpose of offices when the planning permission was only for two years. This was held to be common mistake of the parties because (a) the belief of the parties that planning permission was available without restriction for use of the premises for offices was a fundamental mistake; and (b) the defendants were not at fault in entering into possession without making the usual searches as they were under no duty of care to the plaintiffs to make these searches and they did not bring about the plaintiffs forgetfulness.[12] In Sheikh Brothers Ltd. v. Ochsner,[13] the appellant granted a licence to the respondent to cut sisal growing on appellant's land in return of his delivering sisal fibre in minimum quantities of 50 tons per mensem to the appellant. Unknown to both parties, the estate was incapable of producing the necessary amount of sisal and that was the basis of the contract and the mistake was as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement.

The agreement was held not to be a contract within s. 10 "mutual mistake" within s. 20 having been found to exist. This case proceeded on the structure of the Act.

---

7 Ibid, 235; 37 (All E.R.).
8 Ibid, 237.
9 Solle v. Butcher (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1119; (1950) 1 K.B. 671.
10 Ibid; per Goff J. in Grist v. Bailey (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618; (1966) 2 All E.R. 875.
11 Ibid, 1121; Cooper v. Phibbs (1867) 2 H.L. 149 refd. to.
12 Laurence v. Lexcourt Holdings & Ltd. (1973) 2 All E.R. 810, 819; Solle v. Butcher (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107; and Grist v. Bailey (1966) 2 All E.R. 875, Appld.
13 Sheikh Bros. Ltd. v. Ochsner (1957) A.C. 136; (1957) 2 W.L.R. 254 (P.C.), 260. Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161. Before the Board the following cases were cited in argument: Kennedy v. Panama Mail Co. (1866) 2 Q.B. 580; Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society Ltd. v. William H. Price Ltd., 1934 A.C. 455; The Salvador, 26 T.L.R. 149; Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107; Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693; Harrison & Jones v. Bunten & Lancaster Ltd. (1953) 1 Q.B. 646; (1953) 1 All E.R. 903; Nicholson & Venn v. Smith-Marriott, 177 L.T. 189; Stewart v. Kennedy (1890) 15 A.C. 108; Hussainbhoy Karimji v. Haridas, 1928 A. Sindh 21; Magee v. Pennine Insurance Co. Ltd. (1969) 2 All E.R. 89 (common mistake as to policy of insurance and validity of claim.

The Australian High Court held the doctrine of mistake inapplicable to the sale of a tanker in McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission[14] and to the sale of real property in Svanosio v. McNamara;[15] the facts in the two cases were as follows:

In the former case the plaintiff purchased an abandoned tanker stated to be lying on Jourmound Reef and the tanker was found to be non-existent in spite of the assertion of the seller, the Commonwealth Disposals Commissioner which was found to be a reckless mistake.

The trial judge held the contract void on the basis of Counturier v. Hastie.[16] The High Court (Full Court) held that the Commission could not rely on a mistake as avoiding the contract as the mistake was induced by the series of faults of its own servants who asserted the existence of the tanker recklessly and without any reasonable ground. There was contract and the Commission contracted that a tanker existed at a position specified. Since there was no tanker there, there was a breach of the contract and the Commission was liable for damages for that breach.[17] In Svanosio v. McNamara,[18] there was a contract of sale of general law land together with a victuallers licence in respect of a hotel erected thereon. The conveyance was executed and the licence transferred. It was subsequently discovered that the hotel was partially constructed on land conveyed and a substantial part stood on unalienated Crown land. Both parties had assumed the hotel to be constructed in the conveyed land. The vendee claimed a declaration that the contract was void for a mistake and for setting aside the conveyance.

The action failed and the full Court upheld that decision. Dixon C.J. and Fullagar J. held that equity will not undo a sale of land after conveyance unless there is fraud or total failure of consideration or what amounts to that. They also referred to cases where equity gave relief when the vendor had no title to the land at all. "There may be cases of a mistake in which it would be so inequitable that a party should be held to his contract; that equity would set it aside".[19]McTiernan, Williams & Webb JJ. after referring to several English cases[20] where the subject matter was not in existence said

"But even in these cases the contract is probably not void but merely unenforceable. The one party is unable to supply the very thing that the other party contracted to take and therefore the contract is unenforceable by the one if executory, while if executed the other can recover back money paid on the ground of total failure of consideration."[21]

It is possible to get relief on the ground of common mistake after a contract for sale of land has been completed but cases are rare and those are peculiar cases, e.g. where the property sold already belonged to the vendee.[22]

Mistake as to substance and as to quality.—It has been suggested on the basis of the statement of the law by Lord Atkin in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.[23] that a distinction should be drawn between a mistake as to substance (or essence) and mistake as to quality (or attributes); a 14 (1950) 84 C.L.R. 377.

---

15 (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186.
16 (1856) 5 H.L.C. 673.
17 McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission (1950) 84 C.L.R. 377, 406-7-410. Pollock's preface to Vol. 101 of R.R. at p. vi saying that Couturier v. Hastie (1856) 5 H.L.C. 673 and Strickland v. Turner (1852) 7 Ex. 208 were cases of construction; and observation of Denning L.J. in Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671 at pp. 691, 692, where he said these cases required consideration and of Lord Atkin in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1935) A.C. 161, 218, 222; refd. to. Barr v. Gibson (1838) 3 M. & W. at pp. 399, 400; 150 E.R. at pp. 1200, 1201 refd. to. See Griffiths C.J. in Goldbrough Mort & Co. Ltd. v. Carter (1914) 19 C.L.R. 429, 437.
18 (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186.
19 Ibid, pp. 198, 199, 200, 207. Prof. Shatwell: 33 Can. B. Rev., pp. 186-7.
20 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 209; Bingham v. Bingham, 27 E.R. 934; Cooper v. Phibbs (1867) 2 H.L. 149; Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161, 236; Scott v. Coulson (1903) 2 Ch. 249; Couturier v. Hastie (1856) 5 H.L.C. 673; Strickland v. Turner (1852) 7 Ex. 208, 155 E.R. 919.
21 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 209; McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission (1950) 84 C.L.R. 377. 403. Lord Atkin in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. 1932 A.C. 161, 218, 222 refd. to.
22 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 206; See Devlin J. in Elder v. Auerbach (1950) 1 K.B. 359; (1949) 2 All E.R. 692; a case of innocent misrepresentation as to an executed lease. But it was applied by Denning L.J. to a case of common mistake in Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107 (a case of a lease; mistake as to applicability of Rent Acts).
23 (1932) A.C. 161, 218; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 28; Poaltis v. Schulz (1948) 76 C.L.R. 541, 561.

mistake of the former type will avoid the contract and of the latter type will not.[24] Some support for this distinction may be gained from the case of Kennedy v. Panama Mail Co. Ltd.[25] which was approved in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd.[23] and in which it was held that in the absence of fraud or of a definite warranty, there is no remedy if the mistake is as to quality.[25] In Kennedy's[26] case.

the prospectus of a Company mentioned a contract which though made with the Post Master General of New Zealand was not ratified by the Government and as a consequence the value of the shares fell. The plaintiff who had relied on the prospectus claimed to return the shares he purchased and recover the price paid.

The action failed because the shares which the plaintiff bought under the misapprehension as to the existence of the contract were not substantially different from the shares described in the prospectus and applied for on the faith of that description. If mistake operates at all it operates so as to negative or in some cases to nullify consent. The parties may be mistaken as in the identity of the contracting parties, or in the existence of the subject-matter of the contract on the date of the contract or in the quality of the subject-matter of the contract.[27] A mistake as to quality does not avoid a contract in the absence of fraud or of a definite warranty. According to Goff J. in Girst v. Bailey,[28] the principle stated by Denning L.J. in Solle v. Butcher[29] was adhered to by him in later cases[30] i.e. the doctrine of "New Equity". A painting of Salisbury Cathedral by Constable, which was a term of contract of sale, was found not to be a Constable. The contract was upheld as the mistake was not of the subject-matter but as to quality.[31]

The views expressed in Solle v. Butcher[29] and Leaf v. International Galleries[32] were examined in two later cases. In Harrison & Jones Ltd. v. Bunten Lancaster Ltd.[33] the goods were sold under a trade description "Sree Brand Kopak"—which was believed to be pure kopak though in truth it was an admixture of tree and bush cotton. The contract was upheld as the mistake was as to quality. Similarly where there was a contract between the parties for the sale of "horsebeans" which were quite different from "feveroles" which both parties believed them to be. This contract, it was held, could not be rectified as notwithstanding the mutual mistake as to the meaning of "feveroles" and "horsebeans" the contract correctly expressed the agreement. It might in certain circumstances be a ground for setting aside a contract in Equity. The plaintiff could have rejected the goods on discovering the mistake and ask for the return of their money but not after accepting the goods.[34] A hire-purchase transaction was entered into in 1955 and in exchange the sellers of a new car took an old Morris car purporting to be 1948 model. Later the car was found to be a 1939 model. The misrepresentation was found to be an innocent one. It was held that as both parties contracted on the basis of a fundamental mistake the transaction could have been rescinded if the mistake had been found earlier otherwise "the loss must lie where it falls".[35] The principle of Solle v. Butcher[36] was ap-

---

24 Taylor: (1948) 11 Mod. L.R. 257.
25 (1867) 2 Q.B. 247.
26 (1867) 2 Q.B. 580; Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161; 1931 All E.R. Rep. 1.
27 Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161, 217, per Lord Atkin.
28 (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618; (1966) 2 All E.R. 875.
29 (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1119.
30 Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86, 91; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693 (a case of a painting found not to be genuine). Frederick E. Rose (London) Ltd. v. William H. Pim Jnr. & Co. (1953) 2 Q.B. 450.460. (Sale of horse beans believed to be feveroles). Oscar Chess Ltd. v. Williams (1957) 1 W.L.R. 370, 373 (mistake as to the age of a car). Per Goff J. in Grist v. Bailey (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618; (1966) 2 All E.R. 875. But see Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 210.
31 Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693; Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107.
32 (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693.
33 (1953) 1 Q.B. 646; (1953) 1 All E.R. 903.
34 Fredrick E. Rose (London) Ltd. v. William Pim Jr. & Co. (1953) 2 All E.R. 739, 747; (1953) 2 Q.B. 450, 460. See Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1950) 1 All E.R. 693.
35 Oscar Chess Ltd. v. Williams (1957) 1 W.L.R. 370, 377 (Denning L.J.) (1957) 1 All E.R. 325, 333; Cf. Nicholson & Venn v. Smith Marriott (1947) 177 L.T. 189 which was held to be wrongly decided on this point by Denning L.J. in Solle v. Butcher (1950) 1 K.B. 671, 692; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1119.
36 (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1119.

plied by Goff J. to set aside an executory contract for sale of land in Grist v. Bailey[37] which indicates the continuing validity of Solle v. Butcher[36] despite a considerable body of judgments and articles which criticise it and suggest numerous other versions of the proper scope of the equitable jurisdiction to set aside a contract for mistake. In Girst v. Bailey [38]

G brought an action for specific performance of an agreement of sale of property for £850 the sale being "subject to the existing tenancy thereof". The defendant averred a mistake as to the existence of tenancy and that if it be found that the plaintiff believed the property to be in occupation of a statutory tenant, then the agreement was void and should be set aside in equity for fundamental mistake of fact.

The Court found a common mistake as to existence of a tenancy. Applying the dictum of Denning L.J. in Solle v. Butcher[36] Goff J. held that there was equitable jurisdiction to set aside the sale for common mistake of fact because the mistake was fundamental and any fault of the seller not knowing who her tenant was, was not sufficient to disentitle her to relief.[39] Similarly A agrees to take an unfurnished dwelling house on lease or to buy it. The house is in fact uninhabitable. A would never have entered into the bargain if he had known the fact. A has no remedy and the position is the same whether the seller knew the fact or not as long as he made no representation or gave no warranty.[40] In Smith v. Hughes[41] the plaintiff offered to sell and exhibited a sample of oats which the defendant took to be old oats whereas they were new oats, which the defendant later refused to accept. The question left to the jury was whether the plaintiff believed the defendant to believe that he was contracting for old oats.

This direction was held not to be sufficient to distinguish between a mistake on the part of the defendant that the oats were old oats and a mistake that they were being offered to him as old oats. In the former case the contract would be valid and in the latter the contract would be void. A new trial was ordered. This case is similar to buying a horse believed to be sound and buying one with the warranty of being sound. Cockburn C.J. said that the rule is that if specific article is offered without an express warranty and the buyer has full opportunity of inspecting and if he acts on his own judgment caveat emptor applies. These cases are illustrative of the principle that a mistake as to quality is insufficient to set aside a contract.[42] According to the Australian High Court,[43] Solle v. Butcher[44] is the only authority for the proposition that a sale of property can be rescinded for innocent material misrepresentation or material common mistake and from the scope of that decision, completed contracts for sale of land are carefully excluded.

A agreed to buy and B to sell a consignment of cotton arriving "ex Peerless from Bombay". Actually two ships both named Peerless were to sail from Bombay one in October and the other in December and the buyer meant the October "Peerless" and the seller the December "Peerless". The buyer refused to accept the December shipment and the court upheld his plea.

The ambiguity prevented the court from presuming the existence of any agreement between the parties.[45] If A buys a horse believing it to be sound and it turns out to be unsound and the seller has made no misrepresentation as to its soundness, A cannot recover back the price and is bound by the contract. It is not open to him to say that the seller must have known from the price paid that the buyer must have thought the horse to be sound.[46]

---

37 (1966) 2 All E.R. 875; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618; 40 A.L.J. 315 (notes). But see Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 210.

38 (1966) 2 All E.R. 875; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618.

39 Grist v. Bailey (1966) 2 All E.R. 875, 889; (1966) 3 W.L.R. 618. Leaf v. International Galleries (1950) 2 K.B. 86; (1949) 2 All E.R. 693 (Equitable relief not possible because of delay). Frederick E. Rose (London) Ltd. v. William Pim & Co. (1953) 2 All E.R. 739, 747; (1953) 2 Q.B. 450, 460 (also a case of delay); Oscar Chess Ltd. v. Williams (1957) 1 All E.R. 325, 327 (a case of delay).

40 Per Lord Atkin in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161, 224; 1931 All E.R. Rep. 1, 31. Wallace v. McGirr (1936) N.Z.L.R. 483 (The buyer negligently entered into a contract of purchase believing the house to be what he had inspected).

41 (1871) 6 Q.B. 597, 606, 607.

42 Chitty on Contracts (24th Ed.) para 284.

43 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 210.

44 (1950) 1 K.B. 671; (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107, 1119.

45 Raffles v. Wichelhaus (1864) 2 H. & C. 906; 159 E.R. 375.

46 Smith v. Hughes (1871) 6 Q.B. 597, 606. Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161, 224; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1, 31.

In Psaltis v. Schulz[47] Dixon J. accepted the view "that for no contract to come into existence through a fundamental error, the mistake must be as to the identity of the other party—as opposed to his attributes, as to the substance of the subject-matter—as opposed to its qualities; or as to the nature of the transaction—as opposed to its terms". To this may be added the very existence of the subject-matter.

In a Canadian Case[48] the parties entered into a contract for the sale and purchase of certain lands for S.4700. The northern most boundary was to be 1000 ft. although survey of the land procured before the sale showed 877.2 ft but the latter was indicative of the intention of the parties. About four years after the sale it was discovered that the vendor had no title to 76 ft × 1000 ft., the result being that the vendor's title was only to about half the land sold. The purchaser had purchased the land for investment purposes and apprised the vendor of this fact. The purchaser claimed rescission of the contract and return of the purchase price plus interest. The Court held that in order to rescind for mutual (common) mistake the mistake should go to the root of the contract. And in order to constitute an error in substantialibus there must be a mutual fundamental mistake as to the quality of the subject matter. There often can be a fine line between quantity and quality. If the mistake as to quantity is substantial it changes the quality of the subject-matter, then in a proper case rescission "may exist". In the instant case the deficiency is one-half of the land purchased and quite unsuitable for the purpose for which the land was purchased. Therefore there was a common fundamental mistake as to the quality of the subject matter. And the contract was rescinded.

The appellant in another Canadian Case[49] claimed damages for breach of contract for the respondent's failure to supply glass. The suit was dismissed and the claimant appealed. The facts are these:

The appellant, a supplier of windowglass, obtained quotation for the "twin Seal glass" from the manufacturer, the respondents, giving them the particulars of the glass required. This information was asked for and given on telephone, and sometime later confirmed by the respondents' letter in reply to the appellant's letter. The quotation by the respondents was an undervaluation due to mistaken calculation of which the respondents had knowledge. The appellant made a contract with a sub-contractor to supply the glass to him on the basis of quotation by the respondents, but the respondents failed to make the supply and the appellant sued for damages for breach of contract.

The trial Court found that the quotation was the result of a mistaken calculation but that there was a contract between the parties and that in the circumstances the appellant's conduct amounted to fraud. In the result the suit for damages failed and the contract was rescinded and an appeal was taken against the judgment. The appellate Court reversed the findings as to fraud as there was no representation by the appellant which induced the contract and hence there was no fraud; the respondent could not be relieved from the consequences of that mistake which was the result of its own carelessness and the appellant was found entitled to damages for breach of contract.

A purchaser agreed to receive certain amount in full settlement of his claim for non-delivery of goods. Both the seller and the purchaser were under a mistake of the essential fact in calculating the amount. The agreement was held to be void under section 20. The Court held that merely because a cheque drawn or an amount paid in full satisfaction had been accepted, it would not follow that there has been accord and satisfaction so as to disentitle the plaintiff to sue for the proper amount. In this case the decision went more by the question of record and satisfaction than by the question of mistake in quality and quantity.[50]

---

47 Psaltis v. Schulz (1948) 76 C.L.R. 547, 561. Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161, 217.

48 Hyrsky v. Smith (1969) 5 D.L.R. (3rd) 355.

49 Imperial Glass Co. Ltd. v. Consolidated Supplies Ltd. (1960) 22 D.L.R. (2d) (B.C.C.A.) Cheshire & Fifoot on Contract (4th Ed.) P. 188 quoted.

50 Bharat Electronics Ltd. v. M/s American Export Isbrandsen Lines Inco. Madras (1979) A.M. 267, 272; Neuchatel Asphalte Co. v. Barnett L 1957-1 W.L.R. 356; (1957) 1 All E.R. 362 reld. upon; Day v. Mclea 1889-22 Q.B.D. 610 applied in Shyamnagar Tin Factory Pvt. Ltd. v. Snow White Food Product Co. Ltd. (1965) A. Cal. 541; and also in Union of India v. Narayanlal (1963) A.P. 152.

False and fundamental assumption.—A contract of insurance is void if the ensured was already dead. The transaction of assignment was avoided and the vendor recovered the policy and the money paid thereunder.[51] A separation deed between a husband and wife entered into under the mistaken belief of their being married was pronounced void in Galloway v. Galloway.[52]

Under a marine insurance policy on a cargo of lemons, money was paid for lemons under the mistaken belief that they had perished although they had been sold en route. The money was recovered.[53] In Mackenzie v. Royal Bank of Australia[54] the Privy Council set aside a contract of guarantee on the ground of a material misrepresentation of fact. In Griffith v. Brymere[55] an agreement to hire a room for viewing the King's Coronation procession was held void because when it was entered into the procession had already been cancelled. In Magee v. Pannine Insurance Company Limited a number of misstatements were carelessly, but not fraudulently made in a policy for insurance. The policy was accepted and several times renewed. The car covered by the policy was damaged, the plaintiff claimed the value of the car which was by compromise settled at £385. Before the payment was made the untrue statements in the policy were discovered. The Court of Appeal held that although the acceptance by the plaintiff of the insurance Company's offer constituted a contract by compromise, the parties were under a common and fundamental mistake that they thought that the original policy was good and binding. The contract was, therefore, voidable in the circumstances on equitable grounds.[56] See also Bell v. Lever Bros.[57]

A tax paid, which is not due and was paid by a person, not knowing of the invalidity of the tax, must be refunded by Government.[58] A servant, whose term of office came to an end, was paid under a mistake by the Comptroller and it was held that payment was under a mistake of fact as to his continuance in service and not otherwise and a decree for refund of money so paid was valid.[59]

Sale of land and mistake.—There are dicta that relief can be given after a contract is completed where there is a common mistake upon a material point although there is a partial failure of consideration.[60] But the proper principle appears to be that in the case of a completed contract of sale, rescission is only possible on the ground of common mistake where contrary to the belief of parties there is nothing to contract about.[61]

Lease of flats.—Where premises were leased for office use when the landlord only had a limited permission for using a part of the premises for such purpose and the contract was entired into under this mistake, it was held the lessor could not sue for specific performance of the contract but the defendant was entitled to have the contract rescinded.[62]

Mistake: moveable property.—In the case of personal property, contracts of sale have been held to be void for mistake where property has ceased to exist at the date of the contract.[63] Thus the view of the Australian High Court in the case of completed sale of property

---

51 Scott v. Coulson (1903) 2 Ch. 249.

52 (1914) 30 T.L.R. 531; folld. in Law v. Harragin (1917) 33 T.L.R. 381; distd. in Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1.

53 Norwich Union v. Price. 1934 A.C. 455.

54 (1934) A.C. 468.

55 (1903) 19 T.L.R. 434.

56 (1969) 2 W.L.R. 1278; (1969) 2 All E.R. 281.

57 (1969) A.C. 161; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 11.

58 U.P. v. Kanchaiya Lal, 1956 A.A. 383; on app. (1959) S.C.R. 1350; (1959) A.SC. 135.

59 Joseph v. Union of India, 1957 A. Ker. 3; Cf. Holt v. Markham (1923) 1 K.B. 504; (1922) All E.R. Rep. 134 (money held not recoverable).

60 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 209; Jones v. Clifford (1876) 3 Ch.D. 779; Bettyes v. Maynard (1882) 46 L.T. 766, 769; Debenham v. Sawbridge (1901) 2 Ch. 98, 109.

61 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 209; Bingham v. Bingham, 27 E.R. 934 (1748); Cooper v. Phibbs (1867) 2 H.L. 149.

62 Lawrence v. Lexcourt Holdings Ltd. (1978) 2 All E.R. 810, 819 Solle v. Butcher (1949) 2 All E.R. 1107; and Grist v. Bailey (1966) 2 All E.R. 875 applied.

63 Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 209; Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161, 236; Scott v. Coulson (1903) 2 Ch. 249, where the supposed assured was dead at the time of insurance. See where the subject-matter of the contract was not in existence at the time of the contract is that the contract

"is not partially void but unenforceable. The one party is unable to supply the very thing that the other party contracted to take and therefore the contract is unenforceable by the one if executory while if executed the other can recover back money paid on the ground of total failure of consideration."[64]

In Porter v. Latec Finance Company[65]

a swindler borrowed money on a mortgage from a Finance Company to pay to a previous mortgagee and got the latter paid off. The company brought an action against the previous mortgagee for money had and received by the defendant to the use of the plaintiff such money having been paid under a mistake.

Barwick C.J. held that even if the payment was made under mistake, the mistake as to the borrower was not fundamental to the transaction, and therefore, the plaintiff could not recover from the defendant. The other judges did not express any option on the point.

In one text-book the view was propounded that since the House of Lords paid but lip-service to the idea of fundamental common mistake, and failed to apply the doctrine in circumstances where the mistake was as fundamental as could be imagined,[66] the doctrine is confined to cases of res suae or res extinctae. This view has not as yet found favour with the English courts,[67] and it remains to be seen whether Indian judges will limit the meaning of the word "essential" in s. 20 in the same way; the three illustrations to the section are so limited. The reason advanced for restricting the scope of operative common mistake is that to hold an agreement void tends to prejudice the rights of innocent third parties.

The mistake must be as to an existing fact.—The mistake must be "as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement." It is not enough that there was an error "as to some point, even though a material point, an error as to which does not affect the substance of the whole consideration".[68] The circumstance, therefore, that at the date of a lease neither the lessor nor the lessee supposed that the Government assessment would ever be increased will not avail the lessor to avoid the lease if the assessment is subsequently enhanced.[69] "The circumstance that both the parties to the lease supposed (if they did suppose) that the assessment would never be increased, did not prevent their united will from forming a contract, any more than from making the terms of the contract, when thus concluded, (from being)[70] binding, in spite of any future change of circumstances".[71] As observed by the Privy Council in Peria Sami v.

---

also Couturier v. Hastie (1876) 5 H.L.C. 673 (sale of a cargo of corn already sold by the master of the ship).

64 McRae v. Commonwealth Disposals Commission (1950) 84 C.L.R. 377, 403-4; Svanosio v. McNamara (1956) 96 C.L.R. 186, 209, Bell v. Bros. Ltd. (1932) A.C. 161, 218, 222; (1931) All E.R. Rep. 1.

65 Porter v. Latec Finance Co. (Q.L.D.) Pty. Ltd. (1964) III C.L.R. 177; 1964 (38) A.L.J.R. 184.

66 Cheshire & Fifoot on Contracts, 3rd edn., 180. This interpretation of Bell v. Lever Bros. is based upon a false promises: the payments to the two directors Bell and Snelling were not merely to recompense them for lost salary. On that basis the maximum, making no allowance for their opportunity and duty to seek alternative remunerative employment, would be £17,333 for Bell, as against £30,000 paid, and £13,000 for Snelling, as against £20,000 paid. Moreover the sums paid are not proportionate: Snelling's sum should be £22,500. Lord Blanesburgh makes these points in his judgment (at p. 180), and concludes that the company also desired to recognise the exceptional services rendered by the two directors, and to enlist their support in carrying through the amalgamation which had led to their redundancy. See 6th Ed. of Cheshire & Fifoot, pp. 192-198; 9th Ed pp 208-217.

67 Lord Wright, who was the trial judge in Bell v. Lever and held the agreement void, has always maintained in his writings that the only problem was whether the mistake was sufficiently basic: Legal Essays and Address 214, 379; 8 Camb. L.J. 118, 129. In Nicholson and Venn v. Smith Marriott (1947) 177 L.T. 189, 191-2, Hallett J. considered obiter that the differences between the Carolean and Georgian kings were great enough to make table linen used by them essentially different, for the purpose of the rule that agreements are void for common mistake: both parties believed the linen to be Carolean (17th century), when in fact it was Georgian (18th century).

68 Per Blackburn J. in Kennedy v. Panama Mail Co. (1867) L.R. 2 Q.B. 580, at p. 588; Adaikappa Chettiar v. Thomas Cook & Son, 1933 A.P.C. 78; 64 Mad. L.J. 184; 142 I.C. 660.

69 Babshetti v. Venkataramana (1879) 3 Bom. 154.

70 Sic; these words are evidentally inserted by a clerical error.

71 Ibid, p. 158.

Representatives of Salugar, "the grant, whatever its effect, was not necessarily avoided because subsequent events disappointed the expectation in which it was made".[72] S. 20 does not apply to a case where the contracting parties have made no mistake as to any existing fact but one of the parties finds itself unable to carry out the terms of its contract on account of the act of a third party to carry out its obligation under another agreement with that second party.[73] Where the parties entered into contracts on the assumption that the Jute Control Order, which was about to expire and was not continued, would be continued, it was held that there was no mistake as to an existing fact and the contract was not void.[74] The difference between the legal effect where there is a mistake of existing fact, and on the other hand where there is an unexpected turn of subsequent events, is well brought out by contrasting two types of cases arising from the cancellation through illness of the coronation procession of King Edward VII. In Griffith v. Brymere,[75] the plaintiff agreed to hire rooms from the defendant to watch the procession. Unknown to either party, the king's doctors had already decided, prior to the agreement between the parties, to perform an operation which would involve the abandonment of the procession. The Court held the agreement void for mistake, following Couturier v. Hastie.[76]

In India s. 20 would lead to the same result. In Krell v. Henry,[77] the facts were the same except that the agreement preceded the decision of the doctors by four days. It was held that the agreement was discharged by frustration. In India the appropriate section would be s. 56 not s. 20. Even a mistake as to an existing fact will not render void an agreement concluded with retrospective effect, where the circumstances have changed between the date from which the agreement is to begin, and the date the bargain is concluded: Indian Trade & General Insurance Co. v. Bhailal.[78] There the company issued a cover note, insuring goods against fire with effect from a date three days before. Unknown to either party, the goods had been destroyed by fire two days before the issue of the cover note. The company was held liable. Where a settlement was entered into between Government and certain inamdars in respect of a village whereby the latter agreed to pay a certain yearly quit-rent, and both parties believed that the inamdars were the superior holders of all the lands in the village, it was held that the settlement was void as regards a portion of the lands which subsequently turned out to be wanta lands held by certain girassias as owners in possession.[79]

Where a property agreed to be sold had been notified for acquisition under the Calcutta Improvement Act, and neither the vendor nor the purchaser was aware of the notification at the date of their agreement, the notification was held to constitute a matter of fact essential to the agreement within the meaning of this section and the agreement was declared void.[80] Upon the same principles a compromise of a suit will be set aside if it was brought about under a mistake as to the subject-matter of the agreement.[81] The view thus expressed is confirmed by later English cases. Not only a compromise,[82] but an order of the Court made by consent,[83] may be set aside if the arrangement was entered into even under a onesided mistake of counsel

---

72 (1878) L.R. 5 I.A. 61, at p. 73. So too a vendor is bound to deliver goods at the price set out in the contract of sale although the cost is increased by the subsequent imposition of an excise duty: Chin Gwan & Co. v. Adamjee Hajee Dawood & Co. (1933) 11 Rang. 201; 146 I.C. 440; 1933 A.R. 79.

73 U.P. Government v. Nanhoo Mal, 1960 A.A. 420.

74 Chandanmull v. Clive Mills Co. Ltd. (1948) 2 Cal. 297, 1948 A. Cal. 257, 52 C.W.N. 521.

75 (1903) 19 T.L.R. 434.

76 Supra illustration (a).

77 (1903) 2 K.B. 740 (infra).

78 1954 A.B. 148.

79 Secretary of State for India v. Sheth Jeshingbhai (1892) 17 Bom. 407; Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co. v. Secy. of State (1936) 16 Pat. 159; 166 I.C. 966; 1937 A.P. 65; Magee v. Pannine Insurance Co. (1969) 2 All E.R. 281; (1969) 2 W.L.R. 1278.

80 Nursing Dass Kothari v. Chuttoo Lall Misser (1923) 50 Cal. 615; 74 I.C. 996. But if the notification was issued after the contract, the contract would not be void: Jodha Mal v. Associated Hotels of India, 1950 A.L. 106.

81 Bibee Solomon v. Azeez (1881) 6 Cal. 687, 706. But a compromise on a disputed title is not affected by a later decision upon that title: Secy. of State v. Nabi Bakhsh (1927) 100 I.C. 730; 1927 A.O. 198 (estoppel perhaps the better reason).

82 Hickman v. Berens (1895) 2 Ch. 638.

83 Wilding v. Sanderson (1897) 2 Ch. 534.

to which the other party, however innocently, contributed, or even otherwise if the mistake was such as to prevent any real agreement from being formed. A fortiori it is so in the case of the mistake being common to both parties.[84] An auction sale in execution is not a sale between contracting parties and s. 20 does not apply to it and therefore mutual mistake of fact does not make a contract void.[85]

The existence of a separate warranty in a contract of sale is evidence that the matter of the warranty is not an "essential" part of the contract. In such a case, if there is a breach of the warranty, the purchaser is only entitled to compensation for the breach, and the sale is not even voidable. It is still a stronger case where not only no warranty is given by the vendor, but the purchaser buys "subject to all defects." Thus, where a mortgagee sold his claim under the mortgage subject in effect to all defects, and it was subsequently discovered that the mortgage was inoperative, as it was attested by only one witness, it was held that, though both parties were ignorant of that fact at the time of the assignment, the purchaser was not entitled to rescind the contract and claim back the purchase-money, the purchase having been made subject to all defects.[86]

An administration bond given under s. 256 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865 (now s. 291 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925) is not void under this section, though the party to whom the grant of letters of administration is made may have obtained the grant by fraud upon the Court, and though neither the sureties nor the Court to which the bond is passed were aware of the fraud when the grant was made. In a modern case letters of administration of the estate of a deceased person were granted to A on execution of a bond by him and two sureties engaging for the due administration of the estate. It was subsequently discovered that A was not entitled to the grant, and that he had obtained it by false and fraudulent representations made in his petition for letters of administration. The grant to A was thereupon revoked, and a suit was brought against the sureties to recover from them the amount misappropriated by A and forming part of the estate. One of the defences raised on behalf of the sureties was that the bond was void under the present section, and that they were not therefore liable upon the bond. It was contended that both the Court and the sureties were under a mistake as to a matter of fact "essential" to the agreement, namely, that A was entitled to letters of administration, and that the sureties would not have executed the bond but for that mistake. But a majority of the High Court of Calcutta held that the mistake of the Court and of the sureties did not relate to the essential subject of the contract. The decision was also based on the ground that the liability of sureties under an administration bond did not depend on the validity or invalidity of the grant.[87] This decision was upheld on appeal to the King in Council.[88] The same principle has been held to apply to surety bonds under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890. Thus, where A was appointed guardian of the property of a minor on passing a bond to the District Court executed by him and B as surety for the due management and realisation of the minor's property, and failed to account for the income of certain property which actually belonged to the minor, but was not included in the list of properties belonging to the minor annexed to the petition for his appointment, it was held that B was liable to make good the amount, though it might be said that both Court and B were led to believe by A that the property did not belong to the minor.[89] A plea that a contractor tendering did not understand the nature of the work to be done and that he was labouring under a mistake would not entitle him to avoid the contract. More so if he had the means to know everything about the work by exercise of ordinary diligence.[90] See also the commentary on s. 13, above.

At the date of contract of sale of a building for development both parties believed that the

---

84 Huddersfield Banking Co. v. H. Lister & Son (1895) 2 Ch. 273.

85 Shankarlal v. Jethmal, (1961) A. Raj 193. But see Mehar Chand v. Milkhi Ram, 13 Lah. 618, (1932) A.L. 401. (F.B.) (where an auction purchaser was held entitled to recover purchase price on equitable grounds in cases where judgment debtor had no saleable interest).

86 Sada Kavaur v. Tadepally (1907) 30 Mad. 284.

87 Debendra Nath Dutt v. Adm. Gen. of Bengal (1906) 33 Cal. 713; see particularly pp. 739-740, 746-747, 751, and 755.

88 S.C. (1908) 35 Cal. 955; L.R. 35 I.A. 109.

89 Sarat Chandra Roy v. Rajoni Mohan Roy (1908) 12 C.W.N. 481.

90 Nimayya v. Union of India (1958) A.AP. 533.

building was not listed under planning legislation as being of special architectural interest, although it was in the provisional list. But the list was given legal effect soon after the contract, and the purchaser claimed rescission of contract. It was held that the doctrine of common mistake required that the plaintiff must show that the mistake existed at the date of the contract. As the property had not been included in the accepted list of special architectural buildings but this was only an administrative step towards listing and it became a listed building subsequent to the date of the contract, the parties had not been under any common mistake, and the plaintiff's action failed. And further as the defendant had not warranted that planning permission could be obtained for development there was an inherent risk which every purchaser should be regarded as being aware of.[91]

In a Bombay case,[92] A, fraudulently representing himself to be B, purported to mortgage to C property belonging to B. C then transferred the pretended mortgage to D. D insisted that the mortgagor should be a party to the deed of transfer. A, still personating B, joined in executing that deed as a concurring party. The deeds of mortgage and transfer contained the usual covenants.[93] D subsequently discovered that the mortgage and transfer deeds were not executed by B, but by A personating him, and he sued C for return of the transfer money. The Court of first instance held that D was not entitled to a return of the transfer money; but on appeal, the case was held to be one of a mistake of fact under this section, so that C was bound under s. 65 to repay the transfer money to D. The correctness of the reversal seems doubtful. On principle D was not entitled to recover as on a total failure of consideration: for, although the assignment passed nothing as a conveyance, it gave D a title to the debt (for which the property was only a security) as against A, who was clearly estopped from denying his identity with B for this purpose; and likewise, by estoppel, a right of action against him on the mortgagor's covenant for title express or implied. Moreover D, having required the supposed B's concurrence, had not relied on any assurance of C's as to the reality of the mortgage made in the name of B. The fact (as presumably it was) that A was missing or insolvent or both does not affect the legal result. Then as to the Indian Acts, it is obvious that there was no contract formed between C and D; but D paid C not under the agreement but as consideration for an assignment made in pursuance of it, and therefore it does not appear that s. 65 of the present Act applies to this case: neither does anything in the Transfer of Property Act seem applicable.

Mistake of fact and law

The plaintiffs on behalf of the Royal Air Force paid to the defendant gratuity on a higher scale due to a mistake of fact and misapplication of orders. The plaintiffs demanded the repayment of excess on an incorrect ground and the demand was delayed. By that time the defendant had spent the whole of the gratuity.

In an action for recovery, it was held that mistake was not of fact but of law and plaintiffs were estopped as they had induced the defendant to act in the manner he did.[94] A mistake, which is a mutual mistake of general law, will not entitle a party to have the contract rescinded.[95] It is not correct to say that money paid under a mistake of law can never be recovered back.[96] In such cases, it is not an action on contract or imputed contract. It is simply anything more cannot be recovered back. If there is something in the conduct of the defendant showing that of the two he is the one primarily responsible for the mistake then it can be an action for restitution of money which the defendant received but which the law says he 91 Amalgamated Investment and Property Co. Ltd. v. John Walker & Sons Ltd (1976) 3All E.R. 509, 516; Davis Contractors Ltd v. Fareham Urban District Council (1956) 2 All E.R. 160 applied.

92 Ismail Alarakhia v. Dattatraya (1916) 40 Bom. 638, 34 I.C. 515.

93 The report is not clear as to this. The judgments, as reported, are not satisfactory. Clare v. Lamb (1875) L.R. 10 C.P. 334, is in favour of the decision below and the opinion expressed in the text, but might be distinguished.

94 Holt v. Markham (1923) 1 K.B. 504; (1922) All E.R. Rep. 134; Skyring v. Greenwood, 107 E.R. 1064 refd. to. Contra Joseph v. Union of India (1967) A. Ker. 3 (Salary paid by a mistake of the Comptroller).

95 Beesly v. Hallwood Estates Ltd. (1960) 1 W.L.R. 549, 563.

96 Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Ranchhod Das Dewani (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127, 133. (A case of recovery of premium paid by a tenant) P.C. Rogers v. Ingham (1876) 3 Ch. D. 351, 355.

ought to return to the plaintiff. All the particular heads of money had and received such as money paid under a mistake of fact, paid under a consideration which has wholly failed, money paid by one who is not in pari delicto with the defendants are only instances where the law says the money ought to be returned.[97] Where neither party is in error as regards the essential facts upon which the contract proceeded and the mistake, if any, was in regard to the effect of Registration, the mistake would be one of law and contract would not be void on that ground under s. 21.[98] A mistaken view of the extent of one's rights is a mistake of law and not of facts.[99]

An agreement based on mutual mistake is void and the same principle will apply to an abandonment of a right under a contract. If both parties are under a misapprehension that a contract had been cancelled due to a mutual mistake the rights of a plaintiff would remain unaffected.[1]

Specific Performance.—As to the right of a party to resist specific performance of a contract on the ground of mistake, see Specific Relief Act, 1963, s. 18, below.

Rectification.—The Courts will not rectify an instrument on the ground of mistake unless it is shown that there was an actual concluded contract antecedent to the instrument sought to be rectified,[2] and that the contract is inaccurately represented in the instrument. Thus in a Bombay Case[3] the plaintiffs chartered a steamer from the defendants to sail from Jedda on "the 10th August, 1892 (fifteen days after the Haj)," in order to convey pilgrims returning to Bombay. The plaintiffs believed that "the 10th August, 1892," corresponded with the fifteenth day after the Haj, but the defendants had no belief on the subject, and contracted only with respect to the English date. The 19th July, 1892, and not the 10th August, 1892, in fact corresponded with the fifteenth day after the Haj. On finding out the mistake the plaintiffs sued the defendants for rectification of the charter-party. It was held that the agreement was one for the 10th August, 1892; that the mistake was not mutual, but on the plaintiffs' part only; and, therefore, that there could be no rectification. The Court further expressed its opinion that even if both the parties were under the mistake, the Court would not rectify, but only cancel, the instrument, as the agreement was one for the 10th August, 1892, and that date was a matter materially inducing the agreement. See also Specific Relief Act. Ch. III, below, and the undermentioned case.[4]

Compensation.—Note, in connection with the present section, the provision of s. 65 that when an agreement is discovered to be void any person who has received any advantage under the agreement is bound to restore it, or to make compensation for it, to the person from whom he received it. It is or should be elementary learning that a deficiency in quantity of land (or anything) sold which can be adequately dealt with by compensation does not come within this section at all.[5]

Sections 20 and 56—Distinction.—In Sheikh Brothers Ltd. v. Ochsner,[6] the Privy Council laid down the distinction between ss. 20 and 56. It held that section 56 applies only where an agreement otherwise valid and enforceable is rendered void by impossibility of perfor-

---

97 Fibrosa Spolka Akcyjna v. Fairbairn Lawson Combe Ltd. (1943) A.C. 32, 62-64; (1942) 2 All E.R. 122; Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Ranchhod Das Dewani (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127, 133. (P.C.).

98 Kalyanpur Lime Co. v. State of Bihar, 1954 S.C.R. 956, 967; (1954) A.SC. 165.

99 Habib Miyan v. Mohammad Mir, 1959 A.MP. 221.

1 Sibtain Fazli v. Star Film Distributors, PLD (1964) 1 S.C. 337, 349 (Pak.).

2 So James V.C. in Mackenzie v. Coulson (1869) L.R. 8 Eq. 368, 375. But English law does not require this where the negotiation has not crystallised in its entirety: all that is needed is a common continuing intention in regard to the particular provision of the agreement sought to be rectified: Crane v. Hegeman-Harris Co. Inc. (1939) 1 All E.R. 662, 664-5.

3 Haji Abdul Rahman Allarakia v. The Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Co. (1892) 16 Bom. 561; followed in U Shwe Thaung v. U Kyam Dun, 125 I.C. 259; 1930 A.R. 12.

4 Madhavji v. Ramnath (1906) 30 Bom. 457.

5 U Pan v. Maung Po Tu (1927) 100 I.C. 327; 5 Bur. L.J. 206.

6 1957 A.C. 136; (1957) 2 W.L.R. 254. See also Bell v. Lever Bros. Ltd., 1932 A.C. 161, 237 per Lord Thankerton.

mance. It had no application to agreements which were void under section 20 by reason of a mutual mistake as to an essential fact and the appellants were not entitled to any compensation under section 56.

It was further held that there is no repugnancy between sections 20 and 56 of the Indian Contract Act, i.e., section 56 applies to enforceable agreements apart from any question of performance. Another reason for that view, was that the words "or with reasonable diligence might have known" in s. 56 imply a set of circumstances in which the promissor is in a different position from the promissee. In other words, the case is to be treated as one of unilateral and not of "mutual" mistake.

21. A contract is not voidable because it was caused by a mistake as to any law in force in India; but a mistake as to a law not in force in India has the same effect as a mistake to fact.

Effect of mistakes as to law.

7* * * *

Illustration

A and B make a contract grounded on the erroneous belief that a particular debt is barred by the Indian Law of Limitation. The contract is not voidable.[8]

The general language of this section represents with approximate fidelity the current doctrine of text-books down to the time when the Act was framed, namely, that relief is not given against mistake of law. However, modern authority has shown that the doctrine in question is not acceptable without rather large qualifications which, it is apprehended, Indian practitioners cannot safely neglect. Certainly mistake of law does not universally or generally invalidate transactions in which it occurs; but neither does mistake of fact. A man cannot go back upon what he has deliberately done—not to speak of excusing himself from liability for wrongful act or offence—merely because he alleges that he acted under a misapprehension of the law. It is a citizen's business to know, by taking professional advice or otherwise so much law as concerns him for the matters he is transacting. No other general rule is possible, as has often been observed, without offering enormous temptations to fraud. Nevertheless in England, at any rate, "it is not accurate to say that relief can never be given in respect of a mistake of law",[9] for where the mistake is so fundamental as to prevent any real agreement "upon the same thing in the same sense" (s. 13, above) from being formed, it is immaterial of what kind the mistake was, or how brought about. And in India it does not seem that the present section was intended to give validity to any apparent agreement not satisfying the conditions of real consent as laid down in ss. 10 and 13. Moreover, it is to be observed that the existence of particular private rights is matter of fact, though depending on rules of law, and for most civil purposes ignorance of civil rights—a man's ignorance that he is heir to such and such property, for instance—is ignorance of fact. A man's promise to buy that which, unknown to him, already belongs to him is not to be made binding by calling his error as to the ownership a mistake of law.[10] There seems to be nothing to prevent the Indian Courts from following English authority in cases of this kind, as in fact the Calcutta High Court has done.[11] A agreed to take a lease from B of certain lands including mineral rights for coal min-

---

7 Omitted by A.L.O., 1950.

8 There was a second illustration to this section: "A and B make a contract grounded on an erroneous belief as to the law regulating bills of exchange in France. The contract is voidable." In this illustration voidable was an obvious slip for void, which is required both by legal principle and by the express terms of s. 20. If there is really a common mistake on an essential matter of fact there is no contract at all, so the illustration was at best out of place. It was struck out by the Repealing and Amending Act. 1917.

9 Allcard v. Walker (1896) 2 Ch. 369, 381, per Stirling J. But see under s. 23, pp. 197-8 Kiriri Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 1 All E.R. 177.

10 See Cooper v. Phibbs (1867) L.R. 2 H.L. 149, 170; Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co. v. Secy. of State (1936) 16 Pat. 159; 166 I.C. 966; 1937 A.P. 65; Ramanujulu v. Gajaraja, 1950 A.M. 146.

11 Ram Chandra v. Ganesh Chandra (1917) 21 C.W.N. 404; 39 I.C. 78. See Appavoo Chettiar v. S.I.R. Co., 1929 A.M. 177; 114 I.C. 358, principle fully acknowledged, but the mistake of paying a sur-

ing operations; it was provided that B should make out a good title to the property. The lease was held by B on a tenure which was believed by both A and B at the date of agreement to carry with it mineral rights. A made several payments in advance to B, but later when a decision of the Privy Council and a decision of the Calcutta High Court threw very grave doubts upon this understanding of the law, A refused to carry out the agreement, and sued B for refund of advances. It was held following the principle of Cooper v. Phibbs[12] that the case was one of a common mistake as to a matter of fact, and that the agreement was void under s. 20, and A was entitled to a refund of the advances made by him. (See s. 65, below.)

Again, the section does not say that misrepresentation, at any rate wilful misrepresentation, of matter of law, may not be ground for avoiding a contract under s. 17 or s. 18.

As to the second clause of the section, Indian jurisprudence has adopted the rule of the Common Law that foreign law is a matter of fact, and must be proved or admitted as such, though the strictness of the rule has been somewhat relaxed by the Evidence Act.[13] Accordingly the statement or finding of any foreign law on which the Court proceeds in a given case is no more binding on the Court in any future case, even apart from the possibility of alteration in the law in question, than any other determination or assumption as to matters of fact.

The cases in which the present section has actually been applied have been fairly simple. Thus where a mortgage bond provided that if the mortgagor failed to redeem the mortgaged property within eight years the mortgagee should be the owner of the property, and the mortgagor, being unable to redeem, executed an absolute transfer of the property to the mortgagee, and put him in possession, it was held that a purchaser from the mortgagor of the equity of redemption subsequent to the date of the transfer was not entitled to redeem, even though the mortgagor might have been ignorant of his right to redeem the mortgage notwithstanding the clause in the mortgage precluding him from doing so.[14] Here there was a complete conveyance and transfer of possession from the mortgagor to the mortgagee. But if the matter had rested in contract only, and there was no transfer of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor would have been entitled to redeem the mortgage, on the principle "Once a mortgage, always a mortgage." There would have been no consideration for a promise to transfer the property to the mortgagee, and the question whether there was any mistake, and if so, whether of fact or law, would really have been superfluous.

An erroneous belief that a widow forfeits by her remarriage the rights of an occupancy tenant under the N.-W.P. Tenancy Act,[15] to which she has succeeded on the death of her first husband as his heir, is a mistake of law, and a contract grounded on such belief is not voidable, though the mistake may be common to both the parties to the contract.[16] Similarly, an erroneous belief that a judgement-debtor is bound by law, to pay interest on the decretal amount, though no interest has been awarded by the decree, is a mistake of law, and a contract grounded on such belief is not voidable. Such a belief is not a belief as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement within the meaning of s. 20: the Privy Council so held in Seth Gokul Dass v. Murli.[17] This is difficult to reconcile with a decision of the Bombay High Court that a contract founded upon the erroneous belief that a judgement-debtor is bound by law to pay interest on the decretal amount, though no interest has been awarded by the decree, was void under s. 20, as being a contract entered into under a mistake as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement.[18] It was said in that case that such a mistake was "a mistake as to the private rights of the parties and as such a mistake of fact." That such a mistake is not a mistake of charge for railway carriage not really authorised by the regulations was held to be a pure mistake of general law. Balaji v. Annaparnabai, 1952 A.N. 2.

12 See supra, note 91a.

13 Indian Evidence Act, 1872, s. 38: "When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of such country and to contain any such law, and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book purporting to be a report of such rulings, is relevant."

14 Vishnu Sakharam v. Kashinath (1886) 11 Bom. 174.

15 See now the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939.

16 Sabihan Bibi v. Madho Lal (1907) All. W.N. 197.

17 (1878) 5 I.A. 78; 3 Cal. 602.

18 Narayan v. Raoji (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 417.

fact, but one of law, is abundantly clear from Seth Gokul Dass's case, where their Lordships said: "There was, no doubt, a mistake of law on the part of the defendants in supposing that execution could be issued for interest upon the amount decreed from the date of the decree to the date of realisation, no such interest having been awarded by the decree. But that mistake appears to have been common not only to the plaintiff and the defendant, but also to the (Court which made the order of attachment)".[19] The erroneous belief that the tribunal under a Debt Conciliation Act had jurisdiction over a non-agriculturist is a mistake of law.[20]

A contract giving a person the right to pluck and gather Kendu leaves is not void on the ground that there was a mutual mistake as to the law by which the tenants have the right to gather the leaves and sell to whomsoever they please and this law was known to both sides. This is governed by s. 21 and not by s. 72.[21] Where a contract is the result of mistake of law of both parties, any sum of money paid under the contract falls under section 21 and not section 72.[22]

If the law does not permit the alienation of Sirdari interest, the same cannot be permitted merely because the alienation was under a mistake of law and the purchaser had paid full value for such interest under that mistake.[23]

Where administrative surcharge at the rate of Rs. 2.50 per quintal was paid by an exporter for getting a permit from Government and that payment was without any sanction of law, the mistake is one of law which falls under s. 21 and not sec. 72, Contract Act, and that mistake does not render the contract voidable.[24]

Difference between S. 72 & Sections 21 and 22.—There is no conflict between s. 72 on the one hand and sections 21 and 22 on the other. A contract made under a mistake of law of parties falls under s. 21 and not under s. 72, Contract Act. And s. 72 deals with cases where money is paid by a mistake or under coercion.[25]

Contract caused by mistake of one party as to matter of fact.

22. A contract is not voidable merely because it was caused by one of the parties to it being under a mistake as to a matter of fact.

At this day this section may seem open to the remark that it contradicts a proposition which no competent lawyer would think of asserting. But when the Act was framed it was not obviously superfluous; for strange things had been said within the foregoing ten years or thereabouts by one or two of the Judges of the Court of Chancery, and lawyers practising in the Courts, as they then were, of Common Law were not expected to have any knowledge of equity, and regarded the doctrines laid down in the name of equity by Vice-Chancellors as mysterious which did not concern them.

As an illustration of the rule, Haji Abdul Rahman Allarakhia v. The Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Co.,[26] cited in the commentary on s.20, "ratification", above may be referred to.

---

19 (1878) 5 I.A. 78, at p. 84; 3 Cal. 602, at p. 608. If a mortgagee advances money under the erroneous belief that a prior unregistered mortgage deed would not take precedence even if registered subsequently, he cannot avoid the mortgage transaction: Jowand Singh v. Sawan Singh, 1933 A.L. 836.

20 Ghanshyam v. Girijashankar (1944) Nag. 244, 1944 A.N. 247.

21 State of Orissa v. Mohammad Khan (1961) A. Or. 75. Cf. Sibtain Fazli v. Star Film Distributors, PLD (1964) I S.C. 337, 349 (Pak.) (case of mistake as to cancellation of a contract).

22 State of Orissa v. K.S. Mohammad Khan (1961) A. Or. 75; Shib Prasad v. Grish Chandra, 1948 A.P.C. 297; 28 Pat. 913. See also under s. 72.

23 Smt. Ram Patti Devi v. Board of Revenue (1973) A.A. 288; 290; Jaswant Singh v. State of U.P. (1971) All. L.J. 748 folld.

24 Dhanyalakshmi Rice Mills etc. v. Commissioner of Supplies (1976) A.SC. 2243, 2250; (1976) 3 S.C.R. 387.

25 Calcutta Corporation v. Hindustan Construction Co. Ltd. (1972) A. Cal. 420, 427; Dhanyalakshmi Rice Mills v. Commissioner of Supplies (1976) 3 SCR 386; (1976) A.SC. 2243, 2250.

26 (1892) 16 Bom. 561.

What considerations and objects are lawful and what not.

23. The consideration or object of an agreement is lawful, unless—it is forbidden by law; or is of such a nature that, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of any law, or is fraudulent; or involves or implies injury to the person or property of another; or the Court regards it as immoral, or opposed to public policy.

In each of these cases, the consideration or object of an agreement is said to be unlawful. Every agreement of which the object or consideration is unlawful is void.

Illustrations

(a) A agrees to sell his house to B for 10,000 rupees. Here B's promise to pay the sum of 10,000 rupees is the consideration for A's promise to sell the house, and A's promise to sell the house is the consideration for B's promise to pay the 10,000 rupees. These are lawful considerations.

(b) A promises to pay B 1,000 rupees at the end of six months if C, who owes that sum to B, fails to pay it. B promises to grant time to C accordingly. Here the promise of each party is the consideration for the promise of the other party, and they are lawful considerations.

(c) A promises, for a certain sum paid to him by B, to make good to B the value of his ship if it is wrecked on a certain voyage. Here A's promise is the consideration for B's payment, and B's payment is the consideration for A's promise, and these are lawful considerations.

(d) A promises to maintain B's child, and B promises to pay A 1,000 rupees yearly for the purpose. Here the promise of each party is the consideration for the promise of the other party. They are lawful considerations.

(e) A, B and C enter into an agreement for the division among them of gains acquired, or to be acquired, by them by fraud. The agreement is void, as its object is unlawful.

(f) A promises to obtain for B an employment in the public service, and B promises to pay 1,000 rupees to A. The agreement is void, as the consideration for it is unlawful.

(g) A, being agent for a landed proprietor, agrees for money, without the knowledge of his principal, to obtain for B a lease of land belonging to his principal. The agreement between A and B is void, as it implies a fraud by concealment by A, on his principal.

(h) A promises B to drop a prosecution which he has instituted against B for robbery, and B promises to restore the value of the things taken. The agreement is void, as its object is unlawful.

(i) A's estate is sold for arrears of revenue under the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, by which the defaulter is prohibited from purchasing the estate. B, upon, an understanding with A, becomes the purchaser, and agrees to convey the estate to A upon receiving from him the price which B has paid. The agreement is void, as it renders the transaction, in effect, a purchase by the defaulter, and would so defeat the object of the law.[27]

(j) A, who is B's mukhtar, promises to exercise his influence, as such, with B in favour of C, and C promises to pay, 1,000 rupees to A. The agreement is void, because it is immoral.[28]

(k) A agrees to let her daughter on hire to B for concubinage. The agreement is void, because it is immoral, though the letting may not be punishable under the Indian Penal Code.

S. 23 inspired by English Common Law.—Section 23 of the Contract Act was inspired by the Common Law of England and should be construed in that light.[29] It lays down that the consideration or object of an agreement which is forbidden by law would be considered to be illegal. The principle behind section 23 is that if anything is done against the public law or public policy that would be illegal in as much as the interest of public will suffer in case a contract against public policy is permitted to stand.[30]

Unlawful Objects.—By s. 10 an agreement is a contract (i.e. enforceable) only if it is made for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object. The present section declares what

---

27 See Mohan Lal v. Udai Narayan (1910) 14 C.W.N. 1031; 7 I.C. 2, which is a parallel case.
28 See Manikka Mooppanar v. Peria Muniyandi, 1936 A.M. 541; 70 Mad. L.J. 724; 164 I.C. 31.
29 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; (1959) A.S.C. 781.
30 Suresh Chand v. Hari Ram & others (1976) All. L.J. 465, 469.

kind of consideration and object are not lawful. Its phraseology is not happy.[31] Properly we speak of the consideration for a promise, not the consideration of an agreement. If I agree to sell you a piece of land for Rs. 20,000, my promise to convey the land is the consideration for your promise to pay the price, and your promise to pay the price is the consideration for my promise to convey the land. There is nothing that can be called the consideration of the agreement between us as a whole. If we read "promise" for "agreement," the text becomes clearer; and s. 2 (e) (see commentary thereon, above), though that sub-section is itself not as clear as might be desired, appears to warrant us in doing this. See also illustration (a) to the present section.

The word "object" in this section was not used in the same sense as "consideration," but was used as distinguished from "consideration," and meant "purpose" or "design".[32] It was so observed in a case where A had agreed to sell goods to B, and B while in insolvent circumstances assigned the benefit of the contract to his brother-in-law C for a consideration of Rs. 100, the object both of B and C being to defraud B's creditors. It was said that the consideration for the assignment, namely, the sum of Rs. 100, was lawful, but the object was unlawful, as it was to defeat the provisions of the Insolvency Act.[33]

S. 23 is not concerned with motive. It is confined to the object of transaction and not to the reasons or motive which prompted it. 'B' borrowed a certain amount of money from 'A' in order to bribe a certain officer. After the bribing was done, 'B' obtained a loan from 'C' in order to pay off 'A' and executed a mortgage in favour of 'C'. It was held that the object of the mortgage was not to affect an illegal purpose as such illegal purpose had already been effected, and, therefore, the mortgage transaction was not contrary to public policy.[34]

With regard to a consideration being forbiden by law, it is to be observed that, where the consideration is a promise, it may be forbidden in one of two distinct senses. The promise may be of something which it would be unlawful to perform; and here it is perhaps simpler to say that the object of the agreement, namely, the unlawful performance, is forbidden. Sometimes, on the other hand, although there is nothing unlawful in performing the promise, a positive rule of law, founded on reasons of general expediency, will not suffer any legal obligation to arise from a promise of that kind. So it is in the cases of wagers, and of agreements in restraint of trade outside the limited sanction given to them. In such cases we shall say that the object of the agreement is not unlawful if by "object" we mean the actual performance; but we shall say that it is unlawful if by "object" we mean the creation of an obligation to perform the things promised. This ambiguity is not cleared up by anything in the language of the Act. It does not, however, seem material for any practical purpose.

There is another possible reason, however, for the use of the word "consideration". A man may enter into a contract lawful in itself, and perform it in such a manner or by such means as to violate some distinct requirement or prohibition of the law. By so doing he may deprive himself of any claim to recover on the other party's promise to pay for his work, and this whether the other party knew anything beforehand of his unlawful action or not. Now in an agreement by mutual promises each of the promises is, properly speaking, the consideration, and the only consideration, for the other; but in discussing the subsequent duties of the parties as to performance the word "consideration" is sometimes applied, in a loose and extended sense, to those cases where the duty of performance on the one part is, according to the original intent of the agreement, conditional on previous or simultaneous performance on the other. In this inaccurate but not uncommon sense it may be said that, when a promisor who might have performed his promise lawfully performs it unlawfully, the consideration for the reciprocal promise becomes unlawful; and the language of the Act may have been designed to 31 The illustrations correspond very nearly to those framed by the Law Commissioners in the first draft, cl. 10. The text is quite different. See Nathusa Pasusa v. Munir Khan (1943) Nag. 42; 1943 A.N. 129.

---

32 Cited and followed in Sreenivasa Rao v. Rama Mohana Rao, 1952 A.M. 579.

33 Jaffer Meher Ali v. Budge Budge Jute Mills Co. (1906) 33 Cal. 702, 710; S.C. on appeal (1907) 34 Cal. 289. See also Sabava Yellappa v. Yamanappa Sabu, 1933 A.B. 209; 35 Bom. L.R. 345; Matta Jaggilodu v. Matta Byramma, 1941 A.P. 349.

34 Kashinath and another v. Bapurao & others (1940) A.N. 305, 311, 312; Kalikumari v. Manomohinee (1935) A. Cal. 748 disting.; Fender v. Mildmay (1938) A.C.1; (1937) 3 All E.R. 402 referred to.

cover such cases. A typical English example is Bensley v. Bignold,[35] where a printer, having put a false imprint on a pamphlet, instead of his true name and address, as required by statute, was not allowed to recover the price of his work. It does not appear whether the defendant was a party to the falsification or not, or for what purpose it was done. Here a personal and quasi-penal disability is imposed on the plaintiff for reasons of general policy without regard to the original character of the agreement, and with the result of conferring corresponding gain on the defendant, whose deserts may be no better in themselves.[36] Practically it is convenient to treat these cases under the head of unlawful agreements, as the broad principles and the results are the same.

Unlawful intention, like negligence, is not presumed by the law, nor is any man expected to presume it without evidence. Therefore, if a contract can on the face of it be lawfully performed, the existence of an undisclosed intention by one party to perform it unlawfully, or use it as part of an unlawful scheme, will not disable the other party from enforcing it, at any rate by way of damages; and if the construction is doubtful, that construction which admits of a lawful performance is to be preferred. Again, if there exists or arises a legal impediment, unknown to the parties at the time of contracting, to the performance of a contract in the manner which otherwise would have been the most obvious, this will not of itself avoid the contract if it can still be substantially performed without breaking the law.[37] But if both parties in fact contemplate an unlawful manner of performance, the case falls within the rule "that a contract lawful in itself is illegal if it be entered into with the object that the law should be violated".[37] A contemplated unlawful or immoral use of property (including money) to be obtained under a contract is an unlawful object within the meaning of this rule, and this whether such use is part of the bargain or not, and whether the party supplying the property is to be paid out of the profits of its unlawful use or not. If both parties know of the wrongful or immoral intention, the agreement is void; if the party who is to furnish the property does not know of it, the contract is voidable at his option when he discovers the other party's intent. This is well settled both by English[38] and Indian[39] decisions.

There are two general principles. Firstly a contract which is entered into with the object of committing an illegal act is unenforceable. If the intent is mutual it is not enforceable at all and if it is on the part of one party he cannot enforce the contract. Secondly the Court will not enforce a contract which is expressly or impliedly prohibited by statute, it does not matter what the intent of the parties was, it is unenforceable. The same principle applies to contracts legal in form but performed illegally.[40]

Illegal contract by performance.—By a contract the defendants agreed to carry loads for the plaintiffs to the seaport. A tube weighing 25 tonnes manufactured by the plaintiffs was loaded on one of the vehicles of the defendants which was not meant for such heavy loads and

---

35 (1822) 5 B. & Ald. 355; 24 R.R. 401.

36 See also Anderson v. Daniel (1924) 1 K.B. 138; B. & B. Viennese Fashions v. Losane (1952) 1 All E.R. 750, where goods were delivered without the invoice required by statute, and the buyer was held not liable for the price. The illegality in such a case is confined to the performance of the contract, and it is only the seller who commits a wrong. The buyer may therefore sue him for breach of contract, if the goods are not in accordance with the contract: Marles v. Philip Trant (1954) 1 Q.B. 29 (the Court of Appeal also held that where the damages have been caused by a third party, from whom the seller bought, avowedly for re-sale, the seller may recover from the third party the damages he has had to pay to his buyer, although this involves pleading an agreement unlawfully performed to establish the damage.

37 Waugh v. Morris (1873) L.R. 8 Q.B. 202: see especially at pp. 207, 208; Hindley & Co. Ltd. v. General Fibre Co. Ltd. (1940) 2 K.B. 517; Gursaran Lal v. Seral Kumar (1956) A. All 136.

38 E.g., Pearce v. Brooks (1866) L.R. 1 Ex. 213; Smith v. White (1866) L.R. 1 Eq. 626. But a transfer of property once executed in possession cannot be set aside on this ground: Ayerst v. Jenkins (1873) L.R. 16 Eq. 275; Alexander v. Rayson (1936) 1 K.B. 169.

39 Pragilal v. Ratan Lal, 1931 A.A. 458; 131 I.C. 546; Shahabudin Sahib v. Venkatachalam, 1938 A.M. 911; (1938) 2 Mad. L.J. 523; Fielding & Platt Ltd. v. Najjar, (1969) 2 All E.R. 150 (Plaintiff aware of and actively participating in illegal purpose.)

40 St. John Shipping Corporation v. Joseph Rank Ltd. (1951) 1 Q.B. 267; B.B. Viennese Fashions v. Losane (1952) 1 T.L.R. 750; (1952) 1 All E.R. 909.

the loading was therefore illegal. The loading was done in the presence of the plaintiffs representative. En route the vehicle overturned and the tube was damaged. The plaintiffs brought an action for damages

It was held that even if the contract when made was legal its performance, participated in by the plaintiff was illegal, the load being a breach of regulations. The plaintiffs were debarred from claiming damages.[41]

An agreement may be rendered unlawful by its connection with a past as well as with a future unlawful transaction. Thus the giving of security for money purporting to be payable under an agreement whose purpose was unlawful is itself an unlawful object, even though it was not stipulated for by the original agreement.[42] In a Calcutta case property was leased for the purpose of carrying on organized prostitution. The lessee deposited a sum of money with the lessor for which the lessor subsequently passed a promissory note. The suit on the promissory note was dismissed on the ground that a bond or other instrument connected with an illegal agreement could not be enforced.[43] Loan to discharge obligation under an illegal contract to the knowledge of the lender is not enforceable.[44] A transfer for an unlawful consideration as void but it does not follow that the transferor is entitled to get back the property not on the ground of the legality of the transfer but on the ground that the Court will not help a particeps criminis but would say "let the estate lie where it lies". But the remedies of a plaintiff of carrying out a tainted transfer will not arise when the carrying out of the unlawful object is stipulated as condition subsequent on the failure of which the transfer will cease to have effect.[45]

With regard to the tendency of an agreement to "defeat the provisions of any law", these words must be taken as limited to defeating the intention which the Legislature has expressed, or which is necessarily implied from the express terms of an Act. It is unlawful to contract to do that which it is unlawful to do; but an agreement will not be void merely because it tends to defeat some purpose ascribed to the Legislature by conjecture, or even appearing, as matter of history, from extraneous evidence, such as legislative debates or preliminary memoranda not forming part of the enactment. It is not defeating the provisions of a law to take advantage of the lack of any provision for some particular case. If the enactment as it stands is intelligable, the Court cannot assume that the omission was not intended.

An agreemet entered into with a fraudulent object is a particular species of the genus of agreements contemplating or involving injury to the person or property of another. The general term "injury" means criminal or wrongful harm. Evidently there is nothing unlawful in agreeing to carry on a business lawful in itself, though the property of rivals in that business may, in a wide sense, be injured by the consequent and intended competition.

There is no department of the law in which the Courts have exercised larger powers of restraining individual freedom on grounds of general utility, and it is impossible to provide in terms for this discretion without laying down that all objects are unlawful which the Court regards as immoral or opposed to public policy. The epithet "immoral" points, in legal usuage, to conduct or purposes which the State, though disapproving them, is unable, or not advised, to visit with direct punishment. "Public policy" points to political, economical, or social grounds of objection, outside the common topics of morality, either to an act being done or to a promise to do it being enforced. Agreements or other acts may be contrary to the policy of the law without being morally disgraceful or exposed to any obvious moral censure.

English authorities on the subject of agreements being held unenforceable as running

---

41 Ashburn Benson Peace & Co. Ltd. v. A.V. Dawson Ltd.(1973) 2 All ER 856, 862; Aderson Ltd. v. Daniel (1924) 1 KB 138, 149; and B & B Viennese Fashions v. Lasone (1952) 1 All ER 909, 913; and J.M. Allan (Merchandising) v. Cloke (1963) 2 All ER 258, 261 applied.

42 Fisher v. Bridges (1854) 3 E. & B. 342; 97 R.R. 701, Ex. Ch.; Geere v. Mare (1863) 2 H. & C. 339, 133 R.R. 707. This doctrine has been extrajudicially criticised, but seems quite sound.

43 Kali Kumari v. Mono Mohini, 1935 A. Cal. 748; 160 I.C. 212. The decision, Liladhar v. Sunderlal, 1932 A.N. 32; 136 I.C. 875, seems to be of doubtful validity.

44 Spector v. Ageda (1971) 3 All E.R. 417.

45 Saradambal Amma v. Natesa Mudaliar (1972) 1 M.L.J. 244, 251; Mucklester v. Brown (1801) Ves.

counter to positive legal prohibitions, to morality, or to public policy, are extremely voluminous and various. Many of them are inapplicable to the circumstances of India; not that the elementary rules of law or morality differ in substance in England and in India, but because under the conditions of Indian manners and society such facts as are dealt with by certain classes of English decisions do not occur. References to some of the English cases on matters of general interest will be found in the judgements of Indian Courts digested below. Some topics, on the other hand, are still of practical importance in India, though they are obsolete or all but obsolete in England. We proceed to discuss the several heads of the section with reference to the Indian authorities.

Ignorance of Law.—It is not correct to say that everyone is presumed to know the law. The true proposition is that no man can excuse himself from doing his duty by saying that he did not know the law on the matter. Ignorantia juris neminem excusat[46] Where two persons together have the common design to use a subject-matter for an unlawful purpose, so that each participates in the unlawful purpose then that contract is illegal in its formation and it is no answer for them to say that they did not know the law on the matter.[47] True proposition is that money paid under a mistake of law without more cannot be recovered back.[48] But it can be recovered if out of the two parties the duty of observing the law is placed on one of them. Then they are not in pari delicto.[49] If both sides have knowledge of illegality the contract is unenforceable.[50] If only one party has such knowledge the innocent party can enforce the contract.[51] A contract to do something which cannot be performed without violation of law is void whether the parties knew the law or not.[52] A creditor lending money for marriage of a debtor's daughter's marriage without knowledge of its contravention of Child Marriage Act can recover his loan[53]

"Forbidden by law."—An act or undertaking is equally forbidden by law whether it violates a prohibitory enactment of the Legislature or a principle of unwritten law. But in India, where the criminal law is codified, acts forbidden by law seem practically to consist of acts punishable under the Penal Code and of acts prohibited by special legislation, or by regulations or orders made under authority derived from the Legislature. This definition was accepted and quoted with approval by the Supreme Court in Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadeodas.[54] Parties are not, as a rule, so foolish as to commit themselves to agreements to do anything obviously illegal, or at any rate to bring them into Court; so the kind of question which arises in practice under this head is whether an act, or some part of a series of acts, agreed upon between parties, does or does not contravene some legislative enactment or regulation made by lawful authority. The decision may turn on the construction of the agreement itself, or of the terms of the Act or other authoritative document in question, or on both. In particular it may have to be considered whether the intention of the legislator was to prevent certain things from being done, or only to lay down terms and conditions on which they might be done.[55] It is easy to say that properly drawn Acts or Regulations ought to leave no doubt on that point, but ex-

---

52, 69; Gascoigne v. Gascoigne (1918) 1 K.B. 283. refd. to.

46 Kiriri Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127 (P.C.) Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett (1961) 1 All E.R. 417; (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 177, 180 (both parties presumed to know the law).

47 J.M. Allan (Merchandising) Ltd. v. Cloke (1963) 2 W.L.R. 899, 903; Waugh v. Morris (1873) 8 Q.B. 202 dist.

48 Rogers v. Ingram (1876) 3 Ch.D. 351, 355; Kiriri Cotton Mills Co. Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192, 203; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127 (P.C.).

49 Browning v. Morris (1778) 2 Cowp. 790, 792; Kiriri Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192, (1960) 1 All E.R. 177; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127 (P.C.); Harse v. Pearl Life Assurance Co. (1904) 1 K.B. 558, 564.

50 Waugh v. Morris (1873) 8 Q.B. 202, 208; Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett (1961) 1 All E.R. 417; (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170 (C.A.).

51 Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett Ltd. (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 179; (1961) 1 All E.R. 417.

52 Gulabchand v. Kudilal (1959) A.M.P. 151. 165 (F.B.) on app. (1966) A.SC. 1735; Reggazzoni v. K.C. Sethia Ltd. (1956) 2 All E.R, 487; Waugh v. Morris (1873) 8 Q.B. 202, 208.

53 Punnakotiah v. Kolikamba (1967) A.AP. 83.

54 (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 417; (1959) A.SC. 781, 786.

55 Cited and applied in Chacko Mathai v. Aippu Yojakku, 1953 A.T.C. 44.

perience has shown that such doubts are possible and have not been uncommon. Broadly speaking, that which has been forbidden in the public interest cannot be made lawful by paying the penalty for it; but an act which is in itself harmless does not become unlawful merely because some collateral requirement imposed for reasons of administrative convenience has been omitted. There was a time when the English Courts almost regarded it as meritorious to evade statutory regulations, and encouraged evasions of them by fine distinctions; but that attitude is long out of date, and examples of it cannot now be taken as precedents.

It is possible for a statute to attach a penalty to making a particular kind of agreement, and at the same time to provide that such an agreement, if made, shall not be, therefore void. The payment or taking of Tilak money is made punishable under Bihar Dowry Restraint Act of 1950. Hence money paid as Tilak money cannot be recovered if the bridegroom's people refuse to proceed with the marriage.[56] We do not know of more than one such case in England,[57] and one such in India.[58]

If a contract is expressly or by necessary implication forbidden by statute or if it is ex facie illegal or both parties know that though ex facie legal it can only be performed by illegality or is intended to be performed illegally, the law will not help the plaintiffs in any way, i.e. by direct or indirect enforcement of rights under the contract. And for this purpose both the parties are presumed to know the law. If expressly prohibited by law, the contract is void ab initio.[59] If both parties have knowledge that a contract could not be carried out without a violation of the law, the contract would be unenforceable.[60] But if only one party has such knowledge the innocent party is not precluded because otherwise it would injure the innocent, benefit the guilty and put a premium on deceit.[61] If a contract can be performed in one of two ways, i.e. legally or illegally, it is not an illegal contract though it is unenforceable at the suit of a party who chooses to perform it illegally.[62]

The plaintiff hired a van which unknown to him had a licence to carry the owner's goods and not the goods of others and the plaintiff's goods were stolen through the negligence of the driver of the van. The transaction was ex facie neither illegal nor contrary to public policy.

The Court was thus not constrained to refuse aid to the plaintiffs who did not know that the contract would be performed illegally.[61]

The sale of a motor vehicle without a current certificate of fitness in breach of a regulation disentitles the party at fault to sue on it because the contract is performed in a prohibited manner, although it was not illegal ab initio.[63] A contract of sale of land without complying

---

56 Ramekbal Singh v. Harihar Singh (1962) A.P. 343.

57 See Pollock Contract, 13th ed., 278. Failure to observe special registry rules by the parties to a transfer of property does not make it unlawful. Maung Ye v. M.A.S. Firm (1928) 6 Ran. 423; 111 I.C. 105. The Special Marriage Act, 1872, s. 16 (contrast s. 15) and the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929 (commonly called the Sarda Act). s. 4, impose penalties on the solemnization of certain marriages but do not in terms declare that the marriages are not void, though that is the effect of the Acts.

58 Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947.

59 Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett Ltd. (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 177. 180; distinguishing In re Arbitration between Mahmoud and Isphani (1921) 2 K.B. 716 and J. Dennis & Co. Ltd. v. Munn (1949) 2 K.B. 327; (1949) 1 All E.R. 616. In both these cases, there was a statutory prohibition against the act. In the former "no person shall buy or sell... except in accordance with... a licence". In the latter "the execution... of any operation specified... shall be unlawful except so far as authorised". Kanniappa v. Karuppiah (1962) A.M. 240 (F.B.); Gulab Chand v. Kudilal (1959) A.M.P. 151, 165 (F.B.); on app. (1966) A.SC. 1734; Reggazzoni v. K.C. Shethia Ltd. (1956) 2 All E.R. 456; Waugh v. Morris (1873) 8 Q.B. 202, 208; Foster v. Drescoll (1929) 1 K.B. 470, 510, 521; (1928) All E.R. Rep. 130.

60 Waugh v. Morris (1873) 8 Q.B. 202, 208 (per Lord Blackburn); Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett Ltd. (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 171, 179 (C.A.).

61 Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 179 (C.A.).

62 Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett Ltd. (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 182 (C.A.); Strongman v. Sincock (1955) 2 Q.B. 525; (1955) 3 All E.R. 90 (C.A.). (A builder building without a licence where a licence was required).

63 Berrett v. Smith (1965) N.Z.L.R. 460, 463, 465; Anderson Ltd. v. Daniel (1924) 1 K.B. 138; B. & B. Viennese Fashions v. Losane (1952) 1 All E.R. 909; and Marles v. Philip Trant & Sons Ltd. (1954) 1 Q.B. 29; (1953) 1 All E.R. 645 refd. to; St. John Shipping Corporation v. Joseph Rank Ltd. (1957) 1 Q.B. 267; (1956) 3 All E.R. 683.

with the provisions of the Town Planning & Development Act is illegal and invalid for contravention of the Act. Neither the Act nor the Regulations thereunder expressly prohibited selling before the issue of a certificate thereunder but the prohibition was implied from the steps to be taken by any person desiring to sell land. The contract was held to contravene the provisions of the Act and was therefore illegal and invalid.[64] By a provision of the Landlord and Tenant (Rent Control) Act the payment of premium was prohibited and if paid it was recoverable. Under the Act the expression "premium" includes... any other pecuniary consideration in addition to rent", which was held to include any consideration whereby there is benefit to the landlord or detriment to the tenant. The mere fact that the premium was required to be paid not to the landlord, nor to any person on his behalf, but to a third party could not remove the transaction from the operation of the Act, since it could not be supposed that the legislature intended that a landlord might lawfully require the payment of premium for the benefit of a third party.[65] Under Uganda Rent Restriction Ordinance penalty is imposed on the landlord if he receives any sum of money by way of premium and fails to observe the law. As the parties are not in pari delicto, the tenant is not precluded from suing for recovery of premium paid in contravention of the Ordinance. Nor does the absence of remedy under the Ordinance affect the right of the tenant to recover.[66]

Cases under this head have arisen principally in connection with Excise Acts, and they have almost all been decided with reference to English law. The principles may be stated thus:

> "When conditions are prescribed by statute for the conduct of any particular business or profession, and such conditions are not observed, agreements made in the course of such business or profession are void if it appears by the context that the object of the Legislature in imposing the condition was the maintenance of public order or safety or the protection of the persons dealing with those on whom the condition is imposed; (but they) are valid if no specific penalty is attached to the specific transaction, and if it appears that the condition was imposed for merely administrative purposes, e.g., the convenient collection of the revenue".[67]

The High Court of Bombay acted on these principles[68] where the question arose whether an agreement by a lessee of tolls from Government under the Bombay Tolls Act, 1875, to sublet the tolls was valid and binding between the lessee and sub-lessee. S. 10 of the Act empowered the Government to lease the levy of tolls on such terms and conditions as the Government deemed desirable. One of the conditions of the lease was that the lessee should not sublet the tolls without the permission of the Collector previously obtained, and another condition empowered the Collector to impose a fine of Rs. 200 for a breach of the condition. The lessee sublet the tolls to the defendant without the permission of the Collector, and then sued him to recover the amount which he had promised to pay for the sublease. It was contended on behalf of the defendant that the sublease was unlawful, as it was made without the permission of the Collector, and that the lessee was not therefore entitled to recover the amount claimed by him. But this contention was overruled. Parsons J., after citing the passage set forth above, said:

> "In our opinion this case falls within the latter class, because the statute itself does not forbid or at-

---

64 George v. Greater Adelaide Land Development Co. Ltd. (1929) 43 C.L.R. 91, 101; Harse v. Pearl Life Assurance Co. (1904) 1 K.B. 558 applied.

65 Elmdene Estate Ltd. v. White (1960) 2 W.L.R. 359, at pages 365, 366, 368 and 373; (1960) 1 All E.R. 306 (H.L.); Rex v. Birmingham (West) Rent Tribunal (1951) 2 K.B. 54; (1951) 1 T.L.R. 77; (1951) 1 All E.R. 198 dist.

66 Kiriri Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177 (P.C.); (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127. Gobindram v. Ramphul Singh (1973) A. Punj. 94, 99 (Rent Restriction laws).

67 Pollock, Principles of Contract, 13th ed., 276. Cited and applied in Babiah v. Mohammed Abdus Subhan, 1954 A. Hyd. 156 (F.B.), and Fakirchand v. Bensilal, 1955 A. Hyd. 28 (F.B.); Bhashayya v. Chinnapareddi (1960) A.A.P. 39; Contract contra to Central Excise Act; Jankibai v. Ratan Velu (1962) A.M.P. 117 (F.B.) (breach punishable with fine; object protection of revenue).

68 Bhikanbhai v. Hiralal (1900) 24 Bom. 622; followed Abdullah v. Allah Diya (1927) 8 Lah. 310; 100 I.C. 846; 1927 A.L. 333; Bhagwant Genuji v. Gangabisan (1941) Bom. 71; 42 Bom. L.R. 750; 191 I.C. 806; 1940 A.B. 369, where the authorities are reviewed. Mohamed Syed Baba v. Universal Traders Timbers (1976) A.J. & K. 9,11 (transfer of forest lease). But see P.L. Kapoor v. C.I.T. (1973) 1 All. 293, 313, 315 (imposition of penalty without declaring the contract illegal) tach a penally to the transaction of subletting, but merely gives power to impose a condition under which it can be forbidden should the Collector see fit to do so for what can be only purely administration purposes. The Act imposing tolls is an Act passed for the benefit of the revenue and not an Act for the protection of public morals."

Ranade J. said:

"As a general rule, the law does not forbid things in express terms, but imposes penalties for doing them, and the imposition of such penalties implies prohibition, and an agreement to do a thing so prohibited is unlawful under section 23 of the Contract Act. As no penalties are prescribed under the (Tolls) Act, the agreement does not prima facie fall under the 1st clause of section 23."

Similarly where the lessee of a ferry under the Madras Ferries Act, 1890, transferred the ferry to the defendant without the permission of the Collector as required by the terms of the lease, it was held that the transfer was not for that reason unlawful, as neither the Act nor any rule framed under the Act prohibited such transfer. In such a case, though the transfer may be invalid against Government, it is valid as between the transferee.[69] Similarly where a license to cut grass was given by the Forest Department under the Forest Act, 1878,[70] and one of the terms of the license was that the licensee should not assign his interest in the license without the permission of the Forest Officer, and a fine was prescribed for a breach of his condition, it was held that there being nothing in the Forest Act to make it obligatory upon the parties to observe the conditions of the license, the assignment would be binding upon the parties, though it was competent to the Forest Officer to revoke the license if he thought fit to do so.[71] So was the case where a forest lease prohibited transfer without Government sanction of the lease & the transfer was held not hit by s.23 & therefore not void. Mohammad Syed Baba v. Universal Timber Traders (1976) A. J. & K. 9,11. But an agreement to sell agricultural land without the permission of the Collector as required under s. 4 of Hyderabad Prevention of Agricultural Land Alienation Act is not enforceable as that would be in contravention of a law.[72] The above Acts, which are intended solely for the protection of revenue, must be distinguished from Abkari and Opium Acts, which have for their object the protection of the pubiic as well as the revenue. Thus an agreement to sublet a license to sell arrack issued under the Madras Abkari Act, 1886,[73] or a license to manufacture and sell country liquor granted under the Excise Act, 1881.[74] or a license to sell opium issued under the Opium Act, 1878,[75] or a license to manufacture salt under the Bombay Salt Act, 1890,[76] without the permission of the Collector, is illegal and void, the sublease in each case without such permission being prohibited by statute, and no suit will lie to recover any money due or any sum deposited under such an agreement. The result is the same where the holder of such a license does not actually sublet or transfer the license, but does an act which amounts to a sublease or a transfer, as where he sells his business in an excisable article in consideration of a money payment with leave to the purchaser to carry on the business in his name, and obtains an indemnity from the purchaser against all loss, claims and demands in respect of the business. In that case he cannot recover from the purchaser either the consideration money or payments made by him for debts contracted by the purchaser in the business and covered by the indemnity.[77] Similarly, a 69 Abdullah v. Mammod (1902) 26 Mad. 156; Gauri Shanker v. Mumtaz Ali Khan (1879) 2 All. 411 (F.B.).

---

70 See now the Indian Forest Act, 1927.

71 Nazaralli v. Babamiya (1916) 40 Bom. 64; 30 I.C. 913; Harkaran v. Aggarwal v. Champalal Mahajan, 1962 A.MP. 22.

72 Narasappa v. Sheikh Hazarat, 1960 A. My. 59.

73 Thithi Pakurudasu v. Bheemudu (1902) 26 Mad. 430; Krishna Menon v. Narayana Ayyar (1962) A. Ker. 21 (F.B.).

74 Debi Prasad v. Rup Ram (1888) 10 All. 577. This Act has been repealed by the U.P. Excise Act, 1910. As to what amounts to a sublease, Radhey Shivam v. Mewa Lal (1928) 116 I.C. 89; 1929 A.A. 210; Palepu Narayanmurthy v. Mallapudi Subrahmanyam (1928) 114 I.C. 655; 1928 A.M. 119.

75 Raghunath v. Nathu Hirji (1894) 19 Bom. 626.

76 Ismailji v. Raghunath (1909) 33 Bom. 636; Rabiabibi v. Gangadhar (1922) 24 Bom. L.R. 111; 66 I.C. 393.

77 Behari Lall v. Jagodish Chunder (1904) 31 Cal. 798.

partnership agreement entered into in violation of the terms of a license granted under the Bombay Abkari Act, 1878, which prohibited the license from admitting any partner in the business, the violation being punishable under the Act, is void as forbidden by law;[78] and if a person, being aware of this prohibition, does join as a partner, and advances capital for that purpose, he cannot recover back the amount advanced.[79] Where a rule framed, under the Madras Abkari Act, 1886, prohibited, on pain of a fine, the holder of a license for the sale of toddy from being interested in the sale of arrack and the holder of a license for the sale of arrack from being interested in the sale of toddy, it was held that an agreement of partnership in the business of selling arrack and toddy entered into between a holder of a license for the sale of toddy and the holder of a license for the sale of arrack was void, and that neither party could sue the other for the recovery of money due to him in respect of the partnership.[80] The Silk Control Order of Bengal of 1945 did not contain a provision prohibiting the transfer or subletting of an excise shop or prohibiting the use of the permission to purchase or sell silk and therefore in a partnership, continuing after the repeal of the Control Order, a partner will be entitled to sue for accounts even for the period the order was in force and the return of the amount due.[81] As the licensee must be known to and approved by the authorities, purchase of toddy shops by a benamidar is illegal.[82] A right to collect a tax not leviable under the law cannot be transferred. It can be challenged even though the transferee has collected the tax during a portion of the period of the contract.[83]

But a condition prohibiting the licensee from 'selling, transferring or subletting'' has been held not to prohibit the licensee from admitting partners in the business to which the license relates.[84] The same has been held of a condition prohibiting the licensee from ''subletting, selling, mortgaging or otherwise alienating whole or in part, the privilege granted by this license of manufacturing salt''.[85] Madras decisions have taken a contrary view.[86] A distinction is, however, made between a case in which the partner merely shares in the profits and takes no active part in the sale of liquor, and a case in which the partnership deed entitles the other partners to take part in the business of the licensee.[87] In Gordhandas v. Champsey Dossa,[88] the Privy Council held that an agreement to share the profits of the licensee's business did not amount to subletting or alienation of the license. Accordingly it has been held that where a license has been granted to partners, and one of the partners enters into a sub-partnership, such a sub-partnership does not amount to a subletting or transfer of the license, as the sub-

---

78 Hormasji v. Pestanji (1887) 12 Bom. 422. See also Babiah v. Mohammed Abdus Subhan, 1954 A. Hyd. 156 (F.B.); Rama Rao v. Papayya, 1954 A. Andh. 51. In a later Punjab case it was held that a partnership agreement by a licensee under the Excise Act, 1896 (now repealed, see Punjab Excise Act, 1914), was not void under this section, as it did not contravene any of the rules framed under that Act: Bisheshar Das v. Govind Ram (1906) Punj. Rec. No. 114; Bassayya v. Kotayya (1964) A.AP. 145; Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam (1950) A.M. 444 folld.; C.I.T. v. Union Tobacco Co. (1960) A. Ker. 276; But see Meikole v. Periasami (1967) A.M. 449 (prohibition contained in a Government contract); Uma Shankar Shaw v. C.I.T. (1959) 37 I.T.R. (S.C.) dist.; Maniam Hiria v. Naga (1957) A.M. 620.

79 Gopalrav v. Kallappa (1901) 3 Bom. L.R. 164.

80 Marudamuthu v. Rangasami (1900) 24 Mad. 401. Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam (1950) Mad. 987, 1950 A.M. 444. But the illegality of a partnership affords no reason why a third party who has lent money to the partnership and is not particeps, should not recover a proportion of his loan from the partner who originally held the license: Brahmayya v. Hamiah (1920) 43 Mad. 141; 54 I.C. 45.

81 Mafizud Din v. Habibud Din, 1957 A. Cal. 336.

82 Venkata Subbayya v. Attar Sheikh, 1949 A.M. 252. See also Fakirchand v. Bensilal, 1955 A. Hyd. 28 (F.B.).

83 Ram Kirpal v. Municipal Committee, Bilaspur (1963) A.M.P. 240.

84 Gawri Shankar v. Mumtaz Ali (1879) 2 All. 411, 413; Karsan v. Catlu (1913) 37 Bom. 320; 19 I.C. 442.

85 Champsey Dossa v. Gordhandas Kessowji (1917) 19 Bom. L.R. 381; 40 I.C. 805. In Nalain Padmanabham v. Sait Badrinath (1912) 35 Mad. 582; 10 I.C. 126, it was assumed that the words ''You shall not sell, transfer or subrent your privilege'', included the admission of partners.

86 Ramanayudu v. Seetharamayya (1934) 58 Mad. 727; 155 I.C. 544; 1935 A.M. 440 (F.B.); Satyala v. Bhogavali, 1935 A.M. 895; 158 I.C. 1055; Chennayya v. Jani Kamma, 1944 A.M. 415; Italia v. Cowasjee (1944) Mad. 697, 1944 A.M. 295, 1 Mad. L.J. 97.

87 Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam (1950) Mad. 987, 1950 A.M. 444 (F.B.).

88 1921 A.P.C. 137.

partner cannot interfere in the business of the licensees.[89] A license under the Abkari Act cannot be obtained benami, as that would defeat the purpose of the Act, and therefore no suit can be filed against the benamidar to recover any sum of money from him.[90] The sale of fermented liquor without a license, such a sale being punishable under the Bengal Excise Act, 1878,[91] is unlawful, and the vendor is not entitled to recover the price thereof from the buyer.[92] Paying a sum of money for the purchase of a licence is illegal under the Export Control Order because (1) it will amount to the transfer of the privilege under the export licence and (2) it will be export of goods by a person, the exporter, although the goods are not his property. Any agreement for the payment of price for the licence will be abetment of an offence and hence barred by s.23, Contract Act.[93]

A contract to obtain a license and do a thing in accordance with law is not illegal, but initially valid,[94] and even though the agreement subsequently becomes illegal because no licence is obtained, s. 65 will apply and any advantage received under the contract must be restored.[95] If one party promises to obtain the licence, he may even be liable in damages to the other party for breach of warranty in failing to obtain a licence, unless the latter has been guilty of culpable negligence.[96] A promise to pay commission to a person soliciting insurance business before his obtaining a licence under Life Insurance Act is contrary to law and therefore not payable.[97]

Money lenders:—A loan by a moneylender, who has no licence as required by the Hyderabad Moneylenders' Act at the date of the loan, but procures one only during the pendency of the suit, is not recoverable, as the purpose of the Act is not merely to supervise and regularise moneylending, but to protect borrowers by making such loans void.[98] A bench of the Patna High Court has reached a similar decision under the Bihar Act,[99] but a Nagpur bench has held that under the Central Provinces and Berar Act production of a registration certificate prior to the delivery of judgement suffices.[1] If the object of a statute is the protection of revenue and not the general public—e.g. the C.P. & Berar Moneylenders Act—then a money-lending transaction is not void and the debt can be recovered if the provisions of registration—the breach of which is punishable with fine—are complied with even after the suit is filed.[2] 'A' lent a sum of money to 'B' who refused to repay on the ground of 'A' not being a registered money lender. On 'A' bringing in action for the debt 'B' compromised with 'A' and agreed to repay and not raise the plea of 'A' being a money lender. This was after he took legal advice. 'B' then repudiated the compromise. But the Court of Appeal held that 'B' could not reopen the issue of illegality after the voluntary compromise after competent legal advice.[3]

Reciting a smaller consideration in a sale deed.—Permitting parol evidence to establish the real and larger consideration than the one recited in the deed of sale would not make the

---

89 Venkataratnam v. V., 1944 A.M. 394.
90 Venkata Subbayya v. Attar Sheikh, 1949 A.M. 252.
91 Repeated by the Bengal Excise Act, 1909.
92 Boistub Charan v. Wooma Churn (1889) 16 Cal. 436.
93 M/s Nathmal Bhaironbux & Co. v. Kashiram (1973) A. Raj. 271, 277.
94 Italia v. Cowasjee (1944) Mad. 697, 1944 A.M. 295; Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam, 1950 A.M. 444, 447.
95 Babulal Agarwala v. Vijaya Stores, 1955 A. Or. 49
96 Strongman v. Sincock (1955) 3 All E.R. 90 (C.A.).
97 Life Insurance Corporation v. Madhava Rao, (1972) A.M. 112.
98 Mohammed Bin Salem v. Umaji, 1955 A. Hyd. 113 (F.B.), overruling Shamshir Ali v. Ratnaji, 1952 A. Hyd. 58 (F.B.).
99 J.P. Misser v. B. Dass (1952) Pat. 963, 1953 A.P. 259. (Here the moneylender had no licence, but subsequently assigned the debt to another moneylender, who had a licence).
1 Patiram Tukaran v. Baliram, 1954 A.N. 44, following the 1952 Hyderabad Full Bench decision before it had been overruled in 1955; Janki Bai v. Ratan Melu (1962) A.M.P. 117 (F.B.).
2 Janaki Bai v. Ratan Melu, 1962 A.MP. 117 (F.B.).
3 Binder v. Alachouzos (1972) 2 Q.B. 151; 1972 2 All ER 189.

deed of sale invalid for the consideration recited though not real is still valid and is not hit by s. 23, Contract Act.[4]

A contract is not opposed to law merely because in the notice inviting tenders the measurement of stresses was given in inches and not in metric measures.[5]

In a Madras case an agreement by a Madras District Municipality by which it framed out its right to collect fees on the slaughter of animals was held void as being ultra vires, so that the Municipality could not sue on it. The court said "The powers of a Corporation must be strictly construed and it is hardly too much to say that what is not permitted to such a body is forbidden".[6] But this, according to current English authorities, is not accurately expressed. There is no such rule of construction as supposed, and acts ultra vires are not forbidden; the attempt to do such an act is a nullity.[7] Cases on the doctrine of ultra vires are not really relevant to s. 23.

The surrender of a Raiyati holding by a raiyat in favour of his landlord and transfer by the landlord to the plaintiff of the same holding making a permanent chapparbandi lease was held to be a device to circumvent the provisions of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (S. 46) which prohibits the transfer of raiyati rights by a raiyat and such transfer is void under s. 23 of Contract Act.[8]

A father agreed not to take any share in the movable or immovables of his father's estate in order to prevent the prosecution of his son for theft of ornaments from the father's house. Such an agreement purporting to forfeit his share in father's estate besides requiring registration is void under s.23 Contract Act.[9]

Transfer of land before the Ceiling Act.—A transfer of land bona fide effected in anticipation of Ceiling legislation but at a time when there was no prohibition of transfer nor any existing law will not be hit by section 23, particularly when the statute did not prohibit any transfer after the notified date under the Tamil Nadu Land Reforms (Fixation of Ceiling on Land) Act, 1961.[10]

Contracts of partnership illegal.—Contracts of partnership or agreements involving transfer of a licence in contravention of the provisions of law for the sale of liquor or excisable articles or other articles or which are contrary to other laws are void and moneys paid thereunder cannot be recovered back. The following cases are illustrative of this principle: partnership to carry on trade in tobacco when the partners will be guilty of an offence against the Central Excise laws if they carried on the trade on a licence in favour of one partner,[11] if as a consequence of entering into a partnership the licensee passes an interest to another and thereby contravenes what the law seeks to forbid.[12] The license is a personal privilege.[13]

Under Central Excise Act, trading without a licence or aiding another to so trade would be an offence. Therefore, if money is advanced by a trader with a licence to another without a licence to buy tobacco for the former, it is a violation of the law and consequently illegal under section 23 and the money so advanced is not recoverable as the liability arises from a transaction prohibited by law.[14]

---

4 Dhoddiah Chettiar. v. Madukkarai Estates Tea Factory (1974) 1 Mad. L.J. 146, 151.
5 Yogendra Kumar Jalan v. Union of India (1972) A. D. 234, 236.
6 Municipal Council, Kumbakonam v. Abbahs Sahib (1913) 36 Mad. 113; 11 I.C. 669.
7 See Pollock, Principles of Contract, 12th ed., 101 sqq.
8 Garaj Narain Singh v. Babulal Khemka (1975) A.P. 58, 60.
9 Mst. Haliman v. Mohammad Manir (1971) A.P. 385, 388.
10 Naganatha Ayyar v. Authorised Officer (1971) 1 Mad. L.J. 274, 283.
11 Govindraj v. Kandaswami Gounder, 1957 A.M. 186.
12 C.I.T. v. Union Tobacco Co., 1960 A. Ker. 276; Umacharan Shaw & Bros. v. C.I.T. (1959) 37 I.T.R. 271 dist. (S.C.); Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam Pillai, 1950 Mad. 987; (1950) A.M. 444 (F.B.). Budharam Balakram v. Dhuri Co-operative Society (1972) A. Punj 185 (a licence under Cotton Control Order).
13 Budhram Balakram v. Dhuri Co-operative Society (1972) A. Punj. 185, 188; (1973) Punj. 677.
14 Virayya v. Subba Rao, 1959 A. AP. 647.

Agreement of partnership with a financier in a licensed ganja and opium business without the permission of the Collector is prohibited; a financier cannot be admitted into partnership in such business and the transfer of licence even partially is illegal. The Income-tax authorities would be justified in not registering the partnership.[15] The Allahabad High Court has held that where a licensee enters into partnership with a non-licensee, the mere formation of partnership does not amount to transfer of the licence.[16]

In an Allahabad case on the basis of a liquor licence in the names of some of the partners, a partnership agreed to carry on the business of excise contract. It necessarily implied that contract will be carried on by partners in whose names the licence stands in accordance with law, i.e., those partners will carry on the sale who had the licence or whose names were incorporated in the licence. Hence such a partnership is not illegal merely because it contravenes some executive instructions which have no force of law. And the partnership cannot be refused registration by the Income Tax authorities.[17]

The provision securing the purchase price of the shares of a company by the issue of a debenture on the company's assets is an illegal provision being contrary to s.54 of the Companies Act, 1948.[18]

Where an agent purchasing chillies for a principal knows that they have to be sent to the principal outside the district, which was prohibited by an order of the Collector under the Defence of India Rules, the contract is unlawful under s. 23 and he cannot recover any money under the contract.[19] It has been held that

> "...a void contract is a paradox, in truth there is no contract at all."[20]

Partnership not void—Partnerships where there is no transfer of a licence or contravention of a law are not void. The following cases illustrate this rule: a partnership between a licensee and a non-licensee where the rules require an intimation of the partnership to the Excise authorities, any breach of which is punishable with a fine for non-intimation;[21] a partnership between a licensee under the Opium Act and a third party who only contributes capital and shares in profits and losses.[22]

If one partner has a licence for carrying on tobacco trade at a place A and another partner at a place B and neither of them purchase or sell tobacco in an area outside their respective licences and they have joint business for sharing profits,[23] such a partnership not being illegal, a promissory note by one partner in settlement of accounts with the other is not a void document.[23] The U.P. Excise Act and the manual do not make a breach of the condition of a licence punishable. Therefore the position is that where an enactment merely imposes a penalty without declaring a contract made in contravention of it to be illegal or void, the imposition of penalty by itself without more does not necessarily imply a prohibition of the contract.[24]

In Umacharan Shaw & Bros. v. C.I.T.[25]

three brothers formed a joint Hindu family carrying on the business of sale of foreign liquor at three shops the licences for which were in the name of three different members but not in the name of the Joint

---

15 Machapatra Bhandar v. Income-tax Commissioner (1965) 58 I.T.R. 67; (1965) A. Or. 160.
16 P.C. Kapoor v. Commissioner of Income Tax (1973) 1 All. 293, 306; 90 I.T.R. 172; (F.B.); C.I.T v. Prakash Ram Gupta, 72 I.T.R. 366; Mohd. Wasarat Hussain v. C.I.T. (1971) 82 I.T.R. 718 reld. on.
17 P.C. Kapoor v. C.I.T. (1973) 1 All. 293, 306; 90 I.T.R. 172 (F.B.) Jer & Co. v. C.I.T. 60 I.T.R. 805; Oudh Cocogem & Provision Stores v. C.I.T. 59 I.T.R. 819 disting.
18 South Western Mineral Water Co. Ltd. v. Ashmore (1967) 1 W.L.R. 1110.
19 Krishna Rao v. Kodandarama (1960) A. AP. 190.
20 Per President Gresson: Fawcett v. Star Car Sales Ltd. (1960) N.Z.L.R. 406 at p. 412; quoted in Ingram v. Little (1960) 3 All E.R. 332, 340.
21 Bhushayya v. Chinnapareddi (1960) A. AP. 39; Kalyansundaram v. Chockalingam (1952) A.M. 293 followed. *Chandaji Sukhraj & Co.*v. Lal & Co. (1960) A. AP. 444.
22 Shiv Dayal v. Bishan Das (1961) A. Punj. 405.
23 Bhushayya v. Chinnapareddi, 1960 A. AP. 39, 40. Dhuri Co-operative Society v. Budhram, (1971) A. Punj. 134. (Partnership with a person with licence under Cotton Control Order not illegal.)
24 P.C. Kapoor v. C.I.T. (1973) 1 All. 293, 313, 315 (F.B.) Smt. Janakibai Chunilal v. Melaram (1962) A.MP. 117 (F.B.) reld. on.
25 (1959) 37 I.T.R. 271, 276 (S.C.).

family. The members separated and entered into a partnership for the registration of which they applied to the Income-tax Officer which was rejected inter alia on the ground of the provisions of the Bengal Excise Act which provided that a licence may be cancelled if transferred or sublet without the permission of the licensing authority.

On these facts, the Supreme Court found that there was no subletting or transfer of the licence and that the partnership was not illegal and was valid.

A suit for enforcing a contract for the transfer of a route permit cannot succeed as such transfer is prohibited by s. 59 of the Motor Vehicles Act and the prohibition has relation to matters of public interest and its enforcement would defeat the provisions of the law within s. 23 of Contract Act.[26]

A partnership business in transport can be carried on with vehicles belonging to a partner with a permit in his name as also with vehicles of the partnership in the name of one partner. The Act does not require vehicles belonging to the partnership with permits also in the name of the partnership. Such partnership is legal.[27] But the Madras High Court has held that a partnership contract between A and B to carry on business of transport by lorry with a permit in the name of one of the partners is illegal and opposed to public policy being in contravention of the Motor Vehicles Act. Hence any claim arising out of settlement of accounts of such partnership is also illegal and cannot be enforced.[28]

A carrying on the business of manufacture and sale of safety matches, agreed to take B as a partner for a period of 6 years. A was to get B's name added in the licence and B agreed to and did pay Rs. 10,000 towards capital. The business was carried on but B's name was not added in the licence. Subsequently A & B was expelled from the partnership. B sued for restitution of the moneys paid by him.

The contract, it was held, was not per se illegal but as a joint licence was not obtained, A was guilty of breach of contract which disabled further performance and B was entitled to restitution of the moneys paid by him.[29]

In Shamlal v. State of U.P.,[30] the court allowed deduction of money paid by Government under orders of the Court from the Provident Fund of a dismissed Government servant because of an undertaking given by the servant in court that it be so deducted.

If the transfer of a licence without permission is "invalid", an agreement to transfer it, entered into before the licence is obtained, would also be void on grounds of public policy under s. 23.[31]

Agreements to assign or sublet licenses granted under the excise laws must be distinguished from agreements to sublet a contract with a public department.[32] Thus in a Bombay case[33] the defendant contracted with the Executive Engineer of the Public Works Department to supply materials for the construction of a public road. One of the conditions of the contract was that no work was to be underlet by the contractor without the express permission in writing of the Executive Engineer or his duly authorised agent. Subsequently the defendant, without obtaining the requisite permission, entered into an agreement with the plaintiff under which the plaintiff was to do the contract work, and the defendant to pay him all the moneys

---

26 Rama Rao v. Suryanarayana, 1964 A. AP. 256.

27 Dayabhai & Co. v. C.I.T. (1966) 59 I.T.R. 364; (1966) A. MP. 13. Mangilal v. Gheesukhan (1980) A. Raj. 14, 19. (A case of truck permit.)

28 Vardarajulu v. Thavasi Nadar, 1963 A.M. 413; 1963 Mad. 942; Padayachi v. Sivasooriam, 1950 Mad. 987; 1950 A.M. 444; Maniam Hiria v. Naga-Maistry, 1957 A.M. 620; Kanniappa Nadar v. Karuppiah Nadar, 1962 Mad. 441; (1962) A.M. 240.

29 Kanniappa v. Karuppiah (1962) A.M. 240 (F.B.); Murlidhar Chatterjee v. Thavasi Nadar (1963) Mad. 942; (1963) A.M. 413 (A case of motor transport).

30 (1968) A.A. 139, 146.

31 S. Sibtain Fazli v. Star Film Distributors, PLD (1964) 1 S.C. 337, 363 (Pak.).

32 The formation of a partnership by a contractor with the Forest Department for executing the work under his direction is in itself only a matter of agency and not a subletting of his rights contrary to the Forest Act: Nukala Venkatanandram v. Immidisetty Dhanaraju (1928) 117 I.C. 298; 1929 A.M. 689.

33 Gangadhar v. Damodar (1896) 21 Bom. 522.

that might be received by him from the Executive Engineer under the contract after deducting 10 per cent as the defendant's profit. It did not appear that the plaintiff knew of the condition against underletting contained in the contract. The plaintiff sued the defendant for the balance of money due to him under the agreement. It was held that, as the plaintiff did not appear to have any knowledge of the restrictive condition in the contract, he was entitled to enforce his own contract against the defendant. The Court did not consider it necessary to decide whether the sub-contract was void as opposed to public policy, at the same time intimating its opinion that the sub-contract was to be distinguished from the subletting of a license granted under the excise laws and intended by the Legislature for the use of the licensee only. It was further held that, even if the plaintiff could not enforce his contract, he was at all events entitled under the circumstances to receive from the defendant compensation for the work and labour of which the defendant has received the benefit; but taking a partner is not illegal.[34] The plaintiff at the instance of the defendant erected a factory building without the consent of the Government as required by statute and without a licence. He had been told that the licence had been obtained and thus was the victim of a fraud. He was innocently persuaded to perform the act by the fraud of the defendant. He could therefore recover such sum as would sufficiently recompense him so as to place him in the same position as he would have been if he had never entered the contract.[35] There is no law prohibiting contracts between two companies—one private and the other public—merely because there are common shareholders or common directors. A contract entered into by a Managing Director of public company with a private company in which he holds an interest is not illegal even though in some cases a Court of Equity may not enforce the contract.[36]

Debt incurred for minor's marriage.—Money lent for a daughter's marriage without knowledge of the marriage being in contravention of the Child Marriage Act can be recovered.[37] The marriage of a Hindu minor with a girl below fifteen is not invalidated or rendered illegal by the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929. The marriage properly performed remains valid although those who arrange it or participate in it are liable to be prosecuted. Therefore a debt incurred for the marriage by a Joint Hindu Family major members is binding on the joint family property, the debt not being for an illegal purpose.[38] The Orissa High Court has however held such an alienation void even if ever a part of the consideration was for the marriage.[39] Sale of property where the necessity was of the marriage of minor children but the purchaser was not aware of their ages, is not invalid and cannot be impeached. Such considerations are very valid in the case of a vendor with limited ownership.[40]

Before illegality effected.—Even where a transaction is illegal, it is better to allow the plaintiff to resile from it before it is completed and to award restitution to him rather than to allow the defendant to remain in possession of his illegal gains.[41]

The Supreme Court of New South Wales has, however, held that in a case where the plaintiff has repudiated a contract which is illegal as opposed to public policy for which the defendant has given no consideration while illegal purpose remains wholly executory the Court should grant equitable relief by ordering repayment of money paid, goods delivered or 34 Meikole v. Pariasami (1967) A.M. 447.

---

35 Hatcher v. White (1953) 53 S.R. (N.S.W.) 285.
36 A.J. Judah v. Ramapada Gupta (1959) A. Cal. 715, 728.
37 Punnakotiah v. Kolikamba (1967) A.AP. 83. See also Archbolds (Freightage) Ltd. v. Spanglett (1961) 2 W.L.R. 170, 179; (1961) 1 All E.R. 417.
38 Parasram v. Naraini Devi (1972) A.A. 357, 359; Tattya Mohyaji Dhomse v. Rabha Dadaji Dhomse (1953) A.B. 273; Rambhan Ganjaram v. Rajaram Laxman (1956) A.B. 250; & Hansraj Bhuteria v. Askaran Bhuteria (1941) A. Cal. 244 not folld.
39 Maheshwar Das v. Sakhi Dei (1978) A. Or. 84, 86; Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadeodas (1959) A.Sc. 781 disting.; Ram Jash Agarwalla v. Chandmandal (1937) 2 Cal. 764; Birupakshya Das v. Kunjabihari (1960)26 Cut. L.J. 431; (1961) A. Or. 104.
40 Tribeni Prasad v. Basudeo Prasad (1980) A.P. 220.
41 Taylor v. Bowers (1876) 1 Q.B.D. 291; appd. in Pertherpermal Chetty v. Muniandi Servai, 35 I.A. 98, 103; Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177 (P.C.).

property transferred to the defendant pursuant to the contract notwithstanding an element of turpitude in the contract and both sides are in pari delicto. But the Court gave no opinion on the point if the defendant had given legal consideration. In this case an elderly widow executed a memorandum of transfer of certain property to Wilson and under the agreement agreed to pay £6500 if he promised not to give evidence in a prosecution which he had initiated against her son, a solicitor. The agreement also provided that the property was worth £3200. Wilson at no time made any request for the charge being withdrawn and had expressed his willingness to give evidence. The plaintiff brought an action for rescission of the memorandum of transfer and injunction restraining Wilson from registering it.[42]

Forbidden by law and void.—A contract which is void and unenforceable is not "forbidden by law" within s. 23. What is void cannot be equated with what is "forbidden by law".[43] In the latter case the legislature prohibits it or penalise it, in the former, it merely refuses to give effect to it. If a void contract has been carried out and consideration has passed the promisor may not be allowed to go back upon it without restoring the benefit but the promisee would get no help from the Court if he comes to Court.[44]

Contract by unregistered partnership.—Although an unregistered firm could not take a contract under the P.W.D. rules, yet there was no bar to an individual partner taking such a contract in his own name for and on behalf of himself and another financing the work both forming an unregistered partnership and a suit inter se for rendition of accounts would not be barred.[45]

"Defeat the provisions of any law."—The term "law" in this expression would seem to include any enactment or rule of law for the time being in force in India. This branch of the subject may thus be considered under three heads according as the object or consideration of an agreement is such as would defeat (1) the provisions of any legislative enactment, or (2) the rules of Hindu or Mahomedan law, or (3) other rules for the time being in force in India.[46]

1. Legislative enactments: Void agreements.—Where a lessee of a village from a zamindar agreed to collect from the ryots and pay over to the zamindar an annual festival cess up to that time recovered by the zamindar, it was held that the zamindar could not recover from the lessee the amount of the cess collected by him, the cess being of a nature prohibited by the Bengal Rent Recovery Act, 1859, s. 10.[47] Where a tenant agreed by a registered kabuliat to deliver to his landlord in addition to rent certain agricultural produce, and further to supply the landlord with a cart and bullocks when necessary, and in default to pay the cash value of the said dues along with the rent, it was held that the agreement was one to pay cess, and was therefore void as being barred by the provisions of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901, s. 56.[48] And where the manager of a temple at Broach sued the defendant to establish the right of the temple to levy a cess on cotton purchased in Broach and exported from it, it was held that, assuming that the defendant impliedly assented to pay the cess, the agreement was unlawful as being against the provisions of the Bombay Town-Duties Abolition Act, 1844, which abolish-

---

42 Clegg v. Wilson (1932) 32 S.R. (N.S.W.) 109, 125.

43 Gherumal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 415, 421; (1958) A.SC. 781, 792. See H.C. judgement (1958) A. Cal. 703, 707 (wagering contract is not opposed to public policy or immoral or unlawful); Dip Narain Singh v. Nageshwar Prasad, 52 All. 338; (1930) A.A. 1,3.

44 Dip Narain Singh v. Nageshwar Prasad, 52 All. 338; (1930) A.A. 1.3.

45 Budheswar Barua v. Jatindra Nath Barua (1976) A. Gau. 12.

46 In A.R.L.P. Firm v. U Po Kyaing (1939) Rang. 311; 183 I.C. 673; 1939 A.R. 305 (F.B.), one member of the Court held that "law" in the first paragraph of s. 23 means law enacted by any competent Legislature, and "law" in the second paragraph means personal or customary law, basing his opinion on the notes to s. 23 in the last edition of this book. It is respectfully submitted that nothing in those notes can be construed as confining "law" in the second paragraph to personal or customary law and that the word cannot be so confined.

47 Kamala Kant Ghose v. Kalu Mahomed (1869) 3 B.L.R.A.C. 44. See also Mohan Chand v. Manindra Nath, 1955 A. Cal. 442. But an agreement to perform defined services in lieu of rent is not an illegal "imposition" on the tenant within the Bengal Tenancy Act: Radhu Hari v. Narendra Nath Chatterjee (1929) 115 I.C. 34; 49 Cal. L.J. 189; 1929 A.Cal. 224.

48 Sis Ram v. Asghar Ali (1913) 35 All. 19.

ed cesses of every kind not forming part of the land revenue.[49] Similarly where A was required under the Code of Criminal Procedure[50] to furnish a surety for his good behaviour, and B agreed to become a surety on condition that A would deposit with him the sum in which he was required to go bail, and the deposit was made, it was held, in a suit brought after the expiry of the period of suretyship, that A was not entitled to recover the deposit from B, as the effect of the agreement was to defeat the provisions of the Code by rendering B a surety only in name.[51] Likewise, a surety who has given a bail for an accused person cannot recover from the accused the bail which has been forfeited in consequence of the accused failing to appear when required by the Court which released him on bail.[52] And it is conceived that a suit would not have lain to recover the amount of a loan by a British subject to a native prince in India without the consent of the Government so long as such loans were prohibited by the East India Company's Act, 1797 (now repealed by the Government of India Acts of 1915 and 1935). But where an agreement is merely "void" as distinguished from "illegal," e.g., an agreement to give time to a judgement debtor without the sanction of the Court,[53] either party may, on performing his part of the contract, enforce the contract as against the other.[54] It is not illegal to deal with an irregular unregistered association in ignorance of its character.[55] Money lent on a mortgage is recoverable by sale of mortgaged property even if a society has no power to lend money on a mortgage. Such a transaction is not illegal within section 23 of the Contract Act merely because it is in excess of authority.[56] An agreement between the Electricity Board and a consumer that the latter will bear the cost of a transformer, if it is stolen, is void as being contrary to public policy because under the Electric Supply Act 1948 it is the duty of the Electricity Board to maintain the service line of which the transformer is a part.[57]

The provisions commonly found in statutes relating to insolvency[58] afford further illustrations of the class of agreements now under consideration. Thus an agreement by which an insolvent who had obtained his personal, but not his final, discharge settled the claim of one creditor without notice to the official assignee or his other creditors, and by which that creditor agreed not to oppose his final discharge, was void as in fraud of the creditors and as inconsistent with the policy of the statute then in force.[59] Similarly a promissory note whereby a creditor secures for himself a payment from an insolvent larger than he is entitled to under a composition deed is void where the other creditors are not aware of the arrangement. The same principle applies even though the note may have been passed to the creditor by a third party if it is done with the insolvent's knowledge.[60] And a composition deed whereby a debtor

---

49 Gosvami Shri Purushotamji Maharaj v. Robb (1884) 8 Bom. 398.

50 Then Act X of 1872, s. 505, now Act V of 1898, s. 107.

51 Fateh Singh v. Sanwal Singh (1878) 1 All. 751. Distinguished in Dula Ram v. Akhey Raj, 1952 A. Ajm. 28, where P, who had deposited money with D to stand surety for an accused charged under s. 323 I.P.C., was held entitled to recover from D, on the ground that the surety was not for good behaviour as in 1 All. 751, but it was a case where the Court could have been satisfied under s. 513 Criminal Procedure Code, if the accused himself deposited the money. This is contrary to Laxmanlal v. Mulshankar (1908) 32 Bom. 449, 453, a bench decision, where a similar argument was rejected because the deposit permitted by s. 513 is allowed only in substitution of the bond the principal himself would otherwise execute, not in substitution of any bond which his surety executes.

52 Sunder Singh v. Kishen Chand (1899) Punj. Rec. No. 1; Bhupati Ch. Nandy v. Golam Ehibar Chowdry (1919) 24 C.W.N. 368; 56 I.C. 539; Bur Singh v. Kehru, 1938 A.L. 732.

53 Such an agreement was declared to be void under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, s. 257A. That section is not re-enacted in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

54 Bank of Bengal v. Vyabhoy (1891) 16 Bom. 618. See also Abaji Sitaram v. Trimbak Municipality (1903) 28 Bom. 66. 73.

55 Appa Dada Patil v. Ramkrishna Vasudeo Joshi (1930) 53 Bom. 652; 121 I.C. 581; 1930 A.B. 5.

56 Radhasoami Satsang Sabha v. Hanskumar Kisanchand (1959) A.M.P. 172; In re Coltman, Coltman v. Coltman (1881) Ch.D. 64, 70.

57 U.P. State Electricity Board v. Smt. Lakshmi Devi Sehgal (1977) A.A. 499. 503; Lachoomal v. Radheyshyam (1971) 3 SCR 698; (1971) A.SC. 2213 disting.

58 The "Insolvent Debtors Act" which was referred to in the earlier editions of this work (a reference which seems to have escaped the notice of earlier editors) has long had its place taken by the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, and by the Provincial Insolvency Act., 1920, which replaced the Act of 1907. The earlier cases cited in the notes however are still useful guides to the legal principles involved.

59 Naoroji v. Kazi Sidick Mirza (1896) 20 Bom. 636.

60 Krishnappa Chetti v. Adimula Mudali (1896) 20 Mad. 84; Mohammad v. Parameswara (1906) 16 Mad.L.J. 418; Atumal Ramoomal v. Dipchand Kessumal (1939) Kar. 147; 179 I.C. 901; 1939 A.S. 33.

assigned the whole of his propterty to trustees for the benefit of such of his creditors as should sign the deed within a certain period is void as against the official assignee.[61] On like grounds a collusive assignment of a contract by a party thereto on the eve of his insolvency to his brother-in-law with the object of defrauding his creditors is void under this section and s. 6, cl. (h), of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882,[62] as the effect of such an assignment is to defeat the provisions of the Insolvency Act by preventing the benefit of the contract from vesting in the official assignee.[63] An official assignee must not raise money for pursuing a suit for the estate by agreeing with creditors who advance it to give preference to their debts,[64] but where a discharged insolvent agrees to pay his old debt in consideration of the creditor entering into a fresh transaction, the agreement is valid.[65]

A mortgage of immovable property belonging to a minor by a person holding a certificate of administration in respect of the estate of the minor under the Minors (Bengal) Act, 1858,[66] is void where it is made without the sanction of the Court, even though the mortgage money was advanced to liquidate ancestral debts and to save an ancestral property from sale in the execution of a decree.[67] Where a specific kind of land or specific rights in land have been declared by the Legislature to be not transferable, a transfer of such land or rights in land is void, as to permit it would be to defeat the provisions of the law within the meaning of section.[68] Thus a sale by occupancy tenants of occupancy rights is void, it being of such a nature that if permitted it would defeat the provisions of the N.-W.P. Rent Act, 1873.[69] Similarly an agreement to transfer the rights of an ex-proprietary tenant in a mahal is illegal, as it would defeat the provisions of the N.-W.P. Rent Act, 1881, s.7[70] But there is nothing in the provisions of the latter Act to render an assignment by a lambardar of the profits of a mahal unlawful under this section.[71] A usufructuary mortgage of an occupancy holding by an occupancy tenant is void under this section, for, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901, s. 21.[72] Similarly an agreement by an ex-proprietary tenant to pay rent for his ex-proprietary holding at a rate higher than that prescribed by s. 10 of that Act, is void, as it would make the provisions of that section entirely nugatory.[73] And where an ex-proprietary tenant mortgaged his rights in contravention of s. 7A of the Oudh Rent Act, 1886, the mortgage was held to be void and the mortgagee was not entitled to recover moneys paid under the mortgage.[74] A contract of sale of occupancy tenancy by an occupancy tenant without the consent of the landlord is not ab initio void under Assam (Temporarily Settled Districts) Tenancy Act and s. 23 of Contract Act is not applicable.[75] If such a mortgage debt is redeemed by executing a bond or passing a promissory note, both the bond and the promissory note would be unenforceable.[76] But where a landholder, who has been re-entrusted with his land by the Court of Wards, but remains under a statutory disability preventing him from transferring any interest beyond his life without the previous sanction of the Collector,

---

61 Manmohandas v. N.C. Macleod (1902) 26 Bom. 765.

62 Clause (h) of s. 6 of the Transfer of Property Act provides that no transfer can be made for an unlawful object or consideration within the meaning of s. 23 of the Contract Act.

63 Jaffer Meher Ali v. Budge Budge Jute Mills Co. (1907) 34 Cal. 289, on appeal from (1906) 33 Cal. 702.

64 Re Purushothamdoss (1927) 116 I.C. 125; 55 Mad.L.J. 657; 1929 A.M. 385.

65 Dooply v. Chotalal (1938) Rang. 19; 174 I.C. 863; 1938 A.R. II.

66 Repealed by the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, of which see ss. 29 and 30.

67 Chimman Singh v. Subran Kaur (1880) 2 All. 902.

68 Phali v. Matabadal (1883) All. W.N. 7 (a case under N.-W.P. Rent Act, 1881, s.9, relating to occupancy rights); Indar v. Khushli (1886) All. W.N. 88 (a case under N.-W.P. Land Revenue Act, 1873, s. 125, relating to sir land).

69 Jhinguri v. Durga (1885) 7 All. 878. See now the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901.

70 Kashi Prasad v. Kedar Nath Sahu (1897) 20 All. 219. See now the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901.

71 Chadma Lal v. Kishen Lal (1894) All. W.N. 17; Bhagwan Das v. Bhajju Mal (1894) All. W.N. 140.

72 Ram Sarup v. Kishan Lal (1907) All. W.N. 76. See now the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926. Mukund Lal v. Sunita, 1931 A.A. 461; 132 I.C. 422.

73 Prag v. Sital (1914) 36 All. 155;22 I.C. 965. Similarly of a contract for the sale of land contravening the rule against perpetuities: Dinkarrao v. Narayen (1922) 24 Bom.L.R. 449; (1923) 47 Bom. 191.

74 Mohammad Muzaffar Hussain v. Madad Ali, 1931 A.O. 309; 132 I.C. 543.

75 Bipin Bihari v. Masrab Ali, 1961 A. Asm. 173.

76 Jagannath v. Baij Nath (1936) Luck. 679; 165 I.C. 587; 1937 A.O. 150.

purports to transfer such an interest without such sanction, the transferee on dispossession after the death of the transferor may sue the latter's legal representatives for breach of the covenants for title and quiet enjoyment.[77]

The Privy Council has held that an agreement by the defendants for relinquishment of all their Sir and Khudkasht lands and ex-proprietary rights therein to the plaintiffs none of whom were at the date of the agreement proprietors, landholders or co-sharers in the land to be relinquished, and for payment of damages for any breach of the agreement by them, is illegal and void as being in contravention of the policy of the said Act.[78] And where a specific individual has been declared, under an Act, to be incompetent to transfer land belonging to him a transfer of his land by that person is void under this section, and such a transfer cannot be enforced even after removal of the disability.[79] It has been held by the High Court of Madras that an agreement by a debtor not to raise the plea of limitation is void under this section, as it would defeat the provisions of the Limitation Act,[80] though not avoided by s. 28 (see notes thereon below). Under s. 60(I)(i) of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, the salary of a railway servant to the extent of Rs. 100 is exempt from attachment, and therefore a compromise decree making moneys from the salary of a railway servant earning less than Rs. 100 payable by instalments is void and unenforceable.[81] But a stipulation for payment of compound interest, though not allowed by the Regulations in force in the Santhal Parganas,[82] is not unlawful within the meaning of the present section.[83] Nor is an alienation made pending a temporary injunction under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code (now O. 39, r.1) unlawful under this section.[84] A loan by a military officer to a man under his command is not unlawful as being against the law, though such a loan may be against the rules of discipline.[85]

A compromise of a suit whereby the defendant agrees to a mortgage decree being passed against him even in respect of a claim not secured by a mortgage is not unlawful or opposed to public policy.[86] There is nothing in the Bengal Drainage Acts[87] to render invalid a contract between a landlord and his tenant by which the latter agrees to pay the former drainage cost in respect of land on which rent has for the first time been imposed, in consequence of a scheme of works carried out under the Acts benefiting it.[88] A bond passed by a ward of the Court of Wards is void. But if after the death of the ward, and after the estate is released from the Court of Wards, the son of the deceased ward obtains a fresh advance from the lender and passes a bond for a sum which includes the loan to the deceased, the bond is valid even as regards that loan, provided it is proved that the lender refused to make a fresh advance unless the son agreed to pay also the loan made to the father.[89] There is nothing in the Central Pro-

---

77 Gulabchand v. Suryajirao, 1950 A.B. 401, following Nisar Ahmad Khan v. Mohan Manucha, 1940 A.P.C. 204, where the P.C. held a mortgage to be void for want of the Collector's sanction, but the covenant to pay nevertheless enforceable.

78 Moti Chand v. Ikram-Ullah Khan (1917) 39 All 173; 39 I.C. 454; 44 I.A. 54; 1916 A.P.C. 59.

79 Radha Bai v. Kamod Singh (1908) 30 All. 38 (a case under Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act., 1882, s. 8, relating to disqualified zamindars). This Act was repealed by the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act, 1903 (U.P. Act 1 of 1903).

80 Ballapraguda v. Thummana (1917) 40 Mad. 701; 35 I.C. 575. See also Bhagwati Prasad v. Chatrapal (1946) All. 711, 225 I.C. 122, 1947 A.A. 38.

81 Madras & Southern Maharata Railway v. Rupchand Jitaji (1950) Bom. 185; (1949) 51 Bom. L.R. 1024; 1950 A.B. 155; Prem Prakash v. Mohan Lal (1944) Lah. 379 (F.B).

82 Regulation III of 1872, s.6, and Regulation V of 1893, s. 24.

83 Shama Charan v. Chuni Lal (1898) 26 Cal. 238.

84 Manohar Das v. Ram Autar (1903) 25 All. 431.

85 Asa Singh v. Sadda Singh (1873) Punj. Rec. No. 16.

86 Bhuvanagiri Subbarayudu v. Maradugula Venkataratnam (1907) 17 Mad.L.J. 200.

87 Bengal Act VI of 1880 and Bengal Act II of 1902.

88 Jyoti Kumar v. Hari Das (1905) 32 Cal. 1019 See Bahadur Sing v. Bedkantha, 1947 A. Cal. 70, 225 I.C. 538.

89 Bindeshri Prasad v. Sarju Singh (1923) 21 All. L.J. 446; 73 I.C. 458. In partition suit a decree was passed against one of the parties for Rs. 1,000 for the marriage expenses of another party. In order to evade the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929, the marriage of the party in whose favour the decree was held that the decree could be executed for the marriage expenses, since the act which the contract was designed to promote was legal where performed and no question of public policy therefore arose; Anandaramayya v. Subbaya, 1940 A.M. 901; (1940) 2 Mad. L.J. 353; sed quaere, for an act may be contrary to public policy, though not within the criminal law, and the policy of the Legislature was vince and Berar Relief of Indebtedness Act which renders a contract of sale of the debtor's immovable property invalid, if the contract of sale provides for the payment of the vendor's debts.[90]

Forbidden by Law.—Jambu Rao's Case was this:

The plaintiff was owner of a certain area of land. He agreed to purchase another area of land and the two parcels together would have exceeded the ceiling prescribed under the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act of 1948. The seller having refused to complete the transaction the plaintiff sued for specific performance and the question for decision was whether the enforcement of contract would result in transgression of the Bombay Act. The Supreme Court held it would not as the object of the agreement was not to defeat the provisions of any law. The transfer itself was not invalid. The parties were agriculturists. There was no restriction against transfers and only the acquisition of an area in excess of the ceiling was invalid resulting in its vesting in the State Government.

The contract of purchase with the knowledge that the purchaser would hold land in excess of ceiling is not void and a suit for enforcement of the contract cannot be resisted on the ground that if permitted would result in transgression of the law.[91]

Where the plaintiff and defendants entered into a contract to do business in oil seeds in the Bombay market and the plaintiff was authorised to do business through sub-agents and also authorised to do business in accordance with the custom of badla in the Bombay markets; the contract between the parties was held not to be a wagering contract but the contract was otherwise void as having been entered into for an object which was prohibited by law, namely the law forbidding forward contracts (Bombay Forward Contracts Control Act) and the Oil Seeds Forward Prohibition Order and Essential Supplies Act with the Central Order of 1943.[92]

Where 'A' enters into a contract with 'B' to engage on 'A's behalf in speculative business and 'B' enters into contract with third parties for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the contract with 'A' in that case it is immaterial whether 'B' dealt with third parties as a principal or as being sub-agent, and if the contract between 'A' and 'B' is illegal under section 23 of the Contract Act 'B's' suit against 'A' must fail.[93] The suit was for recovery of losses incurred in speculative oilseed transactions.

Forbidden by law: Dowry.—A suit by the daughter-in-law against her father-in-law for the recovery of dowry is not maintainable in view of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961. It is submitted that the facts of this case are not clear and it is not shown why the dowry given by the parents and in possession of the father-in-law is not recoverable from the father-in-law particularly in view of 6(1)(b) which specifically provides for giving by the receiver of the dowry to the bride within one year.[94]

Tenancies.—The following tenancy agreements are illegal being in breach of the provisions of Rent Acts: An agreement by a tenant contracting out of the provisions of a Rent Act enacted for the protection of tenants;[95] letting out of premises against the provisions of the U.P. Control of Rents & Eviction Act by resorting to a sham transaction of partnership;[96] an agreement in a contract allowing a tenant to assign or sublet the premises is void, being in breach of a provision of law in Bombay prohibiting subletting or assignment of leases and plea of waiver is not available to the tenant;[97] as assignment in breach of a covenant expressly in-certainly to prohibit such marriages so far as possible, even though they were not made criminal if performed outside British India. The decision can however be supported on another ground, that the executing court could not go behind the decree.

---

90 Balkishan Nathani v. Luxmanrao, 1951 A.N. 187.

91 Jambu Rao v. Appayya (1968) A.SC. 1358; Pahunchi Lal v. Man Singh (1971) A.A. 444, 446.

92 Pratapchand Nopaji v. Kotrike Venkata Setty & Sons etc. (1975) A.SC. 1223; (1975) 3 S.C.R. 1; Shivnarayanan Kabra v. The State of Madras (1967) 1 S.C.R. 138, 144; (1967) A.SC 986 989. folld.

93 Pratapchand Nopaji v. Kotrike Venkata Setty & Sons etc. (1975) A.SC. 1223, 1233; (1975) 3 S C.R. 1; Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas Maiya (1959) SC 781, 792, relied upon.

94 Ouseph Thomas v. Mathai Sarakutty (1975) 1 Ker. 715.

95 V.B. Raju v. K. Avatharam (1965) A.AP. 86. Contra Raja Chetty v. Jaganathadas (1950) A.M. 284 (it was an Act solely for his benefit and protection without infringing any public right or policy). Lachhoomal v. Radhye Sham, (1977) A.S.C. 2213: (1971) 3 S.C.R. 693.

96 Abdul Shakoor v. Rent Control & Eviction Officer, 1959 A.A. 440.

97 Woman Shrinivas Kini v. Ratilal (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217; (1959) A. SC. 689. Lachhoomal v. Radhye Sham, (1977) A.SC. 2213: (1971) 3 S.C.R. 693.

serted at the request and protection of a superior landlord even though superior landlord is not a party to the sublease and cannot forfeit it for breach of the covenant;[98] creation of a tenancy without, as required by U.P. Rent Control Act, informing the District Magistrate that the house had fallen vacant;[99] or in contravention of an order of the District Magistrate under s. 7 of the U.P. (Temporary) Control of Rent & Eviction Act.[1] But the following agreements were held legal as they were not in breach of any provision of any of the various Rent Acts.

An agreement for termination of a lease if two months' rent remained unpaid even though inconsistent with the Rent Act would be binding on the parties. One reason for upholding this agreemeent was that it was not against public policy to abridge the rights of the landloard, who, under the Act, could re-enter on non-payment of one months's rent.[2]

On the same principle of waiver, the Andhra Pradesh High Court upheld an agreement for increase of rent in a case where no application of fixation of fair rent was made and no fair rent was fixed. Such an agreement was held not to be inconsistent with the provisions of the Rent Act.[3] In a suit for ejectment of a tenant under the U.P. (Temporary) Control of Rents & Eviction Act (1943) a valid decree for ejectment can be passed by compromise and s.3 thereof does not prohibit the passing of such decree even if none of the grounds mentioned in s.3 is mentioned in the compromise. The protection being for the benefit of the tenant, he can waive that right.[4] The Supreme Court has held that the protection is a matter of public policy and is for the protection of the tenants in general and cannot be waived.[5]

But the Madhya Pradesh High Court has held that such a compromise cannot be enforced when not one of the grounds for eviction mentioned in M.P. Act are set out in the compromise.[6]

A tenancy created in the absence of an allotment order by District Magistrate under the provisions of U.P. (Temporary) Control of Rent & Eviction Act, 1947, is not void or illegal.[7]

Under the C.P. & Berar Letting of Houses & Rent Control Order a letting of premises is prohibited in the absence of an order under clause 23 or clause 24 or an assurance that letting is permitted under clause 22(3). A letting without such orders will be void. Therefore a lease by a landlord without these formalities will not be binding and a suit for restoration of possession lies.[8]

Where after a decree for ejectment and arrears of rent was passed the parties agreed in execution and after attachment that judgment debtor will not appeal against the decree and will pay the decretal amount and vacate the premises in a month the agreement was held valid.[9]

A premium paid by a tenant to a landlord in breach of the Uganda Rent Control Ordinance is an illegal payment and can be recovered by the tenant, as the prohibition is against the landlord to charge rent.[10] An agreement to pay premium is unenforceable under s.23 of Contract Act.[11]

Similarly an agreement for payment of premium is prohibited and is an offence under the Karnataka Rent Control Act 1961 and therefore an agreement whereby the tenant was to spend money on repairs and reconstruction of a premises in lieu of 20 years lease and this expense was not to be taken into account against rent is illegal and falls within s.23 Contract Act.[12]

But a contract between a landlord and a statutorily protected tenant to give up possession for the landlord's promise to pay a sum of money to him, the tenant, is not illegal as an attempt to get out of Rent Acts. The landlord, although he cannot obtain possession except under the Rent Act, yet if the tenant per-

---

98 Drive Yourself Hire Co. Ltd. v. Strutt (1953) 2 All E.R. 1475.
99 Lakshmi Chand v. Niadar Mal (1961) A.A. 295; Shamsher Bahadur v. State of U.P. (1964) A.A. 394.
1 Shyam Sundarlal v. Lakshmi Narain (1961) A.A. 347.
2 Raja Chetty v. Jagnnathadas 1950 A.M. 284.
3 Jamunabai v. Narayanamurthy, 1959 A.AP. 108.
4 Sri Tej Chadha v. Smt. Sidheshwari (1973) A.A. 324, 328; Lachhoomal v. Radhey Sham (1971) 3 S.C.R. 693; (1971) 3 S.C.R. 693; (1971) A.SC. 2213 refd. to.
5 Murlidhar Agarwal v. U.P. (1974) A. SC. 1924, 1928: (1975)1 S.CR. 575
6 Hubbilal Sadashiv v. Mahomed Magbool Ahmed Khan (1977) A. MP. 65; Nagindas v. Dalpatram (1974) 2 S.C.R. 544; (1974) A.SC. 2213 reld. on; Chandanbai v. Surjan (1972) A. MP. 106 not folld.
7 Mani Kant Tiwari v. Babu Ram Dixit (1978) A.A. 144; Murlidhar Aggarwal v. State of U.P. (1974) A. SC. 1924; approving Udhoo Das v. Prem Prakesh (1964) A.A.1 F.B. folld.
8 Kakubhai & Co. v. Nathmal Kissen Lal (1980) A.B. 25.
9 Gousmohoddin Gajabur Saheb v. Appasaheb (1976) A Knt. 90 Gajendra Singh v. Durga Kumari (1925) A. A. 503 (F.B.); 23 All L.J. 561; Shivji v. Ratiram (1931) A.N. 126 reld. on.
10 Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) 1 All E.R. 177; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127 (P.C.).
11 Gobindram v. Ramphul Singh (1973) A. Punj. 94, 99.
12 Dhiraj Lal Vittalji v. Mrs. Ivy Dickson (1975) Knt. 529.

forms his part, he can recover the sum of money promised.[13]

Contracts forbidden by regulations under the Defence of India Act are illegal.[14] Agreements in contravention of the Jute Control Order and the Oil Seeds Order are void, and so are any references to arbitration contained in such agreements.[15]

Under a building agreement a building contractor carried out certain work in a building, but the work was not in accordance with the bye-laws of the local authority and was thus contrary to the terms of the agreement; and the contractor did not give notice to the local authority. Objections were raised by the local authority but on an undertaking given, it did not insist on immediate compliance with the bye-laws.

The building agreement was held not to be illegal and the work done was not illegal.[16] The letting of a premises for a club, which required planning permission on the understanding that permission will be applied for, is letting for a legal purpose and the contract is not illegal, even though after taking possession the lessee applied for permission but it was refused.[17]

Breach of Control Order.—The Indian Telegraph Act is not merely a fiscal statute. The object of the legislature in imposing conditions in regard to telephones is to effectively provide a modern public amenity and utility service and the maintenance of public administration, order and safety. S.20A provides for imposing not a single penalty but continuing penalties for a continuing breach of the conditions. Hence an agreement between A & B of submitting the telephone by installing it in the non-subscriber's premises is prohibited and fobidden by law and hit by s.23 of the Contract Act.[18] A forward contract in jute or jute goods in contravention of section 15(4) of the Forward Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1952, which prohibits such contracts except under certain specified circumstances, and which is penalised under another provision of the Act, is invalid.[19] An agreement to share commission between an insurance agent and an insurer is void and unenforceable as it is in violation of a provision of law.[20] Thus, a forward contract with a buyer in Italy to supply oil, the contract being prohibited by the law of India, will not be enforced in India as the contract is illegal and any award given by arbitrators in pursuance of arbitration clause in the contract will not be enforceable under general principles of law applicable to the enforceability of the contracts themselves or of foreign awards made as a consequence of any terms in such contracts.[21] A forward contract which was not void ab initio but became void and unenforceable due to prohibition of law (Cotton Control Order), will become enforceable when the inhibition is lifted.[22] A contract in contravention of the Forward Contracts (Regulation) Act of 1952 is void. If under a contract, the right of the seller to obtain payment of the price of the goods can be transferred, the contract is not non-transferable and is therefore void under the Act of 1952.[23] An arbitration clause in a contract which is illegal and void and which forms part of the contract is itself void.[24]

---

13 Rajbenback v. Mamon (1955) 1 Q.B. 283; (1955) 1 All ER 12.
14 Abdullah Saheb v. Guruvappa, 1944 A.M. 387.
15 Birla Jute Manufacturing Co. v. Dulichand, 1953 A. Cal. 450; Hussain Kasam Dadar v. Vijayanagaram Commercial Association, 1954 A.M. 528. See also David Taylor v. Barnett (1953) I.W.L.R. 562.
16 Townsend (Builders) Ltd. v. Cinema News & Property Management Ltd. (1959) 1 W.L.R. 119.
17 Best v. Glenville (1960) 1 W.L.R. 1198. The dictum of Lord Goddard C. J. in Attorney-General v. Smith (1958) 2 Q.B. 173 at page 180 considered.
18 Seetharama Sastry v. Naganath (1968) A.AP. 315.
19 Sundar Lal & Son v. Bharat Handicrafts Private Ltd. (1968) 1 S.C.R. 608; (1968) A.SC. 406; Sri Bajrang Jute Mills Ltd. v. Lalchand Dugar, 68 C.W.N. 749 overruled; Ratanlal v. F. Mangilal (1963) A.M.P. 323 (contract with entries relating to forward contracts of linseed in Indore State as consideration is illegal; as such is prohibited).
20 Administrator Hindustan Cables Employees Co-operative v. Jatindra Kumar Das (1968) A. Cal. 146; Hayman v. Darwins Ltd. (1942) 1 All E.R. 337; (1942) A.C. 356; Anderson v. Daniel (1924) 1 K.B. 158 refd. to.
21 S. Anonmina v. S. Gorakharam, 1964 A.M. 532.
22 F. Hagami Lal v. Bhuralal (1961) A. Raj. 52.
23 Suvalal Jain v. Clive Mills Co. Ltd., 1960 A. Cal. 90; Raymon & Co. v. Khardah Co. Ltd., 1960 A. Cal. 86 on app. (1963) 3 S.C.R. 183; (1962) A. SC. 1810.
24 Ibid.

The Jute Export Control Order of 1949 does not prohibit or make unlawful a contract for sale of jute goods at a price exceeding the ceiling price. Neither the consideration nor the object of such contract is unlawful or is of such a nature as to defeat the provisions of the control order.[25]

The word 'lawful' in O. 23, r. 1 of C.P.C. is to be read in terms of s.23 of Contract Act.[26]

Deposits-ban of under Prize chits and money Circulation Scheme (Banning) Act 1978.—A firm receiving deposit repayable with interest at 12% and which could be withdrawn at any time by losing interest of 1% does not fall within S. 2 (c) of the Act read with the Statutory form under the Act. And the mere fact that enhanced interest at 36% was paid in cash cannot be called a gift within S. 2(e) because it is a regular payment not dependent on a chance event. It is a payment for consideration because the deposit itself is the consideration.[27]

Breach of Exchange Control Act.—In Dhanrajamal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co.,[28]

cl. 6 of the contract for purchase and sale of East African cotton provided that the buyers were to obtain import licence from the Government of India, failing which the seller would "at their discretion" be entitled either to carry over the goods at the cost of the buyers or call upon them to take immediate delivery on payment in British East Africa, and in default to sell the goods in British East Africa and claim the deficit, if any, between the contractual price and the price obtained on re-sale. By a subsequent letter the sellers confirmed that "if necessary" they would carry over the goods for two months.

This was held not to be vague.

Clause 7 further provided that notwithstanding the import policy followed by the Government of India in respect of the import of the contracted goods, the buyers would be bound to obtain the necessary import licences and communicate the numbers thereof to the sellers on specified dates, failing which clause 6 would operate. The buyers did not perform the contract and the sellers after notice to them resold the goods and thereafter claimed the deficit which the buyers refused to pay.

It was urged that clauses 6 and 7 contemplated acquisition of property or exchange in Africa and thus were in breach of section 5 of the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act since no general or special exemption had been granted thereunder by the Reserve Bank.

The Supreme Court held[28]:

"The contention that the contract involved an actual or, at least, a contingent right to or acquisition of property abroad is not correct. Even if it were so, the contract is saved by s.21, as already explained. In our opinion, the contract was not void for illegality."

2. Rules of Hindu and Mahomedan law.—The rules must of course be such as are recognized and enforceable by Courts of law; they do not include rules of an exclusively religious character which operate in foro conscientiae only.

An agreement that would defeat the provisions of Hindu law would be unlawful within the meaning of the present clause. A contract to give a son in adoption in consideration of an annual allowance to the natural parents is an instance of this class, and a suit will not lie to recover any allowance on such a contract, though the adoption may have been performed. The Hindu law does not recognise in this kali yug any adoption but that of a dattak son, and such a son is defined in the Dattaka Chandrika (s. 1, par. 12) as a son "affectionately given by his father or mother." Besides defeating the provisions of the Hindu law, such an agreement would involve an injury to the person and property of the adopted son, "inasmuch as, if it could be proved that the boy was purchased and not given, it is very probable that the adoption would be set aside, and if such adoption were set aside he would not only lose his status in the family of his adopting father, but also lose his right of inheritance to his natural parents".[29] An agreement in restraint of exercise of power to adopt by a widow with her

---

25 Guljarilal Kanoria v. Busi & Stephenson Ltd. (1960) A. Cal. 590.
26 Putto Lal v. Sumersinghji (1963) A. Raj. 63.
27 Sanchaita Investment v. State of West Bengal (1981) A. Cal. 157.
28 Dhanrajamal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas & Co. (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020; (1961) A.S.C. 1285.
29 Eshan Kishore v. Haris Chandra (1874) 13 B.L.R. App. 42; Sitaram v. Harihur (1910) 35 Bom. 169, at pp. 179, 180; 8 I.C. 625; Raghubar Das Mahant v. Raja Natabar Singh (1919) 4 Pat. L.J. 42; Narayen v. Gopalrao (1922) 24 Bom. L.R. 414; 67 I.C. 850. But a family agreement merely collateral to an deceased's husband's coparceners is void on grounds of public policy whether it is absolute or partial. Hence such an agreement on payment of an annual sum of money by way of maintenance is void as opposed to public policy. It is also repugnant to Hindu law. An adoption in breach of such agreement is valid.[30] A legal agreement between parties does not become illegal, if there is a clause therein that if the agreement fails then another agreement which is contrary to law will come into existence.[31]

A contract entered into by Hindus living in Assam, by which it is agreed that, in the event of the husband leaving the village in which the wife and her friends resided, the marriage shall become null and void, is contrary to the policy of Hindu law.[32] Again, it is a rule of Hindu law that for the fulfilment of the duties which the law imposes upon a wife she must reside with her husband wherever he may choose to reside. An agreement, therefore, by a Hindu husband that he will not be at liberty to remove his wife from her parents' abode to his own abode is illegal, as tending to defeat the rule and being opposed to public policy. An agreement of this kind is no defence to a suit by the husband for the restitution of conjugal rights and a decree directing the wife to live with him at his house.[33]

An agreement entered into before marriage between a Mahomedan wife and husband by which it is provided that the wife shall be at liberty to live with her parents after marriage is void, and does not afford an answer to a suit for restitution of conjugal rights.[34] And so is an agreement entered into after marriage between a Mahomedan wife and husband who were for some time prior to the agreement living separate from each other, providing that they should resume cohabitation, but that if the wife should be unable to agree with the husband she should be free to leave him.[35] Upon the same principle, an agreement between a Mohamedan husband and wife for a future separation is void, and the wife cannot on separation recover the maintenance allowance provided by the agreement.[36] But an agreement made between a Mahomedan wife and husband entered into before marriage by which it is provided that the wife shall be at liberty to divorce herself from her husband under certain specified conditions is valid, if the conditions are of reasonable nature and are not opposed to the policy of the Mahomedan law. When such an agreement is made, the wife may, at any time after the happening of the contingencies, repudiate herself, in the exercise of the power, and a divorce will then take effect as if the talaq had been pronounced by the husband. This is known in Mahomedan law as talaq (divorce by the husband) by tafwiz (delegation), the wife being as it were, the delegate of the husband to pronounce the talaq.[37] An agreement contemporary with the marriage whereby the husband undertook not to ill-treat his wife and also agreed that the wife would be entitled to claim the customary maintenance allowance if relations between husband and wife became strained is not void.[38] But an ante-nuptial agreement between a Hindu husband and wife enabling the wife to avoid the marriage if the husband marries an additional wife, or does not treat her kindly, or asks her to live at place D instead of place B, is void, such adoption does not avoid it: Penumasta Subbaraju v. Indukuri Narayanaraju (1926) 51 Mad. L.J. 366; 97 I.C. 232; 1926 A.M. 1093.

---

30 Punjab Rao v. Sheshrao, 1962 A.B. 175.

31 Sibtain Fazli v. Star Film Distributors, P.L.D. (1964) 1 S.C. 337. 364 (Pak.).

32 Sitaram v. Mussamut Aheeree Heerahnee (1873) 11 B.L.R. 129, 134, 135.

33 Tekait Mon Mohini Jemadai v. Basanta Kumar Singh (1901) 28 Cal. 751; Lahoran Sheikh Nabbi v. Madar Baksh (1878) Punj. Rec. No. 20.

34 Abdul v. Hussenbi (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 728.

35 Meherally v. Sakerhanoobai (1905) 7 Bom. L.R. 602.

36 Fatma v. Ali Mahomed (1912) 37 Bom. 280; 17 I.C. 946; contra Muhammad Muni-ud-din v. Jamal Fatima (1921) 43 All. 650; 63 I.C. 883 followed Muhammad Ali Akbar v. Fatima Begum, 1929 A.L. 660; 119 I.C. 486.

37 Hamidoolla v. Faizunnissa (1882) 8 Cal. 327; Ayatunnissa Beebee v. Karam Ali (1908) 36 Cal. 23; Maharam Ali v. Ayesa Khatun (1915) 19 C.W.N. 1226; 31 I.C. 562, 1916 A. Cal. 761 the condition in this case was divorce if husband married a second wife; followed Badu Mia v. Badrannessa (1919) 29 C.L.J 230, 40 I.C. 803. The wife must establish clearly that the conditions entitling her to exercise the delegated power have been fullfilled: Mirjan Ali v. Mt. Maimuna Bibi, 1949 A. Asm. 14; Buffatan Bibi v. Sheikh Abdul, 1950 A. Cal. 304; Saifuddin Sekh v. Soneka Bibi, 1955 A. Asm. 153.

38 Jamila Khatoon v. Abdul Rashid, (1939) A.L. 165; 184 I.C. 105; Buffatan Bibi v. Sheikh Abdul, 1950 A. Cal. 304.

an agreement being repugnant to the spirit of the Hindu law.[39]

The Courts have held some caste customs to be invalid as being opposed to the spirit of Hindu law. These are—(1) a custom permitting a married woman to leave her husband and contract a second marriage without the husband's consent;[40] (2) a custom authorising a woman to contract a second marriage without a divorce, on payment of a certain sum to the caste;[41] (3) a custom by which the marriage tie can be dissolved by either party without the consent of the other, on payment of a sum of money to be fixed by the caste.[42] The Calcutta High Court, however, has recognised the validity of a custom which allows a married woman, who has been relinquished by her husband, to contract a second marriage.[43] A karnavan of a tarwad cannot part by contract, so as to be unable to resume them, with the privileges and duties which attach to his position as karnavan.[44] Such an agreement is invalid on the principle that "there can be no renunciation of rights and consequent destruction of relative duties prescribed by an absolute law".[45]

3. Other rules of law in force in India.—It is now a settled principle of law that where a decree is silent as to subsequent interest on the amount decreed, interest cannot be recovered by proceedings in execution of the decree.[46] But an agreement in the nature of a compromise between a decree-holder and a judgment-debtor, which proceeds upon ignorance common to both parties thereto, as to the above principle, is not illegal as defeating the provisions of that law.[47] Again, it is a well-established rule of law that, unless a will is proved in some form, no grant of probate can be made merely on the consent of parties. Hence an agreement or compromise as regards the genuineness and due execution of a will, if its effect is to exclude evidence in proof of the will, is not lawful so as to be enforceable under the provisions of s. 375 of the Civil Procedure Code (now O. 23, r. 3).[48] Similarly, a receiver being an officer of the Court, the Court alone is to determine his remuneration, and the parties cannot by any act of theirs add to, or derogate from, the functions of the Court without its authority.[49] A promise, therefore, to pay the salary of a receiver without leave from the Court, even if unconditional, being in contravention of the law, is not binding on the promisor.[50] An engagement of a Chartered Accountant to be paid on the basis of percentage of the relief obtained in an income-tax case of an assessee is opposed to the provisions of the Chartered Accountants Act. It would be so even though it may include fees to be paid to Counsel.[51] Rule 148 of the Railway Establishment Rules which provide for termination of the services of Railway servants who are temporary servants, i.e. those who, without a lien on a permanent post under Government, are appointed to a temporary post or officiate in a permanent post without the procedure required under Art. 311 of the constitution is not void under s.23 of the Contract Act S. 23 applies to agreements inter parts.[52] But an agreement providing for remuneration to be paid to an executor not out of the assets of the testator, but from the pocket of a third person, is neither forbidden by the Administrator-General's Act, 1874, s. 56,[53] nor is it one which if permitted would defeat the provisions of that Act, nor is it against public policy.[54]

---

39 Chait Ram v. Mussammat Nathi (1900) Punj. Rec. No. 15; Rambhabai v. Kanji Ravji, 1953 A. Sau. 88.
40 Reg. v. Karsan Goja (1864) 2 Bom. H.C. 117; Narayan v. Laving Bharthi (1877) 2 Bom. 140.
41 Uji v. Hathi Lalu (1870) 7 Bom. H.C. (A.C.) 133.
42 Keshav v. Bai Gandhi (1915) 39 Bom. 538; 29 I.C. 952.
43 Jukni v. Queen-Empress (1892) 19 Cal. 627: In re Mussamut Chamia, 7 C.L.R. 354.
44 Cherukomen v. Ismala (1871) 6 M.H.C. 145.
45 Ib. per Holloway J. at p. 150.
46 Pillai v. Pillai (1875) 2 I.A. 219; 15 B.L.R. 383.
47 Seth Gokul Das v. Murli (1878) 3 Cal. 602.
48 Monmohini Guha v. Banga Chandra Das (1903) 31 Cal. 357.
49 See Civil Procedure Code, O. 40, r.1.
50 Prokash Chandra v. Adlam (1903) 30 Cal. 696.
51 R.B. Basu v. P.K. Mukherjee, 1957 A. Cal. 449.
52 Priya Gupta v. General Manager, N.E. Ry., 1959 A.A. 643.
53 This Act has been repealed; see now the Adm. General's Act, 1913.
54 Narayan Coomari Debi v. Shajani Kanta Chatterjee (1894) 22 Cal. 14.

An agreement to let to hirers a roulette table with the necessary accessories for playing a game known as Roulette Royale is unlawful and therefore void and unenforceable. Any sum due under an agreement of hiring is not recoverable.[55] A contract which is not per se illegal but has become incapable of performance because of the default of one of the parties, entitles the other party to restitution of the moneys paid by him.[56] The fact that a contract is not enforced by a Court of Equity on equitable ground does not make the contract illegal within section 23 of the Contract Act. The contract may be perfectly good and yet not enforceable in a Court of Equity.[57] A compromise that the defendant would deposit the money in the presence of the deity of a temple and the plaintiff would take it from there and if either party resiled from the agreement the suit would be decided against him was held to be valid and binding on the parties.[58]

An order having the force of law.—A contract of tenancy entered into in violation of s.7 (2) of the U.P. (Temporary) Control of Rent & Eviction Act is not void under s. 10 read with s. 23 of the Contract Act because such tenancy is not "forbidden by law" but by an order of the District Magistrate under that provision (S. 7 (2)) and that Order has "the force of law" and is not law,[59] even though such a contravention would make the landlord liable to prosecution and the tenant to abetment and to eviction from the leased premises despite the fact that the District Magistrate's order was passed after the tenant inducted by the landlord had already got into possession, Abdul Hameed v. Mohammed Ishaq (1975) A.A. 166, 171.[60] It is submitted that the order made by District Magistrate which has "the force of law" is in effect "law" and would therefore be covered by the word "law" in section 23 of the Contract Act. The Supreme Court in interpreting the words "have the force of law" in section 10(2) of the Delimitation Commission Act held them to have the effect of a "law" made by Parliament.[61] The Maximum Price Control Order prescribed the maximum price at which paddy might be sold and any contravention thereof was punishable under s.7 of Essential Commodities Act. Hence an agreement to sell at a price higher than the maximum would be void under s.23, Contract Act.[62]

One of the orders under Defence of the Realm Regulations prohibited sales in the United Kingdom of certain articles to any person not holding a licence for sale for use in the United Kingdom. The plaintiff had a licence to sell but the defendant had no licence to buy. A contract to make such a sale being absolutely prohibited, as a contravention of the Regulation was an offence and the regulation was for public benefit, it was illegal for the plaintiff to make the contract and such a contract cannot be enforced.[63]

A lease deed containing a clause that the tenant will not claim the benefit of the U.P. (Temporary) Control of Eviction & Rent Act 1943 and a clause that the Act will not apply to the lease is to that extent void and a suit for eviction under s.3 of that Act is not maintainable or permissible without the District Magistrate's permission. Further a tenant cannot waive the protection of that provision it not being a benefit of an individual tenant but a matter of public policy.

It is submitted that in view of the severance of powers under the Constitution the exercise of jurisdiction by a Court of Law cannot be dependent on the discretionary permission of

---

55 J.M. Allan (Merchandising) Ltd. v. Cloke (1963) 2 W.L.R. 899.
56 Kanniappa v. Karuppiah (1962) A.M. 240; Murlidhar Chatterjee v. International Film Co. Ltd. (1943) A.P.C. 34; 70 I.A. 35 folld.
57 Albert Judah v. Ramapada Gupta (1959) A. Cal. 715, 728.
58 Nageshwarrao v. Seetharama, 1957 A. AP. 69.
59 Udho Das v. Prem Prakash (1964) A.A.1. (F.B.) overruling; Sham Sundar Lal v. Lakshmi Narain Mathur (1961) A.A. 317. F.B. overruled in Abdul Hameed v. Mohammed Ishaq (1975) A.A. 166, where such order was held to be law.
60 Udho Das v. Prem Prakash (1964) A.A. 1 (F.B.).
61 Meghraj Kothari v. Delimitation Commission & Others (1967) A.S.C. 669.
62 R. Manikyam v. M. Satyanarayana (1972) A. AP. 367, 368.
63 Re: Mahmoud and Ispahani (1921) 2 K.B. 716; (1921) All E.R. Rep. 217; Little v. Poole (1829) 9 B & C 192; 202, 207 appld.

the executive—the District Magistrate being an Executive Officer.[64]

By a compromise between a landlord and tenant of a shop it was agreed—

(a) that on the expiry of thirty days from the date of intimation the shop in dispute would automatically stand released to the landlord;

(b) the landlord would continue to utilise the accommodation for his own business or the business of his son;

(c) if the landlord at any time discontinues to use the premises for his own business he will let it out to the tenant on reasonable terms and not to anyone else;

(d) that the shop is already in possession of the landlord and the tenant will not be entitled to take any steps till the landlord himself desires to let out the shop to the tenant.

This compromise was challenged and it was held[65] by a majority that so long as the Act and the Rules continued in force the control of letting vested in the District Magistrate and not in the parties and by compromise that power could not be curtailed and the power was given for the benefit of the general public and for the reason above stated the compromise was void under section 23, Contract Act and the tenant committed no fraud when he applied for eviction of the landlord under section 7-A of the Act and for delivery of actual physical possession to him. The minority view was that even if the compromise was unlawful and the decree passed on that account void the mere fact of the tenant having submitted to the consent decree declaring the order of allotment to be invalid and recognising the right of the landlord to occupy the shop was a highly relevant circumstance bearing on the exercise of discretion of the District Magistrate and the non-disclosure of the fact of the consent decree by the tenant in his application under section 7-A vitiated the order of the District Magistrate.

Legality of Waiver.—In Lachoomal v. Radhey Shayam[66] the Supreme Court held that the provisions of an Act which is for the benefit of an individual and not prohibited by statute as a matter of public policy can be waived on the principle Cuilibet Licet renuntiare juri pro se introducto. But in a later case[67] where a tenant objected to the jurisdiction of a civil Court in matters of eviction without the permission of the District Magistrate under the U.P. (Temporary) Control of Rents and Eviction Act it was held to be barred as violative of s. 23, Contract Act as it was for the benefit of the public and could not be waived.

"Fraudulent."—A sale of immovable property pending a suit against the vendors to recover a debt is not invalid merely because the motive of the vendors may have been to prevent the land from being attached and sold in execution. In such a case the only question is whether the sale was a real transfer of the title to the land for a fair money consideration. The motive of the vendors to defeat the execution of any decree that may be passed against them is immaterial.[68] In this connection may be noted the provisions of s. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. That section provides inter alia that "every transfer of immovable property made with intent to defeat or delay the creditors of the transferor is voidable at the option of any person so defeated or delayed," but that "nothing in this section contained shall impair the rights of any transferee in good faith and for consideration." Such a transfer is not illegal, for the section merely declares that it shall be voidable at the option of the party affected by the transfer. Where the object of an agreement between A and B was to obtain a contract from the Commissariat Department for the benefit of both, which could not be obtained for both of them without practising fraud on the Department, it was held that the object of the agreement was fraudulent, and that the agreement was therefore void.[69] But an agreement bet-

---

64 Murlidhar Agarwal and another v. State of Uttar Pradesh and others (1974) A.SC. 1924. 1928; (1975) 1 S.C.R. 575; Lachoomal v. Radhey Shyam (1971) 3 S.C.R. 693; (1971) A. SC. 2213 disting.

65 Sri Krishna Khanna v. Additional District Magistrate Kanpur, (1975) A.S.C. 1525, 1529 & 1533: (1975) 3 S.C.R. 709; Sures Chand v. Hari Ram (1976) 74 All. L.J. 465.

66 (1971) 3 S.C.R. 698; (1971) A.SC. 2213, 2215.

67 Murlidhar Agarwal v. State of U.P. (1974) A.SC. 1924, 1928.

68 Pullen Chetty v. Ramalinga Chetty (1870) 5 M.H.C. 368, referring to Sankarappa v. Kamayya (1866) 3 M.H.C. 231 and Gnanabhai v. Srinivasa Pillai (1868) 4 M.H.C. 84. See also Rajan Harji v. Ardeshir Hormusji (1879) 4 Bom. 70.

69 Sahib Ram v. Nagar Mal (1884) Punj. Rec. No. 63.

ween A and B to purchase property at an auction sale jointly, and not to bid against each other, is perfectly lawful.[70] A condition in an agreement of sale giving to the vendor the right to rescind though unqualified in its terms is subject to the qualification that the vendor is not guilty of conduct falling short of fraud or dishonesty which might be described as reckless.[71]

Tortious Act.—Even though such clean bills of indemnity was a common practice, an agreement to indemnify a master of a ship against losses arising from the issuing of a clean bill of lading in respect of leaking and defective old barrels is unenforceable because the consideration is illegal—a tort.[72] In dealing with the general practice of indemnities for clean bills of lading, Lord Evershed referred to the observations of Wright J. in United Baltic Corporation Ltd. v. Dundee, Perth & London Shipping Co. Ltd.[73] that in the eye of any of Her Majesty's Courts there can be no enchantment to the continuance of a general practice on the part of Her Majesty's subjects, in whose keeping in some degree must reside the good name and business reputation of Englishmen, whereby falsehood is treated as a convenient fiction for serving business interests.

If the object of a contract is the commission a deliberate act of tort, the contract is illegal even though no criminality or fraud is involved. Hence printer cannot recover the cost of printing a matter if he knew it to be libellous.[74]

Defrauding Revenue and breach of laws of another country.—A contract to do that which is in contravention of the law to safeguard revenue may or may not be void according as the object is to make a contravention expensive or to prohibit it. In the latter case it would be void.[75]

Fiscal Law.—English Courts will not enforce an agreement, whatever be its proper law, if it is contrary to English law, whether statute law or common law: nor will they enforce it even though it is not contrary to English law, if it is void for illegality under the proper law of contract. Further the English Courts will not enforce performance or give damages for non-performance of an act, whatever the proper law of the contract, if the act would be illegal in the country in which it is required to be performed. But there is an exception the scope of which is not settled and that is the breach of revenue or fiscal law of the country.[76] In Dhanrajmal's case, > the Supreme Court held that there was no breach of the Exchange Control Act as the contract did not involve the acquisition of property abroad. Even if it was, it was saved by section 21 of the Exchange Control Act.[77]

Agreements of sale prohibited by statute are forbidden by law and opposed to public policy such as attempts to cheat the revenue (S.269)(a) and (b), Income Tax Act, and s.64(c) Stamp Act.) But they do not affect the transactions or make them illegal and hence earnest money cannot be retained by the vendor, guilty of a fraudulent sale.[78]

An agreement to defraud revenue is illegal,[79] even the revenue of a foreign country. Therefore a transaction between a husband and wife the result of which was the breach of the revenue law of a foreign country is illegal.[80] English Courts would not enforce a contract to

---

70 Nanda Singh v. Sunder Singh (1901) Punj. Rec. No. 37. Quis negavit?
71 Baines v. Tweddle (1959) 3 W.L.R. 291; (1959) 2 All E.R. 724 (C.A.).
72 Brown Jenkinson & Co. Ltd. v. Percy Dalton (London) Ltd. (1957) 3 W.L.R. 403, 414; Silver v. Ocean Steamship Co. Ltd. (1930) 1 K.B. 416.
73 United Baltic Corporation Ltd. v. Dundee, Perth & London Shipping Co. Ltd. (1928) 32 Lloyd's L.R. 272; Brown Jenkinson & Co. Ltd. v. Percy Dalton (London) Ltd. (1957) 3 W.L.R. 403, 420; (1957) 2 All E.R. 844 (C.A.). Lord Evershed M.R. did not think that on ground of public policy the plaintiff should be denied relief.
74 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) para 915.
75 C.I.T. v. Union Tobacco Co. (1960) A. Ker. 276; Bhushayya v. Chinnapareddi (1960) A.A.P. 39. See Basayya v. Kotayya (1964) A.A.P. 145; Parayachi v. Sivasoorian (1950) A.M. 444 folld.
76 Mackender v. Feldia (1966) 3 All E.R. 847, 851.
77 Dhanrajmal Gobindram v. Shamji Kalidas (1961) A.S.C. 1285; (1961) 3 S.C.R. 1020.
78 Jaswant Rai v. Abnash Kaur (1974) 1 Del. 689, 709.
79 Miller v. Karlinski (1945) 62 T.L.R. 85; Alexander v. Rayson (1936) 1 K.B. 169. Anand Prakash Om Prakash v. Oswal Trading Co. (1976) A.D. 24, 27.
80 Emery v. Emery (1959) Ch. 410.

smuggle goods into or out of foreign and friendly country.[81] Under an agreement between the parties the defendants undertook to sell and deliver to the plaintiff, c.i.f. Geneva, a quantity of jute bags which to the knowledge of both parties were to be shipped from India and to be resold to South Africa contrary to the Indian regulation prohibiting export to South Africa. The contract was to be governed by English law. The agreement was held to be unenforceable because English Courts would not enforce an agreement by two persons knowingly to break these laws or to procure someone else to break them.[82] Though the English Courts would not enforce the revenue or penal laws of another country, yet they would take notice of the laws of a friendly country (whether revenue, penal or political laws or howsoever else described) to the extent that they would not enforce an agreement by two persons knowingly to break those laws or to procure someone else to break them.[83] The reason for this is that it would be a breach of the comity which should exist between countries and especially between countries of the British Commonwealth. The Courts of one country should not help break the laws of another.[84] In order to avoid a contract which can be legally performed, on the ground that there was an intention to perform it in an illegal manner, it is necessary to show that there was the wicked intention to break the law.[85] A cheque issued in England on an English Bank by a Pakistani resident in England in return for a cheque of an equivalent amount issued in England on a Pakistani Bank is not affected with ilegality and the Pakistan Exchange regulations do not affect the transaction between persons resident in England.[86] A breach of a provision fixing export price which is contrary to public policy of another country is not binding in India.[87] But agreement and re-arrangement to avoid tax are made every day and are not illegal.[88]

Foreign Law: Proper Law.—Where the contract is governed by a foreign law, the proper law of contract is foreign, the contract will not be enforced in England if it is unenforceable under the proper law unless the vitiating illegality under the proper law is one which the Courts in England decline to recognise because e.g. it imposes an unfair discrimination upon one or both of the contracting parties.[89]

Where, however, a contract is valid by a foreign law and is opposed to public policy in England, then its nature has to be seen. If it involves criminality by statute or at Common law, it will not be enforced in England.[90] Where though not criminally it offends one of the recognised heads of public policy the Courts in England have not enforced it.[91]

But English Courts will not enforce a contract where the performance of that contract is forbidden by law of the country where it is to be performed.[92]

Illegality under proper law.—In the case of a jeweller's block policy negotiated in England, a claim was made on the ground of loss by theft. The underwriters discovered that the merchants made a practice of smuggling diamonds into Italy. The claim was rejected on the ground of non-disclosure of the smuggling activities and the underwriters sought a declaration that the policy was void but it was held that the contract being voidable and not void ab

---

81 Per Lord Somervell of Harrow in Reggazzoni v. K.C. Sethia Ltd. (1957) 3 W.L.R. 752; Foster v Driscoll (1929) 1 K.B. 470, 510, 521; (1928) All E.R. Rep. 130. (A partnership contrary to U.S.A. Laws. To import liquor into U.S.A. contrary to Prohibition Laws. Such partnership is illegal even if the object is not achieved.)

82 Reggazzoni v. K.C. Sethia (1956) 2 All E.R. 487. Cf. Pratabmul v. K.C. Sethia (1951) 2 All E.R. 352 (H.L.).

83 Reggazzoni v. K.C. Sethia (1956) 2 All E.R. 487; Foster v. Driscoll (1929) 1 K.B. 470.

84 Reggazzoni v. K.C. Sethia & Co. (1956) 2 All. E.R. 487, 490.

85 Waugh v. Morris (1873) 8 Q.B. 202, 208 (Blackburn J.); Foster v. Driscoll (1929) 1 K.B. 470, 521 and 510. (Case of partnership contrary to U.S.A. Laws.)

86 Sharif v. Azad (1966) 3 All E.R. 785.

87 Naihati Jute Mills v. Khyaliram (1968) A.S.C. 522.

88 Ionian Bank Ltd. v. Couvereur, (1969) 1 W.L.R. 781.

89 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Para 923 relying on Kahler v. Midland Bank (1950) A.C. 24; (1949) 2 All E.R. 621; Zivonstenska Banka National Corporation v. Frankman, (1950) A.C. 57; (1949) 2 All E.R. 611; Mackender v. Feldia A.G. (1967) 2 Q.B. 590, 601; (1966) 3 All E.R. 847.

90 Boissevain v. Well (1950) A.C. 327; (1950) 1 All E.R. 728,

91 Chitty: On Contract (24th Ed.) Para 924.

92 Ralli Brothers v. Compania Naviera Sota Y Aznar (1920) 2 K.B. 287; (1920) All E.R. Rep. 427.

initio, illegality under the proper law of contract would merely make the policy unenforceable. In that case, the proper law was Belgian law.[93] An agreement between an association of shipowners to use various means to dissuade customers from shipping their goods by the Mogul Line is lawful and gives the Mogul Line no right to sue but the agreement is unenforceable as between the members of the association.[94] The plaintiff claimed the repayment of £4,000 paid to the defendant in London for conveying to him a flat outside the scheduled territories. He alleged that it was implied term of the agreement that the consent of the Treasury should be obtained which had not been obtained. As the payment was held to be illegal being contrary to Exchange Control Act, the plaintiffs could not bring the action and the claim was struck out.[95] In Fielding & Platt Ltd. v. Najjar an English Company agreed to manufacture and deliver an aluminium press to a Lebanese Company. The price was to be paid by promissory notes given at intervals during the progress of the work. The note when presented was dishonoured. When an action was brought the Lebanese Company pleaded illegality in the agreement e.g. the English Company's agreement to render false invoices for deceiving Lebanese authorities into admitting the goods not covered by the import licences. The contract was enforced even on the assumption of illegality as there was not sufficient evidence of an English Company appreciating the illegality.[96]

Contravention of Gold Control Order.—Under National Security (Exchange Control) Regulation every person in possession of gold was to deliver it to the Commonwealth Bank. A bailment of gold in contravention of that regulation was illegal. The bailor could not sue for return of gold from the bailee because he would be obliged to prove the contract of bailment.[97]

Severability of legal and illegal portions of bailment.—Where a contract of bailment is with regard to gold and gems, the former being illegal and the latter legal and the two are severable the latter will be enforced.[96] The right to collect a tax, which is not leviable under the law, cannot be transferred as it is illegal. It can be challenged even though the transferee has collected the tax during a portion of period of the contract.[99]

"Injury to the person or property of another."—The consideration or object of an agreement is unlawful when it involves or implies injury to the person or property of another. A mortgage-bond, whereby a person who is entitled to a moiety only of certain property mortgages the whole of that property, is not void under this section as to the moiety belonging to him, merely because he purports to motgage the other moiety also not belonging to him.[1] A bond which compels the executant to daily attendance and manual labour until a certain sum is repaid in a certain month and penalises default with overwhelming interest is unlawful and void, "such a condition," the Court said, "is indistinguishable from slavery, and such a contract is, in our opinion, opposed to public policy and not enforceable".[2] A compromise between parties to a dispute as to management of endowed property by a Shebait which provides

---

93 Mackender v. Feldia A.G. (1966) 3 All E.R. 849.

94 Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor Gow & Co.; 1892 A.C. 25; (1891-94) All E.R. Rep. 263; ESSO Petroleum v. Harpes Garage (1967) 1 All E.R. 699, 707 (H.L.)

95 Shaw v. Shaw (1965) 1 W.L.R. 537.

96 (1960) 1 W.L.R. 357; (1959) 2 All E.R. 150.

97 Thomas Brown & Sons Ltd. v. Fazal Deen (1962) 108 C.L.R. 391; (1962) 36 A.L.J.R. 229, 236; Bownmakers Ltd. v. Barnet Instruments Ltd. (1945) 1 K.B. 65, 71 dist.

98 Thomas Brown & Sons Ltd. v. Fazal Deen (1962) 108 C.L.R. 391; (1962) 36 A.L.J.R. 229, 236.

99 Ram Kripal v. MUnicipal Committee, Bilaspur, 1963 A.MP. 240.

1 Jogu Mohen Deb v. Davdoong Burman (1908) 12 C.W.N. 94.

2 Ram Sarp v. Bansi Mandar (1915) 42 Cal. 742; 30 I.C. 955; Sathish Chandra v. Kashi Sahu (1918) 3 Pat. L.J. 412; 46 I.C. 418. In an English case, Horwood v. Millar's Timber Co. Ltd. (1917) 1 K.B. 305, the Court of Appeal treated as illegal an agreement, whereby a borrower bound himself never without the consent of the lender to change his employment or his residence, or to part with any of his property, or to incur any obligation legal or moral. They stigmatised the borrower's condition as one for future succession without consultation of the family of the founder as provided in the deed of endowment is not illegal under s. 23 of the Contract Act as it does not cause injury to property of another.[3] For another instance of an agreement void under this head, see the adoption case cited in the notes to this section under the head "Rules of Hindu and Mahomedan Law," above.

Compromise between some partners.—In a suit for rendition of accounts every plaintiff is also a defendant and a defendant a plaintiff. Therefore unless there is a settlement between all the partners including the heirs of a deceased partner, there cannot be a lawful compromise under O.XXIII rule 3 C.P.C. particularly when it may prejudice the rights of parties not joining the compromise.[4]

In a case of a gift to a woman, the object of which was past cohabitation, the Rajasthan High Court held that the gift was valid as a gift was a transfer without consideration. The word object in S. 23 means purpose or design and past cohabitation even though adulterous cannot be an object of an agreement. In S.23 the object and not the motive of the parties has to be considered.[5]

In a Madras case a gift was made by the defendant to his concubine, the plaintiff for natural love and affection and the plaintiff resided in the gifted property for ten years. Later a release called rectification deed was executed by defendant for a consideration of Rs.50/- acknowledging the title of the plaintiff. The previous deed also recited that the plaintiff should continue to live with the defendant. This was held to be a gift and not an agreement for any immoral consideration. The motive was the past cohabitation and future cohabitation which was not intended to be a condition precedent.[6]

"Immoral."—This means "immoral" according to the standards of morality approved by the Courts and accordingly a settlement in consideration of concubinage was held to be void, notwithstanding that it was made by a member of a community among whom concubinage carried no stigma.[7] A gift to a permanent concubine motivated by a desire to compensate for past services is invalid;[8] qua coparcenery property

Immoral—whether sexual immorality.—The limitation on the word "immorality" imposed by the statute, namely, "the court regards it as immoral" shows that immorality is also a branch of the common law like the doctrine of public policy and, therefore, should be confined to the principles recognised and settled by Courts, which have confined the concept to sexual immorality.[9] The word 'immoral' is used in section 23 in a restricted sense and precedents confine it only to sexual immorality and a new head cannot be evolved to bring wagering within its fold.[10]

"Its (of immoral) juxtaposition with an equally illusive concept, public policy, indicates that it is used in a restricted sense; otherwise there would be overlapping of the two concepts. In its wide sense what of slavery. But see Anandiram v. Goza (1918) 27 Cal.L.J. 459; 45 I.C. 965; where the Court was inclined to a different opinion, and dist. Karuppannan v. Pambayan; 1927 A.M. 531; 101 I.C. 39 (no penal interest); Wallis v. Day (1837) 2 M. & W. 273; 46 R.R. 602, decided only that a covenant to serve in a certain trade for life, and not exercise it otherwise, is not in itself in excessive restraint of trade. Cp. Pollock, Principles of Contract, 13th ed., 356.

---

3 Harishankar v. Bishwanath (1965) A.P. 33.

4 Smt. Kiran Arora v. Ram Prakash Arora (1980) A.D. 99, 102.

5 Pyare Mohan v. Smt. Narayani (1982) A. Raj, 43, 47; Nagaratnamba v. Kunuku Ramayya (1968) A.S.C. 253; (1968) 1 S.C.R. 43. followed.

6 Saradambal Amma v. Natesa Mudaliar (1972) 1 Mad. L.J. 244, 253; Ram Sarup v. Bella 11 I.A. 44; 6 All. 313 (P.C.) folld. Thayarama v. Sitaramaswami, 23 Mad. 613 disting.

7 Subava Yellappa v. Yamanappa Sabu, 1933 A.B. 209; 35 Bom. L.R. 345. Mulla's definition of immorality (in 7th Ed. p. 152) applied in Gherulal v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 405, 415; (1959) A.SC. 781.

8 Nagaratnamba v. Ramayya (1968) A.SC. 253; Manicka v. Muniammal (1968) A.M. 392 (a promissory note in favour of a married woman with whom the promissor had an adulterous connection) referring to Marakkal v. Chinnana (1958) 71 Mad. L.W. (S.N.) 137.

9 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 446; (1959) A.S.C. 781.

10 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; (1959) A.S.C. 781, 797. See also Anson: Law of Contract (22nd Ed.) 320.

is immoral may be against public policy, for public policy covers political, social and economic ground of objection."[11]

"Although it has sometimes been said that contracts contra bonos mores are void, the only aspect of immorality with which Courts of Law have actually dealt is sexual immorality;..."[12]

The contention that wagering contracts are illegal under Hindu law or such contracts are immoral according to Hindu law doctrine of pious obligation of sons to discharge the father's debts was held unsustainable in law and negatived by the Supreme Court.[13] Mulla's definition of Immorality page 152 (1944 ed.) was applied in Gherulal v. Mahadeodas.[14] The case-law both in England and India confines the operation of immorality to sexual immorality. The word "immoral" is very comprehensive and it may be said that what is repugnant to good conscience is immoral.

"Its varying content depends upon time, place and the stage of civilization of a particular society. In short, no universal standard can be laid down and any law based on such fluid concept defeats its own purpose."[11]

A landlord cannot recover the rent of lodging knowingly let to a prostitute who carries on her vocation there.[15] Otherwise, if the landlord did not know that the lodgings where required for prostitution.[16] Similarly, money lent to a prostitute expressly to enable her to carry on her trade cannot be recovered.[17] Likewise money advanced by the plaintiff to the defendant to enable the defendant to continue cohabitation with a dancing girl cannot be recovered.[18] Ornaments lent by a brothel-keeper to a prostitute for attracting men and encouraging prostitution cannot be recovered back.[19] On this last point, the English Courts adopt a different attitude, holding that property loaned, hired or pledged for an immoral purpose can be recovered by the owner, provided that he can establish his title otherwise than through the medium of the illegal transaction. In Bowmakers Ltd. v. Barnet Instruments, Du Parcq L.J., delivering the judgement of the Court of Appeal, having emphasised that prima facie a man is entitled to his own property, stated the law as follows:

"In our opinion a man's right to possess his own chattels will as a general rule be enforced as against one who, without any claim of right, is detaining them or has converted them to his own use, even though it may appear either from the pleadings, or in the course of the trial, that the chattels in question came into the defendant's possession by reason of an illegal contract between himself and the plaintiff, provided that the plaintiff does not seek, or is not forced, either to found his claim on the illegal contract or to plead its illegality in order to support his claim".[20]

An old case where the plaintiff could not recover as he was caught by the proviso is Taylor v. Chester.[21] P pledged half a banknote with D as security for money advanced to be

---

11 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 446; (1959) A.S.C. 781.

12 Anson's Law of Contracts, 22nd Ed., p. 320.

13 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; (1959) A.S.C. 781; The State of Bombay v. R.M.D. Chamarbaughwala (1957) S.C.R. 874; (1957) A.S.C. 699 considered.

14 (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 415; (1959) A.S.C. 781.

15 Gaurinath Mookerjee v. Madhumani Peshakar (1872) 9 B.L.R. App. 37; Pirthi Mal v. Mussammat Bhagan (1898) Punj. Rec. No. 2; Brinkman v. Abdul Ghafur (1904) Punj. Rec. No. 65; Bani Mancharam v. Regina Stanger (1907) 32 Bom. 581, at pp. 586 et seq.; Choga Lal v. Piyari (1908) 31 All. 58. There is an English decision that the rent of a flat let to a woman, who to the landlord's knowledge would use the premises to receive visits from her paramour, cannot be recovered: Upfill v. Wright (1911) 1 K.B. 506. The award of mesne profits in ejectment in Mariam Begum v. Mungi (1928) 113 I.C. 366; 1928 A.S. 173, is unintelligible as reported.

16 Sultan v. Nanu (1877) Punj. Rec. No. 22.

17 Bholi Baksh v. Gulia (1876) Punj. Rec. No. 64; Kali Kumari v. Mono Mohini, 1935 A. Cal. 748; 160 I.C. 212; Gangamma v. Kuppammal (1938) Mad. 789; 183 I.C. 680; 1939 A.M. 139.

18 Pannichand v. Nanoo Sanker (1908) 18 Mad. L.J. 456.

19 Alla Baksh v. Chunia (1877) Punj. Rec. No. 26.

20 (1945) K.B. 65, 71. Criticised by Professor Hamson in 10 Camb. L.J. 249. Approved obiter by a Bench of the Nagpur High Court in Haji Habib v. Bhikamchand, A.I.R. 1954 Nag. 306, 314, 316, 318. Obiter because the proviso was applied. Bowmakers v. Barnet Instruments (1945) K.B. 65; (1944) 2 All E.R. 579; dist. in Thomas Brown & Sons Ltd. v. Fazal Deen (1962) 108 C.L.R. 391, 411; Waman Shrinivas Kini v. Ratilal Bhagwandas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217, 223; (1959) A.SC. 689. See Gascoigne v. Gascoigne (1918) 1 K.B. 223 (Plaintiff cannot maintain action by setting up his own fraudulent design); but see Moody v. Cox & Hatt (1917) Ch. 71 (C.A.).

21 (1869) L.R. 4 Q.B. 309, 38 L.J.Q.B. 225.

spent immorally in D's brothel. If P pleaded his ownership, D could reply that the note was pledged with her. P could not plead payment, so that he had to rely on the illegality of the transaction, and could not recover. The Court indicated that if P could have made out his case without pleading the illegality he would have been entitled to judgment.[22] It is submitted that the decision would have been different had D never advanced the money. This was the position in Bigos v. Bousted, [23] and it seems that Bousted might have succeeded had he relied on his ownership of the share certificate, which he had deposited with Bigos in return for a promise to provide Bousted with Italian money, in Italy, in contravention of the currency control regulations. Bigos furnished no such money, but Bousted in suing to recover the share certificate, merely pleaded the rule that property handed over in consideration of an agreement which though illegal has remained executory, may be recovered back upon repudiation of the transaction.[24] The Court held against Bousted, as there was no repentance by him to bring him within the ambit of this rule, but he merely repudiated because Bigos would not do his part.[25] Had Bousted relied, however, on his title, it seems that he must have recovered, for if Bigos pleads the pledge, Bousted's reply is that no money was advanced, and it is Bigos who is left to raise the illegality of the transaction.[26] An assignment of a mortgage to a woman for future cohabitation is void, and it can be set aside at the instance of the assignor though partial effect may have been given to the illegal consideration.[27] And it has been held that money paid by a wife to a third person to be given as a bribe to a gaoler for procuring the release of her husband from gaol could not be recovered back on failure of the gaoler to procure the release.[28] Whether bribery is included in the word "immoral" was not decided by the Supreme Court in Gulabchand v. Kudilal,[29] but it was decided that it was otherwise covered by section 23. Therefore an agreement to sell 2½ annas share of managing agency by way of a bribe to plaintiff, a member of committee appointed to enquire into the affairs of a company, is illegal and not enforceable. For proving the allegations of bribery in a civil suit, the standard of proof is not the same as that in a criminal case.[30]

An agreement to pay maintenance for an illegitimate child is not illegal even though under Moslem Law there may not be any liability to maintain such children.[31]

An agreement to pay a commission or a consideration to a person to induce another to pay a substantially higher price for property worth much less was held by the Andhra Pradesh High Court to be immoral, within section 23 of the Contract Act. The court relied on illustration (j).[32] The two Supreme Court cases which have been discussed above, do not seem to have referred to this illustration. It is also significant that illustration (k) deals with sexual im-

---

22 See also (1945) K.B. 65, 71. Note the misunderstanding of Taylor v. Chester in Vilaiyat Hussain v. Misran (1923) 45 All. 396, 399, where the Court remarks that where the plaintiff has to produce a document, the defendant may cross-examine him or issue interrogatories, and show that he is in pari delicto. But the whole point of Taylor v. Chester is that despite the illegality the plaintiff can recover, and will not be deemed to be in pari delicto, unless he has to rely upon the illegality of the transaction as an integral part of his case.

23 (1951) I All E.R. 92.

24 See infra s. 65.

25 Note that in India, Bousted could recover under this head, as the illegal purpose has failed, and in India the cause of the failure is irrelevant: Tirupathi v. Lakshmana, 1953 A.M. 545, 547 (doubting Bigos v. Bousted on this point); Petheperumal v. Muniandi Servai (1908) 35 Cal. 551, 559 (P.C.); s. 84, Indian Trusts Act.

26 See also Paton on Bailment, 35-6.

27 Thasi Muthukannu v. Shunmugavelu (1905) 28 Mad. 413; Kandaswami v. Narayanaswami (1923) 45 Mad. L.J. 551; 76 I.C. 306. See also Alice Mary Hill v. William Clark (1905) 27 All. 266, and Mussammat Roshun v. Muhammad (1887) Punj. Rec. No. 46; Ghuma v. Ram Chandra Rao (a flagrant example); 1925 A.A. 437; 88 I.C. 411; and note that agreements of this class are wholly void, not merely voidable. All these cases are quite plain on the principles of English law.

28 Protima Aurat v. Dukhia Sirkar (1872) 9 B.L.R. App. 38.

29 (1966) A.S.C. 1734, 1738.

30 Gulabchand v. Kudilal (1966) A.S.C. 1734 Cf. Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; (1959) A.S.C. 781. 797.

31 Sukha v. Ninni (1966) A. Raj. 163; Khwaja Muhammad Khan v. Hussaini Begum, 37 I.A. 152; 32 All. 410 refd. to.

32 Narayana Rao v. Ramchandra Rao (1959) A.A.P. 370, 377; Shiv Saran v. Kesho Prasad (1917) A.P. 92 diss. from.

morality—an agreement to let a daughter for concubinage.[33] Similarly, where the plaintiff advanced moneys to the defendant, a married woman, to enable her to obtain a divorce from her husband, and the defendant agreed to marry him as soon as she could obtain a divorce, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover back the amount, as the agreement had for its object the divorce of the defendant from her husband, and the promise of marriage given under such circumstances was contra bonos mores.[34] An agreement to pay money upon the consideration that the plaintiff would give evidence in a civil suit on behalf of the defendant cannot be enforced. Such an agreement may be for giving true evidence, and then there is no consideration, for "the performance of a legal duty is no consideration for a promise"; or it may be for giving favourable evidence either true or false, and then the consideration is vicious.[35] There is nothing in this decision, or in the reasons for it, to invalidate an expert's claim for services rendered in the way of professional investigation, though he may afterwards become a witness for his employer in a litigation arising out of the same facts.

Under the Common Law of England, and presumably under any monogamous law of marriage in a jurisdiction where promises of marriage are actionable, an agreement between a married man and a woman who knows him to be married to marry one another after the wife's death is void as being contrary to morality and public policy.[36] But a promise to marry after a decree nisi has been pronounced in divorce proceedings, but before decree absolute, has been held by the House of Lords, after a review of all the authorities on the subject of public policy, not to be void on the ground that after the decree nisi nothing but the shell of the marriage was left and the further period of waiting until the decree is made absolute is imposed in the public interest in order to secure full disclosure before the Court.[37]

A loan made for the purpose of teaching singing to naikins (dancing girls) has nothing immoral in its object, for although it might be true that most of the naikins who sing lead a loose life, singing is a distinct mode of obtaining a livelihood, not necessarily connected with prostitution.[38] And it has been held by the High Court of Allahabad that a suit will lie for arrears of allowance agreed to be paid to a woman for past cohabitation.[39] The Court observed:

"Such a consideration, if consideration it can properly be called, which seems to us more than doubtful, would not be immoral so as to render the contract de facto void, but we think the more correct view is to regard the promise to pay the allowance as an undertaking on the part of Bikramajit Singh to compensate the woman for past services voluntarily rendered to him for which no consideration as defined in the Contract Act would be necessary."

It would seem that the High Court thought the case was covered by s. 25(2) of the Act, though the section is not specially referred to. But it is submitted that a consideration which is immoral at the time, and, therefore, would not support an immediate promise to pay for it, does not become innocent by being past; and this is the view lately taken in Husseinali v. Din-

---

33 Gulabchand v. Kudilal (1966) A.SC. 1734; Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; 1959 A.SC. 781.

34 Bai Vijli v. Nansa Nagar (1885) 10 Bom. 152; Mussammat Roshun v. Muhammad (1887) Punj. Rec. No. 46.

35 Sashannath Chetti v. Ramasamy Chetty (1868) 4 M.H.C. 7; Collins v. Godefroy (1831) 1 B. & Ad. 950.

36 Wilson v. Carnley (1908) 1 K.B. 729. C.A., confirming Spiers v. Hunt, ib. 720. It seems to be still good law that a promise of marriage made by a person who is married and conceals the fact from the promisee is actionable at the suit of the innocent promisee on the ground of the promisor's implied warranty that he can lawfully make and perform the promise: Milward v. Littlewood (1850) 5 Ex. 775; 82 R.R. 871. Followed by the Court of Apeal in Shaw v. S. (1954) 3 W.L.R. 265. In Siveyer v. Allison (1935) 2 K.B. 403. Greaves-Lord J. had expressed obiter a contrary opinion. This, however, may be of little importance in India.

37 Fender v. St. John Mildmay (1938) A.C. 1.

38 Khubchand v. Beram (1888) 13 Bom. 150.

39 Dhiraj Kaur v. Bikramajit Singh (1881) 3 All. 787. See also Man Kaur v. Jasodha Kaur (1877) 1 All. 478. Both these cases were referred to in Lakshminarayana v. Subhadri Ammal (1903) 13 Mad. L.J.7, where Bhashyam Aiyangar J. said that though it was not necessary to decide whether the view taken in those cases was correct, he did not express any dissent from it; Kothandapani v. Dhanammal, 1943 A.M. 253; (1943) 1 Mad. L.J. 56.

bai[40] again, in Kisondas v. Dhondu,[41] it was held that past cohabitation is not good consideration for a transfer of property. These cases were considered by the Patna High Court where a person had agreed to pay a maintenance allowance to his discarded mistress. Courtney Terrell,. C.J. observed that a contract to enter into the relationship of protector and mistress was undoubtedly immoral and unenforceable in law; but the case of a contract to compensate a woman for what she had lost on account of past association with the promisor was not immoral.[42] The English view of such cases is that the alleged consideration is bad simply as being a past consideration not within any of the exceptional rules (so far as such exceptions really exist) allowing past consideration, under certain conditions, to be good. In a later case the same High Court held that, adultery in India being an offence against the criminal law, cohabitation past or future, if adulterous, is not merely an immoral but an illegal consideration.[43] In an old Madras case.—[44] the tenants of certain villages engaged the services of the defendant to advocate their cause with regard to assessments made upon the villages, and agreed to pay to him a sum of money subscribed amongst themselves if he succeeded in obtaining a more favourable assessment. A portion of the subscription amount was paid to him in advance, and it was agreed that if he failed in his work he should repay the amount.

In a suit to recover the amount paid to the defendant on the ground that he had failed to perform his part of the contract, it was held that the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed, and that the agreement was not vitiated by illegality. The Court observed:

"The point, then, for consideration is, did the defendant for that purpose undertake, in consideration of the stipulated sum, to induce by corrupt or illegal means, or by the exercise or personal influence, any public servant to do an official act or show any favour? If he did not, the contract cannot be treated as illegal; and we are of opinion that the written agreement does not properly admit of such a construction."

Here the principle was applied (see notes in this section under "unlawful objects," above) that, where it is possible to perform an agreement by lawful means according to its terms, an unlawful intention will not be presumed, and any party alleging such an intention must prove it.

Where money is given to an agent for an illegal contract that amount cannot be recovered by the Principal because what the party himself cannot do, cannot be done through the agent,[45] but betting losses paid by him can be recovered.[46]

Public Policy.—The principle of public policy is this: ex dolo malo non oritur actio. Lord Brougham defines public policy as the principle which declares that no man can lawfully do that which has a tendency to be injurious to the public welfare. Public policy comprehends only the protection and promotion of public welfare. Based on this definition, the Allahabad High Court has held that public policy is that principle of law under which freedom for contract or private dealings are restricted by law for the good of the community. The very meaning of public policy is the interest of persons other than the parties.[47] No court will lend its aid 40 (1923) 25 Bom L.R. 252; 86 I.C.240; 1924 A.B. 135.

---

41 (1920) 44 Bom. 542; 57 I.C. 472; Sabava Yellappa v. Yamanappa Sabu, 1933 A.B. 209; 35 Bom L.R. 345; Istak Kamu v. Ranchod Zipru (1947) Bom. 206, 1947 A.B. 198, 48 Bom. L.R. 775; Lilu Ram v. Mst. Ram Piyari, 1952 A. Punj. 293.

42 Godfrey v. Mst. Parbati (1938) 17 Pat. 308; 178 I.C. 574; 1938 A.P. 502. The distinction may nevertheless be sometimes difficult to draw.

43 Alice Mary Hill v. William Clark (1905) 27 All. 266. Distinguished in Rama Rao v. Jayamma, 1953 A.Mys. 33, on the ground that in 27 All. 266 future cohabitation was part of the agreement Sed qu. An English case, Re Wootton Isaacson (1904) 21 T.L.R. 89. was followed, where the agreement was by deed, and it was held not to be invalidated by the contemplation of future cohabitation but in England adultery is not a crime.

44 Pichakutty Mudali v. Narayanappa (1864) 2 M.H.C. 243.

45 Babulal S. Shah v. South Satara Merchants Association (1960) A.B. 548; Harry Parker Ltd. v. Mason (1940) 4 All E.R. 199; Krishna Rao v. Kodandarama (1960) A.AP. 190 (Supply of Chillies).

46 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadevdas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406; (1959) A.SC. 781, 791; Pringle v. Jaffar Khan, 5 All. 443 approved.

47 Suresh Chand v. Hari Ram & Others (1976) All. L.J. 465, 469.

to a man who founds his cause of action upon an immoral or an illegal act. If the cause of action.appears to arise ex turpi causa or the transgression of a positive law of this country, there the court says he has no right to be assisted.[48] But it often happens that an agreement which in itself is not unlawful is made with the intention of one or both parties to make use of the subject-matter for an unlawful purpose, that is to say, a purpose that is illegal, immoral or contrary to public policy... In such a case any party to the agreement who had the unlawful intention is precluded from suing upon it. Ex turpi causa non oritur actio. The action does not lie because the court will not lend its help to such a plaintiff.[49] The consequence of the maxim ex turpi causa non oritur actio is that "the Court drives both parties from its presence: procul este, profani? No judgment will be given and no order made as to costs. The maxim is in accordance with the doctrine of Civil Law.[50] The adjective turpis is thus expanded to cover the three characteristics: (1) illegal, (2) immoral and (3) contrary to public policy. The classic case of Pearce v. Brooks[51] is the obvious instance of immorality; and when the purpose of the agreement, or the intended use of its subject-matter, is the commission of a crime or the doing of some prohibited act (for example, the infringement of the customs law), the principle is no less obviously invoked on grounds both of illegality and of public policy. The principle no doubt extends further. In Alexander v. Rayson[52] itself the proved purpose of the plaintiff was to use the instruments, which he entered into with the defendant, in order to deceive and cheat (as he did) the local rating authority: and in Berg v. Sadler and Moore[53] the plaintiff was shown to have been engaged upon an enterprise of deliberate deception which amounted to a 'false pretence.[54]

This Maxim as applied in India was stated thus by the Supreme Court in Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai.[55]

"The correct position in law, in our opinion, is that what one has to see is whether the illegality goes so much to the root of the matter that plaintiff cannot bring his action without relying upon the illegal transaction into which he had entered. If the illegality be trivial or venial, as stated by Williston and the plaintiff is not required to rest his case upon that illegality then public policy demands that the defendant should not be allowed to take advantage of the position. A strict view, of course, must be taken of the plaintiffs conduct, and he should not be allowed to circumvent the illegality by resorting to some subterfuge or by mis-stating the facts. If, however, the matter is clear and the illegality is not required to be pleaded or proved as part of the cause of action and the plaintiff recanted before the illegal purpose was achieved, then, unless it be of such a gross nature as to outrage the conscience of the Court, the plea of the defendant should not prevail."[56]

Ex turpi causa not applicable.—Kedar Nath's case was this:

A benami settlement by the manager of a Court of Wards without the consent of the Court of Wards as required by the terms of the lease was made known to the Court of Wards but it did not resume the lands. It was also found that fraud though it might have been intended was not perpetrated and the locus penitentine was duly used before the expiry of the lease, the illegality was of a trivial character and the plaintiff was not required to prove the illegality as a part of the cause of action, and the benami nature of the transaction had been proved.[57]

In such circumstances the plaintiff cannot be deprived of a judgment against the benamidars.

---

48 Lord Mansfield C.J. in Holman v. Johnson (1775) 1 Cowp. 341, 343 quoted in Brown Jenkinson & Co. Ltd. v. Percy Dalton (London) Ltd. (1957) 3 W.L.R. 403, 415, 416; Harry Parker Ltd. v. Mason (1940) 4 All E.R. 199, 202: refd. to in Nair Service Society v. K.C. Alexander (1968) A. SC. 1165. 1176; Kedar Nath v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861; (1960) A.SC. 213, 217. See also Waman Shrinivas Kini v. Ratilal (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217, 226; (1959) A.SC. 689; Sh. Umar Shivdan Singh (1958) A.MP. 88; Kamla Sugar Mills v. Ganga Bishan Bhajan Singh (1978) A.M. 178, 184.

49 Alexander v. Rayson (1936) 1 K.B. 169, 182; Brown Jenkinson & Co. Ltd. v. Percy Dalton Ltd. (1957) 3 Weekly Law Reports, 403, 417; Holman v. Johnson (1775) 1 Cowp. 341, 343.

50 Harry Parker Ltd. v. Mason (1940) 4 All E.R. 199, 202; D. 2, 14, 27; 1. 3, 20, 24.

51 (1866) L.R. 1 Ex. 213.

52 (1936) 1 K.B. 169.

53 (1937) 2 K.B. 158; 53 T.L.R. 430; (1937) 1 All E.R. 637.

54 (1957) 3 W.L.R. 418-419.

55 Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861, 873; (1960) A.S.C. 213, 218.

56 Ibid, 873; 218 (A.I.R.); Bowmakers Ltd. v. Barnett Instruments Ltd. (1945) 1 K.B. 65; & Bigos v. Bousted (1951) 1 All E.R. 92 refd. to; Hamson: (1949) 10 Camb. L.J. 249 considered.

57 Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861, 873; (1960) A.S.C. 213, 218.

"The authorities do not go to that length because public policy demands that where fraud might have been contemplated but was not perpetrated, the defendant should not be allowed to perpetrate a new fraud."[58]

In an earlier case, the doctrine of public policy was summarised by the Supreme Court thus:[59]

"Public policy or the policy of the law is an illusive concept; it has been described as "untrustworthy guide", "variable quality", "uncertain one", "unruly horse", etc.; the primary duty of a Court of Law is to enforce a promise which the parties have made and to uphold the sanctity of contracts which form the basis of society, but in certain cases, the Court may relieve them of their duty on a rule founded on what is called the public policy."

The doctrine of public policy is only a branch of common law, and, just like any other branch of common law, it is governed by precedents; the principles have been crystallized under different heads and though it is permissible for Courts to expound and apply them to different situations, it should only be invoked in clear and incontestable cases of harm to the public; though the heads are not closed and though theoretically it may be permissible to evolve a new head under exceptional circumstances of a changing world, it is advisable in the interest of stability of society not to make any attempt to discover new heads in these days.[60] The Court is not a legislator; it cannot initiate the principle; it can only state or formulate it if it already exists.[61] Commenting on this the Andhra Pradesh High Court in Rattanchand Hirachand v. Askar Nawaz Jung[62] has said—

".....in a modern progressive Society with fast changing social values and concepts it becomes more and more imperative to evolve new heads of public policy.... law cannot afford to remain static...."

It applied the judgment of the Court of Appeal's observations in Nagle v. Fielden[63] where it was said—

"The law relating to public policy cannot remain immutable. It must change with passage of time. The wind of change blows upon it."

Reference was also made to Prof. Winfield[64] according to whom public policy is "a principle of judicial legislation or interpretation founded on the current needs of the community" Hence it was necessarily variable.

The duty of the Court is to expound and not expand public policy and the doctrine should be involved only in clear cases, in which the harm to the public is substantially incontestable and does not depend upon the idiosyncratic inferences of a few judicial minds.[65] In Gherulal v. Mahadeodas,[66] one of the questions raised was that the contracts in dispute were illegal under Hindu law and immoral because of the doctrine of pious obligation of the sons to discharge the fathers debts. It was held that tenets of Hindu law could not be imported to give a novel content to the doctrine of public policy in respect of contracts of gaming and wagering. In Sreenivasa Rao v. Rama Mohana Rao,[67] Subba Rao J. (as he then was) quoted with approval the following from the 7th Edition of this book[57] (p. 179 of 8th ed.):

"It is now understood that the doctrine of public policy will not be extended beyond the classes of cases already covered by it. No Court can invent a new head of public policy;[68] it has even been said in the 58 Ibid., p.869; 213 (A.I.R.).

59 Gherulal Parekh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 439; (1959) A.SC. 781, 795; Wilkinson v. Osburne (1915) 21 C.L.R. 89, 97.
60 Ibid.
61 Wilkinson v. Osburne (1915) 21 C.L.R. 89, 97; Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines (1902) A.C. 484 (Lord Halsbury).
62 (1976) A.AP. 112, 117.
63 (1966) 2 All E.R. 633, 650.
64 Public Policy—The English Common Law (1928) 42 H.L.R. 76. See Public Policy not Immutable, Infra.
65 Fender v. Mildmay (1938) A.C. 1; (1937) 3 All E.R. 402; Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines Ltd. (1902) A.C. 484.
66 Gherulal v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 444; (1959) A SC. 781.
67 (1952) A.M. 579, 582. This is at p. 179 of 8th Ed.
68 Lord Halsbury Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines (1902) A.C. 484, 491. See also Shrinivasadas Lakshminarayan v. Ramchandra Ramrattandas (1919) 44 Bom. 6; 52 I.C. 546; Vassandmal Davaldas v. Hiromal (1946) Kar. 380, 227 I.C. 633, A.I.R. 1947 Sind 94; Fender v. Mildmay (1938) A.C. 1; (1937) 3 All E.R. 402, 407; Dip Narain Singh v. Nageshar Prasad, 52 All. 338; (1930) A.A. 1 (F.B.) at p. 3. (Scope cannot be widened.)

House of Lords that "public policy is always an unsafe and treacherous ground for legal decision".[69] This does not affect the application of the doctrine of public policy to new cases within its recognised bounds;[70] but the test is always whether the enforcement of the impugned contract leads, or is likely to lead, to injurious action."

The common law of England and that of India have never struck down contracts of wager on the ground of public policy; indeed they have always been held to be not illegal notwithstanding the fact that the statute declared them void.[71]

"Opposed to public policy."—The general head of public policy covers, in English law, a wide range of topics. Agreements may offend against public policy by tending to the prejudice of the State in time of war (trading with enemies, etc.), by tending to the perversion or abuse of municipal justice (stifling prosecutions, champerty and maintenance) or, in private life, by attempting to impose inconvenient and unreasonable restrictions on the free choice of individuals in marriage, or their liberty to exercise any lawful trade or calling. Some of these matters are separately dealt with in the Contract Act (see ss. 26 and 27, below).

Breach of Revenue Law.—A Claim in the case of an insurance against loss including theft of various articles was held unsustainable as the articles included various articles smuggled by the plaintiff without paying duty. It was held that the insurance was not tainted with illegality would be contrary to public policy to help the plaintiff to make good the loss because to do so would be help him to benefit from his infringement of the law.[72]

Public Policy not immutable.—The law relating to public policy must change with the passage of time, it cannot remain immutable.[73] It is to be judged by dominant opinion or what is termed customary morality.[74] The law of maintenance depends upon the question of public policy and public policy is not a fixed and immutable matter. It is conception which if it has any sense at all, must be alterable by the passage of time.[75] A person protected under s. 30 of the Pakistan Displaced Persons (Compensation & Rehabilitation) Act cannot lawfully contract out of the protection as that would be void against public policy.[76] "You must have a general rule, a general tendency to wrong, to which there may be exceptions; but if the contract has to be applied to an act of social or other relations in which there will be generally no tendency to do wrong, though there may be exceptions, the contract will not be avoided".[77] Money promised to two members of the Legislative Assembly who were also carrying on the business of law agents to urge the Government to close a deal of purchase of land as early as possible is an illegal promise and such a bargain cannot stand because "it would encourage those who are appointed to be sentinels of the public welfare to become sappers and miners of the Constitution" which the Court would not hesitate to denounce in the most positive terms.[78]

---

69 Lord Davey (1902) A.C. 484 at p. 500; Lord Lindley at p. 507, in very similar words, cited in Govind v. Pacheco (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 948.

70 See Wilson v. Carnley (1908) 1 K.B. 729; Parduman Chand v. Kashmira Singh, A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 100; Ranjeetsingh v. Ramlal, A.I.R. 1951 M.B. 113.

71 Gherulal Parakh v. Mahadeodas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 406, 440; 1959 A.SC. 781, 795, 797; Thacker v. Hardy (1878) 4 Q.B. 685; Hyams v. Stuart King (1908) 2 K.B. 696. But this was overruled in Hill v. (William) Hill (Park Lane) Ltd. (1949) A.C. 530; (1959) 2 All E.R. 452, holding that the action was to recover money "won upon a wager."

72 Geismer v. Sun Alliance & London Insurance Ltd. (1978) Q.B. 383.

73 Per Danckwerts L.J. in Nagle v. Feilden (1966) 2 W.L.R. 1027, 1037 (discrimination against women). Kamla Sugar Mills v. Ganga Bishan Bhajan Singh (1978) A.M. 178, 183. Anand Prakash Om Prakash v. Oswal Trading Co. (1976) A.D. 24, 27.

74 Associated Cement Co. Ltd. v. State of Rajasthan (1981) A.Raj. 133, 137.

75 Martell v. Consett Iron Co. (1955) Ch. 363; (1954) 3 All E.R. 339 (Law of maintenance); appd. in Hill v. Archbold (1967) 2 W.L.R. 1218, 1225, 1227.

76 E.A. Evans v. Muhammad Ashraf, PLD (1964) 1 S.C. 536 (Pak.).

77 Fender v. St. John Mildmay 1938 A.C. 1.

78 Wilkinson v. Osborne (1915) 21 C.L.R. 89; Gulabchand v. Kudilal (1966) A.S.C. 1734 (bribing a committee of investigation was held illegal but question of immorality not decided). Narayana Rao v. Ramachandra Rao (1959) A.A.P. 370, 377 (immoral). Amresh Chandra v. Kalyanmal Dharam Narain (1972) A.A. 130 (A case of bribe to an M.L.A. for getting a Government agency); Debenham v. Ox (1749)1 Ves. Sen. 276; Higgins v. Hill 56 L.T. 426 (to use undue influences to get a legacy); Ratanchand Hirachand v. Askar Nawaz Jung (1976) A.AP. 112, 120; (to use influence with ministers

An agreement with the State Government by which it was to keep certain area—of the company—out of municipal bounds or limits was held unenforceable as being opposed to public policy and is inconsistent with the constitutional provision in Art. 40 read with item 5 of List II in Sch. VII.[79] Quere:- Would not the doctrine of promissory estoppel apply to such a case?

If B, as agent or trustee of A, is paid money by C, which is pursuant to an illegal contract between A and C, A can recover that money from B even though he could not have recovered from C. That is because public policy requires that rule of ex turpis causa shall be excluded by the more important and imperative rule that agents and trustees must faithfully perform the duties of their office.[80]

A defendant Association acting as a clearing house received on behalf of plaintiff, one of its members, a sum of money on account of turmeric transactions which he entered into with another co-member. Such transactions were prohibited by law and were illegal.

It was held to be liable to pay the amount to the plaintiff as an agent and the maxim ex turpi causa was held inapplicable.[81] No one can stipulate for inequity. This is based on the broad rule of public policy that no one can claim indemnity or reparation for his wilful and culpable crime. He is under a disability precluding him from imposing a claim. But this disability will not affect an injured third party.[82] Therefore, a security officer trying to stop a stolen van can claim damages if injured during the process.

There is no confidence as to the disclosure of inequity.[83] Therefore, the implied obligation of a servant not to disclose information or documents received in confidence does not extend to any misconduct of such a nature that it ought, in the public interest, be disclosed to one who had a proper interest to receive it, e.g. a national newspaper.[84]

"As a general rule, then, a contract cannot be made the subject of an action if it be impeachable on the ground of dishonesty, or as being opposed to public policy—if it be either contra bonos mores, or forbidden by the law."[85]

Where goods were supplied by the seller to the buyer in black market and price to be paid was to consist of black money (unaccounted money) the transaction is not one hit by s. 23, (Contract Act) because it was a transaction involving purchase of goods against price being paid in cash, which in itself cannot be said to be opposed to public policy. The tainted part, the manner in which the contract was to be carried out by the parties, was severable.[86]

Public Policy—Sex discrimination.—The practice of refusing a trainer's licence to women might be void as contrary to public policy.[87] In Nagle's case

Mrs. Nagle a well-known race horse trainer, applied for a licence from the Jockey Club of England which was refused because of the practice of refusing to grant licences to females. This she challenged by action as being void against public policy.

The Court found that there was no contract. But under the rule of common law relief could be given against an unreasonable restraint upon an individual's right to work to which he has not agreed and which a group with no authority seeks capriciously to impose upon him and the practice of refusing trainer's licence to a woman might be void as contrary to public of Government); N.V.P. Pandian v. M.M. Roy (1979) A.M. 42, 46 (money paid to get a seat in a Medical College. Suit for refund not maintainable).

---

79 Associated Cement Co. Ltd. v. State of Rajasthan (1981) A. Raj. 133, 137; Equitable Life Assurance Society of U.S. v. Reed (1914) A.C. 587; Maharaja Shree Lmaid Mills Ltd. v. Union of India (1960) A. Raj. 92; Rederiktiebolayet Amphituite v. The King (1921) 3 K.B. 500. (Government cannot fetter its future executive of action. This is contrary to S.C. judgment in M.P. Sugar Mills v. State of U.P. (1979) A.SC. 621.

80 Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861, 871; (1960) A.SC. 213; quoting Salmond & William on Contract, page 352 (2nd Edn.) & Williston on Contract, Vol. VI, page 5069, para 1785, Babulal S. Shah v. South Satara Merchants Association, 1960 A.B. 548.

81 Babulal S. Shah v. South Satara Merchants Association, 1960 A.B. 548.

82 Hardy v. Motor Insurers Bureau (1964) 3 W.L.R. 433, 441 (Lord Denning M.R.).

83 Gartside v. Outram (1857) 26 L.J.Ch. 113, 114.

84 Initial Services Ltd. v. Putterill (1967) 3 W.L.R. 1032, 1037, 1038 (C.A.).

85 Per Lord Kenyon in Kirkman v. Shawcross, 6 T.R. 14, at p. 16.

86 Anand Prakash Om Prakash v. Oswal Trading Co. (1976) A.D. 24.

87 Nagle v. Feilden (1966) 2 W.L.R. 1027, 1034; (Had the Jockeys Club been a registered trade union.

policy.[88] The rule that the Courts will not interfere even if the Benchers of an Inn acted capriciously in refusing to admission to membership[89] may not longer be good law.[90]

It is against public policy for a married person while the marriage is intact to promise marriage to a third party but it is not against public policy if by a decree nisi there has already been an inchoate dissolution.[91]

Cases illustrative of Public Policy.—Any infringement of a clause in a contract with the Government prohibiting its assignment or sub-letting does not make the transaction taking partners as illegal on the ground of public policy.[92]

In a contract for the sale of jute bags at a price mentioned the port of delivery was Genoa (Italy). The sellers could not under the Law of India export without a licence but there was no condition precedent in the contract of seller's obtaining a quota or a licence for export. The sellers did not export and the dispute was referred to arbitration.

It was decided that there was no implied condition precedent of obtaining a quota and licence and there was no agreement express or implied that the sellers should export in contravention of the Law of India relating to quota and licence. Therefore, neither the agreement nor the award could be said to be against public policy.[93] To instigate the breach of a contract of service which amounts to serfdom and therefore against public policy is not actionable.[94] A partnership with a person holding a licence to deal in cloth with another person is illegal being opposed to public policy as the cloth control order is in furtherance of public policy and not merely for the protection of revenue. The licence is a personal privilege of the licence-holder which cannot be extended to others.[95] It would be contrary to public policy to refuse to assist an African to eject a non-African in illegal occupation of the African's land, even though, the African committed an illegality in permitting the non-African to enter on the land.[96]

An agreement the object of which is to use the influence with the Ministers of Government to obtain favourable decision is destructive of all sound and good administration. It showed a tendency to corrupt or influence public servants to give favourable decisions otherwise than on their own merits. Such an agreement is contrary to public policy. It is immaterial if persons intended to be influenced are not amenable to such recommendations (Montefoire's case).[97]

An export price fixed by another country—Pakistan—a breach of which according to Pakistan Law is contrary to public policy is not binding in India.[98] A condition in a laundry receipt that only half the price will be paid in case of loss of garments given to it for washing is opposed to public policy and is therefore void.[99] For an insurer to insist that the assured should be defended by a Solicitor appointed by the insurer is contrary to public policy.[1] the common law rule would not have been applicable: Faramus v. Film Artistes Association (1965) A.C. 941). Rex v. Benchers of Lincoln Inn (1825) 4 B. & C. 855, 107 E.R. 1277 (considered).

---

88 Nagle v. Feilden (1966) 2 W.L.R. 1027; (1966) 1 All E.R. 689. Quere—whether training of horses is a "vocation" within Sex Disqualification (Removal) Act, 1919.

89 Rex v. The Benchers of Lincoln Inn (1825) 4 B. & C. 855; 107 E.R. 1277.

90 Nagle v. Feilden (1966) 2 W.L.R. 1027, 1038; (1966) 1 All E.R. 689, 699.

91 Psaltis v. Shultz (1948) 76 C.L.R. 547, 561; Fender v. St. John Mildmay (1938) A.C. 1; (1937) 3 All E.R. 402 (H.L.) on app. agt.; (1936) 1 K.B. 111.

92 Meikole v. Periasami (1967) A.M. 449

93 Pratabmull Rameshwar v. K.C. Sethia, 1960 A. Cal. 702; 64 C.W.N. 616. See (1950) 1 All E.R. 61 (C.A.) & (1951) 2 All E.R. 352 (H.L.). See Peter Cassidy Seed Co. v. Osuustukkuk-Auppa (1957) 1 W.L.R. 273; & Brayer & Co. v. James Clark Ltd. (1952) 2 All. E.R. 497 reld. on.

94 Sitaram Deokaram v. Baldev Jairam, 1958 A.MP. 367; South Wales Miners Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co. (1905) A.C. 259; (1904-7) All E.R. Rep. 211; & Lumley v. Gye. 118 E.R. 749 dist.

95 Basayya v. Kotayya, 1964 A.A.P. 145; Velu Padayachi v. Sivasooriam, 1950 A.M. 444 folld.

96 Amar Singh v. Kulubya (1963) 3 W.L.R. 513 (P.C.).

97 Ratanchand Hirachand v. Askar Nawaz Jung (1976) A.AP. 112, 120; Montefoire v. Menday Motor Component Co. Ltd. (1918) 2 K.B. 241 applied; Hopkins v. Prescott (1847)4 C.B. 573, 576; N.V.P. Pandian v. M.M. Roy (1979) A.M. 42, 46.

98 Naihati Jute Mills v. Khyaliram (1968) A.S.C. 522, 529. But see Tool Metal Co. Ltd. v. Tungsten Electric Co. (1955) 2 All E.R. 657, 688 (reasonable price fixed at the instance of foreign concern not against public policy).

99 Lily White v. Manuswami (1966) A.M. 13.

1 Barrett Bros. (Taxis) Ltd. v. Davies (1966) 1 W.L.R. 1334; (1966) 2 All E.R. 972.

An agreement having two clauses one vesting in the sellers the right to accept or reject orders booked by their representatives and the other authorising that a higher price could be demanded by them under certain conditions cannot be held to be void as opposed to public policy.[2]

Agreement by a wife not to claim any maintenance in consideration of a lump sum payment by the husband is not opposed to public policy.[3]

Where the consideration for a promise is an existing contractual duty to a third party which is otherwise a valid consideration, it is not invalidated as being against public policy in the absence of proof of duress merely because the promise had been secured by a threat to repudiate the existing contract or by unfair use of a dominating bargaining position. Where businessmen are negotiating at arms' length it is unnecessary for the achievement of justice to invoke the principle, for what justice required is that a businessman be held to his bargain unless his consent to it could be shown to have been vitiated by fraud, mistake or duress.[4]

Public Interest.—A Royalty Collection Contract under R. 34 of Rajasthan Mineral Rules cannot be terminated on the ground of "public interest" under condition 16 of the contract without showing a nexus between "public interest" and such termination which is justiciable. The ground that the State is losing lakhs in revenue is not such interest and the termination is not valid.[5]

Where a Royalty Collection contract is terminated and the breach is alleged on the ground of there being no nexus between the termination and "public interest", the mere large profits made by the contractor is not such "public interest", the contractor can sue for damages for the unexpired period and accounts for the unexpired period.[6]

Tenancy—Breach of law and contract.—There is a difference between a case where the plaintiff seeks the assistance of the Court to evict a tenant guilty of a breach of a provision of law and a case where the plaintiff seeks to enforce an agreement the object of which is to do an illegal act. The former is enforceable and the latter is not.

The defendant cannot be permitted to plead an agreement to sublet which is contrary to the provisions of a Statute as this would be opposed to public policy; and if public policy demands it even an equal participant in an illegality may be allowed relief by way of restitution or recession though not on the contract.[7] A Statutory provision cannot be struck down on the ground of being opposed to public policy.[8]

Agreements tending to injure public service are illegal and void as being opposed to public policy.[9] To abridge the rights of a landlord as given in the Rent Acts is not opposed to public policy.[10] An agreement imposing restrictions on a borrower which reduces him to the position of a slave is against public policy.[11]

Public policy.—In Hyman v. Hyman[12] there was a covenant in the separation deed providing that the wife would not apply to the Divorce Court for maintenance and it was held that it was void as being contrary to public policy. On the basis of this it was argued in a later case that a wife's covenant not to invoke the jurisdiction of the Divorce Court in respect of 2 Kamla Sugar Mills v. Ganga Bishen Bhajan Singh (1978) A.M. 178, 184.

3 Muniammal v. Raja (1978) A.M. 103, 108. Muhammad Moinuddin v. Jamal Fatima 43 All. 650; (1921) A.A. 152 reld. on.
4 Pao On v. Lau Yiu (1979) 3 All E.R. 65, 77-78. American Law as stated in Corbin on Contract (1963 Ed) Vol. 1A, Chap. 7. s. 171 commented on.
5 Pusha Ram v. Modern Construction Co. (1981) A. Raj. 47; Varlagadda China Rattaya v. Donepuddi Venkataramayya (1959) A.AP. 551 reld. on; Juggilal Padampat v. Pratapmal Rameshwar (1978) A. SC. 389 refd. to. (1978) 2 SCR 219.
6 Pusha Ram v. Modern Construction Co. (1981) A. Raj. 47.
7 Waman Srinivas Kini v. Ratilal & Co. (1959) A.S.C. 689; (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217.
8 Suddha v. Sankappa Rai, 1963 A. Mys. 245.
9 Venkatareddi v. Venkatachallam (1964) A.A P. 465.
10 Raja Chetty v. Jagannathadas (1950) A.M. 284.
11 Horwood v. Millar's Timber & Trading Co. (1917) 1 K.B. 305. See also: A. Schroeder Music Publishing Co. Ltd. v. Macaulay (1974) 3 All E.R. 616; (1974) 1 W.L.R. 1308.
12 1929 A.C. 601; (1929) All E.R. Rep. 245.

maintenance for the child and herself was wholly void.[13] But it was held that the covenant ousting the jurisdiction of the Court was void but the rest of the agreement could be enforced.

Doing a useless and unnecessary thing—Waiver.—Law does not compel a person to do that which is useless and unnecessary.[14] A condition in an insurance policy that the insured shall as soon as possible give to the insurer full particulars of an accident and immediately forward any notice of intended prosecution is no bar to a claim for compensation by the insured if notice of accident is given to the insurer by the Solicitor of the other party to the accident and information about intended prosecution is given by the police.[15] Even if the insurers were entitled according to conditions of a policy to conduct the defence in case of an accident, it was against public policy to compel the insured to be so defended and he was entitled to have a Solicitor of his choice. If the insurer, in enquiring of an insured why he had not notified him of the intended prosecution, did not demand the notice by the police, the insurer was held to have waived the condition requiring the notice to be forwarded.[15]

In Pari Delicto.—The onus to prove a transaction to be benami is on the person who alleges it.[16] The maxims "in pari delicto" and "ex dolo malo" and "in turpi causa" are all allied; similarly operative and are convergent, the focal point being the refusal to lend assistance of the Court to enforce illegal or immoral transactions. The true meaning of the maxim "in pari delicto potior est conditio posidentis" is that where the circumstances are such that the Court will refuse to assist either party, the consequence must, in fact, follow that the party in possession should not be disturbed. It must not be understood as meaning that where a transaction is vitiated by illegality the person left in possession of goods after its completion is always and of necessity entitled to keep them.[17] The maxims "in pari delicto" and "ex dolo malo non oritur actio" are limited in their application. They apply to illegal or immoral transaction or those opposed to public policy.[18] No person can found a cause of action upon his illegal or immoral act.[19] The Courts will refuse to enforce an illegal agreement at the instance of a person who is himself a party to the agreement or fraud: "in pari delicto potier est conditio defedentis",[20] e.g. money paid to a charitable institution on a promise that the Secretary will secure the plaintiff a kinghthood which never materialised.[21] But there are exceptional cases where a man will be relieved of the consequences of an illegal contract.[22] They are:

(a) Where the illegal purpose has not yet been substantially carried out before it is sought to recover the money paid or goods delivered in furtherance of it;
(b) where the plaintiff is not in pari delicto with the defendant;
(c) where the plaintiff has not to rely upon the illegality to make out his claim.

Where parties are not in pari delicto the less guilty party may be able to recover money paid or property transferred under the contract. This possibility may arise in three situations[22]:

First, the contract may be of a kind made illegal by Statute in the interests of a particular class of persons of whom the plaintiff is one.[23]

---

13 Bennett v. Bennet (1952) 1 K.B. 249, (1952) 1 All ER 413.
14 Barrett Bros. (Taxis) Ltd. v. Davies (1966) 1 W.L.R. 1334; Plasticmonde Societe Per Azioni v. Davidson (Manchester) Ltd. (1952) 1 L 1. Rep. 527, 539 (per Lord Denning M.R.) reld. on.
15 Barrett Bros. (Taxis) Ltd. v. Davies (1966) 1 W.L.R. 1334 (C.A.).
16 Surasaibalini v. Phanindra Mohan (1965) 1 S.C.R. 861; (1965) A.S.C. 1364, 1372.
17 Waman Shriniwas Kini v. Ratilal Bhagwandas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217, 223; (1959) A.S.C. 689.
18 Sk. Umar v. Shivdan Singh (1953) A.M.P. 88.
19 Shaw v. Shaw (1965) 1 W.L.R. 537, 539; Berg v. Sadler & Moore (1937) 2 K.B. 158; (1937) 1 All E.R. 637 (C.A.); Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunasalam Chettiar (1962) A.C 294; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 548; (1962) 1 All E.R. 494 P.C.
20 Sita Ram v. Radhabai (1968) A.SC. 534; Kunju Collieries v. Jharkhand Mine (1974) A.S.C. 1892 (a suit for refund of money paid for a mining lease illegally given to plaintiff); N.V.P.Pandian v. M.M. Roy (1974) A.M. 42, 47 (money paid to get admission into a Medical College. Both parties equally guilty).
21 Parkinson v. College of Ambulance Ltd. (1925) 2 K.B. 1. See Grodecki (1955) 71 L.Q.R. 254.
22 Sita Ram v. Radhabai (1968) A.S.C. 534, 537, Shah, J. quoting Anson: Law of Contracts (22nd Edn.) page 343.
23 Gray v. Southouse (1949) 2 All E.R. 1019 (Recovery of illegal premium); Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192, 204 (Recovery of premium paid to secure a tenancy).

Secondly, the plaintiff must have been induced to enter into the contract by fraud or strong pressure.[24]

Thirdly, a person who is under a fiduciary duty to the plaintiff will not be allowed to retain property or to refuse to account for moneys received, on the ground that the property or the moneys have come into his hands as the proceeds of an illegal transaction.[25] where the plaintiff Society, was only a financier, the management being in the hands of the defendant firm through Budh Ram, it was entitled to ask for accounts, the relationship between the parties being that the defendant firm stood in fiduciary relationship to the plaintiff Society.[26] No claim founded on illegal contract will be enforced by the Court but as a general rule, a man's right to possession of his own property will be enforced against one who, without any claim, is in possession thereof provided the plaintiff does not found his claim on an illegal contract or has to plead its illegality in order to support his claim.[27] The plaintiff sent money from Malayasia to the defendant through non official channels in contravention of the Foreign Exchange Act. The money was used by the defendant to erect a rice mill for the plaintiff on a plot of land also purchased with that money. The plaintiff on return to India obtained a licence for the mill and took possession and was in possession but the defendant took possession in the absence of the plaintiff of the mill and the account books there. A suit by the plaintiff for declaration of ownership and for permanent injunction was held maintainable as the plaintiff did not have to rely on the illegality of the channel of sending of the money but was merely claiming his own property to which the maximum inpari delicto potior est conditio defendetis did not apply.[28] Where a party seeks to enforce his rights under a statute the opposite party cannot be permitted to assert in a Court of justice any right founded upon or growing out of an illegal transaction.[29] The Privy Council in Petherpermal Chetty v. Muniandi Servai,[30] drew a distinction between a claim to property by assertion of title where only an attempt to evade a statute or to commit fraud has taken place and cases where evasion or the fraud has succeeded and the impermissible object has been achieved. It is in the latter case that the fraudulent grantor loses the right to claim the aid of law. The Supreme Court in a later case drew the same distinction in a similar case. In that case the object of the transaction was the circumvention of service rules and not the evasion of the Income-tax Act, although it resulted in the payment at a lower rate.[31]

In that case, one P, a servant of the Court of Wards, carried on business in the name of one G to whom he entrusted the management during his absence due to illness. In a suit for possession of his business, P, did not allege invalidity of the transaction. He merely relied on his title to the business and entrustment thereof to G and G's refusal to deliver possession when demanded. On proof of his ownership of the business, P was held entitled to enforce his title, there being no taint attached to entrustment. The Court also found that the object of the parties at the time of transaction was entered into was not to defeat the provisions of the Income-tax Act but to circumvent service rules and as a consequence of it, P obtained the benefit of paying a lower rate, his personal income not being subject to income-tax.[32]

---

24 Reynell v. Sprye (1852) 1 De. G.M. & G. Hughes v. Liverpool Victoria Legal Friendly Society (1916) 2 K.B. 482.

25 Ree Thomas (1894) 1 Q.B. 742; Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunasalam Chettiar (1962) A.C. 294 (P.C.). Budhram Balakram v. Dhuri Cooperative Societies (1973) 2 Punj. 67; (1962) A. Punj. 185, 188.

26 Budhram Balakram v. The Dhuri Co-operative etc. Society (1973) 2 Punj. 677; (1972) A. Punj. 185, 188.

27 Bowmakers v. Barnet Instruments (1945) K.B. 65; (1944) 2 All E.R. 579; dist. in Thomas Brown & Sons Ltd. v. Fazal Deen (1962) 108 C.L.R. 391, 411; considered in Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861, 873; (1960) A.SC. 213, 218; Waman Shrinivas Kini v. Ratilal Bhagwandas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217, 223; (1959) A.S.C. 689. Abdul Jabbar v. Abdul Muthaliff (1982) A.M. 12. See Gascoigne v. Gascoigne (1918) 1 K.B. 223 (Plaintiff cannot maintain action by setting up his own fraudulent design). But see Moody v. Cox & Hatt (1917) Ch. 71 (C.A.).

28 Abdul Jabbar v. Abdul Mutalift (1982) A.M. 12; Sita Ram v. Radha Bai (1968) 1 S.C.R. 805; (1968) A.S.C. 534 reld on. Waman Srinivas Kini v. Ratilal (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217; (1959) A.SC. 689; Surjan Singh v. Sardara Ali (1960) A.C. 167 (P.C.); Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunachalam Chettiar (1962) A.C. 294; Pettupa Chettiar v. Muniandi Seervai, 55 I.A. 98 Refd to.

29 Waman Shrinivas Kini v. Ratilal Bhagwandas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217, 223; (1959) A.SC. 689; Gibbs & Street Manufacturing Co. v. Brucker, 111 U.S. 597; 28 L.Ed. 534.

30 35 I.A. 98, 103

31 Smt. Surasaibalini v. Phanindra (1965) 1 S.C.R. 861; (1965) A.S.C. 1364.

32 Ibid, Pethermal Chetty v. Muniandi Servai, 35 I.A. 98.

There is a distinction between a claim to the property transferred to or held out in the other party's name in which a party has to rely upon a conspiracy to effectuate an illegal or fraudulent purpose in support of his claim and claims, in which the unlawful or unworthy object was fulfilled; the property was owned by the claimant and the claimant sought the assistance of the court not to effectuate his unlawful purpose but to enforce by a plea of detenue under a transaction which was not tainted by illegality.[33] Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunasalam Chettiar[34] illustrates the former and Sajan Singh v. Sardara Ali[35] the latter. In the former case, the Court refused to assist a claimant who had of necessity to rely on his disclosure of deceit on the public administration by transferring his property to his son in order to avoid a regulation on the size of Rubber Estate holdings.[36] Said Lord Mansfield in Holman v. Johnson.[37]

"no court will lend its aid to a man who founds his cause of action upon an immoral or an illegal act".

In Sajan Singh v. Sardara Ali[35]

as a result of an unlawful contract, a lorry was sold to the plaintiff and was in his possession and was used by him although the permit was in the name of the defendant because the former could not and the latter could get a licence for a lorry. The defendant removed the lorry and the plaintiff sued to recover possession.

The plaintiff succeeded in recovering property of which he was wrongfully dispossessed even though the title of the property was acquired by the plaintiff by an unlawful transaction between the plaintiff and the defendant. This was because he could sue without relying on the unlawful contract between the parties.[35]

In a more recent case[38] the rule in Bowmakers[39] case was applied by the Privy Council. There, the plaintiff, an African, was allowed to successfully sue against a non-African for possession of his property leased out to the non-African without the approval of the Governor which was required under the law. The plaintiff was, therefore, acting in contravention of the law and was committing an offence. But, so was the defendant who could not show any right to the property in view of the terms of the legislative provisions, nor could he assert any right to occupation. As a non-African, he had no right without the consent in writing of the Governor to occupy or enter into possession of the land or to make any contract to take the land on lease. The defendant therefore was not and never had been in lawful occupation. The defendant could not rely on an illegal agreement as justifying any right or claim to remain in possession and without doing so, he could not defeat the plaintiff's case. The plaintiff on the other hand required no aid from the illegal transaction to establish his case. It was sufficient for him to show that he was the registered proprietor of the land, and the defendant was a non-African in occupation without the formalities under the statute and accordingly had no right to occupy. In such circumstances, the plaintiff was no in pari delicto with the defendant. It may be pointed out that in that case the relevant legislation was intended for the protection of the Africans as a class.[38] It was held by the Privy Council that it would be contrary to public policy to refuse to assist an African to eject a non-African in illegal occupation of the land even though the African might have committed an illegal act in permitting the non-African to enter on the land.[38]

Similarly, where a landlord received a premium, fair or extortionate, and the receipt was contrary to the provisions of the Uganda Ordinance, the Privy Council held the premium recoverable by the tenant and the plea of in pari delicto was not entertained because the or-

---

33 Smt. Surasaibalini v. Phanindra, 1965 A.S.C. 1364, 1368; (1965) 1 S.C.R. 861; Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunasalam Chettiar (1962) A.C. 294; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 548; Sajan Singh v. Sardara Ali (1960) A.C. 167; (1960) 1 All E.R. 269.

34 (1962) A.C. 294; (1962) 2 W.L.R. 548.

35 (1960) A.C. 167; (1960) 1 All E.R. 269 both refd. to in Smt. Surasaibalini v. Phanindra (1965) A.S.C. 1364; (1965) 1 S.C.R. 861; Shanta Agarwal v. Baldota Bros. (1974) 76 Bom. L.R. 156.

36 Palaniappa Chettiar v. Arunasalam Chettiar, 1962 A.C. 294; (1962) 3 W.L.R. 548; Thomas Brown & Sons v. Fazal Deen (1962) 108 C.L.R. 391; 412. See Holman v. Johnson (1775) 1 Cowp. 341, 343.

37 Holman v. Johnson (1775) 1 Cowp. 341, 343.

38 Mistry Amar Singh v. Serwano Wofunira Kalubya (1963) 3 W.L.R. 513 (P.C.).

39 Bowmakers Ltd. v. Barnet Instruments Ltd. (1945) K.B. 65; Amar Singh v. Kulubya (1963) 3 W.L.R. 513 (P.C.).

dinance was for the protection of tenant from exploitation and the law imposed penalty on the landlord and not on the tenant, the duty of observing the law being on the shoulder of the landlord. The absence of a remedy under the Ordinance did not affect the tenants rights.[40]

The dictum of Lord Ellenborough in Langton v. Hughes that "what is done in contravention of an Act of Parliament cannot be made the subject-matter of an action"[41] has no application to cases where a party is seeking to recover money paid under an illegal transaction.[42] If two parties enter into an illegal contract and money is paid upon it by one to the other, that may be recovered back before the execution of the contract but not afterwards. This is on the principle that so long as the transaction has not been fully executed and carried out, the courts would allow suits for recovery of money or property transferred.[43] But as soon as the illegal transaction has been fully executed and carried out the Courts will not entertain a suit for recovery,[44] unless it appears that the parties were not in pari delicto.[45] The claim of the vendor for the balance of the purchase money remaining unpaid was dismissed and so was the claim for the return of instalments of purchase price paid by the purchaser on the ground that for money to be recoverable there must be an element of duress or oppression or fraud so that parties are considered not to be in pari delicto.[46] (Contract illegal for contravention of statute.)

A tenant under a tenancy governed by the Bombay Hotel & Lodging Houses Rates Control Act, 1947, was allowed by the landlord "to keep sub-tenants", although sub-letting was prohibited by section 15 of that Act. Another provision gave a landlord the right to evict his tenant for sub-letting. In a suit for ejectment the tenant pleaded that the parties were in pari delicto and that the landlord had waived his right of ejectment. Non obstante clause in section 15 of the Act provided that "notwithstanding anything contained in any law it shall not be lawful ... for any tenant to sub-let the whole or any part of the premises..."

Money paid to a person to get a boy admitted into a Medical College cannot be recovered when both parties are equally guilty and the maxim in pari delicto potior est canditio possidentis applies. Therefore money paid by a person to another to get his son admitted into a Medical College and the boy does not get admitted cannot be recovered by suit.[47]

The word "law" in the clause was held to apply to a contract because all contracts would fall under the law relating to contracts—the Contract Act, and an agreement in contravention of section 15 would be unenforceable under section 23 of the Contract Act as being prohibited under the express provision of the Act. It is not permissible to any person to rely upon a contract the making of which the law prohibits.[48] Where both parties do not show any conspiracy

---

40 Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127 (P.C.)

41 Langton v. Hughes (1813) 1 M. & S. 593, 596.

42 Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Ranchhoddas Dewani (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127, 131 (P.C.); (1960) A.C. 192; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177. Dicta of Lord Mansfield on Lowry v. Bourdieu (1780) 2 Dough. K.B. 468, 472 and in Browning v. Morris (1778) 2 Cowp. 790, 792 applied.

43 Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Ranchhod Das Dewani (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127, 132; (1960) A.C. 192; Hastelow v. Jackson (1828) 8 B. & C. 221, 226; Taylor v. Bowers (1876) 1 Q.B.D. 291 appd. in Petherparmal Chetty v. Maniandi Servai (1908) 35 I.A. 98.

44 Herman v. Jeuchner (1885) 15 Q.B.D. 561; Kiriri Cotton Co. Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192, 203; (1960) 1 All E.R. 177; (1960) 2 W.L.R. 127 (P.C.).

45 Lowry v. Bourdieu (1780) 2 Dough. K.B. 468, 472; Kiriri Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Dewani (1960) A.C. 192, 203.

46 George v. Greater Adelaide Land Development Co. Ltd. (1929) 43 C.L.R. 91, 99, 101; Petherpermal Chetty v. Muniandi Servai, 35 I.A. 98, 103; Harse v. Pearl Life Assurance Co. (1904) 1 K.B. 558 (C.A.) relied on. Statement in Halsbury, Vol. 7, para 846 (2nd Ed.) not appd. (that money is recoverable in an illegal contract so long as contract remains executory and substantial part of the contract has not been performed). But see Vol. 8 (3rd Ed.) p. 150 where it is stated that the money can be recovered provided the claimant has repented and withdrawn from the contract before the illegal purpose has been substantially performed and notice of repudiation is given before the action is brought.

47 N.V. Pandian v. M.M. Roy (1979) A.M. 42, 46; Sitaram v. Radhabai (1968) A.SC. 534, 537; Kuju Collieries v. Jharkhand Mine (1974) A.SC. 1892 folld.

48 Waman Shrinivas Kini v. Ratilal Bhagwandas (1959) Supp. 2 S.C.R. 217, 221; (1959) A.SC. 689.

to defraud a third person or to commit any illegal act, the maxim in pari delicto can "hardly be applicable".[49] Where regulations were intended to regulate the relations of Government and persons but had no bearing upon the relations between persons claiming to be in possession; and further the penalty was a fine for wrongful occupation and in no sense a punishment for crime, the illegality of the possession was not a criminal act and the regaining of lost possession cannot be described as an action to take advantage of one's own illegal action.[50] If a plaintiff does not have to rely upon his own illegality then although the possession had begun in trespass a suit can be maintained for restitution of possession. Otherwise the opposition party can make unjust enrichment although his own possession is wrongful against the claimant.[51]

S. 23 not concerned with motive.—S. 23 is not concerned with motive. It is confined to the object of transaction and not to the reasons or motive which prompted it. 'B' borrowed a certain amount of money from 'A' in order to bribe a certain officer. After the bribing was done. 'B' obtained a loan from 'C' in order to pay off 'A' and executed a mortgage in favour of 'C'. It was held that the object of the mortgage was not to effect an illegal purpose as such illegal purpose had already been effected, and, therefore, the mortgage transaction was not contrary to public policy.[52]

In a suit by the plaintiffs against defendants for recovery of an amount, the plaintiff alleged that the amount which he had advanced to the defendants had not been disclosed to the Income Tax Authorities and, therefore, escaped income tax, that the defendants knew that they had not been disclosed and that income tax had not been paid on them. The defendants pleaded that the agreement was illegal and void ab initio as the consideration or the object was to conceal or keep concealed fraudulently the undisclosed monies suppressed by the plaintiffs from the Income Tax Authorities. It was held that it was not open to the Court to draw any inference from the averments in the plaint. It was further held that the object of the agreement as pleaded in the plaint was not to evade payment of the income tax and the agreement was not against public policy.[53]

Before the time of performance of an illegal contract one of the guilty parties is allowed a locus penitentiae but after the time of performance has passed the repentance of one is of no avail.[54]

1. Trading with enemy.—Detrimental contracts are those which tend either to benefit an enemy country or to disturb the good relations of a country with a friendly country.[55] Agreements alleged to amount to trading with an enemy or otherwise to operate in the enemy's favour in time of war do not appear to have come before the Courts of British India before the war of 1914. It is long settled law that all trade with public enemies without licence of the Crown is unlawful. "The King's subjects cannot trade with an alien enemy, i.e., a person owing allegiance to a Government at war with the King, without the King's licence".[56] This includes shipping a cargo from an enemy's port even in a neutral vessel.[57] As a consequence of this, "no action can be maintained against an insurer of an enemy's goods or ships against capture by the British Government".[58] If the performance of a contract made in time of peace is rendered unlawful by the outbreak of war, the obligation of the contract is suspended or dissolved according as the intention of the parties can or cannot be substantially

---

49 Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861, 868; (1960) A.S.C. 213.
50 Nair Service Society v. K.C. Alexander (1968) A.SC. 1165, 1176.
51 Ibid; Holman v. Johnson (1775) 1 Cowp. 341; 98 E.R. 1120 refd. to.
52 Kashinath and another v. Bapurao & others (1940) A.N. 305, 311, 312; Kalikumari v. Manomohinee (1935) A. Cal. 748 disting.; Fender v. Mildmay (1938) A.C.1; (1937) 3 All E.R. 402 refd. to.
53 Shanta Agarwal v. M/s Baldota Bros. (1974) 76 Bom. L.R. 156.
54 Harry Parker Ltd. v. Mason (1940) 4 All E.R. 199, 202; Kedar Nath Motani v. Prahlad Rai (1960) 1 S.C.R. 861, 873; (1960) A.SC. 213.
55 Furtado v. Rogers (1802) 3 Bob. & P. 191, 198.
56 Lord Macnaghten, Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines (1902) A.C. 484, at p. 499.
57 Potts v. Bell (1800) 8 T.R. 548; 5 R.R. 452; Esposito v. Bowden (1857) 7 E. & B. 763; 110 R.R. 822.
58 Lord Macnaghten, Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines (1902) A.C. 484, at p. 499.

carried out by postponing the performance till the end of hostilities.[59] In such a case a contracting party is not bound to perform a part of his undertaking which remains possible and lawful in itself, but would be useless without the rest.[60] The recent development of cases of this class is dealt with under s. 56 below. The rules under this head become applicable only when an actual state of war exists. They cannot be made to relate back to a time before the war, though war may have been apprehended. A contract of insurance made before war cannot be vitiated, as regards a loss by seizure also before any act of public hostility, by the fact that war did break out shortly afterwards.[61]

During the first and second Great Wars these principles have been confirmed and in some directions developed; and the matter has been the subject of special legislation, always growing more drastic, passed after the outbreak of hostilities. One question found to need further definition was who is an enemy for the purpose of the rule, and especially how the friendly or hostile character of an incorporated company is to be tested. The seat of a man's business is of more importance than is domicile in the technical sense or even nationality (for an enemy) subject allowed to remain here under the protection of the State is not a commercial enemy, and enemy subjects residing in friendly countries need not be); and in the case of a corporation the jurisdiction in which it is registered does not conclusively determine its character, nor yet the nationality of its individual shareholders, and it must be considered by whom and in what interest its affairs are in fact controlled.[62]

An executory contract between parties of whom one becomes an alien enemy is thereby suspended or dissolved according to the nature of the case. It is dissolved if it contemplated a continuous performance which in the state of war would entail intercourse with enemy, or if the continuance of duties to be performed after the war would assist the enemy's trade, or if the maintenance of the contract is otherwise against public policy, or if suspension of the current execution would substantially be imposing a new contract on the parties. An express suspensive condition in general terms is in no way conclusive. It may not be applicable to the event of war, or it may be contrary to public policy.[63] On the outbreak of the war a contract between a German Company and a British Company is suspended and not abrogated if it is wholly executed and involves no intercourse between subjects and alien enemies or increase of enemy resources. Law allows payment in Germany to a German agency and in German marks from one person in Germany to another. It does not increase the resources of the enemy.[64]

2. Stifling prosecution.—Agreements for stifling prosecutions are a well-known class of those which the Courts refuse to enforce on this ground. The principle is "that you shall not make a trade of a felony";[65] or, as it was expressed in a Calcutta case, "no Court of law can countenance or give effect to an agreement which attempts to take the administration of law out of the hands of the judges and put it in the hands of private individuals". [66] In England the compromise of any public offence is illegal. If the accused person is "innocent, the law (is)

---

59 Esposito v. Bowden (1857) 7 E. & B. 763; 110 R.R. 822.

60 Geipel v. Smith (1872) L.R. Q.B. 404.

61 Janson v. Driefontein Consolidated Mines (1902) A.C. 484, followed in Wolf & Sons v. Dadyba Khimji & Co. (1920) 44 Bom. 631; 58 I.C. 465.

62 Porter v. Freudenberg (1915) 1 K.B. 857; Diamler Co.'s case (1916) 2 A.C. 307; Re Badische Co. (1921) 2 Ch. 331. It is not practicable to go into details here, and the reader must be referred to specialised works on the subject, of which there are many.

63 Ertel Bieber & Co. v. Rio Tinto Co. (1918) A.C. 260; Naylor, Benzon & Co. v. Krainische Industrie Gesellschaft (1918) 1 K.B. 331, affirmed very shortly (1918) 2 K.B. 486; Zinc Corporation v. Hirsch (1916) 1 K.B. 541, C.A.; Arab Bank v. Barclays Bank (1955) 1 All E.R. 226. We deal elsewhere with the effects of war conditions on contracts to which there is not an enemy party, see Notes on s. 56.

64 Claim by Helbert Wagg & Co. in re (1956) 2 W.L.R. 183, 202; Schering Ltd. v. Stockholms Enskilda Bank (1946) A.C. 219; (1946) 1 All E.R. 36.

65 Lord Westbury, Williams v. Bayley (1866) L.R. 1 H.L. 200, 220.

66 Sudhindra Kumar v. Ganesh Chandra (1939) 1 Cal. 241, per Mukherjea J. at p. 250; 1938 A. Cal. 840; 179 I.C. 210; Mohanlal Jagannath v. Kashiram (1950) Nag. 105, 1950 A. Nag. 71; Narasimharaju v. Gurumurthy Raju (1963) A.SC. 107, 110; (1963) 3 S.C.R. 687 (arbitration of a criminal complaint); Malka v. Sardar (1929) A.L. 394; Ahmad Ullah v. Hafiz Ullah (1961) A.A. 173; Kamini Kumar v. Birendra Nath, 51 I.A. 117; (1929) A.PC. 109 (case of arbitration).

abused for the purpose of extortion; if guilty, the law (is) eluded by a corrupt compromise screening the criminal for a bribe".[67] It is not necessary to prove that there was any express threat of prosecution if the transaction in fact amounted to a bargain not to prosecute, and if the Court thinks the defence of illegality a disreputable one to raise in the circumstances, the only way in which it can give effect to its opinion is in dealing with the costs.[68] But the English common-law rule, that contracts for the compounding or suppression of criminal charges for offences of a public nature are illegal and void, has no application to a contract for compounding the prosecution of criminal proceedings for an offence against the municipal law of a foreign country and committed there, if such a contract is permitted by the law of that country, and this whether the contract is entered into there or in British territory. A suit would, therefore, lie in British India on a bond passed to the plaintiff in consideration of his withdrawing a prosecution for theft instituted in the French Court at Pondicherry, the agreement being permissible by the French law.[69] It would have been difficult, indeed, to hold that the compromise of a French law suit in a manner allowed by French law could have been injurious to the administration of justice in British India.

There are two Supreme Court cases that are dealing with the question of stifling prosecution.

In the first one, in a pending criminal proceeding against the accused under sections 420, 465, 468, 477 read with sections 107 and 120B of the Indian Penal Code, some of which were non-compoundable, the parties entered into an agreement on the date of hearing of the criminal case to refer their dispute to arbitration in consideration of the complainant withdrawing the criminal case and the dispute was actually referred.

The arbitration agreement was held to be invalid as being opposed to public policy, on the ground that if a person sets the machinery of the criminal law into motion on the allegation of the commission of a non-compoundable offence and by the use of its coercive machinery he compels the opponent to enter into an agreement, the agreement will be invalid as being opposed to public policy.[70] In the second case Ouseph Poulo's case, the plaintiff had pledged certain goods to the defendant Bank as security for the Bank. The goods were found to be of a much smaller value. The Bank thereupon filed information resulting in police investigation. The plaintiff and his relations then executed mortgages and hypothecation bonds and the pledged goods were "surrendered" to the Bank. Thereafter the proceedings in the police department were dropped.

The Supreme Court held that it was not proved that the party had executed the document in consideration of the withdrawal. The Supreme Court stressed the fact that the sequence of events may tend to obliterate the real difference between the motive for the agreement and the consideration for it.[71]

---

67 Keir v. Leeman (1844) 6 Q.B. 308; 66 R.R. 392; 9 Q.B. 371, 392; 72 R.R. 298; Windhill Local Board v. Vint. (1890) 45 Ch.D. 357.

68 Jones v. Merionethshire Building Society (1892) 1 Ch. 178, C.A.; Bhowanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh Nandini Dasi (1942) 1 Cal. 1 (Lord Atkin); 196 I.C. 463; 1941 A.P.C. 95; 44 Bom. L.R. 1; Mohanlal v. Kashiram (1950) Nag. 105; (1950) A.N. 71; S. 19. Central Provinces & Berar Act 15 of 1938; Pannalal v. Thansing, 1952 A.N. 195.

69 Subraya Pillai v. Subraya Mudali (1867) 4 M.H.C. 14. Reference was made in the course of the judgment to the rule of private international law that "the law of the place of a contract" governs its validity. That expression, however, is ambiguous. The local law governing the substance of a contract may, according to the circumstances, be that of the place where it was made, or of that where it is to be performed; and these are only auxiliary tests for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to what law is to prevail: Hamlyn & Co. v. Talisker Distillery 1894 A.C. 202; Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 7th ed., pp. 738 sqq. Kaufman v. Gerson 1904 1 K.B. 591, C.A., looks at first sight contra; but the Court seems to have been influenced by peculiar facts, and it is far from clear that the decision was intended to lay down any general rule of law. And see notes on s. 1, "choice of law governing contract", above.

70 Narasimharaju v. Gurumurthy Raju (1963) 3 S.C.R. 687; (1963) A.SC. 107, 109, Smt. Sumitra Devi v. Smt. Sulekha Kundu (1976) A.Cal. 196, 205, Deb Kumar v. Anath Bandhu (1931) A.Cal. 421 disting.

71 Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank Ltd. (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745; (1965) A.SC. 166.; Mahendra Singh v. Achal Trust, Agra (1971) 2 All. 94, 111.

An employee of a Company pilfered goods from his employer's premises and sold them to defendants 1and 2. When the Company wanted to take legal proceedings the defendants 1 and 2 voluntarily executed a pronote for the value of the goods and as a mode of payment gave four cheques in the name of defendant 3 who undertook to cash the cheques and pay the money to the Company. Only one cheque was cashed and the rest were dishonoured and the Company brought a suit. The defence was coercion and intimidation by threatening criminal proceedings and therefore the transaction was void under s. 23, Contract Act.

The High Court on appeal decreed the suit holding that the property in the goods had not passed to the two executants and they had to return the goods,: & as they could not do so, they chose the impugned method of payment in discharge of their liability at a time when the Company had not decided what action to take; so there was no illegality in accepting the mode of payment adopted. It also held that the consideration for the pronote was not to stifle prosecution. There is a difference between a motive for the agreement and consideration for it. There being nothing illegal or opposed to public policy within section 23 of the Contract Act, the pronote was legal and the motive for the pronote was to avoid a legal proceeding & the consideration was valid—the price of the goods.[72]

A compromise of proceedings which are criminal only in form, and involve only private rights, may be lawful.[73] This perhaps is of no importance in Indian practice, where we have a statutory list of compoundable offences.[74] "The criminal law of this country makes a difference between various classes of offences. With regard to some, it allows the parties to come to an agreement and either not to take proceedings or to drop the proceedings after institution in a few instances even without the leave of the Court, and, in other instances, with the leave of the Court. But there are other instances which cannot be compounded or arranged between the parties. If the offence (is) compoundable and (can) be settled in or out of Court without the leave of the Court, there seems no reason why (a compromise) should be regarded as forbidden by law or as against public policy, the policy of the criminal procedure being to allow such a compromise in such cases".[75] Thus where A agreed to execute a kabala of certain lands in favour of B in consideration of B's abstaining from taking criminal proceedings against A with respect to an offence of simple assault which is compoundable, it was held that the contract was not against public policy and that the same could be enforced.[76] So a promise to pay a sum of money as compensation for the abduction of a woman is enforceable, provided the abduction does not constitute a non-compoundable offence.[77] Likewise, money paid to compromise a charge of adultery may be recovered back, if the party to whom the money is paid proceeds with the prosecution of the charge, adultery being a compoundable offence.[78] Where the offence is compoundable with leave of the Court, and such leave is obtained, the composition cannot fall within the mischief of the section.[79] But where the offence is non-

---

72 R. Sivaram v. T.A. John & others (1975) A. Ker. 101.

73 Fisher & Co. v. Appollinaris Co. (1875) L.R. 10 Ch. 297, as qualified by Windhill Local Board v. Vint (1890) 45 Ch.D. 351. Cp. Birendra Nath Basu v. Basanta Kumar Basu, 1926 A.Cal. 519; 91 I.C. 624, where the criminal complaint, though nominally of forgery, was merely an incident in a dispute about property: Tek Chand v. Harjas Rai-Arjan Das, 1929 A.Lah. 564; 117 I.C. 74.

74 See s. 345, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898; see also Penal Code, ss. 213, 214. But even as to a non-compoundable offence the withdrawal of a petty charge, as an incident in a fair compromise, does not avoid the compromise: Onkar Mal v. Ashiq Ali (1927) 49 All. 540; 100 I.C. 499; 1927 A.A. 318. Also there must be better evidence of compounding than the mere withdrawal of a complaint: see Sadho Kandu v. Jhinka Kuer, 1929 A.A. 456; 116 I.C. 749: Harjas Rai-Arjan Das v. Tek Chand, 1927 A.L. 465; 101 I.C. 786; Shanti Sarup v. Lal Chand, 1927 A.L. 530; 103 I.C. 444; 28 P.L.R. 388; 9 Lah.L.J. 319. The Court cannot act on a mere surmise that the acts of the parties were in substance one transaction. It is a distinct question, not relevant here, whether the use of criminal process to procure satisfaction of substantially civil claims is proper.

75 Per Cur. Amir Khan v. Amir Jan (1898) 3 C.W.N. 5, followed in Ahmed Hassan v. Hassan Mahomed (1928) 52 Bom. 693; 112 I.C. 459; 1928 A.B. 305.

76 Ibid.

77 Shah Rahman v. Ismail Khan (1904) Punj. Rec. No. 82.

78 Hosein Shah v. Nur Ahmed (1875) Punj. Rec. No. 81.

79 Meenakshi Sundarammal v. Subramania Ayyar, 1955 A.M. 369; Ramachandra v. Mst. Bhanwari Bai (1973) A.Raj. 260.

compoundable, an agreement made for the purpose of compounding it or stifling a prosecution in respect of it is unenforceable and cannot be sued on.[80] An agreement to stifle a prosecution is invalid where it is supported by prohibited consideration, e.g. reparation made as a consideration to give up criminal prosecution which would be an abuse of the right of private prosecution.[81] If the agreement to abandon a prosecution is part of the consideration for the payment of the debt, the reality of the debt is irrelevant.[82] A mortgage executed for a sum of money embezzled by the mortgagor's son and as a compromise for withdrawing a prosecution is void under section 24.[83] Even if the prosecution is proceeded with by the authorities, in spite of the agreement to withdraw it, the agreement is void.[84] And, further, if the accused was induced to pay money to the complainant in order that a criminal prosecution for an offence which was not compoundable should not be proceeded with, the accused is entitled to recover back the money as paid under "coercion" within the meaning of s. 72 below. In such a case the parties cannot be said to be in pari delicto,[85] But if there is no evidence of pressure or coercion, the money cannot be recovered back, because in such a case the parties will be deemed to be in pari delicto.[86] Four Police Constables threatened to take possession of uncustomed articles unless they were paid £6,500 out of which £1,000 was paid. The constables did not make any report or initiate proceedings. The plaintiff sought to recover the £1,000. He was held not entitled to recover because buying off a threatened prosecution even though brought about by express threats to prosecute unless money is paid is a violation of the general law of public policy.[87] In a Madras case, where the plaintiffs agreed to relinquish their right to a religious office in favour of the defendant in consideration of the latter withdrawing a charge of criminal trespass preferred against them, it was stated by Innes J. that the agreement was illegal, as it "would amount to the stifling of a criminal prosecution for an offence which the law does not permit to be compounded." The case was, however, treated as one of "coercion," the charge of trespass being false, and the sole cause for entering into the agreement being "the well-founded terror of the influence of the prosecutor and of the civil death which would probably result from his proceedings".[88] In Kessowji v. Hurjivan[89] it was held that a guarantee for the 80 Majibar v. Syed Muktashed (1912) 40 Cal. 113; Mottai v. Thanappa (1914) 37 Mad. 385; Ghulam Mohiy-ud-Din v. Deoki Nand (1914) Punj. Rec. No. 39, p. 133; Ahmed Hassan v. Hassan Mahomed (1928) 52 Bom. 693; 112 I.C. 459; 1928 A.B. 305; Veerayya v. Sobhanadri, 1936 A.M. 656; Banu Mal v. Ratan Deo, 1937 A.A. 370; (1937) All.L.J. 333; 169 I.C. 533. Withdrawal of proceedings, "an implied term of reference to arbitration": Kamini Kumar Basu v. Birendra Nath Basu (1930) 57 I.A. 117; 57 Cal. 1302; 123 I.C. 187; 1930 A.P.C. 100; Gopal Chandra Poddar v. Lakshmi Kanta, 1933 A.Cal. 817; 37 C.W.N. 749; 147 I.C. 492; Karnidan Sarda v. Sailaja Kanta Mitra (1940) 19 Pat. 715; 192 I.C. 187; 1940 A.P. 683; Motumal v. Ibrahim (1943) Kar. 390, 212 I.C. 287, 1944 A.S. 80; Mohanlal Jagannath v. Kashiram (1950) Nag. 105, A.N. 71. Proceedings withdrawn on plaintiff agreeing to convey lands to defendant for a certain sum: Brahmdeo Narayan v. Brajballabh Prasad (1940) Pat. 424; 188 I.C. 859, 1940 A.P. 573; Ouseph Poulo v. The Catholic Union Bank Ltd. (1965) A.SC. 166; (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745; Narasimha Raju v. Gurumurthy Raju (1963) 3 S.C.R. 687; (1963) A.SC. 107; Bhowanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh Nandini (1941) 1 Cal. 1; (1941) A.PC. 95; Radhakishan v. Chapa Bhima (1963) A.M.P. 139 (a promissory note executed).

---

81 Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank (1965) A.SC. 166; (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745; Narasimharaju v. Gurumurthy Raju (1963) 3 S.C.R. 687; (1963) A.SC. 107. (A case of arbitration agreement); Kamini Kumar v. Birendra (1930) A.PC. 100; 57 Cal. 1302; Bhawanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh (1941) A.PC. 95; (1942) 1 Cal. 1. (Wife mortgaged property for the debt of husband. But mortgage was held illegal as executed in consideration of withdrawal of a criminal case which was opposed to public policy.)

82 Bhawanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh Nandini (1941) 1 Cal. 1; 1941 P.C. 95; Jones v. Merionithshire Permanent Building Society (1891) 2 Ch. 587.

83 Eastern Mercantile Bank v. Philip (1960) A.Ker. 194.

84 Shripad v. Sanikatta Salt Sale Society (1945) Bom. 208, 46 Bom. L.R. 745, 1945 A.B. 82.

85 Muthuveerappa v. Ramaswami (1917) 40 Mad. 285; 34 I.C. 401; 1917 A.M. 607; Trikamdas v. Bombay Corporation, 1954 A.B. 427; Dy. Commissioner Rae Bareli v. Har Narain (1956) A.A. 205.

86 Amjadennessa Bibi v. Rahim Buksh (1915) 42 Cal. 286; 28 I.C. 713; Bindeshari Prasad v. Lekhraj Sahu (1916) 1 Pat. L.J. 48, 60, 61; 33 I.C. 711.

87 Callaghan v. O'Sulliyan (1925) V.L.R. 664; Atkinson v. Denby (1862) 7 H. & N. 934 (parties are not in pari delicto where there is coercion) dist.

88 Pudishary Krishnen v. Karampally Kunhunni (1874) 7 M.H.C. 378; Sanaulla v. Kalimullah, 1932 A.L. 446; 137 I.C. 790; Karnidam Sarda v. Sailaja Kanta Mitra, supra, note 73.

89 (1887) II Bom. 566; Shib Charan Lal v. Lachmi, 1951 A.A. 613; Das v. Jai Kishen Das (1900) 22 All. 230. But application for leave to withdraw a prosecution already commenced does not of itself amount to stifling the prosecution: Dwijendra Nath Mullick v. Gopiram Gobindaram (1925) 29 payment to creditors of debts due to them in consideration of the creditors abstaining from taking criminal proceedings against the debtor is void, as being against public policy. But it must be noted, as observed in that case, that "a man to whom a civil debt is due may take securities for that debt from his debtor, even though the debt arises out of a criminal offence, and he threatens to prosecute for that offence, provided he does not, in consideration of such security, agree not to prosecute, and such an agreement will not be inferred from the creditor's using strong language. He must not, however, by stifling a prosecution obtain a guarantee for his debt from third parties".[90] Following this principle, it has been held that where a bona fide debt exists and where the transactions between the parties involve a civil liability as well as possibly a criminal act, a promissory note given by the debtor and a third party as security for the debt is not void under this section.[91] But on reparation being made or promised by the offender or his friends, it would be a public mischief if on mercy being shown reparation is sought to be avoided. It is the duty of an offender to make reparation and he should be encouraged to do so.[92] On the other hand, to insist on reparation as a consideration for a promise to abandon criminal proceedings is a serious abuse of the right of private prosecution.[92] If a third party alone provides the security, an agreement not to prosecute is more likely to be inferred from the circumstances.[93] So also where the nature of previous dealing is substantially altered with a view to terminate the criminal proceedings.[94] But in weighing the different considerations, the court must enquire 'did one party to the transaction make his promise in exchange or part exchange of promise not to prosecute'.[94] The agreement usually has to be inferred, as such bargains are seldom set out on paper.[95]

In Bhavanipur Banking case,

> the husband and some of his relations were prosecuted for conspiracy to cheat. The question of liability of the accused was referred to arbitration and an award against the accused was made. In order to pay off that sum, certain arrangements were arrived and one of the terms was the mortgage by the wife of her property and in consideration thereof the prosecution was withdrawn.

This mortgage was held illegal by the Privy Council.[96] In a Patna case, > as a result of a prosecution, a compromise was entered into, whereby two widows, who were under the Hindu Widows Right to Property Act entitled to a widow's estate, accepted an area of land to be enjoyed by them during life without a right of alienation and the prosecution was withdrawn.

This was held to be illegal under section 23 of the Contract Act.[97] A contract the consideration for which is the stifling of a prosecution for a non-compoundable offence is void;

C.W.N. 855; 89 I.C. 200; in Rameshar Marwari v. Upendranath Das Sarkar, a case reported, 29 C.W.N. 1029; 90 I.C. 463; 1926 A. Cal. 455, there was no credible evidence of any prosecution at all. Sudhindra Kumar v. Ganesh Chandra (1939) 1 Cal. 241; 1938 A. Cal. 840; 179 I.C. 210; Mt. Haliman v. Mohd. Manir (1971) A.P. 385 (agreement to give up share of inheritance to save one's son from prosecution).

90 This statement of the law is largely based upon the English case of Flower v. Sadler (1882) 10 Q.B.D. 572, which was cited with approval by the P.C. in the Bhowanipur Banking Corporation Case (1942) 1 Cal. 1.

91 Jai Kumar v. Gauri Nath (1906) 28 All. 718; Nanak Chand v. Durant (1906) Punj. Rec. No.9; Sukhdeo Das v. Mangalchand (1917) 2 Pat. L.J. 630; 41 I.C. 812; to same effect Narasimhalu Naidu v. Naina Pillai (1929) 115 I.C. 156; 1929 A.M. 7; Widya Wanti v. Jai Dayal (1931) 13 Lah. 356; 140 I.C. 220; 1932 A.L. 541; Deb Kumar v. Anath Bandhu, 1931 A. Cal. 421; 35 C.W.N. 26; 131 I.C. 133; Shaikh Gafoor v. Hemanta, 1931 A. Cal. 416; 35 C.W.N. 28; 131 I.C. 574; Chandanmal v. Ramakrishnayya (1941) 2 M.L.J. 827; 1942 A.M. 173; London & Lancashire Insurance Co. v. Binoy Krishna, 945 A. Cal. 218, 220 I.C. 379 (threat of prosecution does not avoid the contract). Ramchandra Laxman v. Bank of Kolhapur (1952) Bom. 715, 1952 A.B. 315.

92 Bhawanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh (1941) A.P.C. 95; (1942) 1 Cal. 1; Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank (1965) A.S.C. 166, 169; (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745.

93 Flower v. Sadler (1882) 10 Q.B.D. 572, 576; Sudhindra Kumar v. Ganesh Chandra (1939) 1 Cal. 241; Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank Ltd. (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745; (1965) A. SC. 166.

94 Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank Ltd. (1965) A.SC. 166; (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745.

95 The Bhowanipur Banking Corporation Case (1942) I Cal. 1, 4; Mohanlal Jagannath v. Kashiram (1950) Nag. 105.

96 Bhowanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh Nandini (1941) 1 Cal. 1; (1941) A.PC. 95.

97 Mt. Dhanwantia v. Deonandan (1957) A.P. 477; Bhowanipur Banking Corporation v. Durgesh Nandini (1941) 1 Cal. 1; (1941) A.PC. 95.

and it makes no difference if only a complaint has been filed and no process has issued.[98] As a suit will not lie on an agreement to stifle a prosecution so an agreement of this class will not avail as a defence to a suit.[99] Thus, where in a suit for damages for wrongful arrest and confinement the defendant pleaded an agreement under which the plaintiff was to give up all claims against the defendant for his arrest and confinement in consideration of the defendant withdrawing charges of criminal trespass and being a member of an unlawful assembly preferred against the plaintiff, it was held that, the latter offence being non-compoundable, the agreement could not be set up as an answer to the suit.[1] But the mere fact that A makes an agreement with B, who intends, by means of something to be obtained or done under it, to effect an unlawful or immoral purpose, will not render the agreement illegal unless A knows of that purpose. Thus, if B sells his house to A for the purpose of raising money to be given to certain third persons as a bribe to induce them to withdraw a charge of criminal breach of trust which they had preferred against B, the sale is not illegal unless it be proved that A was aware of the unlawful object.[2]

Criminal complaint and arbitration.—A criminal complaint cannot be referred to arbitration; an agreement to refer would be void.[3] The onus of proving the agreement to be opposed to public policy is on the party challenging its validity.[4]

3. "Champerty and maintenance."—Maintenance was thus defined by Lord Haldane in Neville v. London Express Newspapers Ltd.[5]

"...it is unlawful for a stranger to render officious assistance by money or otherwise to another person in a suit in which that third person has himself no legal interest, for its prosecution or defence."

"Champerty" is a species of maintenance of a dispute for a share of the proceeds or to have by agreement part of the subject matter of the suit.

The practices forbidden under these names by English law (partly by old statutes which it is needless to specify here, and which are said to be only in affirmance of the common law) may be summarily described as the promotion of litigation in which one has no interest of one's own. Maintenance is the more general term; champerty, which in fact is the subject of almost all the modern cases, is in its essence "a bargain whereby the one party is to assist the other in recovering property, and is to share in the proceeds of the action".[6] Agreements of this kind are equally illegal and void whether the assistance[7] to be furnished consists of money, or, it seems, of professional assistance, or both.[8] They are in practice often found to be also disputable on the ground of fraud or undue influence as between the parties.[9] The law of Champerty and maintenance extends the proceedings to establish proof in liquidation of a company and to any contentious proceedings where property is in dispute which becomes the subject of an agreement to share the proceeds.[10] A solicitor is not debarred from acting and

---

98 Ghulam Mujtaba v. Allah Bachaya, PLD, (1961) 5 B.J. 271.
99 Srish Chandra Nandi v. Supravat Chandra (1940) 1 Cal. 372; 190 I.C. 295; 1940 A. Cal. 337.
1 Dalsukhram v. Charles de Bretton (1904) 28 Bom. 326.
2 Rajkristo Moitro v. Koylash Chunder (1881) 8 Cal. 24, citing Pollock on Contract, p. 342, 2nd ed. (366, 11th ed.); Iqbal Ahmed v. Mohammed Hanif, 1952 A. Bho. 32. It need hardly be mentioned that, when A promises to remunerate B in consideration of B undertaking to use his influence over C so as to effect a compromise of a civil dispute between A and C, the consideration or object of the agreement is not unlawful: Syed Mahomed v. Shah Vazirul Huq (1911) 16 C.W.N. 480.
3 Malka v. Sardar, 1929 A.L. 394; Ahmadullah v. Hafizullah, 1961 A.A. 173; Narasimharaju v. Gurumurthy Raju, 1963 A. SC. 107, 110, (1963) 3 S.C.R. 687 (Arbitration); Kamini Kumar v. Birendra Nath, 57 I.A. 117; (1930) A.PC. 109 (Case of arbitration).
4 Ouseph Poulo v. Catholic Union Bank Ltd. (1964) 7 S.C.R. 745; (1965) A. SC. 166.
5 (1919) A.C. 368, 390; (1918-19) All E.R. Rep. 61, 71.
6 Hutley v. Hutley (1873) L.R. 8 Q.B. 112, per Blackburn J.; and see per Chitty J.; Guy v. Churchill (1888) 40 Ch. D. at p. 488.
7 There must be something more than simply communicating information: Rees v. De Bernardy (1896) 2 Ch. 437, 446.
8 Stanley v. Jones (1831) 7 Bing 369, 33 R.R. 513, may be considered the leading modern case; Re Attorneys and Solicitors Act (1875) 1 Ch.D. 573.
9 E.g., Rees v. De Bernardy (1896) 2 Ch. 437; U pe Gyi v. Maung Thein Shin (1923) 1 Rang. 565; 77 I.C. 372; 1924 A.R. 48; Lucy Moss v. Mah Nyein May, 1933 A.R. 418.
10 In re Trepca Mines Ltd. (1962) 3 All E.R. 351.

recovering his costs merely because of his knowledge of the client's champertous agreement. But if he actively participates by stipulating for a percentage or by doing a positive act to assist in the implementation of the unlawful agreement, he will be debarred; for by rendering positive assistance he becomes guilty of aiding and abetting; e.g. by drawing up the champertous agreement or to secure the sharing of the proceeds in accordance therewith.[11]

There is no rule of law to forbid the purchase of property of which the title is or may be disputed, but the law does not, therefore, sanction mere speculative traffic in rights of action.[12] To which class a given transaction belongs, in a case where doubt is at first sight possible, seems to be a question of fact rather than of law.

The specific rules of English law against maintenance and champerty have not been adopted in India,[13] and a champertous agreement is not per se void in India[14] neither are substantially similar rules applicable in any other way,[15] but the principle, so far as it rests on general grounds of policy, is regarded as part of the law of "justice, equity, and good conscience" to which the decisions of the Court should conform. The leading judgment to this effect is in Fischer v. Kamala Naicker,[16] an appeal from the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, Madras. There the Privy Council observed:

"The Court seem very properly to have considered that the champterty, or, more properly, the maintenance into which they were inquiring, was something which must have the qualities attributed to champerty or maintenance by the English law; it must be something against good policy and justice, something tending to promote unnecessary litigation, something that in a legal sense is immoral, and to the constitution of which a bad motive in the same sense is necessary."[17]

Adverting to these observations in a later case,[18] the Privy Council said:

"It is unnecessary now to say whether the above considerations are essential ingredients to constitute the statutable offence of champerty in England; but they have been properly regarded in India as an authoritative guide to direct the judgment of the Court in determining the binding nature of such agreements there."

In Bhagwat Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu,[19] their Lordships of the Privy Council clearly laid it down that an agreement champertous according to English law was not necessarily void in India; it must be against public policy to render it void here. A present transfer of property for consideration by a person who claims it as against another in possession thereof, but who has not yet established his title thereto, is not for that reason opposed to public policy.[20] Nor is it opposed to public policy merely because the payment of the major part of the consideration is made to depend on the transferee's success in the suit to be brought by him to recover the property.[21] Similarly agreements to share the subject of litigation if recovered in consideration of supplying funds to carry it on are not in themselves opposed to public policy.[22] 11 In re Trepca Mines Ltd. (1962) 3 All E.R. 351, 356, reversing (1962) 2 W.L.R. 800, where mere awareness of the terms of such agreement was held to make the contract void.

---

12 See the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 6(e). By the customs of the Kachins, a tribe on the north-east frontier of Burma, claims for unliquidated damages are or were freely assignable; see L.Q.R. ix. 97.

13 Chedambara Chetty v. Renja Krishna (1874) 1 I.A. 241; 13 B.L.R. 509; Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee (1876) 4 I.A. 23, 2 Cal. 233; other judgments where the law is merely mentioned as well settled are purposely not cited, but for an example see Banarsi Das v. Sital Singh (1929) 121 I.C. 295.

14 Venkataswami v. K. Nagi Reddy, 1962 A.AP. 457 (a case of champerty); Ram Sarup v. Court of Wards, 67 I.A. 50; (1940) Lah. 1; (1940) A.PC. 19; Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee, 4 I.A. 23, 47; 2 Cal. 233; Raghunath v. Nilkanth, 20 I.A. 112; 20 Cal. 848; Ratanchand Hirachand v. Askar Nawaz Jung (1976) A. AP. 112, 121.

15 Bhagwat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu (1907) 35 I.A. 48, 56; 35 Cal. 420.

16 (1860) 8 M.I.A. 170, where it was stated that an assignment by an agent to his principal of his interest in an agreement entered into in his name, but on behalf of the principal, was not champertous.

17 8 M.I.A. 187.

18 Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee, supra, note 6.

19 (1908) 35 I.A. 48; 35 Cal. 420.

20 Achal Ram v. Kazim Hussain Khan (1905) 32 I.A. 113; 27 All. 271; as explained in Bhagwat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu, supra, note 8.

21 Bhagwat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu, supra.

22 Kunwar Ram Lal v. Nil Kanth (1893) 20 I.A. 112; Indar Singh v. Munshi (1920) 1 Lah. 124; 56 I.C. 272; 1920 A.L. 123; Dara Shahpurji v. Askarai Begum, 1954 A. Hyd. 98.

"A fair agreement to supply funds to carry on a suit in consideration of having a share of the property if recovered ought not to be regarded as being per se opposed to public policy. Indeed, cases may be easily supposed in which it would be in furtherance of right and justice and necessary to resist oppression that a suitor who had a just title to property and no means except the property itself should be assisted in this manner. But agreements of this kind ought to be carefully watched and when found to be extortionate and unconscionable so as to be inequitable against the party, or to be made, not with the bona fide object of assisting a claim believed to be just and of obtaining a reasonable recompense therefor, but for improper objects, as for the purpose of gambling in litigation or of injuring or oppressing others by abetting and encouraging unrighteous suits so as to be contrary to public policy, effect ought to be given to them."[23]

But though the Courts will not give effect to agreements "got up for the purpose merely of spoil or of litigation" they may in a proper case award compensation for legitimate expenses incurred by the lender to enable the borrower to carry on the law suit.[24] Thus where, in consideration of the plaintiff agreeing to defray the expenses of prosecuting the defendant's suit to recover a certain property, the defendant agreed to transfer to the plaintiff, in one case nine annas share of the property;[25] in another two annas share,[26] and in a third eight annas share,[27] it was held that the agreement was extortionate and inequitable, and the plaintiff was awarded the expenses legitimately incurred by him with interest. The quantum of the share which the financier would get under the agreement is an important matter to be taken into consideration in judging the fairness or otherwise of the agreement. A three-sixteenth share to the financier is not a fair gain.[28] Where the claim was of a simple nature and in fact no suit was necessary to settle it, an agreement to pay Rs. 30,000 to the plaintiff for assisting in recovering the claim was held to be extortionate and inequitable.[29] An agreement in a pre-emption case, that the respondent would file the appeal in the name of the appellant and in case of success the appellant would pay half the costs to the respondent and half the purchase price, and share the property half and half is champertous and opposed to public policy and therefore void.[30] But mere inadequacy of consideration is not of itself sufficient to render a transaction champertous.[31] An agreement for the purchase of a property pendente lite which entitled the purchaser to cancel the agreement in the event of the suit being decided against the vendor so as to leave the vendor no interest in the property is not champertous.[32] Similarly an assignment for a second time by the mortgagor of his equity of redemption previously assigned to another by an unregistered document is not champertous, though the transaction may be one not commendable in conscience.[33] A sale for Rs. 50 of property worth Rs. 150 which the vendor had

---

23 Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee (1876) 4 I.A. 23; 2 Cal. 233; Baldeo Sahai v. Harbans (1911) 33 All. 626; II I.C. 932; Ramanamma v. Viranna, 1931 A.P.C. 100; 35 C.W.N. 633, 33 Bom.L.R. 960; 131 I.C. 401; Pannalal v. Thansing, 1952 A.N. 195. The point actually decided in Ram Coomar Coondoo's case was that a suit cannot lie at the instance of a successful defendant in a former suit to recover the costs of that suit from a party who advanced funds for the prosecution of the suit to the plaintiff therein, even though the advances may have been made under an agreement champertous and unconscionable in its nature, and though that party was the real actor and had an interest in that suit. Gopalan v. Chinnayya, 1958 A.A.P. 630; Raghunath v. Nilkanth, 20 I.A. 112; 20 Cal. 848.

24 Kunwar Ram Lal v. Nil Kanth (1893) 20 I.A. 112; Dhallu v. Jiwan Singh (1894) Punj. Rec. No. 79; Stewart v. Ram Chand (1906) Punj. Rec. No. 26; Alopi Parshad v. Court of Wards, 1938 A.L. 23; Gopalan v. Chinnayya, 1958 A.A.P. 630; Raghunath v. Nilkanth, 20 I.A. 112; 20 Cal. 848.

25 Kunwar Ram Lal's case, supra, note 17

26 Raja Mohkam Singh v. Raja Rup Singh (1893) 20 I.A. 127; 15 All. 352, in appeal from Chunni Kaur v. Rup Singh (1888) 11 All. 57.

27 Hussain Baksh v. Rahmat Husain (1888) 11 All. 128. See also Harivalabhdas v. Bhai Jivanji (1902) 26 Bom. 689.

28 Venkataswami v. Nagi Reddy (1962) A.AP. 457, 458; Ram Sarup v. Court of Wards, 1940 Lah. 1, 12 (P.C.); 67 I.A. 50; (1940) A.PC. 19 folld.; Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chander Canto Mookerjee, 4 I.A. 23, 47; 2 Cal. 233; Zainab Begum v. Khurshid Begum (1963) Rat. A. AP. 370; Ratanchand Hirachand v. Askar Nawaz Jung (1976) A.AP. 112, 121.

29 Harilal Nathalal v. Bhailal Pranlal, 1940 A.B. 143; 188 I.C. 217; 42 Bom. L.R. 165.

30 Suganchand v. Balchand, 1957 A. Raj. 89.

31 Gurusami v. Subbaraya (1888) 12 Mad. 118; Siva Ramayya v. Ellamma (1899) 22 Mad. 310.

32 Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy (1884) 8 Bom. 323, 333, 334.

33 Gopal Ramchandra v. Gangaram (1889) 14 Bom. 72, followed by the High Court of Madras in the case of a similar transaction in Ramanuja v. Narayana (1895) 18 Mad. 374.

previously transferred by way of gift to another person is not champertous.[34] And where a patnidar, having a claim against the defendant for Rs. 13,099, sold fourteen annas share of his claim to another for Rs. 4,000, it was held in a suit by the patnidar and his assignee to recover Rs. 13,099 from the defendant that the sale was not champertous.[35] But where the liquidator of a company compromised a claim of the company amounting to Rs. 1,61,500 for a tenth part of its amount on the representation of the debtor's friends that he could not pay more, and after about ten years assigned the same claim to a third person who was neither a creditor nor shareholder of the company, but a complete outsider as regards all matters connected with the company, it was held in a suit brought by the assignee to have the compromise declared void on the ground of fraud that the suit was not maintainable, as the assignment was effected with a view to litigation, and was, therefore, champertous in its nature.[36] Sargent J. said:

"The case is, therefore, the simple one of a stranger officiously interfering for reasons of his own, and in no way at the request or even suggestion of the company or liquidator, in a matter in which he has no connection whatever, with the sole object of enabling himself to dispute transactions which occurred ten years, ago, and in which, independently of the assignment of those claims, he has no interest whatever, so far at least as appears on the plaint."

In a Privy Council case, A claimed to be entitled to a taluq by succession, of which B had entered into possession. Not having money to establish his title to the taluq by suit, A sold a moiety of the taluq to R for Rs. 1,50,000. In the sale deed it was stated that a lakh of rupees had been paid down by R, and that the balance of Rs. 50,000 was to remain on deposit with R, to be expended in prosecuting the proposed suit and in paying Rs. 50 every month to A and Rs. 20 to his mukhtar. A suit was then brought by A and R as co-plaintiffs against B. A afterwards compromised with B, and withdrew from the suit. Then arose the question whether R could sue alone, and it was held that he could. It was contended on behalf of B that the statement in the sale deed that one lakh had been paid to A was not true, and that the sale to R was void as being champertous. Their Lordships, after observing that the statement as to the payment of one lakh was not in accordance with the fact, said:

"Of course, at the first blush, the untrue statement throws suspicion upon the whole transaction. But after all, so long as the deed stands, it is no concern of B that A may have a grievance against R on the score of a misstatement in an instrument to which B is no party. A himself has taken no steps to impeach the deed. On the contrary, in the course of the two years that elapsed between the date of the deed and the institution of the suit, A more than once affirmed the transaction... Apart from the untrue recital in the sale deed there seems to be no flaw in the transaction. Without assistance A could not have prosecuted his claim. There was nothing extortionate or unreasonable in the terms of the bargain. There was no gambling in litigation. There was nothing contrary to public policy. Their Lordships agree with the judgment of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner that the transaction was a present transfer by A of one moiety of his interest in the estate, giving a good title to R on which it was competent for him to sue."[37]

In Raja Bhagvat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu,[38] a Hindu widow sold to one X certain properties which she had inherited from her son. The sale, it was alleged, was without legal necessity. On the death of the widow the reversioners who were refused possession by X executed a sale deed in favour of one R by which they purported to sell their rights in the properties, which were worth Rs. 3,00,000 to R for Rs. 52,600 of which, however, only Rs. 600 was paid down, the balance being left on deposit with R "on this condition, that the vendors

---

34 Siva Ramayya v. Ellamma (1899) 22 Mad. 310.

35 Abdool Hakim v. Doorga Proshad (1879) 5 Cal. 4. See also Tarachand v. Suklal (1888) 12 Bom. 559. "Champertous transactions are in their essence speculative, and the fairness or otherwise of a particular bargain is almost always open to some debate. It is essential to have regard not merely to the value of the property claimed, but to the commercial value of the claim. This has to be estimated by the parties in advance of the result.... Though it is clearly not conclusive, the proportion to be retained by the claimant is an important matter to be considered when judging of the fairness of a bargain made at a time when the result of the litigation is problematical. The uncertainties of litigation are proverbial, and if the financier must needs risk losing his money, he may well be allowed some chance of exceptional advantage": per Sir George Rankin in Lala Ram Sarup v. Court of Wards (1939) 67 I.A. 50, at p. 62; (1940) Lah. 1; 185 I.C. 590; 1940 A.P.C. 19. See also Unnao Commercial Bank Ltd. v. Kailash Nath, 1955 A.A. 393, 396.

36 Goculdas v. Lakshmidas (1879) 3 Bom. 402.

37 Achal Ram v. Kazim Hussain Khan (1905) 32 I.A. 113; 27 All. 271.

38 (1908) 35 I.A. 48; 35 Cal. 420.

should get the whole of the consideration in case the whole of the property should be recovered, and in the event of recovery of a portion of the property sold, a portion of the consideration money in proportion thereto." In a suit by R against X for possession of the property, it was held by the High Court of Calcutta that the sale was void as being champertous, that no title passed to R, and that he was not therefore entitled to maintain the suit.[39] On appeal it was held by the Privy Council that though the agreement was of a generally champertous character, it was not void on that account, nor was it opposed to public policy and void by reason of the stipulation relating to the payment of the consideration. As to X's contention that the assignment by the reversioners to R was unfair and unconscionable, it was held that, X not being a party to the assignment, it was not open to him to question the transaction on that ground. In the course of the judgment their Lordships said:

"For the respondents it was bodly argued that, although the English law as to maintenance and champerty is not, as such, applicable to India, yet on other grounds what is substantially the same law is there in force. Their Lordships are of opinion that that proposition cannot be supported. In three cases, Ram Coomar Coondoo v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee,[40] Kunwar Ram Lal v. Nil Kanth,[41] Lal Achal Ram v. Raja Karim Husain Khan,[42] before this Board, a contrary doctrine has been laid down. In the last of those cases full effect was given, under circumstances closely analogous to those of the present case, to an agreement which certainly would have been void if champerty avoided transaction in India. It was further argued that the transaction in question was contrary to public policy and void on that ground, by reason of the provision as to payment of the purchase-money by the first appellant to the second and third. The purchase-money was fixed at Rs. 52,600, of which Rs. 600 was to be paid down, and the balance when the property should be recovered. Their Lordships are unable to agree to this argument. In their opinion the condition so introduced does not carry the case any further than does the champertous character of the transaction generally. It was further said, and this was relied upon in the Courts of India, that the transaction was an unfair and unconscionable bargain for an inadequate price. But that is a question between assignor and assignee. It is unnecessary to consider what the decision ought to have been if this had been a litigation between the assignors and the assignee in which the former sought to repudiate the assignment. In the present case the assignors do nothing of the kind. They maintain the transaction and ask that effect be given to it, and for that purpose they join as plaintiffs in the present action. Their Lordships are therefore of opinion that the attack upon the title of the first appellant upon any such grounds as those indicated must fail."

In a suit to recover money for financing litigation the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that the litigation is just and the agreement to finance it just and equitable.[43]

Agreements between legal practitioners subject to the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, and their clients making the remuneration of the legal practitioner dependent to any extent whatever on the result of the case in which he is retained are illegal as being opposed to public policy.[44]

4. Interference with course of justice.—It needs no authority to show that any agreement for the purpose or to the effect of using improper influence of any kind with judges or officers of justice is void.[45] Various agreements not open to objection on the ground of champerty, nor always obviously wrong in themselves, have been held void as attempting to interfere with the powers and discretion of the regular Courts in administering justice. Thus an agreement whereby one person agreed to assist another in carrying out litigation for the purpose of delaying execution of a decree was held to be unenforceable.[46] So much of this doctrine as it was thought proper to preserve in India will be found in s. 28, below.

---

39 See Debi Doyal Sahoo v. Thakurai Bhau Pertap (1903) 8 C.W.N. 408.
40 (1876) 4 I.A. 23; 2 Cal. 233.
41 (1893) 20 I.A. 112.
42 (1905) 32 I.A. 113; 27 All. 271; 9 C.W.N. 477.
43 Babu Ram v. Ram Charan, 1934 A.A. 1022; 151 I.C. 969.
44 Ganga Ram v. Devi Das (1907) Punj. Rec. No. 61; In the matter of Mr. G. 1954 A.S.C. 557.
45 A promise of reward by a Moslem litigant to a Hindu devotee in consideration of offering prayers for the success of his suit is not against public policy: Balasundara Mudaliar v. Mohammed Oosman (1929) 118 I.C. 65; 1929 A.M. 812; 57 M.L.J. 154; Bapuji v. Natranjan, 1925 A.N. 119; 31 N.L.R. 229. Otherwise where the reward was to be a commission on the money recovered in the suit: Soti Bhagwan Dat Shastri v. Raja Ram (1927) 25 All.L.J. 518; 100 I.C. 1040; 1927 A.A. 406. A promise to withdraw a caveat and to get certain costs from the executor, if the will is proved, is, if fairly made, in no way contrary to public policy: Pashupati Mukherji v. Shitalkumar Sarkar (1930) 58 Cal. 699; 133 I.C. 327; 1931 A. Cal. 587.
46 Nand Kishore v. Kunj Behari Lal (1933) All. L.J. 85; 145 I.C. 756; 1933 A.A. 303.

5. Marriage brocage contracts.—Agreements to procure marriages for reward[47] are undoubtedly void by the common law, on the ground that marriage ought to proceed, if not from mutual affection, at least from the free and deliberate decision of the parties with an unbiased view to their welfare. In England, however, this topic is all but obsolete. It is nearly a century since any case of the kind, except that which is cited in the last note, has been reported in England or Ireland.[48] But such questions have come before Indian Courts in several modern cases, with not quite uniform results. In all those cases, it will be observed, the parties to the suit have been Hindus, a community in which the consent of the marrying parties has rarely, until quite recent years, anything to do with the marriage contract, which is generally arranged by the parents or friends of the parties before they themselves are of an age to give a free and intelligent consent.[49] The consent of parties not being an essential condition in the Hindu marriage contract, and the Asura form of marriage being still recognised as a valid form, it has been held by the High Courts of Allahabad and Orissa,[50] following an earlier decision of the Madras High Court,[51] that every agreement to pay money to the father or guardian of a girl in consideration of his consent to the marriage of the girl is not unlawful, and that each case must be judged by its own circumstances. "Where the parents of the girl are not seeking her welfare, but give her to a husband, otherwise ineligible, in consideration of a benefit to be secured to themselves, an agreement by which such benefit is secured is, in our opinion, opposed to public policy and ought not to be enforced".[52] On the other hand, it has been held by the High Courts of Bombay[53] and Calcutta,[54] and also by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court,[55] that an agreement to pay money to the parent or guardian of a minor, in consideration of his consenting to give the minor in marriage, is void as being opposed to public policy, and the same view has been taken in the Punjab.[56] If such an agreement is void, it follows that if the defendant refuses in breach of the agreement to give his daughter in marriage to the plaintiff's son, the plaintiff cannot recover the stipulated sum from the defendant as damages for breach of the contract, even if the amount has been described in the agreement as peheramni to be given to the bridegroom's father.[57] And it also follows that if the marriage is performed, and the defendant fails to pay the agreed amount, the plaintiff cannot maintain a suit to recover it from the defendant,[58] even though the defendant has executed a promissory note in favour of the plaintiff.[59] But where the agreed sum or a portion thereof has been paid by the plaintiff in advance and the suit is brought to recover back the amount on failure of the

---

47 Whether general or specific: Hermann v. Charlesworth (1905) 2 K.B. 123, C.A., reversing the judgment of a Divisional Court who had held that only agreements to procure marriages with specified persons were illegal.

48 In Hurwitz v. Taylor (1926) T.P.D. 81, a Transvaal Court held such an agreement to be contrary to public policy. See an interesting article by Raphael Powell in 1953 Current Legal Problems, 254.

49 Cp. Purshotamdas Tribhovandas v. Purshotamdas Mangaldas (1896) 21 Bom. 23, where it is laid down that the contract for the marriage of Hindu children under Hindu law is made exclusively by the parents. It is settled (following the analogy of English law) that specific performance of a Hindu parent's or guardian's contract to give him a child in marriage will not be granted; the only remedy is in damages. See Re Gunput Narain Singh (1875) 1 Cal. 70; Khimji v. Lalji Karamsi (1941) Bom. 211; 196 I.C. 858; 1941 A.B. 129.

50 Baldeo Sahai v. Jumna (1901) 23 All. 495; Girdhari Singh v. Neeladhar Singh (1912) 10 All. L.J. 159; 16 I.C. 1504; Tihadi v. Gokhei Panda, 1954 A. Or. 17.

51 Visvanathan v. Saminathan (1889) 13 Mad. 83.

52 23 All. 495, at pp. 496, 497. See also Mst. Sonphula Kuer v. Gansuri, 1937 A.P. 330; 169 I.C. 901.

53 Dholidas v. Fulchand (1897) 22 Bom. 658; Dulari v. Vallabdas (1888) 13 Bom. 126.

54 Baldeo Das v. Mohamaya (1911) 15 C.W.N. 447.

55 Kalavangunta Venkata v. Kalavangunta Lakshmi (1908) 32 Mad. 185.

56 Wazarimal v. Ballia (1889) Punj. Rec. No. 128; Hira v. Bhandari (1892) Punj. Rec. No. 112; Kundan Lal v. Nathu (1880) Punj. Rec. No. 116. See also Abbas Khan v. Nur Khan (1920) 1 Lah. 574; 58 I.C. 167.

57 Dholidas v. Fulchand (1897) 22 Bom. 658. See also Dulari v. Vallabdas (1888) 13 Bom. 126; Kalavangunta Venkata v. Kalavangunta Lakshmi (1908) 32 Mad. 185; Raunekbal Singh v. Harihar Singh (1962) A.P. 343 (payment of tilak money punishable under Bihar Dowry Restraint Act of 1950).

58 Baldeo Das v. Mohamaya (1911) 15 C.W.N. 447; Baldeo Sahai v. Jamna Kunwar (1901) 23 All. 495. The case of Ranee Lallun v. Nobin Mohan (1876) 25 W.R. 32, was peculiar, the agreement in that case having been acted on for fifty years.

59 Narayanan Nambudri v. Partticharavoor, 1945 A.M. 165, 221 I.C. 584. The contrary view in Childambara Iyer v. Ananthakrishna, 1954 A.T.C. 231 is not sustainable, as there must be consideration for a promissory note, and the consideration must not be illegal.

defendant to give the bride in marriage, the plaintiff is entitled to a decree for the same.[60] And it has been held by the High Court of Madras that a marriage brocage agreement being unlawful, a plaintiff who has paid money in advance is entitled to recover it back from the defendant though he himself may have broken the contract by refusing to give the bride in marriage.[61] The same view has been taken by the Patna High Court,[62] even though the plaintiff has assigned no reason for the refusal.[63] There is absolutely no doubt that if any present of ornaments has been made by the father or the guardian of the bridegroom to the bride, the same could be recovered by the former if the father of the bride, in breach of the contract, gives away the girl in marriage to another,[64] or if the bride or bridegroom dies before the marriage.[65]

Contract against Public Policy cannot be the basis of a criminal charge—Receiving money for marriage.—A contract for receiving pecuniary gain either by the father of the groom or of the bride in consideration of giving his son or daughter in marriage is opposed to public policy and repugnant to morals. Such a contract is hit by s. 23, Contract Act, and is not enforceable in a Civil Court. Hence it cannot form the basis of a charge of cheating in a criminal Court. It is submitted that the proposition is too broadly stated about criminal liability.[66]

The Madras High Court holds that there is no distinction in principle between an agreement between A and B that B's daughter shall marry A 's son on payment of a sum of money by A to B and an agreement between A and B that B's daughter shall marry A's son and that, if she fails to do so, B shall pay a sum of money to A. In such case B has a pecuniary interest in bringing about the marriage. In the one case, if the event takes place, he receives money. In the other case, if the event does not take place, he has to pay money. If the former agreement is void as being contrary to public policy as held in the Full Bench case cited above, the latter agreement, it was held, is equally so.[67]

It has been held in the Punjab that a family arrangement of inter-marriages of sons and daughters of various families known as bil mawaza amongst persons of the same class, by which the family A gives a girl to be taken as a wife on equal terms into family B, and a girl of the family B is at the same time given as a wife into family A, stands on a totally different footing from what is really a sale of the girl, and is not therefore void as opposed to public policy. Where a girl, therefore, of a family A is given as a wife in family B in virtue of such an arrangement, but family B refuses to give a boy of the family as a husband in family A, a suit will lie for damages for breach of the contract. But since such arrangements are not held in very high repute, the Court will not award heavy damages.[68]

There is absolutely no doubt that where the agreement is by a person to pay money to a stranger hired to procure a wife for him, it is opposed to public policy and will not be enforced

---

60 Juggessur v. Panchcowree (1870) 14 W.R. 154; Ram Chand v. Audaito Sen (1884) 10 Cal. 1054; Gulabchand v. Fulbai (1909) 33 Bom. 411, where the marriage could not take place because of the death of the plaintiff's son; Jiwana v. Malak Chand (1919) 54 P.R. 113; Ganpat v. Lahana (1927) 106 I.C. 803; 1928 A.N. 89; Alsidas v. Punamchand (1944) Nag. 535, 1944 A.N. 159, 214 I.C. 168; Bhan Singh v. Kaka Singh, 1933 A.L. 849; Sadhusing Fatehsing v. Jhamandas, 1937 A.S. 211; 171 I.C. 1005; see contra Girdhari Singh v. Neeladhar Singh (1912) 10 All. L.J. 159.

61 Srinivasa v. Sesha (1918) 41 Mad. 197; 41 I.C. 783.

62 Gopi Krishna v. Janak Prasad, 1951 A.P. 519, reversing Janak Prasad v. Gopi Krishna, 1947 A.P. 132, 225 I.C. 177.

63 Dharnidhar v. Kanhji Sahay, 1949 A.P. 250.

64 Rambhat v. Timmayya (1892) 16 Bom. 673; Girdhari Singh v. Neeladhar Singh (1912) 10 All. L.J. 159; 16 I.C. 1004; Cohen v. Sellar (1926) 1 K.B. 536. But if the proposed marriage is in fact solemnised, and gifts of this kind made over, they cannot be recovered back; Ram Sumran Prasad v. Gobind Das (1926) 5 Pat. 646; 99 I.C. 782; 1926 A.P. 582.

65 Rajendra Bahadur v. Roshan, 1950 A.A. 592.

66 Ramji Lal v. State of Haryana State (1965) 1 Punj. 398; 403; A. Suryanarayan Murthy v. P. Krishna Murthy and another (1957) A.O. 124; Emperor v. Jani Hira 13 Cr. L.J. 521 (1912); Jamadar Rai and others v. Emperor (1930) A.P. 504 reld. on.

67 Devarayan v. Mutturaman (1914) 37 Mad. 393; 18 I.C. 515; followed in Fazal Rahim v. Nur Mohammad, 1935 A. Pesh. 121; 157 I.C. 736.

68 Amir Chand v. Ram (1903) Punj. Rec. No. 50.

by any of the Indian Courts.[69] An agreement by A to pay money to B if B induces his daughter to take A in adoption is as much against public policy as a marriage brocage contract, and B is not entitled to recover on the agreement.[70] It has, however, been held that a promise to pay a sum of money to a bride or bridegroom in consideration of the marriage is valid and not opposed to public policy.[71]

5A. Contract in restraint of marriage and marriage agreements against public policy.—A contract in general restraint of marriage is unenforceable on the ground of public policy, whether it contains an express undertaking that the subject will not marry, or whether it is merely a contract which on financial or other grounds tends to discourage a subject from marrying.[72] A deed of settlement by a married Hindu in favour of a lady consenting to be his second wife executed prior to the marriage gifting certain properties to her for life with "vested remainder" to the children of marriage is void as being an illegal or unlawful consideration.[73] The gift over to the children of marriage suffers from the same defect and is also void.[74]

A seventy-year-old man living apart from his wife promised a sixty-five-year old woman that he would leave her his house and everything and would marry her "when I will be ready"; and she continued living with him after she discovered he was married.

She was held to have no claim in contract or on a quantum meruit to his house and land.[75]

An agreement to marry is illegal as against public policy if at the time it is made one of the parties, to the knowledge of the other, is married. This is so even though the agreement is to marry when the existing marriage ends by death or a decree of court; and it makes no difference that the existing marriage may be an empty shell and there are grounds for immediate divorce. But an enforceable agreement can be made after the decree nisi.[76] But the contract is enforceable if at the time the contract was made one of the parties was unaware of the fact[77] or if a decree nisi obtained was capable of being made absolute in a short time (2 or 3 weeks).[78] A divorce deed between a husband and wife with a provision of maintenance till remarriage irrespective of whether the husband succeeded in proving a plea of the wife living in adultery is void under s. 23 as being opposed to public policy.[79]

A petition for divorce under s. 8 of Bombay Hindu Divorce Act was withdrawn and divorce under custom with a provision for maintenance for life or till marriage was made by the husband.

This agreement was held to be subject to the provisions of the Act that the wife shall remain chaste.[80] A marriage custom which allows dissolution of marriage at the will of either spouse is not against public policy.[81] It may not be difficult to see the difference between this case and the Bombay case Keshav v. Bai Gandi.[82] In a latter case, a caste custom allowing either spouse to divorce the other against the other's wish out of mere caprice, sole condition being the fixing of money compensation by the caste was held opposed to public policy under s. 23. Money paid by a person to obtain a divorce by another is money paid for an illegal or immoral purpose.[83]

---

69 Vaithyanathan v. Gungarazu (1893) 17 Mad. 9; Pitamber v. Jagjiwan (1884) 13 Bom. 131.
70 Kothanda v. Thesu Reddiar (1914) 27 Mad. L.J. 416.
71 Narayanan Nambudri v. Patticharavoor, 1945 A.M. 165, 221 I.C. 584.
72 In re Michelham's Will Trusts (1963) 2 W.L.R. 1238, 1244.
73 Marayee Ammal v. Nalluswamy (1965) 2 M.L.J. 329; Maneshaw v. Motishaw (1956) S.C.R. 639 dist
74 Marayee Ammal v. Nalluswamy (1965) 2 M.L.J. 329.
75 Lazarenko v. Borowoky (1966) 57 D.L.R. (2nd) 577.
76 Fender v. St. John-Mildmay (1938) A.C. 1; (1937) 3 All E.R. 402; Dobersek v. Petrizza (S. C. Wellington, 16th Oct. 1967); Spiers v. Hunt (1908) 1 K.B. 720; Wilson v. Carnley (1908) 1 K.B. 729; Skipp v. Kelly, 42 T.L.R.258 (1926); Siveyer v. Allison (1935) 2 K.B. 403.
77 Wild v. Harris (1849) 7 C.B. 999; 157 E.R. 395; Millward. v. Littlewood (1850) 5 Ex. 775; 155 E.R. 339.
78 Psaltis v. Shultz (1948) 76 C.L.R. 547, 563-4 (Two or three weeks' time); Fender v. St. John Mildmay (1938) A.C. 1 refd. to.
79 Audambar v. Sonubai, 1962 A.B. 35.
80 Audambar v. Sonubai, 1962 A.B. 35.
81 Suddha v. Sankappa Rai (1963) A.My. 245; contra Keshav v. Bai Gandi, 39 Bom. 538 dist.
82 39 Bom. 538; 1915 A.B. 107.
83 Thanki v. Bajirao, 1956 A.N. 160.

6. Agreements tending to create interest against duty.—One of the reasons suggested for not enforcing agreements to reward parents for giving their children in marriage is that such agreements tend to a conflict of interest with duty. The same principle is applied by the Common Law to dealings of agents and other persons in similar fiduciary positions with third persons.[84] An agent must not deal in the matter of the agency on his own account without his principal's knowledge. In the present Act the rules on this head are embodied in the chapter on Agency,[85] and will accordingly be considered in that place. Certain rules which we shall find in the chapter on Indemnity and Guarantee[86] rest on similar grounds of equity. There are conflicting opinions as to the legality of an agreement by a Patwari or Kanungo in Government service for the purchase of land situated within his circle or for the acquisition of any other interest therein. Allahabad decisions that such an agreement created an interest which would conflict with his duty[87] have been overruled by the Bench of the same Court;[88] but the Lahore High Court does not follow this, at any rate as to agricultural land.[89] The Bombay[90] and the Madras[91] High Courts agree with the Full Bench decision of the Allahabad High Court. If a person enters into an agreement with a public servant which to his knowledge might cast upon the public servant obligations inconsistent with public duty, the agreement is void.[92]

6A. Transfer of parental authority.—There is no difference between Hindu Law and English Law in regard to guardianship. The father is the natural guardian of his minor children but the guardianship is in the nature of a sacred trust and he cannot during his lifetime substitute another to be the guardian. He may, in his discretion, as guardian entrust the custody and education of his children to another. But the authority is essentially a revocable one and if the welfare of the children require it, he can notwithstanding any contract to the contrary take such custody and education in his own hands.[93] If, however, the authority has been acted upon in such a way as, in the opinion of the court, to create associations or give rise to expectations on the part of the infants, which it would be undesirable in their interests to disturb or disappoint, such court will interfere to prevent its revocation.[94] In Besant v. Narayaniah,[93] the question of validity of the contract was not specifically decided but the decision shows how far the agreement acted upon will be enforced.

In English Law, a contract by a parent to transfer parental rights and religious education is void.[95] as against public policy. Thus a father cannot by contract bind himself to give up the control of the religious education of his children[96] or their custody.[97] But it may be a valid condition in a deed of separation unless the court is of opinion that it is not in the interests of the children. If so the contract will not be enforceable.[98] Similarly the mother of an illegitimate child cannot by contract transfer the obligation imposed on her by law to another person. But there may be circumstances in which such a contract may, for good consideration, be enforced.[99]

---

84 Manikka Mooppanar v. Peria Muniyandi, 1936 A.M. 541; 164 I.C. 31.
85 Ss. 215, 216.
86 Ss. 133, 137.
87 Shiam Lal v. Chhaki Lal (1900) 22 All. 220; Sheo Narain v. Mata Prasad (1904) 27 All. 73; 1 A.L.J. 412.
88 Bhagwan Dei v. Murari Lal (1917) 39 All 51; 36 I.C. 259; 14 A.L.J. 962 (F.B.); Kamala Devi v. Gur Dayal (1917) 39 All. 58; 36 I.C. 319; 14 A.L.J. 969. In Sharan Behari Lal v. Kanhaya Lal, 1953 A.A. 276, a mortgage to an advocate by his client was held not to be void.
89 Abdul Rahman v. Ghulam Muhammad (1926) 7 Lah. 463; 98 I.C. 673; 1927 A.L. 18.
90 Dharwar Bank v. Mahomed Hayat, 1931 A.B. 269; 133 I.C. 241; 33 Bom.L.R. 250.
91 Manuel Lobo v. Nicholas Britto (1897) 7 Mad.L.J. 268.
92 Sitarampur Coal Co. Ltd. v. Colley (1908) 13 C.W.N. 59. It is not easy to see what the party's knowledge has to do with it. The rule is for the protection of the public interest.
93 Besant v. Narayaniah, 41 I.A. 314.
94 Besant v. Narayaniah, 41 I.A. 314; 1914 A.PC. 41; Lyons v. Blenkin (1821) Jacob 245 per Lord Eldon quoted in Andrews v. Salt (1873) 8 Ch. App. 622, 640.
95 Chitty: On Contracts (23rd Ed.), para 860: (24th Ed.) Para 960.
96 Andrews v. Salt (1873) 8 Ch. App. 622, 636.
97 Re Andrews 8 Q.B. 153; See now Adoption Act (1958).
98 Chitty: On Contracts (23rd Ed.), para 860: (24th Ed.) Para 960.
99 Humphreys v. Polak (1901) 2 K.B. 385, 388.

In the case of Hindus, the Law of Guardianship has been now codified by the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, and by s. 6 the law has been declared in terms of the Hindu Law as administered in India and it is no different from what it was before the new Act.[1] But in the case of guardianship under sec. 13 of the Act, the first and paramount consideration is the welfare of the minor.[2]

An ante-nuptial agreement between husband and wife of different religious persuasions that boys should be brought up in the religion of the father and girls in the religion of the mother is not binding as a legal contract. No damages can be recovered and it cannot be enforced by a suit for specific performance. The decision of the question would depend upon what is for the benefit of a child.[3]

7. Sale of public offices.—Traffic by way of sale in public offices and appointments obviously tends to the prejudice of the public service by interfering with the selection of the best qualified persons; and such sales are forbidden in England by various statutes said to be in affirmance of the common law.[4] In Parkinson v. College of Ambulance, Ltd.,[5] the secretary of the defendant charity fraudulently represented to P that the charity could procure a knighthood for him, if he made an adequate gift to the charity. P paid £3,000/- to the charity, but sought in vain to recover his money when no title was forthcoming. The cases in India on this branch of the subject have arisen principally in connection with religious offices. The sale of the office of a shebait has been held invalid by the High Court of Madras.[6] The High Court of Bombay, while affirming the invalidity of an alienation of the office to a stranger, upholds an alienation made in favour of a member of the founder's family standing in the line of succession.[7] Similarly the office of mutwali of a wakf is not transferable,[8] nor land which is the emolument of a religious office.[9] A custom allowing the sale of the office of uralar (trustee) of a Hindu temple for the pecuniary advantage of the trustee, even if it was established, would be bad in law.[10] These decisions are based upon the principle that the interest of the public might suffer if bargains relating to public offices are upheld, as their effect is to prevent such offices being filled by the best available persons. Where, however, the claimants to the office of ojha (high priest) of the temple of Baidyanath were members of a family group, and one claimed the office on the ground that it was elective, and the other that it was hereditary, the High Court of Calcutta held that a compromise by which one of the claimants relinquished his claim in favour of the other in consideration of an annual payment out of the charao offerings to the idol was not against public policy.[11] The transfer of a village barber inam by some of the office holders, not being a transfer within section 5 of Madras Hereditary Offices Act, is not prohibited.[12] But the office of Vettis is not transferable as unlike the office of barbers it is not heritable but is an appointment by the Collector.[13] (See Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 6(f).)

An agreement to pay money to a public servant to induce him to retire and thus make way for the appointment of the promisor is virtually a trafficking with reference to an office, and is void under this section.[14] In the language of the English law, such an agreement is an office

---

1 Act 32 of 1956.
2 Chitty on Contracts (23rd Ed.), para 860: (24th Ed.) Para 960. Also see Mulla: Hindu Law (14th Edn.); sec. 17 of Guardians and Wards Act 1890, Bose v. Brown (1951) A. Punj. 338, 340.
3 Andrews v. Salt (1873) 8 Ch.App. 622, 636; In re Meades, Ir.L.R. 5 Eq. 98; Hill v. Hill, 10 W.R. 400.
4 See Pollock, Contract, 13th ed., pp. 306-7. The statute 49 Geo. III, c.126, s.3, is still in force in the Presidency towns.
5 (1925) 2 K.B. 1.
6 Narasimma v. Anantha Bhatta (1881) 4 Mad. 391; Kuppa Gurukal v. Dora Sami (1882) 6 Mad. 76. See also Rajah Vurmah Valia v. Ravi Vurmah Kunhi (1876) 4 I.A. 76; 1 Mad. 235; Ghanasambanda Pandara Sannadhi v. Velu Pandaram (1900) 27 I.A. 69; 23 Mad. 271.
7 Mancharam v. Pranshankar (1882) 6 Bom. 298.
8 Wahid Ali v. Ashruff Hossain (1882) 8 Cal. 732.
9 Anjaneyalu v. Sri Venugopala Rice Mill Ltd. (1922) 45 Mad. 620; 70 I.C. 466.
10 Rajah Vurmah Valia v. Ravi Varmah Kunhi, supra, note 95.
11 Girijanund v. Sailajanund (1896) 23 Cal. 645.
12 Venkatareddi v. Venkatachalam (1964) A.A.P. 465.
13 Ibid.
14 See also Venkataramanayya v. J. M. Lobo, 1953 A.M. 506.

brocage agreement invalid as opposed to public policy[15] (see illustration (f) to the section, above). So too a promise to make an annual payment to a person on condition that he withdraws his candidature for a public office in favour of the promisor is unenforceable.[16] Where money is paid under such an agreement, it cannot be recovered back from the defendant, though he has failed to carry out his promise to procure employment for the plaintiff in public service.[17]

8. Agreements tending to create monopolies.—Agreements having for their object the creation of monopolies are void as opposed to public policy.[18] An arrangement which is designed to keep up prices (as in a minimum price arrangement) is not necessarily disadvantageous to the public. It may operate to the public benefit.[19] A provision reasonable as between parties which restricts the trade of a British Company is not prima facie against public policy merely because it is imposed at the instance of a foreign business concern.[20]

8A. Airlines.—A clause in an exemption agreement excluding liability of an airline carrier is not opposed to public policy and to s. 23.[21]

9. Agreement by client to remunerate his pleader's clerk.—An agreement by which a litigant binds himself to pay a sum of money to his pleader's clerk for giving special attention to his legal business which the pleader is bound to see to in consideration of his fee is opposed to public policy, and consequently cannot be enforced.[22]

10. Agreement not to bid.—An agreement between persons not to bid against one another at an auction sale is not necessarily unlawful,[23] as being in restraint of trade. Harrop v. Thompson (1975)2 All E.R. 94, 96, but it may be so if the purpose is to defraud a third party.[24] Or prevent the realisation of fair price of to damp the sale which will be against public policy. Lachhmandas v. Hakim Sita Ram (1975) A.D. 159, 164.

11. Suicide.—In England suicide by a sane person is felo de se, and it has accordingly been held that the heirs or assignees of an assured, who has committed suicide, cannot enforce the insurance policy, even though on its true construction the insurers had agreed to pay in such an event.[25] This was on the ground that suicide was a crime, and it would be against public policy to enforce such a contract of insurance. In India, however, suicide is not a crime,

---

15 Saminatha v. Muthusami (1907) 30 Mad. 530; Karuppiah v. Ponnuchami, 1933 A.M. 768; 65 M.L.J. 532; 145 I.C. 972.

16 Puttu Lal v. Raj Narain (1931) 53 All. 609; 132 I.C. 419; 1931 A.A. 428; Parsons v. Thomson, 2 R.R. 773; Kurrupiah v. Ponnuchami Pillai, 1933 A.M. 768; Saminatha Aiyar v. Muthusami Pillai, 30 Mad. 530.

17 Ledu v. Hiralal (1916) 43 Cal. 115; 29 I.C. 625. See this case commented on in Srinivasa v. Sesha Ayyar (1918) 41 Mad. 197, at pp. 200, 202; 41 I.C. 783. Parkinson v. College of Ambulance (1925) 2 K.B. 1. In Ranjeetsingh v. Ramlal, 1951 A.M.B. 113, it was held that offering money to a jobber in a mill to give employment was against public policy.

